TRAINS SAVE LIVES OF THOUSANDS FROM MISSISSIPPI FLOODS

Women Are Rescued After Standing Three Days in the Water.

Livestock Speculators Have to Be Barred From the Levees.

No New Breaks in Dikes Are Reported in Louisiana.

New Roads, La., May 8.—It is believed by those in charge of flood relief work that practically all the flood marooned inhabitants of Pointe Coupee parish will have been rescued by the end of this week. Texas & Pacific railroad officials say their road has transported about 7,000 people from points along their line in the upper part of the parish.

The Texas & Pacific station at New Roads is crowded with white refugees waiting to be taken to the relief camp at Baton Rouge. Among them are four women who were rescued near Morganza. They stood in water several feet deep for nearly three days, when boatmen reached them. The women, who were on the verge of collapse when rescued, lost everything except the clothing they wore.

Water Is Spreading.

The waters from the Torras crevasse continue to spread over West Baton Rouge and Iberville Parishes. The situation in the country between the main line and the Port Allen branch of the Texas & Pacific railroad is gloomy. The main line of the road is washed out in numerous places and the inhabitants of the interior are cut off from access to relief trains. The

SHRINERS LIKE DULUTH SINGERS

Aad Temple Gets Some More Attention at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Aad Temple patrol and the Aad Temple quartet are dividing honors at the Shrine meeting. Capt. Thomas P. Bradley's boys proved about the most popular patrol in the parade yesterday, and Choirmaster Custance and his quartet won distinct honors at the Imperial Council session. The singing of the quartet made a big hit, and the Aad quartet had to repeat one song several times. It was the one about Imperial Potentate Treat and the chorus runs as follows:

"Hushaby, baby, don't you cry,
You will be a potentate by and by.
So rest in slumber sweet,
Sleep, Little John of the Treat."

All of the Duluth delegation are in fine fettle, and when seen after the big parade last night were delighted with the reception given them by the immense Los Angeles crowd that witnessed the procession. Capt. Bradley's men presented a beautiful appearance in their gorgeous white and blue satin uniforms, and made a decided hit.

Today the boys took in the pleasures down at Long Beach, and the members of the patrol were the guests of Eddie Maier, head of the Maier Brewing company, who invited them to attend a Spanish barbecue at Simi in the Chatsworth mountains.

INSTRUCTED FOR WILSON

Pennsylvania Delegates-at-Large Given Direct Orders.

Old Party Machine Completely Swamped at State Meeting.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 8. — In the small hall where the regular Republican organization of Pennsylvania was overthrown last week, the regular Democratic state organization was swept out of power by the "reorganization" faction yesterday after a fight lasting nearly two years.

The "reorganizers'" victory was complete and no resistance was made by the regulars after the vote on permanent chairman of the state convention showed that their opponents controlled the convention by 110 votes to 73. The party has been split for more than a year and two state committees have directed the destinies of Pennsylvania's Democracy.

"Vote for Woodrow Wilson."

The "reorganizers," under the leadership of George W. Guthrie, former mayor of Pittsburg, Vance C. McCormick, former mayor of Harrisburg, and Congressman Palmer named a complete state ticket, elected twelve delegates at large and twelve alternates to Bal-

DEMANDED BY PUBLIC

Congress Likely to Pass Parcels Post Bill at Next Session.

Mail Order Houses Oppose Movement—Would Help Village Retailer.

(By Willis J. Abbot.)

Washington, May 8. — (Special to The Herald.) — During the presidential campaign of 1908 a prominent newspaper publisher of Chicago declared to me that any party that advocated a general parcels post would be defeated in that election.

Perhaps the Bryan proposition that newspapers should print the names of their actual owners of record might have explained the opposition of this particular publisher. It might have shown the names of railroad and express magnates. But at any rate the fight for and against the parcels post plan is one of the most bitter waged in congress today. It is the general impression here that the measure pressed by Representative William Sulzer of New York comes nearer to meeting the equities of the case. The real essentials of this bill are the raising of the limit of weight on

CHICAGO WOMAN HELD FOR MURDER

Accused of Killing Another Woman in Quarrel Over Man.

Chicago, May 8.—Mrs. Lizzie Buchanan, 24 years old, was arrested today charged with the murder of Mrs. Jessie Rice, 38 years old, May 6.

Mrs. Rice was shot while in Mrs. Buchanan's home on the South Side and died yesterday in a hospital. In an ante-mortem statement she accused Mrs. Buchanan of the crime. She said that she and Mrs. Buchanan had words over a man and that Mrs. Buchanan drew a revolver and fired several shots at her. When Mrs. Rice sank to the floor Mrs. Buchanan fled.

Mrs. Buchanan denied all knowledge of the shooting.

SUDDEN DEATH HALTS WEDDING

Farmer Drops Dead on Way to Meet Carriage Returning From Funeral.

Green Bay, Wis., May 8.—James Cormier, a prominent farmer of the town of Ashwaubenon, dropped dead near his home today from heart failure while running from his home to stop a carriage which contained friends who had attended a funeral. Mr. Cormier's daughter was to have been married today, but the wedding has been postponed on account of his death.

WHO SHALL BE NEW BISHOPS?

Question Is Causing Much Consultation at Methodist Conference.

Eleven Nominees Already Suggested—Church Court Plan Rejected.

Minnapolis, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the beginning today of the second week of the quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, the "politics" of the church, which hinges principally around the election of the bishops, is occupying more and more the attention of the delegates. Conservative leaders place the number of names which will be voted upon at the first ballot at 100, while others say that there will be nearer 200. A two-thirds vote of the 850 delegates is necessary for the election of a bishop.

Among those who prominently are mentioned as candidates from whom the probable eight or ten new bishops are to be chosen, and who in most cases have been candidates in previous conferences are:

SHOW RED CROSS WORK IN WAR TIME

Delegates at International Congress Hear From Various Countries.

Washington, May 8. — The Red Cross activities of wartime, as opposed to those in which it engages in times of peace, were discussed at today's session of the International Red Cross conference. For the United States, Surgeon General Torney of the army was on the list of speakers for a discussion of the American Red Cross society's organization for war time service, and Surgeon General Stokes of the navy for an address on "How the Red Cross and the Navy Co-operate in War Days." Dr. Steiner of Austria-Hungary and Maj. De Marval of Switzerland were scheduled to speak for their respective countries.

The Red Cross building, in which the exhibits are on display, was thrown open to the public today. One of the exhibits that has attracted much attention is the reproduction of an operating room aboard an American battleship. Another is an American Red Cross railroad relief car, which was hauled with difficulty through the city to its present position just outside of the Red Cross building.

Indorsement of Roosevelt Foregone Conclusion at Independence.

Governor Stubbs Makes Enthusiastic Speech for Ex-President.

Independence, Kan., May 8.—The Republican state convention, which was called to order at noon today to name four delegates-at-large to the national convention, will indorse the candidacy of Col. Roosevelt for the presidential nomination and instruct the "big four" to vote for him from the first ballot to the last.

William Allen White of Emporia will be indorsed for national committeeman.

The makeup of the delegation appears likely to be Henry J. Allen, Wichita; Ralph Harris, Ottawa; John Landon, Independence, and Ansell Clark of Rice county. The convention is going to be given a free hand. If there were any real "slates" other than those the delegates themselves had been boosting over night, they did not appear before the convention opened.

Fred Stanley of Wichita was chosen temporary chairman and Governor Stubbs permanent chairman.

WILSON MEN WIN IN TEXAS

Are Given Certain Control of the State Democratic Convention.

Republican Contest Cannot Be Decided on Face of Returns.

Dallas, Tex., May 8.—Reports from all but 36 of 249 Texas county conventions held yesterday show that Woodrow Wilson has more than enough votes to control the state convention May 28. The returns this morning gave Wilson 350, Harmon 149 and Clark 43. There are 623 votes in the state convention, 312 being necessary to control.

It will require the state convention on May 28 to decide between President Taft and Col. Roosevelt as to Texas' preference for the Republican presidential nomination.

Col. Roosevelt had a substantial lead over Mr. Taft in the county convention returns received this forenoon, when three-quarters of the state's counties had been heard from. Contests and

SELL PAPERS AS POLICE LOOK ON

News Vendors in Chicago Guarded---Publications Are Made Regularly.

Chicago, May 8.—There was less disorder today than at any time since the beginning of the newspaper strike. Several disturbances were reported early in the day and a few arrests were made, but there was a marked improvement in conditions both in the maintenance of order and in the distribution of newspapers. All the afternoon papers published full sized editions and they were sold in both the downtown and outlying districts under police protection.

J. F. Lynch, international president of the Typographical union, has called a meeting of the local organizations for late this afternoon to consider the strike situation and decide what action the printers will take in the controversy.

James F. Enright, 35 years old, a union painter, was arrested today charged with having set fire to a bundle of newspapers at a news stand. The burning of the newspapers attracted a large crowd.

Efforts to induce the mailers to declare a sympathetic strike failed by an almost unanimous vote.

Max Annanborg, head of the circulation department of a morning newspaper was arrested late last night charged with attempts to kill. The charges against Annanborg were brought by Charles Strickler, said to be one of the pressmen, who declared that Annanborg had fired several shots from a revolver at him. Annanborg was taken to the South Clark street police station, where arrangements were made for bail.

DENIES RICHESON WAS A MORMON

Attorney for Confessed Murderer Contradicts Woman's Story.

Boston, Mass., May 8.—"It's a lie," said William A. Morse, attorney for Clarence V. T. Richeson, today in answer to the charge by Mrs. Louie E. Brittain that his client was formerly a Mormon. "I know Richeson's life story thoroughly, and the statement that he has been a Mormon is wicked, foolish and ridiculously untrue.

"We have a record of everything that Richeson has ever done; I know just what he has done in every year of his life. He was not in Staten Island in 1909, as this woman charges.

"The story is a foolish fake of the same kind as the letters I get every day from various people, most of them claiming to be messages from heaven."

Charter Amendment Carries at Special Election By Vote of 4 to 1.

Only Two of Forty-Three Precincts Vote in the Negative.

Efficiency of Campaign for New Principles Reflected in Result.

The voters of Duluth yesterday added the initiative, referendum and recall to the city charter by a vote of approximately 4 to 1.

The total vote for the amendment was 5,331; 1,296 votes were cast against it and 145 ballots were classed as void, being either blank or marked both for and against the amendment.

The total vote cast was 6,772, giving the amendment 78.7 per cent of the total vote cast, whereas 60 per cent, or three-fifths, was necessary to pass it. In other words, the amendment received 1,268 4-5 votes more than the 4,063 1-5 votes needed to carry it.

The amendment carried by big majorities in every ward and was a sweeping victory for those who have been advocating its passage. But two precincts, the second and third of the Fourth ward, went against it, out of forty-three precincts in the city. These

TWO POLICEMEN ARE WOUNDED

Bullet and Hatchet Figure in Attack on San Diego Officers.

San Diego, Cal., May 8.—One policeman was shot in the back, another's head was cut open by a thrown hatchet, and one unidentified man was fatally wounded last night in a fight precipitated when the policemen were fired upon from windows of a house occupied by members of the Industrial Workers of the World.

As Policemen R. D. Hedden and Henry Stephens, in citizens' clothes, were passing a house, regarded locally as headquarters for the Industrial Workers, a shot fired from the second story window passed through Stephens' arm and lodged in his back. Hedden was struck by a hatchet, which, apparently, thrown from the same window, gashed the policeman's forehead. Hedden opened fire and the shots brought his fellow officers, who rushed the house. The five men arrested refused to make any statement. The policemen will recover.

Later the police found a man in a lodging house suffering from three probably fatal wounds. No one could explain how he arrived there.

REPUBLICANS WIN IN ST. PAUL

Commission Form Vote Results in Favor of Adopting Plan.

St. Paul, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Complete returns from yesterday's election in this city show that the voters declared themselves in favor of the commission form of government by a decisive majority.

The entire Republican ticket was elected, Herbert P. Keller being returned to the mayor's chair by a majority of 423 votes over his Democratic opponent, Otto Bremer.

RENEW STRIKE IN LOWELL MILL

Industrial Workers Claim New Agreement Is Being Ignored.

Lowell, Mass., May 8.—Five hundred members of the Industrial Workers of the World remained out of work today at the Merrimac Manufacturing company's mills, marking the beginning of the second strike in this city in the last few weeks. The strikers' action was in accordance with a vote taken last night to strike in support of their demand for time-and-a-quarter for work during the noon hour at the mills, which, they claim, was promised when they resumed work at the end of the recent strike.

A parade was held through the principal streets early today, and two red flags were carried at the head of the line. One arrest was made, a striker being charged with assault.

FREIGHT MEN ARE PEACEFUL

Absence of Violence Is Feature of the Strike in Chicago.

Railroads Are Calling in Agents From Outside to Handle Goods.

Chicago, May 9.—Absence of violence continues a feature of the strike of 6,000 freight handlers affecting twenty-four of the twenty-six railroads entering this city.

Acting on the advice of President P. J. Flannery of the Freight Handlers' union, the men are endeavoring to win their fight by peaceful methods. Thus far there has been little "picketing" resorted to by the men.

"We feel we have the railroads securely tied up and will win without the assistance of other unions," said President Flannery. "But if it becomes necessary the strike will spread to include the entire country."

Bringing in Agents.

Every available freight agent from nearby territory has been brought to Chicago by the railroads to assist in the movement of freight.

The railroads reported that all perishable freight is being moved with but little delay, and that the force of men employed is being increased gradually each day.

There was more talk of settling the strike by arbitration today when it was reported that several railroads had made overtures for peace, and that a conference of railroad officials and members of the executive board of the Brotherhood of Railway Freight Handlers probably would be held either late today or tomorrow.

Called to Chicago.

Janesville, Wis., May 8.—The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Chicago & Northwestern railroads are calling in their agents to do the clerical work in the Chicago offices, and some of the freight handlers and clerks in the Chicago offices will go out and work in the yards in place of the striking freight handlers. The two Janesville agents of the roads and the St. Paul agents at Madison and on the West division of that road between here and Mineral Point have all been called in.

Some From Green Bay.

Green Bay, Wis., May 8.—Otto Brendler, trainmaster of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road and a crew of men have left here for Chicago to aid in handling the freight in that city during the strike of the freight handlers.

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

"I stole so that I could get money for my wife and child," said Harry Morrey to the police yesterday afternoon after he had been arrested for the Minneapolis authorities.

"I couldn't get a job and I felt that I had to raise money some way, and I got it any way I could. I couldn't let them starve or freeze."

Morrey was taken into custody by Detectives Schulte and Irvine on a description furnished by the Minneapolis police. He is wanted by the Mill City police on a charge of forgery. It is alleged that he has passed four or five checks recently, realizing an approximate amount of $75 on the worthless paper.

"If you took that means of raising money to help out your wife and child, why did you run away and leave them, coming to Duluth?" he was asked.

"Well, I have been sending some of the money to them from here," he answered. "I told them that I had a job up here. I have been looking for one but I have not done anything yet. But I couldn't tell her the truth."

The local police are inclined to believe Morrey's story, as he was frank in making the statement as to the sums he had secured on the checks. An officer from the Minneapolis force is expected to reach Duluth today to take him back to face the serious charge against him.

Her face stained with tears and a large stick of candy clasped tightly in her hand, a little 3-year-old girl peered anxiously out of the Superior street window at police headquartrs this noon. She was looking to see if any one was coming to claim her. A new street car conductor did not collect at least one fare a couple of days ago. A woman who boarded his car threatened him with a hatpin when he approached her with hand extended. He retreated to the platform. A man sitting across the aisle smiled and the woman saw him. She started after him with her weapon. He went to the front of the car a lot faster than the conductor had gone to the rear. The other passengers began to get excited, but she only rode two or three blocks and there were no further developments. She appeared demented or under the influence of liquor. But whatever ailed her she got a free ride.

EAST FOURTH OWNERS MEET

Council Committee Holds Hearing on Reducing Width of Pavement.

Humane Agent Protests Against Use of Creosote Block.

The property owners who are interested in the paving of Fourth street between Fourteenth and Twenty-third avenues east are meeting at the council chambers in the city hall this afternoon to express their views on the width of the paving and the material to be used.

A number of the property owners desire to have the paving reduced from forty-two to thirty-eight feet in width. The city engineer and other public officials are opposed to decreasing the with of the highway, declaring that it would be contrary to the best interests of the city to do so.

The matter will be thoroughly thrashed out before the meeting is over it is expected. The hearing is being conducted by the council committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks, of which Aldermun William L. Bernard of the Seventh ward is chairman. The committee will submit its recommendations to the council next Monday night.

Horse Owners Protest.

Humane Agent R. D. McKercher has received many protests from team owners and drivers against the proposal to pave East Fourth street with creosote block and has been asked to use what influence he has in discouraging the use of this material for paving purposes.

"The animal should be taken into consideration in the proposition of paving," declared Mr. McKercher this morning. "People having any experience with horses know the disadvantages of the creosote block paving and there is quite a sentiment against it going in on Fourth street.

"First street is paved with this material and after a rain the pavement becomes exceedingly slippery and unless an animal is well shod there is danger of a serious accident. Neither does it afford any grip for automobile tires."

PASSES AWAY AT 93.

Benjamin Williams, Real Pioneer of Upper Peninsula, Called.

Negaunee, Mich., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Negaunee lost one of its oldest citizens and the Upper Peninsula one of the most venerable pioneers in the death Monday of Benjamin Williams, aged 93.

Benjamin Williams was born in England, June 18, 1820. He came to this country in his youth and settled on a farm near Eagle Mills in 1854. A few years after he came to the district the old horsecar road was built from Negaunee to Marquette, and Mr. Williams handled ore over it, employing two teams. Negaunee was then a colony of a few log huts.

When the Pioneer furnace was opened the village made some advancement. Mr. Williams was employed as a pattern maker in the foundry in connection with the furnace. He also worked as a carpenter and was one of the men who erected the old city jail on Case street. During the panic of 1873, when wages were cut at the furnace, Mr. Williams gave up his work. From that time onward he spent his life at the farm and until three years ago was able to do a day's work with the youngest of men.

Mr. Williams is survived by two sons—George, of Negaunee, and Fred, who is employed at the Ishpeming yards of the Consolidated Fuel & Lumber company. He was the father of five children.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

Amusement Notes.

"Excuse Me," Henry W. Savage's production of Rupert Hughes' farce of that name is variously described as "a Pullman carnival" and "an episodical farce." The appropriateness of the former appellation becomes evident, when it is explained that all of the action of the play takes place aboard an Overland Limited train bound from Chicago to the Pacific coast. The latter sub-title is applied because the story of the play is simply a relation of the incidents and episodes which punctuate the journey. The scenes represent respectively, a sleeping coach, a combination buffet and library car and another view of the sleeper.

Following his custom of making every production as realistic as conditions permit Mr. Savage has provided three sets for "Excuse Me," which alone and combined furnish a perfect illusion.

"Excuse Me" is scheduled for presentation at the Lyceum theater for three days, commencing Thursday, with Saturday matinee.

Joseph C. Smith, who produced "Miss Nobody From Starland," the big musical production which comes to the Lyceum on Monday, May 13, for a return engagement, is also responsible for the production of many of New York's most noted successes. He is the son of George W. Smith, who staged "The Black Crook" and other musical productions of other days. The younger Smith claims to have been the first to introduce in the United States the Apache and Vampire dances. He also staged "The Chocolate Soldier" and several large vaudeville acts. Mr. Smith has outdone himself in the way of novel features and climaxes in "Miss Nobody From Starland," which will be presented on this return engagement with the same identical cast, headed by Olive Vail, who made quite an impression on the local audiences by her singing of the "Gingaboo Man" and "The Dear Little Ghost of Your Smile."

A remarkable element in Hugh Herbert's portrayal of the aged Jewish father in "The Son of Solomon" at the Orpheum this week, is the note of resentment in his voice at the passing away of the old Jewish customs. He does not like the new customs, with his son living among strangers and his daughter reading new books. There is something pitiful and tragic in the old man's denunciation of his son. The father started in life on $1.25 a week. The son finds $5 a week insufficient for the cigarettes which he smokes on "Shobbus," the Jewish Sunday, much to the father's disgust.

"I just picked up my impressions of the type around New York," said Mr. Herbert. "There are many of the old generation left there, and a wonderful people they are. Many of them are wonderful scholars. They read and study incessantly, and among them you will find some of the most cultured students in America. Their love of their home and their family is beautiful. Their habits of thrift at which so much ridicule is poked, is not natural with them, but acquired. They have learned to be thrifty from dire necessity, but at heart they are generous. No sacrifice is too great to be made for the children. These children are growing up and acquiring American habits, both good and bad. I am of Scotch-Irish descent myself and never attempted a Jewish character part until two or three years ago, but during that time I have come to have a great respect for the Jewish character. I made a study of the Jewish people in the poorer parts of New York to get local color for the part and nothing I have ever done interested me more. Some of these old patriarchs live almost like hermits within the roar of New York's busiest district. They have their little stores, and spend all their spare time in study."

Aside from the fact that Mercedes, who headlines this week's bill at the Empress, is capable of conveying his thoughts to the mind of his assistant, the most interesting thing about these remarkable people is the manner in which they discovered that their minds worked in such perfect harmony. The knowledge that Mlle. Stantone had the power to read Mercedes' mind came about in a most natural manner, according to Mercedes. Educated together in a public school in Chicago, and both musical, it became their custom to play violin and piano duets together. It occurred many times before they realized their power to have Mlle. Santone to turn to the page of music of which he was thinking while rosining his bow. Interested in this experiment they determined to extend this telepathic power until they would be miles apart and yet send and receive messages. The peculiar part in this psychic power is that while Mlle Stantone can receive messages from the mind of Mercedes she cannot send them nor can he receive messages. "That is the reason why this second sight, I call it, is not practical," says Mercedes. "I could be miles from her and send her any message that I wanted to but I would not know whether she receved it. I have demonstrated repeatedly that I can telephone to her and she can read my mind. I do not know anything about the philosophy of physic phenomena, but I do know that the power can and does exist by which thought impressions can be successfully conveyed to the mind of another."

HOPE TO CLEAR UP $50,000 ROBBERY

San Francisco Police Take Former Maid at Hotel Into Custody.

San Francisco, Cal., May 8.—Through the arrest of Mrs. Marjorie Smith, the police hope to obtain a clew to the whereabouts of the $50,000 jewels stolen from the apartments of Mrs. Eugene De Sabla here Feb. 21.

Mrs. Smith, who was a maid at the hotel from which the jewels were stolen, is charged with having stolen $143 from the residence here of Mrs. Ethel Davis. After she had been questioned it was announced she was not believed guilty of the theft, but that it was thought she knew the whereabouts of another maid, who had been under suspicion and who left the hotel soon after the robbery.

Wet Weather Delays Seeding.

Couderay, Wis., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last week's heavy rains are delaying the spring's seeding in this section. On account of a wet season last fall but very little plowing was done and it all has to be done this spring. The heavy rains of last fall and this spring has filled all swamps and marshes all through here to overflowing, many of them which had completely dried up on account of the past few years' drouth.

STUB ROO TONIC!

E. A. JOHNSON.

Manufacturer Stub Roo Tonic.

Duluth, Minn., June 28, 1909.
Stub Roo Medical Co.:
Your Stub Roo Tonic is a good medicine. It has made good to me. I have been sick for two years with consumption. I spit blood and had hard pains in my breast. I was attended by a doctor for one year, but was steadily failing in health. I had almost given up hope when I heard of Stub Roo Tonic. I decided to try it, and after using it for six weeks I began to feel better. I sent for the same doctor who had attended me before and had him examine my lungs and he was surprised to find me so much improved and in a fair way to recovery. He said my lungs were healed but that I was still weak. Now I am in good health and my neighbors are all surprised over my recovery. I can recommend Stub Roo Tonic to any one in poor health. It is no fake.

MINNESOTA POLITICS

Roosevelt Gets Good Start in Minnesota—Colonel's Supporters Concede No Districts—Taft's Chances Are Not Bright in Eighth District—E. A. Purdy Says Wilson Leads Clark to Date—Gordon Opens Campaign in Kandiyohi County With Attack on Brewery-Owned Saloon.

Roosevelt Starts Well.

Theodore Roosevelt has the advantage of drawing first blood in Minnesota. He carried Aitkin and Pope counties under the preference primary plan and the uninstructed delegation from Beltrami county will be for Roosevelt also.

The La Follette men had high hopes of carrying Pope county, which is in the Seventh district, regarded as one of La Follette's hopes in the state. Returns indicate that Roosevelt carried the county by a large majority, with La Follette second.

Returns from Beltrami county are meager. They indicate that the delegation to the district and state conventions will be uninstructed, but will be made up of Roosevelt men. Instructions may be forced at the county convention Monday, however.

The caucuses will take the form of preference primaries in the seventh district and in many scattering counties in other districts. The first complete district to be decided will be the Fifth, which is Hennepin county. The caucuses will be held there Friday night and the names of candidates will be on the caucus tickets. The contest is between Taft and Roosevelt and the supporters of both are hopeful of carrying the district and controlling Hennepin county's delegation of eighty-four to the state convention.

No Districts Conceded.

Every district is claimed at the Roosevelt headquarters at St. Paul. The Taft managers refuse to specify, but claim they will control the state convention, and with the six delegates-at-large, have a majority of Minnesota's delegation of twenty-four in the national convention.

The First district has been invaded by a squad of Senator La Follette's friends from Wisconsin and an aggressive campaign is being conducted by the La Follette men under the leadership of Thomas Fraser. Governor McGovern, Lieutenant Governor Morris, Charles Ingram, H. P. Lehner, Senator John Blaine and Charles Schweaser are among the speakers from Wisconsin. Mr. Fraser predicts that La Follette will carry the district. The old Tawney organization is working hard for Taft and hopes to carry the district and put Tawney on the delegation as a vindication. The Roosevelt men have not been idle, and the First district offers practically the only real three-cornered fight in the state.

Taft men are basing strong claims on the Second, Fourth, Fifth and Eighth districts. The Third, Seventh and Ninth are regarded as most likely to go to Roosevelt, although the La Follette organization is in the thick of the fight in the Seventh and Ninth. The Roosevelt organization maintains that the claims of the Taft men to the Second, Fourth, Fifth and Eighth districts are not well founded. The Second district is regarded as fair fighting ground, despite the fact that it is Governor Eberhart's home district and the governor is for Taft. The Fourth district, of which Ramsey county is the backbone, is in the grip of an organization with Taft leanings, but strong appeals to the people are being made by the Roosevelt organization. The modified presidential primary in the Fifth district leaves a far field, in which the Roosevelt supporters are unafraid.

In the Eighth District.

Just why the Taft men count so strongly on the Eighth district is a puzzle. The sentiment of the people is progressive and Roosevelt is their favorite. The organization is probably depended upon to deliver to Taft, but the Aitkin county result indicates that even where apathy prevails, Taft is not strong. If Aitkin county gives a fair indication of the leanings of the country districts, success for Roosevelt is almost certain.

The Eighth district convention will have 135 delegates and sixty-eight will be needed for control. St. Louis county, with thirty-nine delegates, will probably hold the balance of power, for but twenty-nine additional votes will be required for control. It is possible, however, to control the convention without St. Louis county. Aitkin county's nine delegates are already assured for Roosevelt. If Anoka, Carlton, Cook, Isanti, Kanabec, Koochiching and Pine should fall in line, there would be seventy votes and control, with St. Louis, Itasca, Mille Lacs and Lake not counted. If the Roosevelt men should carry St. Louis county, they would need only Anoka and Carlton counties, added to Aitkin, to control the district convention.

Of course neither side is fighting only for control of the district convention. Each county will vote independent of its district in the state convention and the supporters of both presidential candidates are not losing sight of that fact.

On the present outlook, predictions that the Eighth district is for Taft are too optimistic.

Says Wilson Leads.

E. A. Purdy, manager of the Woodrow Wilson campaign in Minnesota, has issued a statement questioning the validity of the claims of the national manager of the Clark campaign. Mr. Purdy points out that the Clark headquarters claim seventeen delegates in Pennsylvania and give Wilson only twenty-eight, whereas he claims the entire Pennsylvania delegation of seventy-six will vote for Wilson. Other discrepancies in the Clark claims are pointed out and a revised table, showing the alignment from the Wilson viewpoint, is issued. The table follows:

	Wilson.	Clark.	Uninstructed.
Pennsylvania	76	..	..
Oregon	10	..	..
Kansas	..	20	..
Oklahoma	10	10	..
Illinois	2	56	..
Maine	..	..	12
Nebraska	..	12	..
Missouri	..	36	..
New York	..	..	90
Alabama	..	24	..
Alaska	..	..	6
Philippines	..	..	6
Colorado	12	..	..
Massachusetts	9	11	..
Florida	..	12	..
Georgia	..	28	..
Maryland	16	..	..
Texas	40	..	..
Totals	171	175	114

Harmon, 4 from Nebraska; Marshal, 30 from Indiana; Burke, 10 from North Dakota; Baldwin, 14 from Connecticut; Foss, 16 from Massachusetts.

Mr. Purdy adds: "With delegations from several other states assured to Wilson as the result of county conventions recently held, and with the support of delegates in Kansas, North Dakota and Massachusetts, who are positively pledged to Wilson after the first ballot, and those of the Maine delegation who are friendly to him and who will support him on the first ballot, he leads the field."

Assails Brewery-Owned Saloon.

Sam Y. Gordon, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, opened his campaign in Kandiyohi county last night with a speech at New London. He assailed the brewery element in politics in Minnesota and declared the issue of the brewery-owned saloon is more important now than county option or any other proposed liquor legislation. At the same time, he said, if the improbable should happen and a county option bill be passed, he would sign it, if he should be in the governor's chair.

Mr. Gordon related his experiences in the campaign two years ago, when he said Ed Smith gave out the order, "Any one but Gordon." He told of his organization of the senate in the interests of the people and against the breweries and allied interests. He stated that he was in favor of a presidential primary and of a state-wide primary and outlined his plan for the reorganization of state departments.

He said in regard to the brewery-owned saloon:

"It was during the last session, while watching the machinations of the liquor interests which showed their heads effectively on all important matters, that I became fully aware of their tremendous power for or against proposed legislation and I became convinced that some other method of breaking their power must be invoked than that which had been tried. It required but little study and research to find that the secret of their tremendous power lies somewhat in the brewery-owned saloons, and if anybody should tell you that the issue of brewery-owned saloons, which has been raised in this campaign, is a mere subterfuge and a backward step you may tell them for me that they are either misrepresenting matters wilfully or do not know whereof they speak. The people of Michigan recognized the importance of the issue and in a special session of the legislature an anti-brewery-owned saloon law was passed. The Ohio state constitutional convention has incorporated into its proposed state Constitution a section prohibiting the operation of brewery-owned saloons. As a political issue it is more important at the present time to those who favor county option or any other laws for the control of the liquor traffic than county option or other proposed liquor legislation for the reason that the brewery-owned saloon is the real barrier that stands in the way of such legislation.

"It is common knowledge that the political organization within the brewery association estimates that each saloon is good for at least ten votes that can be delivered at the dictation of the saloon keeper and the more saloons in a town the more votes controlled by the liquor interests.

"I hope that all true friends of good clean government will join in an effort to make a winning fight, for mark me, that until the people rise in their might to smite this monster—the brewery-owned saloon —Minnesota will continue to be boss-ridden by Ed Smith and brewery ruled by the Billy Hamms. I have no desire to evade the question of county option, as some would seem to intimate. On the contrary, I can assure you that should the improbable happen and a county option bill pass at the next session, and I have the official authority, I would without hesitation sign the bill."

Knox for Delegate.

T. J. Knox of Jackson is receiving strong support for one of the places on the Second district delegation to the Democratic national convention in Baltimore. No Jackson county man has ever been a candidate to a Democratic national convention, and friends of Mr. Knox believe that he and the county are entitled to the recognition.

—GEORGE D. McCARTHY.

MOST DELEGATES FAVOR ROOSEVELT

Beltrami County Probably Will Not Instruct Its Representatives.

Bemidji, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the Republican caucus held in this county yesterday afternoon and evening, to name delegates to the county convention next week, a majority of delegates favorable to Roosevelt were elected. In the city of Bemidji nineteen delegates were named and thirteen of these are for Roosevelt for first choice, and probably Hughes for second choice. One stands for La Follette and the remainder are for Taft.

The Beltrami delegation to the state convention, however, probably will go uninstructed, as most of the delegates were elected with this understanding. In the First ward there were two printed tickets. While all the results from the county are not yet in, it is conceded that the country precincts are strongly in favor of Roosevelt. Beltrami will send eleven delegates to the state convention.

ENGINE'S DRIVE WHEELS BUMP TIES THREE MILES.

Appleton, Wis., May 8.—The northbound passenger train on the Wisconsin division of the Chicago & Northwestern due in Appleton about midnight, had a narrow escape from a bad wreck when two of the drive wheels of the locomotive left the track two miles this side of Little Chute.

The engineer, realizing that the locality was a dangerous one, continued under reduced speed with the two drive wheels pounding the ties for three miles, when in some unaccountable manner the wheels jumped back onto the track. Had the engineer attempted to stop the train, a bad wreck would have resulted. The accident is said to have been due to the soft condition of the roadbed from the recent heavy rains.

WOMAN HALTS JOKING TO COMMIT SUICIDE.

Des Moines, Ia., May 8.—While joking with her husband and apparently in the best of spirits early today, Mrs. Marie O'Neal, 23 years old, suddenly produced a small vial containing acid and drank the contents, dying almost instantly. Her husband declared he knew no motive for the act.

TAFT WASTES HIS ORATORY

Makes Strenuous Plea for Votes to Disfranchised Ohioans.

President Has Brand New Experience—Learns Error Too Late.

Portsmouth, Ohio, May 8.—"I'm up against the wall and I'm being hit," shouted President Taft in a speech here today. "I'm being hit below the belt, and I'm here to fight," he continued, and the crowd yelled with delight.

At Winchester, Seaman and Peebles the president was speaking, in Adams county, where Judge A. Z. Blair disfranchised for several years nearly 2,000 men for being concerned in vote-buying and vote-selling, although the president did not know this until later. The humorous side of the situation appealed to one man who was on the station platform at Seaman.

"What's he talking to these people for?" he asked. "They're all disfranchised anyhow."

Brand New Experience.

So far as anyone in his party knew it was the first time Mr. Taft has made a political talk to disfranchised voters.

By the time he reached Peebles, the last stop before reaching Portsmouth, the president had warmed up to his subject.

"I am said to represent the interests, to be under the influence of special privilege," said he. "Well, let us see: There is no administration in the history of the government in which the prosecutions have been so uniform and have been so prosecuted without fear and so without regard to consequences. The interstate commerce commission reported against Dan Hanna of Cleveland, that he was accepting rebates. I put him before the attorney general and the district attorney and the grand jury and they found an indictment against him.

"And now he is one of the patriots that is loudest in denunciation of me and strongest in support of Theodore Roosevelt.

"Look Into Records."

"I find at every corner gentlemen who are patriotic and who thing I am under the influence of the interests who are opposed to me—and if you look into their history you will find an unfortunate indictment against them.

"Now I don't claim by the enforcement of the law I have any right to your consideration other than that you treat me justly, that is all. But when I am charged with being under the influence of the interests I have the right to fight back and defend my good name and the name of the administration.

"I followed the policies of Theodore Roosevelt and prosecuted all the trusts and I went a little further than that. I prosecuted the Steel trust and also the Harvester trust. Now I ask you to give me a square deal."

President Taft began the second lap of his fighting tour of Ohio today at Batavia. He started his speech-making at Batavia and followed with talks at Mount Orab and Sardinia.

Distrusts People as Court.

At Batavia he continued his criticism of Colonel Roosevelt.

"Mr. Roosevelt says I am distrustful of the people," said the president. "I'm only distrustful of the people as a court, just as I would be distrustful of their building a bridge. I would send bridge engineers and people who knew something about bridges."

Taking up Mr. Roosevelt's proposal of the recall Mr. Taft said:

"He is in favor of innovations and changes which would make the constitution worth little more than the paper it is written on."

After Mr. Taft had spoken several minutes someone in his party signalled to the conductor to go ahead. As the engineer obeyed and the president saw his audience getting further away he called:

"Stop the train!"

It was stopped and he talked several minutes longer.

At Williamsburg, an additional stop, the president again said he did not come seeking privilege because he was a son of Ohio, but only wanted justice.

Dodges Pension Talk.

"We'll give it to you," shouted someone.

"What about the pension bill and the soldiers?" asked another as the train started to move away.

"Well," said the president, "I can't talk offhand about pending legislation."

Will Return to State.

Winchester, Ohio, May 8.—After consulting with Republican leaders in Ohio, President Taft has decided to spend ten days more in the state before the primaries May 21.

Although the president's program for the campaign has not been worked out in detail, it became known today that Mr. Taft will give most of his time to Northern Ohio. The last speech of the trip will be made at Dayton, Monday night, May 30. On Tuesday the president will be in Cincinnati to vote and he will leave that night for Washington.

The president left Cincinnati at 6 o'clock this morning for the last day of his present tour through Ohio. His schedule for the day called for stops, ending at Columbus tonight.

WILL HEAR WHAT FIREMEN WANT

Railroad Managers Plan to Hold Meeting on Wednesday.

New York, May 8. — The demands of the locomotive firemen on the fifty railroads in the Eastern territory for increased wages, extra men on certain classes of freight trains, and other working conditions, will come up next Wednesday for consideration by the conference committee of railroad managers.

A reply is expected to be drafted to the demands which will be sent to Grand Chief Carter of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, following which there will be a series of conferences to consider the demands in detail.

MARYLAND VOTES NOT ALL COUNTED YET.

Baltimore, Md., May 8.—Results of the primary election held Monday continue to come in. The figures, complete for the Republican vote and practically complete for the Democratic, show that the preference vote of the state as a whole was as follows: Republicans—Roosevelt, 29,124; Taft, 26,009; Roosevelt majority, 3,115.

Democrats—Clark, 34,283; Wilson, 22,426; Harmon, 7,168; Clark's plurality over Wilson, 11,847.

GRIEVING WIDOW TURNS ON GAS

Is Overcome By Fumes While Writing Note of Farewell.

Chicago, May 8.—Grief over the death of her husband two years ago is believed to have led Mrs. Mary Stelzl to attempt suicide by gas at her home on the North side today. A note which the woman was writing when she was overcome by the fumes read:

"I would rather die than go home alone. I also feel I cannot live without Stelzl. He was my lord, and the two of us were the world, and therefore we couldn't be happy.

"I have a warning that misfortune would happen to us on our journey—"

The sentence was uncompleted and the note unsigned when the woman was found in an unconscious condition by neighbors. She was removed to a hospital.

SAYS WHITES KEEP THE NEGROES BACK

African Methodist Bishop Tells of Work on Dark Continent.

Kansas City, Mo., May 8.—The advancement of education among the natives in South Africa is hampered by the interference of the whites, according to the report of Bishop J. Albert Johnson to the general conference of the African Methodist Episcopal church, which resumed its session here today.

"The 12,000,000 natives there," his report said, "are completely under the central of 1,000,000 Europeans, and anything which tends to the development of these ignorant peoples is immediately looked upon with suspicion by those in control. No institution is allowed to exist without a European head. This handicaps the advancement of the people. Native educators are needed."

FIRE LOSSES FALLING OFF

Duluth Is Only Large City in State Showing Increase in Fires.

April Report Is Issued By State Marshal Keller.

St. Paul, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire losses in Minnesota for April aggregated $177,122 less than for April, 1911, according to the report of State Fire Marshal Keller. The decrease in St. Paul was $64,164, and $130,302 in Minneapolis, with an increase in Duluth of $15,564.

Outside the three cities there was an increase of $1,780 reported, making a net decrease of $177,122. The actual decrease throughout the state was undoubtedly more, on account of the fact that the law requiring all township clerks in the state to report all fires exceeding $25 loss was not in full operation a year ago.

Nineteen Fires in St. Paul.

There were 19 fires reported in St. Paul in last month, compared with 46 a year ago. The value of buildings and contents was $62,900 with damage at $6,175 and insurance on them of $70,-705, compared with $154,500 value, $70,339 the damage, and $346,120 insurance last year.

Minneapolis had forty-one fires last month against thirty-eight a year ago. The damage done to buildings and contents amounted to $55,630, covered by $237,125 insurance, compared with $185,-932 damage and $958,325 insurance in April, 1911.

Duluth Reports Thirty-four.

Thirty-four fires occurred in Duluth last month, against nineteen a year ago. The damage was $28,239, covered by $170,775 insurance, compared with $12,725 damage and $264,250 insurance a year ago.

Outside of the three cities there were ninety-six fires last month against seventy-two a year ago. Damage amounted to $105,399, with $153,037 insurance against $103,619 damage and $165,-240 insurance a year ago.

ORDER WAS DOUBLED.

Brookston Merchant Refuses to Pay for Shipment of Rubbers.

Carl O. Eklund and his five sons, who conduct a general store at Brookston, Minn., are made defendants in a lawsuit which is now being tried before Judge Dancer and a jury in district court, and in which the Beacon Falls Rubber Shoe company is attempting to secure a judgment for about $350 claimed to be due for goods sold and delivered to the defendants.

Eklund and his sons admit that they received a consignment of goods at Brooksstn from the company, but declared that the shipment was refused because the original order given to the salesman had been more than doubled. Eklund claims that about eight cases of goods were ordered and that the bill should not have been more than $150. When the shipment arrived there were twenty-two cases, Eklund claims.

The case will probably go to the jury this afternoon.

ACCUSE THE CATHOLICS

Methodists Adopt Resolution Against Greek and Roman Churches.

Also Bar Tobacco Users From Any Office in the Conference.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Withou debate, but in a slightly modified form, the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in session here today adopted the resolution presented Monday by W. F. Rice of Chile, which protests against the action of the Ecumenical Missionary conference in Edinburgh recently, which set aside all Protestant mission work in Greek and Roman Catholic countries and which caused strenuous discussion at that time. The resolution in part is as follows:

"Whereas, In all those lands which form a large part of the missionary field of the Methodist Episcopal church, the teachings and practices of Romanism deprive the people of the Bible, pervert many of the fundamental doctrines of Christianity and foster superstitions which alienate the thinking classes and bind heavy burdens upon the poor; therefore,

"Be it resolved, That the Methodist Episcopal church recognizes its plain duty to prosecute its missionary enterprises in Greek and Roman Catholic countries with increasing zeal; and

"Be it resolved, That it is our duty to oppose the machinations of Romanism, and to counteract its attempts to gain an ever-increasing control of our public schools to use the public funds for sectarian schools; and, finally,

"Be it resolved, That we feel the deepest sympathy and love toward the priests and people within the Greek and Roman Catholic churches who are working toward a more spiritual interpretation of the Christian faith."

Oppose Tobacco Users.

The conference, in a din of cheers, which lasted for several minutes, also adopted a resolution presented by Rev. Robert Stephens of Danville, Ill., which prohibits the election of any officer of the general conference, which includes secretaries of boards and editors of church papers, who uses tobacco in any form. It is said that the adoption of this ruling may play an important part in the deciding of some positions in the coming election.

Among other resolutions adopted by the conference today were:

Looking to combination of officers of general secretary of Epworth league of the church and editor of the league paper.

Commending flood sufferers in Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas to consideration of board of home missions and church extension.

Addresses also were made by Dr. Frank Thomas, fraternal delegate of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, and Rev. Dr. Heartz of the Canadian Protestant church, both of whom left the conference today.

The division of the estate, which is estimated at $3,500,000, was made in a will filed here yesterday.

The property principally consists of stocks in a prominent cereal concern and a linseed oil company, and in real estate.

LISZT INVITES HIS AUDIENCE TO SUPPER.

Youth's Companion: Karl Goldmark, the composer of the "Queen of Sheba," has been contributing reminiscences of his long life to a German musical magazine. In a recent instalment he gives an interesting account of the magnificent and lavish tastes of some of the celebrated musicians of the past.

"Some of our great composers," he writes, "were at heart so much the grand seigneur that their whole manner of life was ostentatious. Chief among these were Richard Wagner, Liszt and Anton Rubinstein. Brahms, on the other hand, who left a large fortune behind him, led as simple a life as Beethoven.

"Wagner's dependence on elegant and luxurious surroundings is well known, and this incident throws an interesting light on Liszt's expensive and lavish nature.

"Once, on a concert tour, he played in a small town. The hall was not a third full, but the audience was very enthusiastic and recalled him repeatedly at the end of the concert. The last time that he appeared on the stage he stepped forward and with the utmost seriousness said:

"'May I have the pleasure of inviting this respected audience to supper with me tonight?'

"Nobody accepted, but Liszt was entirely in earnest in giving his invitation.

WINDY PRAYERS.

Los Angeles Times: "'The world do move,'" said the missionary. "This Chinese revolution proves that. And another proof lies in the wind-power praying just introduced in Thibet."

He laughed harshly.

"The priests of Thibet, as you know," he continued, "have prayer wheels. They turn these wheels, and each revolution makes a prayer—a prayer for your soul or mine—price so much per prayer.

"But that is work, isn't it? That, for a Thibetan priest, is hard work. And hence the great prayer wheels driven by wind that have just been set up in all the most progressive Buddhist monasteries.

"They are like our wind wheels. They run day and night—for the upland winds of Thibet are always blowing. And the priest, while they are earning good hard cash for him, sleeps, or smokes, or feasts, or drinks brick tea mixed with butter, the great Thibetan beverage."

NEW FASHION IN CHINA.

London Standard: The Belgian consul at Hongkong has just published a report upon the changes of costume which are already evident in the native Chinese populations of the republican districts and especially in the large towns.

"The disappearance of the queue has brought with it the adoption of caps and bowler hats. At Canton and Hongkong the number of Chinese who cut off their queues is increasing to an extent which astonishes the foreign residents.

"The round skull cap, with its red, blue, or white button, is no longer worn by these emancipated natives. The cropped heads now adorn themselves with caps, and both at Hongkong and at Canton the stocks of these articles are already exhausted. Caps are being sold at very low prices. No particular style is yet in favor, but green, gray and blue colors are chiefly worn.

"The leisured classes are also adopting the bowler hat. The most curious part of this transformation in dress is that the rest of the national costume is still retained. The prices of European suits and leather boots are beyond the purses of most of the natives, and so, although these innovations are expected to arrive gradually, the people at present compose an odd picture—partly Chinese and partly European.

NEW CLUB WILL RENEW AGITATION FOR "WHITE WAY"

At the regular meeting of the West End Commercial club Friday evening, A. B. Anderson will again launch a "White Way" movement for the West end business district. Mr. Anderson will give a special talk on the subject and will suggest plans for an active campaign among the business men of this end of the city to subscribe to a fund for the purchase of ornamental street lights.

According to the present plans of Mr. Anderson, lights will be placed on Superior street from Garfield avenue to Twenty-second avenue west and up Twenty-first avenue west along the new street car cutoff to Third street. A petition will be presented to the council at some future meeting. It is planned to secure every business man's signature to the petition for a "white way" in the West end.

The by-laws and constitution of the new Commercial club will be drawn up by the special committee appointed two weeks ago at the first meeting of the new club. The members will vote on the constitution during the evening and will adopt the set of by-laws proposed by the committee. The new members of the club will take part in the business meeting for the first time. The present membership of the club is close to 125. During the campaign of the past two weeks, about seventy-five applications have been received by William L. Anderson, secretary of the organization.

The garden committee, through its chairman, Dr. O. A. Oredson, will make its first report to the members of the club Friday evening. The committee has visited every school in this end of the city and explained the prize garden plan to the pupils.

The meeting of the club will be held at the club rooms, secured in the new Woodmen hall, Twenty-first avenue west.

CLUB SAYS "I TOLD YOU SO"

Had Advised City to Cover Buckingham Creek Months Ago.

Members Say Recent Flood Could Have Been Prevented.

If the city had taken the advice of the Fifth Ward Improvement club and covered Buckingham creek, the recent overflow and flood damage would ever have happened, was the opinion of the members of the club at their regular meeting held last evening at the Emerson school, Eleventh avenue west and Third street.

Those who spoke before the club said that residents along the creek are in the habit of throwing refuse, tin cans and garbage into the creek and that it was this waste that stuffed the creek below Superior street. If the city had taken the recent advice of the club and covered the creek, the residents would not have had the opportunity to throw refuse into it and clog it up, was the claim of the speakers.

President D. C. Moore appointed a committee to bring the matter before the city council and the board of public works. The committee will ask the authorities to build a covering for the creek some time this summer. Another committee was appointed to study the municipal garbage question and report at the next meeting of the club. The members of the club voted in favor of installing a municipal garbage collection department in Duluth.

The members decided to wage a war against weeds in various parts of the Hillside district.

SPLEEN DISEASE CURED IN THREE WEEKS

Remarkable Successes of Electro Medical Doctors.

It stands to reason that diseases are unnatural, that if all poisonous drugs fail to effect a cure, such a disease is usually pronounced as stubborn or incurable.

As a matter of fact, however, new discoveries prove that there are few if any real incurable diseases.

For ages past humanity has been taught to look up with reverence to dopes and drugs as their only saviours to relieve them from the bondage of aching limbs, and harassing pains; yet how many of these suffering victims, after spending their all on what they believe to be an unsinkable Titanic, find themselves suddenly going down to an ocean's grave, simply for a lack of real and non-collapsible life-boats. Think not that the recent heart-rending catastrophe is the most lamentable in our day. A lack of curing diseases has claimed millions to an untimely grave. The liquor habit has destroyed billions of precious lives and pierced the hearts of so many loving wives and sweet-faced children. How can all these monstrous evils be remedied? They are all unnatural and unnatural things can not be remedied by unnatural methods. Nature, the source of all science, holds within her sweet embrace the greatest of all curative remedies for any and all ailments to which human flesh is heir.

Treat an unnatural disease with nature's own remedies and health invariably is the result. Natural methods are the latest and best curative methods ever discovered and they are nature's own remedies and health in the offices of the Electro Medical doctors. These doctors have come to Duluth to demonstrate their superior methods on the so-called incurable diseases and chronic invalids. They work in opposition to no one, but simply ask for all those cases which can not receive help anywhere else, for the number of these is large at the head of the great lakes.

There are many diseases the doctors have cured with a few treatments if the patients came shortly after the disease made its appearance. If people would but be more careful and apply for treatment right after the first symptoms, they would save themselves much unnecessary pain and expense.

A case of severe inflammation of the spleen was cured in three weeks' time, any physician will admit that this is a hard condition to cure. Consumption, rheumatism, bad stomach, kidney and bladder troubles, appendicitis, gallstones, cancer, all these and other diseases find a definite cure by natural methods. All the doctors ask is a chance to prove their statements. Consultation is free at the offices of the Electro Medical doctors, 26 W. Superior street, every day from 9-12, 1-5.

DR. BOWDEN TALKS TO ZENITH CLUB.

The Zenith club, composed of young men from Mrs. F. G. Hanson's Sunday school class of the Central Baptist church, held its regular meeting last evening at the club rooms, 2616 West Fourth street. Plans for the future of the club were discussed and several committees appointed to follow up the membership campaign in this end of the city.

Dr. Richard W. Bowden gave an interesting talk to the boys, saying in part:

"If the older men remain away from the church, the boys in time will surely follow. Each boy does what the older person does, following the old saying, 'the kid follows the goat.' The boys of today adopt their ideals from young men just a few years their senior and it is up to boys of your age to set the proper pace for the younger boys to follow."

They will arrive in Guttenberg, Sweden, about May 22, shortly after the party that left here Monday evening on the same trip.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Hospital Association Elects Officers and Listens to Report.

At the annual meeting of St. Luke's Hospital association yesterday afternoon, directors and officers were elected for new terms. Rev. A. W. Ryan, G. G. Hartley and W. J. Olcott were each named as directors for a three-year term. Rev. Mr. Ryan was elected president. Henry Taylor was appointed secretary-treasurer.

The report of the treasurer for the past two years showed that the hospital association still had a large indebtedness, but that through donations which had been received during the past year, it had been reduced nearly $4,000.

Chicago, May 8.—The maximum penalty for conspiracy in violation of the anti-rebate law was imposed on three railroads late yesterday by United States Judge Carpenter after pleas of guilty had been entered by the defendants.

The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway company was fined $20,000, two indictments having been returned against it. The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway company was fined $10,000.

The fines were entered on the indictment of the railroads, two employes and the officials of two burlesque theatrical troupes. Alleged rebates were given by the railroads in disguised forms in which advertisements figured largely.

New York, May 8.—The New York women who organized a relief fund committee to aid victims of the Titanic disaster announce that contributions amounting to $36,175 were received from 620 subscribers and that all but $960 has been distributed among survivors. There were 161 women, fifty-nine men and ninety-five children passengers aided and $6,275 was distributed among members of the crew.

Five hundred dollars has been set aside to aid in the burial of victims and a check for $182 has been reserved for distribution among the stewards and stewardesses on the Carpathia in token of the care taken of the survivors.

Mrs. Nelson H. Henry, wife of the surveyor of the port, organized the committee, and with Mrs. Abraham S. Hewett as honorary chairman, directed its work.

SEAMAN FROM TITANIC TALKS

Tells of Experiences at Inquiry of British Board of Trade.

London, May 8.—Testifying before the board of trade commission investigating the wreck of the Titanic today, J. Poingderstre, a seaman, declared that in the boat in which he escaped from the sinking liner there were forty women and children together with one other seaman, although the craft was capable of carrying at least sixty-five persons.

He explained that the officer in charge of that station had the boat lowered away before it was loaded to its capacity for fear the boat falls would not stand the strain.

Poingderstre declared he could have saved some of the people in the water crying piteously for help had he had more help at the oars.

Bulkhead Gave Way.

He told a graphic story of experiences aboard the Titanic before he made off in the lifeboat to which he had been assigned. He said a bulkhead between the crews' quarters and those of the third-class passengers gave way from the pressure of the water an hour after the accident. There was a rush of second and third class passengers as the boats were being lowered, according to the witness, and this interfered with the work of the crew.

Steward James Johnstone told the commission that many women, after being summoned on deck, returned to the saloon, not realizing the danger. He was certain, he said, that he saw lights before he left the Titanic, but these soon disappeared.

Fireman Barrett told of a fire in one of the coal bunkers and the flooding of a water-tight compartment immediately after the ship struck the iceberg

As to Third Class.

The examination thus far is significant because it shows the government's determination to discover what steps were taken to get off the third class passengers. The main points brought out in the general inquiry were that the ship was going at full speed, that no boat drills had been held, that some of the sailors did not know their stations, and that the boats were inadequately manned and directed, and were not provided with lights, compasses, water or rations.

SUPERIOR

KONKEL RECIPIENT OF THREATENING LETTER.

Mayor Konkel yesterday afternoon received the following threatening letter, signed by "A Citizen:"

Superior, Wis., May 5, 1912.

Joseph Konkel, mayor of city:

Dear Sir—We have around twenty or twenty-five poker games running in the city; some are large ones. Now you have been in office for two weeks and have had time to close them up but have not done it. Please do close them and save a recall.

A CITIZEN.

P. S. You have played in some of these games and I can prove it, before election. Close them up and save yourself trouble.

Investigating Fire.

Fire Chief Johnson is investigating another alleged incendiary fire. At 4 o'clock this morning fire broke out in three different parts of the building at 1712 North Third street. The building is occupied by a saloon and lodging house under the management of Charles J. McDonough. The fires started simultaneously in the basement, in front of the saloon and in the rear of the lodging house.

Fire Chief Testifies.

Oil-soaked excelsior and cotton batting in similar condition were found poked down inside the wall of the house occupied by Charles Loewe, according to the testimony of Fire Chief Johnson and Deputy Fire Marshall Charles Good, who inspected the structure after the fire. Loewe is being tried on an arson charge in municipal court for allegged burning of his home at 1811 North Fifth street. The case was adjourned last evening until Friday

Will Build Civic Center.

If present plans are carried out, a two-story, reinforced concrete building to be used for conventions, fairs and assemblies, will be built some time this summer by the Douglas County Development association. The boom was launched last evening at a meeting of the members held at the Superior Commercial club. It is also planned to use the structure for military drill and as a home for Company I of the National Guard. Rough estimates place the cost of the building at $50,000.

Disraeli Played By Famous Actor and By Youthful Star

GEORGE ARLISS AND GEORGE TOBIN AS DISRAELI.

Two companies gave Louis Parker's play "Disraeli" in New York this week. One was the original company headed by George Arliss. This company has been playing "Disraeli" all winter. The other was a junior company composed of the children of the stage, who gave a clever imitation of their elders. Liebler & Co., who are the managers of Mr. Arliss, put on the junior company for the benefit of a charity. These two figures are Disraeli, Sr., (George Arliss) greeting Disraeli, Jr., (George Tobin).

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

SANDSTONE HOTEL DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Sandstone, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Sandstone hotel, a three-story frame building owned and run by John Welsh, caught fire about 2 a. m. today and was completely destroyed. The fire originated in a room upstairs, just how is not known, but presumably from an oil lamp, as the electric lighting plant is out of commission on account of the flood.

A dozen or so inmates of the hotel were aroused and all got out, some having close calls and few saving anything. The fire department prevented other buildings from catching, but could not save the hotel. The fire smoldered several hours before being entirely extinguished. The loss is about $5,500; insurance, $3,500.

CONVICTED OF LIBELING HINES LUMBER COMPANY.

Eau Clair, Wis., May 8.—Benjamin Runkle of Washburn, Wis., was today found guilty of criminal libel and fined $200 with an alternative of six months in jail, in connection with a suit against the Edward Hines Lumber company. Runkle charged the lumber company with burning their sawmill in Washburn in 1906 to collect heavy insurance.

Senate Will Meet Earlier.

Washington, May 8. — The senate today agreed to meet at noon from now until the end of the session instead of 2 p. m. Senator Gallinger said this action was necessary to bring about an adjournment "at some reasonable time of the year."

DULUTH LAW STUDENT HONORED BY UNIVERSITY.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 8.—W. W. Merritt, Duluth, and E. C. Middleton, Baudette, were among the twelve men elected to the Order of the Coif, the honorary law fraternity of the University of Michigan. Up to this year this has been known as Beta Kappa Nu. The men are selected on their scholarship, character and personality. This is the highest honor that a senior law student at the university can win.

OPEN BELLEFOURCHE LAND ON MAY 25.

Washington, May 8.—The secretary of the interior has announced that 10,677 acres of land in the Bellefourche reclamation project in South Dakota will be opened for entry for homesteaders, May 25.

MAY ERECT MONUMENT TO MAJ. ARCHIE BUTT.

Washington, May 8.—The will of Maj. Archibald Butt, a victim of the Titanic, filed here, disclosed the fact that the one great wish of the president's aide is impossible of realization. It was that he should be buried in Arlington National cemetery and that the family name might be perpetuated there by a modest monument over his grave. In his will the young army officer has set aside $500 for this purpose

In view of the disclosures in the will there is a strong likelihood that a movement will be started here looking to a suitable memorial to Maj. Butt at Arlington, although his last resting place was in the trackless ocean.

UNDERWOOD WINS IN MISSISSIPPI PRIMARIES.

Jackson, Miss., March 8. — Oscar Underwood of Alabama carried the state of Mississippi in the democratic presidential primaries. Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey was his only opponent. Returns indicate that Underwood has received a majority of three-fourths of the counties of the state, and in nearly every one of the eight congressional districts, delegates favorable to him have been elected.

THE "WHITE CAPPERS."

Wide World Magazine: "Take notice. If this joint is not closed in thirty days we will blow it up. By order of the White Cappers." This cheerful document was found stuck on the offices of the Clermont Democrat, a local weekly paper in Ohio. The "White Cappers" referred to are gangs of more or less disreputable persons, who have banded themselves in various parts of the states to take the law into their own hands. They wear white hoods over their heads by way of disguise, and rely largely upon an atmosphere of mystery to strike terror into the hearts of their victims. Their trade mark is the skull and cross bones, and their threatening missives are popularly supposed to be signed in blood. The order resembles the notorious "Ku Klux Klan" of the South during the Civil war period, and several states have strict laws against such fraternities, the apprehension of one of the members meaning life imprisonment. Nowadays the "White Caps" are not quite so much in evidence as formerly, but they are still a menace to law and order.

MANY USES OF MEXICAN PLANT.

Washington Post: "In Mexico there is a plant that feeds a greater number of persons in more different ways than is known perhaps in any other country of the world," said G. W. Lucas, topographical engineer for the Mexican Transcontinental railway.

"The maguey is a species of cactus which thrives in greatest extent and profusion on the great mesa of the republic of Mexico. It is perhaps the most remarkable plant, as regards its utilization, of all the more common tropical plants on earth. In this country a plant of the same family is known as the century plant, but of course the variety in Mexico is different, and here apparently the plant is used only for ornamental purposes.

"This plant throws out tiny sprouts with from five to eight branches edged with small espinas or needles, which identify it as of the cactus family. It does not attain to its full growth until its fifth year, but it may be made useful two years earlier. In its third year one or all of its branches are tapped, making cavities in the sides of the branch in which the sap or juice of the plant collects.

"This latter liquid is what is known in Mexico as aqua miel, an efficacious medicine in many disorders of the human system, but it must be used as such the first day after it is picked. If allowed to stand, fermentation takes place and the aqua miel changes into what is known as the most common of the intoxicating drinks of Mexico—pulque.

"When distilled, pulque is the great national drink of Mexico and is known as mescal. The mescal distilled in the state of San Luis Potosi is regarded as the best quality and is called tequila.

"It is not only in its medicinal and drinking qualities that the maguey plant is useful. It is one of the most important fiber plants in Mexico and is utilized in the weaving of baskets and clothing. It is a tough fiber, but as flexible as a linen threat."

INDIANA'S MARRYING SQUIRES.

Jeffersonville Correspondent to Indianapolis News: To every couple that comes to him to be married—and he has had 3,166 in the five years he has filled the office—Justice James S. Keigwin presents a neat folder bearing on the front page the words:

"Souvenir of Our Wedding, by Magistrate James S. Keigwin, Jeffersonville, Ind." On the second page is a picture of the justice, and on the third his office, which overlooks the ferry dock. On the fourth page he directs how to obtain a license. Man 21, lady 18 or over and third party to make affidavit as to age. License costs $1 and "my fee I leave to your generosity."

Justice Keigwin says: "Pay no attention to any one who wants to show or direct you; it costs more money, for they are all runners." He recommends a visit between 6 and 9 o'clock at night and that the applicants go first to a justice, especially to "Keigwin's."

Justice Keigwin's new and successful rival as a "marrying squire" is Justice Oscar L. Hay, appointed by the county commissioners June 8, 1911, to fill out an unexpired term. He has since that date married 661 couples while Magistrate Keigwin married 648 in the whole of last year. Justice Hay has a card with his name on the front and on the back these words:

"If a man loves a girl that's his business. If a girl loves a man that's her business. If they want the knot tied that's my business." Justice Hay's record includes 111 couples during the month of December, including fifteen on Dec. 23, and the simultaneous marriage of three couples, stranger to each other, on Christmas day. In January he had seventy-two couples out of 111 who were married there.

Justice Keigwin has cut out all "runners" and makes clear profit, while his rival maintains a large corps of "feeders" and defies the city to prevent him.

FISHGUARD'S HERMIT.

Wide World Magazine: An old gentleman known as the "Fishguard Hermit" has recently died. For nearly thirty years he lived in a small boat which was anchored near the bridge at Lower Fishguard. On a fine, calm day the old fisherman could be seen basking in the sun on the deck of his queer dwelling place, which rode then on the tranquil bosom of the sea. On stormy days, however, the boat was tossed about unmercifully, while the fierce winds alternately compelled the poor old man to seek the shelter of his cabin and drove him forth by preventing the egress of the smoke from the chimney. In spite of all this discomfort he steadfastly refused to leave his vessel for a more comfortable shelter on shore, and would calmly wait for the return of fine weather. Although over 80 years of age, he maintained himself by fishing until a short time before his death, when he took an old-age pension to help him in his struggle for existence.

HOWLERS.

Los Angeles Times: William H. Maxwell, superintendent of New York's public schools, was quoting "howlers"—howlers being the technical name for queer errors in examination papers.

"The new year's best crop of howlers," he said, "are these:

"'Grace Darling was a light housekeeper.'

"'There are five continents—a, e, i, o and u.'

"'A centipede is a French measure of length.'"

A VANISHING CONTEMPT.

Los Angeles Times: "The old contempt for woman is passing away," said Theodore Dreiser, the realist, in an interview at the Hotel Capitol in London. "It is, though, a deep-ingrained contempt. All things point to that.

"An Indian prince was much pleased with a young English woman's wit and beauty at the Durbar. He made her a low obeisance and said:

"'Madam, I sincerely hope that in your next incarnation you will be born a man, for you are truly worthy of that honor.'

"The Salic law is another instance of this old, ingrained contempt. A little school girl once defined the Salic law as a law which would not allow any one to ascend the throne 'whose mother was a woman.'

"Then there was the case of the anti-suffrage bishop of colonial days who thus defined woman:

"'Woman is a creature who was made after man, and she has been after him ever since.'"

RUSH HOUR IN INDIANAPOLIS.

Indianapolis News: The "Sardine Special" on the Irvington street car line last night carried 141 passengers, or rather the conductor on the special collected 141 fares. There were some that he did not get because the special was at the belt before the conductor could be hoisted through the various departments of the car.

There were thirty-five on the rear platform, figured on a cubic capacity basis. There was no other way to estimate it, as legs, bodies and heads were wedged to such a degree that it was practically impossible to tell to whom each belonged. The seating capacity of the car is forty-one, so that an even 100 passengers that were standing paid fares.

NOT A CELEBRATION.

Christian Register: Night was coming on, the storm was increasing and some of the deck fittings had already been swept overboard, when the captain decided to send up a distress signal. The rocket was already lit and about to ascend when a solemn faced passenger stepped up.

"Cap'n," said he, "I'd be the last man on earth to cast a damper on any man's patriotism, but seems to me this here's no time for celebratin' an' settin' off of fireworks."

PENAL FARM COMMITTEE

Commissioners Cumming, Ryan and Tischer Will Work on Project.

Engineers Employed to Make Valuation of Street Railway Property.

At an afternoon session of the county board yesterday Commissioners Cumming, Ryan and Tischer were appointed a committee to co-operate with the board of public welfare in working out plans for the proposed penal farm and to suggest what legislation is needed and what steps should be taken in the matter.

A resolution which was introduced by Commissioner Cumming, called for the appointment of such a committee and also provided that Special Counsel Charles E. Adams be directed to draft a bill for the next legislature covering the needed points.

The commissioners at the afternoon session adopted a resolution which authorized the employing of Edward P. Burch and Charles L. Pillsbury, Minneapolis engineers, to make a physical survey of the Duluth properties of the Duluth Street Railway company and another engineer to make a survey of the company's property in Superior. The estimates will be used in evidence in the fight to enforce the 1911 personal property tax assessment.

The board let contracts for work on the Lester, Vermillion, Johnson, Berg, Lavine and Morris roads. The McNiven, Savage and Connors roads were designated county roads. Bids were ordered called for in the work of improving portions of the Walhalla, Halden and La Vaque roads. The board appointed a number of road foremen for the various districts.

The petition of Frank McCormick to build a rural telephone line from the county poor farm on the Rice Lake road to the Cloquet river was granted.

William Orr of Lelding and Luigi Cordilcone of Spina were granted liquor licenses and V. P. McGuire of the town of St. Louis was allowed to transfer his license to John Popper.

For the observance of Memorial day, the board appropriated $150 to Duluth and $50 each to Virginia, Hibbing and Eveleth.

Wall Paper Trial Monday.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 8.—The trial of the eight wall paper manufacturers and jobbers indicted by the federal grand jury here on charges of violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, will be commenced before Federal Judge Day next Monday.

WILL BE GIVEN TRIP TO FAIR

St. Louis County Farmer Boy Will Have All Expenses Paid.

A St. Louis county farmer boy will be sent to the state fair this year with all expenses, including railroad fare, paid.

The state agricultural society has made the proposal to pay the expenses of a boy from each county during the fair week.

In order to be selected from St. Louis county, the candidates must pass a competitive examination and qualify as a bona fide resident on a farm in this county.

The board of judges for the purpose of selecting a boy from this county will consist of County Board Chairman McInnis, County Supt. of Schools Young and a representative of the state agricultural society.

Each boy who attends the state fair in this manner must take his turn at ushering at the stock shows.

The county board yesterday afternoon received a communication from the state society relative to the plan. No definite action was taken by the board, although it appeared to be the sense of the meeting that the plan be carried out as suggested.

SAW THROUGH FLOOR; ROB JEWELRY STORE.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 8.—Sawing through the floor of a vacant room of a store in the downtown business block, burglars let themselves into the jewelry store of Wolf Sussman by means of rope ladder, drilled the safe and made way with diamonds and watches valued at $12,000.

MURDER AND SUICIDE IN ARIZONA CAPITOL.

Phoenix, Ariz., May 8.—Murder and suicide interrupted sessions of the legislature here when, hearing two shots fired in the rotunda of the capitol, the law-makers rushed out and found Finley Coffman standing over the body of Malcolm Gillette, whom he had shot and killed. Milady's Toilet Table
By Mme. D'MILLE

A simple home treatment that makes the hair long, wavy and lustrous is to dry shampoo frequently with a mixture of four ounces of orris root and an original package of therox. Sprinkle a tablespoonful on the head; then brush thoroughly through the hair. All dirt, dust and dandruff will be removed, the scalp refreshed and the hair made clean, light and glossy.

A lovely, soft and youthful complexion will be yours if you use a solution made by dissolving an original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch hazel. Gently rub over the face, neck and arms night and morning, and the skin will be clear, smooth, fair and pliant.

To stop headache, or ache in back or joints, reduce swelling, allay inflammation, relieve pain in any part of the body, apply Mother's Salve. The world never saw its equal as a pain killer.

Any woman can easily and quickly remove wild hairs from face or forearms. Just mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the hairs; apply and after two or three minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs will be gone.

postal parcels from four pounds, the present figure, to eleven pounds and the reduction of the rate to 8 cents. At present foreign shippers can send eleven-pound packages into the United States by mail and our shippers can send them to any European country. When it comes to mailing a package from New York to New Jersey four pounds is the limit. How much this aids the foreign purveyor of small articles of commerce is obvious.

Last Thursday the house passed the postoffice appropriation bill, after cutting out the Sulzer amendment providing for a parcels post. That amendment in substance will be pressed in the next session. Meantime the house has ordered the creation of a joint commission on the parcels post and beyond doubt the next congress will act on its report.

Strong Public Support.

Mr. Sulzer speaks of his bill in this fashion: "More than 10,000,000 people in the United States, including such organizations as the National grange, the Farmers' union, the Retail Dry Goods Association of New York and many others, have appeared before the house committee on postoffice and post roads in favor of this bill. No proposition has received a stronger public support. We are unable to find out who is opposed to the proposition. Of course, we know in a general way that the express companies antagonize it. Yet they dare not come down here and openly oppose because their opposition would do more than anything else to secure its passage."

"What about the antagonism of the country merchants to the parcels post principle?" Mr. Sulzer was asked.

"The claim that the mail order houses are behind the parcels post movement, the better to flood the country with their goods, to the injury of the small retailers cannot be substantiated. It is shown that the Sears-Roebuck company of Chicago is opposed to the parcels post as are other catalog houses, and for a very good reason. They have built their business up on the 100-pound minimum freight rate charge and make use of the mail or express service but seldom. Consequently, the establishment of a parcels post would tend greatly to disturb their business and to help the village retailer to make himself the local agency through which the parcels post system would operate.

Experience Elsewhere.

"We have official testimony showing that the parcels post which is in force, not merely in England and Germany, but in twenty-three nations has done nothing to build up either great department stores or catalogue houses. All it has done has been to cut out a costly and extravagant express service, which in the United States is now paying from 100 to 200 per cent to stockholders, and has greatly accommodate the general public, both wholesaler, retailer and consumer.

"I desire particularly to emphasize the latter statement of Mr. Sulzer. For some years I have been preaching the doctrine that a parcels post would make the small merchant the local agent of the so-called mail order houses instead of their victim. In certain little known sections of the United States, as for example the Bayou Teche district in Lou'siana, you will find on the table of every resident the red covered catalogue of a certain Chicago mail order house, and the wandering tourists call it the "Cajun's Bible." For each of these books the householder pays $5. If the parcels post were in force the local retailer would have one of these catalogues on his desk and would be the agent for the mail order houses. That would not materially interfere with his own business because a neighborhood demand is for things that must be had immediately. It would very greatly increase his income, because he could be the ordering agent for goods of a more expensive character and for which his customers would be willing to wait days or perhaps weeks.

Would Correct Extravagance.

"Furthermore, the establishment of the parcels post would, as Mr. Sulzer pointed out, help to correct a notorious governmental extravagance. Today the postoffice department owns all the mail cars, and pays the railroads over $50,000,000 annually for carrying them. Not one-tenth of these cars are filled to even half their capacity. Many run with only a few mail sacks in them. There would be no reason to pay the railroads more if the cars were filled, as they would be, with postal express packages. That is, there would be no reason except for the fact that most of the railroad officials are stockholders in the express companies.

"It is not generally known that up to 1879 the postoffice department did carry parcels at 8 cents a pound, but that the increase to 16 cents was then made through the influence of the express companies who at that time were extremely strong in congress."

Oppose Dillingham Bill.

Washington, May 8.—General condemnation of the Burnette-Dillingham immigration bill passed in the senate was voiced by representatives of charitable organizations and of steamship lines at a hearing before the house committee on immigration. Jewish citizens from New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago said the bill was unnecessary and against the best intercsts of the immigrants and the country.

SMALL DECREASE IN CHICAGO SALOON LIST.

Chicago, May 8.—Contrary to expectations based on reported intentions of some 50 saloon keepers to go out of business, inspection of the books of the city collector shows that practically all of the 7,000 licenses of 1911 have been renewed. Four or five licenses have been revoked in the year by the mayor because of violations of the law. Those saloon keepers who disposed of their business for the most part sold the license and a vested property right.

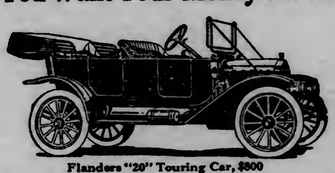
FLANDERS "20" Studebaker Automobiles Two Models E-M-F "30"

Do You Want Your Money's Worth?



Flanders "20" Touring Car, $800

The next time an automobile salesman tries to sell you a car at a discount, tell him that the old "something for nothing" story can't fool you.

The best automobiles in the world are sold for their list price, not a penny less. They are worth it. But the lame ducks, the second rates, the nondescript and assembled automobiles are in the public market looking for the highest bidder. Look out they don't get you. If gold-brick cars are not worth their list price, how much are they worth? Nobody knows. Cut price deals are frauds.

But if you want a car of one price to all and worth every cent of it, get either a Studebaker E-M-F "30," $1100, or Flanders "20," $800. You can trust them. You get all that you pay for and that is more than you get with any other car at near their price. Studebaker guarantees them. That's the big reason. No matter what price temptation falls in your way, Studebaker E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" cars are far bigger bargains, because in years of good service and satisfaction, they pay big returns.

BRAVO, DULUTH!

The voters of Duluth covered themselves with glory yesterday, first by adopting the initiative, referendum and recall, second by doing it with an emphatic four-to-one vote with only two precincts out of forty-three in the negative, and third by turning out in extraordinarily large numbers at the polls.

These tools of direct popular government will not be used much. They will not be needed. Having them is usually enough, for as Woodrow Wilson puts it they are the "gun behind the door" which keeps thieves away. A city needs them most when it hasn't them. When it has them the fact that it has is enough to keep public officials straight.

The Herald always has advocated these principles for the city, and it advocates them for the state. Their adoption in the state is the next step, and it should be taken as soon as a legislature can be induced to make it possible.

Help!

Now Wisconsin reports a hen that lays "dumb-bell" eggs—eggs shaped like a dumb-bell, with the yolk at one end and the white at the other. Somehow it would seem natural to apply another form of the verb "lay" to that yarn.

SOUND PUBLIC SPIRIT.

The county board did at least two excellent things at its meeting yesterday. It appropriated $200 a month for the girls' industrial home, and it went on record in favor of the work farm plan.

The city council already has provided $150 a month for the girls' industrial home, so the beginning of this promising experiment is assured. Both appropriations run long enough for a fair test, and we haven't the slightest doubt that the plan will succeed so well that presently there will be a fine home for this institution in the country.

The county board took the right tack on the work farm plan. While it is investigating plans, its attorney will be preparing a bill for the next legislature to act upon, removing all possible legal doubts about the county's right to act. Thus when the farm is started, it will be started legally and will be a complete institution and not a half-way substitute for a complete one.

The Law's Delay.

We can laugh at the length of the Camorrist trial, but let's remember that in this country those fellows probably wouldn't even have been brought to trial yet.

SEX HYGIENE IN THE SCHOOLS.

Superintendent Denfeld is preparing a course of sex hygiene to be taught in the public schools. It is to be hoped that when it is completed the board of education will promptly sanction its adoption.

It is at least as important that the schools should teach sex hygiene as it is that they should teach how the plant world perpetuates itself, and when it is realized how many children go wrong through ignorance and distorted ideas of sex functions it may be agreed to be much more important.

The silly false modesty which keeps parents and teachers mum on this subject leaves the child to gather his knowledge of it where he can—and usually he gathers it in a false and misleading form from bad companions.

The duty of sane teaching of sex hygiene rests first with the parents; but many parents, thanks to the previous neglect of the public school and their own parents before them, are not qualified to teach it, and most of those who are qualified shrink from it, not thinking of the deadly peril they expose their children to by their failure. Therefore the schools should teach it.

Split Majorities.

Orozco and Gomez agree that Madero isn't president. Madero and Orozco agree that Gomez isn't president. Two to one any way you look at it, but can't Gomez and Madero find anything they can click glasses over?

TEACHERS AND THEIR PAY.

Not long ago The Herald called attention to the loose requirements for teachers in this state, and indicated the necessary relationship which exists between that state neglect and the low average of teachers' salaries.

This country, though it prides itself on its attention to education, never will really show an appreciation of education until it places the profession of teaching on as high a plane as that of medicine or the law, and makes the requirements as rigid and the rewards, according to merit, as large.

That this problem is by no means confined to Minnesota, and that on the contrary Minnesota is farther advanced than many other states, is shown by Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education, in his forthcoming annual report.

Dr. Claxton shows that while salaries have increased in the last decade, they are still inadequate. The average for the country is less than $3 for each teaching day, and about $1.60 for the actual working days of the year. Somewhat less, then, than the pay of a common laborer in steady employment. This average, too, includes the teachers in the wealthy cities and in the high schools; and if these were eliminated the average would be still more depressing. In eleven states the average is less than $400 a year; in eight it is less than $300; and in two less than $250. And, as Dr. Claxton points out, the teacher is expected to give his entire time either to the actual schoolroom work, to school work which must be done out of school hours, or to preparation, in summer schools and elsewhere, for better service.

More adequate preparation and better pay must come, and they must march hand in hand.

Says Dr. Claxton: "For salaries like this it is clearly impossible to hire the services of men and women of good native ability and sufficient scholarship, training and experience to enable them to do satisfactory work. Moreover, a very large per cent of the teachers are less than twenty-one years old. In the country at large less than one-half have had adequate preparation for their work. In some states less than twenty-five per cent have had the full preparation given by normal schools, and in most of the states less than ten per cent of the teachers in the country schools have had such preparation. Few continue to teach long enough to gain wisdom and skill from experience. In several states from twenty to thirty per cent of the teachers every year are beginners. In a few states the average length of service is less than four years of six months each."

Dr. Claxton's report also calls attention to the small proportion of pupils that finish the school courses, and this inevitably leads to the thought, so frequently expressed these days, that a school system devised solely for the benefit of those who complete its full courses and go to college is failing miserably in its purpose. Dr. Claxton estimates that less than half the children of the country finish more than the first six grades, that only about a quarter of them ever enter high school, and that less than eight in a hundred do the four years of high school work. Fewer than five in a hundred receive any education above the high school.

And the public schools send out into the world with scarcely any preparation all those who fail to complete the full school course, which is usually even then incomplete unless it is supplemented by college work.

Well! Well!

Maybe the L, R. & R. isn't a popular line in Duluth. What?

DANCE HALLS IN THE PARKS.

The city council has granted a license for a dance hall in Lincoln park, regarding which there was considerable controversy, rather determined opposition to it having developed in the West end.

Such controversies will continue until such time as the city itself gets around to provide its own carefully regulated dance halls in the park. Then controversy will—or should—cease.

There is nothing intrinsically evil about a dance hall or about dancing, though many good people hold conscientiously to the contrary. Both the dance hall and the dance itself may be made of evil use; but that is true of many other things that are in themselves sound and good.

There is nothing necessarily bad, either, about a dance hall in a park; but it is a fact that if it is not well regulated and provided with ample police protection bad things will come of it.

The young people have a right to honest amusements, and that is as true of the young people of the poor as it is of the young people of the well-to-do and the rich. The latter classes are well cared for in this respect; the former are not cared for at all unless the public, or some private interest seeking profits, takes care of them.

It is better, of course, not to have dance halls at all than to have dance halls unregulated. However, there appears to be no necessity for having unregulated dance halls. No public dance hall should be allowed where it is impossible to provide proper police protection. The council knows how far the present police force can be stretched; and in granting such licenses it should go no farther than that. Presumably there is an assurance of ample police protection in Lincoln park, or the council would not have granted the license.

Such things are better cared for by the public than by private enterprise, and we hope some time the city will have its own dance pavilions in the parks. In the meantime it should permit as many dance pavilions as it can adequately police, and not a single one more.

Doubtful.

Question is, will any of the professional parodists have the self-control to refrain from turning out some variation of "Maryland, My Maryland?"

NON-PARTISAN CITY ELECTIONS.

If the Socialists of Milwaukee have done no other good, they accomplished something worth while when the fear of them caused the Wisconsin legislature to enact a law requiring all city elections in Wisconsin municipalities which are under the primary election law to have non-partisan nominations and elections of all city officers.

After the Socialists had captured the Milwaukee city government, the Republicans and Democrats combined against them and took control away from them, though the Socialist vote was larger than it was two years ago. This voluntary arrangement, however, could not be expected to last. Although an attempt was made to divide the city ticket as nearly equally as possible between the two old parties, dissatisfaction with the distribution of offices was certain. The law now in effect in Wisconsin which requires that in all such cities nominations and elections shall be made without regard to party designations makes permanent the non-partisan system which necessity temporarily provided in Milwaukee.

There never was any valid excuse for electing city officers because they were Democrats, Republicans or Socialists, and the practice of partisan elections has been responsible for much mischief. Any city which puts its municipal elections on a non-partisan basis has taken a long step away from inefficiency and corruption and toward efficiency and honesty.

Or Even Woodrow.

"Senate Agrees to Pension Bill," is a headline announcement. It's a safe bet that some of them would agree even sooner to pension Theodore.

LAGGARD VOTERS.

Even in the hottest presidential primary fights yet held, much less than the full party vote has been cast.

In Massachusetts, for instance, the Republican vote was about three-fifths of the Republican vote at the last state election, and the Democratic vote was much smaller in proportion.

Of course a full party vote, if the estimate is based on the general election figures, never will be cast at a primary. The total vote for a Republican candidate in a state election, for instance, includes not only stalwart party members, in a constantly lessening proportion, but it includes part of the constantly growing mass of independent voters. Many of these have become so thoroughly estranged from partisanship that they do not even participate in party primaries, though this is wrong in them.

But even at the worst, there is this to be remembered: The chances are that even where the smallest recorded proportion of the party vote is cast in a presidential primary, the vote is ten times as great as that which gets out at the boss-directed party caucuses.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

COUNTY'S FARMERS WANT REPRESENTATION.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Every so often you will notice that the citizens of Duluth organize a club of some kind with the object of benefitting the farmers around the city. Most of us here have lived on farms in this vicinity for a good many years but as yet we have not seen any of the benefits. On the contrary it seems that a good many things are done right along to discourage the tiller of the soil around Duluth.

Out of a large number of ways in which we, if you will excuse the expression get the worst of it I will mention three.

When the present legislative districts were divided some years ago, they were divided in strips so as to contain a little of the farming country and a strip of the range. Now as the range can pretty nearly always be depended on in a political way to keep a certain party in power the dividing was done with this idea in view. At the present time we never hear of our legislative members until near election day and then it is always a man that we know nothing about, generally from the range and so we have no show there.

Now if these districts were divided in blocks, then we probably would know a little about the candidates and have some chance of voting for the best man.

A few years ago when it was decided to have two more county commissioners, we tried to get the county so divided that a farming district would be created.

But here again the people of Duluth prevented this and gave instead, two more commissioners to the range.

In a great many cases if a farmer was elected county commissioner, he could handle the work as well as the average city man and in some cases better. At the present time enough money is expended every year in this country for roads to make first class roads all over this part of the state in the near future. The main trouble is that the right kind of men are seldom appointed by the county commissioners as foremen. Generally it is the man who worked hardest to get the commissioner elected who gets the job as road foreman.

Last, but not least, when it was decided to build a county demonstration farm to help the farmers, this too was put in the city of Duluth, where it will not benefit us. As is well known Lake Superior has a great effect on the climate in Duluth and therefore any experiments made at the farm at its present site will be altogether different to the other parts of the county.

We explained this in a petition we sent in, but, of course, we were not listened to.

Thanking you in advance for publishing this in your valuable paper, I remain. Yourst truly,

S. N. PETERSON,
Secretary Twig Farmers' Club.

The Silent Sex.

Says Mrs. Georgiana Chinn,
Her anger rising at a touch:
"I hear a man of medicine
Asserts that women talk too much.
Why the idea! I haven't said
A single word this blessed day
Except of course when Newlywed
Came staggering along the way
And she ran out without a hat
And yanked the fellow off the walk
But I'm certain doesn't mean I talk
About my neighbors though I'm sure
There must be lots of gossip here
For Dr. Wagg says he can't cure
The aches in Mrs. Buzzer's ear
And says if she would get relief
To quit the Church Society
But she was never made so deef
By hearing any talk from ME
And anyway the doctor might Look home before he talks of blab
For Mrs. Wagg is such a fright
She'd make a marble statue gab
About that ugly-looking dress
That might have been a parlor mat
And cost three thirty-six or less
And dearie did you see her hat
Its style is positively Dutch
But how some nervy people find
A cause to say we talk too much
Is something that's beyond MY mind
Unless of course a person thinks
That when a man like Mr. Brown
Becomes abusive when he drinks
It should be told around the town
But not by me! I'd not be seen
Repeating common talk and such
And that is why I say it's mean
To say we ladies talk too much!"
—John O'Keefe in New York World.

"Engineers All Dead."

New York Mail: There is one laconic sentence in the official report of the White Star people to the office of the company in England: "Engineers all dead." That is about all that has been said about the engineers in the volumes that have been written about the Titanic disaster. Just these three words; but volumes could not say more. No fame for them—no picture in the papers, no eloquent record of a splendid act to go down the ages. It was theirs to die, and have three words said about it.

But those three words are a poem, if one thinks a moment. The engineers are not explaining anything. They are not filled with discomfort and uneasiness. They are at rest. They will be honored forever. They are all dead.

Old-Age Pensions a Sure Thing.

Robert Grant in the May Scribner. I am confident that the time is coming, and is not far off, when society will be ashamed that it ever approached the question of relief for the impecunious aged from any other point of view except their dire necessities. When you conjure up the old-age pension list you behold a long line which stretches out to the crack of doom—millions of lazy, shiftless mortals reaching out their dirty palms for the pittance which the state provides after they have become unfitted to labor. Your frenzied imagination depicts human ambition palsied, filial love atrophied, and the pittance swollen by the greed of the multitude to a ruinous allowance for everybody, the inevitable sequence of which will be universal bankruptcy. The difficulty is that you underestimate both the dignity of human nature and its common sense. I am unable to foresee the likelihood of any such carnival of extravagance as the result of relieving the individual superannuated in the struggle of life from the reproach of mendicancy. I see in it the working of a more enlightened sense of justice, which refuses longer to lay almost hysterical stress on the frailties of human nature as the underlying cause of human lack of success, but weighs in the same scale with these the other contributing factors, some congenital, some due to opportunity and chance, which contribute to the production of the man who has rusted out. It means the growing recognition that henceforth sheer failure under our economic system is not to be regarded as a crime, the punishment for which is starvation or an almshouse, without regard to extenuating circumstances, for which the system itself is partly responsible. The case I cited was an average one; average in that it presented no larger element of fault in the victim than that of thousands; and the mistake you gentlemen make is in assuming that a modest provision by the state in lieu of the workhouse for those incapacitated by age or infirmity for the labor or employment in which they have grown feeble, will tempt humanity in the gross to throw economy to the winds and wallow in idleness. As Mrs. Foote says, 'I have not such a mean opinion of human nature, despite our disreputable Civil war pension statistics.'

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Easy, Too.

Stillwater Gazette: The Dietz family or at least a couple of them, are lecturing at Duluth, telling about their dam, etc. And they are no doubt making good—money for the Dietz family.

Great Time Coming.

Brainerd Dispatch: The Minnesota Editorial association will go to Duluth and the iron range country in July for their summer outing. Included will be a trip to Isle Royale on Lake Superior. There are many things to interest the newspaper men in St. Louis county and the time given over to the association meeting will be none too long to get a comprehensive idea of what is going on at the Head of the Lakes. Duluth, in particular, has always taken a lively interest in the association and has never failed to be there with the glad hand when the boys were passing through on their way to some other port for their outing and now that the terminal point is Duluth a grand good time may be expected and it is hoped that every member of the association will take advantage of the occasion and return the compliment.

Rubbing It In.

Buffalo Journal: A gas main in Duluth froze April 27 and there was no hot breakfast in many homes that morning. Salubrious climate that.

All in the Point of View.

Princeton Union: The township of Stuntz, says the Duluth Herald, will send a solid Woodrow Wilson delegation to the Democratic county convention. A township with a name of that sort might be expected to cut up almost any kind of caper.

The Day Is Coming.

Menahga Journal: Mark this prediction. The agitation for an industrial farm, now a live topic at Duluth, where prisoners charged with minor offenses may be furnished with healthful employment, wholesome food and sanitary surroundings, conducted on a business basis to the betterment of the inmates and a profit to county or municipality, will at no distant date result in such farms generally superceding the present antiquated, unsanitary, anti-Christian and truly unbusiness like method now in vogue. Speed the day.

A Distinction.

Warren Register: The Duluth Herald is mistaken. The Republican party is not "badly shattered," but it must be admitted that the professional politicians, who are wont to act as if they constituted the whole party, are in a rather bad way.

One View of It.

Aitkin Age: About ninety short term prisoners—mostly drunks—are being fed in the St. Louis county jail at Duluth. Great thing, this booze business—but then we must have it, else there would be no brewers to run our state politics.

The Bricks Go to St. Paul.

St. Paul Pioneer-Press: The Duluth Herald speaks of "the rich and eager market of Duluth." For what, potatoes or gold bricks?

What Is a Bank Deposit?

Banking Reform: The deposits in the banks are $16,000,000,000.

The money in the banks amounts to $1,500,000,000; the money outside the banks, $2,000,000,000—$3,500,000,000 of money in the whole country.

Bank deposits, then, are more than ten times as large as the banks' money holdings; they are nearly five times as large as the total stock of money in the country. For every dollar the banks owe their depositors they have less than a dime in money. The savings banks have less than one cent in money for every dollar they owe their depositors.

Bank deposits are not money.

What, then, is a bank deposit?

Only one dollar in twenty of the deposits the banks receive every day (they run about a billion a day) is in money. All the rest are in the form of orders or promises to pay money.

If you go to your bank and borrow $1,000 the bank credits you with $1,000 on its books. This is a deposit. If you draw a check against this deposit for $1,000 to pay the mortgage on your home, the man who gets your check puts it in his bank. This is a deposit.

If you are a manufacturer, you get from a customer, in payment for goods, his written promise to pay you the amount in ninety days. You put this note in your bank, which credits you with the amount, less interest. This is a deposit. Or, you draw an order on your customer to pay you the amount in ninety days; he "accepts" the draft; you put it in your bank. This is a deposit.

In such ways the great bulk of bank deposits arise. Modern business makes actual money of less and less importance in the exchange of goods between producers and consumers. Nine-tenths of all our business is now done with bank credits.

The farmer who has wheat and wants to buy shoes and meat gets the currency with which to make his purchases by getting a bank deposit against his wheat. He gets this deposit by a loan on the wheat as security, or by selling to the bank the written evidences of payment to be made to him for his wheat.

The great bulk of bank deposits represents, in fact, the coining of property into currency. A deposit is a liability of the bank—it is a sum the bank owes the depositor. The chief resources of a bank are, in addition to the securities it has purchased for investment, the loans it has made on property (especially goods moving in the channels of trade), which are soon to be paid by the borrowers.

No bank is ever in a position to pay any large number of its depositors on demand cash in full. But every sound bank in a sound banking system has its resources in such form that it can obtain cash on short notice to meet the most extraordinary demands of its depositors.

Every great commercial nation, with the exception of the United States, has provided a means whereby sound banks can always convert prime assets into currency.

The Rich Man.

One day I met on the road of life,
A man that was old and gray;
He was battered much by the storms and strife,
That beset the rugged way.

He carried a violin 'neath his arm,
And a dog that was old and lame,
To shield his master from all harm,
Marched boldly up the lane.

He sat him down on the old flagstone,
And drew the much-worn bow,
He produced a strange and weird tune,
But the notes were sweet and low.

Looking, I saw the soul of him,
Through the light in his faded eyes,
As he tucked the violin 'neath his chin;
Exalted to the skies.

Ah, here was a soul endowed with wealth,
Of the kind no man can steal,
If he had no gold, no power, no health,
He could hear, and see, and feel.

He could hear the music of his God,
In every passing breeze;
He could feel his kinship with the Sod,
With birds, and flowers, and trees.

Ah! he could see with his faded eyes,
The small things by the way,
The wondrous beauty of the skies,
The glories of the day.

He could hear the joy bells ring,
Throughout the wood and glade,
He loved the lowest, smallest thing
The hand of God had made.

Ah, he was rich with the things that count,
The things that never die,
The things that most of us in our haste,
Often let pass by.

He tucked his violin 'neath his arm,
Just as the sunset flamed
And left me alone on the old flagstone,
Thoughtful and ashamed.

RETRIBUTION.

Not since the Civil war has such a feeling of danger pervaded the minds of Americans who think. The menace this time is industrial. It has been felt recently in considering what might be the meaning of a strike of 30,000 locomotive and electrical engineers on fifty railroads. It was felt in connection with the McNamara trial. It was felt even more in reflection upon the victory of the I. W. W. at Lawrence. Unskilled labor won that fight against money, police and courts. It won, and on its lips was a threat that if it lost it would practice systematically the destruction of property and if it won the victory would be but a step to further demands until capital should be glad to turn over control of industry to labor. These foreigners came over in response to the search of capital for cheap labor with which it could beat down the standard of living established by the unions. Now the weapon which it has imported becomes a mighty threat to the existence of capital itself. What is this but retribution?

Shall we be alarmed? Certainly not by a little violence in the streets. Thomas Jefferson said of Shay's insurrection:

No, it is not violence we need to ponder so much as prosperity. Remember how thin, in business, is the line between success and failure. The trained unions realize that a little increase in cost may mean the destruction of an enterprise altogether. The untrained often seem ignorant of this dangerous and narrow line between productiveness and disaster, and imagine that if the masses could control all business everybody would be comfortable. They cannot know that without a rather high degree of organizing and managing ability a factory may use up more than it produces. This is the only threat that need frighten anybody but a coward—that the increasing power of sheer numbers, by upsetting organized skill, may take the fertility out of labor itself. How is this danger to be met?

In one way. The mass of laborers are not to be beaten back. Industrial feudalism cannot last. Safety lies in the fact that responsibility brings caution and reflection. Give all your laboring men a stake in the enterprise and a share in decisions and they will begin to figure profit and loss, to weigh and understand, even as you yourself now figure and understand. It is the only way.

Roosevelt and History.

Atlantic Monthly: History is no schoolmistress. She does not rank her sons by general average, nor let demerit marks spoil the fair face of a famous record. The best that a man does is his monument, and our children's children will look on Mr. Roosevelt not without gratitude. In their schoolbooks they will study how Mark Hanna closed one era, and how a new and better opened with Theodore Roosevelt. They will remember that the love of money which defied so many of his contemporaries left him untouched. They will be taught that, with a frail body, and with no special gifts of intellect, he became the rugged and impressive figure of his time. They will mark how, born to ease, and a pleasant life, he sympathized with the unfortunate, and fought their battles against prejudice and inequality. They will read how he lived and preached a clean and wholesome life. Surely, these are lessons good for boys to learn.

As I write, there comes into my mind the figure of a workingman. Some years ago I saw him, seated in front of me in a trolley car. The creases in his red neck and wrinkled face were soiled with sweat and dirt, and in his hand he held a newspaper close to his eyes as though the look of print puzzled them, while with a grimy forefinger, I saw him trace, line by line, as his lips murmured the unaccustomed syllables, the words of one of Mr. Roosevelt's exhortations to be decent, to live clean, to play the game hard. That is the picture of Mr. Roosevelt's achievements.

A Wall Street View.

Moody's Magazine (Wall Street financial publication): "Since the last issue of this magazine appeared, political events of considerable importance have occurred. The presidential campaign is now shaping up, and the spectacular Mr. Roosevelt is once more in the field as an active candidate. He takes his position as the leading "Insurgent," pushing all other aspirants for the candidacy aside, including his friend, Senator La Follette, who has done more to make the Progressive movement a possibility than all the other "Insurgents" combined.

The announcement of Mr. Roosevelt that he would be a candidate was a great surprise to many people, for he had on so many occasions insisted and reiterated that he would not be a candidate that the vast majority of voters actually believed him.

But it was no surprise to us. In fact, ever since the colonel took the stand last summer in defense of the Steel corporation, it seemed clear to us that he was at least trying to so shape matters as to enter the canvass this summer. While Roosevelt is a "tradical," as far as his present attitude is concerned, he is at heart not a man of profound convictions at all, but simply a clever politician. He saw long ago that the winning card in 1912 would probably be radicalism and that to win in 1912 the Republican candidate would have to be at least as radical in the sentiments professed, as the Democratic nominee. Were the reverse the case, and were a strong reactionery movement in swing today, it may be put down as sure as shooting that Mr. Roosevelt would be as "conservative" as Senator Lodge or Vice President Sherman.

But while having due regard for public sentiment, the colonel is practical politician enough to know that every campaign needs the "sinews of war" (money chests), and that the "people's fight" is seldom won unless the candidate has the wherewithal to pay the bills. In other words, Roosevelt feels that to be elected president this year it is just as important for him to have Wall Street back of him as it was in 1904. He is convinced that with Wall Street in direct opposition, he or any other man in the Republican party this year would surely go down to defeat. So before coming out openly for the nomination, he was no doubt very careful to make certain that Wall Street understood him all right, and would not oppose his candidacy.

That Roosevelt is Wall Street's candidate for the presidency can hardly admit of doubt. This fact is no doubt being covered up as carefully as possible, and would be denied in the highest quarters, but nevertheless we have the strongest reasons for believing that this is the fact. And should Roosevelt be nominated and elected, the truth of this will be apparent enough in time. That Roosevelt is going to get the best financial backing, is already being shown down here by the activity in behalf of his candidacy of certain notorious publicity bureaus, who have for years been the boosters of the Belmonts, the Morgans and other financial interests, both political and otherwise.

The amazing thing in this whole situation is that the sincere Progressives, such as Beveridge, Johnson of California, Record of New Jersey and many others, really believe in Roosevelt and accept him at face value. If some of these men could be made to realize how the big men in Wall Street are laughing at them for their childish simplicity, the situation would be interesting.

The Big Liner and the Little Tug.

From Holmes's "The Professor at the Breakfast Table.": Oftentimes, as I have lain swinging on the water, in the swell of the Chelsea ferryboats, in that long, sharp pointed, black cradle in which I love to let the great mother rock me, I have seen a tall ship glide by against the tide, as if drawn by some invisible tow line, with a hundred strong arms pulling it. Her sails hung unfilled, her streamers were drooping, she had neither side wheel nor stern wheel; still she moved on, stately, in serene triumph, as if with her own like. But I knew that, on the other side of the ship, hidden beneath the great hulk that swam so majestically, there was a little toiling steam tug, with heart of fire and arms of iron, that was hugging it close and dragging it bravely on; and I knew that, if the little steam tug untwined her arms and left the tall ship, it would wallow and roll about, and drift hither and thither, and go off with the refluent tide, no man knows whither. And so I have known more than one genius, high decked, full freighted, wide salled, gay pennoned, that, but for the bare toiling arms, and brave, warm, beating heart of the faithful little wife, that nestled close in his shadow, and clung to him, so that no wind or wave could part them, and dragged him on against all the tide of circumstances, would soon have gone down on the stream, and been heard of no more.

Wanted—Safe and Sane Young Woman.

Wellington, Kan., News: Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight, and give us a maiden dressed proper and right. We are so weary of switches and rats, Billie Burke clusters and peach basket hats. Wads of jute hair in a horrible pile, stacked on their heads to the height of a mile. Something is wrong with the maidens, we fear. Give us the girls as they used to appear. Give us the girlies we once knew of yore, whose curls didn't come from a hair dressing store. Maidens who dressed with a sensible view. And just as Dame Nature intended them to. Give us a girl with a figure her own and fashioned divine by Nature alone. Feminine style's getting fiercer each year—oh, give us the girls as they used to appear.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Woman's Realm

Every member of the program given last evening at the Young Women's Christian association at the second membership privilege concert of the year proved a delight to the audience which packed every available inch of room in the assembly hall. A large number were forced to listen to the program from the adjoining parlor and hall without seeing the performers.

Sigurd Erdtman, the young Swedish tenor in whom Duluth is especially interested, gave two groups which were excellent. His voce true and clear, has an unusual attraciveness of quality and tone and aided by an artistic temperment this young singer is expected to be heard from. Miss Theresa Lynn played the accompaniments.

Mrs. Eva Sawyer Parker was as charming as usual in her dilect numbers her exquisitely sympathetic voice and ease being especially attractive in both her serious and humorous selections.

The playing of a mandolin trio composed of Messrs. I. G. Ketcham, first mandolin; B. B. Miller, second mandolin and W. C. Berglund, guitar, was especially well received, their numbers being given a delightful interpretation and musicianly rendition which won for them high praise.

Miss Emily Smith accompanied by Miss Hazel gave two violin numbers, Rubenstein's "Melody in F," and Godard's "Berceuse" with good taste and a pleasing touch which won for her well merited applause.

One of the numbers which delighted the audience greatly was the singing of little Miss Helen McCormack, the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. McCormack, who brought down the house with her singing of the popular songs, "The Chicken Rag" and "Mr. Brown and His Violin," which she did with the air of an experienced professional vaudeville headliner. She is full of life and temperament and she was forced to respond to a second encore by repeating her second song. Miss Genevieve Murphy played her accompaniments.

These concerts are proving unusually popular and there are four more remaining in the course to be given before the end of the year.

RECEPTION.

Collegiate Alumni Will Entertain Prospective College Girls.

A reception will be given Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. A. Congdon, 3300 London road by the association of Collegiate Alumnae and College club for the girls who are going away to school. Dean Mathers of the University of Wisconsin will speak.

Plans for this reception were made at the annual meeting held at the home of Mrs. Z. D. Scott when the following officers were chosen for next year: Mrs. F. H. De Groat, director; Miss Agnes Wells, president; Mrs. W. W. Sanford, first vice president and treasurer; membership committee, Mrs. George Morgan, chairman; Mrs. Jay Cooke Howard, Miss Juanita Williams and Miss Adelaide Smith.

The final stereopticon talk will be given on May 24 at the Central high school. Mrs. E. W. Matter discussing Aberlin and Miss Helen Potter, Vassar.

Arrangements were made at the annual meeting for all those who wish to attend the annual luncheon in the fall register early with the association, paying fees early in the year.

Form Alumni Association.

Every graduate of the C. C. Officers were chosen as follows: President, Abe Miller; vice president, Benjamin Wood; secretary, Senia Sepola; treasurer, Mark Troyer; and club adviser, Miss Susan House, the eighth grade teacher of the school.

Plans were also made for a banquet which the new association will give the graduating class of the school on June 7 with the intention of making this an annual event.

Linnaea Meeting.

Annual reports and the election of the officers for next year took up the attention of the members of the Linnaea club yesterday afternoon. All of the old officers with the exception of Mrs. T. C. Smith, the retiring treasurer, were returned to some office the arrangement being as follows: President, Mrs. Israel Bergstrom; vice president, Mrs. K. A .Ostergren; recording secretary, Mrs. H. Figraeus; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. A. Anderson; financial secretary, Mrs. A. Lofgren; treasurer, Mrs. D. A. Cone; trustee for two years, Mrs. John Brandt and trustee for one year, Mrs. William Carlson.

The reports of the work of the year were interestingly presented and a social hour followed the business session at which Mrs. Charles Ehling, Mrs. David Sall and Mrs. Joseph Olson were the hostesses.

One of the Standbys of the Suffrage Movement

IDA HUSTED HARPER.

Mrs. Ida Husted Harper is one of the standbys of the suffrage cause. She appeared last week at a meeting organized by Mrs. Gilbert Jones in New York to speak for the faith that was in her. Mrs. Jones leads the anti-suffragists and made a strong argument against the votes for women. But it was the opinion of Mrs. Harper's friends that she had thrown the anti-leader quite into the shade.

THE EVENING STORY

ANOTHER WOMAN

By C. B. Childer.

The Starring crept slowly through the fog. On all sides a white, impenetrable wall threw back with weird effect the monotonous boom of the liner's siren, playing strange tricks on the eyes and ears of the muffled figures anxiously pacing the decks. Dennis Conway lied cheerfully to the girl beside him, making light of the dangers to which they were exposed. It was fortunate, perhaps, that she did not properly realize the horrors of the situation, the menace of that white, unchanging bank, from which at any moment destruction might emerge upon them. Danger was a thing new to her. She only grasped sufficient of it to render the position an exciting one; and Dennis Conway now made it his business to keep her in a happy frame of mind.

"I dare say," he laughed, "that there are worse things than a honeymoon in a fog. We might—hullo! That's a near thing." A siren boomed into their ears at perilously close quarters. White faced figures rushed about peering right and left. The faint outline of a steamer passed astern of the Starring and disappeared.

"Narrow squeeze that," said Dennis, drawing his wife of two days closer to him. "Ah, a little thinner, isn't it?" He knew that, if anything, it was getting worse. The liner crawled through the dense cloud as slowly as she could be driven. Hour after hour found the fog even thicker than before. And swiftly, silently, disaster came on the ill-fated boat. From out of the white wall a black hull loomed, like a monstrous phantom ship. In an instant the decks of both vessels were alive with screaming, gesticulating figures. Then, with a mighty crash, the clang of tearing steel, the hiss of escaping steam, the strange ship ploughed her bows into the hull of the Starring, the liner lurching wildly from the shock of the terrific impact.

Dennis, hurled violently to the deck, picked himself up, bruised and half stunned. Around him the air was torn by an indescribable confusion of sounds—human cries, the grinding of metal, and the roar of steam rushing from the boilers of the mangled vessels. His first glance assured him that his wife, by clinging to the deck rail, had escaped the shock of the collision unhurt. With great difficulty—for the deck was at a perilous angle—they started to make their way amidship.

There was no unruly panic or frantic struggles of men and women for the boats that were being swiftly lowered. But before the first one touched the water a vast explosion rent the Starring; masses of debris, twisted steel and splintered wood were hurled into the air, and with a reel the liner plunged under water. Dennis, fortunately, some little distance from the explosion, knew the meaning of that last reel. Swinging himself on to the rail he lifted his wife beside him, and as the liner took her final plunge they dived into the icy water.

The man was a strong swimmer, but the girl could scarcely keep herself afloat. He seized a piece of floating wreckage and she clung to it, gasping and shuddering in the intense cold—a fragile, delicate creature, accustomed only to comfort and luxury. Conway groaned, for he knew that with no hope of rescue in the fog, the end could not be long delayed. He shouted, but no answer reached them. Powerful currents drew them away. Swimming strongly, he towed her inch by inch back to the wreck in the hope of picking up some means of support on which she could rest out of the water, but the currents drove them out and the cold was eating away his strength.

"Hold on, darling; we shall soon be picked up," he kept on saying cheerfully. But though she tried to smile back at him the growing pallor of her face told him that the frail life was rapidly becoming numbed. She could cling very little longer. She swam on, but his strokes grew weaker. He ceased to make headway. Soon he began to lose ground. His limbs were heavy; his clothes and shoes impeded him; each stroke was a painful effort.

"Den, I—I can't hold any longer. I've no more strength." He had known it was coming. Her face and hands were blue with the freezing chill. And he had no power left to support her. If the plank slipped it would be only a matter of minutes. "Nan, Nan! For God's sake hold on. There is hope yet. We are getting nearer. Hold Hold!"

Frantically he shouted; but the silence returned no answer. It would have been impossible for a boat to have found them in the fog.

"Den, if it were not for me you could save yourself. What is the use of clinging for only another minute or two? Let me go and take the plank!" Despair seized him. He realized his weakness, his utter helplessness and sobbed pitifully. "Oh, Nan, hold a little longer. If you drown I shall drown with you. Nan, Nan, there is a chance yet."

"No, Den, there is no chance. Without me you could save yourself. Oh, Den, the plank is slipping." He stretched out an arm to save her, but she was beyond his reach and the plank was between them. Her frozen fingers had lost their hold. The current dragged her away. He strove with frantic energy to reach her. "No, Den, no, no. Save yourself."

"Nan, Nan, hold up till I reach you." His agony endowed him with new strength. He struck out fiercely. Another six strokes—"Oh, Den, I am going. Den—darling—" Before his eyes one last struggle, a little cry that he scarcely heard—and the surface of the water was clear. At that moment he saw through a thinness of the fog that a return current had drawn them back to within a short distance of the wreck. If only he had seen before! The strength of a maniac seized him. He threw himself forward with one gigantic stroke and dived into the unknown depth. To his surprise he found the water only about twelve feet deep. Land was near. The unutterable cruelty of it. He had judged his dive well. At the bottom he found the white form lying and seizing it, sprang upwards to the surface.

He swam on his back, drawing her by the neck. The fog had thickened again and he had no idea in what direction the land or the wreck lay. He prayed that she might not be dead. If only he could get ashore and apply artificial respiration he might save her yet. Oh, where was the land?

He called to her, but no answer returned to him. There was no sign of life. Swimming with his legs only he drew her closer and felt for her heart. It did not beat. He turned her face towards him. It was another woman!

MARINE NEWS

MUCH GRAIN IS AFLOAT

Big Fleet Is Delayed at Soo By Storm and Fog.

All But Five of Boats Wintering in Harbor, Fitted Out.

Many of the boats loaded with grain which left here last Friday and Saturday bound for Buffalo were compelled to stay over at the Soo during the storm and fogs of Sunday and Monday. Several of the boats continued on their journey yesterday. According to the present schedule the boats will not dock until Thursday or Friday of this week.

A number of boats which were compelled to dock at Sault Ste. Marie over Sunday and Monday were of the Canadian fleet expected in Buffalo yesterday morning. These boats will arrive at the same time as the boats from the Head of the Lakes, all bearing heavy grain cargoes. About 10,000,000 bushels of grain will arrive in Buffalo by Saturday morning. With the arrivals of the latter part of last week the total grain receipts at the Buffalo harbor are estimated at 15,000,000 bushels.

During the month of April 204,042 tons of ore were loaded at upper lake ports. During the same month last year 331,645 tons were loaded. Shipments of dock ore to the furnaces during the month were 1,314,627 tons, compared with 989,574 tons in the same month a year ago. About 6,000,000 tons remained unshipped on May 1. During the winter the docks shipped 3,716,024 tons of ore to the furnaces in different parts of the East as compared with 1,772,261 tons in the winter of 1910-1911.

Out of the sixty-six boats which wintered in the Duluth harbor, all but five have been fitted out and are actively engaged in carrying cargoes from the local port to Eastern points. Of the five, the Amasa Stone is at the Zenith Furnace dock and is expected to go out on her first trip in a few days. Two others are being fitted out, which will leave but two boats, on which no work at all has been done during the winter. The other four boats are the General Garretson, John Sherwin, Frank W. Hart and D. M. Whitney.

Of the arrivals yesterday the steamers F. L. Robbins and Miller arrived light, having grounded on Manitou Island on their way to Duluth. They went on the island yesterday morning and their masters reported on their arrival here that the Manitou light has not yet been put in commission for the season. The Robbins is now at the dry dock at Superior undergoing repairs. Both steamers were going at a reduced speed and did not suffer much damage in the accident.

Many of the arrivals yesterday are taking on ore cargoes and will leave the local port either today or tomorrow. The ore boat arrivals were: J. T. Hutchinson, T. H. Wilkinson, Gary, M. A. Bradley, Sullivan, J. J. Albright and Sheadle. The Northern Queen and Buffalo arrived with freight and the Brightie docked at the Cutler dock with a cargo of salt. The Sultana arrived for a grain load.

This morning the steamers Ralph and Harold arrived with salt loads from the Eastern ports. The Steel King carried coal and the Jesse Spalding and Syracuse arrived with freight. The boats arriving for ore loads are, Empire City, Magna, Glibert, Malta, Bessemer, Manda, Crawford and Penobscot.

Of the departures yesterday afternoon the Bunsen, Sellwood, William E. Corey, Baker, Shaw, Nottingham, J. P. Reiss and E. H. Gary all carried ore loads. The City of Berlin, Steinbrenner and George C. Howe left for the East with grain cargoes. The S. F. B. Morse and Holden went to Superior for ore. This morning the T. H. Wickwire, M. A. Bradley, J. J. Albright and J. T. Hutchinson left with ore loads. The Edward Smith cleared with lumber.

CONSOLIDATE RURAL SCHOOLS

Wisconsin Inspector Proposes Remedy for Bad Conditions.

Madison, Wis., May 8.—That consolidation of rural schools in Wisconsin is one of the best methods to improve the schools in the country districts is the contention of W. E. Larson, state rural school inspector. With this as one of the important facts in mind, he has called a meeting of the committee of fifteen appointed recently by State Superintendent C. P. Cary to consider the best methods of improving the schools and forwarding the movement toward consolidation.

There are about 1,200 small rural schools in Wisconsin that have an average attendance of ten or fewer pupils. Thousands of children live one or two miles from a school house.

PROCEDURE AT CAUCUSES

Abstract of State Laws Applying to Party Primaries.

Republican Caucuses Will Be Held in St. Louis County Saturday.

The Republican caucuses in St. Louis county to elect delegates to the county convention to be held in Duluth next Monday, will be held Saturday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

In view of the importance of the presidential campaign, the procedure at the caucuses is interesting to voters who have not made a practice of attending the caucuses of their party and are thus unfamiliar with the rules.

At the hour appointed for the opening of the caucus, the precinct chairman or secretary, or if neither be present, some voter, shall call the causcus to order. The voters present then elect a chairman, a clerk and two judges.

It is the duty of the chairman of the primary to administer the oath of office to the judges and clerk and to any voter who is challenged. No person is authorized to vote at a caucus unless he affiliated at the last election with the party, or unless he makes oath that he has changed his political affiliations since the last election, and the judges are to pass upon the truth of such statements and receive or reject his vote in accordance with their conclusions. No person can vote unless he has resided in the precinct for thirty days before the primary.

No person may during any one calendar year vote at the primaries of more than one political party.

It is the duty of the clerk to keep minutes of the proceedings and administer the oath of office to the chairman.

It is the duty of the judges to receive the votes of all voters qualified to vote at the primary, and to make record of the name and address of every voter before he is allowed to vote; and in case a vote is challenged the judges shall refuse to receive the vote until the voter makes oath before the chairman that he is a qualified voter within the definition given, and also that he resides in the election district where the primary election is being held, with the location of his place of residence. If any voter makes oath that he did not vote at the last election because he was not of age or did not then reside in the state, or because of sickness, or any other reason satisfactory to the judges, his vote shall nevertheless be received if he makes oath that he affiliates with the party holding the primary.

It is the duty of the chairman and clerk to furnish the delegates elected proper credentials certifying their election and also to furnish the chairman of the county committee a list of the names and places of residence of the electors voting at the primary.

The vote at the caucuses is by ballot and each ballot may contain only the number of names of delegates to be elected. Ballots having more than the exact number of names are void under the law.

The Republican causcuses Saturday are expected to bring out an unusual number of voters. Roosevelt and Taft tickets will be offered in every precinct in the county. The Roosevelt tickets will bear Roosevelt's name.

BRAINERD BOY IS LIVING IN CHINA

Serving in Hospital Corps and Writes of Conditions in Orient.

Brainerd, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Pippy, the son of George W. Pippy of Brainerd, is a member of the hospital corps of the United States army in Tientsin, China.

In a letter to his father, dated April 6, he said: "We are still here, ready to go out on the battlefield, but the Chinese are pretty quiet at present. There was quite a bit of trouble in February, when the Imperial soldiers started looting and burning the towns around this part of the country. The United States troops were ordered to Pekin from Tientsin to protect the American missionaries at Pekin. We left Tientsin about midnight by rail. Some of the railroad officials told our commanding officer that he could not get into Pekin by rail because the Chinese held up three trains that night. But our officer said: 'By God! we are ordered to go to Pekin and we are going.' So he put a flat car in front of the engine and loaded two machine guns on the car and we started for Pekin.

Put Them on Run.

"About twenty miles out of Pekin were 15,000 Chinese and just before we got there, a British regiment put the run on them. They were cutting chinks' heads off here right and left. A number of our men saw some of the beheading. I didn't see any because I didn't think it would be a nice thing to look at. One of our men was billed to fight fifteen rounds with the British soldiers' champion. They went at it and our man put the Britisher to sleep in the second round. There are over 10,000 soldiers of all nations in Pekin and Tientsin, but none of them come up to the United States soldiers in any way, shape or manner."

In the Chicago Tribune she says: "Care of the feet, hardest worked members of the body, is absolutely essential to health. Irritation from sore feet often causes serious nervous disorders, and nothing brings face wrinkles quicker." Here is the best treatment known to science for all foot ailments. It works through the pores and removes the cause: "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effect is magical. All soreness disappears instantly. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. It gives instant relief for bunions, aching and sweaty smelly feet. Any druggist has Calocide in stock or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. A twenty-five cent box usually cures the worst feet. Calocide is not a patent medicine. Don't waste money on uncertain remedies. Insist on getting what you want from the druggist.

THIEF RIVER BUILDING.

New Hotel and Other Work Being Carried On.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The foundation for the new $50,000 Provencher hotel, on Third street, is completed. Masses of brick and other building material blocks Horace avenue on the east side of the new structure and the contractor claims he will have the hotel enclosed by July 1. It will be of brick and almost fireproof. There will be three stories, and all the interior of as modern equipment as money can buy. The large new store building, for which the co-operative company gave a contract last week, is also assuming shape.

There is more actual building going on in this city now than during any other three years of its history, and that is not a little. Dwellings are rising on every hand and still it is impossible to rent a vacant house or flat in the whole city.

MAY IRWIN WANTS TO FLY. BUT--- SHE IS TO HEAVY

In Order to Learn She Has Planned to Reduce Her Weight—New Way.

May Irwin, comedienne, fancy farmer, sportswoman and famous shot, is for the first time in her life dissatisfied with her bulk. Miss Irwin has always prided herself on the fact that she has been superior to her weight. It has been the butt of her jokes, the plot of her comedies and the inspiration of her song writers. She has rejoiced in it because it was typical of May Irwin—the only comedienne not afraid of her corset-maker. Now it is all changed and May Irwin reads the fat-reducing ads. She practices banting, she studies diets and refuses to laugh that big, hearty laugh of hers, because, forsooth, laughter makes adipose.

So far all her efforts have been in vain, and she admits that she is ashamed to look a scale in the face. The secret is that Miss Irwin has the aviating bug. It has hit her so hard that she is willing to forego almost anything for the sake of ridding herself of the all too solid flesh that makes her efforts at aviation impossible. She has written to friends in Denver to call on Marjorie Hamilton, the famous "Fat Vanishes a Pound a Day" specialist, and offers Miss Hamilton a prize bonus if she can rid Miss Irwin of a good, big slice of her surplus flesh. "I will give a prize to Miss Hamilton if she shows me how to take off fifty pounds." Miss Irwin is said to have written to her friend here, "and, as I have heard of the marvelous reductions made by Miss Hamilton, I want you to see her and find out if there is any hope for me."

Miss Hamilton, from her office, 234A Central Bank building, Denver, Colo., is ready to take up Miss Irwin's challenge. "I can reduce Miss Irwin's weight fifty or one hundred and fifty pounds if she will use my treatment," declared the famous little Calendar Girl today. "I don't want any prize for it, either. I feel I owe Miss Irwin a great deal. I have enjoyed more good laughs at her comedy than I ever had in my life anywhere else, and if she will allow me to show her how to reduce I shall consider it an honor to show her just how I do it."

Miss Hamilton has written to Miss Irwin, making her such an offer, and is awaiting a reply to her letter. The friends of the little Calendar Girl are making a book on the proposition. The odds are all in favor of her success.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

WORKS WELL AT COMSTOCK

Consolidated School in Clay County Town Shows What Can Be Done.

Head of Comstock Institution Visits Crookston, Telling of System.

Crookston, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—S. O. Tang, principal of the Consolidated school at Crookston, Clay county, gives some interesting information regarding the success of the school there in view of the experimental stage of such schools in Minnesota. As Eldred, Polk county, considers adopting the plan there is interest in the Comstock success.

The Comstock school is near the end of its fourth year. It is a four-room school and embraces three former districts, which consolidated and includes twenty-two sections of land.

The total enrollment the past year was 102, and the average attendance has been eight-one; a very high average for a district school. The pupils are brought in by four vans, the district furnishing the covered vans and a man and team for each costs the district $30 per month apiece. One team covers three miles and brings seven children, another three and one-quarter miles and brings eighteen, another travels four miles and brings twenty-two, and the fourth has a five-mile drive and brings eighteen, or sixty-five all told are hauled in and the balance live in the village.

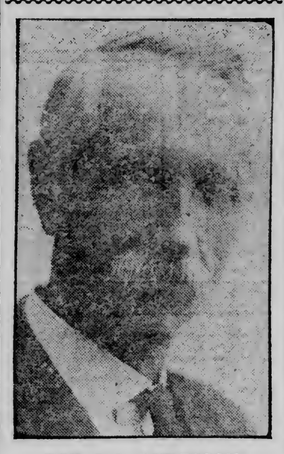
Late Only Three Times.

During the entire year only on three occasions have any of the vans arrived with the children late, and on but one day have they failed to run, that ommission being caused by the sand storm two weeks ago, when the wind blew such a gale that ordinary wagons were over turned and the district would not send the vans out. Every other day, cold or snow, rain or shine the vans have made the trips and brought the children to school in comfort, not a single child having been frost-bitten or made complaints of the cold.

The school does the first year of high school work, has four teachers, a class in practical agriculture, does seed treating and this spring tested fifteen samples, making the boxes in the manual training department, and have taken up the rudiments of crop rotation, milk testing, tile drainage and other practical work, the seed testing being specially valuable this year. Plain sewing is taught such as apron making, darning, etc., and domestic science will be taken up on a broader scale later as the rapid development of the school demands.

This school draws $2,100 special state aid, and $600 graded school aid, making a total of $2,700 from the state. The patrons of the school are well pleased and the students enthusiastic and doing splendid work. Principal Tang investigated the septic tank at the Crookston School of Agriculture and one will be installed at Comstock this spring.

HILLSBORO, N. D., MAYOR IS PREACHER-SOCIALIST



REV. J. L. ANDERSON.

MUSIC FESTIVAL AT STATE NORMAL

Valley City, N. D., Institution to Be Scene of Fine Entertainment.

Valley City, N. D., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state normal school here has the distinction of promoting the greatest musical event of the state, the music festival which is to be held this year on the first three days in June. The Minneapolis Symphony orchestra will be the great attraction.

The festival will open on the evening of Saturday, June 1, with the presentation of the comic opera, "The Mikado," given by the Choral society, with a membership of 100 trained voices, under the direction of Dean Goodsell of the conservatory of music. On the following afternoon, Sunday, June 2, there will be the rendition of the grand oratorio of Handel, "The Messiah." On Monday afternoon the Minneapolis orchestra will give a symphony concert and in the evening will give an operatic concert.

President McFarland is making an effort to have this festival surpass anything of the kind ever given in the Northwest.

The demand for speakers from the normal school is rapidly increasing and it is difficult at times to fill all the requests that come to the office of President McFarland.

There is scarcely a community in the state which has not at some time desired orators for special occasions, such as civic improvement meetings, Fourth of July addresses, local fairs, school meetings, etc.

FORM COMPANY TO BUILD WAREHOUSES

Verndale Concern to Build Storage Places for Grain and Roots.

Staples, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—B. H. Pettit & Sons of Verndale have incorporated to erect warehouses for the storing of grain, potatoes, and other farm produce. They are contempating the erection of storehouses in Verndale, Motley, Aldrich and Staples.

Mr. Pettit has been in the grain business for some time but finding that this locality was better fitted for the raising of tubers he has aided in their introduction and also in the betterment of the dairying in this district. Seeing that the country would need warehouses for the storage of their crops he has secured locations for his warehouses and will have them completed for the storing of the fall crop.

Some Recent Land Sales.

Attorney C. Rosenmeir and Sheriff F. Armstrong were in Motley recently to sell a piece of land laying in Morrison county. The land was sold for $6.25 per acre, the lowest price that has ever been received for land in this section. As it has to be accepted by the court before final transfer it is expected that the sale will not be consummated.

Other sales of property have been reported during the last week. W. E. Little buys a part interest in the Motley Store company and will devote his time to the enlarging and betterment of that trade. J. K. Hudgeson and Ed Rogers, both of Estevan, Sask., Canada, bought property in the village of Motley and intend to make that their home for the future.

IN TAWNEY'S DISTRICT.

La Follette Campaigners Are Invading First Minnesota.

Rochester, Minn., May 8.—La Follette campaign speakers from Wisconsin have invaded this, the First congressional district of Minntsota, ex-Congressman Tawney's old district, and are making a hot campaign for the Wisconsin senator for president. Governor McGovern and Lieutenant Governor Morrison will be in Winona today and they are expected to speak in Rochester Thursday. Charles Ingram, candidate for secretary of state of Wisconsin, spoke in Le Roy Monday, Plainview Wednesday, and Spring Valley Friday. H. P. Lehner, candidate for attorney general of Wisconsin, in Dodge Center, Tuesday, Owatonna Wednesday, and Hayfield Thursday. Senator John Blaine of Boscobel will be in Stewartville Wednesday and Mabel Thursday. Charles Schweazer and Lieutenant Governor Morrison also will visit the southeast corner of the district.

Speaker Charles A. Ingram of the Wisconsin legislature opened the campaign for La Follette delegates at Leroy in an address Monday night.

"When one man like Charles E. Merriam of Chicago, refused to desert La Follette, can by slender aid carry on a fight in Lorimerized Illinois and secure 43,000 votes for La Follette, what can be done in the progressive state of Minnesota?" said Speaker Ingram. "Within the past two years this state has retired Congressman Tawney because his political principles were antagonistic to the progressive ideas. I am fully convinced after going over the situation that the people of Southern Minnesota favor La Follette for president and the vote would be tremendous were they given an opportunity to express it by popular choice. Hampered as you are by the caucus system and confronted by the record of this progressive national leader, I think the state can be carried for him if every man does his duty."

SISTER, consider the humble ice-box. Brother, reflect how your ice-box provides better shelter for your cold beans and hash than your house furnishes your family!

The walls of an ice-box must keep the outside heat from the interior cold. But, don't forget that they would keep the heat and cold apart just as effectively if the heat were inside and the cold outside. Heat and cold are merely opposite poles of the same natural appearance. Just like white and black, they are both governed by the same natural laws.

In building an ice-box, these natural laws must be met scientifically. That's why the best refrigerators are built with walls lined with

LINOFELT

Linofelt does meet scientifically the laws governing heat-and-cold insulation, and it does so better than any other material capable of use in building. E. g., in stopping the passage of heat or cold quarter-inch Linofelt is much more effective than 38 thicknesses of building-paper.

Linofelt is made of the fibrous stalks of the flax plant, treated by secret processes and steam-cooked in chemicals. They are then batted and stitched into a quilt between two sheets of building-paper. For general building purposes it comes one-quarter inch thick, in rolls 200 feet long and 3 feet wide.

Used in the walls of your house instead of building-paper, Linofelt will save 40 per cent of your fuel bills every winter. Obviously, therefore, Linofelt will also keep your house amazingly cool in summer.

These figures are from hundreds of actual tests. Every day more and more people are showing the same regard for their family's health and comfort that they do for hash and beans in their ice-boxes. Linofelt costs so little and gives so much!

There's a way to get much of its benefit in your present house today. Call up our local agents and ask how. Do it now, and also write us for vitally important and interesting information.

CLASH OVER MARYLAND

Taft and Roosevelt Headquarters Indulge in Bitter Repartee.

Dixon Uses "Lie" and "Liar" Freely Regarding Charges of Fraud.

Washington, May 8.—The Taft and Roosevelt national headquarters have clashed over the Maryland primary result. The word "lie" was freely used by Senator Dixon, head of the Roosevelt committee. The Taft headquarters put out a statement on the Maryland results, part of which follows:

"More than half of Mr. Roosevelt's entire delegate vote came from the city and county of Baltimore, where it is stated the Roosevelt managers placed $10,000 among their workers at an early hour Monday."

Another part said:

"In Prince George county, which definitely decided the contest so far as present returns indicate, Roosevelt money in large amounts was poured into the county. Large rolls of small bills, accompanied by checks to be used if needed, were sent out from Washington on Sunday, at least one well-known leader in the district having voluntarily exhibited such a 'roll' in Washington on Sunday afternoon."

Exchange of Charges.

This statement was duly delivered in the Roosevelt headquarters, the rival organizations having an amicable arrangement whereby they exchanged daily bulletins and statements. Here is Senator Dixon's answer:

"Every one of these statements is a deliberate, wilful lie. Every man connected with their circulation is a deliberate, wilful liar. These lies are circulated for a purpose, and for the only purpose possible for which liars always lie."

President Taft's managers stated that the president is entitled and will receive the votes of four of the delegates from the state of Maryland.

The presidential primary in that state gave Col. Roosevelt apparent control of the state convention which is to select Maryland's entire delegation of sixteen to Chicago, and reports from Maryland have indicated that the delegation will be solid for Roosevelt.

Protest Solid Delegation.

The Taft managers claim that the naming of a solid Roosevelt delegation by the state convention would defeat the expressed preference of the electors of the two districts. It is understood this point will be pressed and the national committee asked to rule upon it unless four delegates are given to the president.

Maryland Very Close.

Baltimore, Md., March 8.—The closeness of the struggle between President Taft and Theodore Roosevelt for Maryland's sixteen votes in the national convention was emphasized when complete returns from Monday's primaries showed the result depended on one county, which on the face of the returns gave Roosevelt a majority of but eighty votes. Putting this county (Howard) in the Roosevelt column gave him sixty-six delegates to the state convention, just one more than a majority. The three Howard county delegates, counted for Taft, would give him the primary victory by the same margin.

Complete unofficial returns have been received by the state Roosevelt committee, and all the Baltimore newspapers agreed to giving Col. Roosevelt a majority in Howard county of eighty votes, but Taft leaders were unwilling to concede that their opponents has won.

Taft Men at Heart?

Another feature of the day was the development of the possibility that the individual delegates elected to the state convention would include a majority of Taft men, even though their instructions by the county preference vote might bind them to vote for Roosevelt delegates to the national convention. The Taft leaders made this claim. It was pointed out that President Taft's friends might control the convention, force the adoption of a conservative platform, and send a delegation to Chicago which would be ready to abandon Roosevelt as soon as they considered they had fulfilled their legal duties by voting for him on the first ballot. None of the leaders, however, made such prophesies.

A statement by Representative McKinley, manager of the Taft campaign, that the rules of the Republican national committee entitled the people of the First and Fifth congressional districts to Taft delegates in the national convention, since they had declared for the president in their preference vote, brought this reply from Col. F. C. Carrington, chairman of the Roosevelt committee:

"The call of the national convention must be subject to the law of Maryland, which provides that a majority of votes in the state convention entitles the candidate having such majority to the entire sixteen delegates from Maryland."

Democratic Situation.

No change developed in the Democratic situation, except to insure Speaker Clark several delegates from Selby county. The Clark men have enough votes to control the state convention. The county preferential vote bound 81 delegates to Clark, 44 to Wilson and 4 to Harmon.

Brewery Workers Strike.

Kansas City, Mo., May 8.—Fourteen hundred brewery workers constituting the Union employes of all the breweries and brawery agencies here went on strike following the failure of the brewery companies to grant demands for increased wages and a revised working schedule.

RICHESON IS MORMON, SAYS WOMAN WHO LEFT CHURCH

Mrs. Louie E. Brittain Talks of Former Baptist Clergyman.

Says She Has Received Orders From Him as From an Elder.

Boston, May 8.—Clarence V. T. Richeson, under sentence of death for the murder of Avis Linnell, has been a Mormon elder and secretly connected with the Mormon organization for several years, although preaching from a Baptist pulpit, according to a sworn statement before William A. Thibodeau, an attorney and justice of the pence.

The author of the affidavit, Mrs. Louie E. Brittain, claims to have been formerly connected with the Mormon church and to have been a celestial wife of a New York man, who is at the head of the Mormon organization in the East.

In the statement Mrs. Brittain asserts that she has known Richeson for several years, first meeting him three years ago at a Mormon conference held on Staten Island, where she says the Baptist clergyman was recognized as one of the Mormon elders and was particularly active in the affairs of the conference.

Exchanged Secret Signs.

She has since seen him many times in and about Boston, and has given him the Mormon signs which were always answered, she claims. She says she attended a Mormon conference at Providence, R. I., a little over a year ago, at which Richeson was present, and that she received commands from him as a Mormon elder at a Boston gathering of the leaders of the church.

A short time ago Mrs. Brittain became converted from Mormonism, she says.

According to Attorney Thibodeau, Mrs. Brittain recently divulged to some of her close friends her knowledge of Richeson's alleged connection with the Mormon church, and was prevailed upon to make the facts known previous to the time set for his execution, as it was felt that the information, if withheld until after his death, would seem unfair.

Converted By Woman.

Mrs. Brittain has become known during the last few years to evangelical workers in and about Boston. In an interview she said that to the best of her belief, Richeson was converted to Mormonism while a student at William Jewell college in Liberty, Mo., from which he was expelled in 1889.

At that time Richeson became attached to a young woman who now makes her home in Salt Lake City. To this young woman is due Richeson's trend toward Mormonism, Mrs. Brittain declares.

The affidavit which was given out prior to the interview described some of the meetings at which she said she had seen Richeson, and concluded as follows:

"I have always considered Elder Richeson a member of the Mormon organization in good and perfect standing, and do to the present day, and believe that he is considered so by the Mormon organization.

"While it is not common, it is not unusual to find the more educated of the Mormon elders preaching in the pulpits of evangelical churches which baptize by immersion."

Denied at Salt Lake City.

Salt Lake City, Utah, C. W. Penrose, second counsellor to Joseph F. Smith, president of the Mormon church, denied tonight that Clarence V. T. Richeson was in any way affiliated with the Mormon church. According to Counsellor Penrose, the story given out by Mrs. L E. Brittain is false in every respect.

NOW HAS SEVEN BRANCH HOUSES

Duluth Jobbing Firm Rapidly Extending Its Western Territory.

R. A. Horr, general manager and treasurer of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company, has returned from Grand Forks, N. D., where he has been making arrangements for the opening of a new branch house of the company.

Mr. Horr was in attendance at a recent meeting of the Grand Forks city council, at which permission was granted to the company to run a spur track up through an alley to the branch house, thus making it possible to receive and ship goods without the expense of hauling by teams. The new branch house may be open about the middle of next month, and is almost certain to be open before July 1. It will be represented on the road by five or six traveling salesmen, and will be under the management of James E. Gamble, former manager of the same company's branch house at Butte. The company's quarters at Butte were recently destroyed by fire and the goods and business located at Butte were moved to Missoula, where the company has just opened a branch house under the management of A. W. Richards, a former traveling salesman of the Stone-Ordean-Wells force.

The company now has seven branch houses, three in North Dakota, at Grand Forks, Fargo and Minot, and four in Montana, at Missoula, Bozeman, Great Falls and Billings. A year and a half ago there were but three branch houses, at Billings, Minot and Bismarck.

BRYAN STAMPEDE FAILS TO CARRY

Washington Democratic Convention Declares for Clark.

Walla Walla, Wash., May 8.—When the delegates to the Democratic state convention were called upon yesterday afternoon to express their preference for president, a desperate attempt was made to stampede the convention for Bryan. The Clark men, however, stood firm and won out. When the vote finally was tabulated, it showed 455 for Clark, 125½ for Bryan, 106 for Wilson and 1½ for Harmon.

"KIMMEL" SAYS HE REMEMBERS

Claims Operation on Skull Has Restored Memory Lost Years Ago.

Chicago, May 8.—The man who says he is George Kimmel, whose skull recently was operated on by Chicago surgeons, declares he has lived a life which reminds him of the Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde of fiction. Kimmel said:

"If one remembers the story of Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde, he can understand my plight. After fourteen years of darkness, I have again regained my lost personality; my better nature has asserted itself. Can one understand the sorrow, the thoughts of those years bring to me? We all have ambitions. I had mine, and the realization that fourteen years have been wasted is discouraging.

Remembers Every Detail.

"I now remember every detail of the assault which changed my life. I know the names of my assailants. Their attacks had been carefully planned.

"I was slugged on Sixteenth street, St. Louis, in July, 1898, after having been taken there and drugged, from the Midland hotel, Kansas City.

"I had $520 in the American National bank at Kansas City. One of my enemies telephoned in my name and had the money taken to the Midland hotel. Since this operation I remember counting that money when it was given me by the cashier. I now remember dropping a coin as I counted. This was picked up by the cashier and returned to me.

"Another fact that came back to me since the operation is my relation to Niles, Mich., in 1894, where I became cashier of the First National bank, taking the place of George Howard, who was believed to have been drowned in a lake near the city."

Will Talk at Suit.

Kimmel said the names of the three men who he says slugged him and caused him to lose his memory will not be told until the mother of George Kimmel, who brands the man as an imposter, begins a case in St. Louis this motnh for the recovery of $25,000 from an insurance company in which she says her dead son held a policy.

Opposes Nicaragua Loan.

Washington, May 8.—A protest against the ratification of the Nicaraguan loan convention has been filed with the senate by Nicaragua at New Orleans, in behalf of the exiled chiefs of the Nicaraguan Liberal party. The Nicaraguan loan pact and the Honduran loan convention are expected to be considered by the senate committee on foreign relations today. Some senators are opposing them.

S.S.S. CURES BLOOD POISON

When the blood becomes infected with the virus of Contagious Blood Poison, the symptoms are soon manifested. The mouth and throat ulcerate, copper-colored spots appear, a red rash breaks out, the hair begins to come out, and usually sores and ulcers show themselves on different parts of the body. At the first sign of the disease S. S. S. should be taken, for the trouble is too powerful and dangerous to trifle with. If allowed to run on the tendency is to work down and attack the bones and nerves, and sometimes it makes a complete physical wreck of the sufferer. The disease can make no such headway if S. S. S. is commenced and used according to directions; its progress can be stopped, the poison removed, and health preserved. S. S. S. goes into the blood and removes the insidious virus, cleanses the circulation and makes a complete and permanent cure by driving out the cause. S. S. S. quickly takes effect on the blood, and gradually the symptoms disappear, the health is improved, the skin cleared of all spots, sores and blemishes, and when S. S. S. has thoroughly purified the circulation no trace of the disease is left. S. S. S., a purely vegetable remedy, cures Contagious Blood Poison because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers, tested and proven for more than forty years. Home treatment book and any medical advice free to all who write.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

BRUCE'S COLUMN

COMMENT AND DIVERS DISCUSSION OF THE MERRY WORLD OF SPORT.

FAME is a thing fleeting and more difficult to catch than the meaning of a political oration. It is also relative—there is fleeting and flitting fame, which is generally grabbed off by suffragettes, cotillion leaders, kidnapers, elopers and society leaders who have invented a new dance or lost their diamonds; and then there is the strong and flaring fame, which is generally usurped by champion prize fighters, bridge jumpers, race horses, good cigars and baseball players. There are a few of the baseball players that have grabbed off enough of the fame stuff to last them down through the ages. There is Uncle Cy Young, whom the rural rules of health hunting have preserved down through the lane of baseball years. There is Ty Cobb and there is Christy Mathewson, with a shooting dart of fame as a chess player—and there is Walter Johnson, one of the latest and most successful to come under the scrutiny of the fierce blue light of fame.

As we started out to say, fame is relative. One might say that Darby O'Brien is famous. Two fans came all the way from Proctor last season to see him play. Kid Paul is famous in a small way, and the same goes for Chauncey.

Jack Johnson walked into a shoe store in Chicago the other day and 5,000 people crowded around the outside to get a glimpse of the champion. Every time Alexander the Great, he of old, started on a hike the people of the intended visit moved in a hurry and a straight line. Both of these men belong to the major league of the fame guild.

But one of the greatest tributes of true fame has come to Walter Johnson. Two fans traveled all the way from Asheville, N. C., to Washington, D. C., to see Walter Johnson pitch. The fanatics remained in Washington but the one day and then departed.

Ah, but you have not heard all. Both of these fans were former politicians and used to riding on passes—and they both paid fares and duo respect to the anti-pass law and also a passing respect to the greatest heaver in the business.

If you have ever traveled on a pass and a smile and a small tip, you have come to the swift realization of the excruciating pain that parting with money for the purchase of railroad fares brings. But these men hesitated not at the ticket window, the long ride and the loss of lucre and sleep—they were bound with the thirst that fame brings, and they never stopped until they saw the Johnson boy doing the things that he does so well.

After this little test let us not doubt that Walter Johnson is in the true class of famous men.

THREE cheers and a tiger for Ad Wolgast by reason of his prompt and firm decision. Ad declares he is again ready for the ring and will fight any of the ready and ripe boys that are brought to the altar of his offering. His program is filled with headliners and for the next few months the champion of the world will be kept busy defeating men and getting the money that crenteth envious pleasures and splitting headaches.

Willie Ritchie comes Saturday and then follows Leach Cross. Rivers is in the follow stock and Joe Mandot, Jack Brittan and Packey McFarland are also boys that the little champion has selected as men that he is quite capable of subduing.

Wolgast was a great fighter with his appendix, without it there is the question of speculation that is creating so much interest in the first appearance of the champion in a real ring engagement. As the Ritchie boy and the Leach Cross chap are real battlers, branded with the prospective championship mark, some idea of the condition of little Adolph will be gleaned from the meetings.

AS AN echo of the wrestling season comes the news that Frank Gotch is matched to meet Americus on Memorial day. All of which goes to show that this retirement thing and the champion of the world are entirely at outs. It suggests also that Gotch is not willing to defend his title when there is any chance of his losing it. He has persistently refused to meet either Zbyszko or the Turk—and why? 'Cause Frank Gotch is pretty certain to lose the championship in the event of his meeting Mahmout—and there is also a mighty good chance that the mighty Pole will send the present king of the mat to the cleaners.

The Gotch line of mat action is not meeting with the approval of the sport lovers in the United States. Last winter at Kansas City, Gotch met Munroe, a cheese that was ripe and ready for the picking, and this match was supposed to be the last that the champion of the world was ever going to wrestle. With the finish of Munroe came the dramatic casting aside of the bath robe and the declaration of retirement.

If the master of Humboldt isn't willing to defend his title against the two best men in the grappling game, he should step down and out and not four-flush it. He has been a great wrestler this Gitch; but if he is going to stay in the game he should be willing to give the public the chance to see whether he is still the champion of them all.

THE REV. KID WEDGE, a former fighter, but now a minister of the gospel, recently boxed with Jim Flynn at Hot Springs. Some of the other ministers throughout the country are abusing the game of boxing and are also doing their very utmost to stop the game. The Rev. Kid Wedge comes to bat with the assertion that a man can be a fighter and also a Christian. He may the entering wedge in the new alignment on this idea of muscular christianity, which, by the way, is an excellent one. The pale brother with the hollow chest and dark brown eye is not one to lead the flock.

CHICAGO WILL HOLD POWER BOAT REGATTA

Chicago, May 8.—The William Wrigley, Jr., trophy for the power boat championship of the world represents over $22,000. It is a perpetual trophy to be won each year by the club whose motor speed boat entry makes the best three out of five races in competition open to the world, free for all boats under 40 feet in length.

The William Wrigley, Jr., trophy is a reproduction of the famous "Flying Mercury," modeled by Giovanni da Bologna. The position of the figure is changed to show Mercury presenting to Neptune a hydroplane motor speed boat, also in sterling silver. Neptune with his trident, dolphins and water surrounding are in bronze. The pedestal, which is round in shape, is of green marble with a bronze shield carrying the name of the trophy. The figure of Mercury and the model speed boat contain 1,000 ounces of sterling silver. The trophy stands 5 feet 5 inches high. The base is 47 inches in diameter.

In addition to the original gift of $5,000 for this trophy, Mr. Wrigley will provide annually a trophy for the man whose boat wins the race. This annual trophy will be a replica of the big $5,000 trophy and becomes the personal property of each year's event. To provide this trophy annually will require an endowment of about $47,500, thus giving Mr. Wrigley's trophy a value of about $22,000. In addition to these prizes are a $1,500 cash prize for the winner and a $500 second prize for the second boat.

The first races will be held off Chicago during the water carnival and naval review, Aug. 10 to 17, inclusive, 1912. It is expected that there will be boats from Europe, from the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, from the Mississippi and Illinois rivers and two or more local entries. One of these is the new 24-cylinder hydroplane which James A Pugh is having built by Weckler.

Water carnival week will include the other races in the fourth annual regatta of the Western Power Boat association, the international yacht race between the Royal Canadian Yacht club of Toronto and the Chicago Yacht club, the Lipton cup race, Venetian night, parades, fireworks displays, naval battles, swimming and diving contests, and exhibitions by United States sailors, marine corps, revenue cutter service, life saving service, North Chicago naval training station and Illinois naval reserves.

CUBS HAVE LITTLE TROUBLE WITH BOSTON.

WOLGAST LOOKS IN GOOD SHAPE

Los Angeles, Cal., May 8. — After seven days spent in the mountains around Wheeler Springs, Lightweight Champion Ad Wolgast has returned to the city with a stubby chin and with the information that he is in as good physical condition as before his unpleasant hospital experience.

"If the operation for appendicitis weakened me any, I have been unable to find the soft spot," said the Cadillac boy. "I am perfectly satisfied with myself and am ready to get back to the old ring grind again."

According to Wolgast's plans, the champion will be kept busy from now on until the Christmas holidays. Monday night he leaves for San Francisco to start training for his fourround bout with Willie Ritchie, May 11. He will train at the Seal Rock resort.

After the Ritchie try-out Ad will travel to New York where he states that he is billed to box a short go with Leach Cross. The champion then will come back across the continent by the fastest train to get in harness for his July 4 brush with Mexican Joe Rivers.

Ad names Mandot and Britton as two men he will meet in San Francisco, saying that Britton will be given the Labor day date. The fact may explain why Promoter Jim Coffroth took the loss of the July 4 date so cheerfully.

Third Baseman Farmed.

Cincinnati, May 8.—Rafael Almeida, Cuban third baseman of the Cincinnati National league club, was transferred today to the Birmingham club of the Southern league. He failed to report at the proper time or in proper condition, according to President Garry Herrmann and did not round into form. He can be recalled at the end of the season.

Wolgast Training.

San Francisco, May 8.—Ad Wolgast arrived here today to prepare for his bout with Wallie Richie here Saturday.

A TIGER RECRUIT WHO SHOWS FORM

JACK ONSLOW.

CLIFF THORBURN IS STROKING THE EIGHT

Ten Eyck Experimenting With Makeup of Crew—St. Paul Veterans Have Returned.

Young Cliff Thorburn, the sinewy youngster with the Henry Clay head, has been put in at stroke of the Duluth Boat club crew for the time being, Thompson, the junior eight pace maker of last season and the season before that, being set back in the boat. Whether this arrangement is permanent, not even the coach of the crew can say.

Thorburn may be used as stroke of the junior four. Ten Eyck is mixing 'em up and out of the shakeups of the crew will come the order in which the men are to be rowed throughout the season.

Mahan and Hare are coming later. Mahan is pretty sure of a seat in the eight—as for Hare—well he will have to go out and fight for the position. With the coming of Mahan, Thompson may go back into the stroke position and Thorburn over to the junior four.

It might be casually noticed that St. Paul has called and the men have come. They have a habit of answering the call down in the Saintly City. Art French, one of the best sweep men that the Minnesota Boat club ever developed, is at present stroking the senior eight, and Charley Foster, considered the best man in the senior eight at Kenora, two years ago, is also with the veteran bunch. Jack Ordway is also back, and so is Ned Stringer, Hoke Davis and Jefferson.

St. Paul and Duluth are proceeding on identical lines. Ten Eyck and Langford are both using the long stroke and developing blade work and the body swing. St. Paul has been going as low as 25 strokes per minute, and here Jimmy is getting the body onto the sweep and is paying particular attention to clean blade work.

Last night the men were able to get out and have one of the best rows of the season. Trips of something like eight miles have been the program of the last two nights. With the debut of the sun the rows will be lengthened.

Rumors from Winnipeg state that the club at the Peg has acquired by importation an Australian sculler, a chap who held some sort of championship in the antipodes. If rumor runs rightly, this lad with Culver will make two very strong singles—if Culver doesn't cross the water for the Olympic games.

Right at the present time Ten Eyck has practically all his veterans in the eight. There are Thorburn, Kent, Lathrop, Thompson, Sole, Quimby—these with some of the new men alternating in the boat, making up the first eight for the time being.

With the coming of nice weather—where have some of us heard that expression before?—the new shell will be taken out and some of the kinks shaken out of her. They are thinking seriously of calling the new eight "Betsy," but the initiation and name are two events left to the future.

I might be that Jimmy will make two fours out of his eight. But it is early as yet to even speculate upon the makeup of the junior four or fours. Much depends upon the development of the new men. Several are showing up in promising form and one or two regulars may be developed from the candidates

With the lengthening of the days of May and the coming of the semi-canine days of June, interest in the progress of the crew is bound to increase. This should be Duluth's year. While again it must be said that it is early, some of the ultra enthusiastic are already talking of the big delegation that will go to St. Paul to attend the annual regatta of the Northwestern International Rowing clubs

FEW SPRINTERS IN THE COLLEGES

American Track Team Must Depend on Athletic Club Material.

New York, May 8.—This year's crop of college sprinters is so far below the average that members of the Olympic games team say they will have to depend almost entirely on the athletic clubs for capable short distance athletes to represent the United States. This opinion is based partly on the performances at the Pennsylvania relay carnival a week ago, when it is said the poorest lot of sprinters seen at a big college meet in recent years faced the starter.

The chief hopes of the college contingent will be placed on Marshall of Pennsylvania. Carey of the United States Military academy, Wasson of Notre Dame, and Wilson of Coe college. Carey may be unable to make the journey to Sweden. He has run a century in 9 4-5 seconds on the track at Annapolis and is regarded as the best sprinter in the college world.

It is practically certain that one of the first selections for the Olympic broad jump will be Gutterson of the University of Vermont, who is expected to clear twenty-five feet under favorable conditions.

There will be no room on the Olympic team for pole vaulters who cannot clear the bar at twelve feet or better. Waggoner of Yale, Murphy of Illinois, Babcock of Columbia, the intercollegiate champion; Gardner of Yale, Colye of Chicago and Bellap and Scott of California are all good for nearly twelve feet pinches.

BASEBALL NOTES

Walter Johnson pitched twenty-five innings before he was scored on.

The Chicago White Sox have turned Catcher Tom Carney over to Sioux City.

The Naps have scheduled an exhibition game at Rochester on Friday, May 24.

Ed Walsh has already made a fair start toward leading all pitchers in the number of games pitched.

Pitcher Gaiser, returned to the New York Americans by Rochester, has been turned over to the Wilkesbarre club.

In spite of auto accidents, railroad wrecks and defeats, Hugh Jennings seems to be as frisky as ever on the coaching lines.

Ty Cobb and Crum Kahler have declared a vendetta. Cobb says the Nap pitcher purposely hit him with a pitched ball.

Jack Coombs was not so badly hurt after all and will be back in the game about as soon as Jack Lapp recovers to receive him.

Manager Davis is repeating, "I love you, I love you not," as he considers Jack Graney and Heinie Butcher, his pair of left fielders.

They do say in Cleveland that Lefty George is a warm weather pitcher and will not be started again until the weather begins to boil.

Cleveland has turned Catcher Bert Whaling back to Seattle. The Naps are left with four catchers, Easterly, O'Neill, Livingston and Adams.

Detroit started the season with two record breaking crowds. But the live question is, will the fans keep it up in the light of recent events.

Dan Moeller of Washington is one player who can prove that he can come back. On his second trial in fast company he is playing good ball in Washington.

Roy Hartzel is pretty lucky to come out of his collision with Bert Daniels with nothing more than a headache. It was feared for awhile that he was done for.

The American league is going up. The offices of President Johnson have been moved from the thirteenth to the fifteenth floor of the Fisher building in Chicago.

"The Athletics lost thirty games when Jack Coombs was injured," says a Philadelphia writer. But Coombs will be back quicker than he could have pitched his thirty.

Manager Davis of Cleveland is evidently going to take a leaf out of his former manager's book. He has already signed Capt. Nash of the Brown university team.

There is a pitcher on the St. Louis Browns who will delight in beating Washington. He is Elmer Brown, who had a trial under Griffith at Cincinnati and was declared no good.

Cleveland has sent Dick Talbot, product of the Ohio city" sand lots, to Toledo. He was a catcher and made over into an outfielder and will go into the outer garden for Hartzel.

It was a big blow to Wolverton when Harry Wolter was injured. Wolter was playing good ball all around. His hitting and base running was the feature of the team's work up to the time he was put out of the game.

Oscar Vitt, the youngster pick-up by Jennings last fall for the infield, is versatile. He has never played anywhere but in the infield, but Jennings sent him to the outfield on account of his great hitting, and he is proving a sensation.

George McBride's record for practically continuous work was spoiled when President Johnson gave him a suspension. Manager Griffith says McBride was not the man to blame and that Dixie Walker should have drawn the penalty.

Jack Lapp, Coombs' catcher, was sick at the time of the opening of the season, but put in as much time in practice as any member of the world's champions. He played in the opening game. That night he was stricken and was taken to his home.

The St. Louis Browns have sent First Baseman Tom Tennant back to San Francisco and Pitcher Fred Spencer to Quincy. Neither had much opportunity to show, but Manager Wallace is so well supplied that he could not use anything but a world-beater.

On the very same day Lefty George was getting another disastrous bumping, it was announced at Cleveland that Hohnhorst would not do at first base and that either Davis or Lajoie would have to take up the burden. And thus did the Stovall-George trade bob up as a mockery.

Manager Wolverton recalls Shortstop Martin from Rochester to escape the rule that a player can not be farmed out two years in a row, but he can also find use for him. It is said that the Boston Nationals' offer of $4,000 for the player led to a decision in the matter.

Although Owen Bush, shortstop of the Tigers did not go South with the team this year because he was a holdout, he kept himself in good shape. This he has proven a number of times to Manager Jennings since he signed on the opening day, by his great work.

Dunphy Is Re-Elected.

Little Falls, Minn., May 8.—Erwin Dunphy, the speedy guard of this year's high school basket ball team, undisputed interscholastic champions of Minnesota for the season of 1911-12, was elected captain by the members of the navy and gold to lead the team during the season of 1912-13. During the season just closed Captain-elect Dunphy established the feat of holding his opponents to five field baskets, while he himself caged the wicker for ten field baskets. Capt. Dunphy will endeavor to lead his team through as successful a season as the one just closed, the team not once meeting defeat, winning eleven straight games.

DULUTH WINS IN THE MUD

O'Brien's Pilgrims Take Exhibition Game From Superior Aggregation.

Johnson Twirls Good Game for the Orator's Hopefuls.

Duluth won from Superior yesterday at Hislop park by the score of 8 to 2. The exhibition was staged in the mud before a thin line of shivering fans.

Johnson was on the rubber for the Sox and held the opposition to measly rations. Duluth had little trouble in flirting freely with the offerings of Rhoades and Jensen, which accounts for the accumulation of the run column.

Duluth scored two in the fourth when Meniece singled and scored on Leber's two-base swat. O'Brien hit by third and Leber came over the pan.

They were running in couplets, for two more ambled over in the eighth. In this joyous round Meniece and Leber singled when one only was dead. Sours went out at first and Meniece crossed the Rubicon. While the Superior players (location referred to) were rubbing their eyes and yawning, Leber sneaked over on the same play.

Blum tripled in the ninth. Erickson walked and was scored along with Blum on Johnson's double. Kuhn reached first on his infield hit and Johnson registered. McGraw skied and Meniece tripled.

Dunn doubled in Superior's eighth and was scored by Roy's single. With Olson plucked in the ninth Briggs beat out an infield infant, but was stopped at the platter by O'Brien's peg home of Heyzer's grounder. Francis singled, advancing Heyzer to third and Dunn's single brought in the run.

MARATHON MEN WILL NOT USE ANY OXYGEN.

New York, May 8.—Athletes expecting to gain Olympic honors in the Marathon race at Stockholm, Sweden, through the use of oxygen gas to help them drag their weary way to the finish have run up against a stone wall in the shape of a edict issued to the effect that competitors in the event will not be allowed to use a stimulant of this nature. Strict interpretation of the rules puts oxygen gas in the class of drugs against the use of which there is a mandate of the committee.

Entry Blanks in by May 30.

While few of the athletes representing the United States expected to use oxygen gas in the events in Sweden, according to the American committee, it is high time that they used even this if it will help them in getting their entries for the events. Entry blanks for the Olympiad went out some time ago with the request that they be returned by May 30. So far the signed blanks have not been returned as speedily as the committee hoped and efforts are being made now to drum up the athletes. Inasmuch as the entries must be in the hands of the committee by May 30 it devolves upon American athletes wishing to make the team to get in their names by the stipulated date.

Despite the laxity of athletes in turning their entry blanks over to the committee, many are making arrangements to compete in the Pentathlon tryouts at Celtic park on May 18.

Glen S. Warner, trainer of the Carlisle Indian school, is priming Jim Thorpe, the Sac and Fox Indian youth from Oklahoma, for this particular competition, and has forwarded his entry blank to Secretary Sullivan. Lawson Robertson probably will send Jack Eller in this competition.

TIGERS WILL STAY IN OWN BACKYARD.

Princeton, N. J., May 8.—Princeton will play only one football game away from home next fall, according to the 1912 schedule which was announced last night. In meeting the objection of the faculty to out-of-town trips, the only game arranged on foreign territory is the Harvard game at Cambridge on Nov. 2. Nine games in all are scheduled.

Among the other games scheduled are: Oct. 19, Syracuse at Princeton; Oct. 26, Dartmouth at Princeton; Nov. 9, New York university at Princeton; Nov. 16, Yale at Princeton.

McGOORTY KNOCKS OUT JIM HOWARD.

Indianapolis, May 8.—Eddie McGoorty knocked out Jimmy Howard of Chicago before the Empire A. C. in the seventh round here last night. Howard was out fought from the start and was saved by the bell in the first and second rounds of their scheduled 10-round bout. McGoorty was the aggressor and toyed with his opponent during the last five rounds.

Bresnahan Out.

ON THE IRON RANGES

BLIND PIGS ARE TO BE ATTACKED

Eveleth Council Now Considering Ordinance Aimed at Them.

Eveleth, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Legislation aimed at the practice of breweries doing business with blind-pigs was initiated here last night when an ordinance was introduced in the council forbidding wholesalers selling to any one not holding a regular retailer's liquor license was given its first reading. Heretofore the breweries have derived a large portion of their revenue from sales to blind-pigs. The ordinance is the same as now in force in Chisholm and in Mountain Iron, and which Judge Martin Hughes in a district court ruling declared constitutional.

CHISHOLM WANTS EDITORS.

Invites State Press Association to Visit Village.

Chisholm, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—An invitation has been sent to the Minnesota Editorial association to visit Chisholm during their three days' visit on the Mesaba range. Preparations will be made by the Commercial club to entertain the members of the association and their wives while here and every automobile owner in town has come forward offering the service of their cars to show the newspaper men over the mining district in this vicinity and if time permits will be taken to the Oliver clubhouse at Sturgeon and entertained there.

A similar program is being prepared for the entertainment of the annual outing of the Commercial clubs of the county at their meeting in this city early in June. Two days will be devoted to the outing and the party will be taken to the Pal Brown training quarters located at his home near Sturgeon lake. Pal may put on a little exhibition for the amusement of the visitors who have not seen the Northwoods reindeer in action, which will be preceded with a stag party "smoker" at the Oliver club.

CHISHOLM PLACES BAN ON GAMBLING

Card Sharps and Surething Men Have Been Ordered to Leave Village.

Chisholm, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council has placed a ban on gambling and have ordered out all gaming devices and notified the chief of police to stop card games for money.

A number of "unhorn" gamesters have made this city a rendezvous during the winter and the council has heard considerable complaint. Several warrants were issued but the gamblers got wind of the action of the council and decamped before the officers got a chance to serve them. Several places of questionable repute were also raided by the police and Susan Cunningham, the keeper, was kept in jail over Sunday in default of $200 bail. She told the police she would leave town and remain away if released and under that promise left on the noon train. Gladys Wilson and Maggie Robinson, two colored women, were also arrested by the police and they left town upon promise to remain away. These places were operated within the city proper and three other places will come under the hammer this week if they do not vacate.

HEAVY SHIPMENTS OF ORE EXPECTED

Vice President Kerr of Steel Corporation So Announces in Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vice President D. G. Kerr of the United States Steel corporation, in charge of ore production, who is visiting the mines of the Vermilion and Mesaba ranges with officials of the Oliver Iron Mining, Missabe and Iron Range railroads, are today in this vicinity looking over the properties. The party will be in the vicinity of Hibbing until sometime tomorrow. This morning the party are visiting some of the open pit properties.

Expects Big Shipments.

Yesterday the party looked over the Leonard, Monroe and other Chisholm properties. The tour began at Ely Monday and the officers have since visited the properties at Ely, Tower, Biwabik, Virginia, Eveleth, Gilbert and Chisholm. Vice President Kerr stated that he anticipated a larger ore business from the Lake Superior district this season than last. He was unable to state whether or not there would be an increased volume of ore shipped from the Hibbing district over that of last year. He also declined to discuss local matters at issue between Hibbing property holders and the mining companies, saying he had no knowledge of them and that statements concerning them should come from local people in possession of full information concerning the facts.

BULL ATTACKS RED FLAG.

Animal True to Tradition, Goes After Socialistic Emblem.

Spina, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The well known enmity of a bull for anything red in color is no longer a tradition here, as a healthy specimen of the male bovine tried to tear a discarded Socialist emblem to pieces with his horns. After the May day celebration the red flags used by the Socialists was thrown behind the building where it had been flaunted with the stars and stripes. A bull grazing nearby was attracted by its fluttering as it arose and fell with the wind and bull-like, he went at it head down, catching the carmine emblem on his horns and tossing it about to the delight of a crowd attracted by the strange sight. The crowd egged him on until the animal finally gave up the battle and retired.

BUY THEATER BUILDING.

Elks of Hibbing to Acquire Healy Property for Home.

Hibbing, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local Elks have practically closed a deal for the purchase of the Healy theater, which was damaged by fire several months ago, for an Elks' home. Several sites were offered.

The sites voted upon were the McHardy corner at Lincoln and Third, the Snyder corner at Washington and Third, the Riley property on Third, the Ryan corner at Third and Sellers, the Cobb corner at Superior and Third, the Longyear property at Superior and Third, the O'Rourke property on Center street between Second and Third, and the Healy theater property. The prices asked for the various sites ranged from $19,000 to $8,000.

Th Healy theater building is to be remodeled. The four walls were left standing when the structure was burned last January. It is probable that the next step will be to secure the organization of an Elks' Home association.

ANOTHER MINE SHIPPING.

Buffalo-Susquehanna Starts Sending Down Stockpiled Ore.

Hibbing, Minn., May 8. — (Special to The Herald.)—Ore shipments were begun from the stockpiles of the Buffalo-Susquehanna mine this morning. The mine has about 75,000 tons in the stockpiles, the greater part of which will be handled to the Head of the Lakes this season. It is also expected it will be shipping from the open pit before the close of the season. Another steam shovel was started yesterday at the Stevenson pit and shovels are now working at the Utica and Albany. Approximately 200 men have been put at work in these properties since the first of the week.

Ely, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth & Iron Range railroad has practically added another train to its Ely service. The addition has been made by attaching a passenger coach to the through freight between here and Duluth. A person can leave here late in the evening and reach Duluth about 5 the next morning, and can leave Duluth about 11:30, arriving here at 8 the next morning. It has in the past required at least one-half a working day to go either way between here and Duluth. The new arrangement has just gone into operation.

TOWER REQUIRES BETTER SCHOOLS

So Declares State Inspector of Graded Schools to Commercial Club.

Tower, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. A. Challman, state inspector of graded schools addressing the commercial club Monday evening, urged better school facilities in this city, as the schools have now quite outgrown the school accommodations. He stated a new, modern building of twelve rooms with necessary plumbing and heating could be built for $40,000, the necessary sum to be raised by bonding. He stated Tower was the only town on the range not provided with adequate facilities. He recommended the introducing of manual training and domestic science courses and gave estimates of the probable list of equipment.

Want Auto Speed Limit.

The following resolution was adopted: Resolved, That it is the sense of this body that the city council adopt a suitable ordinance that will limit the speed of automobiles to the speed of not to exceed seven miles per hour, within the city limits."

The secretary was instructed to send a copy of the same to the city council.

The younger element of the club, thinking some social feature would be an incentive for other young business men to join, secured the passage of the motion that the club give a dance at an early date. The chair appointed as a committee on same: Messrs. Lofgren, Olson, Swanson, Jeffrey, Fredrickson.

Considerable discussion of the needed changes to the city charter took place between those present, some of whom are members of the charter commission recently named by the judges of the district court. The meeting was one of the most interesting held for nearly a year.

GILBERT ORES BEING SHIPPED

Pettit and Genoa Mines Loading, One From Pile, Other From Pit.

Gilbert, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.) — The Pettit mine is now loading on from the stockpile with a steam shovel. The Genoa mine has two shovels loading on in the pit and is repairing a third for stock loading the stockpile at No. 4 shaft. Supt. H. J. Shuman has moved from Eveleth to the residence formerly occupied by Supt. A. J. Sullivan of the Genoa mine.

D. D. MORGAN IS CITY ATTORNEY

Former Duluth Attorney Is Elected to Guide Virginia City Officials.

Virginia, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—D. D. Morgan, formerly an attorney of Duluth, was last night elected city attorney by the city council and the long drawn-out squabble over this office has probably been adjusted. The council took this action after hearing from the committee of attorneys asked for advice upon the legality of the appointment of City Attorney Poirier, the report indorsing the action of the council in rescinding Mr. Poirier's appointment. After hearing and discussing the findings of the three attorneys, including an informal ruling from C. O. Baldwin of Duluth, who informally wrote Mr. Poirier to the effect that Mr. Poirier was appointed by the resolution which gave him seven votes and not by the vote which gave him four. He said Mr. Poirier was properly elected and legally entitled to hold the office.

The Report Was Adopted.

Speaking for the committee of three later, Mr. Pickering said the opinions of Mr. Baldwin expressed to Mr. Poirier on the latter's information were to be regarded in the same manner as expert testimony in a case in court and naturally would be in favor of the person who sought the testimony. The report of the committee of three was accepted and the council then proceeded to elect a city attorney without making nominations. On a first informal ballot the result was: D. D. Morgan, 4; Otto A. Poirier, 2; M. H. McMahon, 2; R. C. Pickering, 1. On a second informal ballot Mr. Morgan obtained 6 votes. On a third he had 4 votes with M. H. McMahon, 3. On the formal ballot, the fourth ballot taken, the result was: D. D. Morgan, 6; M. H. McMahon, 2; R. C. Pickering, 1. On the vote on the resolution the vote of the council was unanimous for Mr. Morgan.

To Proceed With Annexation.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable manner in which the proceedings for the annexing of a 1,280-acre tract was considered before the county board, the council decided to follow this up and carry out the annexation proceedings, even to contesting for the right to acquire the territory sought to be annexed by court proceedings. The bond of William E. Pratt, city treasurer, in the sum of $50,000 was accepted. By consent of the water and light committee the matter it has had in hand pertaining to questions with the Virginia Electric Power & Water company regarding extensions was referred to the whole council and the city clerk was authorized to call a meeting at a time when representatives of the Virginia Electric Power & Water company will meet the council.

SOME ARE ARRAIGNED.

Part of Participants in Street Fight Plead Not Guilty.

Virginia, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some of the twelve men arrested for participating in the street battle with knives, guns and rocks Sunday were arraigned in the police court yesterday afternoon. All pleaded not guilty. The charges were disorderly conduct and fighting. Probably the two who are hovering between life and death in the hospital would make better witnesses than any of the others, but they are not able to give testimony or make a complaint. All who are able to be taken into court will have a hearing Saturday. Dodockavich and Rojonovich, in the hospital, are holding their own, but are not out of danger.

GILBERT WANTS PARK.

Commercial Club Starts Ball Rolling in That Direction.

Gilbert, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—At an important meeting of the Commercial club it was proposed to establish a park between Ohio and Iowa avenues immediately below the grade school building. This ground is owned by the school district. The remainder of the block is owned by Keller Bros., Herman Bodas, the Oliver Iron Mining company and the Gilbert Townsite company. The Commercial club appointed the following committee to confer with the school board of District 18, relative to purchasing the necessary ground and converting it into a public park for the benefit of the school district and citizens of Gilbert and vicinity: Dr. Barrett, Calvin MacInnis, Dr. Rademacher and Alfred Hoel. They will take the matter up at the Monday afternoon meeting and there is every probability that the board will act favorably on the proposition. County Attorney Norton made a speech on the progress of the Commercial club and welfare of Gilbert and in favor of the park question.

The blind-pig cases are now resting. Three pleaded guilty, paid fines of $50 and costs, some have filed bonds for appeal to the district court in Virginia; eleven were fined $100 and costs and some were dismissed. The intention of the authorities is to root out this evil.

ARE GIVEN SWEATERS.

Gilbert, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.) — Three members of the high school graduating class were presented with sweaters in connection of their success in high school athletics. They were John Nolan, Harold Rutherford and Abraham Cohn. CHISHOLM BALL CLUB TO BE PUT IN FIELD.

Chisholm, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A number of business men held a meeting and organized to raise the necessary funds for an independent baseball team. A committee consisting of C. A. Monroe, Landlord O'Niel and Oscar Arneson were appointed by President Hayes of the Commercial club to solicit funds and look up a new site for the ball park. The present park is located quite a distance north of the city and too far for the patrons to reach without hiring conveyances and the sentiment expressed at the meeting was that if a site in the south portion between the city and mines could be acquired the attendance would make the ball team self sustaining. The committee viewed the several sites yesterday and the square immediately back of the Missabe depot east of Central avenue was decided upon. The land does not lay to an advantage as a ball park but with the assurance of funds the grounds can be filled in with dirt and made into a pretty fair park.

timore, and gave them binding instructions to "vote for Woodrow Wilson, as long as his name remains before the convention;" selected six electors at large, adopted their own platform, and ratified the selection of the "reorganizers" state committee in electing Mr. Guthrie state chairman.

The state ticket named is: Auditor general, Robert E Cresswell, Johnstown; state treasurer, William H. Berry, Delaware county; congressmen at large, George G. Shaw, Westmoreland; John Howdley, Allegheny; George R. McLean, Luzerne, and E. E. Greenwalt, Lancaster.

Initiative and Referendum.

The platform adopted includes indorsement of the initiative and referendum, but ignores the recall of judges or judicial decisions. It deplores "destruction of representative government through control of state and national legislation by agents of special interest."

It says that loose and dishonest constitutional interpretation has turned fundamental laws against proper regulation of corporate wealth, and that protective tariff has swollen the fortunes of a few.

"Three great issues," the platform declares, "overshadow all others—representative government must be restored, the judiciary must be restricted to its proper sphere; the evils of the tariff system must be corrected."

The work of the Democratic house is praised as having promoted economy in every branch of the government and paved the way for the election of United States senators by the people."

Criticize Taft Campaign.

"We share in the humiliation," says one plank, "which all feel at the spectacle of the chief magistrate of our country lowering the dignity of the office by indulging in a petty personal quarrel with his predecessor and withholding prosecution against great corporate interests."

It declares Roosevelt followed the same conduct in office as Taft, and states that the "recent events furnish conclusive reasons for an amendment to the Constitution making a president ineligible to succeed himself, as well as for legislation which will prevent any executive from employing the great power of his office to fasten on the country a successor of his choosing."

only way they can be reached is by motorboat. The government representatives have arranged to send a fleet of boats into that territory today.

Bars Stock Speculators.

Lieut. Weeks of the United States relief corps at Batchelor has given livestock speculators a hard blow. They have become so annoying in their effort to buy at low prices cattle brought in from the flooded country, that the officer has ordered the soldiers to keep all speculators off the levee.

New Territory Overflowed.

New Orleans, La., May 8.—This forenoon there had been no new breaches in the dikes, but the flood waters continued to flood over new territory. The current from the crevasse at Torras reached New Roads today and hundreds of people in territory which had been considered safe from the flood now are endangered. Couriers have been sent into the menaced country warning the people to flee.

The situation at New Orleans remained unchanged today. The river has risen four-tenths of a foot in the last twenty-four hours, and it is believed the crisis will be reached here within the next two days. Engineers say the levees guarding the city will hold.

ADVERTISING CLUB FORMED

Objects Are to Give Public Square Deal and Advertise City.

Dishonest Methods of Securing Publicity Will Be Attacked.

Advertising managers of seventeen of the principal business houses of Duluth met last evening at the Duluth Commercial club and rooms and organized the Duluth Advertising club. The purpose of this club is to study and put in practice the most up-to-date methods of advertising and to discourage, as far as possible all dishonest methods. An effort will be made to do away with all "fake" advertisements.

The gathering had a dinner early in the evening, after which the business meeting took place. The officers of the new club, all prominent business men of the city, are as follows: President, Charles H. Mackintosh; first vice president, F. L. Pritchett; second vice president, F. Seligman; third vice president, Alfred Moe; treasurer, C D. Steele; secretary, Alfred Hanchett; executive committee, W. B. Brinkman, H. D. Foster and F. J. O'Donnell.

The club will affiliate with the Associated Advertising Clubs of America. The model constitution suggested for advertising clubs by that federation was adopted. The annual membership fee was fixed at $3. Regular meetings will be held on the evenings of the first and third Tuesdays of each month and during the noon hour on the second and fourth Tuesdays.

At the evening meetings on the first Tuesday of each month regular programs will be followed, with set speeches on some chosen subject, suggested by the educational committee of the Associated Clubs. At the noonday luncheons there will be no set speeches, but each member of the club will be expected to make some contribution in the way of an idea that will be valuable to the club. Both the day and evening meetings will be held in one of the dining rooms of the Commercial club.

Aims Of the Club.

President Mackintosh, in outlining the purposes of the club, said in part:

"We must realize and make others realize that every published advertisement is in fact a signed contract sent by the advertiser to his customers. The customer may accept or decline, but when once the advertiser's side of the agreement has been published he can neither take from it nor add to it without the consent of the other party to the contract of the customer.

"Too often the published advertisement is regarded by the advertiser as his private bunco steerer. He thinks it his privilege to say anything at all so long as he pays for the space to say it in. 'Get the crowds,' he orders his ad man, 'honestly if possible, but get them,' and the salesman will do the rest. It will be one of our purposes to do all we can to make this viewpoint impossible and to purify the advertising of our city. We can approach the situation in three ways, first, by carefully editing our own copy and striking out all exaggerations; second, by bringing our united influence to bear on the advertising medium of the city, to compel a more careful scrutiny of copy before publication and the barring out of more objectionable offers; third, by demanding the enforcement of such laws as we have and by working for the enactment of new laws for the suppression of all forms of fraudulent advertising.

"Our publicity committee will pay special attention to this point and will keep us advertisers advised of all steps as they are taken."

The club was addressed by Maj. H. J. Eva, secretary of the Duluth Commercial club, who promised the full and hearty support of that body. He said the Advertising club could do a great deal for the Commercial club in the way of suggestions as to the best methods of advertising the city of Duluth.

The cordial co-operation of the press was vouched for by F. M. Webb of The Herald and J. R. Hamilton of the News Tribune.

H. C. Strong of the Northern Shoe company spoke at some length on "Fake Advertising." C. L. Pritchett of the Glass Block store, Alfred M. Moe of the John J. Moe & Sons company, Alfred Hanchett of the F. A. Patrick company and H. A. Earnshaw of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company also addressed the meeting.

The charter members of the club are as follows: Carroll D. Steele, advertising manager, French & Bassett, Charles Mackintosh, Clyde Iron Works; J. David Gidding, J. M. Gidding company; H. A. Earnshaw, Stone-Ordean-Wells; E. H. Whelan, F. S. Kelly company; Fred Bayha, Jr., Bayha & Co.; F. J. O'Donnell, Kenney & Anker; Harry W. Otto, Gowan-Peyton-Congdon company; C. L. RECALL, INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM ARE ADOPTED IN DULUTH precincts are in the Lake avenue district.

The First and the Seventh wards cast the largest vote for the amendment, the first giving it 1,294 votes and the seventh 1,068 votes. The third largest affirmative vote was in the Second ward, which gave it 693 votes. The Second also cast the largest vote against the amendment, with 240 against it. The Seventh was also second in the negative list, with 233 votes recorded against the amendment. The Eighth ward was strong for the change, 625 votes being cast for and 111 votes being cast against the proposition.

Voting Began Early.

The voting started shortly after the polls opened at 6 o'clock in the morning and continued steadily throughout the day, with the heaviest rush in the last three or four hours. Throughout the election was orderly, no disturbance of any kind being reported from any part of the city.

When the morning reports were learned the advocates of the amendment cast aside the last vestige of doubt as to its success. Their only fear had been that the voters would not turn out. They did so beyond their fondest expectations, registering one of the largest votes for a special election ever cast in the history of the city.

The only opposition to the amendment developed within the last two or three days. Before that it had been difficult to hear a single expression against it. Yesterday and the day before it is claimed that certain special interests put out some money in an effort to stem the tide. But if there was organized effort against its adoption it was swept aside like a chip in the face of a Mississippi flood.

Active Campaign.

The municipal ownership committee has been conducting an active, extensive and competent campaign for the adoption of the initiative, referendum and recall the last five or six weeks. Speakers furnished by the committee have addressed interested audiences in every section of Duluth. They have expounded their doctrine day and night, explaining its workings to the people and making clear to them the benefits that would result from incorporating the amendment in the charter. They have demonstrated its practicability by the results achieved in other municipalities in the United States, where in many instances the conditions were formerly much worse than in Duluth. In addition they have sent out thousands of pamphlets and letters which undoubtedly played an important part in the final result.

The men who took leading parts in the campaign were jubilant when they learned what the result was going to be. They crowded the office of the city clerk to get the returns as they came in from the various precincts. Where possible the figures were obtained over the telephone as soon as the election officials had finished their count. The analysis shows that the vote was about as expected, with the suburbs giving the amendment its greatest support and the downtown districts developing the greatest opposition.

W. E. McEwen, chairman of the committee which had charge of the campaign, said that the result exceeded his utmost hopes. He declares that the heavy majority in Duluth should have a decided effect throughout the state and that the next step will be to carry the campaign to the legislature in order that the doctrine may become a part of Minnesota's constitution. Others who were deeply interested in the proposition expressed similar views.

Mr. McEwen has been the active manager of the campaign. He sent out more than 2,000 personal letters, and he and his assistants mailed 10,000 copies of a speech by Dr. D. H. Day urging the passage of the amendment.

"I had a splendid organization to helpe me," said Mr. McEwen this morning. "I also want to thank The Herald for what it did. The Herald worked for the amendment in a sincere and able manner, without any restrictions. We never could have made the showing we did without the assistance of the papers. The Herald kept pounding away in its editorial and news columns, and was a big factor in keeping the issue before the people. Of course it simply did its duty as a public spirited paper, but it showed its heart was right by the way it did it."

Not in recent years have the people of Duluth been so interested in a special election. This interest was plainly evidenced this morning by the number of telephone calls received at The Herald office. Literally hundreds of telephone inquiries were received from people who had not called up the city clerk's office last evening and learned the outcome.

KANSAS REPUBLICANS ARE ALL LINED UP FOR COLONEL

ernor Stubbs in concluding his speech to the state Republican convention as permanent chairman.

"We are now facing," said the governor, "a political battle royal, the like of which this country has not witnessed in fifty years. Problems of greater import than any we have had to deal with since the Civil war are involved in the political campaign.

"Are we to have a republic for the classes, or for the masses? In this question is involved one of the greatest issues of the campaign.

No Middle Ground.

"In the nation-wide struggle now pending, there is no place for a straggler. He who is not for government by the people and for the people is for the political bosses and for the corporations, for this is a hand to hand battle and there is no middle ground for political cowards to occupy.

"So far as the people of this state are concerned, we must say for them here today that Kansas stands for the principle that the men and women who produce the wealth of this country are not only entitled to, but must have their full share of it.

"The great leader whose triumphant banners have come here today from nearly 100 counties in Kansas stands for these principles.

Roosevelt Trusted By People.

"Under his masterful leadership, a leadership founded upon experience and buttressed by the faith and confidence of the masses, he will not yield an inch until the deliberate voice of the American people becomes the supreme law of the land; until the Guggenheims, Lorimers, Penroses, Cranes and every other type of political bosses have been banished from the public service.

"The nation trusts this leader as no man has been trusted by the common people since the days of Abraham Lincoln."

The name of Dr. Jones has been mentioned in connection with the plan, which is being urged by negro delegates to the conference, of naming a bishop of their own race, and that of Dr. Butler of Mexico in connection with the possible naming of that city as a place of episcopal residence.

Court Plan Voted Down.

There will not be a final court of appeals of the Methodist Episcopal church.

This was decided at the business session, when, after more than five hours' debate, participated in by many leaders of the church, the conference rejected the first paragraph of the report of the commission on judicial procedure, appointed at the last session of the conference in Baltimore four years ago. What will be done with the remainder of the report will be decided later.

The first paragraph of the commission's report, which the conference eliminated consisted in the main of the sentence: "There shall be a final court of appeals." It was the great power granted to this proposed court to which most of the objection was made by the delegates, and church leaders say that the formation of a court of appeals with far less power than provided for by the commission may be the result of the present session of the conference.

Yesterday afternoon was given over to the hearing of the report of the work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society, addresses being made by Bishop Luther B. Wilson and Miss Jennie V. Hughes. A reception to the fraternal delegates of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, and Methodist Protestant church was held last night, addresses being made by Dr. Frank W. Thomas of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, and by Dr. Julius Soper, representative of the Methodist Episcopal church in Japan.

BULLETS FLY IN MINE FIGHT

in the central part of the town, and came as a result of a crowd attempting to prevent Supt. George W. Keiser of the Pine Hill Coal company from taking two men in his automobile to his colliery. Keiser had been coming to Minersville for several days and taking Thomas Parry, a repairman, and William Ward, a pumpman, to work in his car. This morning it was determined to prevent him from taking the men, and when Mr. Keiser called for his machine he was warned not to take it out and was practically held a prisoner.

Called State Police.

Chief Burgess Richard Levan, a veteran of the Civil war, addressed the crowd and demanded that they disperse, but no attention was paid to him. He thereupon requested the state police barracks at Pottsville to send a detail to Minersville. Three men who make daily patrol of that section arrived and shortly after were reinforced by four more from the Pottsville barracks.

Under their guard the automobile was taken from the garage and was being cranked when someone in the crowd threw a brick. It struck a policeman on the head.

This seemed to be the signal for an attack and immediately there came a shower of stones, followed by several pistol shots. The officers then fired a volley into the ground. The crowd paid no attention. The officers then turned their weapons into the crowd and commenced firing.

Hundred Shots Fired.

The shots were returned and a battle followed in which it is estimated a hundred shots were fired. As usual the firing resulted in the crowd dispersing, leaving four lying on the ground. David Davis was taken into the garage and physicians were summoned, who pronounced his wound fatal.

The three wounded foreigners were carried away by friends and taken to nearby saloons, where medical attention was also summoned. Little hope was expressed for two of them.

A detachment of Troop D, state troopers, stationed at Butler, arrived here early this morning and a detail of eighteen was sent to Minersville. These, with the seven members of Troop C, are patrolling the town and report that the lawless spirit is now under control.

Maj. John C. Groome of Philadelphia, superintendent of the street police, is here and is in command of the troops. In an interview he said:

"The situation as I find it is peaceful At present I have eighty-six additional well drilled men in Pottsville, besides Troop C. At Minersville this morning my men were compelled to shoot to protect both themselves and the men they were assisting. They now have the situation well in hand."

Fear Another Attack.

The state police left Minersville for the Pine Hill colliery near here, where an attack was feared on Supt. Keiser and the men working there. It is announced that when additional reinforcements arrive the entire foreign section of the town will be put under guard until a thorough search is made of every house and every foreigner is disarmed the head.

A pathetic incident of the shooting of David Davis is that his wife is seriously ill. When she learned of the shooting of her husband, who was merely an onlooker, she had a relapse. Neither is expected to survive the day. Davis was shot through the body. The bullet passed through both lungs.

One of the foreigners who will die has been in the country but two weeks.

MORE LIVES LOST THAN ON TITANIC

Infant Mortality Discussed at Meeting in Nashville, Tenn.

Nashville, Tenn., May 8.—The infant death roll in Richmond, New Orleans, Birmingham, Atlanta, Memphis and Charleston in 1910 was double the toll of the Titanic disaster, but there was no congressional inquiry, according to the declarations in a paper read before the Southern Sociological congress in session here today.

The paper was prepared by Miss Gertrude Knipp of Baltimore, secretary of the American Association for the Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality. The paper asserted that 40 per cent of the infant deaths in the country's registration are due to "bad air" and "bad food diseases."

Miss Jean Gordan of New Orleans, president of the Southern Conference on Woman and Child Labor, advocated state aid for the deserving mother, so her children might attend school.

WOMAN BOUGHT 232 PAIRS OF SHOES.

Cedar Rapids correspondence of the Shoe Retailer: Two hundred and thirty-two pairs of shoes sold to one woman customer and every pair fitted! That is what happened last week. Frank C. Harvey, manager of a shoe department, was having a sale of shoes at $1 a pair. The lot consisted of about 1,000 pairs of women's shoes, being a general cleanup of odds and ends and undesirable styles. At the same time Mr. Harvey had a special sale of fancy light colored satin sample shoes and slippers.

The first woman customer was waiting for the doors of the store to open on the morning of the sale. She told Manager Harvey she wished to see the satin shoes that were advertised. Mr. Harvey showed her to a seat and then pulled down the eight pairs of the $15 fancy shoes.

"Which do you admire," asked Manager Harvey, "I admire them all; try this one on," she said. Harvey did. "Pretty snug," he said. "Not a bit—I like them that way. I'll take that pair. Try this one on." And he did; and so on until the last of the eight pairs were tried on, "I'll take that one too," and that finished the sale of the fancies.

"Now," said Mr. Harvey when he had finished trying on the last pair of fancies, "we are having a sale on leather shoes at $1 a pair—wouldn't you like to see some of them?"

"Not now," said the woman, "I may be in later." Sure enough about 10 o'clock the woman returned for the dollar shoes. She tried on shoes for three hours and when she had finished that day she had thirty-two pairs picked out to be sent to her home.

The next day the woman returned and sat for several hours trying on the dollar shoes. Each day the same performance was repeated. In the eight sittings the woman had bought 232 pairs of the dollar shoes.

The sizes were from 3½C to 5½A, in all leathers, and in many shapes and styles. One can imagine what a collection of shoes the woman must have to pick out 232 pairs from odds and ends. Now can any one answer what the woman is going to do with the shoes? She is a prominent woman of Cedar Rapids.

A CUTTLEFISH INVASION.

Admiral Kimotsuki of the Japanese navy, who is sometimes called the Mahan of the Far East, has now changed his tactics, says the Oriental Review, and instead of attempting to create a sensation throughout the world with a big navy propaganda, proposes to invade the Chinese empire with cuttlefish from Japanese waters.

The total value of Jaan's exports is approximately 400,000,000 yen, while that of the exports of England, Germany, France, Russia or the United States considered separately is on the average 2,900,000,000 yen. Germany exports more than fifty items of merchandise, each amounting in value to more than $5,000,000, while Japan has no more than six exports of equal magnitude, silk being the most important of them.

The annual export of this product comprehends in value nearly one-third of Japan's total, and the value of all of her exports sea products about $5,000,000. More than a third of this comes from cuttlefish. As a small country, such as Japan, cannot reasonably hope to produce much more than it now does from its land resources, the admiral is urging his countreymen to turn their attention and energy to marine industries and particularly to use the long legged sea creature for a peace ful invasion of China.

The Chinese are the only people who buy dry cuttlefish from Japan, but they have a special fondness for this delicacy and cook it in various ways. There is, too, a Chinese tradition concerning the eating of this fish on certain festival days. Its consumers are limited at present to the towns and cities on the sea shore and along the rivers where shipment is easy, but railways will soon carry the fish to all parts of the Chinese empire, with its four hundred or more millions of people.

If every Chinese consumes one dried cuttlefish a month, or twelve equivalent in weight to one pound per annum, 400,000,000 pounds of that foodstuff would be required. The average price of the product, the admiral computes, being 13 cents per pound, 400,000,000 pounds, if exported, would bring at least $50,000,000 to Japan.

From this the admiral proceeds to examine the natural question as to whether there is a reasonable prospect of finding so many cuttlefish in Japanese waters. This question he answers in the affirmative, stateng that there is no part of the long coast lines of Japan, between Saghalien in the north and Formosa in the south, where cuttlefish is not found.

The waters of the small island of Oki alone produce $250,000 worth of the fish a year as a result of catching methods taught by the Japan Marine Industry association in 1885. It remains for the fishermen to learn that the product should not be sold to Chinese traders in Japanese ports, but that the Chinese markets should be investigated and extended by the Japanese themselves so that they can carry on a direct trade with the consumers, as do certain German merchants in China.

ASKED ABOUT LOST PAPERS

Witness in Steel Trust Inquiry Tells of Destroying Documents.

Whitney Says Superior in Wire Company Directed the Act.

New York, May 8. — Further testimony to support the contention of the government that the American Steel & Wire company, one of the largest subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation, was in itself an illegal combination, was taken today when the hearing in the suit to dissolve the corporation under the Sherman anti-trust act was resumed before Commissioner Henry P. Brown.

Harry A. Whitney, the first witness today, was called to tell what he knew of the disappearance of the trunkful of papers in the wire pool cases that were used as evidence before the federal grand jury and were returned to the Steel corporation after the indictments were found.

Told to Destroy Papers.

Whitney, who was connected with the Worcester works of the wire company and in charge, he said, of the company's operations in the wire rope association, said he had destroyed the papers in October and November, last, on orders from Frank Baackes, vice president of the American Steel & Wire company.

The order was given on the occasion of a visit of Baackes to the Worcester plant, he said. He was told before he destroyed them to take them to the office of George A. Cragin, a Worcester official of the company, where they remained until the visit of Mr. Baackes.

Judge Dickinson asked the witness if, before the grand jury investigation into the destruction of the papers, Cragin or Baackes had consulted with him as to what he was to testify to.

Denied by Baackes.

"Just before I went in to the jury," the witness testified, "Cragin said Baackes wanted to see me. I went with Mr. Cragin to see him and Mr. Baackes said, 'Do you remember your instructions as to the destruction of the papers?' I said, 'You told me to destroy them.' He said he never told me any such thing. I was much disturbed by his answer, for it put me in a bad position. I told him I would have to tell what I believed to be the truth if called to the stand.

"Then Cragin told me that he was sure that it was he (Cragin) who gave me the instructions."

"Did he say anything respecting your testimony conforming to his?" asked Judge Dickinson sharply.

"He gave me to understand—"

Here the witness paused and remained silent several moments, apparently hesitating as to his next words.

"He seemed to be satisfied with what I was going to say," Whitney continued slowly, "that I was going to say that he had given the orders. He hoped that—"

Exact Words Forgotten.

"Did he say anything as to your testimony conforming to his?" repeated Judge Dickinson. "Answer that question directly."

"I don't just remember the words Cragin used. I said to him, 'What can I do, when I believe Mr. Baackes gave me the orders?'" was the evasive reply.

Here one of the counsel for the corporation interrupted and asked, "He didn't ask you to lie, did he?"

"No; he wanted me to avoid saying Baackes gave the instructions if I could. He said he had already testified that he (Cragin) had given the instruction."

Cragin, the witness said in the course of his testimony, was the officer directly over him.

"You are no longer connected with the company; you weren't asked to resign, were you?" asked R. C. Balling, counsel for the corporation.

"I was not," replied Whitney, who was then excused.

GRAY WILL HEAD GREAT NORTHERN

"When He Resigns From 'North Bank' Road"—Says James J. Hill.

New York, May 8.—James J. Hill, chairman of the Great Northern railway, arrived in this city today and said that when Carl R. Gray resigned as head of the "North Bank" road, he would become president of the Great Northern. Regarding what position Louis W. Hill would hold upon Mr. Gray's election, and what he himself would do, Mr. Hill said:

"I am not ready to state the details of the changes in the Great Northern, but both myself and my son will remain on deck, subject to call. We both will be members of the executive committee."

Mr. Hill would not say whether he would retire as chairman of the board, to be succeeded by Louis W. Hill, his son.

MEAT INSPECTION PUT UNDER FIRE

House Committee Begins Inquiry Asked By Nelson of Wisconsin.

Washington, May 8.—"I want to discover the connection between the pork and beef packers—the meat trust, as it is called—and the men we have put in positions of trust to enforce the meat inspection law," declared Representative Nelson of Wisconsin to the house agricultural expenditures committee today.

Mr. Nelson has asked the committee to investigate the bureau of animal industry.

Dr. Caroline Bartlett Crane of Kalamazoo, Mich., investigated the packing houses and furnished Mr. Nelson with the basis for his charges against Secretary Wilson, A. D. Melvin, chief of the bureau of animal industry, and George P. McCabe, solicitor of the department.

Packing companies and Texas cattle interests were represented.

Quoting statements of Former President Roosevelt, Former Secretary of Agriculture J. Sterling Morton and others, Mr. Nelson contended that congress had the right to inquire into the way the $3,000,000 appropriated annually for meat inspection was being used, and to see if the health of the people is guarded.

Of greater importance, he said, was the question whether the law was being honestly enforced, or if there was collusion between the packers and officials.

BEWARE OF THE MUMMY.

Cairo correspondence London Standard: A correspondent of the Egyptian Gazette relates a strange adventure that happened to him. He visited the Cairo museum, accompanied by a friend, and in the course of his inspection came across the mummy of Ahmose I. In the wall case not far from the jewel room.

He turned to his companion and made some remark about the extreme ugliness of the mummy's face. No sooner had he made that remark than he was overcome with a feeling of suffocation as if a cord was being tightened around his neck. The feeling lasted for about a minute and then gradually began to pass away.

The correspondent adds that he and his fellow traveler were considerably shaken by the incident, which was all the more extraordinary in that he had never had a day's illness in his life.

Doubtless scientists and medical men will have their theory for this incident but all the same it has an uncanny flavor. There is indeed a popular superstition, whether fathered by the dragomans in order to mystify and overawe tourists one cannot say, that the mummies still retain the powers of wizardry which in the fulness of their life they were credited with possessing. As a result many folk absolutely decline to look at the mummified remains of Egypt's ancient kings, as they aver the spirits of those personages will wreak their vengeance on them for their profane gaze.

I personally know level headed, rational residents who, fascinated by the sphinx, can stand and look at it for an hour on end, but who would go in mortal terror of their lives if they were in its presence to let fall any personal remark about its ugliness or dilapidated condition.

It is said that superstition is dying out in this age of civilization, but in the land of the Pharaohs it is still as alive as ever. Incidents like the one above serve to keep it well alive.

MAKING PLANTS WORK DAY AND NIGHT.

Cassier's Magazine: B. H. Thwaite in London has made extensive experiments during the last few years with continuous plant growing by using arc lights during the hours of darkness. In order to approach as closely as possible the quality of sunlight, each lamp was provided with double glass globes half an inch apart, the space between them being filled with water.

By passing through this layer of water a part of the light rays is absorbed, just as the corresponding part of the sunlight is absorbed by passing through the atmosphere of the earth. The watered arch lamps move slowly back and forth through the entire length of the building.

The experiments covered fuchsia, tomatoes, chrysanthemums, geraniums and ferns. After four nights had elapsed a considerable difference was noticed by comparing these electrical plants with ordinary plants; the electric tomatoes were in the lead by four inches and the chrysanthemums by two inches.

SWANS PRESERVED THEIR YOUNG.

Country Life: That swans possess some power of reasoning seems to be proved by the following story, which is told by H. G. Hutchinson:

He says: "On a certain pond a pair of these birds had for two successive years hatched out a pair of cygnets, only to find the young, fluffy things devoured long before they came to the properly feathered age by one or other of the large pike which lived in the pond. This last spring the swans made their nest in the usual place, hatched out their cygnets as before, but as soon as the cygnets were hatched disappeared from the pond altogether, parents, babies and all.

"There is another pond, or lake, at a distance of a mile and a half or so from the first, and on this lake the swans were found to be with their young ones. The puzzle was to know how they had got there. Their wings were so pinioned that they could not fly, and there were some very stiff and close fences between the one pond and the other.

"Subsequently a countryman said that he had seen one of them walking over the fields that lie between the ponds. He had noticed nothing more than the old swan walking, but there is little doubt that had he been nearer or looked closer he would have seen that it was carrying a cygnet, or the pair of them, on its back. Almost certainly the birds had walked and carried their young with them from the one pond to the other.

"How they got through the fences is still unexplained, nor is it understood how they knew the second pond to be there, since it does not seem that they had ever visited it before. But their wisdom and enterprise, which were so highly commendable, were justified by the results.

"They reared their cygnets successfully in this other pond wherein there were no pike, a fact which we might almost fancy the swans, with their supernatural cleverness, had ascertained before they made their difficult transit."

DON'TS FOR THE MEN.

Women's Home Companion: Never refer to your evening coat as a swallowtail or dress coat. Today it is known and known only, as the tail coat.

Be sure to remember that the plain black cloth waistcoat for evening wear is an unknown quantity, and, by the way, "vest" is a word that is no longer in the smartly dressed man's vocabulary. It is an obsolete term.

Don't speak of the coat for informal evening occasions as the Tuxedo. If you do you brand yourself as well as your clothes as hopelessly out of date. The Tuxedo is now referred to as the dinner jacket.

Of course you would never commit the error of wearing a black waistcoat and a turndown collar with the tail coat.

Neither are you apt to be so hopelessly ignorant of things fashionable as to wear a white tie, and a shaped one at that, with your dinner jacket.

FIRST JAPENESE TO COME HERE.

Oriental Review: The first Japanese who ever came to America, as far as it is known, was Manjiro Nakahama, a 14-year-old lad, who was picked up by the captain of an American fishing vessel in 1841, twelve years before the coming of Commodore Perry to Japan.

Nakahama with four companions had sailed out into the ocean on a fishing expedition, their boat had been wrecked by a storm, and they were finally washed ashore on a desert island in the Northern Pacific. Three months of dire privation were passed on the island before the little party was rescued by the American vessel.

His companions were left in Hawaii, but Nakahama, who became a great favorite with the captain, was brought to the United States and sent to a New England school. And when Commodore Perry came to Japan, Nakahama was able to act as interpreter in the negotiations carried on between the American envoys and the Japanese feudal government authorities.

BOUNTIES IN MAINE.

Lewiston Journal: It's open time all the year round in Maine, with a bounty on their heads for bears, wolves and bobcats. The Commonwealth bounty is $5 a wolf or a bear and $2 a bobcat. Last year the state paid out $595 in bounties for bears that were slain and $826 for bobcats. Most of them came from the counties of Franklin, Oxford, Washington and Hancock. No bounties have been paid on wolves for many years, as these animals are very scarce.

The history of Maine's bounties covers considerable ground. In the way of constructive bounties the state tried to help out the raising of wheat and corn. In two years it spent more than $200,000 and then gave it up. The state also tried to foster the raising of silkworms. One other thing the state has done in the way of constructive legislation, and that was the attempt to make Maine a beet sugar state. For this the state paid out $7,000 per year, for two years.

The list of destructive bounties is longer. It started in 1830, when the solons decided to kill off the crows. Before the state had enough it had spent nearly $15,000.

RUG SUPERSTITIONS.

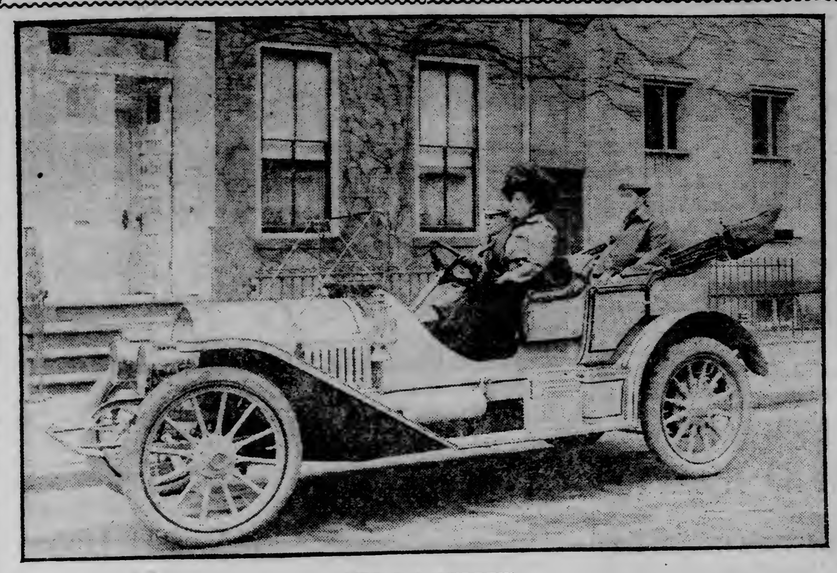
Suburban Life: The little cottage Oriental rugs often made by girls who are shortly to be married, in Turkey, Persia, on the Armenian plateau and in Afghanistan, carry with them all the poetry and mysticism of the Oriental girl's mind, as she is just budding into womanhood.

She weaves into the rugs almost her very thoughts—so much is rug weaving a part of the Orbental life, and so little is it a purely commercial pursuit. Time is not counted of value in the East when rugs are made. Consequently, Americans have found it impossible to compete with the Orientals in the manufacture of these practically everlasting products.

In some parts of the Oriental rug countries, it is considered wrong to have the rugs seen in the making by Christians. If such an accident occurs, and one from the Western world views one of the rugs, the workman offsets the suspected injury by weaving a small white spot in the rug, to keep away the "evil eye."

Sometimes, when the rug is not made for sale, but as the dowry of some girl at the time of her marriage, and when something inauspicious had happened, a little break is left in the border of the rug, by which it is hoped that the devil may escape from the household. Were the border continuous, the Orientals believe that the devil would run around and around the rug and never leave the house.

Mrs. Harriet White Fisher, Financier and Globe Trotter, Takes a New Husband



MRS. S. A. ANDREW.

Mrs. Harriet White Fisher, better known as Mrs. Clark Fisher, has married again. Mrs. Fisher has gained fame as a business woman, a traveler and a motorist. She is almost as well known as Mme. Camille Dugast, that versatile French woman who is now civilizing the Moors. Mrs. Andrew (for that is the new name of Mrs. Clark Fisher) married some years ago one of the owners of the Fisher & Norris Anvil manufactory. Her husband died, leaving her little but his interest in the business.

Mrs. Fisher determined to continue the business and she qualified for its management by going among the men and learning every detail of the factory. She could make an anvil herself if she wanted to do so. The business prospered under her and she is now a woman of wealth. Some years ago she made a tour of the world with an automobile, accompanied by a chauffeur and a French maid. Her new husband is Silvano Alfredo Andrew, an engineer lieutenant of the Argentine navy. They were married at Grace church, New York. They are now at Mrs. Andrew's country home in New Jersey, but in July they will sail for Europe to spend the summer at her estate on Lake Como.

LIEUT. S. A. ANDREW,
The New Husband.

OLDEST LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEER.

Syracuse Post-Standard: Nathaniel Taft of Waverly, a cousin of President Taft, claims the distinction of being the oldest living locomotive engineer in the United States. He is 86 years old and is hale and hearty. When he was 20 years old he signed a pledge to abstain from tobacco and alcoholic drinks, which he has religiously kept.

For sixty-two years Mr. Taft was an engineer on the Boston, Worcester and Fitchburg and later on the Erie. In 1849 he was engineer on the first passenger train which ran from Boston to South Framingham, Mass. He was retired on a pension when he reached the age of 80. During all his years of service he never met with an accident, and traveled, according to a carefully kept daily record, a total of 1,524,086 miles.

BEES IN TRAVELER'S POCKET.

Kansas City Star: L. F. Crathorne of Kanopolis, Kan., is the first man in several moons to come through the depot carrying a whole hive of real live bees. In addition to the several hundred bees in a portable hive Mr. Crathorne carried an extra queen bee in his pocket, enclosed in a small contrivance of wire and wood that also contained a piece of candy and two ordinary working bees. The working bees were there to feed the candy to the queen. Queen bees won't feed themselves, Mr. Crathorne said. The only things they do are lay eggs, lead revolutions and get killed.

Mr. Crathorne said he had no difficulty handling the bees without gloves or netting and that the small swelling under his right eye represented the only sting he received last night after sorting out three hives at twilight, the time when bees are most irritable.

A KANSAN'S HARD LUCK.

Corning Gazette: A farmer near Corning whose son was an applicant for a position under the government but who had been repeatedly turned down, said: "Well, it's hard luck, but John has missed that civil service again. It looks like they just won't have him."

"What was the trouble?"

"Well, he was short on spellin' and geography and missed purty fur in mathematics."

"What is he going to do about it?"

"I dunno. Times is mighty hard and I reckon he'll have to go back to teaching school for a living."

INDIANA A FROG STATE.

Chicago Tribune: An effort was made the other day to hail Milwaukee as the premier frog town of the country, but without success. But before Judge Newcomer had been able to reach a decision he had learned many things regarding the customs, manners and uses of frog.

Some of these things were as follows:

A one ounce frog is ideal for fish bait.

Many frogs die as soon as they leave Milwaukee. Frogs shipped from Indiana cities live longer.

A frog in the tadpole state—when growing a tail—is worthless as fish bait.

A "frog leg" frog is different from a fishing frog.

ONLY THE DEALER KNOWS.

Los Angeles Times: Mme. Maeterlinck, in her quaint, witty way, was talking to a Boston reporter about feminine cruelty.

"There is no such thing as feminine cruelty," she said. "Women, it is true, wear the feathers of birds, but they are unconscious of the birds' sufferings, and, as your old proverb says, 'What the eye doesn't see the heart doesn't grieve for.'

"Men, when they eat a beefsteak or slip on their gloves, are unconscious of the slaughtered bullock and the murdered kid—and just so am I unconscious when, on an icy January morning, I wrap around my neck a soft, warm fur—whether it be fur of polecat, domestic cat, or Russian sable, my dealer alone knows."

ARCHBALD CASE IS TO BE PUBLIC

House Committee Decides Not to Keep Proceedings Secret.

Washington, May 8.—Public hearings on charges against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court upon which may be based impeachment proceedings have been decided upon by the house judiciary committee. Testimony in open session will begin after the committee has examined all the papers forwarded by Attorney General Wickersham by direction of President Taft.

Edward J. Williams of Scranton, Pa., will be the first witness.

Williams, a coal dealer, who, it is alleged, negotiated with the Erie railroad for the purchase of culm bank property to be sold at a large profit, in which transaction Judge Archbald is alleged to have been interested, would not discuss the charges, but denied that he had attempted to flee to Europe.

The judiciary committee has opened the papers in the case, but did not complete reading them when adjournment was taken and their specific contents were not made public. It was learned the charges against Judge Archbald relate mainly to business transactions in which the Erie railroad was a factor.

Judge Archbald will not be summoned, but if he desires to attend the hearings, he will be welcomed by the committee and probably will be accorded the right to cross-examine witnesses.

If the committee finds the charges sustained, the usual procedure will be to recommend to the house impeachment proceedings against Judge Archbald.

CONFEDERATES SAY NO, THANK YOU

Decline Invitation to Help Celebrate Battle of Gettysburg Date.

Macon Georgia, May 8.—The committee on resolutions of the United Confederate Veterans unanimously has advised the organization to decline the invitation of the Grand Army of the Republic for the veterans of the South to participate in the semi-centennial celebration of the battle of Gettysburg in July, 1913.

The committee holds that the acceptance of the invitation will be in violation of the constitution of the United Confederate Veterans, and that it would be improper for the Southerners to celebrate a battle that contributed most to their defeat. The organization will take action on the resolution later.

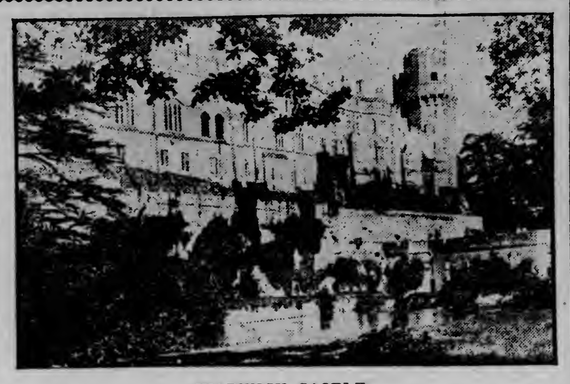
American Millionaire May Lease Warwick Castle



WARWICK CASTLE.

Now that the countess of Warwick has gone back to her home in England carrying only a very few American dollars with which to keep up historic Warwick castle, it is reported that a member of her family has come here for the purpose of leasing the castle to an American. It is superfluous to say that it will take the traditional "American millionaire" to fulfill the requirements. American millions are maintaining Blenheim and some other historic estates in England. Who ever gets Warwick will have one of the most picturesque and interesting homes in the world. Warwick castle is quite the oldest of the feudal castles of England still used as a residence. Part of it is kept open for the inspection of tourists and that part contains many quaint relics of feudal days.

TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF ST. LOUIS COUNTY:

The people of St. Louis county are overwhelmingly for Roosevelt—a fact well known to the local Taft forces. To frustrate the will of the people, an effort is being made to send uninstructed Taft delegations to the state and district conventions.

You should be on your guard against these so-called independent delegates.

Make your delegates declare themselves. Do not take any chances in voting for delegates who are unwilling or afraid to announce their choice. The people are entitled to know whom their delegates favor for President of the United States, WHOSE POWER IS GREATER THAN THAT OF ANY MAN WIELDING AUTHORITY IN ANY CIVILIZED COUNTRY.

If the representatives of entrenched political and financial privilege in both of our great national parties are permitted to SELECT FOR THE PEOPLE a candidate for the Presidency, what good will it do the people to vote at the election? The right to vote for a candidate selected through the machinations of political bosses is a farce.

Lincoln said: "This country, with its institutions, BELONGS TO THE PEOPLE who inhabit it." If that is true, why should not the people have the right to name their REAL choice for President of their own country?

Whatever the Taft followers may do, those of us who are supporting Colonel Roosevelt in this campaign are neither afraid nor ashamed to tell the people where we stand.

In the words of Colonel Roosevelt: "If the people decide against us, we will bow cheerfully to the decision, confident that they will in the end see, that the cause for which we fight is indeed the cause of human rights and human welfare. But we very emphatically object, here in this democracy and within the confines of the party which claims Abraham Lincoln as its national founder, to having the issue decided against us, not by the people, but by the spoils politicians and patronage-mongers who are engaged in defrauding the American people out of their first and most elemental right—the right of self-government.

In conclusion we invite all those who favor the principles advocated by Colonel Roosevelt to cooperate with us in endeavoring to send to both the district and state conventions delegations favorable to his candidacy.

REMEMBER THIS IS YOUR FIGHT!

BRYAN ATTACKS HARMON AGAIN

Tells Ohioans Their Governor Is Candidate of Wall Street.

Finley, Ohio, May 8.—Col. Bryan in a speech here today said that since coming into the state he had obtained a letter in evidence that Governor Harmon is favored by Wall Street. He said:

"I have stated that as late as February, 1908, he still hoped to be the Wall Street candidate for president that year. I am now prepared to add that as late as June, 1908, his friends hoped to nominate him at Denver, notwithstanding that two-thirds of the delegates had been instructed for me.

"His friends tried to purchase delegates in Ohio who had been instructed for me.

"I do not say Mr. Harmon authorized his friends to buy delegates."

DAHLMAN LEADS IN OMAHA'S ELECTION.

Omaha, Neb., May 8.—The Bee (Republican) concedes that Mayor Dahlman (Democrat) will lead the entire ticket in the first city election held under the commission form. Early returns indicate also that the entire ticket headed by the mayor would be elected, with the possible exception of two candidates supported by the citizens' union, "Big Seven."

UNCLE SAM'S EYE ON CUBAN DOCK STRIKE.

Washington, May 8.—Should the dock strikers in Cuba assume violent tactics, American Minister Beaupre has been instructed by the state department to see that ample protection is provided for American vessels. Representatives of steamship lines plying between United States ports and Cuba called the attention of the department to the conditions in Havana.

LATIN LOAN TREATIES SHELVED BY SENATE.

Washington, May 8.—The Nicaraguan and Honduran loan guarantee conventions were shelved today when the senate committee on foreign relations, by a tie vote of 7 to 7, failed to report them favorably. The conventions have been stubbornly fought. Today's action is conceded by the advocates of the treaties to kill them at this session of congress. They have been pending since the extra session last summer, and have been urgently pressed by President Taft and Secretary Knox.

Accused of Matricide.

Rushville, Ind., May 8.—Paul Harris has been arrested charged with the murder of his mother, whose charred body was found in her burning home, near here. Harris, it is alleged, killed his mother to get possession of her property. He has a family and lived on an adjoining farm. He declares he is innocent.

RAPID RISE OF JAPAN.

Chicago Tribune: According to a list compiled in Tokyo there are only 1,018 Japanese who possess $250,000 or more in the whole world. The population of Japan is over 51,000,000 including Formosa, and the list shows plainly that the Japanese are poor and the small amount of money they have is distributed among a few people. And the list also shows that the Japanese are getting rich rapidly, as there were only 415 of these rich Japanese ten years ago. There are not many countries where the wealth of the nation is controlled by so small a number of people as in Japan. And another interesting fact concerning the wealth of Japan is that the imperial family is the richest family there, their wealth consisting of a large portion of the wealth of the entire kingdom. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars is not a great amount of money in this country, but in Japan the amount goes much further than it would here. And the most surprising fact is that more than three-quarters of these 1,018 rich Japanese accumulated their wealth during the last twenty-five years. And, furthermore, the greater per cent of these people became rich with their brain and physical strength as their sole capital and assets.

A HORSE HEAVEN.

Los Angeles Times: The late Admiral Evans was noted for his quick bluff wit. An official of the navy department said the other day in Washington:

"The admiral was once taken through the Vanderbilt stables in New York. The stable manager, showed him walls and floors of pale, translucent tiling, marble drinking troughs, mangers of Circassian walnut, solid silver fittings and so forth.

"'Do you find anything lacking, admiral?' said the manager proudly at the end.

"'Nothing,' the admiral replied, 'nothing except a leather-upholstered sofa for each horse.'"

THE PAPER BOX BUSINESS.

A thousand machines of many types and sizes, and designed for many purposes, are used today in the manufacture of paper boxes. This assortment of machines is absolutely necessary, for the number of styles of cardboard boxes used for packing all sorts of articles is without limit.

According to the Edison Monthly, one industry alone, the making of pens, pencils and erasers, requires boxes of 4,000 different sizes and shapes.

Paper box making, one of the new but very important industries of this country, has made its greatest progress during the last half century, and particularly within the last twenty years, after modern machinery had been introduced. The business has assumed wonderful proportions in New York city, where the capital investment exceeds $5,000,000.

One hundred years ago there was no such thing as a paper box. The container of those days consisted of nothing more than a heavy sheet of paper wrapped around the article to be carried. In time some progressive person conceived the idea of cutting part way through the paper in order to make it fold more readily. With this four-sided wrapper it became the custom to tuck the loose ends in to prevent the contents slipping out.

From this was evolved the idea of scoring the paper so both the sides and ends folded close up and then gluing the ends together. That was the way the first paper boxes were made, and it was years before any marked improvement was made. In those days a knife, a pair of shears, a kettle of paste and a straight edge, with a supply of boxboard, were sufficient equipment to start a man in business.

QUEER PLACES FOR NESTS.

Bailey's Magazine: A very curious instance of boldness in swallows was recorded in 1888 from Ceylon. In this case the birds built over a lamp in the dining room; what made their choice of site more remarkable was the fact that the lamp could be raised or lowered by counter weights, and the connecting chains actually passed through the mud walls of the nest.

Occasionally the bird selects a nesting site which invites comparison with the boldness of the robin. In July last a pair of swallows took advantage of the open window of an unoccupied bedroom in a house at Felmersham in Bedfordshire to begin building their nest on the curtain rod of the bed.

The return of of the owner of the house and the occupation of the bed did not in the least disturb or alarm the birds, which completed the nest and brought off three nestlings within seven weeks of the house owner's return. They took no notice of the occupant of the bed when flying in and out of the window feeding their young; but the hen bird would fly off the nest if any one entered the room during the day time.

THE LIQUORS OF THE ASIATICS.

Bonfort's Wine and Spirit Circular: Arra may be said to be the national drink of the Tibetans, being given at all times and in all places. The natives carry it in long buffalo horns on their trips from place to place, and the shepherds deem their existence miserable if they have not their daily allowance. Arra is used also by the Bhutians, but the great drink of these people is marwa. This is a kind of beer made from millet. The grain is subjected to a very primitive method of fermentation without malting, and is stored in earthenware jugs. It has to be used quickly, as it soon sours; it is very light in alcohol, but it is extremely nourishing.

Nipa wine, made from the nipa palm, is a common beverage in Burma. It resembles in taste and flavor the palm wine or toddy of India, though by some it is thought to be more powerful in its inebriating qualities. But the favorite beverage of the Burmese is chouchou, which greatly resembles samtchoo, only it is a little more fiery in taste and its effect is somewhat quicker and decidedly more lasting.

Postage Stamp Forgeries.

Answers: Forged postage stamps are seldom heard of. The most glaring case of stamp forgery in Great Britain occurred in 1872 and 1873, and its origin has never been discovered. In those days the minimum rate for telegraphic messages was one shilling, and the stamps that were forged were all for such amount, each being passed through the stock exchange telegraphic office.

One of the principal reasons against postage stamp forgery is the keenness of philatelists. The vigilance of the collector would speedily bring to light the existence of any faulty stamps.

Of the many thousands of varieties of stamps issued only about one hundred are known to have been forged, and these specimens have usually been skillfully faked more with the object of trapping the collector than robbing the postal authorities.

OLD WAR JUNKS IN CHINA.

Wide World: In spite of the introduction of modern ideas of warfare into China there are still several hundred wooden "war junks" on the "active list," most of them being owned, manned and armed by the higher order of mandarins, whose pennants are flown from the masthead on special occasions.

These junks are from 30 to 80 feet long, 8 to 40 feet beam and carry from 4 to 12 muzzle loading guns, many of which are made of wood, in some cases bound with hoop iron. Each junk has from two to five masts of different sizes and stepped in various directions—one to port, one sloping for'ard, one aft, one to starboard and the other vertical.

They have very high poops, the sterns being decorated with curious colored paintings, and plankings extend forward and upward in a curved manner on each side of the bows. The plankings are painted red and are furnished with two painted eyes, one each side—evidently to guide the vessel to a safe anchorage. The junks carry large crews, who are very skilled in manoeuvring the craft in all sorts of weather.

LOCKING OUT THE TEACHER.

St. Clairsville Gazette: Country people still have some of the old time enjoyments. In a rural school district in this state in the county opposite Huntington, W. Va., following the old time custom, the pupils locked out the teacher the week before the holidays because he refused to treat them.

The teacher contrived to get inside the building and began to apply the switch to the boys. A young lady 19 years of age and weighing 165 pounds told him not to whip the boys or she would whip him. The teacher gave her a stroke of the switch and she attacked him at once.

He was run around the room, but when finally cornered struck the girl with his fist on the nose and eyes. She called on the boys to help and the teacher got out his pocketknife and was ready for a cutting scrape. The pupils abandoned the fight and the matter was then placed in the hands of the local justice of the peace for settlement according to law.

Of course there is much excitement and no end of talk in the neighborhood, and the people will have real enjoyment of the holiday season. It is gratifying to know that the telephones, automobile and free delivery have not destroyed all the old time customs and enjoyment.

LUXURIOUS DOGS.

The dogs we see riding luxuriously with their owners in automobiles are not altogether and wholly pampered; they may not always ride so, says the New York Sun.

Here, coming loping along a park road a hundred feet or so ahead of an automobile, was a fine, handsome dog, cantering along springily, with every evidence of enjoyment in the run, but always keeping at just that uniform distance ahead of the machine, to whose owner, the man now sitting in it, it evidently belonged. But now the machine speeds up a little and closes up on the dog, and then halts, and now the dog slows down and circles around to it, and now as the dog approaches the man in the machine opens the automobile door for it, and now, wiggling its tail appreciately, the dog hops in.

It has had its morning run and exercise, and now it once more settles down to ride, all very comfortably.

So the automobile dogs are not altogether pampered, not altogether so; they don't always ride in luxury; in the case of some of them, at least, they must take their morning run in the park.

BAFFLING BOSTON.

Horseshoers Journal: After ten days we were able to find our way around Boston—but not across it. If you start to walk out in Boston you always come back to the place from which you started unless you try to; then it is almost impossible.

The transportation is fine, after you have committed it to memory. The hospitality of Boston we shall always remember—but not its street directions. A Boston street car acts like a bronco. You never know whether it is going through the air like a bird, under the ground like a mole or beneath the bay like a fish. The motorman seems to make up his mind as he goes along.

The Boston language is sibilant and sylish. The Boston people love the soft boiled "r." Out West folks pronounce "r" a god deal like a dog chewing a bone. In Boston they deal as gently with it as they can, as if it were not to blame for being in the language, although it doesn't belong there.

It's apt to "stay 'ost" unless you advertise for it.

CONSTRUED AS BEARISH

Government Report of Wheat Condition Better Than Expected.

Decline in Price Is General—Flaxseed Is Dull and Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 8.—The government report, placing the condition of winter wheat at 79.7, proved quite a bearish factor on the wheat markets of North America today, and there was a great slump, though a considerable part of the loss was recovered before the close. The closes on the markets of this continent showed heavy losses, however. Duluth May wheat closed at a decline of ⅝c. Duluth cash wheat was ½c over May, durum was 1c off, oats 1⅜c up, rye ½c up and barley unchanged. Duluth May and July flaxseed closed at an advance of ¼c. This seemed to be due largely to higher bidding for cash flaxseed at Minneapolis. These bids today were only ¼c under the Duluth price. For some weeks the Minneapolis cash bids have been 2c to 3c under those at Duluth.

The morning was remarkably bearish on the grain markets of North America. Various theories were advanced for the break. Some said it was due to the fact that the government crop report placed the condition of winter wheat as high as 79.7, when the general expectation was that it would be much lower. But there was another theory that seemed to be most generally accepted and that was that Lichtstern was unloading his wheat on the Chicago market at the prevailing high prices. The crop news that was received today was not particularly bearish, though reports from the Southwest were fairly encouraging. The primary receipts showed quite a falling off from those of a year ago.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yes. terday at $1.17⅛, opened today at $1.16⅞, asked, and at noon was quoted at $1.15¾ bid. There were also heavy declines during the morning at Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

Most of the foreign wheat news was bearish. Liverpool wheat closed ½@1d lower by reason of a bearish construction that was placed on the government report of yesterday. Liberal Plate and Indian offers, and highly favorable crop weather in the United Kingdom and Australia.

Flaxseed Dull and Steady.

Trading was light on the Duluth flaxseed market today. There were small offers and the demand was dull. At noon today, Duluth May flaxseed was 1c off at $2.18¾ and July was unchanged at $2.13½. Winnipeg May flaxseed was ½c up at $1.95½. Duluth flaxseed maintained its price about 25c over Manitoba No. 1 at Winnipeg. Buenos Ayres May flaxseed closed last night at $1.76 or ¾c higher than the night before. Calcutta seed on the London market for May and June delivery closed today $2.25½, being unchanged from the close of yesterday.

MARKET GOSSIP

Farmers of the American Southwest, that is, the states of Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas, have reason to feel happy, according to S. H. Miller of Kansas City, representing Norris & Co., on the Board of Trade of that city, who was a guest on the floor of the Duluth Board of Trade today.

"I believe," said he, "that there will be enough wheat raised in these four states this year to offset the shortage in the winter wheat states farther east. That is the general opinion of grain men of Kansas City. Kansas, which last year raised 51,000,000 bu will this year raise 80,000,000 to 85,000,000 bu. Nebraska, which last year produced 40,000,000 to 42,000,000 bu, this year bids fair to raise 50,000,000 bu. Oklahoma had a very short crop last year, about 7,000,000bu, but this year that state will produce 20,000,000 bu to 25,000,000 bu. Texas this year will raise about 15,000,000 bu, which is a good crop for that state.

"There was some fear when the snow went off that the wheat of Kansas was badly damaged, and a drouth was much dreaded, but there have been good rains, and on the whole the Kansas wheat is doing finely. What damage there is mostly over near the Colorado line, where the crop is always more of less uncertain."

B. W. Snow comments on the government crop report as follows:

"The report shows a crop promise at this date of 56,000,000 bu in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois, against 131,000,000 bu last year. These states furnish the soft winter wheat supply. Their seed requirements are 12,000,000 bu and it takes 83,000,000 bu for bread for the population of the four states, so that this year, instead of furnishing a good commercial surplus, the home bread and seed requirements of the four soft winter wheat states is 95,000,000 bu, or nearly 40,000,000 more than they are growing.

"In the trans-Mississippi states the crop promise is 157,000,000 bu against 105,000,000 bu last year, and to get this figure this year it is necessary to assume a crop and a yield for Nebraska far greater than anything ever before reached. The government indication now is: Nebraska, 56,000,000 bu; Kansas, 73,000,000 bu; Oklahoma, 20,000,000 bu, and Texas, 9,000,000.

"On the Pacific coast the official promise is for 56,000,000 against 58,000,000 bu last year. Deducting the whole of the Pacific coast from the present total promise, because it cannot be used to supply the wants of any part of the country except the states where it is grown, we have a total wheat crop promise now of 315,000,000 bu for the country east of the Rockies against 373,000,000 bu last year. It will take more than the average spring wheat crop, in view of this wheat deficiency, to furnish bread and seed this year for the states east of the Rockies."

Ware & Leland of Chicago have reports from numerous parts of Kansas showing improvement in the wheat crops since the rains.

The Bartlett-Frazier company wired from Chicago: "The condition of 79.7 as given in yesterday's government report seems hardly reasonable in view of the enormous percentage of abandoned acreage. If the crop suffered to an extent great enough to cause an abandonment of 20 per cent of the area seeded, it seems to us that the acreage now standing for harvest cannot show a condition of approximately 80. We are therefore inclined to feel that the government figures on the condition are too high."

A letter from Oberon, Benson county, Nebraska, says: "The spring wheat acreage of this county will be reduced 60 per cent on account of no plowing and the scarcity of good seed."

Minneapolis millers today were talking of shutting down ten mills but they were still the principal buyers.

Advices received by the Burlington road pertaining to the crop in Nebraska show a remarkable improvement in the condition of winter wheat, the greater portion of the state promising an average crop. Moderate precipitation has occurred recently and the soil is in fine condition. Missouri, Iowa and Illinois will make a very poor showing, however, and wheat acreage is now being plowed up for sowing corn. Oats and barley are backward in a great part of the sections of all states, owing to too much moisture. The warm weather will overcome this and as full a crop as last year is expected.

John Inglis wired from St. Louis: "From Murphysboro north to Pinckneyville and west to St. Louis general conditions are very poor. They are still plowing up. If 25 per cent of the fields standing are plowed up, the balance might make one-third of a crop. While the fields look green, it is due more to the growth of weeds that wheat."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Trade Interprets Government Report as Bearish.

Chicago, May 8.—There was no mistaking that the wheat trade today put a bearish construction on the government report. Wild fluctuations took place at the outset, but the entire range of prices fell sharply below last night's level. First sales varied as much as 1¼ at the same instant in different parts of the pit. Much wheat was sold out on stop loss orders, but commission houses turned buyers on the decline and brought about a relatively steady feeling. It was admitted generally that the government figures confirmed bullish contentions as to record breaking damage, but not to the extent that extremists had prophesied. The effect of the crop curtailment was also believed to have been more than discounted in advance.

A drop of ½ to 2⅞@2½c a bushel was shown at the opening in wheat. July started at $1.12¼ to $1.13½, a descent of 1⅛@1¼c to 2⅜@2½c, but rallied to $1.14.

Indiana reports of wonderful improvement in crops during the last ten days caused a backset. Foreign selling here had likewise a bearish influence. The close was nervous at $1.13⅜@1.13½ for July, a loss of 1½c net.

The small amount of spring plowing done led to an upturn in corn. July opened ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c off at 77 to 77½c and then rose to 77½c.

The market continued firm throughout. Closing prices were ½@⅝c net higher for July at 77⅞c.

Offerings of oats proved remarkably light. Accordingly the market leaned to the bull side. July started ¼c to ⅜c lower at 52⅞c to 53c and quickly advanced to 53⅜@53¾c.

Provisions were lifted by the strength at the yards. Initial transactions ran from 2½c to 15c up, with September options $19.60 to $19.72½ for pork; $11.25 to $11.30 for lard, and $10.70 for ribs.

New York, May 8.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 12@16 points. There was heavy selling, apparently for boith accounts but the market met very good support at the decline. WANT NO MORE FUNICULARS.

Queen: In a memorial presented recently to the Swiss government the lique for the preservation of scenery in that country asks that no more concessions should be granted for the construction of Alpine railways.

It is probable that concessions in the future may not be obtained so easily as in the past, as there is a certain amount of feeling in the country that these railways, though they certainly appeal to a large number of visitors, do not improve the beauty of the Alps.

Many of the mountaineering visitors dislike these railways, but they very seldom care to climb on foot a height which can be scaled in a comfortable carriage. Such a mountain loses all charm, it appears, for the pedestrian, and he generally goes off to districts where the mountain railway has not been introduced.

STOCKS ARE UNSETTLED

Selling of United States Steel Again Resorted to By Shorts.

St. Paul's Weakness Most Conspicuous Feature of the Granger Group.

New York, May 8. — Further selling was suggested by the heavy tone of the market at today's opening. St. Paul and Canadian Pacific recorded 1 point declines in the initial dealings and the loss in Union Pacific and American Smelting was soon as great. There was heaviness in the coppers, United States Steel, Reading and practically every issue of importance. Dealings were in moderate volume.

Reading's erratic course was the feature of the first hour. Opening with a slight gain which it soon lost the stock immediately reversed itself and was selling at an advance of 1¼ points above yesterday's close.

Its strength evidently was helpful to the rest of the list, where recoveries were general, but renewal of selling pressure against United States Steel resulted in another check, followed by dullness.

The market continued to show an unsettled tone during the early session, Reading rising and falling alternately and the two way trading reflecting the temper of professional traders.

The familiar tactics of recent days, namely selling of United States Steel, were resorted to by the short interest, the stock declining to 64¾ on comparative small offerings. Union Pacific was also offered at concessions and St. Paul's weakness was the most conspicuous feature of the granger group. Amalgamated Copper again was under restraint in anticipation of a negative statement by the producers for April. In the forenoon Reading again declined sharply with concurrent weakness in other standard shares.

Bonds were steady.

Union Pacific led a mild rally in the noon hour with more or less stiffening in prices in other parts of the list, but trading was dull and plainly professional. The April report of the Copper Producers showed an enormous increase in metal on hand—almost 2,700,000 pounds—but exercised no marked influence over the copper shares.

Trading became increasingly dull in the course of the afternoon, the market showing virtually no leader-ship either way. Reading and Union Pacific were inclined to ease off, while United States Steel preserved an even balance betwen high and low. Illinois Cntral made an abrupt decline of 2⅝ points.

The market closed steady. Some revival of activity was noted in the last hour, Union Pacific touching its best of the day, with greater strength in United States Steel and Amalgamated Copper. American Sugar and American Beet Sugar were the features of the specialties, both rising over a point. Bonds failed to share in the movement, which was again followed by recessions from the best.

NEW MINES ARE SHIPPING

Crosby and Ironton Celebrate Departure of First Train.

Armour No. 1 and No. 2 Send Ore to Superior Docks.

Two mines were added to the shipping list on the Cuyuna range today.

The first shipment from the Armour No. 1 and No. 2 mines near Crosby and Ironton was made the occasion for a demonstration this morning. The train of twenty-one cars of high-grade ore was gaily decorated with flags and bunting. The bands of the Cuyuna range towns had been enlisted to add a more festive note to the demonstration. People gathered from the various towns to join in the celebration.

When the train moved out of Crosby on its trip to Superior, the bands played, every whistle on the Cuyuna range was opened wide in shrill, long sustained blasts, and people cheered. The demonstration was even greater than when the first train was sent to the docks last year.

The addition of the Armour to the shipping list on the Cuyuna is an important one, as it establishes the proof of the range. The Soo ore docks at Superior, which shipped ore for the first time last year, will show a great increase over the shipments of 1911 as the mines on the Cuyuna are expected to ship regularly during the season.

SEVERAL SEEK RAILROAD JOB

Contractors Anxious to Build Stanton Extension of Northern Pacific.

Mandan, N. D., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several railroad contractors will bid on extending the Stanton line of the Northern Pacific, judging from the number who have been over the route.

The first contract to be let will be for a stretch thirty-four miles west from Stanton, which will carry the line almost to the Dunn county line. It is understood that when that contract is completed, a new contract will be let for a longer stretch, going almost entirely through Dunn county.

Work on the extension from Stanton west will not be as difficult as it was between Mandan and Stanton, the territory through which the line runs being quite level.

Alexander, N. D., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Great Northern surveyors who have been working east of Arnegard have broken camp there and are now working close to Alexander. The work has been pushed forward very rapidly and with a great deal of success, the surveyors meeting with few difficulties in laying the route for the proposed extension of the Hill line through this county.

CLIFT TAKES BAXTER'S PLACE ON ILLINOIS ROAD.

Chicago, May 8.—Vice President and General Manager W. L. Park of the Illinois Central railroad today announced the appointment of Albert E. Clift as general superintendent of the company's lines north of the Ohio river, with headquarters in Chicago, to succeed Robert W. Baxter, who recently resigned to become president of the Alaska Northern railway company, and vice president of the Copper River Northwestern Railroad company of Alaska.

John F. Porterfield is appointed general superintendent of the Illinois Central line south of the Ohio river, with headquarters in New Orleans, vice Albert E. Clift, transferred.

MALT RATE FROM MILL CITY TO COAST CUT.

Washington, May 8.—Railway rates for the transportation of barley and malt, in carloads, from Minneapolis to California terminals are, respectively, 55 and 65 cents a hundred pounds. The interstate commerce commission has decided that the differential of 10 cents was unreasonable, and that the rate on malt should be, during the next two years, no more than 7 cents higher than that on barley.

NEW TRAVELING FREIGHT AGENT.

F. W. Welterstorff, formerly traveling freight agent of the Burlington, has been transferred to the St. Paul district from St. Louis and in the future will make Duluth and the territory at the Head of the Lakes.

Mr. Welterstorff was in the city today looking over the local situation. He comes here as the successor to A. R. Brown, who goes to Winnipeg, to become general agent there of the Burlington.

Duluth railroad friends of Mr. Brown will be pleased with the news of his promotion. He is one of the most popular railroad men who ever made the Head of the Lakes and made many friends for his read.

Mr. Brown has been making Duluth freight territory for a long time and his removal to Winnipeg will take one of the veteran traveling freight men from the local field.

WOULD COMMIT GELINE.

Norway Man With Hole in Head Not Believed Rational.

Channing, Mich., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—On the ground that he is not a safe man to have at large, the Dickinson county authorities have under consideration the matter of committing Louis Geline of Norway into the care of some state institution. Geline attempted to kill himself last February with a 22-caliber rifle. The bullet passed entirely through his head, entering the center of the forehead, where it tore a hole nearly three-quarters of an inch in size, and now rests at the base of the skull, leading to which point is the channel made by the missible in its passage through the brain.

The wound is such that it is considered marvelous it did not result fatally at the time inflicted, yet after shooting himself Gelint was able to walk to the hospital and he has been up and about ever since. For the time being he is being cared for at the county farm. His general health is good and in the opinion of the doctors he will live his alloted span of life.

KANSAS WOMEN ENTHUSIASTIC

Result of Suffrage Vote There Will Be Felt Everywhere, It Is Claimed.

Wichita, Kan., May 8.—Mrs. Lucy B. Johnston, wife of the chief justice of the Kansas supreme court, president of the Kansas Equal Suffrage association, addressing the annual convention of the organization here today, said that not only had the National Woman's Suffrage association donated literature for the Kansas campaign, but Rev. Anna H. Shaw, national president, had aided with money from the national fund.

"Our victory or failure," she said, "will affect the movement throughout the world. Dr. Shaw knows that not only the United States but every country on the face of the earth will feel it if Kansas loses."

Letter From Braly.

Mrs. Johnston read a letter from J. H. Braly of Los Angeles, a California suffrage worker called the "Father of Suffrage" offering to aid the Kansas women in their campaign. He recommended a "whirlwind campaign" through three states that are voting on suffrage this year. He said he believed the women could win all three —Oregon, Wisconsin and Kansas—as they had California.

Nearly 1,000 women from this and other states are attending the convention. Miss Jane Addams of Chicago and Rev. Olympia Brown-Willis, president of the Wisconsin Equal Suffrage association, who took part with Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Susan B. Anthony and other leaders in the Kansas campaign of a quarter century ago, are guests. All speakers predict that Kansas women will carry the election for full suffrage next November.

Hear Mrs. Stubbs.

Mrs. W. R. Stubbs, wife of the governor, said:

"In asking the generous men of this state the right to vote, we are in reality asking them only for the privilege of participating more potentially with them in making every city, town and village of Kansas better places to live in."

The greeting from the Men's league read:

"We, the officers of the Kansas Men's Equal Suffrage league, send you greetings. May you meeting be harmonious and enthusiastic. Slogan: 50,000 majority for the amendment."

IRONWOOD MAN HOME.

Returns From Trip to Hayti and San Domingo.

Ironwood, Mich., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Rupp returned last Friday from a trip to San Domingo and Hayti, where he has been attending to business matters for the Newport Mining company.

Mrs. F. L. Lambert left last Friday for Iowa Falls, Iowa, to visit for a short time, after which Mr. Lambert will join her and they will go to Ottumwa, Iowa, where Mr. Lambert is to assume the general management of the Ottumwa Light, Fuel and Power company's plant and business.

The Duluth & South Shore passenger train ran through Ironwood last Saturday on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad tracks, because of a washout on their roads at Thomaston, north of Wakefield, which was caused by the heavy rains on Friday.

LET A WANT AD NEGOTIATE A TRADE FOR YOU---OF SOMETHING YOU DON'T NEED FOR SOMETHING YOU DO

HOUSEKEEPERS

THIS IS FOR YOU!

When you want a tenant for your vacant room, telephone a good ad to The Herald, one that will bring quick results. Here is an example of an ordinary ad:

"FOR RENT—FURNISHED ROOM for gentleman; good location. Telephone Blank 248 X."

Here is a different kind of an ad—one that TELLS SOMETHING:

"FOR RENT—NICELY FURNISHED room for gentleman. East end, modern home, private, every convenience; use of telephone; one minute from car line, 12 minutes from Third avenue west; $3 per week. Blank 248 X."

Costs a little more than the ordinary ad. Yes: but in nine cases out of ten the results are so much better and quicker that it pays in the end.

FLOOD IN LOUISIANA MADE WORSE BY THE WIDENING OF BREAK

Territory Heretofore Immune From Flood Now Threatened.

Hundreds Are Marooned in Homes in Back Country.

Refugees' Families Range From Six to Sixteen Children.

New Roads, La., May 9.—By tearing away 1,400 feet of the south end of the Torras crevasse, a wall of water from eight to ten feet deep and half a mile in width is today bearing down upon the already overflowed area of Pointe Coupee, St. Landry and other parishes.

New Roads, heretofore considered practically safe from the Torras flood, is rapidly becoming inundated. Boats are being built and other preparations made by the townspeople for a hurried exit.

This section of the parish being thickly settled, much rescue work will be required. Motorboats and skiffs are being concentrated here by the government representatives. In some instances the officers confiscated boats and are holding them in readiness.

Hundreds Are Marooned.

Farmers, driving their livestock in advance of the flood, arrived here early today from the country around Fordoche. They report hundreds of persons are marooned in their homes in that vicinity and are in urgent need of relief. Motor boats were unable to reach that district yesterday.

Looters in skiffs are reported to be reaping a rich harvest in the inundated country. Many houses from which their occupants were hastily driven have been broken open and robbed.

Some Goodly Families.

The size of the families among the

WOULD END DUELS IN GERMAN ARMY

Clericals in Reichstag Seek Appeal to the Chancellor.

Berlin, May 9.—The Clericals today introduced a resolution in the reichstag asking the imperial chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, to take steps to end dueling in the army, particularly the practice that makes it compulsory for an offended person to challenge the offender or leave the army. Pending this reform, the resolution demands the observance of the imperial order of 1897 restricting dueling.

GRAVEL CRUSHES FOUR CHILDREN

Girls Aged From 9 to 13 Years Die in Cave-in in Wisconsin.

Green Bay, Wis., May 9.—Four little girls from a farm about four miles north of Black Creek, met death in a gravel pit last night, according to word received here today. The children were sent out by their parents to bring home the cows. They stopped to play at a gravel pit and a cave-in occurred. Five feet of the gravel covered their bodies and they were killed almost instantly.

The children were Amanda Barth, aged 13; Augusta Barth, 11, and Katie Barth, aged 9 years, daughters of Frank Barth, and Gretchen Rosenberg, aged 9.

The bodies, badly mangled, were removed from the pit by searching parties sent out when the children failed to return home.

NESBITT AFTER HABEAS CORPUS

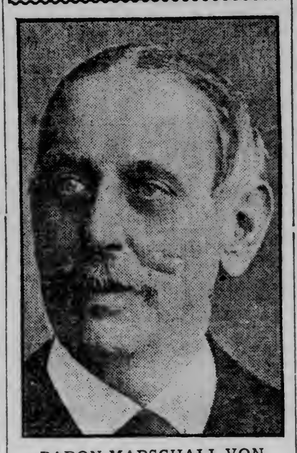
Attorney Claims Evidence Does Not Warrant His Extradition.

Chicago, May 9.—Habeas corpus proceedings for the release of Dr. William Beattie Nesbitt, the Toronto, Can., physician-banker, in jail here under an extradition order, were being prepared today.

Nesbitt at first was accused of forgery in connection with papers of the Farmers' Bank of Toronto, of which he was president. The charge was changed to one of having made false statements to the Canadian minister of finance in regard to the financial condition of the bank. The United States commissioner held the charge and the accusation sufficient to warrant extradition and the papers in the case were forwarded to the secretary of state.

Nesbitt's counsel contends that the charges were not upheld by the evidence before the commissioner, and declared today he would ask the federal court to release his client.

GIVEN SPECIAL MISSION BY GERMAN GOVERNMENT



BARON MARSCHALL VON BIEBERSTEIN.

The kaiser is said to have recalled Count Wolff-Metternich from London and sent in his stead Baron Marschall von Bieberstein, who has been for some time German ambassador to Turkey. This is regarded as a move toward the establishment of pleasanter relations between Great Britain and Germany, and the settlement of a number of pending questions concerning the Far East.

AAD MEN ARE DESTRUCTIVE

Demolish Intrinsic Elements of Spanish Barbecue, and Survive.

Have Jolly Good Time While Leader Helps Name Shrine Officers.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—While Illustrious Potentate John Cox of Aad Temple of Duluth was shut up all day in the Scottish Rite temple at the final session of the Imperial Council, Capt. Thomas P. Bradley of the Aad patrol put on his gorgeous blue and white uniform, mustered his force of brave men, and putting all thoughts of danger aside, marched out to Eddie Maier's ranch at Zimi in the Chatsworth mountains to brave the peril of a Spanish barbecue. Maier is president of the Maier Brewing company of Los Angeles, and he held open house for all the Shrine patrons at his beautiful home.

Not a Man Missing.

Just as the sun was sinking beneath the horizon, out over the Pacific, Bradley took his men back from the terrible war and into the corridors of the Angelus hotel. Not a man was missing; not one even was disabled.

"It was terrible, terrible, sir," said Capt. Bradley as a reporter for The Herald pressed him for details of the gory fray. "Far be it from me to boast about my own prowess, but it is a fact, sir, that with my own teeth I devoured four dishes of chile con carne, a dozen tamales, and as for enchilitadas, I could not count them. I saw Bandmaster Custance do nearly

GEN. YOUNG HEAD OF CONFEDERATES

Southern Veterans Accept Invitation to Gettysburg Celebration.

Macon, Ga., May 9.—Gen. Bennett H. Young of Louisville, Ky., commander of the Army of Tennessee, was elected commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans today.

The convention as a whole speedily accepted the invitation of the G. A. R. to take part in the celebration at Gettysburg of the fiftieth anniversary of the big Civil war battle fought there. The committee to which the invitation was referred, reported yesterday adversely to the acceptance of the invitation, but the report was absolutely disregarded by the veterans as a whole.

UNIVERSAL RED CROSS BUTTON IS SUGGESTED.

Washington, May 9.—Many phases of Red Cross activity were up for discussion at today's session of the International Red Cross conference. The day's program included consideration of the Cuban society's suggestion that a medal or button be adopted to distinguish Red Cross workers in all parts of the world; the establishment of regular methods of communication with belligerents on the battlefield, and a report by the French society on relief work among French colonial and legionary soldiery.

OHIOANS ARE TAKING REST

Breathing Space Is Allowed in the Presidential Campaign.

Roosevelt Has Gained Clear Lead in Texas---Burke Boom Forming.

Columbus, Ohio, May 9.—National politics only simmered in this state today after the finish of President Taft's three-day tour and prior to the invasion of candidates scheduled to begin their final campaign here next week. The president will return Sunday, according to present plans and Monday he is to be followed by Colonel Roosevelt. Campaign managers for Senator La Follette have announced that he is to make a final tour of the state prior to the primary election, May 21.

In the Democratic ranks there is as much activity and many candidates are laying out plans for speaking tours. William Jennings Bryan today is finishing a three days' invasion of the state, in which he has been attacking the candidacy of Governor Harmon. At Governor Harmon's headquarters it has been said that the chief executive was working out his own itinerary, which would cover all the points at which Bryan had spoken and also would include the lager cities of the state.

A report gained circulation during the visit of President Taft that Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey also was planning a tour in Ohio, although no such official announcement has been made. The petitions of Governor Harmon and Governor Wilson have been circulated.

Mr. Bryan in his two tours of the state has urged Democrats to vote for the New Jersey executive.

The Republican voters will cast votes for two candidates for delegates to the national convention from each

WOLFF-METTERNICH TO LEAVE LONDON

German Ambassador Resigns and Successor Is Called From Turkey.

Berlin, May 9.—Count Paul Wolff-Metternich has resigned his office as German ambassador to Great Britain.

On Special Mission.

London, May 9.—Baron Marschall von Bieberstein, at present German ambassador at Constantinople and who, it has been reported, is to be transferred to Great Britain, will be entrusted here with a mission of a special character, rather than an ordinary ambassadorial position, according to the Pall Mall Gazette.

It is understood, says the Pall Mall Gazette, that Baron von Bieberstein will be charged with the arrangement of the final settlement of the Bagdad railroad problem and with the economic partition of the Portuguese colonies in East and West Africa between Germany and Great Britain, by which means each of those countries will be enabled to develop commercially its respective sphere under the Portuguese flag, since Portugal is unwilling to sell the 750,000 square miles of territory it possesses in those regions.

OPENED WAY FOR WATER

Titanic Engineer Says Watertight Compartments Were Not Kept Closed.

Witness at British Inquiry Praises Conduct of J. B. Ismay.

London, May 9.—Evidence that the doors of four watertight bulkheads had been opened after having been closed from the bridge was introduced today at the British wreck commission's inquiry into the loss of the Titanic.

This was done, according to Thomas Dillon of the engineers' staff, in order that the engineer crew might reach the pumps. Dillon said that after the watertigh compartments had been closed from the bridge the chief engineer ordered his men to go through four boiler rooms in order to reach the pumps in boiler room No. 5. To carry out this order the men were obliged to open the doors of four watertight bulkheads, and having done so they left the doors open.

Water in Boiler Room.

Replying to a question from Lord Merzy, president of the commission, witness said the men did not go into boiler room No. 5 because there was too much water there. In fact the water was leaking through into boiler room No. 4.

At this point the attorney for the White Star line, Sir Robert Finlay, explained that the doors mentioned by the witness could not be opened without being released from the bridge.

After the last boat had left, Dillon testified, he went to the poop-deck, where there were many men but no women. When the Titanic foundered he was sucked down about two fathoms and was later picked up unconscious. He remembered having swam

FARM SCHOOL MEN WANTED

Good Jobs Waiting for Graduates From Agricultural Colleges.

Madison, Wis., May 9.—The despised work of the farmhand has become a lucrative vocation in Wisconsin—more so, in fact, than the learned professions—judging from University of Wisconsin records. There are more applications in the hands of Prof. R. A. Moore of the agronomy department for men with agricultural training than he will be able to fill this year.

When the university closed in 1911, the agricultural college had orders for graduates which it could not supply, paying salaries aggregating $450,000. These were the jobs the department could not fill for want of qualified men.

While graduates of law, engineering, medicine, arts and science were competing for such limited opportunities as were offered, the "short horns" had all been engaged before they completed their course at salaries ranging from $600 to $3,000 a year. Before commencement each had found a position at an average salary of $1,180.

SEVEN DROWN IN FOX LAKE

Whole Launch Party Lost in Sudden Storm in Illinois.

Body of Chicago Woman Is the Only One Yet Recovered.

Fox Lake, Ill., May 9.—The body of Mrs. Mabel Hansen, 25 years old, of Chicago, who with a party of seven persons was drowned in a storm which swept Fox lake last evening, was recovered this morning and searching parties have been dragging the lake since daybreak for the bodies of the other victims.

The other persons believed to have been drowned are:

HERMAN HUHN, 19 years old, Ingleside, Ill.

GEORGE RUSSELL, 35 years old, Ingleside, Ill.

JAKE HOEFER, 25 years old, Desplaines, Ill.

MIKE KLUNDER, Chicago.

LOUIS TRUSCHKE, 26 years old.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN, 20 years old, believed to have lived in Chicago.

Empty Bottles Found.

A cap, the pocketbook of Jake Hoefer, a book, an oil can and a number of empty bottles were found in the water near the body of Mrs. Hansen.

The party left the Lippincott hotel on Fox Lake to go to the Bayview hotel, on Nippersink lake, shortly after 8 o'clock last night, in a sixteen-foot steel gasoline launch owned by Herman Huhn. Five minutes after leaving the hotel wharf, persons on the shore heard cries for help and a boat was sent to the rescue. No trace of the boat or the victims was found and after an unsuccessful search of an hour the rescuing party abandoned its efforts until this morning.

NEW OUTBREAKS FEARED IN CHINA

Soldiers Are Returning to Canton—Deadly War on Pirates.

Hongkong, China, May 9.—Thousands of Chinese soldiers, who have been stationed to the north of Swatow in the province of Kwang Tung, are returning to Canton. It is feared labor troubles will follow the disbanding of these troops.

A former governor of Canton has been commander-in-chief of the armed forces, and he is proceeding to exterminate the pirates on the west river. Men caught stealing even trifling sums are shot daily. Hundreds of bodies can be seen floating near the banks.

Foreigners in South China expect a renewal of the recent anarchial conditions.

The British fleet has sailed for the north of China with thousands of Indian troops from Hongkong. Other detachments of the garrison here, it is reported, are awaiting orders to embark.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen is retiring to Macao, the Portuguese dependency on the Canton river, where he plans to reside.

GOVERNMENT LOSES PLEA TO ENJOIN THE STEEL CORPORATION

Order Not to Destroy Papers Denied Except as to Wire Company.

Permission to Renew Petition Granted By the Court.

Examiner Seeks to Set Date of Destruction of Documents.

Trenton, N. J., May 9.—The application in the United States district court here for an injunction to restrain the United States Steel corporation and a number of its subsidiary concerns from the destruction of books and papers which might be used in evidence in the suit of the government for the dissolution of the Steel corporation, was dismissed in a per curiam opinion filed this morning by Judges Gray, Buffington and McPherson, except as to the American Steel & Wire company, one of the Steel corporation's subsidiary concerns.

Evidence Is Lacking.

The opinion, which is brief, after speaking of the application, says:

"No evidence is offered that such destruction is threatened, and it need hardly be said that evidence is essential before any man be either accused or convicted of what would be in substance a criminal interference with the course of justice.

"The motion is supported almost wholly by the fact that after certain prosecution in the southern district of New York came to an end, a number of papers belonging to the American Steel & Wire company, which had been furnished by the company to the government for use in such prosecution and had been returned to its possession, were destroyed by one of its officers.

See No Evil Intent.

WOMEN WANT MORE RIGHTS

Methodists Are Asked to Open Their Pulpits to That Sex.

Many Memorials Come Before Conference at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.) — Scores of memorials have been poured in and daily are pouring into the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in session here, and probably before the final adjournment will appear before the conference for action.

Far in the lead in these memorials, and one which has been presented by delegates from districts in all parts of the United States, is that relating to the famous "paragraph 260" of the church discipline, which prohibits dancing, card playing and kindred amusements. That this section will be amended at the present session to leave the "amusement" question to the "conscience" of the individual member is the belief of many of the delegates.

Want "Presiding Elders."

Another memorial which has appeared frequently in the church records is that charging the name of the "district superintendent" back to that of "presiding elder." The latter was in use until the change was made at Baltimore four years ago, and it is Missouri Supreme Court Refuses to Free Walter S. Dipley.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 9.—Walter S. Dipley, convicted of the murder of Stanley Ketchel, middleweight champion, must serve his life sentence in the Missouri penitentiary, according to a decision of the supreme court today. Goldie Smith, serving a life term as an accomplice of Dipley, was discharged from the penitentiary by the court, which reversed the judgment against her. The court held the evidence was not sufficient to convict her.

FIVE ARE DEAD AT BLAST FURNACE

Explosion of Gases at Cleveland Plant May Cause Nine More Deaths.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 9.—The number of victims of last night's explosion at the central blast furnace of the American Steel & Wire company was increased to five today, when Andrew Husek, aged 28, and John Pollock, 31, died at a hospital. The other dead are John Zella, William Champlin and an unknown foreigner.

Several of the fourteen injured may die. Nine of these are not out of danger. The explosion was caused by gases which accumulated in the furnace.

SOMNAMBULIST HAS FATAL FALL

RICHESON STILL HAS SOME SHOW

Governor Foss May Yet Present Petition to His Council.

Boston, Mass., May 9.—Clarence V. T. Richeson, the former Baptist clergyman who is under sentence of death for the murder of Avis Linnell, his former sweetheart, still has a meager chance for life. Governor Foss, to whom his attorneys have applied for commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment, may yet refer the petition to his council for consideration. The matter was not brought up at the council meeting yesterday, according to a statement of the governor. "I have taken no action in the case," said Governor Foss, "and shall not, until I receive the report of Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, who is examining Richeson to determine as to his sanity."

BANKS USING FINGER PRINTS

New York Institutions Adopting Method of Identifying Depositors.

New York, May 9.—The finger-print system for the identification and the protection of depositors is being rapidly adopted by New York banks. The North Side bank is the latest institution to adopt the finger-print system, regarding which Secretary Arthur Ehirsch said today:

"It is not the Bertillon system used by the police, but was devised by an Englishman named P. A. Flack, who for fifteen years was employed by the British government at Singapore, India. Instead of the thumb, we take the imprint of three fingers of the right hand—the tips of the index, middle and third fingers.

"We provide blanks for our depositors, upon which they write their signatures and leave their finger prints. These we keep on file, to have in case of emergency, as when, for instance, the genuineness of a signature may be questioned. We have yet to come across a depositor who objects to this."

DEFECTIVE PAGE

BANK OF ENGLAND PUTS DISCOUNT RATE DOWN.

London, May 9.—The rate of discount of the Bank of England was reduced from 3½ to 3 per cent today. The reduction was a natural consequence of the bank's stronger reserve, brought about through the inflow of gold arrivals and the return of cash from the country. The discount houses lowered the market rates to 3⅞ per cent, and consequently the bank would have the market rates to 2⅞ per cent, and cent rate effective.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 9.—Keokuk and Waterloo are seeking the next convention of the Iowa Manufacturers' association, now in session here. The "Tribe of the Sioux" will hold a powwow tonight.

Girl's Death Mysterious.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 9.—The body of Hannah Bollman, the 20-year-old daughter of John Bollman of this city, was brought here from Woonsocket, S. D., for burial. On April 25 the girl mysteriously disappeared from the home where she had been working, and although a diligent search was made, it was not until May 3 that her body was found floating in Lake Prior, an artificial lake at Woonsocket. There were no marks to indicate foul play.

WEATHER—Fair tonight and probably Friday; not much change in temperature; light to moderate southerly to easterly winds.

FOR MEN ONLY

The Only Men's Specialists in the City of Duluth for More Than 20 Years.

We have cured hundreds of men who have long suffered a gradual decline of physical and mental energy as a result of ailments. Our success in curing difficult cases of long standing has made us the foremost specialists in treating men's disorders. This success is due to several things. It is due to the study we have given our specialty; to our having ascertained the exact nature of men's ailments, and to the original, distinctive and thoroughly scientific methods of treatment we employ.

NERVOUS DEBILITY is sweeping thousands of young and middle-aged men into a premature grave. Carelessness, Excesses, Abuses and Blood Diseases are the causes. Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy? Specks before your eyes? Dark circles under them? Palpitation of heart? Have debilitating dreams, sediment in urine, pimples on face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careworn expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack of energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, hair loss, etc.? WE CAN CURE YOU AND MAKE A MAN OF YOU!

KIDNEY COMPLAINTS are often caused by male excesses, alcoholic liquors and severe sickness; the usual symptoms being highly colored urine with strong odor, chilly and feverish spells, wornout feeling, puffiness under the eyes, and swellings. Our long study and extensive practice in treating Kidney diseases insure success in cases not past a curable stage. I determine the condition by analysis of urine, and the many severe kidney troubles I have cured, after they had been unsuccessfully treated by other doctors, give us great confidence in our method. If you fail to cure this condition you will have to pay with many a year of dear life for it.

NEW VITALITY There is today no excuse for any man remaining weak, all women; there is an influence about him no one can resist; he knows no fear, he knows no weakness; he knows no result of debility. It is this same VITALITY which carries our soldiers to war without thought of death. Vitality, reader, is what you MUST have if you would enjoy a life of health, strength and manly vigor. I can give you this same life and vitality; if I can do what I am doing for thousands of others, I can put the vigor of youth into your blood and nerves; I can make you feel young again and keep you young; I can drive away all debility, weakness and despondency. You will laugh at trouble, you will tackle obstacles with the vim to win, just as all other hearty, vital men may do. I don't ask you to use drugs. I ask no change in your present mode of living; all I ask is to come to our office and let us fill your body with the new power to dissolve diseased poisons and liberate your system from poison. If everybody else failed to cure you of these troubles, we won't; we will cure you. Consulting free from 9 to 8. Sundays, 10 to 1. Ask for free instruction books.

SIREN WHISTLE AS A CURFEW

West Duluth Police Have Trouble Keeping Children Off Street.

Lieut. Wilcox of the West Duluth police station will arrange with one of the local mills or factories to install a siren whistle, which will be blown at the curfew hour each evening. Boys under 16 years of age who are found on the street after 9 o'clock claim that they are not awtire of the late hour, as they have no way of learning the time. The installation of a siren whistle is expected to do away with this form of excuse.

Lieut. Wilcox, in speaking of the new curfew plan last evening, said: "We cannot do anything with the curfew law as it is at present. In some instances when boys see an officer as late as 11 o'clock they will run up to him and ask him what time it is. When told, they act as if astounded and then break away in a hurry to go home. In some instances these boys do not go home for an hour or two afterwards, but loiter after having got out of sight of the policeman."

MICHAEL JACOBY NOT EXPECTED TO LIVE.

Michael Jacoby, who has been ill for the past few weeks at the home of W. E Kern, 4809 West Sixth street, was suddenly stricken yesterday afternoon and was taken to St. Mary's hospital. His recovery is doubtful. Mr. Jacoby has heart disease and left the hospital several weeks ago, when it was thought he had recovered from the attack.

Mr. Jacoby was taken to the home of Mr. Kern, who is an old friend. Yesterday morning Mr Jacoby's condition became worse and he was immediately taken to the hospital.

Mr. Jacoby is 54 years old and lived formely at 5714 Huntington street. He was a city assessor last year and at one time was clerk of court for several years. He took a prominent part in the recent municipal lighting question and was one of the men influential in getting Former Mayor Henry Truelson to come back to Duluth and take part in the campaign preceding the special election last March.

More Money Needed.

Although the city council appropriated $300 to repair and remodel the police station at West Duluth, about $300 more will be needed to properly finish the work, according to the contractors in charge of the work. The entire interior of the building is being repapered, calcimined and repainted. A new concrete floor is being laid in the station. About fifteen men are at work in the building.

Sufficient logs have been stored away at the mill during the winter to keep the entire crew working well into next December. The mill was closed down the early part of last November.

Fully 2,500 men will be employed in the various shops and mills in West Duluth following the opening of the Zenith furnace.

CHICAGO PAPERS ARE NEARER TO NORMAL.

Chicago, May 9.—Quiet reigned in the newspaper strike today, and newspapers were sold under police guard in practically all parts of the city. A number of stereotypers who went on a sympathetic strike when the pressmen walked out applied for reinstatement on two afternoon newspapers, and it is expected that others will soon follow their example.

All the newspapers practically have full crews of pressmen and stereotypers at work, and more editions were published today than any time since the beginning of the strike.

John O'Neill, a street car conductor, was arrested for taking newspapers from the hands of passengers boarding his car, but later was allowed to go with a warning.

Several newsboys were arrested for going through a west side elevated train, grabbing newspapers out of the hands of people.

NO RUSH FOR LICENSES

Vehicle Owners in No Hurry to Pay Wheelage Taxes.

Dog Owners Also Shy at Payment of Special Fees.

Wheelage tax licenses are being taken out at a steady rate, but not in sufficient number, in the opinion of the city clerk.

Up to date 234 tags have been handed across the counter of the city clerk's office. Of these, several have been issued to single firms which have more than one vehicle.

The authorities are allowing until the end of the current month to have the fees paid. At the expiration of that time all vehicles in the city will be completely checked by Edward Whalen, special detective working under the direction of the legal department. Warrants will be issued for the arrest of all delinquents, as was done a year ago, when a considerable number of arrests were made for violations of the wheelage tax ordinance.

The fee for single rigs is $3; for teams of two or three horses it is $6; for four-horse wagons it is $10. Motor cycles are $3 each; auto trucks, $10 per ton, and automobiles 50 cents per horse power.

As usual, the dog licenses are being taken out much more slowly. Up to noon today less than 100 licenses had been issued from the clerk's office. The authorities state that the city has hundreds of dogs, and that until a dog-catcher is employed to check them up many of them will escape without the payment of the tax.

His majesty already has added one item to his experience in naval work by going down in a submarine. He spent ten minutes below the surface of the water in one of the latest "D" type of boats.

FIND TRAMP LIFE HAS HARDSHIPS

Trio of Young Millionaires Have Trouble With Sea Captain.

San Francisco, May 9.—The "millionaire tramps" who left here several weeks ago on a trip around the world, came to grief between here and Honolulu, according to advices.

The "millionaire tramps" are George D. Little, A. R. Dupont and Sidney R. Francis, the last named being a son of the former governor of Missouri. They are all collegians.

After coming here from Los Angeles in boxcars, the trio signed as able seamen on the four-masted schooner Edward Sewell, bound for Philadelphia via Cape Horn with a cargo of sugar. On the second day out the skipper piped all hands on deck to handle some canvas. The collegians responded, but Little engaged in an argument with Capt. Quick, whereupon the skipper is said to have used regular sea tactics in subduing the mutineers.

Little, who is a lawyer, obtained his discharge at Honolulu and is said to have brought suit against the captain for $30,000.

SEE MYSTERY IN CHICAGO STABBING

Police Think Story of Negroes Invented By Victim of Affair.

Chicago, May 9.—Police are endeavoring to solve the mystery surrounding the probable fatal stabbing of George Thompson, 38 years old, a stationary fireman of Seattle, Wash., who was found unconscious this morning in a West side street suffering from six stab wounds in the neck and body. He is in a critical condition.

Thompson told the police he was attacked by two negroes who stabbed him after robbing him of a watch. Detectives, after an investigation, declared that they believed Thompson invented the story of the robbery by negroes to shield his real assailant.

Two men giving the names of Edward Langston and James Foster later were arrested.

SAYS STEEL CARS ARE SAVING LIVES

Postoffice Official Talks Before Southwestern Association.

Kansas City, Mo., May 9.—The death rate among railway postal employes has been decreased greatly by the more general use of steel cars, according to Joseph Stewart, second assistant postmaster general, in an address before the convention of the Southwestern Postal association, which began its final session here today.

"During the present fiscal year we have had no deaths in mail cars from accidents," Mr. Stewart said. "In the same period last year we had twelve. This is due directly to the increased use of steel cars."

The convention will close with the election of officers this afternoon.

NEW REVOLT AMONG MOROCCO TRIBESMEN.

Casa Blanca, Morocco, May 9.—The tribesmen in the suburbs of Marakesh, one of the three capitals of Morocco, have broken out in revolt. The calif was assassinated and the tribesmen then pillaged the residences of the officials. Agitation against the sultan of Morocco, Mulai Hafid, is gaining ground inside the city of Marakesh.

IMPROVEMENTS FOR WEST END

Hillside Club Will Discuss Parks, Sewers and Lighting.

Civic questions concerning the hillside district will be discussed by the West End Hillside Improvement club at its regular meeting to be held tomorrow evening at the Ensign school, Twenty-third avenue west and Tenth street.

One of the most important features to be taken up at the meeting tomorrow is the proposed street car extension to Hermantown and Proctor. The plans of the club are to secure a petition signed by all the farmers and property owners along the proposed line and then present it to the council and the officials of the street car company. The line desired will extend from the Piedmont avenue line out to the Hutchinson road and then to Proctor by way of the Morris Thomas road.

Reports will be heard from the park committee with regard to the improvement of Central park, Fourteenth avenue west and Fifth street. The members of the committee have been in communication with the park commissioners and the amount necessary to improve the park will be announced to the members of the club. It is the plan of the residents of this end of the city to make Central park an ideal place for picnics and a playground for the children.

Other subjects to be taken up are sewer extentions, better lighting for the hillside district in the West end, the paving of Twenty-seventh avenue west and the installation of a fountain in the vicinity of the Ensign school. A umber of street improvements are to be suggested and a committee will be appointed to meet the members of the council and the board of public works with regard to these. Property owners living on Twenty-seventh avenue west have been invited to attend the meeting of the club and hear the plans of those behind the move to have the street paved. The meeting will be open to the property owners. It is planned to have the street paved under the new annual installment plan.

LOWERING GRADE OF PIEDMONT AVENUE.

Contractor Oscar A. Berglund is at work lowering the upper end of Piedmont avenue and filling in the culvert over Miller creek at Fourteenth street. Men have been working there for the past month and are expected to finish the latter part of next month. The contract for the work was awarded to Contractor Berglund by the county commissioners and provides for the removal of approximately 5,000 yards of dirt.

Piedmont avenue will be lowered about ten feet at the creek, which will reduce its present grade of 15 per cent to 7½ per cent. Twenty-fourth avenue west will then be graded to properly connect with Piedmont avenue at its approach to the creek crossing. The contract price on the excavation is 25 cents per cubic yard. The entire work required, including the filling of the culvert, will cost about $3,000. The roadway at this point will then be about sixty-six feet wide and will afford a splendid turn into Piedmont, Twenty-fourth avenue west or the boulevard.

DULUTHIANS TO ATTEND UNVEILING

Knights of Columbus Will Go to Washington for Exercises June 8.

A number of Duluth Knights of Columbus will go to Washington for the unveiling of the national monument to Christopher Columbus June 8.

Members of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Western Canada councils of the order will travel to Washington by special train leaving the Twin Cities the morning of June 6 and arriving in Washington early on the day of the unveiling.

It is expected that about 50,000 Knights of Columbus will participate in the parade preceding the unveiling of the memorial. The banquet, which will be held on the evening of June 8, will be attended by President Taft and members of his cabinet, Archbishop Bonzano, the new papal delegate to the United States, Cardinal Gibbons and other church dignitaries.

The Columbus memorial was built by the national government and is a work of art that is a valuable addition to the number of fine monuments in the city of Washington.

AMUSES FRIENDS WITH "BLACK ART"

David Eugene Stifft of Minneapolis, one of the most prominent amateur magicians in the country and a member of the various magicians' organizations, is registered at the Spalding. Mr. Stifft is the official representative of the Society of American Magicians and is also prominent in the Twin City association.

Mr. Stifft is anxious to secure any Duluthian who may be interested in the science of black art to join the society of Twin City magicians. The organization at present boasts of fifty-five members, including a number of prominent lawyers, bankers and business men of the Twin Cities. He is desirous of obtaining a strong Duluth representation in the Twin City association and it is probable that if sufficient members join from outside of the Twin Cities the organization will be changed to the Society of Minnesota Magicians.

Mr. Stifft keeps his magic with him at all times and is continually playing tricks on his fellow drummers and friends. He has a number of balls, handkerchiefs and coins about him, which prove a source of amusement to every one he meets. Even his clothes are cut so as to hide these tools and Mr. Stifft is thus able to go through his little amateur performance with skill. He performs a number of coin and ball tricks exceptionally well. Mr. Stifft is a member of the Minneapolis lodge of Elks and has taken part in a number of their programs during the past ten years.

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

LEAVES FROM A REPORTER'S NOTE BOOK BY X

J. M. Carlson, an aged resident of New Duluth, was brought into police court this morning by Game Warden Tom Storey and fined $25 and costs, with the alternative of thirty days in the county jail, after he had pleaded guilty to illegal fishing in the St. Louis river by setting a net.

And thereby hangs a tale. It's quite an interesting little yarn and points a bit of a moral on the evils of talking too much. There's an old saying that a person can get himself into trouble by being too free with conversation and this instance shows that one may also get his friends into trouble by the same means.

Last week is not yet far enough gone to erase recollections of the weather this particular speck on the map was enjoying. One of those dark, wet, windy nights Deputy Warden Storey and Deputy Jim McNaughton of Superior were up the river looking for nets. They were coming down from a dam several miles above Pond du Lac, where they had a launch waiting for them. Soaked to the skin they piled aboard. The seas were kicking over the combing and sitting still after their long walk they began to get chilled. Anticipating unnecessary hardship if they continued to the Fifth avenue dock they concluded to put in at New Duluth to spend the rest of the night.

The launch was made snug for the night and the wardens and the men running the boat went uptown to look for a room. They had little success and turned into the fire hall in quest of information as to hotel accommodations as well as for temporary shelter.

Although it was quite late a number of men were sitting about in the hall swapping stories such as any other crowd of men would be exchanging under similar circumstances. And like any other crowd of men would do they asked the strangers to sit down and make themselves as comfortable as they could under the circumstances. Of course they wanted to know all about the strangers and learned that they had been forced to put in from the river because of the storm.

That was in accordance with the experiences of many other launchers and nothing more was said. The talk turned towards hunting and fishing, either of them prolific subjects for an evening's conversational entertainment. One of the strangers wanted to know if the fishing was any good thereabouts.

That opened the flood gates. For days past the local atmosphere had been filled with rumors of game wardens working along the river. And the things that the wardens heard about themselves and their operations were highly interesting. They were getting more entertainment than they had anticipated. Incidentally, they were getting a lot of information which they had been seeking for many days past.

One man said that so-and-so had a net stretched here and that so-and-so had another net stretched there. A second told of the best places for setting nets. All of which was heard with ears wide open while the mental notebook was working at full capacity.

Yesterday the results began to become apparent. Bearing in mind the most desirable locations for nets, the wardens quietly made their way up the stream before it was yet light. Their expectations were not entirely disappointed. The first streaks of dawn were just beginning to become apparent when Gust Anderson came out to empty his net in a quiet little bay on the Wisconsin side. Before the day was over he had been brought into the Superior municipal court, where he was assessed $25 and costs.

A little later Carlson fell into the tolls of the law. This morning he appeared in the local police court and was handed the same package as Anderson. He thought that the penalty was rather severe, but the court informed him that it was light.

These arrests mark the beginning of a campaign to keep the St. Louis river clear of nets and set lines. The game wardens have declared that they will make a relentless war upon the poachers along the river and the courts have shown that they stand ready to back them up in their efforts.

It's another instance of where a "word to the wise" should be sufficient. Any one who persists in using nets and set lines does so in imminent danger of arrest.

Anton Soder's arrest on a charge o fhaving assaulted Otto Haglund last evening was apparently a case of mistaken identity. It appeared in police court this morning that a man greatly resembling him had been with him at the time the trouble started in a saloon, but that Soder had not left the barroom. Soder's double was evidently the man who decorated Haglund's face and the case against him was dismissed.

Frank Frost, a West Duluth barber, pleaded guilty in police court this morning to barbering without a license. It was reported that he had been told to take the examination several times but had neglected to do so. He asserted that some weeks ago, however, he had paid his fee and was waiting to take his examination. The case was continued to give him an opportunity to show that his statement was correct.

Herbert Schadawald and Ed Hendrickson were arrested about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon on a charge of violating the traffic ordinance. The police reported that they were driving on the wrong side of the street. Both pleaded guilty and paid fines of $1 and costs.

William Quirk said that he had a job when he was brought in with the grist this morning on a charge of having voluntarily become intoxicated. He said that he could go out on an afternoon train. The relatives of Frank Smith, one of the three sailors who was drowned off the end of N. P. dock No. 2 a couple of weeks ago, have not yet been located. An insurance policy payable to his wife was found in his pocket, but she could not be found at the address given. The body is still being held, while the last clew is being run down. The bodies of the other two were sent to their homes in Michigan.

Mary Beauconovich claims that her arrest this morning on a charge of selling beer to Mike Jerkovich was the result of spite work. She asserts that some weeks ago she was instrumental in causing the conviction on a similar charge of another New Duluth resident, and that he hired Mike to get evidence against ser. She absolutely denied her guilt and declared that the bottle of beer which Mike produced as evidence against her was stolen by him from a neighbor's kitchen. She denied that she had any of the malted beverage on her premises. Her trial was started this morning and will be concluded this afternoon.

With the coming of spring a spirit of restlessness has taken hold of a number of men in the employ of the fire department. A number of changes have been made in the last month. Several men have resigned, some to go farming and others to take different positions. Men from the eligible list were appointed to take their places.

FLAUNTS HIS PANAMA HAT

Chicago Lumberman Wears Summer Lid on Streets of Duluth.

Says Railroads Are Beginning to Buy Lumber Again.

Isaac Baker, one of the right hand men of Edward Hines, the lumber baron, hit Duluth today with one of the harbingers of summer—he wore a Panama hat with jaunty air and calm assurance.

While Mr. Baker was stared at, not rudely, but with interest and mild speculation, he seemed utterly oblivious of the interest the chapeau was creating.

"I have been out in the woods for the past three weeks," said Mr. Baker, "so you can't expect me to tell you a great deal about the lumber business. But I do think that the market is looking better.

Mr. Baker was asked whether the lumber market was expanding and whether there was a greater demand for lumber.

"I would not say that the market has shown any great expansion," replied Mr. Baker, "but it is a fact that the railroads and other large users of lumber are buying more at the present time than has been the case during the past year or more.

"Railroads are the greatest users of lumber and when they start to use it in large quantities it is one of the most hopeful signs that the lumber men of the country can look for. On the whole I should say that the lumber business was better and that business along general lines was showing a steady improvement."

S. J. Cusson, general manager of the Virginia & Rainy Lake Lumber company's plant at Virginia, is also in the city, as is D. S. Schlosser of Erie, a wealthy lumberman.

At the Spalding Mr. Cusson stated that the mill at Virginia was extremely busy, intimating that orders on hand would keep the plant busy during the entire summer.

Mr. Baker stated that no business of special interest brought him here.

MARINE

TONNAGE IS IN DEMAND

Wild Carriers Needed to Assist in the Ore Movement.

Grain Shipments Falling Off and Rate Drops to 1½ Cents.

Owing to the fact that about a dozen boats have been taken from the service through accidents and to the heavy demand for tonnage for the moving of grain, the ore trade is suffering for want of carrying capacity.

Many more boats than those consigned to the service at the present time could be used. In other words, wild tonnage is being sought by the shippers. The Eastern mills are short of material and it is stated that a great number of boats could be used if they were available.

During the last ten days about a dozen boats have been put temporarily out of service as the result of accidents. When tonnage is in such demand, the loss of the boats is keenly felt.

The moving of grain is also taking a great number of the boats that are usually used at this period of the season for moving ore. The grain situation is much easier just now than it has been and it is expected that the rush will be over shortly.

Grain Rate Drops.

The grain rate is now 1½ cents, a drop of ¼ of a cent. Since the beginning of the season until very recently the rate has been 1¾ cents and tonnage was eagerly sought at this figure. The present rate looks good for some days, when it is again expected to drop a trifle. A grain man said today that the situation is greatly relieved and that there would not be so much demand for boats to take this commodity after a few days time.

Coal Coming Up Slowly.

Coal shipments are less than a third of what they were a year ago. This is due to the labor trouble which is not yet settled. No hard coal has as yet been received this year, all the cargoes being of soft coal thus far. The coal now being received is said to be coal left over on the docks at ports down the lakes. It is thought that real coal shipping will not begin this season until June 1. If shipping does not begin until this date there will be a rush in coal as well as in the other branches of lake trade.

Boats Are Coming Light.

Even in the present rush season many of the boats are coming up the lake light for grain or ore. This is due to the fact that coal is not moving as it should at this time of the year. Later it is expected that with the coal for up bound boats and grain and ore for east bound, the boats will be busy making as many trips as tney can get in. The regular rush which usually begins in early fall will, it is expected, begin this year about June 15.

Canadian Lock Gains.

Local vesselmen were notified this morning that the Canadian lock has a depth of eighteen feet and one inch. This is a gain of one inch since the last report.

Death of Capt. McLachlan.

Capt. Dugald McLachlin, commodore of the Detroit & Cleveland fleet, died Tuesday. Capt. McLachlin was well known in Duluth, where he visited frequently. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland, 67 years ago and retired from active service on the lakes in 1895.

Lumber Shipping.

Tonnage for the carrying of lumber from Duluth to Lake Erie ports is in demand. A rate of $2.50 is offered and many more boats than those now in use could find profitable employment. Eastern buyers have been buying lumber quite freely during the past ten days in spite of the prices which are considered high. They are badly in need of lumber in the East and local dealers are behind in their shipping.

Boat But Little Damaged.

Word was received from the Soo today that the lighter Reliance is taking the cargo of grain off the Smith Thompson, the boat which went on the rocks of Little Rapids, recently. The dispatch received by The Herald, states that the boat is in good shape, although the actual extent of the damage is not as yet fully known. It was expected that the boat would be floated today.

Tug Pacific Is Sold.

The tug Pacific of Duluth, owned for a number of years by Capt. D. E. Stevens, has been sold to Capt James Whalen of Port Arthur. The Pacific will be sent to Port Arthur as soon as certain improvements have been made. The Pacific was used in 1908-9 to carry passengers between Duluth and Superior. At that time the interstate bridge was out of commision. She is said to have carried some 3,225,000 people while the bridge was out of service.

USED MORPHINE FOR THIRTY-TWO YEARS.

After being addicted to the use of morphine for thirty-two years, Nellie Moore, a cook, was found dead in her bed at the McKay hotel this morning. In her suitcase were found five bottles of morphine.

The dead woman had been employed as a cook in the resort run by Minnie Davis in Superior. She had been suffering from rheumatism for years, and was brought to Duluth Monday by her employer to take treatment here. The Davis woman secured a room for her here, and returned to Superior. This morning she was found dead in bed. The coroner will probably hold a post mortem, but death is believed to have been due to natural causes, and there is no reason to believe it a case of suicide.

The Davis woman stated this morning that Miss Moore had been addicted to the use of morphine for thirty-two years.

Easy to Have Fair Skin and Pretty Hair

The hair and scalp can be kept immaculately clean and sweet by occasionally shampooing with a teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water. This quick-drying shampoo dissolves every particle of dust, dandruff and excess oil, and restores the former even color and brilliance to faded, lifeless hair. Because of its invigorating action, canthrox will encourage the growth of long, beautiful hair.

A highly satisfactory lotion for the skin is made by dissolving 4 ounces of spurmax in ½ pint witch hazel (or hot water), then adding 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. When applied to the skin it is invisible, and its regular use will banish the oily, "muddy," blotchy look so fatal to any complexion. When used on the daintiest skin it will impart an added richness not thought possible.

St. Louis County Can Secure Part of $100,000 Fund.

Is Doing Work Prescribed By Council of Grain Exchanges.

St. Louis county can get $1,000 for agricultural development work by merely making application for the sum.

The crop improvement commission of the Council of Grain Exchanges with headquarters in Chicago is prepared to give $1,000 to each of the first 100 counties to apply for it and comply with the conditions.

The conditions are that the county shall be organized for work among the farmers to improve crops and shall employ a man to work with the individual farmers to that end. A. B. Hostetter, superintendent of agriculture of the Duluth Commercial club, is doing just the work contemplated by the commission. While he is not paid by the county, his work, in effect, entitles the county or the organizations interested in the work to the aid offered.

The crop improvement commission is a clearing house for better farming methods. The Council of Grain Exchanges includes all the grain exchanges in the country. It is working to obtain the co-operation of all transportation, industrial and commercial interests for the dissemination or information on better farming methods. It plans to work through county organizations to reach the individual farmers.

The sum of $100,000 has been offered by J. Rosenwald, president of Sears-Roebuck & Co., to be distributed to the first 100 counties complying with the conditions. If the first offer is successful, Mr. Rosenwald has pledged himself to make the sum $1,000,000 in order to aid 1,000 counties in the work.

destruction was without evil intent, the fact remains that the destruction took place and that is the reason why, so far as the Steel & Wire company is concerned, the restraining order previously granted should be continued."

The opinion then goes on to say that it is not shown that the other defendants were in any respect connected with its acts, and that without evidence the court cannot grant the present petition. The petition therefore is refused except as to the Steel & Wire company, but the government is given permission to renew the petition if at any time counsel shall desire such a step as necessary or desirable.

Assistant for Examiner.

Henry P. Brown of Philadelphia, who some time ago was designated by the United States court as examiner to take evidence for the dissolution of the United States Steel corporation, today filed in the court here his appointment of John Arthur Brown as special examiner to hold hearings with the same authority, power and duties as those conferred by the court upon himself.

The authority for the examiner to appoint a special examiner was conferred by the court in the order appointing Henry P. Brown as examiner.

Trying to Set Date.

New York, May 9.—Further testimony regarding the burning of important papers in the so-called Jackson wire pool cases was taken today at the continuation of the hearing before Commissioner Henry P. Brown of evidence in the government's dissolution suit against the United States Steel corporation.

Jacob M. Dickinson, counsel for the government, said today that one of the main purposes of the present inquiry was to determine whether the papers were burned prior to Oct. 26 last, the date the government's suit against the so-called Steel trust was filed.

The identity of the official of the American Steel & Wire company who ordered the papers destroyed, he said, was another point upon which the government wanted more light.

Cragin on the Stand.

George A. Cragin, assistant sales agent of the wire company, was the first witness today. After he had testified that he represented his company at the meeting of several of the Jackson wire pools, Cragin said Frank Baackes, vice president of the wire company, visited him twice in his office in Worcester and spoke to him about destroying certain papers. On the second occasion, early last November, Baackes asked the witness:

"Have you destroyed those papers?"

"I said," Cragin testified, "that I would give it attention. It was an evasive answer. They had not been destroyed at that time."

The papers, Cragin testified, were destroyed some time in November.

OPENED WAY FOR WATER

about for some twenty minutes before being rescued and saw, he said, at least 1,000 other men swimming or floating on the surface, buoyed up by life preservers. He saw no women in the water.

Praise for Ismay.

The conduct of J. Bruce Ismay, manager director of the International Mercantile Marine, after the casualty, was mentioned for the first time during the British investigation and was described by James Johnson, a steward, as having been exemplary.

Johnson, who left the ship in No. 2 emergency boat, a small dingy, was asked why there were not more women in the boat. He replied that they would not get into it. Mr. Ismay, the witness said, tried to induce the women to enter the dingy but they refused, whereupon he escorted them to larger boats.

"He did everything an Englishman could do," Johnson added.

Women Objected to Rescue Work.

Johnson was asked why his boat had not returned to the scene of the disaster when its occupants heard cries for help. He replied that the officer in charge had asked the women if they should return but the women decided against this course and the officer took their advice.

claimed by many that the new name has not proved satisfactory.

That there is a "suffragette movement" in the church has been shown by the introduction of a memorial which asks that women be licensed to preach. A number of years ago a rule was adopted forbidding the ordaining of a woman minister, but it is probable that the question again will be discussed at the present session.

Praise for Valentine.

Commendation of Indian Commissioner G. Valentine for his order directing that in government schools all insignia of any particular denomination be removed, and that those wearing a distinctive church garb lay such aside while engaged in government duties, was given in a resolution adopted by the conference late Wednesday.

The resolution urges that, "as the president, at the solicitation of certain ecclesiastics, directed that the order of the commissioner be suspended pending a future hearing, which hearing was held on April 8, when the denomination which chiefly offends in the matter of sectarianism in federal service made a strong plea for the revocation of the order, Secretary of the Interior Walter Fisher put the order into immediate effect, instead of withholding his decision until Aug. 1, as he announced."

The conference also went on record as favoring union of the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal church, south; ordered reconsidered by committee, in order to be made more drastic, resolution concerning the Kenyon-Shepard bill, now before congress, which prohibits the introduction of liquor into prohibition states; referred to committee a resolution asking that each member of the church give to the church one-tenth of his income.

Attack Bishop Neley.

In a memorial presented by Rev. Edwin G. Griffith, trustees of the Arch Street Methodist Episcopal church of Philadelphia asked the conference to investigate the action of Bishop Thomas B. Neeley, declaring that the church had been treated in an unwise and unfair manner in the appointment of a pastor. Bishop Neeley earlier in the session also was attacked by a number of the negro delegates of the South, who claimed that he had been but a short time in the four years at his episcopal home in New Orleans.

The episcopal committee of the church, which has been holding executive sessions daily and which politically is one of the principal bodies of the church in that it recommends the number of bishops to be elected, is said to be deadlocked on the number which will retire, to a great extent, depends the number of new bishops to be chosen.

Bishop William A. Quayle lectured before the conference at the night session.

district. In each of the twenty-one districts, however, there are two sets of delegates in the field, the candidates running as either Taft or Roosevelt delegates.

The six delegates-at-large completing Ohio's forty-eight in the national convention will be named by the state convention here.

Roosevelt Gains in Texas.

Dallas, Tex., May 9.—Texas convention returns up to noon today left the results both Democratic and Republican exactly where they were yesterday. Woodrow Wilson swept the state and Theodore Roosevelt gained a clear lead over Taft.

Preparing Burke Boom.

Fargo, N. D., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—When Governor John Burke enters the Baltimore convention as a candidate for president he will have back of him the largest delegation of voters the state ever sent to a national convention. Arrangements are being made for special trains to carry the delegates.

Governor Burke's boom for vice president on the Democratic ticket, as running mate for Wilson, is taking form and will be formally launched shortly.

AAD MEN ARE DESTRUCTIVE

as many tamales to death as I did, while I am told that Patrol Merritt engaged in a desperate hand to hand struggle with the deadly enchildtadas and came off victorious."

The Aad boys did not take part in the athletic games. After their terrific battle with the Spanish barbecue menu they were not in any physical condition to do so, and spent the rest of the afternoon as spectators.

ELEVATOR HEARING IN CHICAGO ENDED.

Mr. Pugh will hold a hearing on the same subject in Omaha, after which witnesses will be heard in Kansas City.

refugees is surprising. One robust white woman had sixteen children strung out after her when she climbed down the steps of a relief train early today. Mothers with eight, nine and a dozen children are numerous among the people coming from Pointe Coupee parish.

Upper River Rising.

La Crosse, Wis., May 9.—The Mississippi river is expected to reach the highest stage in several years within the next two days. The government guage registered 6.06 feet.

Higher at Winona.

Winona, Minn., May 9.—The Mississippi river rose more than a foot in last twelve hours. The bottom lands on the Wisconsin side are all under water, and river men expect the highest stage at this point in many years. The water has not yet reached the danger point, but citizens are fearful of serious trouble.

ROME DENIES TURKISH VICTORY IN RHODES.

Rome, May 9.—An official note issued today declares that the Turkish dispatch received from the governor of Rhodes to the effect that the Turkish troops had won a great victory there and captured 1,000 Italians is false. On the contrary it is stated the Turkish governor of Rhodes and his secretary are prisoners of the Italians and will be sent to Italy.

OLD AGE AND CATARRH.

As old age approaches some changes in different tissues are inevitable. They can be delayed by proper management, but they cannot be altogether stopped.

For instance, old age brings brittle bones, hardened arteries, shortened eye balls, wrinkled skin and enfeebled circulation of blood. These changes are inevitable and each one produces ailments.

When the current of blood begins to slow up from old age changes in the mucous membranes occur. The blood vessels become flabby. They begin to leak the precious blood serum. A condition of chronic catarrh gradually sets in. Chronic catarrh is one of the accompaniments of old age.

Peruna sets the circulation going with new vigor. It tends to hurry the blood through the mucous membranes, strengthening the action of the heart, taking away some of the resistance which the hardened arteries furnish. This helps to bring the mucous membranes to their natural condition, stop the waste of serum; produce a normal state of the linings of the throat, the cavities of the head, lungs, stomach; especially the kidneys and other internal organs.

Peruna is the old people's friend. It delays senile changes. It wards off the encroachments of the years. A dose before each meal sends a thrill of young life through the digestive organs.

SOO TRAIN BRINGS FIRST ORE FROM TWO NEW MINES ON THE CUYUNA

It was a gala day on the Cuyuna iron range yesterday, when a train of twenty-one cars, decked out in flags and bunting pulled out of Crosby with the initial shipment of ore from two mines on the Cuyuna range.

At Crosby and at other Cuyuna range towns through which the train passed, it was greeted with cheers from the people. Bands from the various towns also joined in the demonstration.

The new mines which have been added to the shipping list of the Cuyuna are Armour No. 1 and No. 2. The shipping of the first trainload of ore from these mines yesterday gave evidence of the growing importance of the Cuyuna range as an iron-producing country.

Additional shipments from the Cuyuna this year will increase the receipts at the Soo ore docks considerably. The docks received ore for the first time last year, shipments being received only from the Kennedy mine.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

BRICKMAKING at the city farm at Warrensville, Ohio, as an occupation for the hundreds of workhouse prisoners who will soon be kept at the farm instead of in the institution on Woodland avenue, is to have the immediate attention of city farm officials, Superintendent Cooley of the department of charities and correction is now having the entire subject investigated and it is his plan to start the scheme in a small way by establishing the first unit of a brickmaking plant. The shale at the quarry is to be used and tile will be turned out for use in draining the city farm and other city property. The tile and paving brick will be sold to other city departments, but no attempt will be made to go into the open market. Before a year has elapsed the city farm will have 2,000 residents, including inmates at the institution and city employes and caretakers. The tuberculosis sanitarium will be completed in the summer and work on the administration building and two insane wards of the infirmary group soon will be started.

Duluth's penal farm or workhouse plans are now being considered by a committee of the county board and favorable action is expected. It has been suggested by a correspondent of the Herald that some work should be provided for the prisoners, in the form of a brickyard or something similar. It is argued that the many short term prisoners could not be kept busy on a farm, especially during the winter months. This feature will have to be considered by the committee. Warrensville's experience should be interesting.

Nine yards are included in the transfer, located at Valley City, Jamestown, Rogers, Oriska, Litchville, Hastings, Lanona, Pillsbury and Luverne.

WILL HOLD IN COURTS

New Charter Amendment Right Legally, Says Former City Attorney.

Its Friends Might Try It If Anyone Expresses a Doubt.

Notwithstanding the overwhelming vote of the people last Tuesday in favor of the incorporation of the initiative, referendum and recall in the city charter, there have been subterranean rumblings yesterday and today to the effect that if the amendment or any portions of it were attempted to be applied, some attorneys had expressed the opinion that the election would be held void.

The objections that have been whispered about have grouped themselves into two classes: First, That the election was void because of there being something wrong with the submission of the question at a special election, and second, that even if the election was regular the amendment will not become a part of the charter because it embraces three subects, the initiative, referendum and the recall. Bert Fesler, former city attorney, and one of the leaders in the fight, gave the following opinion on these points today:

"The special election was held in pursuance of chapter 148 of the laws of 1907 and as far as can be ascertained from city officials and others who would be expected to know, the details of the election were carried out strictly in accordance with the provisions of that law. The authority for submitting such a question at a special election is said to be found in chapter 214 of the laws of 1909 and chapter 343 of the laws of 1911. Chapter 343 of the laws of 1911 provides that amendments shall be submitted as in the case of the original charter, and chapter 214 of the laws of 1909 provides that the original charter shall be submitted at a special election if there is no general city election occurring within six months after the delivery of the draft of the charter to the council. It is claimed by those who have been consulted that all of these conditions existed at the time the amendment was submitted last Tuesday.

"As to the validity of the submission of the additions to the charter as one amendment, the authority to do so is found in chapter 343 of the laws of 1911 in which it is said 'the board of freeholders may propose amendments to such charter.' No prohibition of any kind appears in the law as to what such amendments may contain. It may be that some of those who have been whispering about the invalidity of the result of the election have based their opinion on a previous law which was long since repealed.

Are all Allied.

"In the absence of any statutory requirement on the subject, lawyers who are friendly to the amendment that was adopted claim that there could be no objection to its submission as one amendment because the amendment is in the form of an addition of a new chapter to the charter which relates solely to the question of popular control of the city government; that there is a unity of purpose in the three sections of the amendment that easily make them naturally part and parcel of a single expression of the sentiment of the people. It is also pointed out that previous amendments to home rule charters, both in Duluth and elsewhere, which have been passed upon favorably by the courts, have embraced two or more sections in the same amendment.

"We have been unable to find anyone who is willing or desirous of pointing out any specific objection to the election or the regularity of the proposal of the amendment. If anyone can be found who can state any substantial or technical objection to the validity of the adoption of the amendment, a test case would probably be brought by its friends at once in order to settle the question. While there does not seem to be any organized purpose yet to use the amendment, no doubt there are plenty of its friends who would not be unwilling to make a goat of some city official in order to ascertain whether the amendment would be available in case hereafter the necessity for its use should arise."

GRAY SOON TO SUCCEED HILL

Portland, Or., May 9. — When shown a dispatch from New York containing James J. Hill's announcement that he was to become head of the Great Northern, Carl R. Gray, head of the "North Bank" road, said he expected soon to depart for the East to enter his new duties.

Mr. Gray would say nothing regarding his successor and declined to discuss future relation of James J. Hill and his son, Louis Hill, to the Great Northern. It is learned from an unquestioned authority, however, that Joseph H. Young, president of the Northwest Commercial company, will succeed Mr. Gray as head of the "North Bank."

Try This For Faded Hair

How to Restore Youthful Color and Lustre to Gray or Streaky Hair.

Regardless of how much or little hair a woman possesses, it must be of rich, even color and have a silken sheen—otherwise her beauty and attractiveness are seriously impaired. There is a certain element of danger and uncertainty with dyes and hair "shaders," when used on gray, faded or streaky hair, and their use often has a ruinous effect.

When brunette hair turns gray or fades, get a small, original package of barsicum and with one pint of water make a tea. Moisten the comb slightly with this and comb hair each night until youthful color and lustre return. For faded blonde hair, wash in arbane tea, and to restore the former color to auburn hair, wash in plain cambia tea, made by putting one ounce of cambia in a pint of boiling water. No harm results from this treatment, and the effect is entirely satisfactory.

ALLIS-CHALMERS ACTION DELAYED

Chicago, May 9. — Judge K. M. Landis, in the United States district court, refused today to appoint ancillary receivers for the two Allis-Chalmers companies.

Several weeks ago Otto H. Folk and D. W. Call were appointed receivers for the company in the original proceedings in Milwaukee, and the same receivers were sought in the district court here. When the matter first was presented to Judge Landis he continued the petition, and when it was again presented today declared that he would continue the motion for the appointment until he could get a statement from the attorneys in the case regarding the affiliation of the receivers and their interest in the original Allis-Chalmers organization.

"Information has reached me," said Judge Landis, "that the attorneys in the case in Milwaukee were also the attorneys for the original company before receivers were appointed. I want to know if this is true, and I want a report showing just how much all these men are interested in the affair."

Hearing on the petition was continued for a week.

FERGUS FALLS SKI CLUB QUESTION IS APPEALED.

St. Paul, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Attorney General Smith today, in behalf of Secretary of State Schmahl, filed an appeal with the state supreme court from the decision of Judge Brill of the Ramsey county district court in the case of the Fergus Falls Ski club. The lower court held that the club, as a social organization, had not to pay for filing articles of incorporation.

Erase Those Wrinkles and Look Years Younger

The old-fashioned Chinese ice-pencil is now advocated for rubbing out wrinkles and fine lines, and it is so simple to use and so effective that furrows are inexcusable. The ice-pencil is rubbed the long way of the wrinkle, then the skin gentle massaged. A few treatments will banish every line or crease and leave the skin smooth and clear.

This treatment gradually dissolves the fatty tissues on each side of the wrinkle and energizes the delicate membrane under the crease. Because of its slight astringency, the Chinese ice-pencil is splendid to correct flabby skins and "chops." The ice is applied and massaged well in, and a few times using gradually contracts the muscles until they are normal. Using the Chinese ice-pencil cleanses the skin and makes it soft, velvety and of a beautiful tint. Any druggist can supply one for a trifling sum.

MINNESOTA POLITICS

Roosevelt and "Uninstructed" Organizations Busy in St. Louis County--La Follette's Chances Not So Bright in Seventh and Ninth Districts--Gordon to Make Keynote Speech at Willmar--Wolfer Mentioned for Governor.

Both Organizations Busy.

The ordinary voters of St. Louis county, who do not usually take an active interest in the primaries of the Republican party, are beginning to realize that caucuses having an important bearing on the national campaign are to be held Saturday.

The St. Louis County Roosevelt club is carrying its fight to the people. By newspaper advertisements and personal solicitations, members of the club are appealing to the voters to get out to the caucuses. A large attendance at the caucuses is the hope of the Roosevelt supporters for the control of the county convention.

The "uninstructed" organization is also busy. Taft tickets at the caucuses will not be labeled and the Taft men will makt their fight on an uninstructed basis. Needless to say, the "uninstructed" delegates will all be safe Taft men. The Taft leaders hope that many voters who do not believe Taft can be nominated and are opposed to Roosevelt, will fall into the uninstructed movement. If the "uninstructed" organization should gain control of the district convention, there would be no need for instructions for the two delegates who would be chosen. They would be Taft men beyond question.

La Follette Out of It.

The results in Pope and Beltrami counties indate that La Follette's chances of carrying the Seventh and Ninth districts are not as bright as the La Follette men had believed. The officers of the Minnesota Progressive league are anti-Roosevelt, but that is not true of the followers in the ranks. A majority of the voters who were supporting La Follette were doing so because they believed he had the best chance of putting progressive principles into effect in the nation. Many now see the impossibility of La Follette's nomination and they are turning to Roosevelt, whom they believe to have a chance for nomination. They will not follow a forlorn hope.

As a result, Roosevelt is very likely to carry the Seventh and Ninth districts, despite the strong La Follette sentiment that has been shown there. Much of it was progressive sentiment and progressive sentiment in bulk is crystallizing on the colonel.

Attendance at caucuses in the country districts will not be as great as the Progressives had hoped. The prospect of poor attendance is ascribed to apathy by some, but it is probably less apathy than the rush of farm work, which will not permit the farmers to leave their fields to take part in the campaign.

Democratic Campaign

The Democratic campaign in Minnesota is warming up with vigorous propaganda work being done by the Clark adherents, led by W. H. Williams of Minneapolis. P. A. Curdy, who is in charge of the Wilson headquarters at Minneapolis, has confined his activities largely to Hennipen county thus far, but the Wilson cause has workers in every county. They are volunteers who are convinced that the New Jersey governor is the right man for the Democratic nomination this year and they are working to give him the support of their counties. The move of Z. H. Austin in opening Bryan headquarters in Minneapolis is not regarded as significant. The Wilson sentiment is so strong in Minnesota that there is doubt of a real contest developing in the state convention or in more than two or three districts, but any contests that develop will be between Clark and Wilson.

Activity in Kandiyohi.

Lieutenant Governor Sam Y. Gordon, who is speaking in Kandiyohi county this week, will make the keynote speech of his campaign at Willmar Friday evening. He will cover the issues of the state campaign, as raised in his platform, and as they will be dealt with in future speeches during the campaign.

Kandiyohi county at the caucuses Saturday will also elect delegates to the county convention to be held June 28. The situation is an unusual one and has precipitated the opening of the state campaign in full vigor. Gordon is working personally in the county and work is also being done for William E. Lee. The Anti-Saloon league is appealing for support for Lee. Gordon's friends also charge that the Eberhart people, who know Eberhart has no chance of carrying the county, are working for Lee in order to discredit Gordon in his own congressional district. Gordon is working hard to carry the county, as a victory will give him an advantage over the other candidates.

Anoka For Roosevelt.

The Anoka Herald says that Anoka county will send solid Roosevelt delegations to the state and district conventions. Irving A. Caswell's home is in Anoka and that fact improves the colonel's chances of carrying the county. Mr. Caswell is popular in his home county and his friends are working hard for the success of the cause he is leading in the state.

Wolfer Talked for Governor.

Warden Wolfer of the state prison at Stillwater is said to be held in reserve as a candidate for governor if the organization determines that Eberhart cannot be nominated. State Auditor S. G. Iverson has frequently been mentioned in the same connection and if the organization should decide to sidetrack Eberhart, there may be a clash. L. C. Spooner and Mr. Woolfer have been brought close together through Mr. Spooner's interest in the prison in the legislature, and should they come into opposition for the governorship nomination, an interesting situation would result.

Hennepin County Caucuses.

The Hennepin county caucuses will be held tomorrow and the control of the Fifth district, that will be the first district to be decided. Roosevelt, Taft and La Follette tickets will be offered at the caucuses, but the contest is between Roosevelt and Taft.

HEAR ABOUT ARCHBALD

Members of House Committee Take Evidence of Deal With Railroad.

Are Told of One Decision Adverse to Men Who Were Not Friendly.

Washington, May 9.—Charges against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court were unfolded yesterday afternoon before the house committee on judiciary, which is to determine if impeachment proceedings shall be brought against the jurist.

How Judge Archbald, in partnership with Edward J. Williams, a Scranton coal dealer, while deliberating as a judge on the "lighterage cases" to which the Erie railroad was a party, is alleged to have negotiated an option from that railroad for 42,000 tons of culm property to be sold at a $12,000 profit, was related to the committee by Williams himself yesterday.

Judge Archbald, accompanied by his two sons and his counsel, A. S. Worthington, heard the testimony and occasionally looked at photographic copies of letters bearing on the case, one of them a letter in which the judge told of his connection with the culm bank negotiations.

Rejected Note and Lost Case.

In addition to that transaction, Williams told of another deal in which he said Judge Archbald acquired an interest with him in an option on 1,000,000 acres of Venezuelan timber land, for which the judge gave a note for $500. Williams tried to discount this note with C. J. and W. P. Boland of the American Coal company of Scranton, who at that time had a case pending before Judge Archbald in the federal court. The Bolands refused to discount the note, and later lost their case. Williams admitted telling W. P. Boland that if he had discounted Judge Archbald's note, the case might have resulted differently, but he denied that Judge Archbald knew anything of his making such a remark to Boland.

Archbald "Silent Party."

The testimony relating to the culm bank transaction included reference to an assignment by Williams of an interest in the options secured to W. P. Boland and a "silent party" who, he admitted, under examination, was Judge Archbald. When asked why Judge Archbald had been referred to as a "silent party" Williams said he thought it was not lawful for a jurist's name to be used in such transactions.

Williams related how the option for the culm property was negotiated from officers of the Erie railroad, and told how a sale for the property was negotiated, and that he and Judge Archbald were to divide the profits. Judge Archbald, during the negotiations with the Erie, told that the lighterage case was then before his court, Williams said.

Showed Him the Briefs.

"Judge Archbald showed me the briefs in the case," said Williams, "and told me it was about the lighterage case in which the Erie was interested. Then he gave me a letter to Mr. May of the Erie and also told me that he would see the general counsel for the Erie, Mr. Brownell, about the option."

How the option was given soon thereafter and a deal to sell the property at a $12,000 profit later frustrated by the Lackawanna & Wyoming Railroad company, was described by the witness in detail.

Another transaction, which the committee did not get, but will inquire about when the hearing is resumed Friday, involved an alleged transaction for other culm bank property in which Judge Archbald, a man named Dainty and the Lehigh Valley railroad, were said to be interested. This deal, it is said, was interrupted by charges filed with the department of justice against Judge Archbald in connection with the other cases.

Signed Without Reading.

When Williams was first called to the stand and told of the transaction involving Judge Archbald's note for $500 and the case in his court in which the Bolands were interested, Chairman Clayton produced a photographic copy of a letter signed by Williams in which he said he had told W. P. Boland that had he discounted Judge Archbald's note, the case of John Peel vs. the Marion Coal company, in which the Bolands were interested, would not have been decided against them.

The letter was read to Williams and he said dramatically:

"I can swear before God that those words never came from me."

"Did you sign this letter?" asked the chairman.

"Yes, that is my signature, but I signed it without looking at it. I did not know those words were there."

The letter was dated Scranton, Pa., July 31, 1911 and addressed "To whom it may concern."

Confused at Times.

Williams at times became confused, but was emphatic in all his answers regarding the culm bank transaction.

Representative Sterling of Illinois questioned the witness about the negotiations for the culm option with Capt. May of the Erie following Williams' first visit to May.

"I told the judge," said Williams, "after I'd seen May that I did not think I could get that part of the culm, and Judge Archbald said: 'I'll see about it. I'll see Mr. Brownell, counsel for the Erie.'"

"Did the judge tell you he was going to New York to see Mr. Brownell?"

"No, but some time afterward the judge told me he had seen Brownell and that I was to go to see him and that the deed for the culm would be given."

"Did the judge say anything about Brownell going to write to May?"

"No, but he told me he had seen Brownell and May answered that May had told me to come up and see him. I went up there and got the contract."

The committee adjourned late in the afternoon, to resume the examination of Williams Friday.

GRAND JURY FREES FOUR

John Wright and Charles Firoved Among Those Given Liberty.

Sixteen Indictments Returned, Eight Against Men in Custody.

Late yesterday afternoon the May grand jury made its final report to Judge Dancer and was dismissed from further service. Sixteen indictments were returned, eight of which were secret. Four reports of no true bills were returned.

The grand jury failed to indict John Wright and Charles Fivored, who were arrested recently and charged with having taken liberties with young girls. No true bills were also returned against Ben Meltz, accused of stealing brass from the Duluth Boiler works and Steve Sterman held on the charge of stealing a time check.

The indictments returned yesterday and made public were:

C. N. Hamilton, grand larceny, first degree, charged with having embezzled $2,012 from the People's Brewing company.

John B. Lessard, grand larceny, first degree, accused of breaking into a store at Proctor and stealing goods valued at $50 from George McEwen.

John Sillampa, Herman Hermanson and Peter Morozowski for grand larceny, second degree. Sillampa, a bartender, is accused of having stolen $53 from his employer, M. W. Lind; Hermanson is charged with having stolen $30 from Gust Anttila and Morozowski is accused of having taken fifteen pigs of lead from Emil Engle.

Mike Pupavach was indicted on two counts charging first degree assault. He is accused of having made a vicious attack on J. L. Sullivan and Raymond Meagher early Tuesday morning at the Boston lunch.

Vernon R. Bell was indicted for attempted arson. He is accused of having tried to burn a West Duluth building which Miss Stantone was telling what she received by telepathic thought transference from 'Mercedes,' the editor showed the figures to "Mercedes" and asked Miss Stantone what the sum was. She promptly stated the right number over the telephone.

"Mercedes" had before his eyes a poem, and, one at a time, the members of the staff picked out certain verses for him to read. As he read, Miss Stantone each time recited the same verse.

"How many pencils have I in my pocket?" "What is the color of my tie?" and many other such questions were asked over the telephone by various scribs, and each time Miss Stantone received the necessary information from the mind of "Mercedes" and gave the correct answer.

DEMONSTRATION OF TELEPATHY

"Mercedes" and His Assistant Perform for Staff of The Herald.

A practical demonstration of telepathy was given at The Herald office yesterday afternoon by "Mercedes" and his assistant, Miss Stanstone, the latter being at the Empress theater. Miss Stantone read the mind of "Mercedes," while he was seated in The Herald office, and told various members of the editorial staff just what his thoughts were.

There was absolutely no chance for collusion or deceit of any kind. One of the editors jotted down a column of numbers and added them. Then, holding both the transmitter and receiver of the telephone by means of

FAREWELL LUNCHEON

A luncheon was given by the secretarial staff of the Duluth Y. M. C. A. at noon Wednesday in honor of Phil Bevis. The occasion was a solemn one, N. D. McLeod having worked with Mr. Bevis for nine years, acted as toastmaster.

Mr. McLeod spoke of his relations with Mr. Bevis as being that of father and son. "I came here nine years ago," he said, "and entered my first field in Y. M. C. A. work. Mr. Bevis took me into his home and trained me in the association policies, and it was due to Mr. Bevis' vision and his shaping of policies that the boys' department has done the work in these nine years it has."

After Mr. McLeod's remarks each one of the secretaries expressed his appreciation of having the privilege of working on the staff with Mr. Bevis.

At the close of the luncheon a handsome black traveling case was presented to him by the secretaries.

LEFT SHIP ON LAST BOAT

Miss Constance Willard Rescued Twenty Minutes Before Titanic Sank.

Duluth Young Woman Arrives Home After Trying Experiences.

Miss Constance Willard, a survivor of the Titanic wreck, arrived in Duluth last evening from Minneapolis. Today she is a guest at the home of Mrs. M. L. Parker, 3009 Minnesota avenue. Miss Willard is a Duluth young woman and formerly resided at 1230 East Eighth street.

Her account of the sinking of the Titanic was very similar to published statements of the other survivors of the wreck. She places the blame on the attempt of officials of the White Star line to make a record-breaking voyage across the Atlantic.

Miss Willard is still suffering from the nervous shock brought upon by her experience on the sinking Titanic. At Minneapolis yesterday she sprained her left arm and today she is confined to her room with her injuries.

Miss Willard declared that the heroism of the men on the ship was noble. When the officers of the ship insisted on the "women first" rule all stood back without a murmur, said Miss Willard.

Like most other passengers on the Titanic, Miss Willard says, the first shock of the collision with the iceberg was not the cause of much alarm. It was about an hour later, when she was disturbed by hearing people move about on the boat that she first learned the real danger. There were fifteen people in the lifeboat which carried Miss Willard away from the sinking boat. Of this number, five were sailors and with one exception besides Miss Willard, all were second and third-class passengers. The lifeboat was the last one to leave and pulled away just twenty minutes before the ship went down.

"The ship was lighted until it disappeared under the waves," said Miss Willard. "I shall never forget the scene. The night was bitter cold. The sky was clear. After the big steamer had sunk, and until the arrival of the Carpathia, I recalled many incidents of my childhood days." Miss Willard spoke well of the treatment accorded the survivors by the passengers and crew of the Carpathia.

Miss Willard rather indignantly denied having any connection with the alleged photograph of her published in the morning paper. "The photograph published over my name in the News Tribune is not mine and does not resemble me in any manner," said Miss Willard.

HARMON DENIES BRYAN'S DELEGATE-BUYING CHARGE.

"I most emphatically deny," he said, "that anyone authorized by me or by my authority attempted to purchase any delegates at the Denver convention in 1908."

THE COMMISSION PLAN NEXT.

Now that Duluth has laid the foundations by adopting the initiative, the referendum and the recall, the next step should be the complete commission plan of city government.

The action taken Tuesday is not a substitute for the commission plan, nor does it remove the need of adopting the commission plan. While the initiative, referendum and recall are essential features of this modern system of businesslike city government, there are other features quite as essential.

There must be non-partisan city elections, so that public officials may be elected for fitness, and not, either in part or in whole, because they are members of any political party.

There must be an abolition of the ward system, so that the city government may be able to direct its full energy toward the welfare of the whole city, which necessarily includes proper consideration of the welfare of all sections of the city.

There must be an end to overlapping of authority, with its resulting conflicts and omissions.

There must be an end to a disorganized condition under which some important matters seem to be reached by no authority at all.

There must be a co-ordination of all departments so that they will work in harmony for a common end.

There must be a centralization of responsibility, so that it will be impossible for any citizen, wishing to complain of city service, to be handed from one department to another without being able to put his finger on the officer responsible for the trouble.

Under the commission plan, five men are entrusted with the city's affairs, and are paid enough so that they will put in their whole time on them. There is no other business on earth except a city's business in which it has been the practice to trust the management to men who can give but a small part of their time to their official duties. The city now pays the mayor $2,500 and aldermen $300 a year; and it cannot get, for these sums, qualified men who can devote their whole time to city business.

The initiative, referendum and recall are essentials of the commission form of government, because the centralization of authority it provides also carries with it centralization of power; and direct popular control is necessary as a check upon that centralized power.

But the adoption of these tools of popular control does not do away with the need of the commission plan. The need of it is as great as it was before.

St. Paul Tuesday adopted amendments to its city charter which give it a variety of the commission plan, though not the commission plan in its full form. Superior adopted the commission plan some time ago. Several Minnesota cities have adopted it in its full form, and many more are considering it with a view to its early adoption.

Is Duluth to be last among the cities to adopt this plan which simply does away with party politics, unnecessary confusions, needless expense and foolish complexities, and puts city business on a simple, easily handled and quickly responsive business basis?

For the People Only.

Members of congress are in favor of the coining of half-cents, but not for the purpose of shaving the fractions off their own salaries.

ST. PAUL'S VICTORY.

St. Paul is about the last city in the state that might be expected to adopt the commission plan, yet the vote in favor of it at Tuesday's election was 20,640 to 4,137 against it. The St. Paul plan differs from the regular commission plan in that it gives more power to the mayor, has six commissioners instead of five, and elects its comptroller. The new government does not go into effect until at the expiration of the terms of the city officers who were elected Tuesday.

St. Paul is to be congratulated on this important step ahead, and Duluth hopes that it will soon be able to follow, though it regrets that it did not lead, as it usually does.

The Call of the Stump.

Senator Clapp says he's too busy to look into the matter of campaign contributions as chairman of a senate committee. Perhaps the senator is planning to make some original oracular campaign contributions of his own.

ATTEND THE PRIMARIES.

Saturday evening the Republican caucuses will be held, when delegates will be chosen from each precinct to the county conventions which select delegates to the district and state conventions which elect delegates to the Republican national convention.

Two weeks from Saturday evening the Democratic caucuses will be held, when the same process on the Democratic side begins.

All this complicated machinery is unnecessary, and it would be far better to have a legal presidential preference primary; but thanks to a state administration which refused to call an extra session for the purpose of passing such a law, this machinery is the best there is available.

The members of both parties should attend their caucuses, or be forever silent about the result. If they have a choice for president, they should go to the primaries and vote for the delegates who promise to work for the nomination of that candidate. If they do not attend the primaries, they forfeit their right to criticize the result.

Saturday, according to reports, there will be two sets of delegates running in each precinct. One set will represent the Roosevelt candidacy, and the other will represent the Taft candidacy or will not, on the surface, represent any candidacy at all, which is much the same thing as being for Taft.

Those who wish Roosevelt nominated should attend the caucus in their polling place. Those who wish Taft nominated should do the same thing. Those who believe neither should be nominated can do as they please, and if they wish sympathy they will find lots of it.

But those who do not attend the caucuses of their party, and find later that the bosses have run them to suit themselves, will be in no position to complain about it.

Wickersham, Attention!

Evidently there is one monster trust that has not yet been attacked. Down in a Florida town there is a sign reading: "Jabez Gunther, confectionery, patent medicine, hymn books and insect powder."

NEW DULUTH'S BANQUET.

New Duluth has developed into another section of the city with a live commercial club and a vigorous public spirit, judging from the character of the second annual banquet of the New Duluth Commercial club held last evening. As the coming industrial center of the Head of the Lakes, it well becomes New Duluth to exhibit the enterprise and "ginger" that it showed at last night's happy gathering. Success to it.

Both Have to Hustle.

After all, the Taft-Roosevelt controversy as to who didn't bust the Harvester trust bears a striking similarity to a row between swimmers as to who rocked the boat.

THE USE OF THE I., R. AND R.

The Herald believes that those who argued that the initiative, referendum and recall are bad things because they would keep the city in hot water all the time and produce an endless succession of elections are mistaken, and Tuesday's vote indicates that the argument didn't impress very many people.

These implements of self-government should not be used lightly or frivolously. The percentages required to set them in motion were made fairly high for the express purpose of preventing such uses, which of course would bring the principle into disrepute.

It will not be necessary to use any of them often, and it may not be necessary to use any of them at all. On the whole, there seems little reason to doubt that if the city's public servants consider the best interests of the community as a whole, and make their official acts correspond with their best conception of these interests, there will be little occasion for the use of either initiative, referendum or recall. Like a standing army, their best service is to obviate the need of their being used. They will keep public officials in a respectful attitude toward public opinion.

Must Have Been.

Now it is said the price of groceries is to go up. Great Caesar! Has there been a dissolution of a grocery trust, too?

THE MINNESOTA PRIMARY.

The Duluth Herald in its desire to amend the primary law advocates a wide departure — which is the abolition of political parties.—St. Cloud Journal-Press.

Since it is, of course, impossible that the Journal-Press is slow of understanding or would deliberately distort the utterance of another newspaper, it is clear that The Herald must have been somewhat unfortunate in its manner of expressing its ideas.

The Journal-Press wants the primary election law amended so that all candidates before the primary election must be presented by party conventions.

The Herald believes that would nullify the primary election principle and make the primary election a useless excrescence on the convention system, so it does not believe in the Journal-Press plan.

But that isn't advocating the abolition of parties. Neither is it advocating the abolition of parties to state the unchallengable truth that party organizations, up to date, have done more in the service of those who come, with moneybags in their hands, seeking special privileges, than they have done for the people.

The Journal-Press, evidently, is unable to distinguish between curbing the power of the party organization and abolishing the parties. It must be obsessed, therefore, with the ancient notion that the party organization—the inner ring that controls party processes under the convention system—is the party.

Says the Journal-Press: "If we understand The Herald correctly, it would really put the state and national governments under what is known in cities as the commission form." The Journal-Press has found nothing in The Herald to warrant any such understanding. The commission plan is not yet proposed for either state or national government.

However, while it is entirely logical and proper to decide national elections on national issues, it is entirely illogical and absurd to decide state elections on national issues; and now that the Journal-Press speaks of it we can see no possible objection to abolishing partisanship in state elections. We certainly do believe that the application of the short ballot idea to state governments, so that only the governor, lieutenant-governor, legislature and supreme court would be elected by the people, and the governor would appoint all state officers and become personally responsible for their behavior in office, with the adoption of the initiative and the referendum to check the legislature, and the adoption of the recall to check both the legislature and the governor, would be a long step toward efficiency and economy in state government. However, it is a step that will not be taken immediately.

The Journal-Press and The Herald are agreed on one thing, though reaching their conclusions from two different angles; and that is that some way of initiating candidacies in addition to the personal initiative of the candidate is needed. The Journal-Press would close the door of the primary, allowing it to be opened only by party conventions. The Herald would throw the door of the primary wide open to all party members, but it would also provide that candidacies may be initiated by petitions.

The Journal-Press is seeking party welfare first. The Herald is seeking public welfare first. So long as parties prove efficient implements for doing the public will, hurrah for parties. But if any party had to be destroyed to effect the public will and to promote the public welfare, The Herald would have no regrets, because the public welfare should come first.

The Journal-Press must understand that parties are not ends to be served, but means to an end—the end of the public good. When parties cease to be efficient means to that end, it would be folly to cling to them.

The state examiner's office reports that the state administration has been too lavish in the appointment of members of the parole board. Is this another instance of the economical administration of state affairs?

GARDNER AND T. R.

By SAVOYARD.

The Hon. Augustus P. Gardner is a statesman after the order that Israel Putnam was a warrior. Not even John Quincy Adams was more pugnacious or more intrepid. For a cause that he held dear the Hon. Gardner would go to worms, though every tile of every house came down on his devoted head. In a quarrel he held good, Mr. Gardner would face

—"The rugged Russian bear,
The arm'd rhinoceros, or the Hyrcan tiger."

He is of that ilk that harks back to Cromwell's men, stern for virtue, they passing on what is virtue and what is vice. He is of that Massachusetts that suffered agony, sweat blood, for the sins you and I committed. In short, the Hon. Gardner is constructed on lines similar to those that characterized, the varmint of which that delicious poet, Sir William Wallace of Chicken Bristle, Ky., wrote these witching lines:

"That ring-tail monkey from the Tuscaloo
Went in to fight the kangaroo.
He fought and he fit till his belly dragged the ground,
An' he curl'd up his tail an' fit another round."

That is the Hon. Augustus Peabody Gardner. He is a bumptious man and dares do that which might well appall 40,000 timid politicians.

Well, the Hon. Gardner had the temerity to challenge the colonel, the mighty captain of probity, the exemplar of all that is excellent in citizenship, the butt-out of all wisdom, the upper crust of profound statecraft—even T. R. —and the first thing Mr. Gardner did to him was to fling him into the Ananias club. Then Mr. Gardner hurled this at his adversary:

"I challenge you to produce the suppressed report of your own commissioner of corporations, Herbert Knox Smith, with regard to the Harvester trust. I assert that this report explicitly shows that the Morgan interests always favored your administration."

To that the colonel made answer that there never was a suppressed paper of any kind about the Harvester trust, nor, so far as he knew, about any other trust, while he was president.

But it turns out that there was a "suppressed paper," a document composed by one Herbert Knox Smith, himself a rather "bumptious" man. While the colonel was making his denial, in which, it is needless to say, he put Gardner in the Ananias club, the department sent to the United States senate the very paper under discussion, and certainly it had been suppressed by order of Theodore Roosevelt himself. Indeed it is charged that he ordered the record sent to the White House and had it under his thumb. Can you argue with such a man? Gardner can.

Roosevelt poses as the original trust buster, the best friend of the people. He has made more noise in such behalf than all the other demagogues our country ever mustered. The Harvester trust had a monopoly of the production and sale of farm machinery. Every acre of tillable land in the Union, garden and plantation alike, paid it tribute, and it sold its wares abroad cheaper than it sold them to domestic customers. It was a J. Pierpont Morgan property, capitalized at more than $100,000,000, chiefly water, I doubt not.

A certain United States senator from one of the wheat states, a Republican, insisted on prosecuting the Harvester trust as a combination in restraint of trade, and he made so much fuss about it that the Roosevelt administration set about an "investigation" and this here Herbert Knox Smith was appointed to the job. He is the man who made the suppressed report in which he ventured to say to the president that the Sherman anti-trust law was no good anyhow, and the Harvester trust a thoroughly respectable, intensely moral, superlatively good trust. And that is not all he said. He said this:

"He (Mr. Perkins) concluded with great emphasis with the remark that if, after all the endeavors of this company and the other Morgan interests to uphold the policy of the administration and to adopt their methods of modern publicity, this company was now to be attacked in a purely technical case, the interests he represented were 'going to fight.'"

Who's Perkins? He is J. Pierpont Morgan's partner, as was that Mr. Bacon whom Roosevelt made minister to France. Mr. Perkins is a big magnate in the Steel trust. He is the man who got $50,000 from the Equitable Life Insurance company, the property of widows and orphans, and gave it to Cortelyou in 1904, and it was used to elect Theodore Roosevelt president of the United States. When Alton B. Parker said that sort of thing was going on, Roosevelt said Parker was a liar, though Roosevelt himself beseecher Edward H. Harriman to raise the slush fund and he did it.

The report of Smith, or rather paper that Smith sent to Roosevelt, was suppressed. Of that there can be no sort of doubt, suppressed by Roosevelt.

Roosevelt is the man who separated the trusts into two classes, good and bad. In 1904 Harriman's railroad trust was good. Why? Because Harriman's railroad raised $260,000 for the campaign Cortelyou managed. In 1906 Harriman's railroads were an atrociously bad trust. Why? Because Harriman refused to give a cent to the campaign Jim Sherman was managing as chairman of the congressional committee, that had in charge the elections when the Sixtieth congress was chosen.

According to the Roosevelt classification the Morgan trusts have always been "good." Only a while ago the Stanley committee unearthed facts that showed that Morgan's Steel trust was as bad as can be. Taft sued it, seeking to dissolve it. Roosevelt said that the suit was an outrage, that the Steel trust was good. And why should it be classed as bad? Did not this same Perkins give $15,000 in March last to carry New York for a third term? Of course he did. And Munsey, the biggest stockholder of the Steel trust, gave another $10,000 to that same slush fund. There is no denial of that.

In Pennsylvania the other day we saw the Steel trust and the striking coal miners working hand in hand for Teddy. Flinn, that even Quay could not stand, carried Pittsburg for Roosevelt. How can you beat such a man?

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

DISTINCTIVE SIGNALS FOR FIRE AUTOMOBILES.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I would like to make a suggestion for the safety of the public in general and one I deem necessary for the city council to adopt for the welfare of the city fire department's automobiles. I have been watching this change of warning signals on the fire department's automobiles and I believe this last one adopted is a grand one. Living at the busy corner of Garfield avenue and Superior street, I am in a position to know its value as a warning signal, but what I object to is that the kids and others on small bicycles that would not do any harm if they were to hit something, have adopted the same signal which I believe is misleading and diminishes its value as a warning signal. People will become accustomed to those bicycle noises and will not use the extra precaution to get out of the way, as they would in case a fire patrol was approaching. Yours very truly,

C. F. LOERKE,
1602 West Superior street.
Duluth, May 8.

DISORDERLY NEIGHBORS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Would you kindly publish the laws regarding people who keep up rackets in their home till all hours of the night and keep the neighbors awake?

A SUBSCRIBER.

The city has an ordinance classing such places as disorderly houses. Warrants for the arrest of those responsible can be obtained, if the evidence is sufficient, from the special assistant attorney, who has his office in the city hall. The penalty provided is a fine of not to exceed $100 or imprisonment not to exceed ninety days.—The Editor.

The Aristocrats of the Garden.

From Charles Dudley Warner's "My Summer in a Garden": Why do we respect some vegetables and despise others, when all of them come to an equal honor or ignominy on the table? The bean is a graceful, confiding, engaging vine; but you never can put beans into poetry, nor into the highest sort of prose. There is no dignity in the bean. Corn—which in my garden grows alongside the bean, and, as far as I can see, with no affectation of superiority—is, however, the child of song. It waves in all literature. But mix it with beans, and its high tone is gone. Succotash is vulgar. It is the bean in it. The bean is a vulgar vegetable, without culture, or any flavor of high society among vegetables.

Then there is the cool cucumber—like so many people, good for nothing when it is ripe and the wildness has gone out of it. How inferior to the melon, which grows upon a similar vine, is of a like watery consistency, but is not half so valuable! The cucumber is a sort of low comedian in a company where the melon is a minor gentleman. I might also contrast the celery with the potato. The associations are as opposite as the dining room of the duchess and the cabin of the peasant. I admire the potato in both vine and blossom; but it is not aristocratic.

The lettuce is to me the most interesting study. Lettuce is like conversation: it must be fresh and crisp, so sparkling that you scarcely notice the bitter in it. Lettuce, like most talkers, is, however, apt to run rapidly to seed. Blessed is that sort which comes to a head and so remains—like a few people I know—growing more solid and satisfactory and tender at the same time, and whiter at the center, and crisp in their maturity. Lettuce, like conversation, requires a good deal of oil to avoid friction and keep the company smooth; a pinch of Attic salt, a dash of pepper, a quantity of mustard and vinegar, by all means—but so mixed that you will notice no sharp contrasts—and a trifle of sugar. You can put anything—and the more things the better—into salad, as into conversation; but everything depends upon the skill in mixing. I feel that I am in the best society when I am with lettuce. It is in the select circle of vegetables.

GETTING RID OF BUNCOMBE.

Chicago Tribune: Texas reports, almost flippantly and altogether joyously, that every county in which the Hon. Joseph Weldon Bailey spoke for Harmon was carried by Wilson.

If the Texans be inclined to regard this as a prosperity note and to use it in booming Texas, they will be justified. When a state finds itself yawning over the bunk that is Bailey's or bored by it, untouched and unmoved otherwise by it, that state has come into its political manhood and no longer needs predigested foods or certified milk.

The tear compeller, when demonstrating his abilities in the United States senate, but feebly reveals himself. He buds, but he does not blossom. It is only when he faces his native freemen on his native soil that the moist Bailey takes off the wrappings of his soul and stands forth in all his oleaginous grandeur.

Bailey was Bailey at his moistest in enlisting to persuade Texans to instruct their delegates for Harmon—for Harmon or, if not for him, for Underwood, or, if not for Underwood, for Clark—for any one except Wilson.

"O, my fellow countrymen—" thus the tear compeller—"I have enemies. I do not understand why. I never have been able to understand why God created snakes, frogs and flies. They must serve a purpose; there must be a reason for them. So there must be a reason for the existence of Socialists, Republicans, Populists and anti-Bailey men."

Thus the meek and humble Bailey, standing uncomprehending, but submissive, before the works of Divine Providence.

"In this congressional district (any one he happened to be in) are to be found the blackest soil and the whitest people in the world."

Thus the exultant Bailey, feeling the throb of pride.

"Carnegie is trying to give money away, perhaps in an effort to secure the Lord's forgiveness. If Carnegie wants to make peace with his Maker he must go down upon his knees and ask it; that is one thing that is above price. But to return to Wilson:

"He was giving up the office of professor to engage in politics. Can't he make a living? If he can't he is not fit to hold the office of president. If he can't make a living for himself, how can he make it for the country?"

Thus the unanswerable Bailey; the I-wait-for-a-reply Bailey, the triumphant Bailey.

"I used to tell you people that whenever you find a man who looks like he is sorry God made him, he is a Socialist or a Populist."

Thus the mildly jocular but incisive Bailey. This and much more from the now sprinkling, now thundering Bailey—and every county in which he spoke for Harmon was carried by Wilson.

In a restricted sense Bailey has been a Texas problem. In a larger sense he and his kind have been national problems. When the arts of the demagogue are joined to the principles of the autocrat and the combination is given a seat in the United States senate, there is a national problem.

The Bailey type is passing away. The national is tiring of bunk and tommyrot, of sobs and sob masters, of flag wrapping and tears. The water cart, the thunder sheet, and the glass crash are losing value on the political stage.

"No, mamma, I kept saying, 'Truth, truth, truth!' every step I hit, and I didn't hurt myself a bit. But I had Fido in my arms when I fell and I think he is pretty badly hurt."

"What makes you think so, dear?"

"Why, every step we hit he yelled, 'Error, error, error!'"

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

An Important Office.

Pine River Blaze: While we are picking out and deciding on candidates for state office, we should be more particular than usual in the selection of the candidate for lieutenant governor. It is the organization of lawmaking bodies that has to do with the passage or failure to pass laws. The matter of organization of the state senate is entirely in the hands of the lieutenant governor. So when candidates for that important office pop up, just look up their connections.

Valuable Information.

Hibbing Mesabe Ore: The people of the nation are learning a heap about the Republican party that is mighty interesting, and it is knowledge that is proving a valuable asset to the other political parties.

Cause to Be Peeved.

Chisholm Tribune-Herald: "Get on the Roosevelt band wagon if necessary," is the word that goes out from Eberhart headquarters. The state machine is for Taft and will make an effort to land Taft delegates in the cities, but in the rural districts where Roosevelt sentiment is overwhelming, the Eberhart followers are urged to get on the band wagon for Teddy. This is a clever ruse on the part of Boss Smith, but the scheme was nipped in the bud and one Edward E. is considerably peeved thereat.

Important Legislation.

Virginia Enterprise: When it comes time for selecting candidates for the legislature the people should demand of them, if elected, a pledge to do all in their power in the passing of a law adopting a state wide primary and the presidential preference primary. Also the platforms to be adopted should contain a clause to that effect. With these primaries in effect the people could then have a say as to who shall be the candidates for the different offices, which are now dominated by a few politicians.

Compensation.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: It's a matter of absolute record, that no Northern Minnesota farmer was ever yet called upon to lovingly embrace his chimney top while patiently waiting for some more fortunate neighbor to come along in a rowboat and pick him up.

Paddle Your Own Canoe.

Voyager upon life's sea,
To yourself be true;
And where'er your lot may be,
Paddle your own canoe.

Never, thought the winds may rave,
Falter nor look back,
But upon the darkest wave
Leave a shining track.

Nobly dare the wildest storm,
Stem the hardest gale,
Brave of heart and strong of arm,
You will never fail.
When the world is cold and dark,
Keep an end in view,
And toward the beacon mark,
Paddle your own canoe.

Every wave that bears you on
To the silent shore,
From its sunny source has gone
To return no more;
Then let not an hour's delay
Cheat you of your due;
But while it is called today,
Paddle your own canoe.

If your birth denied you wealth,
Lofty state and power,
Honest fame and hardy health
Are a better dower;
But if these will not suffice,
Golden gain pursue,
And to win the glittering prize,
Paddle your own canoe.

Would you wrest the wreath of fame
From the hand of fate?
Would you write a deathless name
With the good and great?
Would you bless your fellow men?
Heart and soul imbue
With the holy task, and then
Paddle your own canoe.

Would you crush the tyrant Wrong,
In the world's fierce fight?
With a spirit brave and strong,
Battle for the Right;
And to break the chains that bind
The many to the few—
To enfranchise slavish mind,
Paddle your own canoe.

Nothing great is lightly won,
Nothing won is lost—
Every good deed nobly done,
Will repay the cost;
Leave to heaven, in humble trust,
All you will to do;
But if you succeed, you must
Paddle your own canoe.

A Conspicuous Failure.

W. L. in the International: "Boston—1915" is dead. It was silent for a long time before it died, and many people have completely forgotten that it ever existed. They ought to refresh their minds and chasten their spirits by turning back to the pages of the reform weeklies, the philanthropic organs and the daily papers of Boston for the year 1909-10. "Boston—1915," they will learn, was "Boston's Level Best." It was Boston's solemn resolve to handle social problems—to do away with slums and destitution, to render the city clean and happy, and, if I remember correctly, to make it possible for any willing worker to support himself and his family in health and comfort.

It was Boston unselfish, Boston public-spirited, Boston with civic pride—a united Boston with a common aim and a high ideal. It was the end of "knocking;" the period of construction had begun. How that echoed through the city from a grotesque chorus of preachers and philanthropists, business men, bankers, professors and labor leaders. There were banners in the business thoroughfares, lectures, mass meetings, editorials, pamphlets—a torrent of good intentions to abash the unconvinced.

It was the apotheosis of American sentimentality, of that tendency of ours to mistake our "private emotions for a public movement." It was part of that prevalent belief that all this sad world needs is for everybody to "get together" and mean well. Then idealistic bankers and those superstitious labor leaders sincerely believed that somehow Boston could solve her problems in peace and harmony by the unanimous consent of her citizens. What mattered the experience of the world to them? What mattered the pessimistic croaking of the impossibilists? Boston could and Boston would. So Boston began to organize committees and the committees organized subcomittees, and the leading citizens had conferences, and almost everybody got his picture printed in the papers.

Some body went and sniffed at the foul conditions in the tenements. It was the wrong tenement to sniff at, for it was owned by one of the leading idealists in the movement for making Boston a clean and happy city. After that there was a perceptible rift in the unselfish unity of Boston. Our very remarkable idea soon emerged. It was discovered that in reforming the world you can't change things and leave them just as they were. Many people believe that you can. Most reform movements operate under this theory. But the fact remains that you can't, and the man whose voice is loud enough to shout that truth at the American people will be adored by its children. If any of the citizens of Boston have learned it as a result of their experience then "1915" was worth the trouble.

A Poet on Parade.

Richard Le Gallienne, the poet, participated in the woman suffrage parade in New York last Saturday and gives his views in rhyme in the New York Sun under the title "Thoughts On Parade," as follows:

I had my "marching" orders—that's Why I marched today.
For all the women that I loved were marching the same way.
Ah! if only I could say
'Twas for the lovely faces that didn't line the way.
It was a comfort as we marched to see the policemen smile,
And it was one big good natured laugh the whole three mile.
They called us "henpecks," "easy marks" and words of like renown—
But the faces got far prettier as we walked uptown.
Lemons were handed for our thirst as we marched on parade,
But what cared we, for were we not gentlemen unafraid?

Woman's Realm

Mother's day has come to mean much to the young folks all over the country and next Sunday, May 12, the day set aside for its observance, is the day each young man or woman is expected to devote to the woman who is undoubtedly his or her best friend.

The carnation, the sturdy flower of friendship and love, is the symbol of the day and the wearing of this blossom signifies the observance of the day. The thought o fthe mother who has passed away is typified by the white carnation, and the colored flowers stand for the thought and love of the living mothers.

Ministers in the various churches are planning to observe the day in some of the day's services, most of them in their morning sermons, and Rabbi Leffkovitz will speak of this subject in his sermon tomorrow evening at Temple Emanuel.

The florists throughout the city are preparing for the day by ordering an extra large supply of the blooms and they say that the custom has grown to such an extent that they expect to have difficulty in supplying the market for the occasion.

Some little extra thought, some little extra kindness or expression of love and devotion now on the part of the children of mothers living will brighten the day and add just a little sunshine to the lot of the one who, more than any other, has given her life in little extra services of love and devotion.

A letter written especially to be delivered on Sunday will be appreciated by the mothers who are away from their sons and daughters, and to those who will need to wear the white carnation, the day should be of comfort in the special dedication to the memory of those departed.

THE EVENING STORY

MISS VIOLET ANGELA DECOURTNEY

By Julia Holt Price.

Jim was in love. Thue, Jim had never seen the girl but that was a matter of small consequence for he had seen her picture, that wonderful picture of the little girl with the bright yellow curls and the flaming red dress. Perhaps it was the flaming red dress which first made Jim look at the picture, but surely it was the bright yellow curls which made him stop at the billboards every time he went down street on errands. At first Jim had tried to excuse his weakness on the ground that it wasn't often a show came to town, and all fellows looked at posters anyhow. But finally he, although heretofore he had considered girls a "blamed nuisance," had to admit that if all girls were like Miss Violet Angela De Courtney he wouldn't mind lending them his new knife to sharpen pencils with.

As the night of the show drew nearer Jim's devotion increased to such an extent that Jack, his big brother, asked teasingly:

"Say, kid, I hear you run errands double quick time these days. What's the attraction? Not smitten with little Martha what's-her-name, are you?"

Jim flushed and hotly retorted, "What do you think I am? Don't think I'd bother my head with any girl in this town, do you?"

"So that's it, is it? Some out-of-town dame. Well, I'll inquire into this, young man." Jack loved to tease his 12-year-old brother about his love affairs for he knew Jim's strong aversion to girls.

Jim was afraid that Jack had discovered his secret and he resolved to stay away from his shrine but try as he might he simply had to make his daily trip to the billboard. Finally the night of the show came, and Jim, choking in his high collar, marched up to the center aisle to the very front row of seats. The fellows had begged Jim to sit upstairs with them, arguing that, "A guy can't have any fun downstairs—upstairs he can eat all the peanuts he wants and can throw the shells at the people below."

But Jim was obdurate. He didn't want Miss Violet Angela De Courtney to see him with the gang and besides he could see her much better from the front row than he could upstairs. He had to suffer the taunts of "the fellows" who, when they saw him seated between his mother and sister, called maliciously, "Shame on Jimmy Adams! Oh, you sissy." "Where's your nurse, Jimmy?"

Jim winced under this torture but when the curtain rose and he saw Miss Violet Angela De Courtney in all the glory of her brilliant red dress he forgot the taunts, forgot his choking collar, he forgot everything but the girl before him. Yes, she had all the yellow curls just as they were in the picture—he didn't know that the curls were too yellow and too curly to be real; and her eyes, they were violet blue—Jim had never before noticed a girl's eyes so how would he know that they were sunken and dull? He knew not that her voice was not the voice of a child, but that of a tired woman.

It was good for Jim that Jack was so engrossed with pretty Miss White that he didn't notice Jim. As for the rest of the family, they wouldn't understand why Jim was so greatly interested in such a poor performance of a typical melodrama, but they were too busy picking flaws to notice Jim's silence.

When Jim reached home he went straight to bed but not to sleep. He lay awake planning a way to see her again. He had heard Bill Saunders, the station agent, say that the actors would take the 5:12 train the next morning.

"How can I get out at that time without everybody hearing me?" thought Jim. "They wouldn't let me go if they saw me and I've got to see her again. I'm going to take her some lilacs too. I wish I had violets, but I guess lilacs are next best. It's a mighty big jump from that side window, but I'll do—I've got to do it."

Jim scarcely slept that night. He would doze off only to dream of his taking the lilacs and her thanking him sweetly for them. He would wake and listen for the clock. When 4:30 struck, he got up and dressed quickly and quietly. Then a new difficulty arose. He couldn't jump with his shoes on, it would make too much noise and he didn't want her to see him barefoot. He would throw his shoes out of the window and then jump out, but he was afraid they would hit something and wake up the family. Finally, he decided to swallow his pride and go barefoot. Perhaps Miss Violet Angela De Courtney would like the lilacs so much she wouldn't notice his bare feet.

At 5 o'clock Jim was at the station. Bill Saunders, coming in just in time to sell tickets and get the freight ready for the first train, asked sleepily—

"What you doing at this bright and early hour? And with the posies too?"

Jim had not thought of Bill being there to tell on him. What should he do? Then, remembering Bill's mania for secrets he decided to "let him in on it."

"Say, Bill," he commenced solemnly. "I'll tell you a secret if you will cross your heart never to tell."

"You know I ain't never told a secret yet. Why, the secrets I know, if I ever were to tell them, they would set this whole town to buzzing so's you couldn't live in it." Bill leaned toward Jim, listening expectantly.

"I knew I could trust you. You see it's this way. One of the wr—er—ladies in the show loves flowers so I just brought her a little posy. Promise you won't say a word to a soul. Here they come now."

Jim looked hard as they came nearer. Just two men and two women. What had they done with Miss Violet Angela De Courtney? Perhaps she was too tired to come out so early in the morning. She might go away later on the 8 o'clock train. They didn't look like the actors anyway. On the stage they were dressed in fine clothes and now their clothes were shabby. Perhaps it wasn't them at all. But there was the man with the deep voice who had tried to steal her in the play. He wasn't half so fierce looking now, so Jim resolved to ask him about Miss Violet Angela De Courtney.

Slowly, picking at the lilac stems, nervously, Jim sidled up to the big man. Then, hearing the distant roar of the train, he grew bolder and stepping up to the actor stammered—

"Excuse me, sir, but isn't Miss Vole going away with you?"

"Sure, she is, kid. Say, Mame," turning to the dowdy little woman next to him, "Here's a little guy wants to see you."

Mame looked down at Jim. "So you wanted to see me, did you? What's up, kid?"

Jim stood stupefied. Could this coarse woman be his Miss Violet Angela De Courtney? Perhaps the man had misunderstood him.

"I—I said er—I wanted to see the little girl with the yellow hair," he said hopefully.

"That's me, little one. Hurry up and out with the glad news. Here's the train. What's the blossoms for, kid?"

"Oh, nothing," said Jim, as dropping the violets he ran towards home.

Farewell Reception for Mr. and Mrs. Philemon Bevis

A farewell reception was given to Mr. and Mrs. Philemon Bevis and family at the Y. M. C. A. assembly room last evening at 8 o'clock.

The room was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers and the music was furnished by Flaaten's orchestra. A host of Mr. and Mrs. Bevis' friends were present and expressed their regret of their leaving the city and the association, but also expressed their pleasure of the acknowledgement of his worth by the international committee selecting him for the great work which he is to take up in St. Louis.

Those in the receiving line were: Mr. and Mrs. Bevis, Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Watson S. Moore, Dr. Powell, and Miss N. E. Trimble.

After a social half hour Watson S. Moore, ex-president of the association was requested, in the absence of F. E. House, acting president, to act as toast master.

A short address was made by Dr. Powell. He spoke of the association as an arm of the church and of Mr. Bevis from the standpoint of the pastors. Mr. Powell pointed out the usefulness of the association as headquarters for all interdenominational meetings, and the manner in which the Layman's Missionary Movement of two years ago and the recent "Men and Religion Forward Movement" were fostered and carried on from the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Moore then called upon Miss N. E. Trimble, secretary of the Y. W. C. A. to give a few remarks as to the helpfulness of Mr. Bevis and the Y. M. C. A. to the Y. W. C. A. Miss Trimble spoke in place of Mrs. McGonagle who was unable to be present. She stated in her opening remarks that she was only a passerby in the city but she had heard it spoken of from the many officers of the Y. W. C. A. that that organization was greatly helped and possibly given the building that it now occupied, from the co-operation and aggressiveness of the Y. M. C. A. and its friends.

She stated that she knew something of the new field to which Mr. Bevis was going, that it was a hard one and a trying one, but an extremely large and important one. Miss Trimble trusted that he would enjoy his work in directing the association in St. Louis as much as he had in Duluth and wished him and his family God speed in his new work.

Speaks for Range Towns.

Mr. Moore then called upon Thomas Owens, superintendent of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, who came to Duluth for the purpose of bidding Mr. Bevis good bye, for a few remarks regarding the Duluth association in relationship to the range towns. Mr. Owens spoke of the friendship that had arisen between himself and Mr. Bevis, in the past eleven years, and said that while little mention had been made at any time regarding the influences of this central association upon the one at Two Harbors, yet they all realized that much of the aggressiveness of that association was due to the large policy that was being carried out by the association; that the present general secretary of Two Harbors had received his early training under Mr. Bevis in this association, and that through the work of this association to the man coming and going through Duluth as gateway to the range towns, the influence was being spread throughout the entire range country. He said that he could not possibly pass by this opportunity without saying that he was deeply grateful to Mr. Bevis for the work that he had done for the men and boys of the iron range, and he wished Mr. and Mrs. Bevis the most pleasant future in their new work.

Mr. Moore then spoke from the standpoint of the board of directors. He spoke of the calling of Mr. Bevis to this city, of how the association must have appeared to Mr. Bevis small and far away from the center of the movement, and how he came here with his entire purpose to build the largest work about him that was possible to be built. He told of how, after being here some four or five years, the association had outgrown its building on East Superior street, and how at one of their board meetings, when there was not a ray of hope at that time for a building, other than a clause in a man's will for a sum that would be a foundation for a building, and that the man who made the will was in a healthy state, and that the man is still living, yet Mr. Bevis saw a possibility and hung on, and won the rest of the board over to his cause, and through that the present building was made possible.

Boys' Department.

He also spoke of the boys' department, stating that it was a great thing for parents to know that their boys were under the leadership of the Y. M. C. A. secretaries, and he spoke from the position of a father, that as long as he knew that his boys were in the association of the Y. M. C. A. secretaries, he felt safe, no matter what time they returned home. Mr. Moore says that while this building of the central association is a monument to Mr. Bevis, and will stand as such for years to come, the greatest monument that can be given to any man is that of bringing boys and girls up to Christian manhood and womanhood, and have them looked up to as clean Christian boys and girls by all those that come in contact with them.

Mr. Moore spoke of the large work which Mr. Bevis has been called upon to take up, the guiding of this large department in the city of St. Louis, the fourth largest city of the United States, and of the great possibilities of this city in the Central West, with its field hardly touched.

I. K. Lewis was then called upon to speak for the dormitory men and the membership of the association. Mr. Lewis called attention to the splendid example that Mr. Bevis had set the young manhood of Duluth.

In behalf of the membership of the association he presented Mr. Bevis with a silver pitcher.

Mr. Bevis then replied, stating that it was hard to leave the kind friends of this city behind, but as he had before been stated by Miss Trimble, a man or a woman in Christian work was ready to go wherever they were asked to go, no matter how hard the task.

After the entire party congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Bevis and expressed their best wishes, refreshments were served in the dining room.

TURN BACK PAGES OF OHIO'S EARLY HISTORY

Constitutional Convention Delegates Celebrate 110th Anniversary of Drafting of State's First Charter Laws at Chillicothe.

Chillicothe, Ohio, May 9.—Ohio's constitution makers today turned back to the spot where the first charter laws of the state were drafted 110 years ago. To pay homage to the makers of the state's first history, delegates, employes and attaches of the fourth constitutional convenion moved in a body from Columbus to this city, Ohio's first capital.

The court room in Ross county courthouse, where the session was held, occupies the ground where the first state house stood. Many of its furnishings are scarcely less historic than its location.

Some Historic Relics.

The long oak table at which President Bigelow presided today is the same table on which the first constitution of the state was signed. Above the table hung the big bell which swung in the tower of the first state house. It has been in the relic room of the present capital for fifty years, but was brought here today. On the walls of the courtroom hung pictures of the first governors and many members of the first constitutional convention. The original records of the first convention were also on display.

No business was expected of the delegates. The day was to be spent in visiting historic places.

See Places of Note.

The St. Clair house, where the then Governor St. Clair escaped from a mob headed by Michael Baldwin, member of the first constitutional convention, was visited. Visits also were made to the Clinton house, where British officers were paroled after Perry's victory on Lake Erie; to the cemetery hill, the burial place of four governors, including Governor Tiffin, the first state executive; Cook's house, built in 1800, with the first iron bars brought to the state, and to the little mill site, where flour was first made in the state.

Capital of the Northwest.

The first Ohio constitutional convention met Nov. 1, and finished its work on the twenty-ninth day of the same month. This city remained the state capital from 1803 until 1810, and again from 1812 to 1816. The old state house stood until 1852, when it was torn down. In 1800 Chillicothe was the capital of the Northwest Territory.

NO CRIMINAL CASES THIS WEEK

Larger Calendar Than Last Term in District Court.

No criminal cases will be tried in district court before next week, when Judge Dancer will be relieved of the civil calendar by Judge Cant, who is now holding court in Carlton. Judge Dancer will take charge of the criminal cases at this term of court.

County Attorney John H. Norton has not stated what cases will be taken up first. The grist is somewhat larger than that of last term. It is hardly probable that the Torrence larceny case will be retried at this term, as there have already been two mistrials on the indictments returned against Mrs. Torrence.

The first jury to return a verdict at the May term of district court yesterday afternoon found for the defendant in the case of the Beacon Falls Rubber Shoe company against Carl O. Ekblund and three sons, merchants at Brookston, Minn. The company sued to recover $350 on goods delivered to Eklund. Eklund refused the shipment.

WANTS $1,000 FROM CIGAR COMPANY.

A. M. Balfany is suing the Ron Fernandez Cigar company, of which he was a former officer and director, for $1,000, claiming that stock which he bought from the company had not been turned over to him after he had paid for it. The case is on trial in district court before Judge Dancer and a jury.

The Ron Fernandez Cigar company was organized in the early spring of 1911. On April 22, 1911, Balfany claims that he purchased 100 shares of the company's stock and that he paid for it. On Nov. 1, inst, he made a demand, he says, that the certificate for the stock be turned over to him, but was informed that it had already been assigned to C. T. Fitzsimmons.

Mr. Balfany sets up the claim that at the time he made the request for the stock that it was wrth $10 a share, its par value. Since that time, the company has become insolvent and reorganized and the stock has become worthless, he claims. He alleges that he has been defrauded out of $1,000 and asks for a judgment for that amount.

The defendant company makes a general denial in answer. From testimony taken today, it appeared that the stock at the time Balfany demanded it was in the hands of C. T. Fitzsimmons as security for notes which Balfany had given Fitzsimmons.

W. H. Gurnee is attorney for Mr. Balfany and the defendant company is represented in court by H. J. McClearn.

CLOQUET CHURCH VERY PROSPEROUS

Cloquet, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual congregational meeting of the Presbyterian church was held Tuesday evening in the church parlors. There was a short program, Misses Draper and Redfield playing an instrumental duet, the male quartet of the church, Messrs. Taylor, Coy, Blume and Davis, rendering several selections, and Mr. Blume singing a solo. The annual reports were then given, and later refrshments were served. The church was found to be in good financial condition, all departments having done excellent service during the year. This is the yearly get-together meeting of the organization, and in his brief address Rev. C. W. Lowrie, the pastor, reminded them that a few years ago when the idea of an annual congregational meeting was first started, only seven, including the pastor and his wife, responded to the invitation. He considered it very encouraging that the number had sufficiently increased to fill the church parlors. During the year the ladies' auxiliary has raised $912.39 toward the church expenses. It is their intention this summer to have the church painted outside and redecorated in the interior. The church was organized in 1883. It has 178 members, but a very much larger congregation.

School Principal Rewarded.

Miss Lena Archibald, principal of the Jefferson school building, entertained the ladies of the Women's Charitable organization at a luncheon Monday afternoon. During the affair, a subscription paper was quietly circulated and afterward a committee of women selected a very handsome copper chafing dish which was presented to their hostess. Miss Archibald has taught school in Cloquet for over twenty years and has become identified with the city's best interests. She has been one of the most active members of the charitable organization, and in her own school building has been the means of keeping many children in school when lack of funds to continue their study would otherwise have closed their school days.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

NEW RULING IS PUZZLER

Attorney General Says Voters Must Express First and Second Choice.

Complicates Primary in Third North Dakota Congressional District.

Bismarck, N. D., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.) — The ruling by Attorney General Miller that voters must express both their first and second choice in the event that there are more than two candidates for nomination in the coming primary election, promises to have an important bearing upon the result of the congressional fight in the Third district. There are now three avowed Progressive Republican candidates in the Third district and two avowed stalwart Republican aspirants for the party nomination.

The Progressives, if they recognize Nehemiah Davis of Minot as a Progressive candidate, will divide their support between three candidates while the stalwarts will divide between two.

The manner in which this will work out is entirely uncertain. There has always been, since the creation of that district, some friction over the geographical question. The southern part of the district has two candidates, while the northern part has three candidates, and there, again, is seen the opportunity for giving the first and second choice votes to the candidates representative of either of the two sections of the district.

Candidates From Southern Part.

Senator Leslie Simpson and P. D. Norton, the former a stalwart and the latter a Progressive, are the candidates from the southern part of the district. Should the voters follow geographical lines in determining for whom to cast their second choice vote, the north end candidates would have little chance to make good in the southern part.

In the northern part of the district, where J. M. Davine and N. Davis are candidates on Progressive platforms, they would divide the support of the members of that faction to a marked degree, leaving Norton third. Blaisdell is the stalwart candidate in the northern part of the district and he may, because of his location, draw some support from the Progressive.

Whatever way the situation is looked at, it is decidedly complicated, and politicians generally admit their inability to forecast just what will happen when the voters reach the polls.

RIVER CLEARS MYSTERY.

Gives Up Body of Dennis Quirk, Missing From Eau Claire.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 9.—The mysterious disappearance of Dennis Quirk from this city last winter has been cleared up by the finding of a body in the Chippewa river, a mile below Porterville, believed to be the remains of the missing man.

While catching wood in the Chippewa river yesterday forenoon Frank Foster of the town of Brunswick saw the body of a man floating down the stream some distance from the shore. He managed to get a rope around the body and pull it ashore.

That it is the body of Dennis Quirk there is little doubt. The condition of the body indicates that it has been in the water for several months and it was last November that Mr. Quirk disappeared. The clothes found on the body are identical with those which Mr. Quirk is supposed to have worn on the morning he disappeared. It is known he wore no shoes at the time.

Dennis Quirk disappeared from the home of his sister, Mrs. Philip Meagher, on Mappa street, about 3 o'clock on the morning of November 9, 1911. He got up and walked out of the house partly dressed and nothing was thought of it at first, but when he did not return within the next half hour some alarm was felt and the police were notified and they began a search for him.

The affairs of the bank from the day it opened are to be investigated, and it is expected that ten days or two weeks will be consumed in the work.

Nothing has been heard of Vice President Harry W. Parker, who disappeared after cashing a Chicago draft for $2,000 at the other local bank. His family is prostrated by the turn affairs have taken.

SAY MISSOURI RIVER VICTIM WAS STEBBINS.

Mandan, N. D., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the man who was drowned in the Missouri river while crossing in a rowboat was G. H. Stebbins of Stebbins, N. D., is the belief of officials who have investigated the case. A photograph sent from Stebbins has been identified by Matt Salisbury, the man to whom the boat belonged, as being the likeness of the man who hired his boat to cross the Missouri river. Stebbins was an old-timer in this district and he disappeared, according to advices from his home, the same day as the overturned boat was found in the river.

HER SEX SAVED HER.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 9.—Because she was merely a manager at a salary of $10 a week, according to her attorney, and because of her sex, Ida M. Dumke, manager for a local loan agent, was saved from a prison sentence in district court yesterday after having been found guilty of a charge of usury.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, MAY 12.

Luke vi., 27-38; Rom. 13:8-10: The Law of Love.

CONNECTION.

Bear in mind that this lesson is also from Luke's report of the Sermon on the Mount. Matthew quotes what He says about the contrast between His teachings and those of their rabbis and even those of Moses. Luke, who writes for Gentiles and from the universal point of view, says nothing about that contrast.

THE LESSON.

I.

What the Law Requires, 27-31.

"But I say unto you that hear, love your enemies, do good to them that hate you, bless them that curse you, pray for them that despitefully use you. To him that smiteth thee on the one cheek offer also the other; and from him that taketh away thy cloak withhold not thy coat also. Give to every one that asketh thee; and of him that taketh away thy goods ask them not again. And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."

1. SEVERITY.—The hardest thing that human nature is ever called on to do is to love an enemy. There are three ways one must show that love, by doing him good, by blessing him and by praying for him. This must be done while the enemy is hating you and cursing you and treating you with contempt. To despise means to take no notice of you, to consider you beneath contempt, and that is usually the worst treatment you ever get. But you need not think you have fulfilled Christ's command unless you can love your enemies and show it in these three ways. But what is love? In the New Testament there are two Greek words translated love. One of them means emotional enjoyment and approval of the object of your love, but that is not the word Jesus used. The other word means well wishing that leads to good treatment, whether the person deserves it or not. That is the word which describes God's love for sinners and the love required from us toward our enemies. It does not mean approval of all they do or of what they are. It simply means wishing them well and taking a kindly interest in their welfare.

This kind of love is intelligent for it perceives the worth even of an enemy. It is sympathetic notwithstanding their faults. It is unselfish for it thinks more of their good than of your grudge. It is aggressive for it ministers to them in prayer and in doing good. It is mighty for it will conquer enmity in time. It is God-like for that is the way God has done with us all. It elevates you above your enemies while ministering to them.

The severity of this command is felt when you try the passive side of love. It has actually been tried again and again and proven that when love is strong enough to offer the other cheek and the "coat also" and the destrained goods it has usually administered the severest punishment to the enemy.

2. TEST.—Your desires for yourself are the standard of your treatment of others. No other teacher ever erected this standard but Jesus, yet we see that it exactly matches the needs of human nature. As a man would have others treat his wife or mother or sister or daughter he must treat all other women exactly that way. As he wants justice to his worth, kindness to his weakness, mercy to his sins, he must show the same.

II.

The Logic of Love, 32-36.

"And if ye love them that love you, what thanks have ye? for even sinners love those that love them. And if ye do good to them that do good to you, what thank have ye? for even sinners do the same. And if ye lend to them of whom ye hope to receive, what thank have ye? even sinners lend to sinners, to receive again as much. But love your enemies, and do them good, and lend, never despairing; and your reward shall be great, and ye shall be sons of the Most High: for He is kind toward the unthankful and evil. Be ye merciful, even as your Father is merciful."

1. UNSELFISHNESS.—The contrast between love and selfishness is again exhibited at three points, in the inward feeling, in doing good and in lending. The principle is that love seeks no selfish reward. That is, the highest kind of love does not. To love and do good and lend only for a return in kind is no better than the heathen way. It is very human but very weak. The love that Christ enjoins seeks to give rather than to get. Self-giving, to the point of self-sacrificing, is the law of love.

2. REWARD.—There are no words for the one who loves his fellows and shows it in the ways Christ requires? There are and they are big and abundant. There is a saying that "virtue is its own reward," but there is something still better and Christ tells us what it is. That reward is that you become like God. It establishes you in the relation of sons of God, because that is the way He does and it makes you like Him as sons ought to be like a father. Specifying the one respect in which you are most like God, Jesus calls it "mercy," for God is constantly showing His mercy in numberless ways to the wicked as well as to the good. The higher reward is in the completer likeness to the loving and merciful Father.

III.

The Sanity of Love, 37-38.

"And judge not, and ye shall not be judged: and condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned: release, and ye shall be released: give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, shall they give into your bosom. For with what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again."

1. DISCRIMINATING. — Jesus tells us that by their fruits we should know men. We must form correct estimates and try to penetrate into the motives. But the censorious fault-finding, the tendency to find something unfavorable in others, even though they may be worthy of much adverse criticism, is all wrong. It is a bad tendency in us and is very different from accurate insight into character. There is another matter in which love is very discriminating. It does not cherish the condemning habit of mind, though it may have to condemn another on his merits or demerits; nor does it withhold for the same reason. It releases and gives from a liberal spirit, with clear regard to the needs of the needy. One who believes in goodness will try to think well of others.

2. WARNING.—It is well to remember that we are dealing with law, the law of God, at every step. One who is in the habit of treating others without regard to their dispositions, but with an undiscriminating condemnation, will be surely treated the same way.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

If we "rejoice in" ferreting out our neighbor's "iniquity" and will hear of no excuses, we must expect the same stern judgment to be applied by him to us and shall have little pity when we are condemned by our own sentences on others. The inventor of the guillotine had his own head cut off by it and there was little weeping when it dropped into the sack.—McLaren.

During the war of the American Revolution Rev. Peter Miller, pastor of a Baptist church in Pennsylvania, appeared in the city of Philadelphia to ask from Gen. Washington the life of a man sentenced to death for treason. He had walked the entire distance from his home, sixty miles, to urge his plea. His request was refused. Washington said that he was sorry he could not pardon his friend. "My friend!" Miller exclaimed, "I have not a worse enemy in the world." The general, in amazement, asked, "Will you please tell me why you have walked sixty miles to try to save your enemy's life?" The minister declared that he was endeavoring to carry out the Savior's commands and Washington was so impressed by his genuine Christian spirit that he signed the desired pardon and handed it to the suppliant. When Mr. Miller put the pardon in his friend's hand and he learned how it had been won, he broke down completely and shed tears like a child.—Pollard.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. What are the best methods of learning to love your enemies?
2. Is it possible for the most vindictive and the most wronged to love his enemy?
3. What is the one greatest benefit from it?
4. What method are you pursuing with your enemies?
5. Why do you have enemies?

MILLER'S PLAN PUT INTO THE INDIAN BILL.

Washington, May 9. — The Indian bill has been reported to the senate. It carries an appropriation of $100,000 to defray the cost of a hospital in Minnesota for the treatment of diseased Indians. The provision was inserted in the measure on motion of Senator Clapp.

Agitation for the construction of a hospital on one of the reservations in Minnesota was begun following the disclosure of conditions among the Indians by the Graham committee. A bill authorizing the construction of a hospital at White Earth was offered by Representative Miller of Duluth. It was approved by the Indian commissioner. After conferences with Mr. Miller, Senator Clapp decided that the project would stand a better chance of adoption if authorized by the regular supply bill.

Motherhood

The highest point of woman's happiness is reached only through motherhood, in the clasping of her child within her arms. Yet the mother-to-be is often fearful of nature's ordeal and shrinks from the suffering incident to its consummation. But for nature's ills and discomforts nature provides remedies, and in Mother's Friend is to be found a medicine of great value to every expectant mother. It is an emulsion for external application, composed of ingredients which act with beneficial and soothing effect on those portions of the system involved. It is intended to prepare the system for the crisis, and thus relieve, in great part, the suffering through which the mother usually passes. The regular use of Mother's Friend will repay any mother in the comfort it affords before, and the helpful restoration to health and strength it brings about after baby comes. Taft Winds Up Tour in Ohio With Speech at Columbus.

Talks of Trusts and Holds Up Roosevelt's Record.

Columbus, Ohio, May 9.—President Taft concluded a three-days' visit to his native state last night with a speech here at Memorial hall, in which he vigorously denounced Col. Roosevelt's attacks on him. The hall was filled to overflowing and President Taft was repeatedly interrupted with cheers, especially in his defense of his advocacy of Canadian reciprocity. As to many of the issues upon which his predecessor is fighting him, he said they were policies which Col Roosevelt himself had advocated both as president and private citizen.

He scored Col. Roosevelt as an advocate of class hatred and a man who is appealing to the element of discontent.

"Not a Safe Man."

"It is dangerous to put such a man in the office of president," he said. "Mr. Roosevelt is not a safe man for this country to trust, with his 'ideas as to the recall of court decisions,' he declared with emphasis.

Answering the colonel's charge that he was using his office patronage to obtain his renomination, he said 70 per cent of the present office-holders were Mr. Roosevelt's appointees, and a majority of them are now fighting for the colonel's re-election.

Immediately after the conclusion of his speech President Taft left for Washington.

Also Attacked Democrats.

President Taft charged that Col. Roosevelt, Senator Dixon of Montana, the Roosevelt campaign manager, and the Democrats of the senate were responsible for the "emasculation" of the arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France. In consequence of their action, the president declared, the treaties were so changed as to be of doubtful utility, so that "it is difficult to see whether they contain anything of value which ought to be ratified into a treaty."

"My idea of progress and of the highest progress," said Mr. Taft, "was in those arbitration treaties, because I saw in them a step toward a universal arbitral court to which any nation of the world might resort in order to solve a controversy it might have with any other nation; and until we get such a court war will not disappear, and this is a decided step toward that end; as progressive a measure as ever has been suggested to the American people."

Last Address of Tour.

In his address, which was the last of his present tour through the state, President Taft continued his attack on Colonel Roosevelt. He openly accused the colonel of misrepresentation and misstatements; said that in many actions for which his predecessor now criticizes him, he had been influenced by Mr. Roosevelt's advice, and asked the people of Ohio to give him "a square deal."

The president pointed out the failure of the Roosevelt administration to prosecute the Harvester and Steel trusts, and the action taken by his own administration. Declaring that he did not wish to charge Mr. Roosevelt with anything improper, he paralleled the non-prosecution of any of the "Morgan interests" with the relations between Colonel Roosevelt and George W. Perkins, whom he declared to be one of the chief contributors to Mr. Roosevelt's present campaign fund.

"Audacious Courage."

He repeated that he does not infer "anything improper" from these facts, insisting "on the contrary, I don't believe there is anything improper." But he declared that in the face of these things the ex-president's charges against him required "that audacious courage I still believe him to have."

Replying to the charges that the Standard Oil and Tobacco trust dissolution decrees had really been advantageous to those interests, through rises in the prices of stocks and increases in cost of products, he declared that these advances had been due to natural economic causes. Stock prices, he said, had been held down heretofore because the dissolution showed the true amount of money in the hands of the corporations and a rise was but natural when the truth regarding their financial power became known.

Increases in Prices.

Increases in prices of products he declared to be due to the fact that trust control had been removed and competition restored. "If you have a trust," he declared, "you may have cheapness, but you will have absolute control; but if you do not have a trust you will have competition, sometimes you will have cheapness and sometimes it will be high. I would rather have competition and have it high and low instead of being in the hands and control and grip of a soulless monopoly."

He referred to the night rider outrages as an outgrowth of the monopolistic system and declared that the dissolution of the Tobacco trust was welcome to the tobacco growers.

Bossism a State Matter.

Answering the charges that he is allied with bosses, the president said that the boss and his work are entirely within the control of the states, and the president has nothing to do with them. The people send men to Washington, he said, and the president cannot refuse to deal with them. "I would like to know how many bodies of dead bosses were strewn along the path of Theodore Roosevelt when he was seven years president of the United States," he said, but added that he did not mean to criticize, as the president had no power to oppose bosses. He declared that Roosevelt used the bosses to get the best possible legislation he could and that he had followed Roosevelt's example in this.

He insisted that his recommendations for extension of the civil service were calculated to do away with the abuse of the boss system. Regarding his relations with Joseph Cannon, he said that he contemplated an attempt to defeat the Illinois congressman for speaker until after a letter from Colonel Roosevelt led him to change that plan. In discussing the recall, President Taft appealed to the negro voters to think what might become of them if the recall of decisions became permissible and said they would lose every constitutional guaranty in the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments.

Roosevelt Changes Plans.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., May 9.—After hearing reports of President Taft's campaign in Ohio, Col. Roosevelt decided to lengthen his speaking tour in that state. He will start westward next Monday instead of Tuesday, and probably will remain in Ohio until the eve of the primaries.

Col. Roosevelt read a dispatch from Portsmouth, Ohio, to the effect that President Taft in his speech said: "I am being hit below the belt."

"When you hear me squeal because I'm hit, then you'll notice it," was the colonel's comment.

James R. Garfield, ex-secretary of the interior, and one of the leaders of the campaign in Ohio, came to Sagamore Hill last night to discuss the campaign in that state.

KANSAS REPUBLICANS INSTRUCT FOR T. R.

Independence, Kan., May 9.—Adopting strong resolutions favoring the entire Progressive movement, and leaving out the time-honored custom of laudatory planks in praise of state and government officials, the Republican state convention named four delegates at large to the national convention, with iron-clad instructions for Roosevelt for president. The make-up of the "Big Four" is: Henry J. Allen, Wichita; Ralph A. Harris, Ottawa; Ansel Clark, Sterling, and John M. Landon of Independence. William Allen White of Emporia was indorsed for national committeeman.

FRANCE WILL REINFORCE HER ARMY IN MOROCCO.

Paris, May 9. — Owing to the threatening condition in Morrocco, the French government has decided to send seven additional battalions of infantry, as well as extra batteries of artillery, to that country. Two battalions of native Senegal infantry now are being mobilized at Dakar, in Senegal, and these will reach Casa Blanca June 20. These reinforcements will give Gen. Moliner a force of 32,000 men with another 11,00 spread out along the frontier of Algeria.

The latest advices from Fez indicate that foreigners there are filled with uneasiness and fear that further outbreaks are impending.

GOOD FELLOWSHIP AND OPTIMISM PREVAIL AT THE ROUSING ANNUAL BANQUET OF THE NEW DULUTH COMMERCIAL CLUB

GOOD TIMES IN PROSPECT FOR DULUTH

W. A. McGonagle Tells of Progress Being Made on Steel Plant.

Duluth Will Have Most Up to Date Plant in America.

James Bardon Predicts That Hill Will Build Here Also.

With an exceptionally representative gathering of 300 members and guests the second annual banquet of the New Duluth Commercial club at the Becklinger building last evening was one of the most open hearted, friendly, good fellowship meetings ever held in this city. Marked by witty remarks, splendid addresses and most humorous repartee among the speakers, the gathering was an unqualified success.

W. A. McGonagle, president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, was the principal speaker of the evening, giving a most optimistic address on the steel plant. Everyone in the large audience had expected Mr. McGonagle to speak on the future of the plant, even the speakers before referring to the subject during their addresses. Mr. McGonagle said in part:

"You have in New Duluth today the site for the greatest steel plant in the world. That is why it is taking us so long to build it and prepare it for final use. Every day new inventions and plans are made and these are all infused into the plant. It is the desire of those at the head of this monster enterprise to make the plant the most perfect of its kind. It is for this reason that many of the original plans have been changed considerably to meet the demand of the new inventions. The New Duluth steel plant, when finished, will never represent the original plans made before the building was started.

Must Not Being Rushed.

"The plant will be done in a reasonable time, just exactly when it is hard to state. You all know that exactly $1,606,600 is being spent every year by the Minnesota Steel company. The people of this city do not realize the advances made at the plant and one trip through the many buildings already finished and those under construction, would convince any one that the plant is going up as fast as science and money will allow. The promises of Gary and Farrell are all being kept and everything that good business practice allows is being done to hurry the completion of the plant.

"Another word about the original plans of the steel plant made several years ago. Every building has been rearranged to meet the demands of new science and electrical devices. Everything is being done to make the plant at New Duluth the most modern and complete in the world. Extensions at the plant are many, as are the secondary structures never included in the original plans.

Big Demand For Steel.

"Have patience, for the completion of the plant in a short time is a matter of necessity. At the present time 94 per cent of the capacity of the steel plants in the United States is in constant operation. This means all the plants of the country, allow 6 per cent for defective machinery. The demand for steel is the greatest now that it ever was, which means that the new plant will be a necessity in but a short time. Duluth will be the distributing point for the entire West. It is for this reason that we must encourage other manufacturers and their plants to locate here. It means that all orders for steel west of the Mississippi, into Canada, will have to come to Duluth. It means that subsidiary and secondary plants using steel products will all be compelled to come to Duluth. The plant here will be most modern, making Eastern plants obsolete and thus encouraging Eastern manufacturers to move here and locate near the steel plant. These manufacturers would naturally be more anxious to build a branch plant near the new steel plant, instead of contnuing in the East at such an enormous expense of delivering into the Far West and Canada. You see this is to be the most logical distributing point and therefore it is up to the people of Duluth at large to get manufacturers to come here and locate.

Cheap Homes.

"In looking into the future of this city, let us consider that the workingmen must be given cheap homes and food products. If we cannot give all these to them, then we will never secure the secondary plants and manufacturers. Then it is up to Duluth to find a place for these plants in the vicinity of Duluth. Everything within fifteen miles of this city is tributary to it. Let the plants locate at Superior, or somewhere at the Head of the Lakes. As long as they are kept from going into other parts of Wisconsin, then our success will not be diminished to any extent. We must be friendly to Superior, but loyal to Duluth.

"I have preached the same thing to the Superior business men and I am glad that the friendly spirit prevails in both cities. We must be loyal to Duluth, if we are anxious for its success. We must be loyal to our merchants and business men. In Los Angeles at one of the hotels there, everything is made in that city. It is this spirit of friendship and loyalty that has made Los Angeles what it is today. We can do more for Duluth, because we have the most natural advantages and opportunities. If Los Angeles can start a campaign for 1,000,000 population by 1914, then we can do likewise.

Fair Deal to Railroads.

"I read considerable about the railroads and the discontent of the people in this vicinity. If you have anything at all to ask of the railroads, go and ask them. But always be sure you ask the officials of that road. Never go to a section foreman, but to those who can give you what you ask. Remember, what is good for the people is good for the road, also. The roads are working for the people and if there is anything that may benefit these people, it is only logical that it will benefit the road itself. The railroads are owned and controlled by the public, who are the shareholders, therefore it is plain to be seen that when the public is granted a request, it is the public that is being served. The railroads have the power to make or unmake a country and they realize that only growth demands changes and new features. The officials resent being approached with a club, for they are Irish in nature. Use reason and tact first, then right. You must go after things to get them and the best way to go after them is to use common sense and reason. I myself, as the head of a railroad, have found this the best way to ever get any result from me."

Jaques Toastmaster.

A grand march was played by La Brosse's orchestra as the guests marched into the hall, which was most beautifully decorated. The Ladies' Aid society of the New Duluth Social club served the splendid dinner, which followed the invocation by Rev. A. H. Mutchler. C. J. Wallace, president of the club, opened the evening with a short talk of the growth of the club during the past year from forty-five members to three times that number. He introduced ex-Judge Alfred Jaques as the toastmaster for the evening. The latter spoke on the future of New Duluth and the possibilities of this end of the city. He noted the fact that Duluth proper had a large delegation at the banquet, as did West Duluth and the West end.

The first speaker on the program was Mayor J. A. McCuen, who talked of the early days of New Duluth, where he first practised medicine on arriving at the Head of the Lakes. His recollections of '96 and '98 brought considerable applause. He said that in those days there was the good friendship and fellowship always prevalent. The people were always fair and square to one another. No one ever wanted anything but what he was willing to give something in return. He concluded:

"I am the same way now and am ever ready to help you. If you want anything from the city, come to me or the council and ask for it. Show me where I am wrong and I will be with you. We cannot all be perfect and I surely am willing to be taught. At present there seems to be many people out of jobs, who are all coming to me for help. I tell you now that the city is going to get a dollars worth for every dollar spent. We are going to be economical and run this city on a strictly business basis.

"Regarding improvements you may think you need in this end of the city. The finances of this city are low at the present time and you must all be patient. We have not got the means to be lavish with you, although we would sincerely like to be so. If you can convince us that changes are needed and necessary for the welfare of your community, then we will give them to you. By the time the plant is finished out here, every improvement and extension desired by you will be ready and prepared to meet the growth of this end of the city."

McCormick Well Received.

W. S. McCormick, city comptroller, received a splendid reception following his eloquent address. He spoke on the value of clubs in a community and the need of a leader to accomplish the things desired by a city. He also mentioned the fact that with the growth of undesirable conditions. It is the coping with these conditions that tests a municipality, he said.

"Our cities today," went on Mr. McCormick, "are right in purpose, but faulty in method. Eight men in Scranton, Pa., drove 600 bad women out of the city so that the town would be clean and moral. But in the spirit of Christianity, these women should have been kept in Scranton and taught righteousness and morality. What general good has Scranton accomplished by this act?

"If a man is not interested in the welfare of his city, for a better and cleaner municipality, if he feels that public business is not his business, then he can hardly be termed a citizen. The other day a foreign element in the East tore down the American flag and trampled on it. With such an act occurring in this country, the conditions here are bad and drastic measures should be taken at once by the government. Any man living in the United States should be a loyal citizen to the country."

James Bardon of Superior, one of the oldest pioneers in this section of the country, having first settled near the site of the present steel plant in the early 60's, gave an interesting talk on the early conditions existing here. He told of the many changes that have occurred during his time and of the early capitalists, who could not see far enough into the future of a city at the Head of the Lakes. He told of the meetings of Eastern business men, who talked of starting a slate plant here, without any thought at that time of steel or iron ore.

Drop in The Bucket.

"The steel plant that is coming here," said Mr. Bardon, "is only a drop in the bucket. Duluth is the only natural point in the country today to manufacture the iron ore into the finished product. We will have half a dozen plants here before long, for all the ore that is in the mines around Duluth is to be brought here and the present plant will never be able to handle it all. I expect Jim Hill, the man who saw so far ahead into the future, to build an independent plant of his own in the vicinity of New Duluth. The ore will come into Duluth as if on a toboggan and will come in a continual slide for many generations.

"I have just heard that Mr. Hill has learned of a process to make coke out of peat. If that is so it means millions more for Duluth and the vicinity. There are hundreds of miles of peat beds in the northern part of the state, all of which would eventually be manufactured here in Duluth. So do not worry about the ore running out and nothing being left to work with. I have also heard that Edison has learned of a process to make steel for one-tenth what it costs now. Think of the wonderful advances that are coming to the steel industry. With such advances it is up to the city of Duluth to give you proper roads, street car connections and water and sewer direct from the center of the city. You must be able to meet the wonderful growth that is but a few years away."

At this time Frank Crassweller, Sr., noting the lateness of the hour and the necessity to get the special train waiting at the station, hurried through his address, giving a short, but interesting talk on the moral improvement of a city. He urged civic betterment for the benefit of the children of every community. He urged not only the building of plants, but also the laying out of parks and playgrounds all over the city. "You must not forget you are striving for a material betterment, also," he concluded.

"Going After It."

Charles S. Mitchell was the last speaker on the program. His talk was short, but interesting. He urged the New Duluth people to get after the street car company for the extension of the line to the steel plant. He said that the only way to ever get anything is to go after it and keep on going until the request is granted.

"The city of Duluth must realize," he concluded, "that New Duluth is to be the heaviest taxpaying section of the city within a few years. You have a right to receive your demands at this time as taxpayers of this city. Now that you are growing, it is up to you to keep this industrial center of Duluth clean and moral. If you want industries to come here, you must be clean. Things that were good and ideal at one time are now business propositions. The best business man today is one who stands for decent affairs. You must insure labor the best conditions possible, if you are anxious to obtain manufacturers and to keep them here. You cannot have saloons lining your city, gambling houses or evil resorts. They are a waste of morals and energy, besides money. Remember, you are all working for a better Duluth, besides a Greater Duluth."

During the evening the following musical numbers were rendered:

Vocal solo—"The Clang of the Forge"
C. H. Giddings.

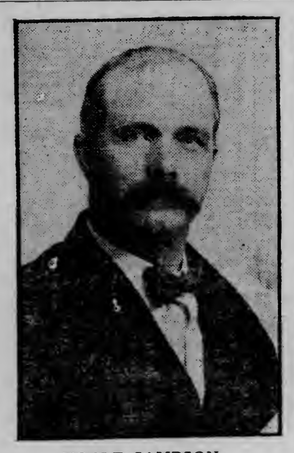
Vcal solo—
"No Doubt" .....
"Spring Has Come" .....
Mrs. C. W. Peters.

Vcal solo—
"Song of the Sea".....Mulbauer
"Two Grenadiers" .....
Louis Dworshak.

Mrs. Dworshak accompanied Mr. Dworshak during his numbers.

The banquet closed with a grand march by La Brosse's orchestra. The guests from Duluth and West Duluth left on the special train reserved for them, at 11:30 o'clock. Upon arriving at the union station special street cars were waiting for them, and they all rode home without a single moment's delay after leaving New Duluth. Everything was arranged to perfection, and a vote of thanks was extended to those in charge of the banquet and the ladies who prepared and served the dinner.

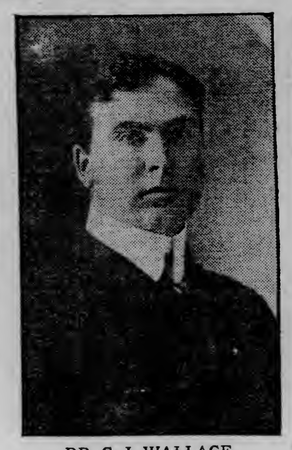
EX-JUDGE ALFRED JAQUES, Who Was the Toastmaster for the Evening.



NOBLE SAMPSON, Vice President of the Club.

MELVIN A. BECKLINGER, Secretary of the Club.

W. A. McGONAGLE, Who Gave a Most Optimistic Address on the Steel Plant.



DR. C. J. WALLACE, President of the New Duluth Commercial Club.

W. S. McCORMICK, City Comptroller, Who Spoke on the Value of a Commercial Club to a Community.

SOME FACTS BROUGHT OUT AT THE BANQUET.

Work is being rushed with all possible speed on the new steel plant.

Duluth will have the most modern plant in America when it is completed.

James Bardon of Superior predicted that James J. Hill would establish an independent plant at or near Duluth.

James J. Hill has a process of making coke from peat which is likely to develop vast peat beds in Northern Minnesota.

The steel mills of the country are now running at 95 per cent of their capacity, showing the necessity for the early completion of the Duluth plant.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE BANQUET

Dr. Wallace, in introducing ex-Judge Alfred Jaques, said that the audience should pay close attention to him, as he was a very humorous toastmaster. "He reminds me of the natural history professor who said to his class preceding the day's lesson: 'We will take up the subject of the ape today, and in order to that you will understand the subject perfectly, you must keep your eye on me at all times.'"

Mr. Jaques told a number of stories about Scotchmen, there being so many Scotchman present at the speaker's table.

Pat just returned from a trip across the waters and was met at the pier by Sandy McPherson. The latter asked Pat if he saw the Derby.

"Shure," said Pat, "But I saw a closer race."

"What do you mean?" inquired Sandy.

"Why the Scotch."

Mr. Jaques and Mr. McCormick had a little passage at arms. The latter said that at one time he and a friend were discussing who was the best lawyer in town. Mr. Jaques came along just then and they asked him to decide. The latter replied offhand that he was the best lawyer in Duluth, and did not have to prove it as he admitted it.

Before the laughter had died out, Mr. Jaques explained, that although he admitted he was the best lawyer in the city and also the state, Mr. McCormick forgot to state why he wanted to know who was the best lawyer. "I told him, of course, that I was not a criminal lawyer," concluded Mr. Jaques, "and that he ought to see John Norton or Charley Adams."

Mr. McGonagle, in opening his address, said that he had been accused of being a Scotchman by the toastmaster. "I deny this accusation," he said.

Mr. Crassweller told of an early experience in a Duluth court, when Mr. Jaques was on the bench. An old darkey had been arrested and appeared in court without a counsel. Judge Jaques asked the darkey if he did not wish to have counsel appointed for him.

"Nosah," replied the darkey. "I am going to throw myself on the ignorance of the court."

Another incident about Mr. Jaques, which Mr. Crassweller recalled, ran as follows:

"A case was brought before the judge and the man accused of the crime proved that he was 150 miles away from the scene of the murder at the time it was committed. Well, the prosecuting attorney turned to Judge Jaques and told him that there was no use in going on any further, as the man proved an alibi. Then the judge turned around and in a whisper said: 'What is the penalty of an alibi?'"

COMPROMISE ON PAVING

East Fourth Street Owners Favor the 40-Foot Street.

Final Decision Rests With Council—Material Not Discussed.

Voting on a frontage basis, a majority of the property owners attending the meeting called in the council chambers yesterday afternoon by the council committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks recommended the paving of East Fourth street between Fourteenth and Twenty-third avenues to a width of forty feet.

Owners and representatives of 2,680 feet voted for the 40-foot street while 1,650 feet were voted against it. Many who favored a 38-foot street voted for the 40-foot pavement, while most of the others wished the street to be paved to the original width specified in the petition, 42 feet. A number who had previously favored the narrower street announced at the meeting that the arguments advanced had convinced them that a 42-foot pavement would serve the best interests of all.

The council has the power to determine the width of the street. The committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks will take under consideration the evidence submitted yesterday and make its recommendations to the council, probably next Monday night. Should the council decide to let the matter remain as it is at present, it will go back to the board of public works. That body would then probably call a meeting of the property owners to take up the kind of pavement. After that it had been settled the contract would be awarded to one of the contractors on one of the many bids already submitted.

Should the council decide to reduce the width much of the work already done would have to be gone over again. New specifications will be prepared, the work readvertised and the bids computed. After that had been done the board of public works would determine the kind of pavement to be used, award the contract and send it to the council for approval.

City Engineer Wilson brought some of the property owners to his way of thinking yesterday by his statements of reasons for putting himself on record as unalterably opposed to anything less than a 42-foot pavement with a vertical curb. Alderman Scott also made a strong argument for the 42-foot street. Some of the property owners favoring the smaller street declared that a 38-foot pavement will meet all requirements for many years to come, as it runs through a purely residence district.

NATURE'S WARNING

Duluth People Must Recognize and Heed It.

Kidney ills come mysteriously.
But nature always warns you.
Notice the kidney secretions.
See if the color is unhealthy—
If there are settlings and sediment,
Passages frequent, scanty, painful.
It is time to use Doan's Kidney Pills,
To ward off serious diseases.

Doan's have done great work in Duluth.

William Bain, 1402 East Fourth street, Duluth, Minn., says: "Two years ago I gave a public account of my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills. I can now say that I have had no need of a kidney medicine since. My kidneys were so badly disordered that I was miserable in every way. The kidney secretions passed too frequently and were discolored. I had backaches and felt weak and tired. Doan's Kidney Pills quickly relieved me and the contents of two or three boxes made me well. I feel as though it were my duty to recommend this remedy when I can."

The committee on fidelity bonds and burglary insurance reported progress, and suggested that a committee of three be appointed with power to act in any emergency. This matter also will be passed upon by the Detroit convention.

GET BUSY EARLY ON THE CONTESTS

Republican National Committee Will Meet Twelve Days Before Convention.

New York, May 9. — The Republican national committee will meet in Chicago Thursday afternoon, June 6, to decide contests among delegates to the Republican national convention. The call for the meeting was issued by William Hayward, secretary of the committee. This will be the earliest meeting held for many years and will give the committee twelve days to consider contests before the convention opens on June 18.

Indications that there will be an unusual number of contests this year, Mr. Hayward said, had been considered by Victor Rosewater, the committee's acting chairman, and himself in sending out the call for the early meeting of the committee. A few contests already have been brought officially before the committee's officers and many more are expected, he said, before the expiration of the time limit for filing contests on May 29, twenty days before the convention.

May Change Representation.

Mr. Hayward also announced that he would place before the committee a plan upon which he has been working for some time that will effect the representation of the South in Republican national conventions. The principal objection to plans previously suggested, he said, was the elimination of the congressional district as the unit representation. The plan he would sumbit to the committee would change the basis of representation, he said, and still retain the congressional district as the unit.

SOX DEFEAT OLD RIVALS

Duluth Wins From Suburbanites By the Score of 7 to 5.

Local Batters Bombard the Offerings of the Opposing Pitcher.

Before a mere scattering of fans Duluth won yesterday's game from Superior by the score of 7 to 5. Ursella, the visiting boxman, had less than nothing on the ball and was hit freely. Smith was also hit hard in spots, but had enough to spare to land the game.

With two down in the first Heyzer swatted the pill over the paling for the first run of the game. Nothing occurred to increase the visitors' score until the fifth round, when Indian Roy singled and was advanced by Ford's out at first, went to third on Willey's single and scored when Erickson made a throw high over Leber's head.

In the sixth Briggs doubled to right and advanced on Heyzer's out at first, counting when Francis singled past second.

The final scores came in the seventh. Ford started with a double, and with two down Menelce dropped Olson's long fly, Ford crossing on the play. Briggs and Heyzer singled in succession and right field, and Olson merrily tripped across the pan.

Duluth opened the first with successive singles by Kuhn, McGraw and Menelce, with an out sandwiched in and then a double by Sours and a single by O'Brien, the net result of which was three runs. Three more came in the third. Menelce doubled and Leber singled and Sours garnered his second double, the shortstop going to third on a throw to the plate and registering on O'Brien's out at first.

The last run came in the fifth. Menelce singled and went to second on a wild heave. Leber singled to right and large Samuel was cut off at the plate. Sours doubled and Leber crossed the pan.

The ball grounds are not in playing shape yet, large hills of piled up dirt making the outfield look something like a miniature Bunker hill.

TEN EYCK TAKES NEW SHELL OUT FOR SPIN

Coach Says New Boat Is a Fine Piece of Work—Club May Send Two Eights to Regatta.

Coach Ten Eyck had the new eight out last night for the first time. The boat is bigger than any shell that has ever been seen in this part of the country. With Jimmy holding the rudder ropes last evening, the eight was sent out in the longest and best row of the season, going up the west shore in the coal dock region.

"The new boat looks the goods," said Ten Eyck today. "As the launch isn't out as yet I didn't have the opportunity to get a side-on view of the shell. But she feels stiff and rides fine. From all appearances the boat is by far the best one that has ever been in this part of the country."

With Cliff Thorburn at stroke, and Cheney 7, Horak 6, Lathrop 5, Kent 4, D. Moore 3, Sole 2, and Grant bow, the boat went well. There was smooth water and under the coaching of Ten Eyck the shell rode along nicely on an even keel.

Thompson was unable to be down last night and Jimmy sent the first eight out with two bantams in the seats, Horak and Moore being the light men.

"I am simply rowing the men into condition with a slow stroke, paying particular attention to blade work and the body swing," said Ten Eyck. "Some of the new men are coming along nicely and I am trying to get out a second eight that will make a good showing at St. Paul.

If the second eight can be developed to the point where it classes with the first eight, it will be taken to the regatta."

From present indications the fours will be recruited from the junior eight. Ten Eycic's idea at the present time is to take two fours from the eight and row them in the morning, reserving the evening's work for the eight. His plans, however, depend upon the development of some of the new men.

Next week it is planned to get the bantam four down to work. There is some likely looking bantam material out for places in the boat and Ten Eyck is going to make an effort to repeat the victory of last season, when Duluth walked away with the little men prize.

No effort will be made to speed up the eight until the latter part of the present month. The rudiments of rowing—the powerful body swing and clean blade work—are the things that James will labor arduously with until he has his men going smoothly.

He has enough men on hand who have been under him last year to get his ideas of rowing down pat, so that the present eight should be by all odds the best that has ever gone out of this port.

Starting in next week it is the intention of Ten Eyck to have three eights out.

KID McCOY TRIES TRAINING IN CLOUDS.

"Prize fighters of the future will do most of their training in aeroplanes."

This remarkable and revolutionary statement was made today by Kid McCoy, the pugilist, who formerly held the middle weight and welter weight championships.

"Indulgence in aviation is a splendid way of training," announced McCoy, after he had navigated a 5-mile course through the air in a borrowed aeroplane.

"It quickens every sense. The flyer must be on the alert all the time. He must be strong, too. Every one can see the immense possibilities of getting pure, fresh air when one is about a mile up in the sky. No germs, no dust, no vitiated atmosphere, no nothing.

"Some fighters may never get any nearer heaven than the 10,000-foot altitude mark, but even that has its compensations. They would probably be lonesome anyhow."

McCoy has written to Champion Jack Johnson explaining the usefulness of the aeroplane, but the Ethiopian bruiser has not yet gotten beyond the automobile stage and refuses to enthuse.

COULON IS THE WINNER

Chicago Fighter Has No Trouble in Defeating Young Solsberg.

Brooklyn Pug Got First Round on Points But Lost Others.

New York, May 9.—Johnny Coulon of Chicago, the bantamweight champion, easily defeated Young Solsberg of Brooklyn in a 10-round bout at the Royal A. C., Brooklyn, last night.

The bout went the full ten rounds and Coulon had the better of nine of them, Solsberg getting the opening round by a fair margin.

Solsberg started off with a rush and landed right and left to Coulon's head, but the blows were not very effective. Coulon contented himself with feeling out his man and Solsberg won the first round on points.

From the opening of the second round until the end of the tenth round, Coulon was at all times master. He began the second by making Solsberg miss frequently and then landed a hard left to the face and both hands to the body. Then, with a right over the jaw, he dropped Solsberg, but the Brooklyn lad held on to Coulon's glove and regained his feet inside of two seconds.

In the following round Coulon landed stiff lefts to the face and uppercuts with his right hard to the jaw. His best work was when he would feint for the body and then bring his right or left to the face or head. Solsberg kept striving for the head, landing occasionally with left and right to the face and short arm blows to the body. Body blows he landed in the fourth and fifth rounds seemed to have no effect on Coulon. In the sixth Coulon kept forcing matters and punished his man heavily about the body, making him miss wild swings. In the eighth Solsberg put a stright left to the jaw, one of the best blows he landed.

In the next Solsberg began swinging wildly, receiving hard body punishment. Solsberg tried to mix it, but was beaten back in the final session. Coulon had the local boy at his mercy until the gong ended the bout.

JACK JOHNSON WANTS TO QUIT

Colored Fighter Reported Sincere in Decision to Retire From Ring.

Chicago, Ill., May 9.—It's no "flabby indecision" on Jack Johnson's part.

He really means to retire Sept. 1. But like all other ultimatums on the fighter's part, there is a certain reservation to it.

Should Flynn be found powerful enough to whip Johnson July 4 in Las Vegas Jack might change his mind and come back for more.

But, of course, Jack isn't looking for any such contingency. He expects to win July 4 with considerable to spare.

Would Quit for Good.

According to Jack's quiet talks to his friends in this city—and there is nothing particularly confidential about these—his idea is to end his fighting days with the affair in New Mexico, and never again be tempted out of retirement like Jeffries was.

As a matter of fact, the Jeffries case is one of the strongest examples of the pitcher going once too often to the well that Johnson possibly could have.

"None of that for me," he has said time and again. "When I retire I will stay retired, and they'll never get me back. Yes, I would know what it would mean to try and come back."

Leads Vigorous Life.

When it was suggested to Jack that perhaps his two years of idleness since his defeat of Jeffries may have sapped his nervous organization and rendered him unconsciously, of course, a wreck of the Jeffries type, the big fellow merely laughs and says that his theatrical sparring and his auto driving and the vigorous life that he has led precludes such a possibility.

What may happen to the Johnson plans should Flynn show that the sheep sometimes kills the butcher, is a big problem. Doubtless he would endeavor to get another match with his conqueror, as much as that might be out of the question.

Must Train Hard.

Jack knows pretty well that the next white man who wins the title is not going to make the error that Tommy Burns did—an error, of course, only from the viewpoint of the white race.

But there's one thing that is sticking in Johnson's mind to the exclusion of all else. He must train sincerely for the Flynn match. Down deep Johnson knows that the Flynn victories over Al Kaufmann, Carl Morris and the rest of them in the last year or so were no flukes, but accomplished with some tremendous physical force.

On the surface Johnson is inclined to belittle the Flynn-Curly aspirations, but he'll be no half-baked black man entering that Las Vegas ring, that's sure. If he can get into first-class condition, Johnson surely will do so.

FRANK LOHR.

ADAMS BOYS READY FOR COLUMBIA TEAM

The crack Adams Athletic club baseball team and the Columbias will meet in the first game of the season next Sunday. While the weather has prevented the teams from getting a great deal of practice work, the Adams have what is considered the best baseball team that the Triple A boys have ever had in the field.

With the Columbias stronger than they have ever been in the past, the game promises to open the amateur season in a fitting manner. The Adams men are going after the city championship with a vengeance this season and are naturally anxious to make a good showing in the opening game of the season.

Practically all of the amateur and semi-professional teams of the city are scheduling games for Saturday or Sunday. There promises to be more interest in amateur baseball this season than ever before, with the result that the various teams of the city will enjoy the best year in the history of baseball in Duluth.

Both the Commercial and Duluth and Superior leagues are awaiting the opening of the season, practically all these teams having their list of players complete.

RICHARDS QUITS THE BADGERS

Madison, Wis., May 9.—Coach John R. Richards of the Wisconsin university football department resigned yesterday. Friction, arising from a controversy with the military department, culminating in the faculty's refusal to excuse freshmen from military drill to take part in athletics led to the resignation. The coach claimed that the football and other athletic teams suffered from lack of material caused by the compulsory military drill. Coach Richards has been here one year and developed a near-champion football team.

BASEBALL NOTES

Manager Bresnahan says he will hold up every player that waivers are asked on and that he will spend thousands to rebuild his team that looked good last fall.

Boston is gradually getting rid of all its ex-Cubs. Kaiser, Weaver and Ingerton are the late shifts. Weaver goes to St. Paul and Ingerton and Kaiser to Indianapolis.

Garry Herrmann won his fight for a lower license exacted by the city of Cincinnati, and it will be placed at $750 a year instead of $1,500, as some of the aldermen proposed.

• • •

The big argument on the Chicago street corners is whether or not Larry Cheney is as good as Marty O'Toole. Chance says Cheney shows better control than any spitball pitcher he has ever seen.

Manager Bresnahan of the Cardinals is said to have made an offer to Cincinnati for Marsans. The frequent announcements in Cincinnati that this or that club is after Marsans begins to arouse suspicion.

Brooklyn fans were shocked when they learned from the club physician that Zach Wheat had periostitis. They breathed easier at the explanation that it was the physician's name for an inflammation of the covering of the bones—a bone bruise, in fact.

Elmer Miller, an outfielder who, it was announced had been released by Cincinnati to Fort Wayne, has been secured by the St. Louis Cardinals. Manager Bresnahan refused to waive to the player and secured him upon payment of the waiver price.

Marty O'Toole has taken out $10,000 life insurance and has made his mother the beneficiary. The Pittsburg baseball club insured O'Toole last year for $25,000 to guarantee it against losses, but Marty's family was not in any way protected by this policy.

• • •

Opinions as to the justice of President Lynch's verdict in the Dahlen-Rigler row vary according to the side of the East River they come from. New York fans say Dahlen got off easy. Brooklyn, including President Ebbets, say the decision was an "outrage."

The drop of Al Mattern is the most sudden and surprising thing in baseball. Two years ago he was considered one of the premier left-handers of the National league and the wise ones figure that there must be something radically wrong with him or he would not have gone to Montreal.

According to Manager Johnny Kling, the Phillies got more money in their first two games at Boston this year than they did all last season. That is not told to indicate that the Phillies are popular in Boston, but just to prove that the Braves have been drawing the crowds this spring.

"The only reason I traded Campbell for Donlin," says Clarke, "is that we needed an actor on our team. The Giants and Cubs each have an actor, and we are entitled to one, too." Clarke handed this to Murphy when the Chicago owner began to discuss the whys and wherefores of the Pittsburg-Boston deal.

The rumpus at the Polo grounds, which terminated in a personal encounter between Umpire Rigler and Manager Bill Dahlen of Brooklyn is partly blameable upon the New York club, which has neglected to have plainly distinct foul lines marked on the front of the grand stand where the playing field terminated.

President Ward of Boston says Al Bridwell has not been suspended; that he was only cut off the payroll until he got in the game, because the club was too poor to pay his salary. Bridwell thinks the action pretty small, but says he will play just as hard for his employers as if they had shown a little more liberality.

Chance considers himself fortunate in getting Maroney, the new left hander turned adrift by Detroit. Maroney signed with the Tigers on condition that he be given his unconditional release if he wasn't retained. Jennings found that Bill Burns would fill his needs so he allowed Maroney to go and Chance grabbed him up. Maroney was signed on the strength of his work against the Philadelphia Athletics while he was under trial with the Phillies.

Philadelphia fans took off their hats to John McGraw because he "consented" to calling off games to give the Phillies a chance to brace, but it appears McGraw was not agreeable to the postponements and "consented" because the home club exercised its authority and said the grounds were in no condition to play on. McGraw has begun agitation to restore to the umpires the right to say when the grounds are fit. In spite of all the Philly complaining, the team they are able to put in the field looks as good on paper as some other teams go through a season with.

Fred Clarke was awakened at 3 o'clock in the morning in Chicago by somebody who told him that Alex McCarthy had fallen in a fit and had been run over by an automobile and was removed to the Cook county hospital. Knowing that the little infielder is not subject to any fits excepting his fits of fine ball playing, also being sure that Mac would never be out so late at night, Clarke asked the informant what color the injured fellow's hair might be. When told it was very black the Pirate chieftain saw there had been some mistake and hung up the receiver.

As a result of their fist fight, Manager Dahlen of Brooklyn gets a suspension until May 4 and with it goes a fine of $100. It is not customary to suspend umpires, so Rigler will have $100 deducted from his pay envelope. Suspensions may get a player in bad with his club, but they do not hurt like touching his pocket for a cold 100 bucks. As an umpire's pay averages $10 or $15 per game, it means that Mr. Rigler will have to work something like ten days for nothing just for the privilege of resenting being "nudged" by Bad Bill Dahlen for calling a hit safe that gave the Giants a victory over the Dodgers.

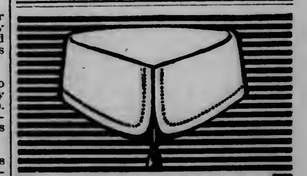
Jack Herman Writes.

A letter came this morning from Jack Herman, manager of Zbyszko. He states that the Pole will return to this country next season if there is any chance that Gotch will consent to a contest with the big man of Europe. Herman also adds that the past season has been a most successful one for Zbyszko. The crafty manager of Zbyszko is at his home at Buffalo at the present time.

Big Iowa Church Burns.

Vintonia, Iowa, May 9.—Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the Presbyterian church here last evening, causing a loss estimated at $50,000, with insurance of $22,000. It was one of the largest churches in Iowa.



This year it's the "BALLOT." Every good citizen ought to enjoy its advantages.

Village Council at Keewatin Lets Contract for Reservoir.

Keewatin, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club is after settlers and the club is doing everything possible to secure roads leading to the various settlements in the vicinity of the village. The club also has taken up the matter of water rates recently established by the village with the result that a committee was appointed to take up the matter with the village. Some of the members thought that the rates for water were too high.

Lets Reservoir Contract.

The village council Tuesday evening let the contract for the erection of an 80,000-gallon concrete reservor to J. S. Work will be commenced at once.

The council will put in sewer and water with house connections from Fourth avenue to the northern boundary of the original townsite of Keewatin, all on First street.

HIBBING CONTEST OVER ROOSEVELT

Stuntz Township Primary Saturday Night Promises to Be Live One.

Hibbing, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is prospect of an interesting contest at the Republican presidential primaries to be held in the four precincts of the township of Stuntz Saturday night, which includes all of the village of Hibbing.

As matters seem to be shaping themselves the fight will be over a straight Roosevelt delegation. This movement will be opposed by a considerable number of Republicans who are in favor of an uninstructed delegation, which would be anti-Roosevelt. Arrangements are in progress for a Roosevelt meeting which will be held at the Armory Friday night, when it is expected addresses will be delivered by Attorneys Victor Power, D. T. Collins and others. Precinct committees will be appointed and every effort made to got out a representative vote to the caucuses.

The Roosevelt supporters opened headquarters today and will make a systematic fight for the delegation. There is much interest in the outcome.

CATHOLIC MISSION IS WELL ATTENDED

Services Held in Both Eveleth Churches Draw Many Worshippers.

Eveleth, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mission meetings in both the Roman Catholic churches, this week, are attended by many Catholics and non-Catholics. At the Holy Family church Rev. Michael Martiniano, a missionary of the Congregation of the Precious Blood of Rome, is conducting services in the Italian language, for the benefit of the Italians who have no church here. On each day mass and services are held at 8:30 a. m. and rosary, sermon and benediction at 8 o'clock in the evening. The eloquent and inspiring sermons of Father Martiniano are attracting increased audiences from day to day. From Eveleth he will go to Nashwauk. At St. Patrick's church, the priest is being assisted by Fathers Hanley and Molloy of the Order of St. Vincent at St. Louis. The services in this church are conducted in English. This will continue until Sunday evening.

ANNEXATION OF ALICE DISCUSSED

Question of Joining Village to Hibbing Again Being Agitated.

Hibbing, Minn., May 9.—Special to The Herald.)—The matter of annexation of the village of Alice to Hibbing is again being quietly agitated by interests at the village to the south, who believe they would be better off in every way.

The movement will be opposed by a majority of people at Alice, but it is not impossible that middle ground may be found upon which the two factions can get together and the desired end be accomplished. If there is to be a consolidation it is said a majority of the people of Alice would like to see it at once.

Laws Considered Inadequate.

The difficulty of getting together now is the apparent inadequacy of the laws covering the situation. If the legislature were in session it is held by those interested it would be a comparatively easy matter to get an act that would allow the two villages to consolidate at once in almost any way that the people would agree, but as the laws now stand, apparently the only certain way for them to get together is to have a vote carried for dissolution by the village of Alice. However, the council and people there do not wish to do this for fear there might be a slip in getting into Hibbing.

A way around this difficulty has been suggested by submitting the question of dissolution to the voters of Alice conditioned upon the territory affected thereafter and within some designated time being voted into the village of Hibbing. When so submitted, if the territory was not within such time voted into the village of Hibbing then the election and voting for dissolution to be void.

Would Escape Litigation.

By consolidation with Hibbing Alice would get rid of the impending lawsuit filed by the Scranton Mining company for the dissolution of the village, and would enable the residents of Alice to get improvements in a much quicker way than would otherwise be possible, even should the village win the litigation in the end.

The proposition is being seriously discussed by a good many Alice residents.

He probably attempted to cross the lake on the logs and fell in. The body was seen by workmen in the employ of the Great Northern road. It was taken from the water by a police officer and sent to a local undertakers. Since the time the ice began to break up in the lake the body has been sought. The couple were popular here with everyone and their removal is greatly regretted.

LOCOMOTIVES ARE DAMAGED BY FIRE

Blaze in Iron Range Roundhouse at Two Harbors Injures Iron Horses.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Five locomotives were more or less damaged by a fire that broke out in the Iron Range railroad's roundhouse here about 11 last night. All of the other locomotives were hauled from the danger zone. The fire is supposed to have started from spontaneous combustion of olly waste. The fire department joined the railroad's fire tug Tarent in pouring water on the building and in a short time had the flames extinguished. During the excitement Tom Tierney, watchman on one of the ore docks, fell into an ore pocket, a distance of thirty-five feet, and was internally injured. He was removed to a hospital. The damage is estimated at $10,000.

LAKES BEING STOCKED.

Fry Being Placed in Water About Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A carload of pike fry for the lakes in the vicinity arrived in Hibbing today on the Missabe. The greater portion of the fish will go to Day lake, about seven miles from here, formerly one of the finest fishing lakes in the state, but which has been practically depopulated in the past few years by poachers and the operations of the logging companies, who constructed dams that prevented the fish from running up the stream through which it has its outlet.

Another consignment of fry is expected soon for the Swan Lake Rod and Gun club, to be planted at Swan lake. The fish for Day lake were ordered by J. B. Connors, supervisor of the town of Stuntz, who is much interested in seeing that the lakes near Hibbing are restocked with game fish.

HEAD COVERED WITH UNSIGHTLY HUMOR

At Birth. Itching Caused Him to Scratch. Hair Continually Matted with Blood. Tried Many Remedies. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In 2 Weeks and a Half Was Cured.

1631 Franklin St., Racine Jct., Wis. —"My brother's head at birth was covered with unsightly ulcers, which resembled large pimples and discharged bloody pus. As soon as one would come to a head and burst, there would be another one in its place and as he became older the itching caused him to scratch. As a result his hair was continually matted with clotted blood. He suffered pain and it was severest at night, making him restless, so he could not sleep. We had great difficulty in combing his hair, which made his scalp bleed profusely. We tried many remedies, such as carbolic salve, ——, etc., before we began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In two weeks we noticed great improvement. The scalp looked more healthy and the sores were healing up. In two weeks and a half they had completely disappeared and my brother was entirely cured." FAIR

One wouldn't call this weather summery and the habiliments in vogue in July would not be comfortable now, but the weather man is behaving much better than he has for some weeks. Really, the conditions are almost springlike.

Continued fair and cool weather is predicted for tonight and tomorrow.

Fair weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:39 and it will set at 7:28 this evening, giving fourteen hours and forty-nine minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Warmer weather prevails throughout the Northwest in connection with the low pressure centered over Alberta. This disturbance has not as yet caused any rainfall of consequence. The depression overlying the Atlantic coast region resulted in further rains over Central and Eastern Canada, the Lake region and North Atlantic states during the last twenty-four hours. Generally fair weather is indicated for St. Louis and Douglas counties until Friday night."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, May 9.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Friday:

Upper Michigan — Fair tonight; warmer in north and central portions tonight; Friday fair, warmer.

Wisconsin—Fair tonight and Friday; probably becoming unsettled by Friday night; warmer tonight.

Minnesota — Fair tonight; Friday probably increasing cloudiness.

Iowa — Increasing cloudiness with probably showers in south portion tonight or Friday.

North and South Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Friday; not much change in temperature.

Montana — Generally fair tonight and Friday; cooler Friday.

Upper Lakes—Light to moderate variable winds. Fair and warmer weather tonight and Friday.

An ordinance for muzzling dogs at certain times to be specified by notice posted by the mayor was given its first reading. There has been talk lately of such an ordinance, but it was at first thought that all dogs could be muzzled all the time, but as it was discovered that neither law nor precedent in other communities gave authority for such a measure, a milder ordinance was drawn.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—"Excuse Me."
ORPHEM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

Amusement Notes.

Sidney Greenstreet, who will be seen in Duluth tonight in "Excuse Me," is one of New York's favorite comedians. Mr. Greenstreet is not so well known in the West, but in New York city he has come rapidly to the front during the last few years, and is one of the most popular actors on Broadway. He has a personality that gets across the footlights and makes friends for him in the audience.

No other producer has given the stage so many novelties as has Henry W. Savage. His production of Rupert Hughes' "episodical farce," "Excuse Me," which comes to the Lyceum for three days commencing tonight, with a matinee Saturday, has emphatically helped to maintain his name in ts preeminent position. All of the scenes of this whimsicality are laid on board an overland limited train bound from Chicago to the Pacific coast, and, except when the flyer is supposed to be at a stand still, the audience is never allowed to lose the impression of a rapidly moving train. This perfect illusion presupposes no little skill and a vast amount of preparation and coincidental labor for its execution.

The performers at the Orpheum have the fishing fever this week.

James Cunningham of the Empire Comedy Four started it. He is an inveterate fisherman, and at every city he visits he looks around for an opportunity to fish. "He'll fish in a rain barrel if he can't find anything better," said his associate, Joe Jenny. Mr. Cunningham started out early Tuesday morning for Lester river, where he landed two "beauties." True, they were "steel heads," but they weighed more than five pounds apiece. He brought these back and showed them to the other performers on this week's bill.

Yesterday morning Mr. Cunningham was accompanied by Albert Green, one of the other members of the quartet, and by Thomas Everett, who is appearing in "The Son of Solomon," this week. They fished the stream for two hours. Mr. Cunningham landed two more trout, one weighing a trifle over four pounds and one a little more than three. The other two were less fortunate and caught only one or two finger length trout, which they threw back.

Tomorrow morning every male member of the Orpheum troupe will probably be on the river.

"You people here in Duluth don't realize what you have," said Mr. Cunningham, who was delighted with his success. "Think of catching five-pound trout within the city limits. I never heard of it before. If you had a stream like that in any other city, you would have to call out the militia to clear the banks. The fish out there are wild, and are leaping up the falls by the dozen. I nearly caught a big fellow with my hands, when he fell on some rocks, while trying to jump the falls. This is the greatest town I ever struck. I guess I will come back here to spend my vacation."

Spiritualism, mental telepathy, ideology and plain fortune telling and all kinds of exhibitions in the realm of physic phenomena have been seen in this city, but they have all paled into insignificance when compared with the work of Mercedes, who is featuring this week's bill at the Empress. Mercedes' act, unlike that of any of his rivals, is musical. He requests the audience to think of music and the moment a selection is thought of by any person in the audience Mercedes transfers the thought from the person's mind to that of his assistant, Mlle. Stantone, who is seated before a piano and she in turn plays the desired selection. It makes no difference what music they think of—selections from grand and light opera, ballads, classic, patriotic, national, sacred, ragtime, all flow from this man's mind without a moment's hesitation. Of course, an attraction of this nature arouses a great deal of natural curiosity and each person in the audience offers some explanation of the manner in which the performance is accomplished. The average person thinks that in some manner Mercedes gives Mlle. Stantone some cue as to the selection desired, but owing to the great variety of music which Mlle. Stantone is requested to play and the fact that no musical selection is barred from the performance it can be readily seen that the young lady could not have memorized them all and the only possible way in which she could accomplish her work is by receiving the air of the selection through the thoughts of the person making the request, via the mind of Mercedes.

Are There TWO Sides to Your Roof?

PROBABLY you have never stopped to think that your roof has an under side. The purpose of the outer side is easily understood. In fact, a roof's sole reason for existence, in the popular mind, is to keep out rain and snow.

But the under side would be just as highly valued as the outer if more people knew about

LINOFELT

What makes the under side of your roof so vitally important is the simple natural law that Heat always RISES. The under side of that roof ought to keep the heat inside your house.

With a real under side to your roof you could cut 40 per cent off your coal bills every winter. There's just one way to get it: Call up our local agent at once and arrange to have your roof lined with Linofelt. Or, if your attic is unfinished, have its floor laid with Linofelt.

By so doing you will get great economy and comfort at a very low cost. For Linofelt is genuine heat-and-cold insulation. Write for our booklet today and learn all about it.

CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE

From 40 to 50 Years of Age, How It May Be Passed in Safety.

Odd, Va.:—"I am enjoying better health than I have for 20 years, and I believe I can safely say now that I am a well woman. I was reared on a farm and had all kinds of heavy work to do which caused the troubles that came on me later. For five years during the Change of Life I was not able to lift a pail of water. I had hemorrhages which would last for weeks and I was not able to sit up in bed. I suffered a great deal with my back and was so nervous I could scarcely sleep at night, and I did not do any housework for three years.

"Now I can do as much work as any woman of my age in the county, thanks to the benefit I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I recommend your remedies to all suffering women."—Mrs. MARTHA L. HOLLOWAY, Odd, Va.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

WANT BETTER FLAX GROWN

Linseed Oil Manufacturers Take Steps to Improve Crops.

American Linseed Company Will Distribute 15,000 Bushels of Seed.

Linseed oil manufacturers, especially those of the Northwest, are making a strenuous effort to get the farmers of this part of the country to sow a liberal acreage of good flaxseed this spring.

The American Linseed company has just made a purchase of 15,000 bushels of the finest Canadian No. 1 northwestern seed that was obtainable to be put out to farmers of the American Northwest for seeding purposes. The shipment will leave Fort William on Monday and will come by water to Duluth, whence it will be sent by rail to Minneapolis for distribution among the general merchandise dealers of this part of the country, who in turn will distribute it to farmers. The price at which it will be sold to the country handlers will be $2.40 a bushel, which is 60 cents less than the corresponding wholesale price was a year ago for seed flax.

Next Saturday the linseed crushers of Minneapolis, together with quite a number from the East, will hold a conference at the Minneapolis Commercial club with Professor Bolley, state seed commission of North Dakota, concerning the best methods of betering the flax growing conditions in the American Northwest. The meeting will be attended by E. H. Smith, Western manager of the American Linseed company, who, though he now hails from Minneapolis, still spends a large part of his time attending to the company's business at Duluth.

The best customers for good seed flax on the Minneapolis market this spring are the farmers of Southwestern Minnesota and South Dakota who have very little good flax from last year's crop, as that crop was largely burnt out by the hot weather and severe drouth.

WARN WORKERS FROM COLLIERIES

Anthracite Strikers Create No New Disturbance at Minersville.

Pottsville, Pa., May 9.—The three men injured in yesterday's fight between state police and idle anthracite miners at Minersville still are alive, but there is little hope for two of them.

No trouble was experienced today at the collieries about Minersville. The mountains were dotted with pickets who hid behind bushes and rocks, and who stopped many workers on their way to the collieries and warned them not to go to work.

Several hundred company hands who had been doing repair work were sent home by the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron company officials at Shamokin today with instructions to remain away from the mines until the coal suspension ends.

Lehigh Valley Coal & Iron police dispersed pickets near two collieries in the neighborhood of Mount Carmel and Centralia.

An attempt was made at Locust Gap during the night to wreck a Reading railway freight train.

TALK ABOUT NEW CHURCH BISHOPS

Methodists Hear Report Favoring Establishment of Racial Officials.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The advisability of amendment of the constitution for the Methodist Episcopal church to provide for bishops of the negro race in the United States was recommended at the business session of the general conference today by the commission appointed to investigate the matter. The report of the committee was referred.

It was declared in the report that the constitution of the church did not permit the election of a negro bishop exclusively for negro conferences, and bishops elected must be a general superintendent. For this reason the committee advocated the change in the constitution. Rev. Dr. H. E. Jones of New Orleans has been prominently mentioned as the probable choice for negro bishop if the conference finally approves a change in the constitution.

Resume of Business.

Included in the action of the business session of the conference today is:

Asked for report upon loss or profit of different church papers.

Referred to committee request that church study courses be printed in Slavic tongue in order that home mission work may be expedited.

Referred resolution indorsing "every lawful endeavor to improve conditions of workers and to secure a living wage," and opposing child labor and long hours of women labor.

Made the second Sunday in May henceforth the "Mothers' day" of the church.

Asked report of rules committee on election of all officers, with exception of bishops, by May 13, if possible.

Left the judiciary committee controversy between Trinity and Maria churches of Chicago, in which the supreme court of Illinois has set aside the order of the last general conference.

Condemns White Slavery.

Adopted report condemning "white slavery."

Commended the universal peace project and lauded President Taft for his part in urging of world-wide peace.

An attempt also was made to ask for an investigation of alleged dancing, smoking, card-playing and theater-going in church schools, but the conference refused to consider it.

At the afternoon session the report of the Women's Home Missionary society was made. According to the report the society now has 119,130 members, an increase of more than 28,000.

McCABE ATTACKS NELSON WITNESS

Seeks to Disparage Stories About Government Meat Inspection Work.

Washington, May 9.—Solicitor McCabe of the department of agriculture today attacked the credibility of witnesses called by Representative Nelson of Wisconsin in support of his resolution calling for an investigation of the meats inspection service, before the full committee on expenditures in the department of agriculture. Mr. Nelson had announced that his next important witness would be J. W. Burroughs, "a man who spent seven years in the meat inspection service and resigned of his own accord a month ago."

"Just put him on if you want to," said Solicitor McCabe, "that man was forced out of the service for borrowing money from packers."

"Yes, Mr. Chairman, that is the practice of the department," said Mr. Nelson. "Charges are denied by attacks on the reputation of others."

McCabe Told to Keep Quiet.

McCabe demanded to be heard, but Chairman Moss rapped for order. He said the remarks of both gentlemen were out of place. The committee adjourned until 1 o'clock tomorrow.

Mrs. Caroline Bartlett Crane was on the stand prior to the wordy altercation. She pointed out the possibility of fraudulent misrepresentation of meat products through the government inspection, and declared the packers had sold the people unwholesome and diseased meats. Mrs. Crane asserted the regulations of the department of agriculture were insufficient.

JAPAN'S RICH MEN.

The Tokio Jiji has compiled a list of Japanese men of wealth at home and abroad and finds that there only 1,018 who possess $350,000 or more. But if the Japanese are generally poor, some of them at least are getting rich, rapidly, for ten years ago there were only 441 in the $250,000 or more class.

In that space of time the number of the wealthy has increased by 557 or more than doubled. The population of Japan, including Formosa, exceeds 51,000,000. According to the list the wealthiest Japanese outside of Japan are Shinzaburo Ban of Portland, Me.; Takanoshin Domoto of San Francisco, Masapiro Furuya of Seattle, each of whom is a grocer; Kinji Ushijima, a planter, of San Francisco; Dr. Jokichi Takamine, the chemist of New York, and Senjiro Watanabe of the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha of London, England.

Comparing the wealth of these men with the fortunes of the very rich of other countries one is sufficiently impressed with Japan's comparative poverty. The Croesus of Japan is Baron Mitsui, whose wealth is estimated as between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000, although Baron Iwasaki may be considered in the multi-millionaire class.

On an income basis fortunes such as these do not compare unfavorably with those accumulated in Europe and America, says the Oriental Review, but the 1,018 individuals having $250,000 or more present but a feeble array numerically as against the many thousands of almost any Occidental country. America and England particularly.

DREDGING FOR GOLD.

In California gold mining the separating apparatus of the most modern type of dredge is mounted on the all steel body of a specially adapted shovel car, on trucks resting on a railroad track, laid on the bedrock. These trucks are very heavy and are so designed as to provide, while digging, a bedrock base of 20 by 26 feet.

The dipper, called in foreign countries a bucket has a capacity of two cubic yards or over, and a speed limit of about two per minute. It can swing the whole circle, says the Rosary Magazine, and can make a cut fifty feet wide.

It digs, when required, eight feet below the track, opens and closes automatically at the right points, taking in everything from grass roots to bedrock, including boulders two and a half feet in diameter, which readily pass through treatment, and handling those of five tons weight with ease and celerity.

The proportion of microscopic gold contained in placer ground is astonishing. Black sand from the waste from an undercurrent or sluice, after all gold has been extracted that could be saved with riffles and quicksilver was used in ordinary placer operations, almost always shows the presence of microscopic gold. Incomplete tests of surface gravel below the mills at Black Hawk, Colorado, indicated that nine-tenths of the gold was of microscopic fineness.

The truth is that the bulk, certainly not less than 75 per cent of all the gold in alluvial deposits, consists of bits so small as to be not only entirely unsavable by any of the devices employed in the past, but, excepting perhaps a very small percentage, invisible to the human eye. The dredge and the modern separator are now extracting this gold and adding it to the world's supply of the precious metal.

SHIPWRECKED CREW SAVED BY DOGS.

Swansea correspondence London Daily News: A thrilling story of shipwreck and of rescues by dogs was told when Nathaniel Miles, fireman of the Swansea steam trawler Hector, returned home today.

The Hector, carrying a crew of nine hands, went ashore at Kilronan, on the Irish coast, during the recent heavy weather.

"Great seas swept over the vessel," said Miles, "and at length we heard the order, 'Every man for himself.' We had lifebelts on, and, with the exception of the captain, mate and chief engineer, we plunged into the surf. At first we could make little or no progress, then a couple of huge waves carried us toward the shore, where two dogs belonging to B. R. Jeffers, the lighthouse keeper, jumped into the water, caught our jerseys in their teeth and dragged us ashore."

BOTHERSOME CONNECTICUT DEER.

New London Day: Doc Manwaring, the patriarch of Black Point, says that the confounded deer are getting so very familiar that they won't get off a man's land when they are ordered off. Several property owners will apply soon for damages due them for destruction of crops.

Thursday, when Doc Manwaring went out into his mowing lot, where grows the grass that is expected to sustain life in his domestic animals this winter after the summer people have gone home, there were four deer. One was a big buck, another a large doe, and two small ones were does. Doc Manwaring was some mad. He got within thirty feet of one of the youngest deer before he could shoo it into skedaddling out of the way.

Four deer in a mowing lot in one afternoon can do a great deal of damage, according to latest advices from Black Point. Mr. Manwaring has not only lost mowing, but corn, beans and other crops planted in close proximity to his house. The other Black Pointers who have had aspirations as gardeners have suffered too.

WHERE ROBINSON CRUSOE LIVED.

Children's Star: The real name of Robinson Crusoe's island, as you may all know, is Juan Fernandez—the first name being pronounced as though it were spelled Hwan, and the final "z" is like "th." It belongs to the Republic of Chile, and is situated in the Pacific ocean, about 400 miles off the Chilean coast. It is eighteen miles long and six broad, and its highest point is about 3,000 feet above the level of the sea. Its shores are steep and desolate in appearance.

There are a number of fertile valleys extending back from the shore, in which figs and grapes grow in profusion, while a goodly amount of sandalwood, cork and other valuable timber is found. On the hills surrounding the valleys large herds of goats roam. Some are tame, while others are quite wild.

A traveler who visited the island thirty-two years after Robinson Crusoe, whose real name was Alexander Selkirk, tells a story about these goats which proves that Selkirk really did live on the island as described in the book.

GIRLS MUST KNOW HOW TO SWIM.

Baltimore Evening Sun: Students at Goucher college must learn to swim.

Every senior must be able to swim across the pool twice before she will be permitted to graduate. Last year the same rule was made, but for some reason it was not carried out. This year the rule will be strictly enforced. The names of such unfortunate seniors as cannot swim have been posted in Goucher hall, and it seems as though the majority will have to arrange for hours which they must practice and learn the art. Miss Signa Kallman and her assistant are kept busy making appointments for the students so that they may master the natatorial art. The time allowed is until Jan. 1, 1912.

ANTIQUATED.

Los Angeles Times: Governor Dix of New York, apropos of a sterling piece of political corruption, said with a grim smile:

"A twentieth-century politician, you see, is just like a piano."

"How so, sir?" an Albany reporter asked.

"If he's built on the square he's considered old-fashioned,' Governor Dix replied.

GONE BEFORE.

Los Angeles Times: Apropos of Washington's birthday and the Revolution, Prof. Reginald P. Craven, the noted surgeon, said in the course of a lecture in Duluth:

"In one of George Washington's letters—the only humorous letter Washington ever wrote—he tells of a Revolutionary veteran with one leg.

"The veteran's granddaughter and another little girl were playing together when the old fellow clumped past.

"'Your grandfather has only got one leg, hasn't he?' said the visiting little girl.

"'Yes,' said the other.

"'Where is his other leg?' went on the visitor.

"'S-sh,'" was the reply. 'It is in heaven.'"

PARLOR WINDOW.

Hartford Times: A small wild deer came to an untimely end early this afternoon following severe injuries sustained when the animal jumped through the parlor window at the home of W. Griswold, Jefferson street. The little deer appeared on Jefferson street about 12 o'clock. No one knows whence he came. He became frightened and jumped through the window at Mr. Griswold's house.

The family drove him out through another window and he again cut himself. Then he ran across to Ward street, pursued by several boys and was finally rounded up in a yard on Squire street.

The damage to the Griswold parlor and windows will amount to about $50. The only redress the family has is an appeal to the next legislature or some succeeding one.

FARRELL'S NAME RAISED IN INQUIRY

Dickinson Asks About Letters Concerning Steel Wire Pools.

New York, May 9.—In the Steel trust hearing today Judge Dickinson raised the subject of alleged correspondence between the witness George A. Cragin, and James A. Farrell, president of the Steel corporation, but formerly president of the United States Steel Products company, a subsidiary.

"Did you ever have any correspondence with Mr. Farrell in which Jackson's name was mentioned as supervisor of the wire pool?" Cragin was asked.

"Never," declared Cragin.

"Do you know whether Mr. Farrell knew Jackson was supervisor?'

"I do not."

"Did you ever discuss with Mr. Farrell matters in regard to these associations?"

"I do not recall."

The meetings of the wire pool than were taken up, and Judge Dickinson tried to get from the witness corroboration of the government's contention that after the pools formally were abandoned, prices continued to be fixed informally at luncheon meetings at the Railroad club.

Purpose of Meetings.

"Wasn't the purpose of these luncheon meetings to maintain prices?" the witness was asked.

"I was to get an idea of what the price was to be in the future," said Cragin.

"Didn't you state in the presence of H. E. Colton (attorney for the government) and L. R. Clark in February or March, 1912, that you had talked with Mr. Farrell several occasions in regard to the existence of the wire pools?" asked Judge Dickinson.

Cragin answered that he did not recall any such conversation.

At this point news was received in the courtroom of the dismissal of the government's application for an injunction to restrain the corporation from destroying further evidence. Judge Dickinson said the decision would in no way affect the proceedings in this case.

SOCIALIST EJECTED FROM PRUSSIAN DIET.

Berlin, May 9.—The long-standing conflice between President Baron von Erffa and six Socialists of the Prussian diet resulted today in the calling of police to the diet chamber, where they ejected Deputy Borchardt. The latter stood near the tribune during an anti-Socialist speech and repeatedly interrupted the speaker. The president ordered him to be seated, and on his refusal either to sit down or withdraw, the session was suspended while a lieutenant and four policemen carried him, violently struggling, to the street. Later Borchardt returned and was again ejected.

The president has the power, under the rules of the house, to thus dispose of one who fails to obey the rules, but it was the first time that this power had been exercised.

The Socialists, owing to the classified franchise, have a very small representation, but have succeeded in greatly inconveniencing the president and other parties during the present session. A revision of the rules of order to prevent such obstruction by a minority is pending.

TWO WOMEN AND BABE DROWN IN MANITOBA.

Winnipeg, Man., May 9.—Mrs. Lemuel Goethe, aged 45, Miss Clara Adair, 17, and a baby 18 months old, were drowned while trying to ford Pipestone creek, near Elkhorn, Man., today. The buggy was overturned by the water. The stream was swollen by recent rains.

ECONOMIES IN THE USE OF MEAT.

National Food Magazine: The cook who broils the tough end of a porterhouse steak, roasts the ribs in a roast, throws away the bones and juices left on the platter by the carver and discards as unfit for use the meat from which the soup stock is made, is guilty of wicked waste.

The end of a porterhouse steak is unfit to serve when broiled. It should be cut off. This, together with the bone and juice left on the platter, a bay leaf, three or four cloves, an onion, a carrot and some parsley will make several cups of bouillon. The ribs should be cut out of a roast when preparing it for the oven. These with the leftover gravy, may be used in a similar way for stock.

In making stock, the long, slow process of gentle boiling extracts the flavor from the meat and congulates the albumen. Only a little of the latter is extracted. Therefore the meat loses but little of its nourishing properties. There are numerous ways in which such meat can be made appetizing. Combined with rice and tomatoes a delicious luncheon dish may be made. Butter a baking dish and line with hot boiled rice. Fill the center with salt, pepper and onion juice. Cover with rice. Bake twenty minutes in the oven. Turn out on a platter and pour over it a well seasoned tomato sauce. It is a toothsome morsel.

THE ORIGIN OF "BOYCOTT."

London Chronicle: Boycotting, still a serious word in Ireland, is a modern word, though it can be found in almost every European language. Boycott was coined in 1880, from the name of its first victim. Capt. Boycott was agent for Lord Erne's estate in Mayo, and himself farmed some 500 acres. During the land agitation no one would work for him, his walls were thrown down, his cattle driven, and even the necessaries of life had to be brought from a distance by steamer. And when fifty Orangemen volunteered to gather his crops they needed an escort of 900 soldiers, with two field pieces. Yet within seven years he lived down his unpopularity. Having an appointment in England, he spent pleasant holidays in Ireland.

WANTS REWARD FOR TRIPLETS.

Des Moines Evening Tribune: "I wanta da six hundred. I gotta three babbies."

"What?" gasped Secretary J. W. Jenney.

"I reada da paper what say it pay six hundred for three babbies all one time."

"I guess you are mistaken, Frank; no paper offered a reward for three babies. Are they triplets?"

"Huh, huh," grinned the proud Italian father.

"Frank Caprino is the father of the triplets," explained Secretary Jenney to his office guest. "He seems to have the idea that Teddy Roosevelt or the papers have put a premium upon triplets to the extent of $600. He is very much mistaken in that idea or else I have failed to read the papers carefully."

"I saw a want ad the other day that I intended to answer, but was prevented. Perhaps it may appear again today." Such a remark helps to explain why some ads ought to have more than one publication.

To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Duluth, Minn., Gentlemen:

BULLS AGAIN ARE MASTERS

Reaction From the Large Selling of Wednesday Takes Place.

Small Flaxseed Offers and Good Demand Send the Price Up.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 9.—There was quite a bullish reaction on the wheat markets of this continent today and wheat made new high records for the year. Cash No. 1 northern closed at $1.18½. The highest previous close was that of Tuesday, $1.17⅝. Duluth May and July wheat today both closed at $1.18, being 1⅝c up. Duluth cash wheat closed half a cent over May. Durum closed a cent up and oats ⅜c up. Rye and barley closed unchanged. Duluth May flax closed ¾c higher and July ¼c higher.

Reports of a smaller Northwestern wheat acreage had quite a bullish effect on North American wheat markets this morning. Furthermore, the time was ripe for a reaction from the bearish movement that took place yesterday following the government report of the condition of winter wheat. The market seemed to be oversold yesterday and this morning there was a reactionary feeling. Moreover the primary receipts, as has been the case for many days, showed quite a falling off in comparison with those of a year ago.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.16¾ asked, opened today at the same figure asked, and at noon was selling for $1.17½ bid. There were also big bulges at Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

News from the Liverpool market was bullish, wheat closing there ¼d to ½d higher. The principal bullish factor was the expectation of lighter shipments from Argentina.

Flaxseed is Higher.

The Duluth flaxseed market was very strong this morning. Minneapolis crushers were again bidding the Duluth May price, instead of bidding 2 cents under. Offers were very light and there was a ready demand for all that came. Duluth May flaxseed at noon today was ¼c up at $2.19, Winnipeg May was also up ¼c at $1.91½ bid. This made a margin of nearly 24 cents between American No. 1 at Duluth and Northwestern No. 1 at Winnipeg, and with No. 1 Manitoba 3 to 4 cents lower, there was a margin between the same quality of seed on the Duluth and Manitoba markets of 27 to 28 cents. Such a condition cannot long exist without causing the Canadian grain to pour over the tariff wall and rush down upon the Duluth market. Buenos Ayres May flaxseed closed last night at $1.75½ or ½c off. London Calcutta seed closed today at $2.25½, being unchanged from yesterday.

MARKET GOSSIP

H. J. Atwood of the Duluth Board of Trade thinks it is entirely too soon to become alarmed over the decreased acreage of spring wheat or the apparent damage to winter wheat. "When I was a boy living on my father's farm near Northwood in Northern Iowa," he said today, "there was one spring when our oats looked so very bad that my father determined to plow them under. The wind was blowing them out of the ground and blackbirds were eating them. Somehow, we did not get time to plow them up. Not long afterwards there was a great change in the weather. It became cool and wet, and the oats stooled nicely. At harvest time that very field produced the largest crop of oats we ever had.

"No one can tell yet whether the spring wheat crop will be large or small. If the weather is such as to fill out the heads well, we may have a large crop in spite of reduced acreage."

C. E. Lewis & Co. wired from Minneapolis: "Twenty different points in Grand Forks county, N. D., indicate a 25 per cent decrease in the spring wheat acreage in that county."

Rycroft wired today from Chicago: "A good many reports are coming in of corn failing to germinate and rotting in the ground. The trouble is the quality of the wheat and with the season so late there is no time for planting in the main corn belt. We are going to have a very poor, ragged stand for corn as well as a late start."

Searson-Hammill's Kansas City man wires that heavy rain between Oklahoma City and Witchita Tuesday night will delay planting. About one-fifth of the corn planted is rotting. On account of the lateness of the season, the corn acreage will be cut nearly in half and the land seeded to Kaffir and sorghum. Wheat will not make over 40 per cent of an acerage crop. Most of it is thin, spotted and weedy.

The National Millers'-association of France reports wheat stocks very light and only about one-third of the normal. Wheat prices have reached the record for years. Heavy orders for wheat have already been placed with Argentina, Australia and Canada.

A wire from Minneapolis quoted Van Dusen-Harrington as follows: "On account of recent rains, wheat seeding in North Dakota has received a material check, and if it is delayed much longer, prospects as to acreage which existed a week or ten days ago will be very materially affected. Many farmers will be unable to sow wheat and will be obliged to put in barley and oats."

A telegram from Newton says the damage around Newton is 33 per cent, and Kansas will be lucky to raise 70,000,000 bu.

Milwaukee, May 9.—Milwaukee has become the leading primary rye market of the country, by the receipt of 2,400,000 bushels of the product in 1911, according to the annual report of the Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce issued today.

The report says in part:

"To Wisconsin belongs the credit of having produced more rye in 1911 than any other state, 18 per cent of the total crop of the United States, or 6,035,000 bushels. Milwaukee is therefore the leading primary rye market, for, while at one other market the receipts for last year were larger than at this point, a larger volume of trade was attracted to Milwaukee since the beginning of the crop movement than to any other."

The Chicago Paint and Varnish Record says:

"There is not much life to the oil trade, in spite of the optimistic reports which have been given out from time to time, by those who are inclined to bull the market for seed. The buying is of the sort which is designated as 'hand-to-mouth,' or is the taking of stuff on contract, rather than actual new business. The weather has not been just right for the sale of much oil. At this time of the year there is more or less of a demand from the country, which, while not large in any single instance or order, makes a liberal total in the aggregate. But when the weather is bad, as it has been for the past week or more, the buying from this source is limited, and the crushers have not been blessed with many of such orders recently. The big paint manufacturers, who are the largest users of the oil, have done very little in the way of placing new business for the last fortnight. The buyers apparently do not like the recent strength in the market, which has come so soon after the general announcement of a reduction in the price of their best grade ready mixed paints.

"Crushers have plenty of oil on hand, and they would be very glad of the opportunity of moving it. One of the Chicago crushers made the statement recently that wherever there was a possibility of a buyer, there the crushers could be found as thick as flies around molasses in the summer time."

EARLY GAINS WIPED OUT

Prices of Stocks Relax in Last Hour But Close Steady.

Illinois Central Sells Down Lowest Point in Almost Four Years.

New York, May 9.—Influenced in part by the reduction of the British bank rate, the local stock market developed a fair degree of strength at today's opening. Reading soon advanced a full point with substantial gains on the various other leaders such as United States Steel and Amalgamated Copper. Bethlehem Steel preferred rose a point. There was some weakness in St. Paul and a few of the minor issues.

Increased strength and breadth was shown in the first hour, although the movement embraced a number of unimportant issues. United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting and American Can all advanced a full point, with a further rise in Bethlehem Steel preferred and a smart gain in the common. Lehigh Valley, Louisville & Nashville, Northern Pacific and Missouri Pacific were the features of the railway group. Stocks were offered at the advance, but without material effect on prices.

Trading became dull in the second hour with a very slight yielding of prices from their best. The movement, however, not only recovered its early loss but sold above yesterday's high price. The improvement in Great Northern preferred and Northern Pacific was naturally associated with the recent optimistic statements of their titular heads. United States Steel's strength seemed to imply a favorable unfilled tonnage statement tomorrow. Equipment stocks and some of the specialties little heard of recently shared in the early session's very moderate activity. The lower British bank rate was accepted as proof of general monetary ease at all important financial centers. Bonds were steady.

An active demand prevailed for the well known stocks and there was a further substantial rise in dividend paying issued. Reading increased its gain to over 2 points and the copper group mounted strongly on the announcement of large sales of the metal.

The market closed steady. Another severe slump in Illinois Central, which sold down to 121⅛, its lowest prices in almost four years, was mainly ascribed to the severe damage incurred by the road as a result of the Mississippi Valley floods.

Prices generally relaxed in the last hour when a large percentage of early gains was lost, the reaction running from one to one and a half points in the more important issues.

ROOSEVELT AND TAFT FORCES WILL CLASH IN COUNTY CAUCUSES

Standpat Republican Machine Fighting With Its Back to Wall.

Roosevelt Sentiment Predominates, But Taft Organization Is Stronger.

Colonel's Letter to Caswell Made Public in New York.

A sharp contest between the Taft and Roosevelt forces is promised in the Republican caucuses to be held in St. Louis county tomorrow evening, in which the standpat Republican machine of the county will be fighting with its back to the wall.

The presidential fight has an incidental but interesting relationship with the state political situation. The organization which is supporing President Taft is largely the same as that which is back of the Eberhart cause. If defeat should be the portion of the presidential contest, the Eberhart machine would be badly handicapped in its later fight to save itself.

The Roosevelt forces have conducted an open fight, appealing to the people to attend the caucuses and express their preference. The Taft organization has worked principally through personal solicitation, and is making a

HENNEPIN COUNTY PRIMARY TONIGHT

Fifth Congressional District Republicans to Tell Presidential Choice.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Indications of the Republican presidential sentiment in Minnesota will be given tonight, when the primary of Hennepin county, which is identical with the Fifth congressional district, will be held. Voting will be begun at 7 o'clock and the polls will close at 9 o'clock.

The Republicans of the county will vote on President Taft, Theodore Roosevelt and Senator Robert M. La Follette. Arrangements have been made by the headquarters of the three different organizations for the counting of the ballots tomorrow night. Leaders of all three factions are confident of victory.

Other county and district conventions will be held next Monday, May 13, the state convention at St. Paul coming May 16.

TELLS ABOUT STEEL PRICE

A. I. Findley Testifies in Suit for Dissolution of Corporation.

F. J. Newbury Tells of Wire Pool and of Business Arrangements.

New York, May 10.—It was expected that government counsel in the suit to dissolve the United States Steel corporation would place witnesses on the stand today to prove the evidence lost to the government's case by the destruction of the papers in the Jackson wire pool prosecutions.

The government has in its possession copies of part of this lost evidence, but none of it can be put into the record unless identified and sworn to. The evidence tends to show the American Steel & Wire company's participation in the Jackson pools and includes, it is stated, alleged letters indicating that James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation and formerly president of the United States Steel Products company, was aware that the wire company was a member of the pools.

Mr. Farrell, it is expected, will be called to testify.

Course of Prices.

Testimony was first given today to show the course of the prices of wire products, steel rails, steel beams, tinplate, etc., before and after the formation of the United States Steel corporation in April, 1901.

A. I. Findley, editor of an iron and steel trade paper, was called to testify as to the range of prices from 1898 to 1911. He produced charts which showed that wire nails sold in December, 1898, at $25.50 a ton; in January, 1900, at $71.60; in December, 1901, at $44.50; and in February, 1902, at $46.

Similarly, he said, steel beams sold in December, 1898, at $30.50 a ton; in October, 1899, at $53.75; in September, 1900, at $36.75; in January, 1902, at $35.75; and in October, 1902, at $46.50.

Steel rails, he said, in November, 1898, were $16.50 a ton; in November, 1899, $36; in September, 1900, $26; in

WILL VOTE FOR CHAMP CLARK AT BALTIMORE

MRS. ANNA B. PITZER
Of Colorado Springs.

Denver, Colo., May 10. — Champ Clark could not have a more sympathetic supporter than the delegate who will cast the vote of Colorado for him in Baltimore. This delegate is his sister-in-law, Mrs. Anna B. Pitzer, of Colorado Springs. Mrs. Pitzer has never figured in public affairs before. She is a widow who went to Colorado for her health some years ago with her daughter. But the leaders of the Clark movement thought it would be a fine idea to have Mrs. Pitzer on the delegation, so they elected her a delegate at large, and in the interests of her brother-in-law, she accepted. Mrs. Pitzer says the speaker is a born leader of men and well qualified to be a president. She has known him most of his life.

RECESS IS PROPOSED

Congress May Adjourn Over Period of Two National Conventions.

Work Cannot Be Finished Earlier and Quorum Would Be Lacking.

(By Willis J. Abbot.)

Washington, May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the present moment the chief matter interesting congressional circles is the question of adjournment. It is becoming increasingly apparent that the business of congress cannot be completed before the time of the two political conventions in June. While the house is fairly well along with its work, the senate has still practically all of the tariff bills and the appropriation bills to consider, to say nothing of the Lorimer case and a number of commission reports. It is literally and absolutely impracticable for the work of congress to be finished before the first of the conventions, the Republican in Chicago June 17.

In the house a plan is being formulated to take a recess from June 10 to

DAHLMAN AGAIN OMAHA MAYOR

Will Head City Government Under the Commission Plan.

Omaha, Neb., May 10.—At a meeting of the newly elected commissioners of Omaha last night, Mayor James C. Dahlman was selected to head the new municipal government, with the title of mayor and with immediate charge of the department of public affairs. The department of police, sanitation and public safety, regarding which there has been much interest, was assigned to John J. Ryder, an Omaha newspaper man.

MAY ENJOIN INTERSTATE COMMERCE ORDER.

Washington, May 10.—On the ground of practical confiscation of property, an injunction restraining the interstate commerce commission from putting into effect on June 1 its order in the so-called Shreveport case was asked today in the commerce court.

St. Paul Labor Speakers.

St. Paul, Minn., May 10.—Collis Lovely of St. Louis, vice president of the boot and shoe workers; Carl Young of Gary, Ind., of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners; C. M. Freider, organizer of the Barbers' union; W. C. Best of Chicago, made addresses on union labor at various halls here last night, in the labor forward movement. Other prominent leaders will speak during the progress of the meetings.

DECIDE SOON ABOUT DANCE

Methodists Near Final Action on Amusement Question.

Only One Bishop May Be Retired — Missionary Reports Made.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two leading questions before the quadrennial conference of the Methodist-Episcopal church, which is in session here, probably will be decided late today, when meetings of the episcopacy committee and the committee which is deciding the fate of the famous "paragraph 260" of the church discipline will be held. The latter paragraph deals with the amusement question, and since the opening of the conference there has been a determined effort to alter this section so as to leave the question of dancing, card playing and other kindred amusements to the conscience of the member instead of absolutely prohibiting them.

May Retire One Bishop.

During the last week the episcopacy committee, which practically decides the high elective positions of the church in that it names the number of bishops to be chosen, has been holding executive sessions. At a meeting Wednesday night which lasted until early Thursday morning, it is said that the committee deadlocked on the number of bishops which should be retired at the present session of the conference, "standpatters" in the organization, it is said, favoring the retirement of a larger number.

At an unannounced meeting held yesterday, it is said, it practically was decided that but one bishop should be retired and that four only should be

MAY AMEND LAW ON WOMEN'S LABOR

Serious Movement for Change Is Started in Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., May 10.—Without question, legislation will be proposed in the 1913 session of the legislature to amend the fifty-hour per week law for women's labor to make it less stringent upon certain employers. The canning factories and seed warehouses are the greatest sufferers, the work in those plants requiring unusual facility in packing and distributing the crop and necessitating new shifts, at great expense in many cases. This reason is said to be back of a reported plan of a large La Crosse seed company to move to Minnesota. That the law needs amending is not denied by the state industrial commission, but the nature of the proposed changes is not made known.

BISHOP HENDRICKSON WEDS WISCONSIN GIRL.

VALUATION OF CITY IS COMPLETED

Real Estate Assessment Will Show Increase of 11 Per Cent.

Total Valuation for 1912 Will Be More Than $47,000,000.

Assessor Began Work By Discarding All the Old Records.

The real estate revaluation which has been practically completed under the direction of City Assessor J. Allyn Scott will show an increase in land values of about $2,620,000, over 1910.

The total land values will be about $27,520,000 as compared with $24,900,000 two years ago, or a gain of about 11 per cent. The total building values will be in the vicinity of $14,928,000, or an increase over last year of about 5 per cent.

This would bring the total real property valuation to about $42,448,000, with about $6,000,000 of exemptions. This would leave the assessable total at $36,448,000, as compared with $32,747,850 last year. On the real assessment this would represent a gain of $3,700,000 in round numbers.

The personal property assessment is now being made and the figures will not be available for several weeks to come. It is likely that they will show a gain over a year ago, when the totals were approximately $10,800,000. On that basis Duluth's total assessed val-

BIND STATE VOTE TO LA FOLLETTE

Wisconsin Men Intend to Take No Chances on Change.

La Crosse, Wis., May 10.—As an answer to the prevailing impression that the La Follette delegates may break away from the Wisconsin candidate at an early stage of the contest in the Chicago convention, a meeting of the Wisconsin delegation is being arranged to be held at Milwaukee or Chicago June 3 to bind the delegates from this state to La Follette absolutely on every ballot.

New York, May 10.—As a reward for his honesty in returning $510,000 worth of stock certificates which he found in Exchange place, James Dowd, a messenger boy, 15 years old, who is employed by a Wall Street news agency, was given 25 cents. The certificates were the property of a Broad street brokerage firm.

Women Take Part in Riots at the Pennsylvania Workings.

Scranton, Pa., May 10. — Cayuga breaker of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western company in North Scranton, formed the background of a riotous demonstration today.

Foreign workers were leaders among a crowd of 2,000 men and boys that assembled near the breaker to keep away men who were going to the necessary work. They were wild in their outcries, and defied the squad of local police who an hour before had been hurried from every city station on notice from the mine officials that trouble threatened.

The idle workers broke through the police lines, rushed the fire rooms and dragged out men, turning them over to others, who beat them and threw them aside.

State police on duty all night at the Leggetts Creek mine, a mile away, hurried over, and their coming rallied the local police and together the officers charged the mob. There were shots from the rioters. Bricks, stones and clubs were thrown, and the of-

SAY EDUCATION PAYS 100 PER CENT

Wisconsin University Clerk Makes Statement Based on Statistics.

Madison, Wis., May 10.—A university education pays dividends of over 100 per cent, according to a compilation of figures gathered from authoritative sources by Charles L. Harper, chief clerk in the office of the state superintendent of public instruction.

The reports show that the average laborer earns $1.50 per day. The average university graduate or professionally trained man earns $3.83 per day. The average laborer considered as capital, would be valued at $9,426 to the latter. A professionally trained man, upon the same basis, would be valued at $21,800. In both cases the value is determined by considering the earning capacity of the man as a 5 per cent return upon the investment.

Mr. Harper's figures show that the earning capacity of the individual increases with the extent of his education.

STARTED SOMETHING IN EDUCATIONAL WORLD

OWEN JOHNSON.

New York, May 10.—Owen Johnson has started a lively controversy in this country by advancing the proposition that college life in America is breeding snobbery and materialism. Mr. Johnson is one of the younger writers and has done some significant work in placing the conditions of college life before the American people through the medium of fiction. Some other authorities on college life have disputed Mr. Johnson's claim, and the subject has been debated widely.

AAD PATROL WANTS TUNE

Wakes Los Angeles With Yell, But Wants to Sing It, Too.

Duluth Shriners Will Bring Neat Trophy Back From Conclave.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—

"Willie had smallpox, measles, mumps,
And was given up to die,
But he jumped right up and gave three cheers,
When the Duluth boys went by!"

This is the yell that resounds through the corridors of the Angelus hotel wherever two or three of the Aad temple boys are gathered together, and the yell always ends up with a "Bing! Bing!" and a long drawn out "AAAAAD!"

This yell is the product of Noble Custance's fertile brain, and he is busy trying to compose proper music for it. When this is done the composition will occupy a prominent place in the large repertoire of the Aad Temple quartette. The Aad patrol is the most photographed patrol in Los Angeles and is invariably picked out by the local pa-

HALF WISCONSIN SEED CORN LOST

Farmers Must Change Methods of Curing, Expert Declares.

Madison, Wis., May 10.—One-half of the farmers' seed corn was spoiled last winter in this state. So says Prof. R. A. Moore, head of the agronomy bureau at the University of Wisconsin.

The thousands of farmers in Wisconsin who cured their corn by the air-drying process last winter have found that fully one-half of the seed will not germinate, he said. Those farmers who used the kiln dry process report no losses. It simply shows that the farmers of Wisconsin must change their method of curing corn, he declared.

PEOPLE GET NO CROPS FOR THREE YEARS

Mississippi River Is Pouring Torrent Through 3,000-Foot Crevasse.

Other Dikes Are Weakening and Inhabitants Are in Panic.

Floating Carcasses in the Back Water May Breed Disease.

New Roads, La., May 10.—Menaced by flood, famine and pestilence, the people of this city began today in panic. How it will end none can guess, for through a crevasse 3,000 feet wide in the levee north of here, the waters of the now raging Mississippi are sweeping on a country that already has suffered as if under a curse of some deity, and there is little doubt in many minds that not a home will be left standing either in New Roads or the surrounding country.

Driven to desperation by the hopelessness of their battle against the rushing floods, men today rallied for a last stand against the senseless element. Women and children were sent to places of safety in other cities, and warnings of the danger were despatched by couriers to more remote parts of the district. Some of the people have refused to believe in the imminence of their peril, and will not leave their homes. Others, with sensibilities apparently deadened by their successive misfortunes, seem not to care whether they escape or not.

Danger of Disease.

Until the last few days the fight has been only against the giant river,

TAFT MEN MIX CALIFORNIA CASE

Failure to Sign Delegates' Pledges May Result in Contests.

San Francisco, Cal., May 10.—The failure of the Taft delegates in California to sign the preference and delegate pledges promises a complex situation. Roosevelt supporters already have planned to contest the delegates should they be elected.

Both sides are agreed that the Taft delegates had a legal right to omit signing the pledges, inasmuch as both pledges under the law are optional. Roosevelt leaders declare the purpose of the action was to save straggling votes for Taft in the event Roosevelt carried the majority of the districts.

Had they signed the pledges, they would have been obliged to vote for Roosevelt, as the delegates' pledge binds them to "support that candidate who shall have received the highest number of votes cast throughout the state."

OROZCO'S VAN DRIVEN BACK

Gen. Huerta of Madero's Forces Wins Skirmish With Rebels.

Action Is Preliminary to Decisive Battle Between Mexicans.

El Paso, Tex., May 10.—The Mexican federal army has repulsed the rebel advance guard of Gen. Orozco, and sharp skirmishes are now in progress preliminary to what is expected to be the most decisive battle of the revolution. Nearly 15,000 men are engaged on both sides, and the objective point of the rebels is Torreon, the northern railroad gateway. The federals are protecting the city from all sides.

The government claims it drew first blood yesterday, killing ninety insurrectos and losing but seven men, aside from several wounded.

Report by Huerta.

In a telegraph office improvised in a box car on a desert fifty miles north of Torreon, Gen. Victoriano Huerta, commander of the federal army of North-

MINNESOTA POLITICS

Republican Presidential Campaign in Minnesota Nears End—St. Louis County Lies Between Taft and Roosevelt—La Follette Organization Is Hostile to the Ex-President—Kandiyohi County Will Express Itself on the Governorship.

Campaign Nears End.

The Republican presidential contest in Minnesota draws to a close. This evening the caucuses will be held in Hennepin and several other counties. By the Hennepin county caucuses the control of the convention which will choose two delegates from the Fifth district to the Republican national convention will also be determined.

A modified presidential primary plan will be used in Hennepin county. Supporters of Taft, La Follette and Roosevelt are claiming the victory for their candidates. Progressive strength undoubtedly predominates, but the Taft men are basing their hope of success on the split in the Progressive ranks. Even with the Progressive split, the claim is made that Taft cannot get the delegation. Roosevelt and La Follette organizations do not concede anything to each other, but Roosevelt is thought to have the better chance of carrying the county.

All organizations are putting in hard work in Hennepin, as the result of the caucuses tonight may have some effect on the vote in other counties tomorrow.

In St. Louis County.

The result of the St. Louis county caucuses tomorrow evening is a subject for much speculation. It all depends on the attendance. The sentiment in the Republican party as a whole in the county is undoubtedly for Roosevelt, but there is a certain amount of apathy which the Roosevelt organization is making valiant efforts to eliminate. The Republican organization, which usually has unrestrained control of the caucuses, is for Taft and the Roosevelt men are dependent largely on voters who have not been active in the use of the primary machinery of the party.

The Roosevelt men are working to get out the vote and they have hopes of success. Newspaper advertisements, personal solicitation and literature have been used to arouse the voters. Thousands of copies of "Catching Up With Roosevelt," recently published in a popular magazine, have been distributed in the county.

The Taft Republicans, who are working on an "uninstructed" basis, haven't made much noise, but they have been working constantly. They are well organized and will have not only delegate tickets, but men well versed in caucus control in every precinct in the county. The Roosevelt caucus tickets will bear Roosevelt's name, but the Taft tickets will have only the names of the delegate candidates. Though uninstructed delegations to the state and district conventions are intended, if the Taft men control the county convention, the delegations will be made up of men known positively to be for Taft and anxious to choose national delegates who will vote for him if there is a chance of his nomination—or for somebody like him.

La Follette Men Change Front.

La Follette has little positive strength in St. Louis county and it was thought until this morning that the strength he has would be thrown to Roosevelt. It was announced today, however, that the La Follette men had decided not to support Roosevelt. They suggested a compromise by which they would be given representation in the county convention from certain precincts where they believe they are strong, but the Roosevelt men declined to treat with them on that basis. There will be La Follette tickets in all precincts in which La Follette men can be mustered.

The officers of the local La Follette club deny that the state organization had anything to do with the change of front. They say the attitude of the Roosevelt leaders was intolerable, so they have decided to go into the caucus independent of the other Progressive element. The Roosevelt men say that La Follette's strength in the county is not sufficient to give Taft any advantage, even if the Progressive vote is split in some precincts.

The state organization has adopted an attitude uncompromisingly hostile to Roosevelt. The Taft organization in the state has been sending out La Follette literature in the shape of a letter on the Harvestor trust, but the officers of the Minnesota Progressive league do not seem to be greatly concerned thereat.

Taft Club Claims.

J. J. Robinson, secretary of the Duluth Taft club, claims that Taft has 461 delegates to the national convention assured and that Roosevelt has only 215. His figures count in almost every contested delegation and are greatly at variance with the claims of the Roosevelt national headquarters and impartial reviews of the situation. On the basis of Mr. Robinson's figures, Taft needs only seventy-nine more delegates for nomination.

Kandiyohi is Storm Center.

Kandiyohi county tomorrow will give the first indication of the sentiment on the governorship. In addition to the delegates to the first county convention, delegates will also be chosen to the convention June 28.

The contest is between Gordon and Lee. Gordon has been campaigning personally in the county. Tonight at Willmar, he will give the keynote speech of his campaign. The Anti-Saloon league has thrown its support to Lee and Gordon charges that the Eberhart men are also working for the Long Prairie man. Kandiyohi is in the Seventh congressional district, in which Gordon also has his home, and a defeat for Gordon would be damaging. He charges that the state organization is anxious to bring about his discomfiture, even at the expense of having Lee take the delegation.

Candidates in the Sixth.

The Sixth congressional district is overburdened with candidates. William E. Lee of Long Prairie would be governor. Alvah Eastman is the lone candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman-at-large, and Alexandria, Senator Knute Nelson's home, is alos in the Sixth. Senator Nelson is expected to have little trouble obtaining a renomination. No opposition has appeared to Mr. Eastman, and Lee appears to be the "goat."

BUYING MILCH COWS.

Stark and Dunn County Farmers Selling Off Range Stock.

Dickinson, N. D., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Over 200 thoroughbred milch cows will be placed on farms in Stark and Dunn county during the next few days as a result of the activities of local development workers. The milch cows will take the place, in many instances, of the range herds, the tendency among the farmers in these two counties being toward dairy cattle. The big shipment of cattle is being made from Wisconsin, and it is due to reach Dickinson tonight. The fact that this territory is well supplied with creamery facilities makes the dairying industry especially profitable.

BARRILL WILL AGAIN TACKLE ALASKAN PEAK.

Missoula, Mont., May 10.—Ed Barrill, the mountain guide who accompanied Dr. Cook on his expedition to Mount McKinley, and who exposed the alleged discoverer, will make another effort to reach the summit of the greatest mountain in the western hemisphere. With a company of picked mountain climbers, Barrill will start this week for Seattle. There they will take ship for Cook's inlet, and at that point will establish a base for the summer's assault upon the hitherto impenetrable reaches of the mountain.

SHORTAGE OF LABORERS

"Three Jobs for Every Man," Say Employment Agents.

Canada Drains Market—Local Agents Go Out of Business.

"We have three or four jobs for every man," said an employment agent yesterday afternoon.

"You can see quite a bunch of idle men hanging about in this district, but they are the kind who never work. They are the sort who want a job drawing pay for sleeping and eating with all they can drink thrown in gratis.

"The last month we have been shipping out a great many men, but we cannot begin to supply the demand. The work is opening up in great shape. We need hundreds of men for extra gangs, railroad construction work, river work, woods work, farm work and jobs in the city. The wages are good, having been advanced someyhat by the shortage of the labor market."

The agent went on to say that the local supply of labor had been depleted to a considerable extent by the big demand for men in Canada. He explained that for weeks past high wages and long time had been offered throughout the Canadian Northwest and that the men had looked with favor on the prospects in that direction.

The drain in the labor supply is evidenced in a reduced number of employment offices. In the last few weeks five of them have closed up their offices and gone out of business.

Local contractirs are having some difficulty in getting men and have appealed to the employment agents to help them out. They are offering good wages. Most of it is sewer construction work. As far as possible the local contractors endeavor to have a crew of men available and upon whom they can call at any time. Their desire to keep up their force and equipment is partially responsible for the low bids which the city has been getting on its improvements this spring.

PRIMARY RESULTS IN NORTH DAKOTA

Official Vote Gives La Follette Plurality of 10,454.

Bismarck, N. D., May 10.—The state canvassing board has issued certificates to the successful candidates at the presidential preference primaries held on March 19, as follows:

Republican—National committeeman, Thomas F. Marshall; presidential electors, Gilbert Johnson, Theodore Thompson, H. H. Aker, D. P. Barnes, F. W. Cathro; delegates national convention, O. T. Tofsrud, T. Twichell, J. H. Cooper, L. B. Garnass, August E. Johnson, W. S. Lauder, A. H. Nelson, Emil Scow, P. O. Thorson, Robert M. Pollock.

Democratic—National committeeman, John Bruegger; presidential electors, D. S. Armstrong, E. S. Cameron, Thomas C. Kelly, A. B. Kerlin, M. D. Williams; delegates national convention, W. E. Purcell, J. N. Kelly, Frank Reed, S. J. Doyle, E. J. Hughes, W. L. Walton, C. A. Mansfield, Carl Nelson, Frank Lish, Willis A. Joy.

The total vote was: For president, La Follette, 34,123; Roosevelt, 23,669; Taft, 1,876. La Follette's plurality is 10,454. All the Republican electors and delegates elected ran on the La Follette platform, and it was thought some Roosevelt men might have won, but none had a chance.

STUB ROO TONIC!

E. A. JOHNSON.

Manufacturer Stub Roo Tonic.

Duluth Minn, July 10, 1908.

Stub Roo Remedy Company, Duluth, Minn.
Dear Sir: It gives me great pleasure to state what Stub Roo Tonic has done for me. For 15 years I have been in poor health; my stomach has always been in trouble, and I never could eat a meal at any time without throwing up afterwards. My stomach has always been out of order and I have never felt well. I had dizzy spells, pains in my shoulder, headache, cramps in my legs at night, and in general had all kinds of sick feeling.

I used many doctors' prescriptions for different medicine, from one thing to another, but never got any medicine from doctors to help. Last summer, in the month of August, 1907, my wife was told about Stub Roo Tonic, the great blood purifier, from some of our friends, and I began to take treatment of Stub Roo Tonic and to my surprise I felt good after the first bottle, and I kept on taking it for three months. Now I am a well man and feel better than I ever did in my life for the last 15 years—thanks to Stub Roo Tonic. I shall always recommend it and shall always keep it in my house, and any one in need of a tonic to clean the blood, Stub Roo Tonic never fails.

Yours very truly,

If the committee report is completed at the meeting tonight, it probably will be presented to the conference Saturday and balloting on bishops will be begun Monday or Tuesday.

For Foreign Missions $5,177,259.

Contributions received in the last four years by the general committee for foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal church aggregated $5,177,259, according to the committee report presented to the general conference. Tabulation of the contributions showed that the proportionate increase in special contributions has been greater in that period than the increase in the regular contributions.

The report recommends that the general conference carefully consider the question of special gifts, with a view to harmonizing the donations with the needs of the different fields.

The question of separate contributions for foreign and home mission fields is also presented to the conference in the report, and attention is directed to the progress in foreign missions in the last twenty-four years, showing an increase of 492 missionaries and 4,391 native preachers.

The difficulties met by missionaries by reason of revolutions in two of the most important foreign fields, Mexico and China, are touched on in the report, which finds cause for rejoicing that the future in both fields is bright.

Home Mission Work.

The Woman's Home Missionary society, according to its report, in the thirty-one years of its existence, has acquired property amounting to $2,360,244, which is used for homes, missions and hospitals. The work of the society is done among Southern whites, negroes, Mormons, Indians, immigrants and foreign populations of large cities. Among the speakers at this meeting were Mrs. E. L. Albright, Chicago; Mrs. D. L. Williams, Delaware, Ohio; Mrs. Cotton Mather, Forbes, Ohio, and Bishop F. M. Bristol, Buenos Ayres.

At the evening session addresses were made by the Rev. A. B. Goddard, Bishop Frank Warne and Bishop William S. Lewis.

FIRST CONCRETE ROAD.

In Minnesota to Be Built in Steele County.

St. Paul, Minn., May 10. — The first concrete road in the state will be built this summer in Steele county, south of Owatonna, under the supervision of the state highway commission. Efforts to keep the road in good shape have proved a failure owing to heavy sand and the new stretch of concrete road will be tried for demonstration purposes. It will be a quarter of a mile long and will cost $1,500.

Michigan has several concrete roads, which have proved satisfactory.

MANY JOBS UNDER WAY

American Bridge Company Finding Big Market in Duluth Territory.

More Than 10,000 Tons Already in Place at Steel Plant.

A healthy condition of the market for structural steel in this territory and activity in construction work requiring steel are reflected in the activity of the Duluth office of the American Bridge company. Construction work is under way on several large contracts and the material has been furnished or ordered for several contracts of more than passing importance.

The most important work under way is that at the plant of the Minnesota Steel company, where the American Bridge company's construction crews have been at work for over a year. About 10,000 tons of steel have already been set and as much more will be set before the contracts on the first unit of the big plant are completed. Work is now being conducted on the rail mill, which requires 1,400 tons of steel.

The steel work on several additional buildings, requiring between 5,000 and 6,000 tons of steel, will be completed at the plant this year. Among the buildings are the ore bins for the blast furnaces, motor house for the rail mill, gas producer building, rail finishing building, marking and shipping bed building and hot bed and storage building.

Next week construction work will be begun on the building to be erected at the corner of Fifth avenue west and Superior street for C. E. Henderson of Easton, Maryland. Work will also be begun on a machine shop and warehouse for the Duluth Diamond Drilling company at West Duluth near the Imperial Iron works.

Among the contracts for which the American Bridge company recently furnished material was the Grassy Point bridge of the Northern Pacific for which 2,000 tons of steel was required. For the Great Northern Power company's new transmission line from the dam at Thomson to the new transformer station at Superior, 110 transmisison towers were furnished. The steel for the transformer station was also furnished by the company.

School Buildings.

Construction work is now being conducted on the Lincoln school at Eveleth and the new high school at Buhl, which will be two of the finest school buildings on the Mesaba range, which has many fine educational institutions.

Among the other contracts for which structural steel has been furnished or ordered of the company are: A rock house for the Quincy Mining company at Hancock, Mich.; an addition to the boiler house of the Butte & Superior Copper company at Butte, Mont.; about 100 tons of steel for the Leonidas mine at Eveleth, and material for the headframe, stock pile trestle and boiler house of the Webb mine of the Shenango Furnace company, and for many smaller contracts in Duluth and on the ranges.

While not important in its bulk, the furnishing of steel for residences is a comparatively recent development in construction work. Many Duluth residences erected in the last two or three years are of solid fireproof construction, with steel floor beams, filled in with concrete. The fireproofing of floors is an important phase of fireproof residence construction and several of the more expensive residences now under construction in Duluth will be so fitted. Among these now under construction for which steel was furnished by the American Bridge company are the residences of John F. Killorin and H. B. Fryberger. Other residences built recently and furnished with steel for floor construction are the homes of C. P. Craig, Dr. D. C. Rood, Gust Carlson, Herbert Warren and A. M. Washburn.

uation for 1912 will be considerably over $47,000,000, as compared with $43,601,841 a year ago.

Great interest is being manifested in the revaluation of the city which has been made by the present assessor. He swept all old figures on lands and buildings aside and started a complete new set of valuations. Every piece of property was checked over, its topography noted, together with all other features which might be of use in arriving at its actual value. All buildings were measured, the character of the construction taken, together with their age, location, use, etc. Every detail was noted in a complete, modern card system which was installed by Assessor Scott.

The figures secured today are not definite and some changes may be made in them, but it is stated at the office of the assessor that they are as nearly correct as they can be at this time. Nothing more definite will be known until all the entries have been entered and checked.

In giving out the figures it was made plain that it does not mean that individuals can ascertain at this time what their assessments will be. The personal property assessment is under way and the clerks are too busy to take up values with different persons. This will be done when the big mass of work now on hand has been cleared away.

FLOOD, FAMINE AND PESTILENCE MENACE RICH FARMING REGION

and this and other cities have become places of refuge for thousands who were driven from their homes. But now a new peril has appeared, for in the back water between here and Torras there are floating hundreds and hundreds of carcasses of stock and other animals, and today the state health authorities admitted that they have serious fears of an outbreak of disease from the presence of the floating bodies. It is impossible either to burn or bury the rotting flesh, and how the new menace may be met is a serious problem.

What makes the people of this region more hopeless in the face of the disaster is its cumulative character. This is the third consecutive calamity that has come upon them. Two years ago the boll weevil ruined the cotton crop, then the main product of this entire region. Disheartened, the people abandoned cotton and planted cane, and the early freeze of last winter destroyed thousands of tons of that product.

No Crops at All.

Now, with the flood spreading over the whole parish, it is certain that no crop of any kind can be planted this year. Before the series of disasters began, Pointe Coupee parish, though not under intensive cultivation, produced annually 64,000 bales of cotton and 3,000,000 pounds of sugar, besides large crops of rice and truck. This year it will produce nothing.

All people living in this territory have been warned to flee. Many, however, declare they will not abandon their homes. Consequently government and state relief officials are preparing for a hard campaign of rescue work. Boats are being gathered here and crews are being drilled.

It seems only a matter of a few hours before this entire territory will be inundated just as the country to the north has been. This means the state and the government will have to care for thousands more homeless and that the people of Louisiana must bear a great additional loss before the flood waters have turned back.

Floods Near Red Wing.

Red Wing, Minn., May 10.—The Mississippi river has risen more than two feet in twenty-four hours and is now higher than at any time since 1908. Lowlands are flooded and considerable damage has already resulted. Further trouble is feared.

December, 1901, $28; since which date they have not varied.

Steel Rail Price "Fixed."

The price of steel rails, the government contends, was permanently fixed at $28 by agreement among manufacturers at the time the Steel corporation was formed.

Mr. Findley said that tin-plate which sold at $2.75 a hundredweight in October, 1898, advanced to $4.20 in May, 1902, and that similar advances were shown in other products.

"I want to show by Mr. Findley that these advances followed closely upon these early consolidations," said Judge Dickinson.

The witness then testified that the Carnegie Steel company, the National Steel company, the American Steel & Wire company, the American Tin-Plate company and other subsidiaries were formed about 1898.

On cross-examination, counsel for the defense brought out that during the last few years steel prices had declined, and as a general rule were lower now than when the corporation was formed.

Tells of Price Agreements.

Returning to the wire pools, Judge Dickinson called Frank J. Newbury of John A. Roebling's Sons' company, who represented his company in the rubber-covered wire, the lead-encased rubber cable and weather-proof and magnet wire associations.

Price fixing, allotments of business among the members, guarantee funds and penalties for violations of rules were all features of the operation of these pools, the witness testified. Representatives of the American Steel & Wire company attended the meetings, he said, and after the pools' formal disbandment the members continued to meet at informal luncheons.

Ordered Papers Destroyed.

The question as to whether officers of the American Steel & Wire company ordered the destruction of the evidence in the so-called Jackson wire pool cases before or after the filing of the pending dissolution suit against the United States Steel corporation, was answered by Frank Baakes, vice president of the wire company, who testified before Commissioner Brown that he had given the order to George A. Cragin, his assistant sales manager, at Worcester, Mass., in September, or early in October, last. The suit was filed Oct. 26.

Baakes testified further that he had given orders, after the dissolution of the wire pools three years ago, for the destruction of all the papers connecting his company with the pool corporation, but that the order had been only partly executed. It was due to this oversight that the papers now in question came to the hands of the government.

This testimony came somewhat as a surprise, as it was elicited by the Steel corporation's counsel, after they had fought to prevent Baakes from answering questions regarding the date of his visits to Worcester, where the papers were burned by Harry A. Whitney, a subordinate, who subsequently resigned.

New Steele, N. D., School.

Steele, N. D., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of education will let a contract within a few days for the construction of a high school, costing about $20,000. A Hankinson company was the low bidder, failing, however, to accompany its bid with the necessary certified check. When that is received the contract will be let. The bids ranged from $19,500 to $26,000. There were thirteen bidders all told.

COST ABOVE ESTIMATE

Remodeling of Jail and Police Station Will Require Over $18,000.

City Authorities Figured on Expense of About $10,000 for the Work.

The board of public works this morning opened bids for the remodeling of the police station. The figures show that the work will cost over $18,000.

The authorities had expected that if the third-story plan were not followed and the remodeling confined to the interior, as has been done, the job would not cost much over $10,000, or half of the $20,000 levied by the conference committee last fall for the remodeling.

The general contract will go to Jacobson Bros. for $8,316. The Diebold Safe & Lock company will probably install the new modern cells, their bid of $3,362 being low. Stack Bros. will do the plumbing and heating and install the vacuum plant at a cost of approximately $3,788, and the ventilating plant will likely go to D. R. Black on his bid of $1,820. The Burgess Electric company's bid of $980 was low on the electric work. The preliminary figures were gotten out by the board this morning and there may be some changes in them, but it is believed that they will not be great.

The changes in the jail are badly needed and have been for several years past. The conditions have been decried so many times that the public is familiar with them.

Under the new arrangement the lodgers will be separated from the prisoners, being placed in quarters arranged for them in the basement, which faces on Michigan street. The new cells will be of steel and the latest type. The ventilation system will be ample and numerous other features which accompany a modern jail will be made.

The bids will be checked over by the board and the contracts will probably be awarded at the meeting Monday morning. A number of bids on sewer contracts and for concrete crossings on Fifth and Sixth streets were opened by the board this morning, but the low bidders were not known at noon.

HOW RED CROSS IS BEING PROTECTED

Methods of Different Nations Compared at Washington.

Washington, May 10.—What the various countries of the world have been doing to protect the sign and name of Red Cross for the use alone of the official societies which bear that name and sign formed the subject of reports today presented to the International Red Cross conference in session here. On the program also for discussion were some of the peace activities of the Red Cross, such as the ambulance instruction given to industrial workers in Wales. Major Charles Lynch, U. S. A., in charge of the American Red Cross first aid department, told what this country is doing in first aid work.

EUGENE CHAFIN TO STUMP WISCONSIN

Biggest Prohibition Convention in the State's History Is Predicted.

Madison, Wis., May 10. — For thirty days Eugene W. Chafin, who was the Prohibition candidate for president in 1908 will conduct a "whirlwind" campaign of public meetings and county conventions in Wisconsin, terminating with the state convention in Madison on June 11-12. Secretary A. B. Taynton of the state headquarters here said today that seventy-one meetings will be held, all of which will be addressed by the former presidential candidate. He predicts that the state convention will be attended by 800 delegates, the largest in the party's history in this state.

BRICE EXAMINER OF SUGAR TRUST

Court Names Lawyer to Take Testimony in Federal Dissolution Suit.

New York, May 10.—Judges Lacombe, Coxe, Ward and Noyes of the circuit court of appeals today appointed Wilson B. Brice, a New York lawyer, as special examiner to take testimony in the government's suit to dissolve the American Sugar Refining company. The taking of testimony will begin Monday next.

The suit was filed some time ago, but was held up pending settlement of the criminal cases against John E. Parsons and other directors and officers of the sugar company. The trial resulted in a disagreement and the fact that the dissolution suit is now being pressed is taken to indicate that another trial of the criminal case is not contemplated for the present at least.

STAPLES CLUB MEET.

Musical Club of Village Will Entertain Pubic.

Staples, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.) — The Staples Thursday Musical club will hold their first public meeting this evening at the Batcher opera house. This club was organized last fall to fill the want of a society for the culture and advancement of music. Weekly meetings were held all during the winter in the K. of P. club rooms. The concert which will be given by the club will consist of home talent. Both vocal and instrumental selections will be rendered by the club members. The club membership was limited to 100 during the past year, but it is expected that the number will be extended to 150 for the coming season. Miss Stone, the conductor, is not expected to return for the coming season.

Band Getting Into Shape.

The Staples band has been busy during the past winter months perfecting its organization and drilling its members. Prof. W. Read has had considerable difficulty in securing enough material for his band, but with the twenty or thirty pieces which he has already secured and drilled it is expected that he will have a nice aggregation. The business men of the city have donated towards the erection of a band stand and also a movable truck for the concerts which will be given in the different parts of the city. The band will make its first public appearance on Memorial day and from then on will give weekly concerts.

SELL PAPERS WITHOUT GUARDS IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, May 10.—Newspapers were sold at a number of downtown street corners today without guard for the first time since the beginning of the newspaper strike. The zone for the distribution of newspapers has been gradually widened in the last few days until at present it includes nearly every section of the city.

Following the action of President James J. Freel of the Stereotypers' International union in revoking the charter of the Chicago union for rebelling against the laws of the international union more striking stereotypers applied to the newspapers today for reinstatement. A few of the old men have been taken back, but it is reported that most of the newspapers have full crews of stereotypers.

At all the elevator stations morning and afternoon newspapers were sold at the entrances under police protection.

No serious disturbances were reported early in the day.

MEAT PRICE MAY DECLINE

New Process of Defrosting Is Tried Successfully In England.

South American and Australia Meats May Affect Our Markets.

(From The Herald Washington Bureau.)

Washington, May 10.—Meat packers of the United States, Europe and South America have been greatly interested in a new process of defrosting meat, recently tried successfully before a large company of experts at Plymouth, England. Australia for a number of years, and likewise South America, have been bidding with the United States for the fresh meat markets of Europe, and since the high price of meats in this country, Australia and South America have been anxious to ship their goods here. But the great difficulty with meat shipped long distances by sea through the tropics has been that the freezing process made necessary by such long voyages has made the meat thus shipped inferior in appearance and taste to the fresh meat of the home markets. The solution of the problem for years, it has been recognized, has been the discovery of a method whereby meat from the Southern hemisphere, consigned to Europe and North America, might be defrosted in such a way as not to injure it in any way. This, it is now claimed, has been done. If the new process should work in actual practice as it has been made to work in the recent experiments, it is said that meat from the Southern hemisphere can be sold in North America and in Europe at prices very greatly below the prices now prevailing.

New Process Tried.

The new process recently tried in Plymouth thaws the frozen meat in a chamber so constructed that the atmospheric pressure can be regulated and the excess moisture extracted without bursting the tissues of the meat. It is claimed that beef and mutton can then be placed on the market in the North in such a condition as to compare favorably with prime English or American meat. The representatives of the great packing companies of the United States, South America and Europe, who witnessed the experiments referred to, are said to have been profoundly impressed. For three weeks prior to its removal from the ship at Plymouth, the beef and mutton had been held at a temperature of about 18 degs. It was then placed in the patent chambers—beef for forty-eight hours, and mutton for twenty-four hours—at a temperature of 62 degs. Upon removal from the chamber the beef was compared with prime English beef and with a frozen quarter from Queensland. It had a fine bloom, was free from mold and there was an entire absence of "leakage." In every way it was far superior to the quarter shipped from Queensland. Quarters of beef and carcasses of mutton were then cut up in the presence of the visitors with results that were highly satisfactory, defrosting having been thoroughly carried out. On the following morning, says the American consul who made the report to the American government, the treated meat, cut and uncut, was inspected at the Smithfield market and found to be satisfactory and entirely free from the drawbacks of frozen meat marketed in the usual manner.

May Cause Prices to Drop.

Beef cattle are fattened for the market much more cheaply in South America and Australia than in the United States or Europe, and it is believed by the experts in this city that if the defrosting experiments above referred to can be made to work successfully on a large scale, there will be a radical drop in the price of fresh meat on both sides of the North Atlantic ocean. The packers of the United States, of course, have been as much interested in the experiments at Plymouth as the cattle raisers of the far South, and the interest of consumers, both in the United States and Europe, will also be very great, but for different reasons. It is understood here that it is the purpose of the Southern cattle raisers to establish their defrosting system quite generally in Europe, where the tariffs are favorable, and to begin at once bidding for a large share of the European markets for fresh meat. Experts from the department of agriculture express the opinion that if South America and Australia can materially increase their fresh meat sales in Europe, the markets in the United States will at once be affected. Prices in this country, it is pointed out, would necessarily drop, because of the larger surplus each year for home consumption.

FOUNDLING ON DOORSTEP.

Infant Brought to Brainerd By Young Mother and Deserted.

Brained, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Trainmen on the morning passenger yesterday noticed a young mother nursing a baby, and saw her leave the train with the infant when she arrived at Brainerd. Later an infant was found on a doorstep of a North Side home and the police were notified and the baby given in charge of the visiting nurse, Miss Edith Bohlke. The baby's hands and feet were blue with cold and the nurse gave it a warm bath and revived it.

A note was found in its clothes attached to a rosary, which read: "Be good to little Magdalen Mary! God will reward you for it. She is baptized and a Catholic." The baby will be kept a week and an effort made to have it adopted by some Catholic family.

Wants Mining Lease.

Brainerd, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. R. Mitchell of Minneapolis has submitted a proposal to the county commissioners of Crow Wing county for a mining option on the south half of the northwest quarter of section 3 township 45, range 30. He offered 25 cents a ton royalty and a minimum tonnage of 10,000 tons. The matter was referred to the county attorney.

Jule Jamieson of Crosby has platted "Julesburg," lying between Crosby and Ironton, with forty-six lots in the plate. In the spring a thirty-five room hotel will be built in Julesburg, including also other substantial improvements.

PROTECTING THE BIRDS

Bill at Last Favorably Reported By Committee of Senate.

Enormous Damage Inflicted By Insects Which Birds Would Eat.

(From The Herald Washington Bureau.)

Washington, May 10.—Insects of various kinds levy a tax of $800,000,000 a year on the agricultural output of the country, and for a long time the department of agriculture has been endeavoring to secure reliable data on which to go before congress with a request for legislation that will put a stop to this heavy drain upon the country's resources. It has finally been decided by the department that the farmers will secure relief in proportion as there is adequate protection for migratory game and insectivorous birds, and a bill which provides for the proper protection of this form of wild life has at last been favorably reported from the senate committee on forest reservations and game, by Senator McLean of Connecticut. This favorable action by the senate committee has awakened the hope that congress will in due time enact a law based on the report of the senate committee, and that public sentiment will respond to it in a way that will make its enforcement easy.

The report deals with the intimate relation existing between the decrease of game birds in the United States and the enormous multiplication of insects which attack crops of fruit, grain and vegetables. "Any one who has read recent estimates of the decrease in insectivorous birds and the increase of herbivorous insects," says the McLean report "can readily believe that as the mammals succeed reptiles, insects soon possess the earth, unless some agency is discovered to check their increase less expensive than arsenic.

Enormous Loss Caused.

"A short time ago the farmers of the country, especially in the Northwest, were much agitated because of the proposed reciprocity agreement with Canada. The loss which they, together with other farmers of the country, will suffer this year, and which will benefit no one, will exceed hundreds of millions of dollars the total value of the entire wheat crop of the nation.

"As long ago as 1904, Dr. G. L. Marlatt, basing his estimates on the crop reports of the department of agriculture, asserted that the loss to the agricultural interests in that year, caused by insects alone, could be conservatively stated at $795,000,000, and this estimate does not include a dollar for the the use of insecticides.

"Mr. Forbush, in his most comprehensive book, entitled 'Useful Birds,' maintains that insects destroy agricultural products to the value of $800,000,000 a year. We use large numbers so freely in these days, both in science and in finance, that hundreds of millions mean no more to us than hundreds of thousands did a few years ago.

"There are about 600 colleges in the United States today. Their buildings and endowments are the result of centuries of accumulation. The value of the college and university buildings is estimated at $260,000,000, and the endowments at $219,000,000. If they should be destroyed tomorrow—buildings and endowments—the insect tax of one year would replace them and leave a balance sufficient to endow thirty-two new institutions in the sum of $10,000,000 each.

Loss Should Be Prevented.

"We have in this country today about 20,000,000 school children, and the cost of their education has become by far the heaviest tax upon the surplus of the country; yet it costs more by many millions to feed our insects than it does to educate our children. If there is any way in which this vast and destructive tax upon the national income can be prevented or stayed, or resisted in any appreciable measure, it would seem to be the part of wisdom to act without delay.

"For many years individuals at their own expense, and voluntary societies and representatives of the most civilized nations of the world, have studied and investigated and estimated the value of birds to the human race. We call attention at this time to but a few of the estimates made, and such as seem to be fair and reliable, but enough, we think, to prove that in this country, at least, we have ruthlessly distributed, if not destroyed, one of nature's wisest and most valuable balances between the birds and their natural food, and it is clear to those who know the most about this subject that unless radical and immediate measures are adopted to restore a sure, safe and natural equilibrium between insectivorous birds and their foods, the time will soon come when the annual loss caused by insects to agriculture in this country alone will be counted in billions instead of millions of dollars.

"Most insects, like the green leaf louse, or aphis, so destructive to the hop industry, and to many of our most valuable fruits and vegetables, reproduce their kind at the rate of ten sextillions to the pair in one season. This number means 40,000 for every square inch of ground that is above water. Placed in Indian file, ten to the inch, it would take light, traveling at the rate of 180,000 miles a second, 2,500 years to reach the file leader.

Tremendous Increase.

"The potato bug is less fecund. One pair will reproduce from 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 only in a season. The natural increase of the pair of gypsy moths would defoliate the United States in eight years.

"These estimates I quote from Prof. Forbush, who, in turn, gathered them from the United States biological survey, and we may say that these cases are fair samples of the reproductive powers of the insect world. Locusts, army worms, and chinch bugs, unless checked, soon become countless hordes, devastating wide areas of the earth's surface.

"It is to be remembered that insects live to eat. Some of them increase their size at birth 10,000 times in thirty days. Dr. Lintner of the New Jersey board of agriculture reports 176 species of insects attacking the apple tree. About the same number attack the plum, peach and cherry trees. Dr. Packard finds 400 species feeding upon the oak, and 300 upon the conifera. The number feeding upon cereals, grains and garden crops is also very large.

"The reports of the bureau of entomology show that destruction by some insects is very widely spread. Dr. Marlatt estimates that the loss to the wheat-growing states in 1904 by the hessian fly was about $50,000,000. Dr. Shinar estimates the damage done to crops in the Mississippi valley caused by chinch bugs in one year as high as $100,000,000. The Rocky mountain locusts, in years of their greatest activity, caused the states of the Northwest more than $150,000,000 loss. Dr. Lintner estimates the annual loss to farmers caused by cut worms at $100,000,000. The total loss of $800,000,000 a year is thus fairly easy of proof.

"However large may be the share of parasites, fungi and weather in checking the increase of insects, investigation shows that it is unsufficient, and the briefs of the bird defenders pretty clearly indicate that the birds have been, are and will be, without question, one of the most important agencies in staying the inroads of insect devastation. Men who have had this subject at heart for many years assert that bird life is one of the most indispensible balancing forces of nature.

Birds Eat Insects Mostly.

"We cite a few reasons in support of the foregoing. All birds eat, and most of them eat most of the time, and they eat insects and little else. The old bird has just as keen an appetite as the young bird, and he is much larger, and his daily ration is almost incredible.

"Mr. Treadwell of the Boston Society of Natural History fed a young robin 68 angle or earth worms in one day. Mr. Nash of the Ontario department of agriculture fed a robin 70 cut worms a day for fifteen days. A young crow will eat twice its weight a day of almost anything that happens to be brought before him. The state ornithologist of Massachusetts, Mr. Forbush, by careful and painstaking observation, has collected much reliable information on this subject. He has seen two parent grosbacks in eleven hours make 450 trips to their nests carrying two or more larvae at a time. Sparrows, chickadees, vireos, martens and warblers made from forty to sixty trips an hour with their beaks filled with all manner of insects. Under the supervision of the United States biological survey, the crops of 3,500 birds were examined. Thirty grasshoppers, 250 caterpillars were found in the crops of cuckoos. In the crop of a nighthawk were found sixty grasshoppers and in another 500 mosquitoes. Thirty-eight cut worms were found in the crop of a blackbird. Seventy carker worms were found in the crop of a cedar bird. Prof. Schudl estimates the diet of a song sparrow at 1,500 larvae a day."

The foregoing is but a small part of the argument brought to bear by the senate committee in favor of the enactment into law of its bill providing for the better protection of birds.

LUCKY GRANDSON OF NAPOLEON'S DOUBLE

Brussells, May 10. — A grandson of Godillot, the famous "double" of Napoleon III, is reported to have captured the heart of a Chicago heiress. It was Godillot who supplied boots to the French army in the Franco-Prussian war, and according to Gen. Ricard and Gambetta, Gen. McMahon's force could easily have crossed the Belgian frontier near Sedan, but for their ill-fitting shoes.

Thus, because of Godillot's boots, the French army suffered a great defeat that changed the course of history. What remained of the boots in Paris were sent on to Tours where they were ultimately served out to Chanzy's improvised army. The troops were afflicted, in consequence, with foot sores and lagged when a forced march was necessary.

Godillot was so much like Napoleon III in appearance that it would have been hard, were they both together, to have said which was which. In 1873 Godillot's appearance on the boulevards and at a mass in memory of the third Napoleon convinced Paris that the emperor still lived.

It is supposed that Godillot was the twin brother of Mormy. He often went to see Napoleon III, but stealthily, at the Tuileries. The endless military and navel contracts he obtained under the cover of men of straw were one of the means which brought him a great fortune. He bought the old hippodrome for a storehouse. He died worth $12,000,000.

Soldiers deployed along the northern border of Yellowstone park fire their rifles continually to keep the thousands of elks from leaving the grounds until the open season for hunting is over.

The assessed value of property in Porto Rico has increased from $90,000,000 in 1905 to over $162,000,000 in 1911.

S.S.S. DRIVES OUT RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is due to an excess of uric acid, an irritating, inflammatory accumulation, which gets into the circulation because of weak kidneys, constipation, indigestion, and other physical irregularities which are usually considered of no importance. Nothing applied externally can ever reach the seat of this trouble; the most such treatment can do is soothe the pains temporarily; while potash and other mineral medicines really add to the acidity of the blood, and this fluid therefore continually grows more acrid and vitiated. Then instead of nourishing the different muscles and joints, keeping them in a normally supple and elastic condition, it gradually hardens and stiffens them by drying up the natural oils and fluids. Rheumatism can never be cured until the blood is purified. S. S. S. thoroughly cleanses and renovates the circulation by neutralizing the acids and driving the cause from the system. It strengthens and invigorates the blood so that instead of a sour, weak stream, depositing acrid and painful corrosive matter in the muscles, joints and bones, it nourishes the entire body with pure, rich blood and permanently cures Rheumatism. S. S. S. contains no potash, alkali or other harmful mineral, but is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks of great purifying and tonic properties. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free to all who write.

LOVES WOMAN WHO PUT HIM IN JAIL

"With All Her Faults I Love Her Still," He Sings.

Denver, Colo., May 10.—If Arthur Olehy, a federal prisoner in the county jail, ever gets out all will be forgiven, even if Miss Fay Livingston was responsible for placing him behind the bars. Olehy, in the said event of his getting out, doesn't know but what there will be a wedding after all.

Each has had the other arrested once and placed in jail, and they are about "even," except that Olehy is still a prisoner and Miss Livingston is enjoying freedom.

It was several months ago that Olehy had Miss Livingston arrested, charging her with having nefariously obtained possession of a section of his bankroll under promise that she would become Mrs. Olehy. It seems that there were several other gentlemen who had thought the same thing with regard to themselves and Miss Livingston.

Miss Livingston had employed the United States mails in her various courtships, and so, when Olehy brought complaint against her, telling the sad story of how he had written and received burning love letters, had sent Miss Livingston money and in the end had discovered that he had been beautifully duped, Miss Livingston was arrested. She was released a short time ago, and no sooner was she out that she turned the tables on Olehy and had him arrested, charged with sending threatening and defamatory letters and postal cards to her while she was in the county jail.

But "With all her faults I love her still," is the burden of the song of Mr. Olehy, even if included among those faults is that of causing his arrest.

"I'll tell you what I think," he said confidentially. "I think that man Nelson just faked up this charge against me so as to hold me here in jail until Fay's trial, so that I'll have to testify against her.

"I don't believe that Fay ever brought those charges against me, or if she did I'll bet she was talked into it. I like Fay yet—as well as I ever liked anybody else. Marry her if I get out? I ain't saying that I would or that I wouldn't."

"What about the postal cards with pictures of mules on them?" Olehy was asked.

He laughed.

"Those cards? They were nothing but a josh, and Fay knew they were nothing but a josh. That one particular card—the one with a mule looking out through the bars—that was a card that Fay sent to me once, only she put it in a letter. I sent that card itself without any envelope, and that's how they got me. There was nothing threatening about any of those cards. I just wrote on them, 'It's hell to be in jail,' and 'poor old Fay,' and things like that. It was all a josh."

Miss Livingston has not yet been to see him in jail, but he does not think that is any sign that she doesn't intend to come. He wouldn't be surprised to see her any time.

CHILDREN CAMPAIGN FOR DECENT STREET PAVEMENT.

Reading, Pa., May 10.—Benners court, one of the smallest thoroughfares in this city, has sprung into prominence by reason of a petition got up by the children of the neighborhood demanding that the street be paved. The action of the children, inspired by Katherine Kline, 14 years old, who started the petition, has been widely discussed throughout the city. Children of other parts, whose play limited to the streets, must be contallied because of the poor condition of the highways, are considering a similar movement.

Upward of 125 children, ranging in age from 5 to 15 years, attached their names to a petition which was presented to the councilmen of the ward. The children are now considering the plan of calling upon councils or the mayor to see what can be done.

They want the street paved so that they will have a place for roller skating. This is now covered with a black, sandy surface and it is very uneven. The youngsters living in Benners court say they want nice streets like other children of the city enjoy.

COEDS WALK OFF WITH THE HIGHEST HONORS.

Collegeville, Pa., May 10.—Academic honors for the class of 1912 at Ursinus college, whose commencement takes place June 5, have been announced and although the young women are outnumbered by the men, the highest awards for scholastic work went to the coeds. Miss Hazel Longstreth of Trappe, Montgomery county, is valedictorian, and Miss Florence A. Brooks of Palmyra, N. J., is salutatorian.

Both have had remarkable records. Miss Longstreth led her class at the Trappe high school. She afterward completed the course at West Chester normal school and there was graduated at the head of a class of more than 100. Miss Brooks was the valedictorian of her class in the Palmyra high school and won a scholarship to Ursinus. Besides coming out second in her class at Ursinus, she has the added distinction of having won special honors in chemistry.

TO REDUCE CHURCHES

New Campaign Started in Kansas That Promises to Do Good.

No Sense in the Denominational Jealousies Among the Churches.

Topeka, Kan., May 10.—Kansas has started a new campaign, that of reducing the number of churches in the small country towns and in the purely rural districts. This is being brought about partially by the conditions of the times, but congregations are being urged to disband or unite with other churches and abandon their church organizations and buildings.

H. J. Waters, president of the Kansas Agricultural college, and E. W. Hoch, former governor, are the leaders in this movement. It is a campaign that they believe will be to the best interest of religion and the people of the different communities.

"There is no decrease in religious zeal in this country, and the Kansas statistics show a marked increase," said President Waters the other day. "There is no lack of religious enthusiasm or loss of interest among the people of the rural districts. The reason for the failure of so many country churches, both in the purely rural districts and in the small towns is competition, prosperity.

"People who are prosperous are just as religious as any other, but they make a demand for the better expounding of their beliefs. They are perhaps 1,000 churches that ought not to be in existence right now. Probably 100 have been abandoned in the last few years and more will be given up every year. This is as it should be. The whole idea of church extension has been wrong for the last fifty years or more.

Fell Under Competition.

"For a long time each denomination thought that it ought to have a church organization or edifice in every community. Sometimes there were only fifteen or twenty active members. Churches were scattered all over the country and for a time most of them flourished. But not for long in many instances. Competition among the churches made the weaker fall, just as competition in business drives out the small merchant who cannot stand the business of the larger and better organized concern.

"The abandonment of hundreds of churches throughout the country will not hurt anything, and it will do a lot of good. Religion is free, but it cannot be with the burden of supporting thousands of useless church organizations when the money could be used for a much better purpose. It is the country churches that are the burden of the religious movement at the present time.

"There are so many thousands of these institutions that are not self-supporting and that never can be made so, that are not accomplishing the good they were intended to do and are hindering excellent religious work in other directions.

"I am informed that there were at least 1,700 churches in Illinois abandoned in the last few years, and that there were 1,000 in Missouri, almost as many in Iowa and perhaps 100 in Kansas. But there are many more that ought to be abandoned and the buildings used for schoolhouses, barns, residences or any other useful purpose. They should not be left idle, to rot and fall down and be an eyesore to the community.

What Caused Change.

"The advent of the motor car, the building of better roads, the general prosperity of the farmer and the attendant luxuries of a nice team of trotters and a carriage to take the place of the old lumber wagon or the spring wagon as the family carryall, and the improvement in education, in ideals and desires, are the elements that have brought about this change and are causing the abandonment of many country churches.

"One educated minister, a trained man, is all that any community can afford for each 600 to 1,000 souls. That will keep him busy all the time, but that size congregation will be able to pay him enough to support him comfortably and let him lay by a few dollars for the time when his voice and strength are failing.

"Governor Hoch in his lectures over the state is constantly urging the abandonment of the numerous country churches. "The average town of 500 to 1,500 population has no excuse for three or four churches," he says. "There ought to be just one, and it ought to be as good a church as any in the larger cities. There is no sense in the denominational jealousies among the churches.

"There are about three times too many churches in this country at this time, and hundreds of them are not doing anyone any good, and some are accomplishing little and others doing harm."

CARNEGIE IN GERMAN NOVEL

Starts Parliament of Humanity for Benefit of the World.

Berlin, May 10.—Andrew Carnegie, who was introduced by George Bernard Shaw into the latter's play, "Major Barbara," also appears under another name in a new novel by Baroness Bertha von Suttner, the peace propagandist author of "Lay Down Your Arms."

This latest work of the baroness bears the aspiring title, "Der Mensch-heit Hochgedenken," which may be translated as "High Thinking Humanity." It tells how Franka Garlett, daughter of a poor Austrian schoolmaster who married a countess, inherits millions from her grandfather and devotes her life and her money to preaching a new doctrine of feminism. At first she is helped in this by a young poet, Chlodwig Helmer. The new feminism aims at helping women to acquire male virtues without male vices and weaknesses. After some years' propagandizing, Franka discovers that she is a woman and has a right to live; and at this moment she meets again her old friend Helmer and marries him.

It is Andrew Carnegie in the form of the American millionaire, Mr. Toker, who brings the pair together. Toker starts at Lucerne an annual parliament of humanity. He entertains for a fortnight all the choicest spirits of the world, and by means of the press and the gramophone spreads their wise words and golden thoughts to the uttermost ends of the earth. This idea of the intellectual organization of humanity appears also in Grete Meissel-Hesse's new romance, "The Intellectuals." The organizer here is not an American Croesus, but a German man of science. Both these ideas originated with Professor Wilhelm Ostwald, the Nobel prize winner for chemistry of 1909.

BORDEN AND HIS WORRIES

Good Political Positions to Be Awarded to Ambitious Canadians.

McBride of British Columbia Strong for Real Naval Strength.

Ottawa, Ont., May 10.—Premier Borden has returned from Hot Springs, Va., to attend an important meeting of the cabinet. The premier looks all the better for his brief sojourn in the South. What Mr. Borden wanted was a brief rest after the hard work of the session. Some important questions will have to be settled before the ministers separate again for a time, and to do this a number of cabinet meetings will be necessary. One of the first matters that comes up for consideration is the appointment of a chairman for the public service commission. Several names are mentioned, one of the most prominent being that of G. T. Blackstock, K. C., of Toronto. The salary is $7,000 per annum and it is doubtful if he could be persuaded to take the position because of the loss it would be to him in giving up a very lucrative law practice even for a short period. At the least, the work, which is pretty well advanced now, would cover two years.

There are several vacancies in the senate to be discussed, but it is not likely that any definite appointments will be made until the eve of the next meeting of parliament. There are also four vacancies for the house of commons. One of the members from British Columbia has resigned to take a place on the railway commision, and a member from Manitoba has been appointed on the grain commission, and a third goes to the bench. The new judge is Haughton Lennox, one of the leading and most active of the Conservative members from Ontario. It is generally admitted that he will make a good pudge. The fourth vacancy is from Richelieu, Que., where the sitting member, who is a Liberal, has admitted that his agents were guilty of wrongdoing in the contest and, therefore, the court gave judgment unseating him.

Vacancies in Parliament.

The three vacancies outside of Quebec were held by the government by substantial majorities. In Simcoe, Ont., for which Mr. Lennox sat, the majority was very large, and in Kootenay the returning member was at no time in danger of being defeated. In Macdonald, Man., where Mr. Staples resigns to go on the grain commission, the fight was a fairly good one, but the odds are now in favor of the party in power. However, it will be interesting to show just how the people are now viewing the trade question as compared with the vote of the last election. The unseating of Mr. Cardin in Richelieu will in all likelihood give what has been a Liberal seat since 1896 to the Conservatives. It will be the first turnover in Dominion politics since the general election, if the Yukon is not included. Of the four constituencies, the Liberals would appear to have a chance of capturing only one seat in Manitoba, and if they did so this would be balanced by the loss of Richelieu, where the many government employes will vote almost as solidly Conservative as they did Liberal in the past. They will come to the conclusion that this is the best way of retaining their jobs, and there are very few who would care to contradict them.

Pacific Defences of British Columbia.

Premier McBride is pressing upon the British government the idea of having a naval unit on the Pacific coast. At present Canada has no real naval defences on the Pacific coast. She is entirely dependant upon the defences of the United States, which would be used for the defense of Canada in the interests of the United States. McBride says that the navy of the Laurier government was not at all satisfactory, being a makeshift. He says that Premier Borden will provide for an efficient navy, which will be a real instead of a normal source of strength to the British navy and the British empire. In this connection it may be said that in the course of the very few weeks Mr. Borden will go to England to talk this matter over with the admiralty and to look into other matters of imperial interests. Among the latter may be included empire trade and the purchase of a site for a home for the government officials in London.

Church Union.

The voting upon the union of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches in Canada is almost completed. The movement started several years ago, having for its object the incorporation of the three denominations into one corporate body. The result of the voting shows that about 85 per cent of the Methodists, 69 per cent of the Presbyterians and nearly all the Congregationalists declared for union. This result gives an average of 76 per cent favoring union and 24 per cent opposed, with the average of 66 per cent of the opposition from the Presbyterian body. In view of this percentage against, the question of union for the present is deferred, but is not lost sight of and in the course of a few years there is every prospect that all three churches will be under one name and performing a united work. The movement has really but begun. The decision that it is impracticable to consummate the corporate union of these bodies at once will be a disappointment to many who had hoped for its accomplishment, but the overwhelming vote in its favor will hearten them in the conviction that their hopes must ultimately be realized.

FLUNKIES WHO ARE WEALTHY

Head Servants of English Royalty Get Rich on Tips.

London, May 10.—King George is to lose two of his coachmen, who are leaving him to better themselves, as the phrase goes. Most people imagine, and rather naturally, that wages in the royal household are high, but the fact is that though many of the king's servants are paid much better than those in the service of fairly wealthy people, others are not paid nearly so well. For example, the housemaids, kitchen maids, pantry-men and indoor porters in the royal household get from $100 to $200 a year, which is slightly lower, if anything, than the average rate of pay for the minor servants in wealthy establishments. An advantage of being in the royal household, however, is that every servant, after five years' service becomes entitled to a pension, and at 60 receives one equal to two-thirds of his or her salary.

It is the upper servants in the royal household who coin money. These are the chief of the state pages, the house steward, the housekeeper, and the chief of the grooms in waiting, each of whom is paid $3,000 a year in wages, and also pocket half as much in perquisites, or perks as they are called in the servants' hall. They each make at least $500 a year in tips from royal visitors, while presents from the king and queen and other members of the royal family are worth $750 more. These upper servants, by the way, are paid monthly, by check, while the under servants get their screws weekly, in cash.

With such tidy incomes, it is not surprising that most of the upper royal servants have good balances at the bank. King Edward's valet invested his savings in land, which now brings him in a useful income in the way of ground rents. Another of the servants in the late king's household formed a collection of antique silver, of which he was a first-rate judge, that has been valued at $25,000, though he actually only gave about a quarter of that for it. With the means to educate their children well, most of these upper royal servants do so, and the sons of many of them hold important positions. One is in the Canadian civil service, with a salary of $5,000 a year; several are in the civil service, and some are doctors and solicitors. Most of the more important royal servants speak French in addition to their own tongue, while those who, like the chief page and chief yeoman, are always more or less in attendance on visiting royalties, must speak English, French and German.

The most highly paid royal servants in the world are those of the czar. The chief valet of the Russian royal household draws $5,000 a year, the chief groom of the state apartments and the chief state page are paid $7,500, and many of the other servants have salaries of $4,000. The kaiser has a bigger staff of servants than that at Buckingham palace, but the servants at the German court are not so well paid as those who serve King George. The highest salaried of the former is the chief page of the personal apartments, who gets $3,000 a year.

DEATH CLEARS MYSTERY AND DISCLOSES FORTUNE.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 10.—Charles Youngren of this city has returned from Cadillac, where, by the death of his father, Axel Youngren, a mystery of thirty-four years has been cleatred and an estate at Jonkoping, Sweden ,aggregating $90,000 placed at the disposal of the dead man's five children.

Youngren, upon the birth of his youngest son and the death of his wife, left Sweden, grief stricken. He came direct to Grand Rapids, placing his three youngest children in the home of a sister, Mrs. Charles Carlson of Sparta. He then disappeared and nothing was heard of him until his death in Cadillac, Mich.

Fifteen years ago Axel's mother died in Sweden, leaving her estate to him. The children in the country, who had long searched for their father, could not locate him. In the meantime he was leading the life of a lumberjack in the woods of Wexford county. On his deathbed he told of the fortune across the seas, confiding the secret to a woodsman. At the funeral the children were reunited and the fact of the fortune broken to them, the father having kept it from them.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS SHRINK.

Clark and Wilson Managers Complain of Insufficient Resources.

Washington, May 10.—The campaign funds of Speaker Champ Clark and Governor Woodrow Wilson have shrunk. The managers of the Clark and Wilson headquarters here are curtailing expenses. A number of Clark and Wilson field men have been called in. Senator Stone of Missouri, who has had much to do with promoting the boom of Mr. Clark, is complaining to friends that the money has stopped coming in. The Wilson workers have been financially defunct five times since the campaign opened. Up to a week ago, before the speaker carried Massachusetts, the Clark managers had money.

For a month or longer twenty-five persons have been busy at Clark headquarters in the Ebbitt house. The Wilson publicity bureau in the Munsey building has had two rooms full of young men and women sending out Wilson literature.

TELLING THE STORY OF

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

The World's Best Tonic Stimulant and Medicine

ABSOLUTELY PURE

This has been proven by doctors and chemists time after time. It is manufactured from specially selected and cleaned grain in a plant that is equipped with every device known to the art. Every step in the process of malting and manufacture is watched most carefully by men of broad experience, under the supervision of a chief chemist. Great care is exercised to have every kernel thoroughly malted, producing a liquid food, tonic and stimulant, requiring no digestion, in the form of a medicinal whiskey.

TESTED OVER 50 YEARS

For more than half a century Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been before the public, and today it is better known and more widely used than ever before. This is due to its great curative qualities and to the friends it is continually making. Professional men, business men, people in all walks of life, everywhere, use and endorse it because it has given them health, strength and vigor. Prescribed by doctors and used in hospitals everywhere. Recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

WHAT IT DOES

The results accomplished by its use in cases of stomach trouble, wasting, weakening and diseased conditions are wonderful. It aids in destroying the disease germs, and by its building and healing properties restores tissues in a gradual, healthy and natural manner. In the prevention and relief of coughs, colds, pneumonia, grip, asthma, malaria and bronchitis it has no equal. It aids digestion, giving more nourishment to the body and more strength to the whole system. It makes the old feel young and keeps the young strong and vigorous.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the only whiskey that was taxed by the Government as a medicine during the Spanish-American war.

The genuine is sold IN SEALED BOTTLES ONLY—never in bulk. Price $1.00 a large bottle. If your dealer cannot supply you, write to us, and we will tell you where it can be bought. Doctor's advice and an illustrated medical booklet sent free on request. The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

HYSTERICS OVER A COW IN DEPARTMENT STORE.

Norwich, N. Y., May 10.—Beef on the hoof was higher a few days ago than ever before in the history of the town.

A fine Holstein cow being driven through the village bolted the herd at the corner of Main and Broad streets and entered a large department store. Disdaining to stop on the first floor the animal ascended the stairs to the second floor, poked her head into the law office of State Tax Commissioner William H. Sullivan, bellowed plaintively and proceeded on up the next flight of stairs and into the cloak department of the store.

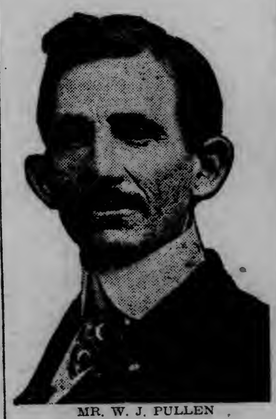
The women clerks were in hysterics, and the proprietors of the store were at their wits' end.

Efforts were made to get the cow into the elevator and escort her to the ground floor, but she wanted to go still higher, and made for the stairs leading to the floor above.

The owner of the cow arrived opportunely, and with a rope about the animal's neck and an assistant bringing up the rear, she was safely escorted to the street.

SURE WAY TO CURE CONSTIPATION

Many apparently simple things are difficult of perfection, and only those who have suffered long from constipation know how hard it is to find a genuine cure. But it can be had. No matter how discouraging your experiences have been in the past, promise yourself to make another attempt at a cure. This time try DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN. There must be genuine merit to a remedy that thousands endorse as a positive cure for constipation, and thousands in all parts of the country are endorsing DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN. One gentleman as old as 87 asserts he has had no relief until he took this remedy. Buy a bottle of it yourself and see what it will do for you. You know by this time that salts, cathartic pills or powders, waters whether manufactured or natural, will at best only do temporary good. So why not try a scientific preparation? DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN is scientifically compounded. It is designed to act mildly and gradually so that in time all medicines can be dispensed with and nature will again do its work. It is a tonic laxative and has a strengthening effect on the stomach and bowels. You will feel better in every way for taking it, and you will get the permanent relief that you have so long sought. This is not an idle assertion, but is based on the experiences of thousands of people who, in the quarter of a century that this remedy has been compounded, have voluntarily written the facts to Dr. Caldwell. It is the best remedy obtainable for constipation and all stomach, liver and bowel troubles. Because of its pleasant taste, mildness and freedom from griping it is also the laxative best suited to the needs of children.



MR. W. J. PULLEN

Dr. Caldwell:
I have tried your sample bottle that you sent me and it seemed to help so I went to the drug store and got a 50c bottle. I think it is the best thing in the world for constipation. I have been bothered with it for years and never got anything to cure before I used your Syrup Pepsin.
Miss Marie Yager,
Marinette, Wis.

Dr. Caldwell:
I received your free sample of Syrup Pepsin and found it to be all right. I took two doses of it and it helped me so much more than any medicine I have ever taken. I have a little grandson about ten months old and he was constipated. I gave him some of the Syrup Pepsin and he has been all right ever since.
J. P. Crider,
Kimball, Minn.

Dr. Caldwell:
I received a sample bottle of your Syrup Pepsin about three months ago. I took it and have bought a dollar bottle from my druggist. It has cured me of a six-year case of stomach trouble. I am so well pleased that I am cured and I will recommend your Syrup Pepsin to all sufferers. I am a railroader and am out in all kinds of weather. You have the best stomach remedy that I know of, and I have tried about a dozen. Feel like a new man.
W. J. Pullen,
Ass't. Foreman Van. R. R.
Lock Box 411, Arcola, Ill.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

KNOX NEGLECTED FOR SHRINERS' PARADE.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 10.—Compelled to compete for an audience with a night parade of Shriners, which passed the doors of the dancing academy in which he spoke, Secretary of State Knox spoke here last night in behalf of President Taft and in criticism of Col. Roosevelt. It was practically the closing rally of the Taft forces in southern California, preparatory to the state presidential primary next Tuesday, but owing to the festivities in connection with the annual conclave of Shriners, the hall was not filled.

Mrs. Clara Foltz, a lawyer, followed with an appeal for the suffrage of the women voters for the president at the primaries, and she was frequently applauded.

Secretary Knox was given a cordial reception, and on a number of occasions throughout his speech his remarks were cheered.

WEST END WOMEN WILL GIVE COMEDY FOR CHARITY'S SAKE

MRS. J. H. GIFFIN,
Who Plays a Prominent Part in the Production of "The Dress Rehearsal," and Who Will Leave Next Fall With Her Husband for Special Missionary Work in China.

MRS. MILTON FISH,
Wife of Rev. Milton Fish, Who Is Also Taking an Important Part in the Production Next Tuesday Evening.

Mrs. J. H. Giffin of 1927 West Second street, who is playing Mlle. Epinard in "The Dress Rehearsal," which is to be presented next Tuesday evening by the Delta Gamma club at the new Woodmen hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street, is making one of her last public appearances in this city, as she will leave for China next fall with her husband.

Rev. and Mrs. Giffin are Chinese missionaries for the Baptist church and recently returned to Duluth on a leave of absence. They will go back there early in September. Rev. and Mrs. Giffin leave Monday, May 20, for Des Moines, Iowa, where they will attend a special Baptist convention for about ten days. They will return June 1.

The members of the Delta Gamma club are planning a number of receptions for Mrs. Giffin before her departure from the city. The present production of "The Dress Rehearsal" is given for charity, the proceeds of which are to be used for the Charitable work of the club. The organization is composed of a number of West end women and girls. Following are the present officers: Miss Enid Shaw, president; Mrs. J. H. Giffin, vice president; Mrs. Irma Hutchinson, secretary, and Miss Ruth Charlotte Glover, treasurer. Mrs. Mae Baillie is managing the production to be given at the Woodmen hall next Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Milton Fish, wife of Rev. Mr. Fish, pastor of the Central Baptist church, Twentieth avenue west and First street, is also taking a prominent part in the production. Of the special musical program arranged for the evening, Mrs. Fish renders one vocal solo and takes part in several ensemble numbers. Her "Forty Years" and Mrs. Giffin's song, "Ah, That Is Love," are the two musical hits of the production. They are both comedy numbers and the two women are assisted by a large chorus.

INVITATION TO COME TO DULUTH

Delegates to Methodist Convention Asked to Visit Zenith City.

J. J. Moe of 2207 West Third street, who is attending the quadrennial general conference of Methodist Episcopal churches at Minneapolis this month, is extending an invitation to prominent ministers and laymen at the conference to come to Duluth following the sessions and spend several days here before returning to their homes.

Mr. Moe represents the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street, and is the lay delegate for the central district of the Norwegian and Danish M. E. church. Should his invitation be accepted, it is probable that upwards of 100 will come to this city for a short stay. The ministers of the Red River Valley district are all in favor of the plan and urged the extending of the invitation at their last second quarterly conference held at Duluth.

According to the present plans, the delegates will be asked to visit here on May 23, the day after the conference comes to a close at Minneapolis. It is probable that several of the ministers may be kept here over Sunday of that week, so that they may occupy the pulpits of local Methodist churches.

Rev. Edward Erickson, pastor of the local church, is enthusiastic over the idea and expects a large delegation to come here from Minneapolis. Just how these ministers and laymen will be entertained, has not been arranged by Rev. Mr. Erickson, who is waiting to hear from Mr. Moe regarding the number of those that have accepted the invitations. The arrangements will be made some time next week.

WILL ATTEND THE FARGO SANGERFEST.

For the purpose of raising enough money to defray the expenses of the members to the annual sangerfest to be held at Fargo, N. D., early next month, the Normanna Male chorus will give several concerts between now and that time. The first of these will be given at the Lyceum theater the latter part of this month.

The annual sangerfest is attended by all the Norwegian singers of the United States and is in charge of the Norwegian Singers' Association of America. The local chorus is one of the best in the country and will take a prominent part in the sangerfest. The members of the chorus are also taking part in the coming Norwegian independence day celebration next Friday evening at the Central high school. Several of the songs to be heard at the sangerfest will be sung here on various occasions before the chorus leaves for Fargo.

FUND FOR SWEDISH SOCIAL CENTER GROWING.

For the benefit of the new Scandinavian fraternity house, or social center, to be built in the West end, the Vasa order No. 170, Swedish United Sons of America, will give a musical festival this evening at the new Woodman hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street.

The entertainment will be in Swedish and the noted Swedish actress, Miss Anna Greta Adamsen, who recently came over to this country from Stockholm, will be the special feature of the evening. She will give several recitations and render a number of songs during the evening. Dr. J. J. Eklund will make a short address on the work of the special committee appointed by the order to secure subscriptions for the new building. The Svea Glee club will render several selections and the Misses Gerda Erickson and Esther Eckholm will give a piano duet. Sigurd Erdtman, the well known tenor, will also sing.

Up to the present time nearly $10,000 has been secured by the committee in the campaign for $100,000 for the erection of the building. Following is the committee now in charge of the campaign and which will also handle the work on the construction of the building: F. A. Carlson, chairman; C. F. Hoffman, vice chairman; August Hammar, secretary; A. T. Lind, treasurer; Andrew Nelson, legal adviser; John Brandt, Dr. J. J. Eklund, C. F. Forsell, Otto Gaffvert and George W. Olson.

The exact site for the building has not been determined as yet, but the members of the executive committee have been approached with several desirable locations. The building will be erected west of Twenty-first avenue west and south of Third street. It is proposed to erect the structure on a corner lot. The plans drawn by Bray & Nystrom call for a frontage of fifty feet and a depth of 140 feet. The building follows the Duluth Y. M. C. A. in structure and will be three stories, with a gymnasium in the basement, an auditorium on the first floor, with the balcony on the second, and lodge rooms on the last floor.

Simonson and John Wahl.

FIGHT NEAR COAL MINE

ficers drew their guns and began to force the crowd back.

Some shots were fired by the police as Policeman Peter Marker and Louis Davis fell, both with heads battered from cobblestones.

The state troopers then rode into the crowd, firing their revolvers. Mike Flacka and another foreign workman dropped, the former shot through the abdomen, the latter in the leg. The crowd then broke and ran.

Man Beaten By Women.

Two men and a half a dozen women were arrested.

William Littlejohn, going to fire duty at the Leggetts Creek mine, was badly beaten by women.

Three Thousand at Funeral.

Pottsville, Pa., May 10.—The funeral today of Belo Washkavish, who died from gunshot wounds received in Wednesday's riot at Minersville, was attended by nearly 3,000 foreigners, headed by a band. Order prevailed throughout and at the church no mention was made of the manner in which he met his death.

The mine pumps now are being operated at the various collieries by volunteer workmen. These men are property owners in the vicinity of the collieries.

Pickets were withdrawn from the hills this morning, although it had been feared there would be an effort to stop workmen. Since the funeral has passed off quietly, Minersville is breathing more freely.

A big mass meeting of miners was held at Shenandoah this morning which was addressed by United Mine Workers leaders, in several languages, and also by several priests.

Want Repair Work Stopped.

Hazelton, Pa., May 10.—At the district office of the United Mine Workers it was announced today that local unions throughout the Lehigh coal field have adopted resolutions asking that all repair work at the mines be discontinued, but agreeing to permit the engineers, firemen and pump runners to remain on duty to prevent the collieries from being flooded.

ern Mexico, transferred today by telegraph to an Associated Press representative here news of military developments of the last twenty-four hours. The box car stood a few miles from the town of Bermejillo.

The wire had been set up direct to the federal camp, being routed from El Paso via Lardo, Tex., Monterey and Torreon, a rounabout circuit eastward of more than 1,000 miles. This was made necessary by the seizure of all telegraphic lines directly south of here by the rebels.

From the improvised telegraph office Gen. Huerta talked enthusiastically of the battle to come.

"Yesterday, Thursday, Gen. Rabago completely routed 1,000 rebels at Zaratoza and Tiahualilo, both near Torreon," said Gen. Huerta. "The rebels lost ninety dead and many wounded, while our loss was seven dead and two wounded. The rebels were driven back in hasty flight and were pursued by cavalry under Gen. Villa.

Rebels "Ran Like Rats."

"On Wednesday we heard that a detachment of 1,000 rebels were advancing on us, and we organized a column which went by railroad under Gen. Rabago. To cut off retreat we sent overland volunteer and regular cavalry from the forces of Villa. They arrived about 6 o'clock Thursday morning and immediately attacked the rebels. The fight became more intense. Gen. Rabago arrived and flanked the rebels. He had with him artillery and machine guns. The fight lasted six hours. We completely routed the enemy, who ran like rats. Our losses were seven killed and two wounded."

Communication was interrupted for a few minutes.

"A telegram has just been brought to me from Gen. Trucy Aubert at Cuatro Cienegas, which says the rebel chief Salazar was completely routed and is fleeing in the direction of Sierra Mojada," said Gen. Huerta.

Couriers from the advance guard arrived at this juncture, according to Gen. Huerta, and informed him that the federal outposts were in possession of the Mexican Central railroad up to within twelve miles of Bermejillo.

No communication was had here with the rebel front early today, but the Liberal officials conceded they met stubborn resistance in the initial skirmishing.

DEATH DUE TO OPERATION

Paul Strom Arrested Following Death of Mrs. Helen Michelson.

Must Face Charge of Manslaughter in First Degree.

When a post mortem examination over the body of Mrs. Helen Michelson, aged 27, 515 East Sixth street, yesterday afternoon revealed that the woman had come to her death by blood poisoning superinduced by a criminal operation, the arrest of Paul Strom, 25 years old, 118 West Ninth street, followed.

Strom is held on a state warrant with a charge of first degree manslaughter staring him in the face. He is a foreman for the Booth Fisheries company of this city. The warrant was sworn out by Hafden Opland, a brother of the dead woman, and was issued by the county attorney. Opland is a conductor on the Duluth Street Railway line.

Mrs. Michelson died at St. Luke's hospital on Monday night last. A post mortem examination was held yesterday afternoon at the Olson & Crawford undertaking rooms by Drs. S. H. Boyer and J. R. Kuth. There were evidences of a criminal operation and indications that death had followed as a result of such abortion.

Opland, who resides at 2623 West First street, declared that his sister was a widow and had been keeping company with Strom for several months past. At the county jail, Strom denied any connection with the death of Mrs. Michelson, although he admitted that he was well acquainted with her.

He will be arraigned in municipal court for a preliminary hearing next Tuesday.

FALLS DEAD IN HIS OFFICE

End Comes Without Warning to John Grams, Duluth Salesman.

John Grams, 32 years of age, a salesman in the employ of Swift & Co., dropped dead about 9 o'clock last night at his desk in the company's office at 230 West Michigan street. Grams had been ailing for some time but the complaint was not thought to be serious.

The young man was working overtime last night to finish some of his work. Other employes saw him rise from his chair and topple over on to the floor. He died within a few minutes.

Dr. McAuliffe, deputy coroner, was summoned and ordered the body removed to the undertaking rooms of Flood & Horgan. He stated that an autopsy will probably be necessary to definitely determine the cause of death.

Besides his parents, Mr. Grams is survived by two brothers and three sisters. They are Frank and Stanley Grams, Misses Anna and Marie Grams and Mrs Pauline Kusenierek, all of this city. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

ROOSEVELT AND TAFT FORCES WILL CLASH IN COUNTY CAUCUSES

plea for uninstructed delegations from the county.

The Taft men are probably better organized than the supporters of Col Roosevelt. The president has the support of the long-standing Republican organization in the county, and under the caucus system organization counts for much.

Supporters of ex-President Roosevelt are depending on the admitted predominant Roosevelt sentiment in the county to give them the control of the county convention to be held in Duluth next Monday. The success of their fight is dependent on the attendance at the caucuses of many Republicans who have not taken an active part in preliminary contests in the past.

Caucuses will be held in every precinct in the county and Taft (or "uninstructed") and Roosevelt tickets will be up in each precinct. The caucuses will be held in the regular polling places. They will open at 7 o'clock in the evening and close at 9 o'clock. The organization of the caucuses will be made by the voters present at 7 o'clock, so both side are urging the adherents of their respective candidates to be on hand at the opening hour and assist in the organization.

The Roosevelt tickets will bear the name of the ex-president in order that voters mbay not be confused, and the "uninstructed" tickets will bear only the names of the delegate candidates.

Some La Follette Tickets.

The issue between Roosevelt and Taft will be confused in some precincts by La Follette tickets, according to statements of the La Follette supporters today. There was talk of compromise between the two Progressive factions, but the Roosevelt people declined to give the small La Follette faction the representation demanded on the caucus tickets and the La Follette men decided to go it alone. There is little likelihood of any La Follette delegates being elected to the county convention, but in one or two precincts in the city, the split in the Progressive strength may be appreciable enough to give Taft delegates an advantage.

Some counties in the state will hold their caucuses this evening and the remaining counties will declare themselves tomorrow. La Follette claims some districts, but the fight for the state delegation is really between Roosevelt and Taft, with Roosevelt considered to have an advantage. The Taft organization is strong, the federal office holders being supported generally by the state Republican organization, but the sentiment of the voters generally is considered to be in favor of Roosevelt, and interest is being taken in the presidential campaign. The whole Seventh congressional district and many scattering counties will have preference primaries, and Hennepin county, which is the Fifth congressional district, will have a modified primary that may serve the purpose of the more systematic plan adopted in other counties.

The caucuses may determine the preference of the state, but a definite determination of the result of the contest will probably not be known until after the county conventions, which will be held in all counties Monday. The district conventions will be held next Wednesday and the state convention will meet at Minneapolis Thursday.

"Uninstructed" Delegates.

The Taft men throughout the state are conducting their fight along lines looking to an uninstructed delegation from Minnesota to the national convention at Chicago. They hope that by so doing they can get the support of the members of the party who are for neither Taft nor Roosevelt, but look for the nomination of a dark horse. The "uninstructed" delegation, should the men working for it control the state convention, would be men who would vote for Taft as long as a probability of his nomination remained, or for another like him.

Duluth will probably be represented on the state delegation regardless of which side controls the state and district conventions. Mille Bunnell is slated for delegate-at-large by the Taft people, and if the Roosevelt forces control the state convention they will probably offer a candidate for delegate-at-large also. The Eighth district delegation will undoubtedly have one Duluth man also, and one from outside of the city.

Letter to Caswell.

New York, May 10.—The Roosevelt committee today gave out the following copy of a letter from Col. Theodore Roosevelt to I. A. Caswell of St. Paul:

"New York, May 10, 1912.—Hon. I. A. Caswell, Chairman of the Roosevelt Committee and Clerk of the Supreme Court, St. Paul, Minn.: I wish it had been possible for me to go again to Minnesota. Unfortunately it is physically impossible. Nine states now have held presidential primaries or their equivalent—North Dakota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Nebraska, Oregon New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Maryland. These states, the only ones in which there has been a free chance for the expression of the popular will, are to be represented by 256 delegates in the Chicago convention. Forty of these delegates are instructed for President Taft and 216 are against him. He has carried but two of the nine states—New Hampshire and Massachusetts—while in Massachusetts the Roosevelt delegates at large were elected by over twice the majority which Mr. Taft obtained on preferential vote.

Outside of Bay State.

"In Maryland the majority against Mr. Taft was about the same, proportionally, as the majority for him in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

"In the other seven states the majorities against him range from 2 to 1 to 20 to 1. In all the states together about three out of every four of the Republicans who voted at the primaries were against Mr. Taft.

"If primaries could be held in all the states, there undoubtedly would be no substantial variation from these figures, and Mr. Taft could by no possibility have 200 votes in the Chicago convention.

"Mr. Taft's chances of renomination lies solely in securing at Chicago delegates who will misrepresent the will of the people. He can get these delegates, not in the primary states, but in the convention states, where delegates are chosen under the old system, and even in these states he can only get them where the state is ruled by a boss.

Bosses For Taft.

"Practically all of the big bosses in the Republican party dislike me so heartily that they opposed Mr. Taft's nomination because I favored it. They were afraid Mr. Taft would give them the same kind of trouble I had given them. After three years and a half experience of Mr. Taft since he has been elected, these same men have turned around and heartily favor his renomination.

"They were opposed to me four years ago and they are opposed to me now. They were opposed to Mr. Taft four years ago when they had not tried him as president, and they heartily support him now.

"These men include, for instance, Mr. Gallinger in New Hampshire, Mr. Aldrich in Rhode Island, Mr. Penrose in Pennsylvania, Mr. Keating in Indiana, Mr. Lorimer in Illinois, Messrs. Guggenheim and Evans in Colorado, Mr. Calhoun and the Southern Pacific railway crowd in California, and the Amalgamated Copper crowd in Montana; and in your own state they include Mr. Smith and Mr. Tawney.

Just One Candidate.

"The fight is a nation-wide fight of the plain people against the bosses. There is just one candidate whom it is possible to nominate against the bosses, and that is myself. Every vote for every other candidate from now on is in reality a vote for Mr. Taft.

"The fight is against the bosses in Minnesota, as it is elsewhere. A vote for Mr. Taft is a vote for the bosses; it is a vote for Lorimer, for Penrose, for Guggenheim, for Gallinger, and for all the rest of them; and it is a vote for these men whether it is cast in Minnesota or Massachusetts, or in Ohio or New Jersey or California.

"I became a candidate only when I became convinced that no other Progressive candidate could by any possibility be nominated against Mr. Taft. The contest has gone so far as to make it now evident that I certainly can be nominated against Mr. Taft, and that either I shall be nominated or else a reactionary will be nominated.

Not Confined to Parties.

"It also is evident that not only Progressive Republican, but every man who believes in decency and honesty in politics, who is against boss rule and for the genuine rule of the people and is for the elimination of special privilege and for efficient endeavor to insure social and industrial justice, can achieve his purposes only by supporting my candidacy.

"My personal interest is of no concern one way or the other, but it happens that at this time I typify and embody the great cause which can only be furthered by supporting me. Almost everywhere I have been able to appear personally in this campaign fight with the bosses, we have beaten them, and I ask that Minnesota stand beside Oregon and Illinois, Pennsylvania and Nebraska, Maine, Kansas and Maryland in this fight.

Value is the True Test of Cheapness

You Know It and So Do We.

It is not how great a price reduction has been made on an article that makes it cheap, for even at half price the value may not be there; and if the value is not there it is not cheap.

Look more to value of merchandise and less to price. If this store had to depend on price reductions for trade, it would have been out of business long ago, and life would not be worth living. The merchant who is continually claiming to sell one hundred and twenty-five cents' worth for a dollar is telling the truth "maybe." The customer who is trying to buy the same way is chasing a rainbow. A dollar's worth goods for a dollar is as much as you should expect and you are in luck if you always get it, but one thing is certain, you are more apt to get it in the store where price reductions are the exception and not the rule. For twenty-seven years our regular price has stood the test with the other fellows' special and it will stand the test tomorrow. Will you make it? Hop on the street car and come over and while here use the attached coupon at our fountain. You will find the ice cream extra good, not the common factory kind.

The Duluth Nobles attended a banquet given last night at the Shrine auditorium by Al Malaikah temple of Los Angeles. ARCHBALD'S DEAL AIRED House Committee Asks More Questions About Judge and Culm Bank.

Witness Says Jurist Advised Not Trying to Sell the Property.

Washington, May 10.—William P. C. Boland and C. G. Boland of the Marion Coal company, Scranton, Pa., were summoned today by the house judiciary committee to appear as witnesses in the hearing of charges against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court. William Boland is one of the accusers of the jurist. The Bolands will appear when the committee has concluded its examination of Williams, who was recalled to the stand this morning.

Judge Archbald and his counsel, A. S. Worthington, appeared in the committee room early. William P. Boland also was present.

Mr. Williams was asked by Chairman Clayton if on Wednesday he had said Judge Archbald had offered to give bond to Vice President Conn of the Laurel line to protect him against damages that might be sought from the Eberhart estate on a claim against the Katydidculm bank.

Told Judge of Offer.

"I didn't testify that here," said Williams, "but I offered to give bond to protect the culm bank property against any claims."

"Did Judge Archbald know about it?"

"Yes, I talked to him about it. We wanted to clear up the title."

"Who drew the contract for sale of the culm property to the Laurel line?"

"Judge Archbald drew it."

"Who has that contract now?"

"I suppose Mr. Conn's attorney has it. We gave it to him to look it over."

The witness was asked about a previous deal whereby the Erie railroad offered the culm bank property on which Williams secured an option to the Dupont Powder company, for $2,000.

Offered to Duponts.

Williams said he had heard from John M. Robertson last week that Capt. May of the Erie railroad had offered to sell the culm to the Dupont Powder company. Williams and Judge Archbald were charged $4,500 for an option on the same property.

"Did Robertson tell you when this offer was made?"

"Yes, but I don't remember when."

Asked if culm banks recently had increased in value, Williams said it depended on the amount of coal in such deposits. Whether the Katydid culm was worth more today than it was six months ago, Williams could not say.

The chairman asked Williams why Capt. May of the Erie had refused to give an option to him when he first approached him, if the culm was on the market. Williams said he had no idea.

Wanted Letter From Archbald.

"Why," asked the chairman, "was it necessary for you to get a letter from Judge Archbald before Capt. May would give you the option?"

"Well, I thought it wouldn't hurt to have a letter from the judge."

"What made you think so?"

"Judge Archbald and Capt. May were well acquainted," Williams said.

"You knew Judge Archbald was a federal judge at the time and handled railroad litigation in his court, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"And you knew Mr. May was a railroad man and corporation man?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then you thought these circumstances would have an influence in getting the option of the culm property from the Erie?"

"Yes, I thought so," Williams replied.

"Isn't it a fact that May declined to consumate this deal after he learned that the department of justice was investigating the transaction?"

"I don't know."

"When did you first learn of the investigation?"

"When I was called to Washington last February."

Told of Being Questioned.

"Did you tell Judge Archbald you had been called to Washington by the attorney general in this matter?"

"Yes, I did. I talked to him when I was here."

"Did you and Judge Archbald discuss why the deal had not been consumated?"

"Yes, we talked about it."

"Wasn't the deal halted on account of the investigation and didn't you and the judge talk about that?"

"Well, I talked to him. I don't remember what all was said, but I remember that the judge said it would be better not to try to sell the culm. He thought it would be well to let the culm stand and it would be worth more some other time."

"The decision not to sell it, then, was after you learned the department of justice was investigating the transaction?"

"Yes, we decided that about three weeks ago."

May Refuse to Act.

After Capt. May had refused to consummate the transaction, Williams said, he told Judge Archbald about it. May previously had agreed to make out a deed to the property, and declined to carry out the agreement after the government began inquiry into the case.

The chairman referred to previous testimony relating to Judge Archbald's visit to General Councel and Vice President Brownell of the Erie railroad after Capt. May's refusal to give an option to the culm property.

"Just what did Judge Archbald say to you about going to see Brownell?" the chairman asked.

"He just said: 'I'll go and see Brownell,'" said Williams.

Here the chairman read from the papers in the case, quoting from a statement given by Williams to Assistant Attorney General Wrisley Brown before a notary several weeks ago. There Williams is quoted as saying: "When I went to Judge Archbald and told him May had refused to give the option Judge Archbald got very much excited and said, 'I'll go and see Brownell. I'm well acquainted with him and I might hurt May for refusing to give such a small thing.'"

Talked About Case.

Asked if he had made that statement, Williams said he had.

"Did Judge Archbald say anything else?" the chairman asked.

"Well, we talked about the lighterage case that was before the court."

"Did the judge tell you about more than one case?"

"He talked about caases that were before him. He had two briefs on his desk. I picked up the briefs myself while we were talking and he told me one of them was the lighterage case."

A street lighting system will be installed. Ironton has agreed to light half the broad roadway from Ironton to Crosby and it is proposed to make it a "Way of Light."

WONDERS OF THE DEAD SEA.

Geographical Journal: An interesting trip around the Dead Sea was made in a motor boat by Jacob E. Spafford, a member of the American colony in Jerusalem.

In circumnavigating the lake four or five very fertile plains or ghors were met with. "These plains," writes Mr. Spafford, "naturally bring to mind the connection of the Dead Sea with Sodom and Gomorrah, the 'cities of the plain,' that were overthrown. They have been variously placed on every side of the sea.

"These plains and the small oasis at Engedi are the only points where life of any kind and water are to be found. Engedi, our first stopping place, is the only spot on the west side where fresh water is to be had. This evidently was a little paradise in the time of Solomon and is frequently mentioned in the Old Testament.

"The cliffs on the west side of the sea, which form an almost unbroken wall, excepting for the rugged torrent beds, and which vary from 300 to 1,900 feet in height, are all of limestone, whereas on the east side of the lake the formation is entirely sandstone of exquisite hues. The abundance of water on this side as compared with the other is very striking too.

"About ten miles from Engedi lies the peerless natural fortress of Masada (Sabbeh), first fortified by the Maccabees, then used as a place of refuge by Herod. At the foot of the tableland can be seen the Roman wall or circumvallation and the two Roman camps on either side of the small ravine.

"The fortress, which is 1,700 feet above the sea, has steep sides at about an angle of 75 deg. and cannot be approached, except from a connecting neck called the Serpentine. A more inhospitable place or one more disadvantageous to besiegers could not be imagined.

"Eight miles away is Jobel Usdum, a mountain of rock salt rising to a height of 500 feet. In this mountain is a large cave which was explored to the extent of about 200 yards, at which point a tapering cylindrical shaft of about twenty feet in diameter was discovered, piercing the solid rock salt eighty feet high, as though through polished marble, evidently the effects of the rain.

"Great snow white stalactites hung from the ceiling. The approach to this mountain presents most fantastic appearances of walls, buttresses, parapets, projecting towers, etc., caused by the stratification and lay of the salt boulders.

"A little south of Masada lies the rich Ghor-el-Mirza. Here and elsewhere abound the apple of Sodom described by Josephus."

WAY HE WAS LUCKY.

Youth's Companion: When the man who had been hit by the automobile at last opened his eyes a sigh of relief went up from the crowd.

"It's a wonder you weren't killed," said one of the bystanders. "You're luckier than most of the fellows who get hit."

"I certainly am," replied the victim, rubbing his bruises. "I got his number just before he struck me."

DIRECT LEGISLATION PERCENTAGES.

There isn't very much fight left in the opposition to the initiative, the referendum and the recall in this state.

Even those who still stand doggedly against the principles of government involved in these innovations reluctantly admit that they must come anyway, right or wrong, and that they might as well come one time as another.

They are unable to see that there must be right in principles that have so much vitality, that have steadily gained ground against such determined opposition, and that have made such an appeal to popular sympathy. But most of the opponents are weary of fighting a hopeless fight.

That doesn't mean that the fight is ended or that there will be no opposition to these reforms at the next session of the legislature.

But the most critical point in the road is yet to be passed—the point of reaching an agreement as to the percentages to be required to start proceedings under the initiative, the referendum or the recall.

If both sides act in good faith, there should be little difficulty in reaching such an agreement.

The percentages ought not to be so low that they will tempt to frivolous and needless use of these principles, for that would tend surely to bring them into disrepute.

The percentages ought not to be so high that they will make it too difficult for the people to use these implements of popular government when they need them.

The right percentages are somewhere between the extremes represented by the ultra-radical element and by the ultra-conservative element. A point where they can be used by the people in case of need, yet high enough to prevent frivolous use, should be the aim.

If these principles fail at the next session of the legislature it will be either because the radicals stick out for a very low percentage or no legislation at all, or because the conservatives muster strength enough to impose percentages that would put the initiative, referendum and recall beyond the reach of the people.

Those who stick out for percentages too low for an experiment should not overlook the fact that once they get the initiative, even with a percentage requirement that is in their opinion too high, it will be possible to initiate and put before the people immediately new amendments providing for lower percentages.

In making a start in such fundamental changes in the system of government as these principles provide, it would be unwise to go too far to the radical side. From the radical viewpoint the important thing should be to make a start, even if they have to accept percentages not to their liking.

Once get the initiative, referendum and recall into the Constitution,—and they will go there if the people get a chance to vote on them,—and it will be possible at any time to broaden any of their provisions if practice proves the need of such changes and the people approve them.

May Arouse Interest in Mythology.

West Duluth is going to use the siren as a curfew signal. The youngsters of that section will be glad to know that Odysseus's sailors found a way to avoid hearing the fateful songs.

"WE TOLD YOU SO."

It's rather a mean trick, and withal churlish, to use the phrase which heads this article; but the developments from the postal savings bank are so interesting that we find it quite impossible not to say it.

One argument The Herald and other advocates of the postal savings bank used was that it would not only put into circulation money then hoarded which never reached the banks, but it would stop a large part of the flow of money abroad from foreign workers used to the postal savings bank at home, and distrustful, even if ignorantly so, of private banks.

In the ten years prior to the adoption of the postal bank, the value of money orders sent to foreign countries increased about five hundred per cent.

The bulk of this consisted of the savings of foreign-born workers, sent to the home country for safekeeping in the postal savings banks there.

A report from the postoffice department shows that during the first six months of the current fiscal year there was a decrease of $6,653,634 in the total money orders payable abroad. For the same period in the preceding year there was an increase of $9,318,085 in this item.

Here, already, are many millions which would have gone abroad if it were not for the postal savings bank, which have been kept at home for the uses of commerce and industry by the postal savings bank.

None of the dreadful things timid bankers said would follow the adoption of the postal bank plan have come.

And you can be quite as certain that when the parcels post is put in operation The Herald and other advocates of the idea will have another chance to say "I told you so."

To Use the Vernacular.

Another complaint Taft has against Roosevelt is that he let George (Perkins) do it.

THE PRESIDENTIAL TERM.

In one of his Massachusetts speeches President Taft said that it would be a good thing to extend the presidential term to six years and prohibit a second term, basing this on the "necessity" that has arisen for a president to leave his official work and plunge into a campaign for re-nomination and another for re-election every four years.

There will be a division of opinion as to the "necessity" for a president to do what President Taft has deemed it his need to do. Besides his present squabble with ex-President Roosevelt, he has spent much of his time traveling over the country talking to the voters, and whatever the pretence, this was a part of his campaign also, as much as his engagements in the hustings in Massachusetts, Maryland and elsewhere.

It might be worth while for a president to try sticking closely to his public duties, just the same during a campaign as when no campaign is in progress, to see if that will not appeal to the voters about as well as a campaigning tour or series of campaigning tours.

There are good argument in behalf of the president's proposal of a single six-year term for the presidency; but there is a good argument against it. The present system keeps the president close to the people, and the coming of the presidential primary will keep him closer still, if he wants to be re-elected. The six-year term and no re-election would put the president aloof from the people and indifferent to their demands unless public spirit alone moved him to heed them.

And the proper place for any public official, from the president down, is close to the people, and his proper attitude is one of listening to the voice of the people. The four-year term serves that purpose, and it is a good purpose.

Getting Close to the Water.

King George has taken a trip under the ocean in a submarine. He probably felt it necessary to do something to balance the Duke of Connaught's recent visit to Wall Street.

MORE TO THE POINT.

The local Taft-Eberhart-Smith organ announces this morning that it would like to see a Bryan delegation from Minnesota to the Democratic national convention.

Since the Republican primaries are to be held tomorrow night, wouldn't it be more timely if the News Tribune would express its wishes as to whom the Minnesota delegation to the Republican national convention should be for?

The local advocate of Fortunatus Eberhart, of Ed Smith, chauffeur of the Car of Destiny, of Billy Hamm, its oil provider, and of the organization of special interests that surrounds them all, is on record against Wilson and for Bryan.

How does it stand as between Taft and Roosevelt, which is the issue at present before the house?

To Break the Dronth.

Now if the weather man can arrange to have a little rain, all will be well.

ST. JAMES'S ORPHANAGE.

On a sightly knoll at the end of the Woodland car line stands St. James's Orphanage, a picturesque building where the Catholics of Duluth are acting as parents to 123 orphans whom fate or neglect or wrong social conditions have left parentless.

This splendid institution is another good cause which every generous person may support with the fullest confidence.

St. James's Guild, an organization of Catholic women, has charged itself with responsibility for part of the large expense of conducting the orphanage. Those who wish to help in this work will find the Guild always ready to accommodate them. For instance, next Tuesday the Guild will give a concert at the Lyceum for the benefit of this good purpose.

Care of orphans is a high and holy duty, and those able to undertake it should count it a privilege. Tenderness to dependent little ones with whom fate has dealt harshly is good for heart and soul.

But Will They?

The country at large is content to believe there is a Harvester trust, but what the people would like to see is a few really harvested trusts.

FIGHTING CONSUMPTION.

The anti-tuberculosis forces of Minnesota asked the legislature at its last session for constructive aid, but the appeal came too late and unbacked by organized support, so it failed.

This year plans for carrying this legislation are already under way, and it is proposed to make a statewide campaign and to get the public back of it.

And that's a very sensible and will likely be a successful plan.

Is it worth while to fight consumption?

There is hardly any enemy of humanity that it pays more to fight—not only because it ought to be fought as the deadliest physical scourge of all, but because it can be whipped.

Indeed it IS being whipped right now, and its final conquest is only a question of aggressive public spirit and the wise, constructive use of public money.

Recently the thirtieth anniversary of the discovery of the bacillus of consumption by Prof. Koch was celebrated in Germany. The celebration was made the occasion for an analysis of the figures showing the ravages of the disease during the thirty years. The statistics developed are impressive.

It should be borne in mind that until Koch's momentous discovery it was considered that tuberculosis was hereditary; that it was not known that it was contagious; and that those afflicted with it were supposed to be doomed to certain death. Those ill with consumption, unsuspected centers of contagion, were pathetic figures facing certain death.

Now it is known that tuberculosis is not hereditary; that it is contagious; and that it is curable.

In the thirty years since this discovery, though the fight against the disease is still badly organized, poorly equipped, and effectively active only in spots, the death rate from tuberculosis is now less than half what it was thirty years ago.

Death rates from a few of the larger cities, where consumption prospers most, will show what has come about:

	1881.	1911.
Boston	42.39	15.49
New York	42.68	20.27
London	22.42	13.46
Paris	41.12	34.94
Vienna	69.67	26.06

With these evidences of the ultimate success of the fight against the world's most dreadful plague in mind, it ought not to be difficult to convince the legislature of Minnesota that the right kind of a fight will yet avail to wipe this death rate out completely, and that it is the duty of Minnesota to engage aggressively in that fight.

Chicago reports a case of heat prostration. Almost time to resume the country-wide reminders that it's cool in Duluth.

It wouldn't be half inappropriate if Senator Joe Bailey would adopt the phraseology of his erstwhile popular namesake Bill, of vocalistic infamy.

Sweden is to have a warship to be paid for out of the pockets of the people. That's where the money for ours comes from, only we raise it by the tariff route and don't often stop to realize it.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

WHAT CONDITIONS IN FLORIDA REALLY ARE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Since so much has been said of late both for and against Southern Florida and the Everglades I wish to express my opinion. I just had the fortune to make a trip to that part of the country in the interest of a number of contract holders and find things just as represented by the company.

Having visited nearly every part of the United States noted agriculturally I find that Southern Florida has many advantages over the other parts because of its fine climatic conditions, good water and soil adapted for any kind of vegetation. The pests are few, I fancy. I did not see any. I might state that the investigations in congress have increased rather than decreased the immigration to Southern Florida. Those having land in the Everglades need have no fear of a poor investment. Although some may have to wait a few years before their land is accessible, it is all good. I walked over a tract of Fred Bayha, Jr's., which a year ago was a foot under water and now is five feet above the water in the canal and has increased in value fourfold. I met a number of Minnesotans who have made permanent homes there and they are all very well pleased, among them being the Zimmermans, Bunkers and Edhols all of Duluth.

I am not an agent, have no land to sell, do not represent any company, but from an investor's viewpoint am giving my candid opinion of this section.

Thanking you in advance for a publication of this article. I am respectfully,

JNO. P. HOYER,
Engineer Water and Light Department,
1521 East Sixth street.
Duluth, May 9.

"GETTING SQUARE."

To the Editor of The Herald:

I'm no mathematician, but I sometimes try to act like one. Awhile ago you had a couple of mathematical puzzles in the open court, and I wasted considerable gray matter to solve them. Now, with your permission, I would like to get back at somebody, and will ask you to publish this one for the delectation of whoever is willing to be delected.

In a problem in division, over half the figures are omitted, their places being filled by the letter x. The problem is to fill in the missing figures correctly so as to get the result right. Here is the problem:

215) x7x9x (1xx
     xxx
     ---
     x6x9
     x5x5
     ----
      x4x

I GOT STUNG.

Duluth, May 10, 1912.

LIMITING THE PRESIDENCY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

It seems to me that the proposal to extend the term of the president of the United States to six years and then prohibit his re-election is a mistake. I don't approve of the present spectacle of the president galavanting around the country on a campaign tour, any more than anybody else does. It is not only undignified, but is rotten bad taste every way, according to my notion. But I don't believe we would get any better results if we put the lid on presidential potentiality.

The presidency is the highest honor attainable by an American. When a man has had that he had had all we can give him. Personal behavior or political or official honesty can bring him nothing more, and therefore a powerful incentive to right-doing is removed, to a great degree. But if we cut him off with one term, it will be removed altogether, for the only honor left for a president is re-election. If he can't be elected anyway, why should he give a hang what people think of his administration? I think you hit the trouble right between the eyes when you made that point editorially, awhile ago.

Of course, it's all wrong that a man should be subject to such considerations, but men are, and we can't help it. Make the term six years, if the people wish, but don't let's cut off the only string we have on the good conduct of a man in the highest office in our nation. It would be far better to provide a law that if he wants re-election he must stay in the White House and let the people judge by his record instead of making a holy show of himself and polluting the atmosphere with political sulphur in order to get something that other folks think he has shown he is not entitled to have.

K. N. OCKER.
Duluth, May 10, 1912.

Cheer Up.

Be a booster and a smilar—Yes, you can
Tell, and prove there is a brotherhood of man;
Brag about the sun a-shining,
'Bout dark clouds with silver lining,
And on worry, fret and pining,
Place a ban.

On the brightness of tomorrow lay your bet.
Never soul has ever lost it—not as yet.
If you do not trouble borrow,
You can claim that your tomorrow
Will not hold a bit of sorrow,
Nor of fret.

Preache aloud the creed of sunshine, good and true.
Rip a bright spot from the blue of Heaven's blue.
Go your way and sing a song
And you'll see as you go long
Folks will pause out in the throng
To smile at you.

When you see a brother down—a broken thing,
Say a word to comfort him and ease the sting.
Get to doing every day
Some good deed along the way
So the world may rise and say,
Love still is King.

—John Francis Glynn in Thief River Falls Times.

Concerning Coal.

Life: Our attempts to fathom the ethics of the dispute between the coal miners and the coal operators reveal several noteworthy facts:

First—The operators look upon any request of the miners for higher wages and shorter hours as unjustifiable.

Second—The miners look upon any refusal of the operators to grant higher wages and shorter hours as unjustifiable.

Third—The stockholders look upon any attempt to lower the rate of dividends as unjustifiable.

Fourth—The public looks upon any attempt to raise the price of coal as unjustifiable.

Fifth—Each of these interests feels that, unless the government is likely to be on its particular side, any interference by the government is unjustifiable.

The Powers That Be in their infinite wisdom may have placed the coal mines in the hands of Mr. Baer and his associates, but even the Powers That Be are unable to make the public satisfied with the arrangement or the workers satisfied with their wages or the conditions of labor.

MINNESOTA AND THE PRESIDENCY.

Waiting for Band Wagon.

Ortonville Herald-Star: Eberhart's supporters are on the point of switching to the Roosevelt columns. They are only waiting for the bandwagon to come along, and they will pile on.

Ammunition For the Enemy.

Little Falls Herald: Taft says Roosevelt is dangerous, unsound and does not use the square deal. Roosevelt says Taft is a hypocrite and no gentleman. And both try to prove their statetments. The Democrats need not worry about campaign ammunition. The G. O. P. is furnishing plenty.

Well, Nominate One.

Perham Enterprise: Now that Taft and Teddy have each proved the other unfit to hold the exalted office of president of the United States let us turn in and elect some good, clean, progressive Democrat.

What Did It?

Luverne Journal: After the campaign of 1908 W. H. Taft said he owed his election to his brother, Charley, and Theodore Roosevelt—to Brother Charley's money and Roosevelt influence. Note he mentioned the man with the money first. In 1912 W. H. Taft has Brother Charley and his money, but lacks Roosevelt and his influence. Note the progress he's making toward getting another certificate of election.

Different People.

Holt Northern Light: President Taft is probably honest enough, but the experience of several years governing people who were incapable of self-government seems to have warped his judgment. He seems to think he is doing that same stunt yet, but the American people will soon show him differently.

Dunn's Idea Of It.

Princeton Union: Taft may be nominated but he cannot be elected. Neither can Roosevelt be elected if nominated. Charles E. Hughes can be elected if nominated, and he would make an ideal president.

Unequal Fight.

Cambridge North Star: Very few people really nunderstand what an unequal political fight is being waged in this state in behalf of Roosevelt. Neither United States senator has said a word for him in Minnesota; no congressman has peeped in his behalf; no state officer, save one, has done open work for him, and many of them have openly declared for Taft and are secretly plotting Roosevelt's downfall. Most of the postmasters and the hundreds of federal appointees are working for Taft and the state organization, secretly directed by the cunning Ed Smith, is marshaling the great army of the government's appointees against the people's champion. It will be almost a miracle if Roosevelt wins, taking into account the political odds, but if the people become sufficiently aroused they will be surprised to see how easily they can beat the bosses.

Both Spoke Right Out.

Fairmont Sentinel: It was a shameful story of Roosevelt falsehood, of Roosevelt treachery, of Roosevelt hypocrisy, of Roosevelt assassination of character, which Mr. Taft told in his Massachusetts speeches.—New York World

And Roosevelt, never to be outdone, followed with a shameful story of Taft treachery, of Taft hypocrisy, of Taft assassination of character which Mr. Roosevelt told in Massachusetts' speeches. And the masses are inclined to the belief that both were telling the truth.

Which?

Which shall it be?
For thee? Or me?
Oh, who shall be the first to hear
The distant voice approaching near;
The sound that blasts the happy day;
The ringing call that rends away?

Which shall it be?
Cometh to me
That awful order: "Henceforth miss
The dearness of the daily kiss.
Await the step that does not come,
Be desolate. I smite thy home."

Which shall it be?
Is it for thee—
The summons and the setting forth?
Eyes lifted to the icy north,
Hands crossed, head bowed, heart frozen
—Of protest, and of message dumb?

Which shall it be?
Is it for me
To see the mist precede the rain
In eyes that watch o'er mortal pain?
To say, when sunset fires the sea:
"There's dawn for him, but night for me?"

Which shall it be?
Unto me? Unto thee?
Which of us twain shall be the one
To rise, to rest, to weep alone?
Which first in fate's dark school shall have
The education of the grave?

Which shall it be?
Great God! to Thee
We leave—nor wrest from Thee—the choice,
Since Thine the call, since Thine the Voice,
And Thine the old and awful art
That tears two clasping lives apart.

Thus let it be—
To Thee, or me.
Hush! Let Him do the deed He must;
Nor ask Him why, nor when, but trust
For love is old as God, and strong
I think, as He; and lives as long.

—Elizabeth Stuart Phelps.

Didn't Lose Much Ground.

Knasas City Journal: This story, which is about a man whose name appeared on one of the two tickets at the recent election, is a true one. Therefore, it wouldn't be fair to tell his name.

The man in question once before made a race for office. He grew up in Kansas City and was still immensely popular in the neighborhood in which he had lived as a boy. So the committee gave him an opportunity to make his maiden speech in the hall in which as a small boy he had listened to the spellbinders.

When his turn to speak came, the candidate labored manfully for fifteen minutes and thought he was doing well in spite of the fact that he had forgotten his speech a number of times and his words showed a disposition to turn crosswise in his mouth. After it was all over he walked down the aisle, mopping his burning face with his handkerchief, buttonholed a companion of his boyhood days and drew him aside.

"Say, Bill," he said, 'tell me on the square now, what do you think of the effect of that speech?"

Bill hestitated. "Out with it," persisted the candidate.

"Well," said Bill, those fellows in there have known you since boyhood and they have been pretty strong for you and—well, I guess they'll still vote for you."

The Hunting of the Tip.

Commercial Travelers Magazine: "Arrived at Mansion house 6:45—house full. Drew back room over kitchen. Only one chair and one window. Bum bed. Bellhop moved chair twice, opened, then closed window as hint for tip. Next asked if I wanted anything else. Felt like kicking him out of window, but gave up a dime. He didn't even say 'thank you.' Washed and went down to office. 'Nother bellhop jumped for me with whiskbroom. Chased me clear across office. Gave up nickel. Hiked for hotel cafe. Supper slip 95 cents. Got two halves and nickel back from $2 bill. Felt ashamed to leave nickel on plate. Left half and cussed self for it. Hat-rack boy outside brushed hat. Got nickel. Got shaved next. Barber glared at me, tipped him a dime. Brush boy grabbed my hat. Brushed it some more. Nickel again. Wrote orders and wifey. Got chased with brush-broom hornet again. Stung for another nickel. Played pool two hours. Poolkeeper kept glaring till I tipped him. 'Nother sting. Back to office. Fresh whiskbroom hornet got after me. Gave up another nick. Went to bed. Got woke up 5 a. m. by rattle of garbage cans. Rang for hot water, boy who brought it asked twice if that was all I wanted. Got mad and told him no, I wanted to see him kicked down seven flights of stairs. Breakfast bill just 75. Got quarter back only from dollar. Left it for tip. Paid bill, two-fifty. When back for depot came three bellhops grabbed my things. One got grip, one sample case, and third my coat. 'Nother chased me out with whiskbroom. Was so mad by now didn't tip any of 'em. Heard 'em mutter 'tight-wad' when I shut door myself. Footed up amount of tips on way to depot. Just one-sixty!"

He Paid Back.

Haven, Kan., Journal: Hutchinson has a poor man who deserves a medal of honor. During the winter when work was slack and the cost of fuel high he was obliged to apply to the poor commissioner for aid. When his family needed the food he didn't whine about his hard luck, nor did he stand back on account of false pride, but went to the poor commissioner and explained his circumstances. He was given an order for provisions and used it. Last week he approached the commissioner and paid back the money to the county, saying he had a job now and wanted to pay for the help he had received. The commissioner says it is the first case to his knowledge where anyone has ever paid the county for help received when in straightened circumstances. That man probably will never have to have aid again, for he is the kind that will endeavor to provide for the future while he has a job.

An Anecdote, Sad and Funny.

Greenland, S. C., Advocate: Sandy Hoyle, negro janitor of the Advocate, listened to a discussion by the foreman and the intelligent compositor on the commercial possibilities of the aeroplane. Sandy seemed deeply interested, but at the close of the conversation he shook his head solemnly and said:

"White folks may do great things with them flying machines, but one thing I knows fo' suttin—they won't never need no Jim Crow cars on 'em."

Property and People.

Life: Property does not itself produce income. Somebody has to earn it. The right of property seems to be a right of what somebody else earns. That is convenient and works pretty well as long as property is fairly well distributed, but when it is juggled into too few hands, or when too large a proportion of the community get to living on the earnings of the rest, then there is trouble, and some plan has to be devised to lighten the burden of interest charges and take from those who have and scatter among those who have not.

That process is now going on in England, where resort has been had to it to save the civilization of England. It is a hard job to work out. Acquisition can be left to individual enterprise. Individual enterprise, especially in this country, has done some wonderful works of distribution, but it cannot be trusted, by and large, to make a thorough job of it. Apparently it must be assisted by new laws, and such laws, though they seem to be inevitable if civilization is to survive, come hard and against determined and resourceful opposition. When the rights of property impose on labor a greater burden than is consistent with health and reasonable opportunity for happiness and reproduction, part of the burden must be shifted back on to property. It must be done by taxation, by workmen's compensation laws and a variety of such measures.

A Glance Ahead.

It's going to be dull when the campaign's o'er,
And the wires don't sag with the wise one's lore,
When the circle swingers go home to stay,
And nobody mentions that houn' dawg lay,
When the papers quit sending their cubs to see
How the speeches of A are affecting B,
When nobody argues on schedule K
As the crowded trolley speeds on its way,
When nobody's using the vitriol crop
In the hope of making one voter "flop,"
When nobody pays three bucks per plate
To starve while the limelight sonorate,
When one to a Pullman will push his way
To glimpse a celebrity, negligee.

It's going to be dull when no voter's gate
Is decked with the form of a candidate,
When his hand's not wrung from morn till night
Nor his ear drums soothed with a song polite,
When news from the rival warrior's tents
Quits crowding out all the sport events,
When nobody's being manhandled, flailed,
And likewise stilettoed, and eke assailed,
When nobody mentions the double cross
And nobody's working that worn word, "boss,"
When there's pause to the unearned increment
Of the landlords who advertise "Halls to rent;"
It's going to be dull, that much is true,
But say—does the prospect frighten you?

In Lilac Time.

Through orchards of old apple trees
That spring makes musical with bees
By garden ways of vines and flowers,
Where twittering sweet, the bird box towers
And swallows sun their plumes—
The path leads winding to the gate,
Hung with its rusty chain and weight,
That opens on a lilac walk
Where dreams of love and memories talk,
Born of the dim perfumes.

The old house stands with porches wide
And locust trees on either side;
Its windows, kindly as the eyes
Of friendship, smiling at the skies,
Again he meets her, brown of hair,
Beside its steps May lilies lift
Bell'd sprays of snow in drift on drift,
And in the door, a lily, too,
Again she stands, the one he knew
In days that are no more.

Again he meets her, brown of hair,
Among the clustered lilacs there,
The sun is set; the blue dusk falls;
A nestling bird another calls;
A star leaps in the sky.
Again he breathes the lilac scent
And rose; again her head is bent;
And oh! again, beside the gate,
To see the round moon rise they wait,
Before they kiss good-bye.

Long years have passed; the times since then,
Have changed—and customs, too, and men;
But she has never changed to him,
Nor has that house, so old and dim,
Where once they said good-bye.
That place, which spring keeps ever fair
Through memories of her face and hair—
Unchanged, like some immortal rime,
Where evermore 'tis lilac time,
And love can never die.

Some Indorsement.

Lisbon, Ohio, Journal: To whom it may concern: We, the prisoners of Columbian county jail by an unanimous vote, most heartily indorse George C. Breidenstein, now acting in the capacity of deputy sheriff, as the logical candidate for the nomination for the office of sheriff of Columbiana county.

As prisoners we have found Mr. Breidenstein at all times to be very congenial and a gentleman worthy of the vote and consideration of the voters of the county. In consideration for the kindness bestowed upon us we ask the support and co-operation at the primaries to be held Tuesday, May 21, 1912. Respectfully yours, (signed) PRISONERS, COLUMBIANA COUNTY JAIL.

HOME RULE IS ADVANCED

Bill Passes Second Reading in British House 372 to 271.

Old Opponents of Gladstone Become Part of Tory Party.

London, May 10.—The government carried the home rule bill on its second reading in the house of commons last night by a majority of 101, as against 94 for the first reading. The vote was 372 to 271. It was the most largely attended house at the present parliaments. Both sides had done their utmost to secure every available vote. Mr. Balfour and Mr. Churchill returned to be present.

The announcement of the figures showing an increased majority occasioned enthusiastic demonstrations on the government side, and the prime minister was given a great ovation on leaving the house.

Welsh Bill Next.

The bill formally was referred to a committee of the whole house, but as home rule and Welsh disestablishment are being taken concurrently, it will now be the turn of the Welsh bill. The committee stage of the home rule bill is not expected to be reached until after Whitsuntide, and probably will occupy a couple of months, even with a liberal application of the closure rules, as the opposition is preparing an endless list of amendments and will adopt every possible means to obstruct the measure.

Curiously, the second reading of the home rule bill coincides with the disappearance of the word "conservative" as the official designation of the Tory party. A conference of the Conservative and Liberal Unionist parties finally resolved in a fusion of the two parties under the title of "National Unionist association." Thus the Liberal Unionists, who seceded from Gladstone on his espousal of home rule, now become part and parcel of the Tory party.

Cheer John Redmond.

John Redmond, on leaving parliament with his wife, shortly after Mr. Asquith, was also loudly cheered, many Irishmen in the crowd singing "A Nation Once Again."

SOLDIER'S DAUGHTER PLEADS FOR CANTEEN.

Chicago, May 10.—Mrs. Wellington Quincy Hunt of Detroit, in a paper read at the annual meeting of the Chicago chapter of the National society, Dames of the Loyal Legion, made a plea for the army canteen at all military posts.

"I am a soldier's daughter and speak from experience," Mrs. Hunt said. "The army canteen tends to hold the soldier in check, for his inclination to excess in drinking is controlled by the officers and those in charge of the canteen. Without the canteen the soldier quickly succumbs to temptation outside the military post, when on leave of absence."

Bishop Samuel Fallows paid tribute to the character of Gen. Frederick D. Grant, in a brief address at the meeting.

July 10, thus covering the period of the two conventions. The device is not wholly without precedent, as it was adopted in 1880. Just at present, however, it is being antagonized by the senate chiefly because it originated in the house. However, whether the jealousy between the two houses may for the moment put the proposition in jeopardy, the needs of the situation will compel its acceptance. There is no earthly possibility of finishing the work of congress before the period of the first convention, and there is no sense in attempting to sit through both, because neither chamber would be possessed of a quorum.

Day of Short Sessions Past.

Indeed it is becoming daily more apparent that the day of hurried and short sessions of congress is past. The complexity of the business brought before the house, the extreme deliberation of the senate, and perhaps beyond all, the new house rules which have shorn the speaker and the committee on rules of much of their power to expedite business have produced that result. The curious part of it is that the congressmen are themselves the most bitter complainants. While their income proceeds from Washington they are always eager to get away—many of them to small country towns where their expenses do not amount to a quarter of what they do here. Notwithstanding this earnest desire to leave Washington and economize, the fact remains that year after year sessions grow longer and necessarily so.

Some people think it is almost blasphemy to criticise the Constitution adopted when we had but thirteen states, no railroads, no telegraphs, no trusts nor any problems growing out of those modern developments of a highly organized society. At the same time the constitutional provisions as to the time of the meeting of congress, the duration of its sessions and other matters of like detail are as helpful today as an iron ring welded about an oaken sapling would be when the sapling had become an oak 150 years old.

Coinage of Small Pieces.

One of the curious pieces of legislation by this congress is the passage, practically by unanimous consent, in the house of the bill presented by Mr. Ashbrook of Ohio, providing for coinage of 3-cent and one-half-cent pieces. Most people of mature years will remember when we had a 3-cent piece in circulation. It became a nuisance and was finally called in because it was so continually confused with the ordinary dime. Under the Ashbrook bill, as amended, these new coins are to be so designed in shape and size as to not resemble any now in circulation. Whether the director of the mint will be wise enough to adopt the Chinese principle of putting a hole in the middle of the half-cent piece so as to make it readily recognizable by the man who merely feels it in his pocket, is yet to be determined. In the debate bearing on the matter Mr. Austin of Tennessee scored what he thought was probably a point by insisting that the motto "In God We Trust" should be put on even the half-cent piece.

The really interesting feature of this new proposition, however, is that the American people, who in great sections of the country only a few years ago scorned the use of any piece of money smaller than a 5-cent piece, are now, so far as their representatives in congress are concerned, united in asking for a one-half-cent piece. There was practically no opposition to the proposition other than the purely technical one that the coins should be made distinctive. There seems to be no organized opposition to it in the senate, and as I have said it was passed in the house by unanimous consent. One feature of some interest was the statement made by a member of the committee recommending it, that an understanding had been reached with the director of the mint that the coins would be made of such a diameter as not to interfere with the workings of the various slot machines now esablished which, he said, were largely owned or the companies financed by the banks of the country. The idea of the banks of the nation vending chocolate, chewing gum and matches through slot machines will be probably a revelation to many people.

Brewery Strike Settled.

Kansas City, Mo., May 10. — The strike of the brewery workers here has been settled. The basis of settlement was not made public, but it was announced the strikers were given half they asked, and that the increases range from 35 cents a week to several dollars. These men returned to work immediately. At the same time another meeting was held between the strikers and the other breweries and practically the same basis of settlement was arrived at.

UNION DROPS STEREOTYPERS

Chicago Men Who Joined Sympathetic Strike Are Put Outside Pale.

Chicago, May 10.—President James J. Freel of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' union has taken drastic action against members of Stereotypers' union No. 4, who quit work in sympathy with the newspaper pressmen. Freel and his associate members of the executive council of the international union formally cancelled the charter of the local union because the men refused to return to work as ordered by Freel.

Several days ago, in anticipation of this discipline, officers of the local union made preparations to issue "traveling cards" to their members, giving the men standing in any office in the country. President Freel's order cancelling the charter of the local union also cancelled all traveling cards issued by this union to any of its members. The effect of this action by Mr. Freel is to leave every stereotyper employed in Chicago outside the union ranks. It is understood to be the intention of Mr. Freel to try to organize another local union in the place of the one just wiped out by him.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil—Remove Them With the New Drug.

An eminent skin specialist recently discovered a new drug, othine—double strength, which is so uniformly successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by Boyce Drug Store under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first night's use will show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely. It is absolutely harmless, and cannot injure the most tender skin.

Be sure to ask Boyce Drug Store for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money back guarantee.

INSURGENTS IN WOODMEN LOSE

Insurance Bill in Illinois Senate Beaten in Committee.

Springfield, Ill., May 10.—Insurgent Woodmen lost their fight in the senate insurance committee yesterday, when by one vote the committee reported the Donohue bill out with the recommendation that it should not pass.

The committee's action followed an open session of the insurance committee lasting through two whole afternoons and one evening, during which every angle of the Woodmen rate war was thrashed out for the benefit of the legislators.

The unfavorable report came as a surprise to the sponsors of the measure in view of the comparatively easy sailing they had with it in the house. On the motion to report the measure favorably the committee divided 9 to 8, Chairman Lundberg not voting.

The committee's action gave the sponsors of the bill their first notice that powerful influences outside the lines of the Woodmen were working against them. It is said that some of the largest fraternal insurance societies in the country now are fighting the Donohue bill, which would prohibit an increase in fraternal insurance rates until January, 1915.

LETTER ON HARMON VOTE CHARGES IS GIVEN OUT.

Columbus, Ohio, May 10. — Charges from W. J. Bryan that friends of Governor Harmon had sought to purchase Bryan-pledged delegates to the 1908 convention, stirred the Ohio executive to telegraphic denial and brought from Mr. Bryan the publication of the letter on which he says the charges were based.

The letter was made public here by Harvey Garber, who said it was addressed to State Senator Frank T. Dore of Tiffin. It was signed by Michael Devanney of Cincinnati and was in part as follows:

"Cincinnati, June 25, 1908.

"Dear Sir:—

"In a conference with our mutual friend, Mr. —— of ——, he advised me you were in touch with the two delegates from the —— district. He advised that you see Mr. —— of —— and have him see the delegate of that place, whose name he did not remember, and have him, together with Mr. —— of —— meet Mr. —— at Columbus on the evening of July 2, so that arrangements may be made for the trip to Denver.

"Mr. —— of Cincinnati will meet them and take care of their transportation to Denver.

"By this letter, my dear Mr. —— you will see there is 'something doing,' and whilst indorsements have been given in your district, I hope your two delegates can see their way to vote for Judge Harmon on the first ballot at Denver."

Mr. Garber is a member of the Democratic national committee. He declined to make known the names of those involved in the letter.

Springtime Aids to Beauty

By CLEO DE GALYS

"A genuine complexion beautifier is made at home by dissolving an original package of mayatone in a half pint of witch hazel. Gently rub this solution over the face, neck and forearms in the morning and it will 'hold' all day. It will not rub off nor show like powder and makes the skin soft, satiny and pliable.

"No toilet table is complete without a jar of Mother's Salve. It is a splendid remedy for chaps, cold sores, pimples, eczema and skin eruptions. It is antiseptic and heals cuts, burns, scalds and long-standing sores.

"A safe, sure and speedy way to remove superfluous hair on face or forearms is by applying delatone paste. Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the hairs, apply, and wipe off after two or three minutes; then wash the skin and the hairs will be gone.

"Soap and water dull and deaden hair. It is better to use a dry shampoo to clean the hair and scalp. Mix four ounces of powdered orris root with an original package of therox, sift a teaspoonful over the head and brush thoroughly through the hair. This treatment makes the hair grow long and abundant, and it becomes bright, wavy and beautifully lustrous."

HEART IS SOFTENED

Mrs. Chiaravalla No Longer Wants to Return to Sicily.

Runs Away From Poor Farm and Returns to Husband.

To return to her home and people among the sun-kissed Sicilian hills is no longer the desire of Mrs. Bambina Chiaravalla, who three weeks ago sought refuge at the county poor farm from the abuse of a brutal spouse.

On the eve of her voluntary deportation to Italy, she has stolen away from the poor farm and returned to her husband, whom she has forgiven. Today she told the county poor authorities that she would rather live with her husband again than to return to Italy.

Poor Agent Shogran today received authority from the United States immigration department to deport the woman, if the county would provide her transportation to New York city. The trans-Atlantic trip expenses would have been paid by the immigration department.

But without her consent, Mrs. Chiaravalla cannot be deported. Three weeks ago she was willing and anxious to go, but since, her heart has softened against her husband, whom she desires to live with again. She even requested the authorities to drop the warrant for assault which she had sworn out against him on April 17, last.

Mrs. Chiaravalla is the mother of two small children and will soon give berth to another. When she appealed to the county weeks ago to send her and her children back to Italy, she was sent to the poor farm and the children were put in the hands of a private family at the county's expense.

On April 30, Mrs. Chiaravalla mysteriously disappeared from the poor farm. It was supposed and it later developed that she had returned to Eveleth, where she and her husband had lived. She had told the attendants at the poor farm that she desired to return to Eveleth to say "good bye" to her friends and to get some clothes which she had left there.

Today, when Poor Agent Shogran secured the necessary papers for her deportation from Brown McDonald, local inspector in charge at the United States immigration office, he attempted by telephoning to Eveleth, to locate the woman.

About the same time that Mr. Shogran was telephoning, Chiaravalla and his wife came to the police station in search of their children. Chief of Police Troyer recognized Chiaravalla as the man wanted for assault at Eveleth and placed him in custody. Later he got into communication with the Eveleth authorities and learned that Mrs. Chiaravalla, the complaining witness, had begged them to drop the case and had refused to appear against him. He was reelased.

From the police station, Chiaravalla and wife came to the courthouse and were directed to the office of the Duluth Humane society. The Humane society got in touch with Poor Agent Shogran and the woman then informed him that she did not wish to return to Italy.

Although the domestic life of Mrs. Chiaravalla during her nine months in this country has not been the most congenial and has been marked with fights and squabbles she says she is willing to give it another try and would prefer living with her husband again, to returning to Italy.

When Mrs. Chiaravalla first came to the poor agent's office, her face was decorated with black and blue marks under each eye and her countenance bore indisputable evidence of a fistic argument. She said that her husband had beaten and then deserted her. At Eveleth, she had a warrant sworn out for his arrest.

In company with her cousin, Tony Pignatelli, Mrs. Chiaravalla and her two children came to Duluth and applied to the county poor commission for relief. She told the authorities that she wanted to go back to Italy and steps were taken to have her deported. In the meantime, she was to remain at the county poor farm.

After taking French leave from the poor farm on April 30, she returned to Eveleth. While there she learned through a friend that her husband was in St. Paul and that he was willing to return to her and support her. After a due consideration of the matter, she decided to abandon her plans for returning to Italy and to go back to him instead.

Chiaravalla returned to Eveleth and in company with his wife came to Duluth today. Mrs. Chiaravalla had forgotten just what disposition had been made of the children and they went to the police to find out.

Chiaravalla promised to pay Poor Agent Shogran $25 for the care of the children for the past three weeks and was told that if he showed a disposition to support his wife and not abuse her in the future that there would be no trouble.

The Chiaravallas and their two children returned to the range this afternoon.

WATER TIGHT DOORS OPEN

More Evidence Taken in Titanic Inquiry—Women Refused to Leave Ship.

London, May 10.—The board of trade inquiry into the Titanic disaster was resumed today. Corroboration was given of the evidence of Thomas Dillon of the engineers' staff that the water tight doors were opened by the orders of the engineer.

Fred Scott who was on duty in the turbine engine room on the night of the disaster, said that a quarter to 1 he was ordered to open the watertight doors from the engine room through to the stern compartment to enable the engineers to get at the pump. At first he opened the doors only about a foot. Then, the engineer having telephoned to the bridge, they threw the door wided open. Lord Mersey remarked:

"This, taken in conjunction with Thomas Dillon's evidence, should show that the doors were opened from the forward boiler room to the stern compartment."

"Would Close Automatically."

The attorney representing the White Star company interposed, saying that evidence will be introduced to show that when the water reached a certain height, the watertight doors would close automatically.

According to Scott it had definitely been ascertained that the lights reported to have been seen by some of the persons on the lifeboats were those of other lifeboats.

The chief baker of the Titanic, C. Joughen, testified that members of the crew had to carry some of the women up to the boat deck and drop them into the boats. Many of the women refused to go, saying they were safer on board the steamer. The men stood back voluntarily.

As Joughen came up from below he noticed the emergency doors between the second and third class sections were open, giving the third class passengers direct access to the boat deck.

Joughen remained on board the Titanic until she went down, and had been two hours in the water when he was picked up at daylight.

OBITUARY

Otto O. Tollefson, 48 years old, organizer and incorporator of the Northwestern Fire & Marine Insurance company, is dead at his home, 1728 Logan avenue south, Minneapolis. Mr. Tollefson had been ill for several months. Mr. Tollefson was born in Lansing, Iowa, Jan. 5, 1865, and moved to Hatton, N. D., early in 1879, where he engaged in real estate and insurance business until 1891. In the fall of 1891 Mr. Tollefson moved to Grand Forks, where in 1899 he organized and incorporated the Northwestern Fire & Marine Insurance company. Seven years ago he brought the business concern to Minneapolis and continued at its head until 1909, when he resigned and entered into a general agency for life isurance. Because of ill health he was compelled to give up business activities early last winter, when he went South, spending the winter in Southern Colorado. He retunred to Minneapolis about seven weeks ago, since when he grndually sank until the end came early today. Mr. Tollefson is survived by his wife, one daughter, Ella, and son, George.

RUSSIA'S WEALTH IN HER CHURCHES.

Christian Herald: St. Petersburg, as well as Moscow, has some cathedrals which are marvels of ecclesiastical architecture. St. Isaac's cathedral, for instance, in the center of the city, cost 24,000,000 rubles, or $12,000,000.

Scores and scores of immense marble pillars adorn its four equal sides, while several of the beautiful green malachite columns within are worth a king's ransom. It is said that in the golden domes of St. Isaac's and the jewels within Russia has a "war chest" that would defend her from her enemies for many a month if she should need the gold.

SANDS THAT SING.

London Standard: A lecture given at the Royal Societiex club by Cecil Carus-Wilson was devoted to a consideration of the extraordinary sands known as "musical" or "singing" sands.

The best singing sands in the world come from the Isle of Egg, off the coast of Scotland, and it is comforting to know that whatever figure Great Britain may cut in grand opera she is at least pre-eminent when it comes to a question of singing sand. But what is singing sand? Mr. Carus-Wilson went to great pains to leave no doubt on the subject, and although his audience contained many eminent geologists he asked leave to begin at the very beginning and to treat his audience "as an audience of boys."

The lecturer showed how the rocks of which the earth is composed are decomposed by the action of natural causes, chiefly the weather; how cliffs become boulders, how boulders become pebble and pebbles in turn become sand. In the course of time it occurs that nature, that most versatile old lady, produces a kind of sand which has music in its soul; a sand composed of quartz, rounded and highly polished, of a uniftmor size and very clean.

And when these are agitated so as to produce vibrations, by means of the wind, by being trodden upon, or by being struck, they produce musical notes. Such perfect deposits are found in the Isle of Egg and it was by means of samples of the real egg variety that the lecturer produced musical notes.

Filling a wooden egg cup with sand from the Isle of Egg he stabbed the sand with a wooden ninepin abstracted, he said, from the nursery at home and produced a musical note. The sand behaved better in the egg cup than in anything else. In a cardboard box its musical note remained dumb, as it did in a flower pot and in the half of a rubber ball. In half a wooden Easter egg the sand from the Isle of Egg, as the lecturer remarked, "positively revelled" in its surroundings and emitted a sharp joyous squeaking.

Musical sands have been known for 1,000 years and it is believed that there is a reference to them in one of the tales of the "Arabian Nights." But nature, who conducts experiments on quite a different scale from those of last night, produces much finer results. There is the mountain of the Bell on the shores of the Red sea, which makes extraordinary sounds and boomings when the winds set the countless millions of particles rubbing against each other and vibrating.

Darwin discovered the "Roarer" in Chile, which also makes tremendous noises, and there are many other examples in various parts of the world.

Almost every traveller in the Orient has seen or heard of the rice terraces in Japan, China and the region of the Straits Settlements. But more wonderful than any of these, according to the Scientific American, are those of the Ifugaos, a tribe living in Luzon, one of our own Philippine Islands.

From an industrial viewpoint the Ifugao terrace represent the most colossal undertakings in the Philippines and perhaps the most stupendous task ever accomplished by a thoroughly savage people. Viewing the terraces, one compares them with such works as the Pyramids or the great wall of China, or even with the Roman viaducts.

By way of contrast with like achievements of more civilized races it should be mentioned that the Ifugaos are absolutely primitive, even lacking a system of writing and a well defined religious belief. Their writing up to the time when the American school teacher invaded the country consisted of a few rude hieroglyphics scratched on a rock or in the sand.

The finest of these terraces are along the sides of a steep canon in Nueva Viscaya province. The rice paddies climb like giant steps up the steep canon sides to a height of 1,200 feet or more, and it is said they extend into a secondary range of hills, making the extension almost 3,000 feet. The length of the canon is about twelve miles and is negotiated by a winding foot path that in some places will not allow two to pass.

In one place the trail extends along the retaining wall of a rice paddy. This wall is 18 inches wide and there is a sheer drop of seventy feet below to the next paddy. The paddy varies from eight to forty feet in width and is approximately 200 feet long following the contour of the canon. Some of the terraces, each of which is flooded with water before the rice planting in the early spring, are wonderful feats of engineering.

At times they follow the contour of a canon for as great a distance as half a mile without varying scarcely two inches, say from a dead level. The retaining walls of each terrace are built to be about fifteen inches above the water level. All retaining walls are perpendicular and built at right angles to the level of the earth.

In the art of intensive cultivation the Ifugaos have progressed far. They irrigate and fertilize in a single operation. Water deflected from mountain streams or arising from springs passes through decomposed vegetable matters, ashes, black alluvial soil and manure, and is then conducted to the topmost rice terrace, carrying in suspension rich fertilizing matter which is evenly distributed.

There is thus no part of a rice paddy which is not fertilized. From the topmost terrace the water flows through a gap in the retaining wall to the terrace next below, still carrying fertilizing matter in suspension. Most of the work in the paddies is done by the women, who wade about stirring up the sediment. Sometimes the rice straw of a harvested crop is covered over with dirt and allowed to rot. The result produces the finest rice raised in the Philippines, of great size, and it is said by experts of practically perfect form. Ranchers in the west occasionally run an irrigating ditch through fertilizing matter, but the practice is not general.

SPOORING.

Spooring, properly speaking, means following footprints; but the term commonly implies much more than that, and signifies holding the trail by means of the many marks an animal leaves behind on its path.

It is essentially tracking by sight when the quarry itself is hidden from view; and it is this use of the eyes alone in the pursuit of invisible game that distinguishes man, the hunter, from other animals.

There is no reason to think that any animal, other than man, employs eyesight to any material extent for this purpose, says the "Strand." Conspicuous tracks, it is true, may catch the eye of the stoat or wolf questing for prey, and draw attention to the fact that a possible victim has passed by.

But it is hardly to be believed that either of these animals, high though in certain particulars his intelligence be, has a knowledge of the shape and structure of the feet such as is necessary for telling the nature of the species that has left the spoor and of the direction it has taken.

These essentials are learnt by the sense of smell. Smell will tell the stoat if the tracks are those of a hare it would be profitable to pursue or of a fox it would be unwise to follow; and the gradual waxing or waning of the scent in this or that direction will indicate the course that has to be chosen if the quest is to be crowned with success.

To man alone, then, is confined the power of knowing these things by eye. Not that the knowledge is instinctive. It has to be acquired by strenuous application and long practice; and only the individual with keen visualizing power and sound judgment can hope to make a successful tracker and attain proficiency in the science.

A WINTER'S TALE.

New London Telegraph: Ananias Brown cast a reminiscent eye at the frost covered window and remarked placidly. "It's pretty cold out, but I recall very well a night two or three years ago when the thermometer was down to zero and the wind blowing a perfect gale. I was walking against the wind with just an ordinary light overcoat on and do you know, Saphira, I was so warm with the exertion and exercise that I was wringing wet with perspiration and finally had to stop and fan myself before I could go on."

"Yes," amiably replied Saphira, "it reminds me of the day I went to the Jones's picnic one Fourth of July. The mercury was standing at 198 in the shade and I had all my furs on, but I was so cold my lips were blue and I shivered so it shook the earth and the inhabitants thereof—but where are you going, Ananias?"

"I'm going to pour a little water on the furnace fire, there doesn't seem to be much heat coming up."

ANNIVERSARY OF THE HANDKERCHIEF.

London Globe: A curious anniversary which fell on the second of January has passed unobserved. It is the anniversary of the introduction of the pocket handkerchief in the form we know it. In early time and well up to the period of the French Revolution the handkerchief was of various shapes, each country having its own style.

One day at the Trianon, Marie Antoinette remarked that it would be an improvement if handkerchiefs were made square. Louis XVI adopted the suggestion and on Jan. 2, 1785, issued the following decree: "The length of handkerchiefs manufactured in this kingdom shall henceforth be equal to the breadth." The revolutionists disturbed everything that savored of royalty, yet they did not interfere with this decree.

IMPROVEMENT OF PUBLIC ROADS

Campaign to Co-ordinate and Crystallize the Road Movement.

Washington, May 10.—Picking out individual states, each in its turn, and covering them from end to end with local associations dedicated to the movement for the improvement of the public highways, is the method that is being pursued by the American Association for Highway Improvement in its campaign to co-ordinate and crystallize the road movement in the United States. Fred S. Smith, the special representative of the American Association for Highway improvement, has just reported to J. E. Pennybacker, Jr., executive secretary of the association, that the state of Florida has been covered from end to end with local road improvement associations.

Mr. Smith has been traveling in Florida for the past twelve weeks and his results give a fair indication of what the American Association for Highway Improvement, which was formed by leading officials, railroad men, professional men and others for the purpose of establishing a clearing house for the road movement, expects to accomplish in every state in the Union. In the twelve weeks in which Mr. Smith worked in Florida, he covered 3,200 miles in an automobile, traversing twenty-four counties and thirty-seven towns.

None of the representatives of the American association are of the dilettante type, and in his trip Mr. Smith never hesitated to get down off the platform from which he was speaking in order to show the farmers just how to construct certain types of road. While Mr. Smith's work is largely along the lines of organization, he actually aided in the work of connecting the good roads of one county with those of another county, bringing the whole state into closer and quicker communication. Many miles of road were actually constructed as a result of Mr. Smith's tour of the state, and he had an opportunity to witness some of the results of his own missionary work.

The representative of the American Association for Highway improvement addressed sixty meetings in the various counties in some of which bonds have since been issued for the purpose of investing in improved public highways, which Mr. Smith assured them was the best investment on earth. The American association is now preparing for similar campaigns in Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, and West Virginia. Meanwhile, Field Secretary Light is doing similar work in the Western states.

CHINESE FAMINE IS AT ITS WORST

Starvation Destroying Thousands—Late Reports From an American Observer.

Washington, May 10.—Reports from China received at the national headquarters of the Red Cross within the last few days state that the famine is now at its most acute stage. During the next six weeks while the new crops are ripening the need for relief will be most intense. At present the relief committee is employing about 90,000 men on public works and the earnings of these men are saving probably 500,000 persons from starvation. Meanwhile, certainly 2,000,000 are suffering and many thousand must die unless the relief measures are greatly extended.

Charles W. Harvey of the Y. M. C. A. of Tientsin made a recent journey through the famine districts and at the request of United States Minister Calhoun, at Peking, prepared a report of his observations. The character of this report which has been forwarded to the state department and is now in the hands of the Red Cross, may be indicated by quoting briefly from its contents.

"No children were seen at play. No grain, meat, vegetables or foodstuffs of any kind except the bark of trees, dried grass, wild garlic and roots were seen. We found no sign of clothing anywhere, except the rags on the backs of the people, no bedding, * * * few farming implements, nothing that could possibly be turned into money except an occasional piece of furniture and the doors of the houses or rafters in the thatched roofs. In many places we noted the absence of doors in the homes and saw the mud walls of houses stripped of roofs which we soon found had been used for fuel or exchanged for food.

"On the first morning out of Ching Klangpu we met a man pushing a wheelbarrow containing a low flat basket in which was huddled the starving forms of his wife and child and beside them a few charred pieces of wood which he hoped to exchange in the city for food * * * I shall never forget one little mud hut without door, window or furniture, on the mud floor of which sat a young woman of 22 with a child of 2 years lying on its face moaning. When I asked her why he moaned she replied without comment, 'I cannot get him to eat any more grass. He is starving to death.'

"In all our visits to the homes of these starving peasants there was no begging, no appeals to our pity, no tales of their suffering, no tears, no emotion, but simply the one sentence over and over again, 'wo men Essu liac' —'We are starving to death.' Unlike the beggars so common in the cities, these people a few years ago were successful farmers and laborers unaccustomed to begging. They have not learned to beg. We found several homes in which only children were left, and in one home a single little child of 8 years, huddled in a corner with a bowl of cooked bark and weeds, which she was eating with chop sticks. She was the last of her family. The workers in famine relief said it was usual for the father to die first, then the mother, then the older children and the younger children last of all, showing that affection and self sacrifice persisted even under these conditions.

"I visited two of the stations for famine relief carried on by the Central China Famine Relief committee. These were at You Kou and Sun Chia Wei Tau; the first was conducted from a village of about 1,000 and the latter in a farmhouse of one of the local gentry. We thoroughly investigated the relief work in operation, talked over the plans of the Chinese and the foreigners in charge, and with those being relieved, and I am convinced that the relief is sanely and economically conducted; effective in relieving the suffering of the people; in helping to prevent the repetition of famine conditions; does not pauperize those helped but rather encourages self-help; and that every dollar is honestly administered."

The American Red Cross has forwarded to the relief committee in China over $150,000 since Jan. 1. This includes the amount raised by the vigorous efforts of the New York Famine Relief committee which is a tireless auxiliary of the Red Cross. But the committee in China pleads for at least $200,000 more to enable it to carry on its great task until the new harvest ripens. Contributions of any amount will help. They should be sent to the American Red Cross, Washington, or to the treasurer of the State Red Cross board of any state or to Jacob H. Schiff, treasurer of the New York committee.

BUYING CARLTON LANDS.

New Settlers Are Coming Into Nearby County.

St. Paul, Minn., May 10.—Indications of the tide of migration into Minnesota this spring is furnished in reports from three counties just received by State Immigration Commissioner Maxwell. He has asked the crop reporters from each of the counties to report on new settlers and the results from the advertising campaign conducted by the state department are very encouraging.

In Renville county, an old settled section of the state, pieces of land have been bought by fifteen outsiders. Eleven of the new families have already arrived and the other four are coming in the fall.

Carlton county reports the heaviest sale of land for several springs. Two men from Michigan and one from North Dakota bought land this week.

Wilkin county reports 1,200 acres of land sold to new settlers this spring, mostly to immigrants.

BRINGS $100 PER ACRE.

Highest Price Ever Paid in Norman County for Land.

Ada, Minn., May 10. — The J. P. Rodgers Land company has closed a deal through their local office which is in charge of E. J. Heringer whereby they disposed of the Stuart farm of 390 acres adjoining this city to F. T. Hoppin of Clark county, South Dakota for a consideration of $100 per acre. This is the highest price that has been paid for any land in Norman county.

ASKS ABOUT INDIANS.

Prospective Minnesota Settler Writes for Information.

St. Paul, Minn., May 10.—Even down in Iowa some people have strange notions about Minnesota. Immigration Commissioner Maxwell got the following letter from Estherville, Ia.:

"Will you please send me information on homestead land in Minnesota and if there air no indians there. Please do this and oblige."

VEGETABLES NOT SO HIGH

Garden Produce Coming Upon the Local Market More Plentifully.

Strawberries Not Arriving—Butter and Eggs Are Still High.

The arrival from the South of larger quantities of vegetables than at any previous time this year, has been the principal development of the situation of the Duluth produce markets since a week ago. This, of course, is to be expected, as the season advances.

Floods on the lower Mississippi, while they have swept away vast quantities of hay, and made that staple very scarce and high, as the South has been obliged to buy Northern hay, do not seem to have had much effect on the movement of garden produce. About the only product of the South that is higher than it was a week ago, and of which there is a smaller quantity on the market, is strawberries. Local produce dealers thus far have not made a success financially of their strawberry deals. They have bought and paid for several cars of the berries, only to receive them in a damaged condition on account of the muggy weather, and have not been able to sell them at any such prices as will bring back the money paid out for them, to say nothing of profits. The demand for strawberries has been too slack and the quality too poor to warrant any further purchases for the present. Duluth dealers have decided to wait until there is a better chance to dispose of large quantities of them, and until they are in a better condition to keep, before buying any more. Produce dealers of Minneapolis, Chicago and other large cities have had the same bad fortune with strawberries as have the Duluth dealers.

Most of the Southern vegetables have eased off in price since a week ago. Cabbages are lower, a large crate, which at wholesale a week ago brought $5.50 now selling for $4.50. They are no longer coming from California, but the Florida product is now what is on the Duluth market. One is of about as good quality as the other. Florida new potatoes have declined from $3.25 to $3 a hamper. Texas onions are considerably lower. Wax beans, which a week ago were selling for $4.25 a bushel, now go for $4 a bushel.

Illinois rhubarb has declined from $1.35 per fifty-pound box to $1.10. Head lettuce, which a week ago was bringing $3 a bushel, is now selling for $2.50. Minnesota radishes are down from $1 to 75 cents per dozen bunches, hot-house cucumbers from $1.90 to $1.50 per dozen, and Minnesota green onions from 18 to 15 cents a dozen bunches. Minnesota asparagus is on the market at 50 to 75 cents a dozen bunches.

The old Spanish onions are no longer on the market. The Texas Bermudas and crystal wax onions are ample to supply the demand.

There are no more onion sets to be had, except those that are still in the hands of retailers. There was a tremendous demand for these this year. Farmers and gardeners have bought up nearly all that were offered for sale, and it is likely that the few that retailers have will soon be gone. The scarcity and high price of onions this spring caused quite a movement of the onion sets, as growers are eager to get onions on the market while the price is still high and the demand keen.

Florida tomatoes have not changed in price. They are of excellent quality and uncommonly cheap for this season of the year.

* * *

Potatoes are still very high by reason of the great Southern demand. Few wholesale produce dealers of Duluth are now letting them go for less than $1.15 per bushel.

* * *

Cranberries are almost gone. The price, however, is very steady.

The apple market is very steady. There are still plenty of fairly good apples to be had.

* * *

Pine-apples on the market are of good quality and the price is steady. The demand is not keen, however, and probably will not be until the weather is considerably warmer.

Oranges are of even finer quality than they were a week ago. Even the lower grade oranges are good. The price is the same as it was a week ago. It is about normal for this season of the year.

Lemons have not changed in price since a week ago, but it is expected that they will soon advance. California has had a short crop and the demand will increase greatly as soon as warm weather sets in.

The price of poultry is still strong, though fowls are now being brought upon the market by the farmers. There is a stronger demand for the frozen stored turkeys, on account of the increased transient trade of the hotels and boarding houses. It would not be surprising, however, if the price of fowls of all kinds should decrease after about a week. It depends on the rapidity with which the country people bring their poultry to the market. Other kinds of meat are the same as they were a week ago.

Creamery butter is a cent lower than it was a week ago. A few days ago, it had quite a break, but it recovered. It is thought, however, that the now fast-improving pasture lands will cause a break that will be a lasting one, in the near future.

Eggs are a cent lower than they were a week ago. The advance of spring has increased the supply of eggs, but they are still very high for this season of the year, now selling at 19 and 20 cents a dozen. They are very high for those who wish to buy large quantities of them to put away for packing, and it is feared that not many will be stowed away, and that a very large price will be charged next winter to make the packing venture a paying one.

TALK OF COLLEGES' SPIRITUAL NEEDS.

Toledo, Ohio, May 10.—That the state universities of the country have failed lamentably to minister to the spiritual wants of the 108,000 students seeking learning within their walls; that the churches have overlooked the richest fields of endeavor by neglecting to inspire and direct the religious thought of those higher educational institutions, and that the time is ripe for an aggressive, constructive campaign to reclaim these great seats of learning to the cause of religion, were the sentiments expressed by the annual convention of the Congregational Home Missionary society.

Rev. Richard C. Hughes of Madison, Wis., special secretary for state universities under the Presbyterian board of education; Rev. Carl S. Patton, for ten years pastor of the Congregational church at Ann Arbor, Mich., and at present associate pastor with Dr. Washington Gladden at Columbus, and Rev. R. H. Edwards, for the last six years university pastor at Madison, Wis., were speakers.

ELEPHANT PLAYS CRAPS.

Fort Worth, Tex., May 10.—Myrtle, a huge elephant with a small circus which is wintering in Fort Worth, broke up a crap game and caused terror among a dozen negroes here because she took the "bones" for sugar lumps.

The elephant was gazing through a hole in the wall at the negroes intent on their game. One black had just called "Come, seben!" when the trunk shot past him into the center of the group and seized one of the dice.

Frenzied yells and a general scattering followed. The negroes declared a snake leaped among them until shown the elephant.

YOUR HEALTH

The Most Important Thing in Your Life

Your health is the most important thing to you. Everything else depends on it.

Acute attacks of sickness, such as fevers, call for medical attendance and have their proper treatment. But it is not acute diseases that cause the most suffering, misery and unhappiness. It is the condition called debility, when the body is run down by overwork, overstudy, worry or excesses, that results in most of the time lost from work, in empty pay envelopes, badly kept homes, poorly cooked food, neglected children and unhappy families.

When you do not feel as well as usual, when no particular organ of the body seems to be at fault yet the whole system is out of order, when you are nervous, irritable, lack appetite, energy and ambition, it is a tonic that is needed. Strong medicines that stimulate certain organs, as the heart, stomach or kidneys, will not help your condition and may make it worse. Your whole system lacks tone and the remedy must be one that benefits the whole system.

No medicine is so exactly suited for such a run-down condition as a tonic for the blood. The blood reaches everywhere, penetrates practically every portion of the body and an improvement in its quality is quickly followed by a general improvement of the whole system. With this improvement the body gets increased power to fight off disease and to overcome and cast out any disease germs that have begun their destructive work. The best insurance against disease is rich, red blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best blood tonic. Improvement starts with the first dose. Soon the increased color in cheeks and lips shows that the thin blood is being enriched. This visible improvement in the blood is as quickly followed by increased appetite, by a return of energy and ambition and renewed vitality.

For that run-down condition, when other remedies have no effect and you have been continually growing worse and more hopeless, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills offer just the strength needed and you should certainly give them a thorough trial. They have cured others; they will surely benefit you.

Our booklet, "Building Up the Blood," will interest and help you. It is free on request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50c per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not act on the bowels. If you need a laxative write for a free sample of PINKLETS, the little pink laxative pills.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CASES TRIED AT CARLTON

Two Actions From Cloquet Are Disposed of in District Court.

A. H. Overman of Duluth Suing Brookstonite for Commission on Deal.

Carlton, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)— Four cases have been tried this week here. In the case of William Anderson vs. city of Cloquet the jury after a long deliberation returned a verdict of $500 in favor of the plaintiff. It was a personal injury case.

On Monday the slander case of Berta Klug vs. Peter Bellewicz of Cloquet came up for hearing. The plaintiff alleged that on Feb. 4, 1912, in Cloquet, the defendant attacked plaintiff's character. She being a housekeeper at the time, complained that owing to this slander she suffered in reputation to the extent of $500. The evidence in the cast was not printable and the jury gave plaintiff a verdict for $41.75.

The case of Mathilda Spearing of Carlton, as assignee of John Johnson vs. Bennett A. Beck as executor of the estate of Ingaberg Parrsen, deceased. This was an appeal from the probate court of Judge F. A. Watkins. The jury returned a verdict of $534.20 in favor of the plaintiff-respondent.

Overman Seeks Damages.

The case of Albert H. Overman vs. John F. Ryan is on trial. Plaintiff Overman, who lives in Duluth, sues to recover $500 commission, claimed for effecting a sale of the defendant's business at Brookston to Thomas Havri and Matt Meitunen for $11,020.50. Mr. Overman's complaint alleges that defendant promised to pay to plaintiff the sum of $500 as commission if he should obtain a purchaser for the property, but has neglected and refused to do so and that the services rendered were of the reasonable value of $500.

The defendant in his answer admitted that he sold the property, but denied that he had made any arrangement for paying commission, that Overman is a traveling salesman and that it is an established custom for drummers to find buyers for business places belonging to their customers when desired and not expect any commission and without cost to the owners or buyers, and that he relied upon that custom in this case and does not expect to pay any commission.

It is expected this case will occupy the court all of today.

SHELDON, N. D., PARK GETS RELIC FROM MAINE.

Sheldon, N. D., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—A six-inch shell taken from the sunken United States battleship Maine will soon adorn a pedestal which will be erected in the Sheldon city park. Congressman L. B. Hanna and Ed Pierce of this city have been successful in negotiating with the navy department for the relic. The shell was taken from one of the guns on the battleship, and it was secured for Sheldon after lengthy negotiations.

MILWAUKEE TRAIN JUMPS THE TRACK

One Is Killed and Several Are Injured Near Jackson, Minn.

Jackson, Minn., May 10.—One man was killed, another probably fatally hurt and several others seriously injured when a passenger train on the Southern Minnesota division of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, jumped the track and rolled down an embankment two miles east of here late yesterday. The dead:

FRANK KEATING, fireman of Austin, Minn.

The most seriously injured: John Moore, engineer of Austin, Minn., expected to die; John Wheldon, conductor of La Crosse, J. H. Carroll, passenger, of Minneapolis; news agent, agent, name unknown.

The injured were taken to Wells, Minn., where they are being cared for.

The wreck is said to have been caused by workmen engaged in cutting down an embankment leaving a quantity of earth on the track. The train, after leaving the rails, ran about 200 feet on the ties before turning over.

ALLEGED ILLEGAL ACTS AT POLLS

Well Known Grand Marais, Mich., Men Charged With Law-Breaking.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to alleged unscrupulous acts about polling places in Grand Marais, Mich., P. Leighton, supervisor, ex-deputy oil inspector, and political boss, is under arrest charged with fraudulently allowing the names of dozens of non-electors in the township to register as qualified electors. It is also charged that Leighton destroyed the township register of the township and made a new one omitting the names of many qualified electors.

Township Clerk Arrested.

William Davidson, township clerk, has been arrested on a similar charge and Levi Meilluer, county poor commissioner, has been taken into custody on a charge of registering a voter while it was known that the voter had not registered at any time in Burt township while Meilleur was acting as an inspector on the election board.

John Peterson, justice of the peace in Grand Marais, has also been arrested charged with bringing whisky into the polling place on election day and distributing it. Since these warrants have been issued the appointment of Paul Guinther as deputy sheriff has been revoked by Sheriff Conroy.

INSANE ASYLUM IS OVERCROWDED

Jamestown, N. D. Institution Must Be Enlarged to Accommodate Inmates.

Jamestown, N. D., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of the congested condition at the North Dakota asylum for the insane, located here, the board of control of state institutions will have to ask the next legislature for an exceptionally large building appropriation.

Scores of rooms intended for only one inmate, are taking care of two patients. Attics of several buildings, and basements of others, have been remodeled to make provision for the insane, and the situation is, as a result, quite serious.

There has not been a time, within the last decade, that the asylum has not been filled to capacity, and as the new buildings have been erected, there has been a constant increase in population, and the new buildings have been filled just as soon as completed. At the present time there are about 150 more inmates than there are accommodations for.

WILL MINE LIGNITE.

Minneapolis Parties to Develop North Dakota Property.

Dickinson, N. D., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new owners of the Consolidated Coal company's interests in the southeastern part of the state, will mine the property to full capacity. Charles A. Liddell and Andrew Liddell and S. S. Johnstone of Minneapolis are interested in the new venture. The property comprises about 160 acres, underlaid with a vein of lignite coal about twenty-three feet thick. The mine is accessable to the railroad, shipping facilities being very good.

RED RIVER LAND AT $32 PER ACRE

Senator Works of Mankato Sells 4,000 Acres at Record Price.

Crookston, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator S. D. Works of Mankato has disposed of 4,000 acres near Fosston which he purchased last December to J. P. Rogers & Co. of St. Paul for $128,310, an average of $32 per acre. This is the highest price paid for Red river land in such a large tract by any land dealer where the transaction was for spot cash. It is one of the best indications of the higher tone predicted in these dispatches some time ago. This is the last of the personal holdings of Senator Works in this section, though he has a half interest in a 6,500-acre tract owned at Beltrami by the Dayton company, and which he is developing now, having placed 500 head of cattle on it this spring.

A. E. Piffner of the First National Bank of Argyle refused an offer of $50 per acre for a farm near Argyle during a trip to Wisconsin and Illinois, from where he just returned. He says the great mistake made by land owners in the Red river valley is placing them on the market at so low a figure that owners of $100 and $150 an acre land in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and other states have been under the impression that something must be the matter or the price would be higher. He says prices are stiffening about Argyle and all over Marshall county, and that the demand was never so brisk. The demand is so strong for valley lands that the land agents of the states mentioned are all eager to list valley lands.

Changes Noted.

Dr. J. S. Chapin of the State Bank of Euclid, who was here yesterday, also noted the changed conditions. Three years ago the demand for loans on farms by the farmers was beyond the capacity of the bank to handle. This spring the farmers have fat deposits and the bank finds it impossible to place all its available money. The farmers don't need to borrow, as so many of them have money to loan.

This all tends to increase the price demanded for land. Much land that has been listed for the past few years has been withdrawn entirely and is not for sale.

John Maskell of Cambridge, Ill., who owns several farms about here, just arrived and has withdraw all his farms. Not one of these are for sale. He stated they would never be for sale till $100 an acre was offered. The perfect crop conditions will still further stiffen prices.

ONLY SPIRITUAL ADVISER.

Is Defense of Minister Sued for Alienating Woman's Affections.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 10.—Instead of robbing Dr. Fred Woodward of the affection of Mrs. Woodward, as charged, he did his best to patch up the domestic difficulties of the Woodwards, acting in his capacity as their spiritual adviser, Rev. J. T. Dow testified in District Judge John H Steel's court. The former pastor is defendant in a $25,000 alienation suit, brought by Dr. Woodward.

Rev. Mr. Dow testified that he had nothing to do with the separation of Mrs. Woodward from her husband. He said that in the fall of 1908 Mrs. Woodward called him to her home and told him her husband had locked himself in a room and announced he was going to kill himself. The woman is not going to be a witness in the case.

FISHWAYS FOR DAMS

Game Wardens Planning to Rigidly Enforce State Laws.

Pickerel and Suckers Are Thriving at Expense of Trout.

Deputy game wardens in this part of the state are making a consistent, united effort to have the scores of dams in this part of the state furnished with fishways.

They state that the use of these very necessary adjuncts of dams will be of inestimable aid in improving fishing conditions in upper Minnesota.

Every spring millions of fish run up the streams to deposit their spawn and are stopped when they reach the dams. They pile up until the waters of the stream are literally black with them. Heavy with spawn they are forced to deposit them wherever they can. At the foot of the dam they become food for suckers and pickerel. Those familiar with the facts say that this condition is responsible for the abundance of these less desirable fish in many streams and lakes.

If fishways were provided for the dams the fish, principally the walleyed pike and trout, would be able to make their way up them and continue up the stream to their natural spawning grounds. If they were able to do so there would be a corresponding increase of these much sought members of the finny tribe.

The majority of the dams have been built by the logging companies. Some of them have been in existence twenty or thirty years without fishways. Under the directions of the game wardens more have been put up in the last year than ever before, but scores yet remain to be constructed.

"I do not know of more important factors in improving the fishing than the construction of those fishways," said Deputy Game Warden G. H. Huseby today "Where you find dams without them you will almost invariably find a scarcity of pike and trout and an abundance of suckers and pickerel. They almost completely destroy the spawn and the other fish do not get a chance to breed. The other wardens and myself intend to enforce the law governing them wherever possible. Owners of dams without fishways will be served with notice to build them and if they fail to comply they will be obliged to face the penalty provided by law."

The state law requires all persons owning or controlling dams to erect and maintain fishways which will allow free passage for all fish inhabiting the waters obstructed. If such person does not comply with the notice served upon them the fishway may be built by the state and the cost recovered by civil action. Violation of any provision of the section is a misdemeanor.

NATIONAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PLANS LAID.

Chicago, May 10.—The executive committe of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, recently organized at a meeting held in Washington by invitation of President Taft, concluded a three-day session at the Union League club here last night.

In the plans for permanent organization the committee members decided that the chamber of commerce should proceed with its work free from any connection with the Federal government and without the representation of federal officers in its councils or management. Also it was decided that no government aid should be sought, and that whatever investigations were undertaken should be independent and at the expense of the chamber of commerce. However, it was detrmined that the body should co-operate with the government in every way possible wherever such co-operation was desired.

EPISCOPALIANS SCORE CATHOLICS

School Garb and Ne Temere Decree Are Subjects of Resolutions.

Washington, May 10.—The Catholic church is severely criticized here in resolutions adopted by the Washington Episcopal diocesan convention. The resolutions, which were presented by Rev. R. H. McKim of Washington, were directed especially against the wearing of religious garb in the Indian schools and against the Ne Temere decree, whereby the pope declared null and void mixed marriages performed by a Protestant clergyman.

TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY OF THE CONSTITUTION.

Philadelphia, May 10. — At a meeting here of a committee arranging for a historical pageant to be held in Fairmount park next October, it became known that President Taft and the governors of the thirteen original states have expressed their intention of attending the celebration of the 125th anniversary of the drafting of the Constitution of the United States. The observance of the anniversary will take place at Independence hall, and Chief Justice White of the supreme court of the United States will be the orator.

TELL OF WORK FOR NEGROES

African Mission Field Described at African Methodist Meeting.

Christian Methods Compared Unfavorably With Mohammedan.

Kansas City, Mo., May 10.—Preaching to an audience of ten to sixteen thousand persons every Sunday is his regular duty, accorling to the statement of Bishop J. Albert Johnson, a missionary in South Africa, who was on today's program of the African Methodist Episcopal church conference here.

"No church building would accommodate such enormous crowds," Bishop Johnson said. "The natives gather upon the summit of the large plateau by thousands on Sundays, and my sermons are made intelligible to them through interpreters. Only a small percentage of the natives are members of the church. They all clamor to be taken in, but their innate savagery and wild customs make the establishment of schools the first step in their conversion."

Mr. Johnson is a graduate of Harvard university and has been in the foreign missionary service since 1879.

Men Under Mohammedanism.

The African negro has become more of a man under the Mohammedan teachings than under Christian, according to Bishop C. S. Smith, who is attending the conference here. Bishop Smith has devoted many years to the study of his race in Africa, Haiti, San Domingo and Liberia.

Bishop Smith, in his address, said the methods of the Mohammedan teachers had a tendency to make the negro self-relant, whereas the Christian teachings made him a cringing nonentity. This was chiefly due, he said, to the fact that the white man caused the negro to look upon him as a master, while the Mohammedan teacher regarded him more as an equal and taught the negro to bow his head only to Allah.

Blames the Missionaries.

"I reached that painful conclusion," Bishop Smith said, "only after many years of painful research. Christianity fell short in Africa, not because of any fault in Christianity, but because the exponents of the religion of Christ who went among the negroes did not employ the proper methods. The negro looked upon the white man as his superior, and bowed to him as to a master. And the preachers encouraged that.

"Not so the Mohammedan. He bends his knee to no man; Allah above is his only master. There is no inequality in the religion of Mohammed. It constitutes the foundation of a real brotherhood, and no man is above his fellow."

The day's sessions were largely taken up with the presentation of reports, and their discussion and adoption. Among those acted upon were those of the educational and Sunday school department. The total receipts in the Sunday school department for the last four years were $148,805, an increase over the previous four years of $47,995.

OWES RECOVERY TO DULUTH WOMAN

Kimmel Submitted to Operation at Request of Mrs. W. P. Lardner.

According to dispatches from Chicago, Mrs. William P. Lardner of 1901 East Superior street, this city, is entitled to the credit for the restoration of George A. Kimmel's mind, which has recently been accomplished at Chicago through the aid of a surgical operation.

Kimmel or A. J. White as he is known to the Chicago police, three years ago wrote to the New York Life Insurance company and claimed that he was George A. Kimmel, whom his mother and uncle declared to be dead. He carried $25,000 insurance.

In an effort to establish his death, the matter was carried twice to the courts. The first attempt resulted in a mistrial, the jury disagreeing. The second jury declared that the so-called White was not Kimmel.

Kimmel strenuously objected to submitting to an operation until after he had learned that Mrs. Lardner, a child sweetheart of his, desired him to seek surgical treatment.

When Mrs. Lardner learned recently that Kimmel was going to Chicago, she asked a friend, Mrs. J. Maud Quigley, to attempt to induce him to submit to an operation. When Mrs. Quigley recalled his friendship for Mrs. Lardner, he consented, to enter a hospital.

Since Kimmel was operated upon, Mrs. Quigley has paid him frequent visits. He is recovering rapidly, according to his physicians.

Mrs. Lardner and Kimmel were boy and girl sweethearts and had it not been for old-time memories which have existed since she married Kimmel's youthful rival, Mr. Lardner, it is doubtful if the operation would have ever been performed.

Mrs. Lardner has no doubts as to Kimmel's identity. Mrs. Lardner said: "There is no doubt that the George Kimmel, who was operated on at Chicago is the same George Kimmel that Mr. Lardner and I knew when children at Niles, Mich., and that he is also the same Kimmel whom it is asserted is A. J. White.

"I remember the time of his supposed disappearance and really believed he was dead until three years ago, when one of the insurance companies induced us to visit the prison at Auburn, N. Y., where he was confined on some trifling charge, for the purpose of identifying him.

"We did not believe it could be he, and said so. The moment Mr. Lardner and I saw him, however, we knew it was George Kimmel, and when I went up and spoke to him, then I knew there could be no doubt of the fact."

NAGEL PRAISES BOTH TAFT AND ROOSEVELT.

Chicago, March 10.—Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor, was the principal speaker last night at the formal opening of the new building of the Hamilton club on Dearborn street. Mr. Nagel compared the respective merits of the Taft and Roosevelt administrations without alluding to the present contest.

"The last administration and the present administration," he said, "undoubtedly dovetail into each other. Large projects, started by the last administration, have been carried out successfully by the present administration. Popular government is one that appeals to the masses. Both of the administrations I have referred to have been exceedingly popular."

MAY TEACH WIRELESS IN CHICAGO SCHOOLS.

Chicago, May 10. — With the approval of Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of Chicago's schools, the school management has adopted a recommendation urging the teaching of wireless telegraphy in the public schools. The committee voted to authorize the installation of the first wireless equipment at the Lakeview high school, upon the request of the Principal Benjamin F. Buck. The Titanic disaster, it is said, has caused hundreds of boys in city high schools to petition for instruction in wireless telegraphy.

Schmitz, has issued a writ of mandamus directing Superior Judge Lawlor to dismiss the remaining indictments against Schmitz, or to appear May 27 and show cause for not having done so. The writ, which was served immediately on Judge Lawlor, was issued on the allegation of Schmitz's counsel that Schmitz had been denied a hearing on the indictments for a period exceeding sixty days, thereby infringing his constitutional rights.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

BRUCE'S COLUMN

COMMENT AND DIVERS DISCUSSION OF THE MERRY WORLD OF SPORT.

TRUST Kid McCoy to be original. The life of the former fighter reads like a romance from the pen of a Jack London or a Rex Beach. McCoy has fought, has mingled with crooks and pulled some stuff that leered at the law. He has driven racing cars and has faced the supercilious gaze of society, playing the role of the social bounder. He has done most everything, with his small eyes always turned toward the fair countenance of the lady on the dear dollar. Now he comes forth with the announcement that training in airships is the best mode of preparation for fighters—for some, yes.

Not so many days ago there was a man in our merry midst who helped donate the first purse that Kid McCoy ever fought for. This man befriended McCoy, sparred with him and in every way was what might be called a pal to the man who resembled a bank clerk or a man with one pedal in the vestibule of death.

One day this chap sparred with McCoy and the kid nearly caused several undertakers to sit up all night in the effort to get the business. Competition was very keen in those days, as people were very healthy and automobiles had not come in general use.

But, anyway, the kid just about murdered his friend. There you have the combination of his character. He is as cold as the Danes were the day they discovered that Dr. Cook was coming back to their country for more recommendations and local color. McCoy would just as soon pick a friend as one of those Virginia Allens would show enthusiastic inclination over depopulating a judicial district.

One night in Noo York—ask Clarence—he ran into a young college man and started to pick a fight, intending to slam him quick, just for the sake of practice and gay diversion. This is one of the few times McCoy had one slipped over on him. The college man was a football player; instead of coming in standing up and making a nice target of his jaw, he dived at the "shoe strings," as Coach Yost commands, and he brought the fighter to the floor. With the going to his liking the football man gave the kid an artistic pummeling—one of the kind they learn at college.

At the age and time of ripe domestic experience when most men are dodging trouble at home, wearing carpet slippers, cursing chiropodists, falling to sleep after dinner and snoring most terribly and making sly and exceedingly rank remarks about wifey's pudding, Kid McCoy came back and took up the strenuous burden of the white race—fighting some very creditable battles.

Now he has sprung his gag about training in airships, has decided to take to the lecture platform, has stated that he has invented a wonderful system of deep breathing—and also says he is perfectly happy with his eighth chance in the matrimonial gamble.

One remarkable man, is this McCoy.

THERE is some class to the way they have doing things, baseballically speaking, in the town of Wausau. Yesterday we received an invitation to attend the opening of the home season at Wausau, when the new $15,000 baseball grounds will be dedicated. The invitations sent out are inscribed on fine paper and the printing is of the very best. Enclosed with the invitation to come along and share in the doin's is a schedule of the home games.

When the citizens of a little town are so public spirited that they will ante the jackpot to the tainted tune of those lofty thousands, it is time that they are given credit for their sporting spirit. Right here is where we make a flying leap for the near step of the band wagon and give due credit to the booster boys of the lumber town.

OUT Colorado Springs way they met Jim Flynn at the train with a band, a string of auto wagons, the mayor, all of the boys of the Five O'clock club, and some special brand of Colorado cheer. While the gang in the high altitude territory is brave and they have some good sports, some of us can't get over the belief that the boys are aware of the fact that before the fight is the only time that there will be any chance to do the right thing for the native son.

After the Las Vegas junket it may be that James will avoid Colorado on the rebound. They have a lot of enthusiasm and real estate out Colorado direction, and every so often, if you read the papers, you will notice that they have ructions and rallies of various sorts. Wishing to do Flynn honor and show they admired his nerve, as we all do, though we don't understand it, the meet-him-at-the-station soiree was planned and carried out with the Western spirit and red fire that has furnished material and subsequently rich royalties for several red blood novelists.

At that, when the last gun has been fired, we are for the West all the time.

WHEN they are talkin' of their three-cornered rowing races and including in the plans and printed matter the names of some of the prominent coaches of the East, that effete section of our land wherein rooms the longhorn with the intense ego, why not bring Jimmy Ten Eyck into the picture?

James has his nice new shell and will be rowing around the bay these days when the smiles of Sol have taken the sting out of the congealed atmosphere. In his days at school, and he had not reached his prime then, he was rated one of the fastest amateur oarsmen in the country. Now he is going to go out and see what is left of the old kick, and maybe, ask the little bird, he will be there this fall with some speed stuff to paddle out for shekel seeking.

THIS schedule of the Central International league is a thing of artistic and beautiful conception. On the one date they have both Grand Forks and Superior playing at Winnipeg, while on that festive occasion Duluth is supposed to play at Grand Forks. Maybe the White Sox are going to do battle with the Sleepy Hollows, Happy Hooligans or Joyful Juniors, while both Grand Forks and Superior divide the date at the Peg. On another date both Duluth and Grand Forks are supposed—see schedule—to be at Superior. This is rather severe punishment to inflict upon two teams at the same time. But the schedule maker wasn't given much time and these slight errors of time and geography may be straightened out by some traffic man.

THEY say you can't keep a good man down, or his name out of public discussion, which, August, in the end amounts to practically the same thing. At the Methodist gathering, now in serious session in Minneapolis, an aged negro orator of Galveston, Tex., rose in dark delight and proceeded to tell that the champeon of the world dug jeanward for the wherewithal to send her to the gathering of the church clan.

While we don't want to be low down and nasty about this traffic favor of Artha's, it would not be at all surprisin' if Lil' Artha slipped the suggestion, along with the duty kale, to kind of mention the little fact. Like the late Carrie Nation and P. T. Barnum, both great in their way and day, John Artha Johnson believes in advertising.

Martin Canole has been dug up for Packey McFarland. Jimmy Britt goes for Knockout Brown. Let us see—Mike Schreck, Marvin Hart and a few of the rest of the boys are out of work at the present time, and they need the money, too, for their habits are of the manner that take no cognizance of the morrow, a feature of bad boys and Sunday school books.

JEFFERSONS WILL PLAY PROCTOR

Sunday the strong Jefferson baseball team will journey to Proctor and open the season there. Up at the railroad center plans have been made to make this a banner event. A brass band will enliven the festivities and the usual inaugural exercises will be gone through with including the heaving of the first ball in the general direction of the plate by the president of the village.

Manager Swenson of the Jeffersons has just about selected his team for the season and he says that he has some of the best baseball talent in the city. It is expected that the men playing in the game against Proctor will be the permanent lineup of the Jeffersons for the present season.

Following is the lineup:

Baker, c; Danielson and Knox, p; Blaski, 1b; Landfield, 2b; Oplund, ss; Hanson, 3b; Anderson, lf; Olund and Swanson, cf; Kildiee, rf.

COAST THINKS WELL OF BOUT

San Francisco, Cal., May 10.—The matching of Ad Wolgast with Joe Rivers is joyful news to the fans of the Pacific coast. The boxing game out here at the present time is suffering from lack of good material. Most of the prominent boxers nowadays do not care to box in 20-round bouts and shun the coast cities, which were once the Mecca for every rising pugilist.

The short-distance bouts, where speed and skill count for more than brute strength are far more popular in the East with the present knights of the mitt. Hence the reason for the boxers' desertion of the coast. With the advent into the game of brainy men it is becoming more and more difficult to secure the best talent for the long distance bouts popular in California.

The recent middle weight elimination tournament at San Francisco was not much of a success either in developing the long-looked for champion or in the sport furnished by the contests. The fans refused to take the bouts seriously and did not turn out in large numbers. It was the general opinion that none of the men possessed much class, and when Frank Klaus and Eddie McGoorty failed to agree on terms for the final bout, little regret was expressed. McGoorty did not get a chance to show his quality, but from all accounts Klaus was a disappointment.

Abe Attell is still in San Francisco, probably because of the edict of the boxing commission, which bars him from boxing in New York. With the characteristic allegiance of Californians to a "native son" the fans still believe in him, despite his recent defeats. There is no first-class man to match him with, however, and he will have to take on second-raters or remain idle. It is said that Attell's loss of the championship has broken him up and that he gives little time to matters pugilistic.

SMITH BEATEN BY JIM STEWART

Referee Indicates Winner and Surprise Is Expressed at Decision.

New York, May 10. — Jim Stewart of Brooklyn defeated Gunboat Smith of California in a ten-round bout at the National Sporting club last night. Smith weighed 176½ and Stewart 210½ pounds. At the end of the tenth, Referee Haley walked to Stewart's corner and raised Stewart's left arm, the method in vogue of indicating a winner when decisions are permitted. It is generally understood that in this manner the referee would render a decision and it was accepted as such.

Stewart had the better of the opening round and the second was even. In the third Smith landed a right swing on the jaw and Stewart went down, but was up in a second.

Stewart landed some heavy right smashes on the head in the seventh and had Smith staggering at the bell.

In the last three rounds Stewart used his left effectively.

Considerable surprise was expressed that an attempt should be made to give a decision contrary to the orders of the Athletic association. Frank O'Neill, one of the two members of the commission, seemed taken back when informed of what had occurred. He said: "While giving a decision, such as I have been informed was done, is not in violation of the Frawley law, it is a violation of our rules and I have decided to place the whole matter before Attorney General Carmody immediately."

LOCAL CRACK SHOTS WILL OPEN THE SEASON

The biggest and best grand opening shoot ever held by the Northwestern Gun club, will be held at the club's grounds on the Pike Lake road, Sunday.

For weeks the preparation for the inaugural event has been going on. The officers of the hustling organization are out to make this affair far outstrip anything ever attempted by the club, and if the weather behaves it is expected that the day will be one long remembered by the members of the N. W. G. C.

Wives, sweethearts and friends of the members are cordially invited to be on hand. There will be refreshments and several forms of diversion for those who do not shoot. For the active members of the club the grand opening shoot of the season is going to be the big attraction.

Members of the Central Gun club are going to be present and help make the occasion a huge success. Shooters from the range and the nearby towns have received cordial invitations to be present.

For the past few years the Northwestern Gun club has flourished here, bringing back into popularity the sport of target and trap pigeon shooting. Its membership has grown with the flight of the seasons until now it stands as one of the most prosperous and one of the most successful gun clubs in the Northwest.

Each season the grand opening has been an event eagerly looked forward to by the members of the club and the friends of the members. The opening day starts the season off with the right kind of enthusiasm and "peels the eye" of the old boys who have oiled the old gun and laid her on the shelf for the winter. The opening grand shoot is expected to bring to the firing line the crack shots of the club and also to furnish the best opening program that the club has ever put on.

The invitations to the season's house warming read "Come early and avoid the rush."

Duluth won from Superior at Hislop park yesterday by the score of 11 to 2. Worman was on the hill for the locals and had little trouble with the motley crew of the suburbanites. Rhodes essayed to pitch for the Red Hose and the result proved quite disastrous for the home grown rooters.

Rhodes threw the ball away to get Erickson off second, thec atcher scoring. McGraw singled and Menelce hit to Willey who threw to the plate and missed the play on Kuhn. Leber's single scored McGraw.

WORK PROGRESSING ON OATKA TENNIS COURTS.

Work is progressing rapidly on the two new tennis courts at Oatka. While no definite date has been set for the completion of the courts it was stated today that it was believed that they would be in shape for play some time next month. The completion of the two new courts will give the boat club four of the best tennis courts in the Northwest at the Oatka beach.

It is expected that the tennis season at the club will be started the present week. The two courts at Oatka and the cement courts at the main house are in readiness. Unfavorable weather conditions have prevented an early opening of the season.

ILLINOIS HAS STARTED FIGHT

Champaign, Ill., May 10.—The senate of the University of Illinois taking action on the conference situation, assailed the amateur tradition with iconoclastic hands. Taking money in athletic contests does not necessarily imply that the player is a professional declared the body. Important recommendations made by a special committee of faculty members headed by Dr. David Kinley, dean of the graduate school will be presented to the "Big Eight" in the hope of clearing up the troubled skies. These recommendations are to be withheld at present, out of courtesy to the other institutions. Dean Kinley, however, gave out this statement:

"They make it clear that a revision of the conference rules is very desirable so that present inducements to deceit on the part of students concerning violations of the amateur rule shall be removed as far as possible. The senate took the position that receipt of money by a student in an athletic contest is not necessarily proof of absence of amateur spirit, nor is participation in games in which professionals happen to play. A committee on eligibility should be constituted to consider the cases of all students who are to play on athletic teams and decide whether as a matter of fact the spirit of amateurism has been violated by any act of the proposed participant. It is proposed that this committee shall have complete and final authority over all questions of eligibility instead of letting such matters be decided as now by the individual institution against whom players protests happen to be made. In the opinion of the members of the university senate such an arrangement will give more uniformity in policy and result in fairer treatment to all concerned."

"It is felt that the plan proposed and approved by the senate will remove most of the irritation which has come about due to the existing rules dealing with summer baseball. Further, it will remove the occasion for disqualification of players for petty violations occurring before the student entered college."

"Some recommendations will also be made to remove the evils caused by 'soft jobs' in the employ of institutions or organizations under their authority.

"The question of withdrawal from the conference was regarded as a dead issue and was not even discussed, said Dr. Kinley. "We will remain inside and fight out the battle for honesty."

ROSE BETTERS RECORD.

Big Shot-Putter Sets New World's Mark in Practice.

San Francisco, Cal., May 10.—In the opinion of athletic experts, Ralph Rose assurd his place on the American team to the Olympiad, when in practice yesterday, he put the sixteen-pound shot 52 feet 1 inch, exceeding his record by 1 foot, 1 inch. The feat will not become a record because it is unofficial. In view of the fact that the left-handed shot put is expected to figure in the Olympic records, Rose is practicing with that hand and is consistently putting a distance of 43 feet.

Clarence Edmondson of the Seattle Athletic club is another picked by the experts to make the American team. In an unofficial trial he has run the half mile in 1:56 3-5.

The first tryouts for the team will be held on Stanford oval, May 18.

FAMOUS THREE-YEAR OLDS AT LOUISVILLE.

Louisville, May 10.—At least seven and possibly ten famous three-year-olds will face the barrier in the classic Kentucky derby at Churchill Downs tomorrow. Indications are that the field will be composed of the following horses, with the weight, jockeys and odds on them to win, as indicated, being offered today:

Worth, 117, S. H. Shilling, 13 to 5.
The Manager, 117, T. Koerner, 8 to 1.
Sonada, 117, J. Henry, 15 to 1.
Free Lance, 117, C. Peak, 8 to 1.
Wheelwright, 117, J. Byrne, 4 to 1.
Flamma, 112, J. Loftus, 15 to 1.
Sir Blaise, 117, J. Callahan, 20 to 1.
Guaranola, 117, G. Molesworth, 30 to 1.
Duval, 117, O. Fain, 20 to 1.
Patruche, 110, R. Goose, 30 to 1.

Koehler vs. Ferns.

Kansas Mo., May 10.—Paul Koehler of Cleveland, Ohio, who claims to hold a newspaper decision over Ray Bronson of Indianapolis, and Clarence ("Wildcat") Ferns, will meet here tonight in a ten-round bout before the Grand Avenue Athletic club. They will weigh in at 6 o'clock, making 142 pounds. Betting is at even money. Koehler and Ferns fought a ten-round draw here three months ago.

Wolgast vs. McFarland.

San Francisco, Cal., May 10.—Tom Jones, manager for Ad Wolgast, says that he will accept the offer of the Garden A. C. of New York to guarantee the lightweight champion a purse of $15,000 for a ten-round bout with McFarland, on condition that McFarland weigh in at 133 pounds three or four hours before the bout. Jones said his only open date was June 1, and that he had wired the club to that effect.

Boys Have Fast Bout.

Columbus, Ohio, May 10.—Danny Goodman of Chicago and Grover Hayes of Columbus fought ten fast rounds here last night. The Columbus man had the advantage in two rounds and lost slightly in one, the other seven being close.

A Triple Unassisted.

Houston, Texas, May 10.—Roy Aiken, third baseman of the Waco club of the Texas league, retired the Houston club team in the first inning of yesterday's game with a triple play unassisted. With runners on second and third base, the Houston batsman punted for a "squeeze" play. He punted the ball high. The runner from third raced toward home and the man at second came to third, but Aiken caught the bunt, tagged the man from second and touched third base before the man who attempted to score could get back.

WATERWAY BILL PASSED

Senate Adds $8,000,000 to Appropriations Made By the House.

Minority Report Made on Ainsworth Case By Prince of Illinois.

Washington, May 10.—The rivers and harbors appropriation bill has been passed by the senate, amended to carry $8,000,000 more than as passed by the house and making a total of about $34,000,000.

The principal increase was $2,500,00 to the house provision of $3,500,000 for improving the Mississippi. The relation of that item to the flood situation caused a long debate which took up most of yesterday's session. The balance of the increase made by the senate was composed mainly of smaller amounts, principal among them being Nantucket sound, $250,000; Jamaica bay, $500,000; Alleghany river, $300,000; Delaware river, $500,000; Cape Lookout, $200,000; St. Marys river, $200,000; Chicago harbor, $350,000; Ohio river near Cairo $250,000; Los Angeles harbor, $327,250.

Senator Burton took positive ground against resumption of plans for the improvement of the Missouri. If the movement were to lower railroad rates, he thought the interstate commerce commission might accomplish that result.

Secretary Stimson Defended.

A strong defense of Secretary Stimson and an attack on the majority of the house military affairs committee for its report on the circumstances which led to the retirement of Adjt. Gen. Ainsworth after a threatened courtmartial are contained in a report submitted to the house by the minority members of the committee.

The minority report declared that the majority exceeded its authority and framed a report containing "intemperate statements," and it was signed by Representative Prince of Illinois.

The minority report held that the committee exceeded its jurisdiction in reviewing the conduct of Gen. Ainsworth.

"What would become of the discipline of our fighting force if congress or its committees should deem themselves free to take up cudgels against the commander-in-chief on behalf of an officer whom he had disciplined?" demanded the report. "We submit that the majority report on its face shows itself to be a wholly unconstitutional attempt to assert powers not within the jurisdiction of this committee."

In conclusion the minority report upheld the conduct of Secretary Stimson toward Gen. Ainsworth.

Sees No Unfairness.

"A consideration of the entire case," it concluded, "makes it clear to us that the adjutant general was not unfairly treated. There was no garbling of evidence or distortion of language. On the contrary, the record shows that the secretary of war went to almost the extreme of leniency. While we regret that a long and faithful service should have terminated under a cloud, the officer, who virtually admitted his fault by his unwillingness to submit his conduct to a court composed of his peers, cannot now complain of being badly treated."

After Newspaper Union.

Representative Taggart, Democrat, of Kansas, introduced a resolution directing the judiciary committee to investigate the Western Newspaper union, with headquarters at Omaha, to learn if it operates in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law as a combination in restraint of trade, or is attempting to monopolize trade. A similar resolution directing an inquiry into the affairs of the concern was introduced several weeks ago.

AMUSEMENTS

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—"Excuse Me."
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

"EXCUSE ME" AT THE LYCEUM

Hilarious Farce Delights Big Audience at Opening Performance.

"Excuse Me" is a laugh mill. Its sole object is to bring to the surface latent and unsuspected roars of mirth, and it scores. A crowd of Duluthians that filled the Lyceum last night, forgot business cares, domestic troubles, the futility of life and other worries to follow the course of the rollicking farce and join in the peals of laughter that radiated over the house from the moment the curtain went up on the first act until it descended on the finale.

Keenly satirical of the people one sees on Pullman cars wherever he may go, the farce doesn't attempt to teach any great moral lesson or leave any food for calm reflection. It is amusement—pure, unadulterated, wholesome amusement. The action is fast, the lines mirth-provoking, the characters typical and the scenes familiar.

The first scene shows the interior of a Pullman car on a San Francisco limited train leaving Chicago. An Englishman, a broken-hearted "souse" bound for Reno, a minister and his wife off on a vacation, a grouchy bachelor, a spinster missionary, two divorcees-to-be of whom one is the "souse's" wife, and the porter are introduced before an army captain and an eloping maiden, who had been unable to get married before catching the train, rush on the scene.

Preparations had been made for the elopers in the expectation that they would be married when they arrived. The army officer was sure they would be a minister on the train. There was, but he had doffed his ministerial garb and flashed a red necktie that was anything but ministerial.

Complications ensue. The "bride" and "groom" quarrel each night and make up each morning; the grouchy bachelor and the spinster find in each other old sweethearts and arrange a marriage on the train during a five-minute stop at Ogden; the "souse" becomes reconciled to his cigar-smoking wife; an old sweetheart of the "groom" appears and the "bride" makes things warm for him; a Pomeranian poodle, owned by the "bride" is the bane of the conductor's life and causes the stopping of the train when the "bride" thinks the dog has disappeared. During a holdup, the minister is revealed in his true colors and there is a second marriage on the train as the curtain descends.

Willis P. Sweatnam of "George Washington, Jr.," memory is the porter with a sense of humor. He has a "fat" part, but it doesn't begin to overshadow the action and the other characters. There is no star in the company. It is well balanced from the porter to the dog. Ann Murdock, as the "bride" is an exaggeration of the "leaning" type of fussy womanhood, and furnishes most of the complications. Her characterization is perfect. Sidney Greenstreet as Jimmie Wellington, the "souse" doesn't overdo the part, but gets the most out of the many good comedy situations. Every member of the company seems to have caught the spirit of the farce and to make the most of the laugh-making opportunities.

"Excuse Me" is a refreshing innovation in stage productions. In furnishing amusement it is serving the primary purpose of the theater. The man who hasn't had a laugh in months and thinks he has none in his system, will be disillusioned by seeing it. The chronic laugher will find new heights of mirth to be attained. It has a laugh for everybody, and everybody in the theater last night seems to have had his share. "Excuse Me" doesn't need any excuses.

"Excuse Me" will be at the Lyceum tonight and tomorrow for matinee and night performances.

Incidentally it might be mentioned that the company isn't a "road troupe" but is the New York cast complete, and a Henry Savage production, which is a guarantee that there has been no cutting down of expenses for the departure from Broadway.

Amusement Notes.

Only two more weeks remain of the Duluth Orpheum season, but judging from the bookings received by Manager Billings they will be two of the biggest weeks of the entire season. The Orpheum evidently intends to wind up the season in a blaze of glory, for some of the biggest attractions on the circuit are booked for next week and the week following.

For next week the headline attraction for the opening week of the Duluth theater, will return. It is the musical comedy, the "Leading Lady," with Miss Marguerite Haney featured in the act. This was one of the most popular headline acts ever seen in the theater and it has been added to and improved since its last appearance here. There are ten people in the company presenting it. The bill for next week also includes Ray L. Royce, the Five Piroscoffis, Flanagan and Edwards, Henry and Francis, Brown and Newman, and Honors and le Prince.

For the closing week of the season Belasco's "Madame Butterfly" will be the headliner. This is the most talked of act on the Orpheum circuit at the present time, having been but recently produced. It is one of two playlets produced for the Orpheum circuit by Mr. Belasco, the other being "The Drums of Oude."

This week's bill is proving a popular one and the audiences have been steadily growing since Monday night, as the fame of the performance spreads. There will be three more performances, tonight and tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow night.

With the second performance tomorrow evening Mercedes, the wonderful young man whose feats in mental telepathy have completely mystified the patrons of the Empress this week, will close his engagement. Beyond question the performance of Mercedes is the most remarkable of any ever seen at the Empress. Sullivan & Considine have sent several exponents of mental telepathy to the Empress, but the performance by Mercedes is by far the most mysterious and finished performance of anyone who has ever appeared in this theater. Commencing with the matinee on Sunday, the Empress will present another excellent bill of vaudeville. The headline attraction for the week will be the fantastic musical comedy production, "The Broomstick Witches," with Miss Dorothy Homer and Messrs. Dubard and Fuller in the leading roles. This attraction is reported as being one of the best musical comedy sketches touring the Sullivan & Considine circuit this season. The playlet contains a wealth of comedy, tuneful music, graceful dances, pretty girls, elaborate scenic and lighting effects and gorgeous costumes. During the action of the playlet several of the latest song hits will be introduced. Maxwell and Dudley will present their artistic playlet, "For Sweet Charity." This playlet comes highly recommended and should prove a favorite during its coming engagement. Greeve and Freen, comedy musical artists; Mae and Eddi Shaw, singers and dancers, and Chief Ok-Ko-Mon, a genuine Indian chief, and graduate of Carlisle will complete the list of attractions for the week.

HE DISCLOSES THE WHOLE GAME

Senator Bailey Admits the Alliance to Defeat Governor Wilson.

Washington, May 10. — Senator Joseph W. Bailey, who is unquestionably the leader as well as the ablest of those conducting the allied campaign to prevent the nomination of Governor Wilson, has disclosed the whole game, making ridiculous the denial that there is alliance to prevent the nomination of the New Jersey governor. This he did last week in a speech at McKinney, Tex., where he was campaigning in behalf of an instructed delegation for Governor Harmon.

Senator Bailey not only admitted the alliance, but justified it, as the following utterance by him shows: "I must reply to the frequent charge that Underwood, Clark and Harmon are in a joint conspiracy to defeat Governor Wilson. My countrymen, whenever you find three Democrats like them making common cause against a fourth you may be sure that the fourth ought to have common cause made against him. It is true that in some states Clark has been given the field against Wilson, in others Harmon has been given the field; in still others Underwood has been given the field. And I suppose you have heard from Georgia and Florida in the last few days. (Cheers.) That's no crime, neither is it a combination in restraint of political ambition. Wilson represents a departure from Democratic principles and it is just as fair to see whether he could get a majority in the Democratic states or not.

"He hasn't carried a majority in a Democratic state yet, and he will not carry one. He is a Southern man and yet he has not carried a Southern state that has held a primary, and I don't believe he will. It is not the man; it is the politics and the principles he advocates. I do not hesitate to say that I would vote for Harmon, Clark or Underwood, either or all of them, to defeat Wilson."

He had attempted suicide before in a similar manner, but was picked up unhurt.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

MAYOR ROYAL of Harrisburg, Pa., and the board of health were notified by State Commissioner of Health Dixon that ice was being cut along the river front near the sewer outlets. The notice was paramount to an order to have the work stopped, owing to the danger of contamination of the ice. The ice that was being cut was so close to the sewer that the sanitary engineers of the state health department say that had it been used for drinking purposes there would have been grave danger to the health of the users. At the board of health offices it was said that the police regulations of the city would be called upon to stop the cutting of the ice near the shore.

Duluth has ample powers to cope with similar conditions here. The health department has control of the regulations governing the cutting of ice, and has made good use of them in past winters. Different concerns have been notified to stop taking ice near sewer outlets and no ice can be cut in the lake within 500 feet of the shore. The matter came up this winter and Dr. L. J. Murphy said that the danger of typhoid fever, the chief danger from impure water, is not great. He stated that scientific investigations have shown that the bacilli cannot live more than two weeks in ice and that most of them cannot exist that long.

LET WOMEN VOTE IN EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Durham, N. C., May 10.—After a heated discussion, the ninety-sixth diocesan convention of the Episcopal church in North Carolina adopted a constitutional amendment giving women the right to vote on church questions. The action ended a fight waged at previous conventions and constitutes a change which, it is said, will have an effect in other dioceses of the church in this country.

Woman's Realm

The support and aid of the Woman's council, both as a body and as individual members, will be used to help pass the proposed ordinance for the suppression of the sale and use of narcotic drugs which will be presented at the meeting of the common council next Monday night.

A resolution to ask for the enforcement of the city ordinance prohibiting the spitting on sidewalks, and for the posting of signs to this effect on the streets; a resolution to agitate the question of the kinds of pavements to be put down on the streets and avenues of this city; the adoption of resolutions condemning the trampling on the American flag and thanking the woman who rescued it; the discussion of social center work and other matters of interest to the council were also matters of importance in the regular meeting of the council which was held this morning at the clubroom of the public library.

A letter from Courtenay Dinwiddie, secretary of the Associated Charities of this city, asking for the support of the council and the display of individual interest in the matter of passing the ordinance which will in a large measure restrict the use of narcotic drugs, and which should prove of great value in the fight against their use, was read by Mrs. W. H. Burris, who presided at the meeting, and the women of the council, after the reading of the proposed ordinance, voted their indorsement of it, and recommended that all women interested lend their influence to its passage by writing personal letters either to Charles Hoar, president of the common council, or C. J. Hector, chairman of the committee on ordinances, and by attending the meeting of the council Monday evening and voicing their views on the subject.

Prohibit Spitting.

The prevalence of the disregard for the ordinance prohibiting spitting on the sidewalks and in the cars of this city was the subject of a warm discussion by Mrs. T. H. Hawkes of the streets and alleys committee. The city was greatly condemned by visitors for this habit, it was stated, and the dirty condition of the street cars was especially mentioned as a source of criticism by visitors in the city. The council voted to authorize Mrs. Hawkes to write letters to those in charge asking that conditions be remedied.

It was suggested that the placing of printed signs prohibiting the spitting on sidewalks with the amount of the fine for such offense be printed in both English and Swedish and be placed on every street corner, and Mrs. Hawkes was instructed to write this request to the city council, and also to ask the co-operation of the police department in enforcing this law.

Miss Grace Holmes, one of the new St. Louis county tuberculosis sanitarium at Nopeming, made an effective talk on this subject, presenting the matter from the side of health. "When I came to this city about a month ago," she said, "I was convinced that it was one of the dirtiest cities I had ever seen. This habit of spitting on the sidewalks is a serious menace to your city and a great danger to public health and should be prohibited absolutely."

Street Paving.

The women decided to agitate public sentiment against the laying of more hard paving in this city, such as bricks and sandstone blocks, urged the study of the matter that paving that will be satisfactory may be used. A committee from the council will attend the common council meetings to give their side of the matter when the subject of paving Fourth street shall be brought up.

Desecration of Flag.

The following resolution was adopted in regard to the recent disrespect shown the American flag in New York and its rescue by Miss Caroline Dexter:

"Whereas, The American flag, the flag of our country, was hissed, torn down and trampled upon by a body of men in New York city, May 1, 1912, be it

"Resolved, That the body of club women of Duluth, know as the woman's council, do most heartily condemn this desecration of our beloved flag and a vote of thanks is extended to Miss Caroline Dexter who rescued it."

Amusement Committee.

Mrs. Harriet L. Carey reported for the amusement committee that steps would be taken by this committee to discourage the holding of a carnival in West Duluth during the week of July 4, because of demoralizing effects and urged the council to continue its protesting against the licensing of certain dance halls and skating rinks. Three theaters of this city where objectionable features have been found during the past month were mentioned and the Orpheum and Lyric theaters were commended for the cleanness of their performances.

Mrs. Carey reported the appointment of Mrs. A. A. Kerr of this city to a place on the National Board of Censorship of moving pictures by the national chairman of that board.

Social Center Work.

The social center work of the council which has been taken up at the Salter school was reported by Mrs. Kerr. The work she stated was of course being carried on along experimental lines but was proving most satisfactory as far as taken up.

She said that in addition to the folk dancing class established at the Salter school under the direction of Mrs. Helen Shores Savage which was attended by fifty-six girls who were actually in the class at the last meeting last Tuesday evening and by 125 people in all; that the council had provided equipment for basket ball for that school and the school board had installed this equipment for them in the assembly hall of the Salter school where the boys were given the use of it on Tuesday nights under the social center night and the boys of the school used it the rest of the time.

She also spoke of the formation of a young men's association by a group of young men of various ages and interests of that community, which also took place last Tuesday evening and she said that the future of this club promises to be broad and far-reaching as various clubs and classes will be formed by its members. The organization of this club will be perfected at a meeting next Tuesday evening.

Poor Farm.

Mrs. F. L. Barrows made a plea for literature, chairs, out-of-door seats, garden plants and seeds, a phonograph, needles and records for the poor farm and said that she would attend to their delivery at the farm.

Other routine business was transacted.

Sister of Mrs. Frank Gould Is In Chorus of "Rose Maid."

ETHEL KELLY.

Ethel Kelly takes a minor part in "The Rose Maid" production in New York for the first time this week, yet there is no one on the stage in whom the audience takes a livelier personal interest. For everyone "in front" knows that Miss Kelly is the sister of Mrs. Frank Gould. She was, like her sister, a chorus girl for a long time. Recently she has been traveling with her sister and her brother-in-law in Europe. But she tired of a life of inaction and so she enlisted in "The Rose Maid" forces. "The Rose Maid" is a new Viennese opera, tuneful and pretty, which is having its first production in New York this week.

CLOSE YEAR.

Cecilians Elect Officers and Hear Program.

Election of officers, a delightful program and a social hour closed the year's work of the Cecilian society at the meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. A. Marvin, 123 West Third street. Those who will fill the offices next year are: Mrs. G. W. C. Ross, president; Miss Josephine Carey, vice president; Miss Florence Williams, secretary; Mrs. Leo Ball, treasurer, and Mrs. L. A. Marvin, librarian.

The entertaining program, every number of which was greatly enjoyed, was given by Miss Faith Rogers, pianist; Miss Laura Frankenfield, reader; Miss Wally Heymar, violinist; Miss Florence Lawson, cellist; Miss Alice Mae Brown, Planiste, and Miss Maude Matteson, Mrs. O. J. Larson and Mrs. Homer Anderson, vocalists.

A social hour closed the afternoon and the year for the members, who have enjoyed a profitable course of study and an enjoyable series of programs.

ENTERTAIN PARENTS.

Duluth School Children Give Delightful Exhibition.

With wand drills, dumbbell and Indian club drills as well as other physical culture exercises, the children of the grade schools of the city pleased their parents and friends with the entertainment given last evening at the assembly hall of the Central high school.

The children had drilled for weeks and they give the difficult exercises in a most pleasing and graceful manner.

Each of the schools was represented by a class which presented some kind of an athletic exhibition. The object of the entertainment was to show the parents the exercises given the children in the schools and the value of them.

The work of the teams or classes was widely different. Some worked with wands, some with dumbbells, some with Indian clubs, and some with bean bags. The whole made a most pleasing entertainment.

The Jefferson school boys in an illuminated club drill provided one of the feature numbers of the evening. The number contributed by the Jefferson boys was one of the most popular on the program from the standpoint of the audience. The hall was darkened for this number and it was both brilliant and spectacular. The club swinging was of the more advanced kind, several of the twists being extremely difficult.

Thirty little children of the Lincoln school gave a good-night drill. The little ones were dressed in "nighties" and night caps. They carried candles. Four lullabies were sung and dance steps taken with them. Little Adele Germeroth's lullaby solo was a feature of the drill.

The Lakeside boys and girls played bean bag. The drill consisted of throwing and catching bean bags. The children wore costumes made especially for the number. The drill was much enjoyed and the appearance of the class brought forth many favorable comments.

Boys and girls from the Jackson school contributed a wand drill which was also greatly enjoyed by the large audience. This was a very strenuous as well as a very difficult number.

Girls of the Washburn school had a French peasant dance. They wore red gowns, black bodices, white aprons and caps. The number was a very pretty one and showed plenty of hard work by both the little girls and their teachers.

The little girls of the Nettleton school gave a minuet in colonial costume. The minuet was most daintily done The boys of the Nettleton school gave an Indian club drill which was also well received.

The Endion school pupils contributed a broom drill. It was a strenuous number as brooms would naturally suggest.

The Washington school children gave a scarf drill. The children by the aid of the scarfs made pretty figures and groupings.

A hoop and flag drill was given by the Lester Park boys and girls. It was a patriotic and fast moving drill and was well received.

The calisthenics by the boys and girls of the Salter and Irving schools were a pleasing part of the program.

The Ely school children gave some fancy steps. The Franklin dumbbell work was above the ordinary. The Jefferson club swinging was a feature of the entertainment.

The program as a whole is said to have been the best demonstration of physical culture work ever given by Duluth school children.

THE EVENING STORY

A GREAT MYSTERY

By C. B. Greatheart.

Parkvale grammar school was very much excited by a great mystery. What secret plan was being carried out by Jack Slocum and his three brothers? Ted Thomson and others of their rivals tried awfully hard to find out, but in vain. They made many secret trips out to the Cross Roads to inspect that pile of stones, which steadily grew through the week until it became a long, straight redoubt or breastworks about three feet high, two feet wide, and thirty or forty feet long.

It was built of white stones from an abandoned quarry pit near by, and stretched its gleaming length parallel with the south road, which ran due south. The spot is known all over this section of the country as a landmark of travel.

"Why, it's an arrow," Ted exclaimed when he and his friends paid the spot a visit, surveying the rapidly growing spearlike head of the long white pile. But the Slocums only laughed mysteriously as they continued to throw rock after rock upon the arrowhead until they had built it up to the same level as the long section.

"We can play the same game as you, though I don't know what it is," roared Ted defiantly. He was determined not to let the Slocums get ahead of him, and the mysterious building of this great stone arrow was very irritating. So now an idea struck him, which at least might "bring him into the game," even if he didn't know what it was. He called his friends together, and then came the Slocums' turn to be astonished.

"Hi, there. What do you think you're doing?" shouted one of the latter a bit later.

"We're just going to show you smarties that you aren't the only ones who can build arrows at the Cross Roads," replied Ted, as he flung a rock up from the quarry on the pile that his friends were industriously adding to. The Slocums hastily held a whispered conversation. Ted was highly gratified to see how much annoyance his building operations seemed to cause, but was nettled at Jack's refusal to tell the secret of the great stone arrow.

The Slocums were angry, but there was no way to stop the Thomson crowd. So they had to content themselves with adding the stone "feathers" to the tail of the arrow and thus completing it, while Ted's gang worked doggedly to parallel and duplicate their work with their own stone arrow.

Of course, this second arrow fanned the flames of curiosity. Nothing was talked of at school but the great stone arrows. Numerous guesses were made as to Jack's secret object in erecting such a strange monument, but he and his brothers only continued to smile and keep still. Ted finished his duplicate arrow a day or two after Jack's was completed, and then began wondering what was all about, and what was going to happen and how his arrow was going to checkmate Jack's. In fact, he rather maliciously hoped it would. But three days passed and not one thing happened. On the third day Jack met Ted in the school yard and pulled a folded yellow paper from his pocket. "Ted, your cheap imitation arrow won't 'do' us a bit, according to this," and he waved a telegram unto Ted's nose. Ted made a frantic grab for it, but Jack jumped aside and tucked it safely away in his pocket.

"Do you really want to know what the great stone arrow is for?" he asked.

"Yes, tell us! Stop all the mystery," shouted the others.

"Then come up to the Cross Roads tomorrow after school and find out," he answered. The next afternoon witnessed a grand rush for the Cross Roads by the whole school, and most of the teachers, too. For that mysterious stone arrow had become a source of tremendous curiosity to all.

It was noticed that Jack carried a telescope, while one of his brothers consulted a watch every few minutes. Headed by Ted Thomson the larger boys confronted the Slocums. "If you fellows are playing a trick you're going to get a licking," he cried, angrily shaking his fist.

"We're not playing any trick——" Jack was suddenly interrupted by a shout from his brother, who pointed toward the high mountain range which hemmed in the valley to the west. Jack never finished the sentence, but clapped the telescope to his eye. "Hurray, here it comes!"

"Who? What do you mean?"

"Just look through this," and Jack handed Ted the telescope. Ted looked through it and then almost dropped the telescope. "Boys," he said in an awed tone, "boys, it's an aeroplane." There was a free fight for the telescope on hearing the sensational news. A terrific cheer went up as they watched the black spot grow larger until they could finally make out its dim outlines. And then it came so close the sharp chug-chug of the engine could be heard. It flew at a terrific speed and maintained a great height, staying almost at the altitude it had reached in crossing the west range of the mountains. The spectators shouted to the aviator to come lower so they could see him more plainly. Almost before they could realize it the speeding biplane had shot over them, passing directly above the two stone arrows. In another minute it was a mile away, flying straight above the south road in the direction toward which the arrows pointed. "He won't go wrong now. Three cheers for the great stone arrows," yelled Jack, and then the onlookers understood the secret of the arrows at last.

When the noise and cheering was finally over Jack revealed the contents of that mysterious telegram he had received. It was addressed to Jack: "Received wire. Will look for two arrows instead of one. Much plainer. Expect me 3 to 5 p. m. Thursday—Charles Mason."

The aviator and the Slocums were friends. The former was racing in a contest and had worked out a "cut-off" which would save him over eighty miles if he could hit the right road in Parkvale valley. He was uncertain of his route by the Cross Roads and wanted to go south above the south road. He had to stay up over fifteen hundred feet to avoid the nasty air currents in the narrow valley, and had asked the boys to signal him which road to take. Jack explained that he had just read about the aviator's great stone arrow, built on the cliffs of Dover, which points exactly towards Calais, across the channel, in France. So it was easy to build that great stone arrow at the Cross Roads.

PLANTING TREES ALONG BOULEVARDS

Eveleth Park Board Do Much to Beautify Streets of City.

Eveleth, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twenty-four men have been working the past week in digging holes in the boulevards preparatory to setting out the shade trees recently received. The work is being done under the direction of E. H. Hatch and John T. Burns of the park board. Dr. Medler, the third member of the park board recently appointed by Mayor Saari, declined to serve and his place has not been filled.

The work of setting the trees is now under way. They will be twenty feet apart and alternated poplars and elms. It is the purpose to cut away the poplars after the hardwood trees have become large enough to afford shade.

Although the council will purchase the tract of land between Pierce street and Fayal road for a park, it is the intention of the park board to proceed with the original plans for parking the tract of several acres at the north end of the city at the junction of Adams avenue and the Virginia road. Trees and shrubery will be set out there this month.

Eighteen hundred trees besides the shrubbery have been received, the total cost of the same being $2,136.40.

The park board also plans to make some improvement to the baseball grounds this spring.

NEW POSTOFFICE FOR DEER RIVER

Expected That Delayed Work on Structure Will Be Resumed.

Deer River, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—New bids are posted for the construction for the new postoffice building here, and it is thought that the building will be built on the lots next to the Phifer building. Herried Bros. of this place received the contract from the government and had begun work on the building when they were ordered to cease all operations, owing to a petition being sent in, the signers claiming the site selected was not a proper place for women and children to go for their mail. The new building will be completed by July 1.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Mohr left today for Wisconsin to attend the wedding of a nephew. They will likely remain away for two weeks.

Everton & Chiel are the members of a new real estate firm organized here.

With the leaving of Master Mechanic W. J. Shere of the Minneapolis & Rainy River railway for International Falls to accept a similiar position with the Backus-Brooks company and the news that the chief dispatcher, A. F. Lindberg will also enter the employ of that company on June 1, it looks as if that road has really secured control of the M. & R. road.

MODERN FAGIN BEING SOUGHT

Mesaba Range Man Accused of Putting Boys Up to Thieving.

Hibbing, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police of Hibbing and Chisholm seek a "shacker," named George Cram, who it is alleged has been directing a campaign of theft and burglary here, at Chisholm and in the surrounding country in which his agents were two boys. He seems to be a modern Fagin of "Oliver Twist" fame.

Cram has been living in a claim shanty at McKenzie's camps north of Chisholm, and has the reputation of being a poacher and all around bad man.

Last week it sia lleged he sent one of two boys from Chisholm whom he had induced to "shack" with him to the home of a family named Johnson in 60-20, instructing him to steal a sum of money and meet him in Chisholm where the swag was to be turned over. Cram's confederate made good. He relieved the Johnson family of $40 and started to Chisholm. He was arrested just before he reached the village and the stolen money found concealed in his hatband.

Boy Tells Police.

The boy told his story to the Chisholm police and alleges he and another lad were induced by Cram to commit various thefts and burglaries. He stated also that Cram had killed eleven deer and that the boys had sold the meat for him in Chisholm, also that Cram was the man who had held up the Stevens confectionery store in this city about two weeks ago. Officers were at once dispatched to Cram's camp, but he had made his escape. The police of all the range towns and Duluth have been notified to be on the lookout for him.

ADMITS HE NETTED HUNDREDS OF FISH

Henry Adrian Says He Broke Law for Superior Woman.

Hibbing, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry Adrian, a fisherman, who said he was in the employ of Mrs. M. D. Timlin of Superior, proprietor of a hotel and saloon, was arrested yesterday by Game Warden Wood on a charge of netting fish in Sturgeon lake. He entered a plea of guilty before Judge Masters at Chisholm but sentence was suspended pending the trial of Mrs. Timlin, who was arrested and gave bail in the sum of $150 for her appearance at Chisholm tomorrow. Adrian escaped from the warden during his recent round-up of illegal fishermen at Sturgeon Lake and was arrested at Superior. He confessed that he had been netting on an average of 250 pounds a day of pike, whitefish and other game fish. His nets and paraphernalia have been confiscated.

TELEPHONE LINE BEING PLANNED

Jessie Lake Country to Be Connected With Deer River.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Of all the many progressive rural communities of Itasca county, none is taking more interest in up to the minute improvements and conveniences than the Jessie Lake country, which extends from seven or eight miles north of Deer River to some twenty or more miles north of that hustling village. Since the successful establishment of the rural telephone line north of Deer River, the Jessie Lake folks have been planning on connecting themselves with the outside world by means of a like line of communication. With that end in view the people held meetings which culminated in the establishing of a company of farmers in that section having as its object the building of a telephone line from Deer River to the Jessie Lake country.

Will Lease Poles.

At a meeting of the Deer River Rural Telephone company held Wednesday, it was decided to lease that company's poles running from Deer River north some four miles to the Jessie Lake company for the purpose of stringing wires for a period of five years, the term being 5 cents per pin, with the privilege of buying the wire at the expiration of the lease. The wire specified to be standard copper wire.

Work on the Jessie Lake line will commence Monday of the coming week, and that the line will be rushed to completion.

The new line will connect with the Deer River telephone exchange, and a toll will be charged to Deer River as well as to outside points. The subscribers on the line, however, will have inter-communication among themselves for the rental arrangements which is reached.

THREE REFUSED LICENSES.

Chisholm Council Believes Limit Is About Reached.

Chisholm, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.) — The village council, at its last meeting, denied three applications for new liquor licenses, believing this place has about all the places of that kind the law allows, or there is need for.

Renewels were granted to Lawrence Paskvan, John Anselmo, Pashva & Medved. A new license was granted to Dominick Pritiantonto. A transfer of license was allowed from G. Behr to Charles Zeonc. Liquor licenses were refused Marko Pavicovich, Toney Pogarelz and Antonio Fogetti.

C. L. Train, Dr. A. B. Kirk, Simon Sapero, Gust Andersen and Oscar Arneson represented the Commercial club in a request for co-operation in arranging for the entertainment of the County club which will come here this month and the Editorial association which will visit the iron range during June.

The council agreed to assist the Commercial club to an amount not to exceed $250 to defray the necessary expenses in connection with these meetings.

A resolution from the Commercial club asking that the council take steps toward the paving of Lake street from Fourth avenue to a point about 125 feet east of Central avenue and on Central avenue from Lake street to the pumping station, was read and filed. The village engineer was instructed to gather all the information possible in the short time he will have to do so before the next meeting and make a report to the council of his efforts. Bids for a steel, water tight, garbage wagon were opened and the contract for furnishing it was given to the Studebaker people.

The bond of Frederick W. Hurt in the sum of $20,000 in the Guaranty & Fidelity company was accepted.

Funeral Plans Deferred.

Ely, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—No funeral arrangements have yet been made for the funeral of Richard Chinn, who died at his home here yesterday morning. Word is being awaited from relatives in Michigan. The burial will be in Ely cemetery.

Hibbing vs. Coleraine.

Hibbing, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.) — The local and the Coleraine high school baseball nines will open the baseball season here Saturday.

BACKA CASE JURY OUT OVER NIGHT

Had Not Reported Verdict in Virginia Court at Noon Friday.

Virginia, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury in the John Backa murder case spent all night deliberating and up to noon today had not reported a verdict. Up to that time the jury had not asked the court for additional instructions or shown any sign of agreeing.

The twelve men took the case for consideration about 4 p. m. yesterday after the attorneys had summed up and Judge Hughes delivered his charge. The court was in session today but there was little doing, the officials waiting for the jury to report.

WARBA IS WIDE-AWAKE.

Itasca County Village to Reorganize Commercial Club.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village of Warba is coming to the front. At the Hotel Warba tomorrow there will be a meeting of the citizens of the village and of the countryside for the purpose of reorganizing the Commercial club of that hustling village.

The main object of the reorganization of this body is to start a movement for the erection, either by cooperation, or through some individual, of a potato warehouse. The Warba country has already comparatively extensive clearings opened up, and many potatoes have been marketed there the past seasons. It also has the finest agricultural lands still to be developed that are to be found in Northern Minnesota, and it is to help the farmers who have already settled, and to help settle the other lands, that the potato warehouse movement is started.

After the first meeting the date will be announced for a meeting to follow up the good work which is being started.

EXPECTED TO ACCEPT.

Ely School Head Will Probably Go to Aurora.

Ely, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Professor DeWitt Adkins, for the past year principal of the Ely high school, will probably accept the position offered him as superintendent of the Aurora schools. Mr. Adkins has only been connected with the Ely schools for one year, but in that year he has made a host of friends, who regret his decision to leave here.

The High School Athletic association did the unheard of thing this year in closing the season without a deficit in the treasury. Usually there is a deficit to be made up from other funds for the Athletic association, this year the business of the association shows a balance after all bills have been paid of about $80. Much credit for this condition is due the officers for the past year, of whom Albert Frisk has been president. The annual election was held Wednesday evening and Alvin Schaefer was elected president; Madi Takkanin, vice president; Oscar Freesburg, secretary, and Jerry Harri, student manager.

MUNICIPAL NIGHT.

Virginia Officials Invited to Friday Night's Revival.

Virginia, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The evangelistic meetings being held here during May have adopted the plan of holding a street auto parade every evening. The autos carrying many members of the chorus sings as the parade moves and at stated places where the parade stops short addresses are made and the choir also sings. After the street parade the evening service commences in the roller rink or tabernacle. Another feature of the revival is that home meetings are held in various parts of the city each day at 10 o'clock and the places where they are held are indicated by the hanging out of a flag. The name "municipal night" has been given to this evening's service and an invitation has been sent to the mayor, the aldermen and all city officials to attend.

ROAD NOT CRIPPLED.

Locomotives Damaged By Fire Were of Smaller Classes.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The origin of the fire that badly damaged the Iron Range roundhouse here Wednesday evening and injured some locomotives that could not be removed has not been clearly established although spontaneous combustion from oily waste was first blamed.

It develops that at the time of the fire there were no men in either of the sections which burned. The watchman was at the other end of the company's shops. The locomotives were badly scorched. Luckily none of the big ore engines happened to be among the damaged engines, but there were four of the second-class engines or "Class J," badly burned. The following were the engines: "83," "81," "77," "64," "52," "51," "47," and the old "14."

The part of the roundhouse which burned was the original roundhouse and was built back in the '80's. The fire was very spectacular, with its big flames and immense clouds of smoke. The work of the fire tug Torrent was especially good. One pump was run.

DIABETES

The probabilities under Fulton's Diabetic Compound seem to us to be about as follows:

In cases of sixty years and over reports have been so encouraging that it is our belief that recovery or control that prolongs life in reasonable comfort is possible in nearly nine-tenths of the cases.

While at fifty a majority of all cases appear to respond to the treatment, below fifty and approaching forty the disease gets more stubborn, and between thirty and forty the percentage is not high and we cannot make strong claims.

Under thirty the percentage is very low and in children recoveries have been rare and most of those were obtained through the aid of skilled physicians keeping the liver active, promoting nutrition and giving alkalines when necessary to control acetones.

It does not conflict with physicians' prescriptions. But where patients require codein we desire to submit something milder that contains no opium.

We desire every patient not improving the third week to write us. Always state age. Literature mailed free. John J. Fulton Company, 645 Battery Street, San Francisco, Cal. We invite correspondence with physicians who have obstinate cases.

MOURNED IN VIRGINIA.

Late Captain James Trezona Once Lived in That City.

Virginia, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The announcement in The Duluth Herald early in the week of the death at North Yakima, Wash., of Capt. James Trezona, caused general regret as he resided here several years and was once a member of the city council. He was prominent in mining in Upper Michigan before coming to the Mesaba range, where he held several important positions.

In the early days of the Mesaba range he was the superintendent of the Shenango mine near Chisholm and at the Fayal mine at Eveleth. Many of the men now in higher positions with mining companies received their tutoring under Capt. James Trezona. He leaves his wife and a daughter, Mrs. R. E. Bailey, both living in Washington. Mr. Trezona will be interred at North Yakima.

The consignment will be planted in the following lakes: Day, Sturgeon, Shannon, Embarrass, Dewey, Long, Clear, Pelican, Dark and Clearwater. Game Warden George Wood will superintend the placing of the fry in the various waters to which they are consigned.

UNKNOWN CORPSE FOUND.

Badly Decomposed Body Found Near Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Workmen on the Hansen-Barzen farm just on the western outskirts of the city found the remains of a man in a badly decomposed state Wednesday afternoon. There was nothing about what remained of the body, to determine who he was or how long the remains had been lying where found. They were in a small clump of bushes within a half mile of the business portion of the city. From appearances the man had wandered into this brush and had lain down and died there, as no marks or other indications pointed to foul play. The remains were given burial by the coroner.

GRANDMOTHERS USED SAGE TEA

To Darken the Hair and Restore Gray and Faded Hair to Its Natural Color.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair and are fast following suit.

The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready-to-use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. As a scalp tonic and color restorer this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers.

The growth and beauty of the hair depends on a healthy condition of the scalp. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy quickly kills the dandruff germs which rob the hair of its life, color and lustre, makes the scalp clean and healthy, gives the hair strength, color and beauty, and makes it grow.

Chicken Pot Pie

The Chef's Favorite

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Some folks think that only "colored mammies" can cook chicken, but a trial of this famous chicken pot pie disproves that assertion. Every member of the family will thoroughly enjoy it.

K C Chicken Pot Pie, Baked Dumplings

One fowl cut in joints; ¼ cup flour; ½ teaspoonful salt; black pepper; 2 cups flour, 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; ½ teaspoonful salt; ¼ cup shortening; milk or cream.

Cover the fowl with boiling water and let simmer until tender, then remove to a baking dish. Mix the ¼ cup flour, salt and black pepper with cold water to a smooth paste and use to thicken the broth. Remove the fat from the top of the broth if necessary before adding the thickening. Pour this gravy over the fowl, until it is nearly covered, and reserve the rest to serve apart. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt, three times; into this work the shortening and use cream or milk to make a dough, less stiff than for biscuits. Put this by spoonfuls over the fowl in the dish, which it should rest upon and completely cover. Let bake about 35 minutes.

When young, tender chickens are scarce, this presents a most satisfactory way of serving old fowls. Veal or lamb prepared in this manner is more appetizing than when served as a stew. Try this and the 89 other delicious recipes in the K C Cook's Book, a copy of which may be secured free by sending the colored certificate packed in the 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder to the JAQUES MFG. Co., Chicago.

AN UNFINISHED CHURCH.

Wide World Magazine: There is a curious history regarding an unfinished church which stands at Hassall, near Sandbach, England. A former resident at the local hall, a Mr. Lowndes, painfully conscious of the lack of provision for the spiritual wants of the people in the neighborhood, determined to build a church at his own expense. After carefully choosing a site he gave instructions for the erection of a structure in the modern style capable of seating four or five hundred persons. Work on it was begun in the summer of 1836 and was pushed steadily till the day on which Queen Victoria was crowned, by which time the building was well advanced. The crypts, about ten in number, had been put in, the walls and roofs were complete and the scantlings for the floor were fixed. Indeed, partly in consequence of the national rejoicings and partly to celebrate the progress which had been made, the buildings was smothered in flags and decorations, and was the center of the local festivities. Next day Mr. Lowndes was seized with an illness which quickly proved fatal and with his passing all work on the church ceased. Though the building could have been finished at comparatively small cost, it was abandoned; and it had not been used since, except by tourists, whose names "hallow and adorn it," as Mark Twain said of those on the ruins of Cain's altar, by the thousand.

D. G. KERR IS AN OPTIMIST

Vice President of Steel Corporation Satisfied With Business Conditions.

Heavy Demand for Finished Products and Price Is Increasing.

D. G. Kerr, vice president of the United States Steel corporation, is an optimist on the general situation on the Mesaba range on the volume of orders for raw steel and on the business situation in the United States.

Mr. Kerr, who is on a visit to Duluth, declared today that more ore will be sent down the lakes this year than was the case last season and that the demand for the raw product of steel is very great at the present time, so great that there would necessarily have to be more ore taken from the Minnesota ranges than was found necessary under the industrial demand of 1911.

"Don't ask me regarding the steel plant," said Vice President Kerr, "for my position has to do with raw products. There is a heavy demand for steel at the present time and I may say that one of the reasons for the inability to get structural material here is because there is a pressing demand for structural steel over the country.

"While the price of steel at the present time is low there is the prospect that it will increase. In fact, the price is gradually going up. The railroads have come into the market and all along the line there is an increased demand for steel products."

"What about politics, Mr. Kerr?" was asked.

"Well, that is something that I don't know anything about," he responded, "but the people throughout the country say business is getting better and they also say that it is going to continue to get better. That is, perhaps, an answer to the query regarding politics.

"In the East the opinion exists that business has shown a gradual improvement and that it will keep right on getting better. The volume of business seems to be increasing and there is a better feeling. As I said, I am not a politician, but I should judge that politics is not hurting business.

"I found conditions on the Mesaba range to be fine. They could not be better. Things up there are just to our liking. Conditions in general are much better than they were a year ago."

Mr. Kerr will leave Duluth this evening for the East.

THINK DEBS WILL HEAD SOCIALISTS

Leaders of Party Gather at Indianapolis for Convention.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 10.—Members of the executive committee of the Socialist party arrived today to prepare for the national convention, which will open next Sunday morning. Three hundred and fifty delegates and 1,200 members of the party are expected to attend the convention.

That Eugene V. Debs again would be nominated for president was the opinion of most of the Socialist leaders here. Others mentioned for the head of the ticket, if Debs should decline, were Emil Seidel of Milwaukee; Job Harriman, Los Angeles; Max Hayes, Cleveland; Duncan McDonald, Springfield, Ill., and Charles Edward Russell, Ntw York.

A platform is to be adopted and reports of committees formulating the party's attitude toward the farmer and the immigration questions are to be dealt with during the convention, which probably will continue all next week.

ARKANSAS HAS YOUTHFUL HERO

Besides Running a Weekly Paper, He Won a Carnegie Award.

Fort Smith, Ark., May 10.—The recent announcement of the Carnegie Hero Fund commission included an Arkansas boy, Curtis Wright, who was awarded a bronze medal and $1,000 for heroism in saving the life of a companion who was drowning in the Arkansas river near Fort Smith. The deed showed coolness and good judgment, and Wright, who was 17 years old at the time, was given the highest praise by the representatives of the hero commission who came here to investigate the facts.

Young Wright already had won statewide fame by being the owner and publisher of a weekly newspaper, started when he was 15 years old. It is now a newspaper of 3,000 circulation.

Second Life Saved.

The life saved by Wright for which he received the award was the second saved by him. When 16 years old he swam to the aid of a companion, Cecil Stanton. He caught him as he was going under and swam thirty feet to safety.

The young editor saved Scott Johnson, a 15-year-old boy, from drowning, May 13, 1911. A party of eight boys, who went out on a Sunday school picnic to the foot of Wildcat mountain, on the Arkansas river, about six miles from Fort Smith, went in swimming at a point where the river is narrow and the current rapid.

Young Johnson, who was a good swimmer, started for the opposite bank. When about two-thirds across he became weakened, and cried for help. Wright was about 150 feet away at the time and down stream. He realized the danger of swimming up stream for such a long distance, but he struck out boldly for his drowning companion, while the other boys, frightened at his cries, made for the bank. Wright reached the younger boy after a hard effort, and seeing that he was panic-stricken, said: "Don't holler, and keep your hands off me, or we'll both drown."

Risked His Life for Friend.

He then called the boys on shore to launch the boat and row it to him, which was done. This took considerable time, however. In the meantime Wright was struggling to keep his unconscious companion and himself from going under. Once he decided that he must let go in order to save his own life, but he said that it seemed like murder to him, and he maintained his hold. Both boys were finally taken into the boat. Wright was practically exhausted when the boat arrived, and it is doubtful if he could have reached shore again if the boat had not come to his aid.

The young editor, although already successful in business, is going through the high school, this being his third year. He intends to put a part of the $1,000 to improving his printing plant. He is modest, and at his request the act of saving Johnson's life was not reported to the newspapers at the time.

SHOPPING IN LONDON.

"My first purchase in London," writes an American traveler in "Business," was made in an Oxford street store shortly after 9 o'clock, the opening hour. I entered with some trepidation, my American experience having taught the absurdity of shopping early in the day. But the be-medaled commissionaire at the door bowed me in to a floor manager.

"'A flannel bag for your kodak? Thank you sir—down the stairs to the right, sir—thank you sir.'

"The young saleswoman who came forward had entirely finished arranging her coiffure, not a stray tress was there to divert her attention from catering to my needs. Near her stood another saleswoman, yet the two had no confidences to exchange about their male admirers.

"It was all so un-American, so novel, that I bought a flannel bag, paying more for it than I would have been asked in the smallest city at home. Yet the deferent attention was well worth the difference. I had learned my first lesson from English merchandising.

"The London 'Depots for general merchandise' (English for department stores) are mostly located along Oxford street. One finds considerable difference between the great shops of the British metropolis and those in our large cities.

"First and foremost the English excel in salesmanship. Once having gotten a possible purchaser inside the door, they reason he should be made profitable to them. The floor manager does not assume that attitude of royal indifference as with us. He watches the struggle between sales person and customer.

"If the latter shows signs of escaping into the open with his purse intact another clerk is brought forward as a reinforcement. Some establishments still lay fines on clerks who do not effect sales, but the new system of inciting the sales force to its utmost efforts by giving percentages is now coming into vogue.

"The method that London stores have of letting a cash girl conduct a customer who has finished his purchases to a central cash desk and wrapping counter, where he stands in line, keeping an anxious eye on his goods till they are parcelled, seems to us archaic and cumbersome. An Oxford street merchant, however, reasons this way:

"'When a patron has finished his purchases he is better out of the way of new customers. English men and women prefer privacy when they are making purchases, which would be impossible were customers allowed to sit at the counter, awaiting their packages. Then, the wrapping force works more rapidly when the patron watches and urges haste.'

"I did not see how that particular force could work any more slowly, but his other argument might have some merit.

"Marshall Field once said about Whitely's that it was not an establishment, but simply one man who had divided himself into a certain number of parts, each superintending some department of the big store that bears his name. Mr. Whitely himself is dead now and the store belongs to a corporation, but the policies of its founder still prevail.

"'Never tell a customer we haven't what he wants, even though we never have carried it,' was one of the Whitely rules. 'Go to your floor manager.'

"To his staff of managers he said: 'Never tell a sales person we haven't or can't get any item sought by a customer. Keep going higher with your inquiries and, if necessary, come to me.'

"And then there are the co-operative stores, forty in number, which do an immense business, aggregating over a quarter of a billion dollars annually. At the end of the year only 2½ per cent is kept as a profit on which to capitalize new ventures, the rest of the profit is turned back to the shareholders in the form of a dividend.

"The Army and Navy Co-operative society, the Civil Service Supply association, the Junior Army and Navy stores and the Civil Service Co-operative society are the principal organizations of this nature in London. Their membership is said to reach 750,000,000. The goods sold by them comprises everything that a Londoner needs.

"The immediate price paid is lower than that of the proprietary shops near by, and the rebate or dividend at the end of the year brings the net cost still lower. Membership fees is about three shillings, or 75 cents a year. The value of these co-operative associations is said to be about 17 per cent to the members. That is, if the goods were bought in the general market they would cost that much more."

WHERE SODOM AND GOMORRAH STOOD.

Wide World Magazine: To the majority, perhaps the Dead sea is invariably associated with Sodom and Gomorrah. No one knows exactly where these cities stood. They have been variously placed at the north end, on the west side, at the south end, and on the east side of the sea. Popular tradition has always most conveniently pointed to the north shore, the place visited by tourists and pilgrims from Jerusalem, as the site. No less an authority than Canon Tristram, however, places the site on the west side. At Callirrhoe, on the east side, there are certainly palpable evidences of volcanic unheaval, not to mention the combustible substances in sulphur, bitumen, and possibly oil that might have played a part in the overthrow of these ancient cities.

The Zerka—astream almost as great as the Arnon and amid surroundings of much the same character, but having a small plain on the seashore that might very well be cultivated—flows into the sea some fifteen minutes' journey farther north from Callirrhoe. Here, as elsewhere, the wild oleander, with its beautiful pink flower, is abundant; also the reed with its feathery tuft or bloom, 'Shaken by the wind," and referred to by Christ; also the willow, the tamarisk, the "Gharaf," a pretty looking wild fruit much like a cherry; and that strange plant, the apple of Sodom. This, though looking like a beautiful fruit, collapses when touched, and is found to contain nothing but a little smoke like dust and some silk like fiber, used by the natives for stuffing pillows. Mount Nebo, from which Moses viewed the Promised Land, is about opposite the north end of the sea, on the table lands.

HOW TO DESTROY THE DANDRUFF GERM

BY A SPECIALIST.

That the dandruff germ is responsible for nearly all the diseases to which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and premature gray hair, is a well known fact, but when we realize that it is also indirectly responsible for many of the worst cases of catarrh and consumption, we appreciate the importance of any agent that will destroy its power. We are, therefore, particularly pleased to give herewith the prescription which an eminent scientist states he has found, after repeated tests, to completely destroy the dandruff germ in from one to three applications. It will also almost immediately stop failing hair and it has in numerous cases produced a new hair-growth after years of baldness. This prescription can be made up at home, or any druggist will put it up for you: 6 ounces Bay Rum, 2 ounces Lavona de Composee, one-half drachm Menthol Crystals. Mix thoroughly, and after standing half an hour it is ready for use. Apply night and morning, rubbing into the scalp, with the finger-tips. If you wish it perfumed, add half a teaspoonful of To-Kalon Perfume, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. While this preparation is not a dye, it is unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color.

CAUTION: Do not apply where hair is not desired and be sure to avoid tonics containing poisonous wood alcohol.

IN MEMORY OF JOHN BUNYAN.

London Daily News: Two hundred and twenty-three years after the death of the famous tinker of Bedford an ornate window in his memory has just been placed in Westminster Abbey. Naturally it depicts scenes from the "Pilgrim's Progress,' the chief episodes illustrated being:

Christian's meeting with Evangelist.
His admittance at the Wicket Gate.
His deliverance from the burden of sin at the foot of the cross.
Piety, Prudence and Charity harnessing him with armor.
Fight with Apollyon.
Vanity Fair.
Crossing the river to the Celestial city.

Round the center panels, which are twenty feet high and six feet in width run a series of vignettes representing minor scenes in the allegory, the first, of course, being Pilgrim's wife and family trying to dissuade him from making the journey. The headlight contains a portrait of Bunyan, and at the base of the window is the inscription, "In memory of John Bunyan: B. 1628. D. 1688. The Pilgrim's Progress."

The window is in the west aisle of the north transept. Altogether the memorial has cost £1,200, raised by lovers of the "Pilgrim's Progress," but the project has chiefly been carried through by the exertions and liberality of the Baptist denomination, on whose behalf Dr. Clifford will formally hand over the window to the dean and chapter of the abbey on Jan. 25.

SOME EXPLORERS OF THE DEAD SEA.

Wide World: In many ways the Dead Sea, in Palestine, can claim the distinction of being the most remarkable sheet of water on the face of the globe. Although known by name to every one, its banks are seldom visited, and many of its picturesque gorges, wonderful mountains, and strange fertile oases have remained virtually unexplored territory. So much so, in fact, that the Palestine Exploration Society of Berlin, in conjunction with the Berlin Institute for Sea (Exploration) Research, have determined to explore the basin of the Dead Sea thoroughly as well as that of the River Jordan. Only twice in modern times has any one attempted to make a systematic study of this historic region. The first investigator was Lieutenant Lynch of the United States navy, in 1848, and the second, some few years later, the Duc de Luynes. Although both these explorers gave to the world many unknown facts about this wonderful region, their accounts cannot be regarded as altogether exhaustive.

It is probable, however, that we shall hear more of the Dead Sea in the near future, for not very long ago the Turkish government granted one Souad Bey, an influential and wealthy banker of Constantinople, a concession for the exploitation of the minerals in the Dead Sea basin. That the whole region is exceedingly rich in various kinds of minerals has been known for years, and the finest and purest bitumen, together with quantities of peerless sulphur, are obtainable here. In Byzantine times copper mines were worked near the south end of the Dead Sea, both in horizontal galleries and vertical shafts, while the basin is rich in marble, porphyry, and other fine stones, as well as in phosphates. It often has been stated by American connoisseurs traveling to the Dead Sea that evidences of coal and oil, which in America would be unmistakable, are very apparent in this region. Salt is found in great quantities, but as the government has a monopoly upon this commodity it is at present largely imported from Smyrna and England.

TOWER SURMOUNTED BY 1,200 SKULLS.

Wide World Magazine: A strange monument of modern barbarism still survives at Nish, in Southeast Servia. During the War of Independence, in 1809, the Servian garrison here exploded a powerful magazine, and perished therein, rather than fall into the hands of the Turks. A battle had previously taken place, and the Turks commemorated their victory by erecting a rude tower, ornamented with the heads of their enemies. Old people will tell you that there were once 1,200 heads, but as the tower was never more than twenty-five feet high, this is probably an exaggeration. Lamartine and other travellers relate that they saw hair still clinging to the skulls, which must have formed a gruesome spectacle. During many years visitors were in the habit of carrying off skulls as souvenirs, but when Nish became Servian, the remainder were taken away for decent burial, all save a few that were too deeply embedded. Recently the remains of the tower have been covered over with a roof to protect them against the elements, and they are regarded as a pious object of patriotic pilgrimage.

COMING AUTOMOBILE SLEIGH.

Boston Journal: The automobile sleigh is coming fast. It may not make much headway in Boston, where the winters are not severe and where the temperature rises and falls so fast that a single day, as Monday, last, furnishes samples of all the weather to be found between the Labrador icebergs and the Florida orange groves. Besides, the automobile has become an all-the-year-around vehicle. You can dress up for it in furs or get one with a closed body, all luxuriously upholstered and decked out with radiators and electric lights. But the motor sleigh will afford great sport here and there, and in the country, where the roads are often piled high with snow, it should be of more practical service.

The Austrians and the French have produced several types of the automobile sleigh. Most of them, as a matter of fact, are a combination of runners and chain mounted wheels, but several are propelled by screws after the fashion of airships. Nor are the Europeans alone in this line of automobile development. Over at Red Bank, N. J., this week a young genius drove a motor sled across the Shrewsbury at the rate of 40 miles an hour. He simply substituted runners for the forward wheels and iron tires with spikes for the rubber tires on the rear wheels. Then off he went, driving his automobile sleigh or sled as he would an ordinary automobile.

TRANSLATION.

London Review: Schubert's well known "Lied des gefangenen Jagers" is a setting of Herder's German translation of Scott's lyric, "My hawk is tired of perch and hood," the second line of which,

"My idle greyhound loaths his food,"

runs in German as follows:

"Mein mussiger Windhorn sein Futter verschmaht."

In by far the largest collection of Schubert's songs published with English words this line appears with the following English text:

"My musical woodhorn its flutter hath stilled," which could only have been perpetuated by some one to whom English and German were equally unknown.

It's apt to "stay 'ost" unless you advertise for it.

Cemetery Association Meets.
The annual meeting of the trustees of the Duluth Cemetery association, owner of Forest Hill cemetery, took place yesterday afternoon, officers being elected as follows: President, Joseph Sellwood; vice president, G. H. Claypool, and secretary and treasurer, W. B. Patton. An appropriation of $4,000 was made as the beginning of a permanent fund, the interest of which is to be used in taking care of the cemetery. Twenty per cent of the receipts from the sale of lots is to be added to this fund, and it is believed that by the time all the lots of the cemetery are sold, the interest will be sufficiently large to take care of the cemetery. There are now about 1,000 lot-holders. A committee of trustees was appointed to take care of this fund, the members being F. A. Brewer, Dr. J. J. Eklund and G. G. Hartley.

MEN WHO DO WOMEN'S WORK.

Among some of the New American Indian tribes of the Southwestern United States, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, there is a curious custom of men occasionally assuming the work of women as a life occupation. This, when it occurs, is voluntarily undertaken, and seems to be due to a preference for feminine labors, the man sinking his identity as far as possible by assuming woman's garb. Pueblo Indians of Zuni, New Mexico, do their share of the regulation woman's work in the household of which they happen to be members—grinding corn, making bread, carrying water, etc.—and seem thoroughly respected. One would be quite deceived by their costumes into supposing them to be women, did not their deep-toned voices betray their masculinity.

WHY WE SHAKE HANDS.

New York Sun: Did you ever ask yourself why you shake hands with persons whom you know? Here is the reason:

In the old days, when every man who had any pretension to being a gentleman carried a sword, it was the custom for men when they met to show that they had no intention of treachery to offer each other their weapon hands—that is, the hand that would be used to draw the sword, and to withhold the hand was usually the signal for a fight.

So fixed did this habit become that long after men ceased to wear swords they still offered the weapon hand to a friend and declined to offer it to an enemy. To this day when you refuse to shake hands with a person it signifies that you are at war. Among savages, who never carried swords, the practice of shaking hands is unknown, and it affords them amusement to see the white men do it.

UNLAWFUL TO GROW POPPIES.

Wide World Magazine: One of the most successful of Chinese reform movements is that which aims at checking the use of opium throughout the empire. Through the highly creditable action of the British government, which, at the cost of considerable hardship in two of its colonies, has restricted the export of raw opium from India to Hong Kong, the main supply of the insidious drug has been materially reduced, while the prohibition of the cultivation of the poppy and the closing of the public opium-smoking dens have also served as a considerable check upon its use. Large areas of poppy are still cultivated in China, many "divans" are still open—through the connivance of corrupt officials—and the importation from India still runs up to a high figure; yet it is conservatively estimated that the consumption of the drug in China has been reduced from 25 to 40 per cent. The further restriction of the export of Indian opium which is promised by the British government and the more thorough enforcement of the poppy-growing and smoking prohibitions will undoubtedly, within the next five years, bring the consumption of "China's Curse" down to comparatively low figures.

The one source of opium supply which has not suffered through the reform measures is that which comes into the country by smuggling. Of course, there are no figures concerning it, but, judging by seizures, the only possible criterion, smuggling has increased in something more than a direct ratio to the curtailment of legitimate import. More striking still has been the increase in the attempts to smuggle opium from Hong Kong to America, several seizures of 1910 being of the value of from $30,000 to $40,000, while the total aggregated many hundreds of thousands. As the opium which is seized is estimated to be but from 1 to 10 per cent of that which gets through safely, some idea of what is going on in this line on the Pacific coast of America alone may be gathered.

A SHINE WITH EVERY DRINK.

Atlanta Constitution: There have been in the history of barber shops such plans as "A shave and a shine all for a dime," "A haircut and a shine free," but it was left for a negro barber shop at 18 Ivy street to give a free shoe shine when a drink was paid for. That is, it was a Sunday blind tiger in which Will Strong, a bootblack, sold liquor and then gave his customer a free shine.

The police had suspected the barber shop for some time and on last Sunday they made a raid and found a large lot of whisky in pint bottles. Will Strong was in charge and was running a bootblack stand. He claimed that another negro had brought the whisky into the shop without his knowing it. The recorder sent Will Strong to the chain gang for thirty days.

SHIPMENTS INCREASING

Ore Roads Expected to Have a Very Busy Season.

Between Ten and Fourteen Trains a Day on Missabe.

Ore shipments from the Hibbing district have increased gradually during the last ten days until at the present time from ten to fourteen trains of ore are being brought down over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad every day.

The ore is being taken from the stockpiles at the Clark and Shenango mines. Five steam shovels are now at work lifting ore from the Hull-Rust mine. As soon as navigation conditions become normal and more boats are available for the shipping of ore, the number of trains per day will be increased, it is stated.

It is probable that by the end of the week there will be from 1,600 to 1,800 cars of ore a day over the Great Northern road. About fifteen trains a day are being run over the Great Northern. This is a large increase over ten days ago when there was but four or five trains of ore per day.

The Great Northern expects to handle about 15,000,000 tons of ore during the present season from Kelly Lake. It is, thought that the maximum shipments will reach 2,000 cars a day.

The present year is expected to be the busiest ore shipping season in years. While mining is not in full operation as yet, several mines being idle at the present time, it is expected that within the next two or three weeks that Northern Minnesota ore mining will be in full swing and that the railroads will be running more trains than in several seasons.

Accidents to boats and the grain have had their effect on the ore shipping. The rush will date from about June 1 to late in the fall.

Port of Duluth.

Departures: Buffington, W. R. Linn, Western Star, W. E. Reis, ore; Northern Star, merchandise.

MOTHERS' DAY MAY 12.

Governor Eberhart Issues Proclamation Urging Its Observance.

St. Paul, Minn., May 10. — Governor Eberhart has issued the following proclamation designating Sunday, May 12, as "Mothers' day:"

"The beautiful custom of setting aside one day each year to pay tribute to our mothers should not be abandoned nor forgotten. No element in either national or domestic life is more important than the mothers of our country. Home virtues are the safeguard of our existence. Our mothers are the highest exemplification. recommend therefore that the second Sunday in May be so observed as to make it of practical service to mankind and to give it a permanent place in the list of Minnesota holidays."

MANY POINTS UNLIGHTED

Boat Captains Complain of Delay in Getting Lighthouses Ready.

Economy Said to Be Aim of Commission Rather Than Efficiency.

Navigation on Lake Superior has been open practically for two weeks, yet several of the most dangerous points along the lakes haven't lights or fog horns. Millions in boats and cargoes are in jeopardy and it is expected that the Lake Carriers' association will file a formal complaint with the government. No individuals are blamed but the responsibility rests upon a federal system.

In Marquette there are nine members of the lighthouse service, waiting for the tender Marigold to take them to their post along the south shore. The lights at Granite island, Stannard rock and Huron Island are not manned. The Marigold has the entire task of transporting men and supplies to the northern stations and although she put out from the local port as soon as the ice conditions would permit it will be several days before she will have completed her visits to the various lights. The men waiting in Marquette have been there under orders for a week.

The steamer Mafata reported in Detroit several days ago that she was unable to sight the Huron Island lights on her way down. President William Livingstone of the Lake Carriers gave out a statement that the Mafata's master must have been further out in the lake than he supposed or else weather conditions had smothered the lights. "The Marigold left Duluth a week ago," said Mr. Livingstone, "and the lights are all in commission."

He has since been advised that the lights are not burning and the feeling of uneasiness and dissatisfaction among the vessel interests may culminate in a radical change in the present method of manning the lights.

In former years tugs were chartered to rush the men to their stations as soon as the lakes were navigable. This was an effective system, but somewhat expensive. The lighthouse service has been removed from control of the joint army and navy board and has been placed in the hands of a civilian commission whose chief aim has been to make a record for economy. It is said that this economy policy is carried out at the expense of efficiency.

President Taft's recommendation that the life saving and lighthouse services be consolidated with the revenue service meets with the general approval of lake shipping interests.

"That reform is needed is shown by conditions this spring," said one vessel owner. "That there has been no costly disaster in Lake Superior has been due thus far to the good fortune and skill of navigators and to the fact that the weather has been favorable. One heavy fog might mean a heavy loss of life and property."

No More Loading at Night.

The Canadian government has issued an order to the grain inspectors of Fort William and Port Arthur that hereafter all grain must be loaded during the day time. The Lake Carriers association has telegraphed Premier Borden asking him to permit the loading of vessels during the twenty-four hours of the day.

Heretofore grain shippers were allowed to load vessels during the night on condition they assume the responsibility of the grain passin ginspection.

Fort William and Port Arthur grain will hardly be desirable under the new ruling, unless guaranteed one elevator and a limited stay in port.

Chili is Leased For Season.

The steamer Chili, which took a cargo of grain from the Head of the Lakes to Toledo, arrived in Cleveland yesterday to load steel products for Fort William. The Chili has been chartered for the season by the Merchants Mutual line of Toronto and will be operated in the American coastwise and international trades. She is owned by C. W. Elphicke of Chicago. When the Chil unloaded at Toledo she had 4,000 bushels of wet grain.

Refuse Benefits to Steamer.

At a meeting of the advisory committee of the Great Lakes Protective association the advantages of association membership were withdrawn from the steamer Niagara. It is charged the Niagara went up the Niagara river when the flag indicating water depths showed the water was too low for safe navigation. Boland & Cornelius own the vessel and it is said they ordered her up the river. The action of the association is temporary, but will prevent the owners of the ship getting the benefit of the lower insurance rate vessels enrolled in the association obtain.

Rate Cutting Over.

Freight rate cutting by the Merchants Mutual and Canadian lake lines has come to an end according to a dispatch from Toronto. For some time the two lines are said to have been making special rates not classified in the published tariff. The dispatch says an agreement has just been reached whereby the published tariffs will be adhered to exclusively.

To Make Boats Safer.

Senator Burton is reported to be preparing a list of twelve questions which he will ask lake shipbuilders to answer. The purpose of the questions is to determine what methods the shipbuilders would advise for making steamship navigation safer. He wants information on both construction and lifesaving equipment. It has been suggested power boats be placed aboard the lake ships, that these small craft could make several trips between a ship and the shore while rowboats or yawls were making one. The courses of the lake ships are always close to shore. The regulations of the department of commerce and labor prevent a steamship carrying passengers to have gasoline aboard. It would be necessary to amend this clause if motor boats were installed as life-saving equipment.

Gets at Buffalo.

Buffalo, May 10.—Despite the heavy grain receipts at this port during the last ten days the local elevators are having little difficulty in unloading the cargoes. Seven vessels were unloading today, and the records of the Western Elevating association indicate that almost 1,000,000 bushels were elevated.

There is a large amount of grain being held in elevator storage awaiting the opening of the Erie canal on May 15. Some of the grain is now being unloaded into the canal boats. The grain shippers are having no difficulty in getting the necessary cars for carrying their stock to the East. The railroads appear to have hundreds of empties ready at an hour's notice.

RAILROADS

LOUIS HILL WILL HEAD MINING CO.

To Leave Railroad Presidency June 1 to Look After Iron Ore Mines.

St. Paul, Minn., May 10.—Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, will retire June 1, to be succeeded by Carl R. Gray, president of the Spokane, Portland & Seattle road, subsidiary to the Great Northern.

J. J. Hill will not retire as chairman of the board of directors of the Great Northern, according to report, but will continue to act in that capacity, and his son, Louis, instead of becoming chairman of the board of directors, will be made president of a holding company which will control the Great Northern's iron ore properties.

He is expected, in time, to take his father's place as chairman of the board of directors.

The Great Western Mining company, which was organized to handle the lease of the Hill iron ore lands on the Mesaba range, for the Steel corporation, has retained but 1,400 acres out of a total acreage of about 48,000 from which it will continue to mine iron ore, until the lease is terminated Jan. 1, 1915.

All of the undeveloped iron lands in the Hill lease have been surrendered. D. M. Philbin, manager of the Hill iron ore properties, recently said that the Great Northern intended to organize a holding company to develop the mines, just as the Steel corporation organized the Oliver Mining company to develop its mines. It is this company which L. W. Hill will head, according to report.

With J. J. Hill in New York and L. W. Hill on the coast, it is impossible to confirm the rumors, but the proposed changes were discussed by a Great Northern official in close touch with matters.

It is believed Mr. Gray will come to St. Paul with L. W. Hill when he returns from Glacier park.

Plan Great Northern Building.

Spokane, Wash., May 10.—Louis W. Hill, retiring president of the Great Northern railway, Carl R. Gray, who will succeed him, and Joseph H. Young, who will succeed Mr. Gray as president of the North Bank lines, met here yesterday and then left for Portland.

Mr. Gray announced that the Great Northern immediately would begin a campaign of expansion and development in the northwest. He declared that appropriations for extending lines into virgin territory in Oregon, Washington and British Columbia would be asked immediately. Mr. Gray will relinquish the presidency of the North Bank lines to Mr. Young on May 15 and on May 19, Louis W. Hill's birthday, he will take over the presidency of the Great Northern.

WILL LOWER GRADE EAST OF BRAINERD

Brainerd, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—For a distance of about a half mile the Northern Pacific railway track is to be lowered ten feet, to do away with a heavy grade four miles east of Brainerd.

A steam shovel and twenty-five men are engaged in the job of changing the road bed.

On May 13 Roadmaster T. J. Tyler of the Lake Superior division will commence laying heavy steel from Staples to Brainerd, replacing the light steel rails with 90-pound steel. The work being done on this end of the division will do much to increase the tonnage hauled by trains.

THREE CREWS ESTABLISHED.

New System on Northern Pacific at East Grand Forks.

East Grand Forks, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three crews have been detailed to this section of the Northern Pacific, and a new system has been established. The crews run from here to Winnipeg and back to Pembina, where they tie up. The next trip takes them from Pembina to this city and back to Winnipg.

VOTE ON SYMPATHETIC STRIKE IN THE SHOPS.

Kansas City, Mo., May 10.—Strike ballots have been sent to 300,000 members of the Federation of Federations to determine whether the men employed on forty-seven railroads west and south of Chicago shall strike in sympathy with the men now on the Harriman lines, according to announcement made here by J. A. Franklin, one of the committee of twelve international presidents.

Mother's Day.

On Sunday, May 12, the Northern Pacific will decorate the dining cars on the North Coast limited with white carnations and will present each patron with a carnation in honor of Mother's Day.

WILL OPPOSE ORDINANCE

Druggists Say New Regulations of Sales of Narcotics Are Too Stringent.

Would Prevent Refilling of Old Prescriptions for Coughs and Colds.

Claiming that under the proposed new ordinance covering the sale of narcotic drugs, it would be impossible to refill even some of the old prescriptions for a cold, without a doctor's written order, the Duluth retail druggists will be represented at the meeting of the council Monday evening, and oppose the passage of the ordinance in its present shape.

The objections of the retail druggists are that many of the common remedies for coughs and colds contain small quantities of opium or morphine, and that they come under the proposed new law, whereas many patent medicines which contain many times as much opium are not affected.

For example, Dover's powder is an old-fashioned remedy for coughs and colds. Many people have a prescription for it, and whenever they are afflicted with a cold or a cough, they visit a druggist and have the prescription filled. It contains a very small portion of opium, which acts as a soothing remedy for the membranes of the throat. The druggists claim that if the new ordinance were passed, it would be impossible to fill this prescription unless it came from a doctor each time, which would mean that the patient would have to pay an additional dollar or more each time he had a cold.

Nearly every cough and cold remedy contains either codein or heroin, which are products of opium, and would come under the proposed ordinance.

The druggists claim that they are to do everything in their power to restrict the sale of narcotics to persons who have formed the habit of using them, or who might form the habit, but they think the proposed ordinance is too stringent, and would be a burden not only on them, but on the people at large.

"Our state association now has a law prepared which will be submitted to the legislature this winter," said W. A. Abbett, president of the Duluth Retail Druggists, this afternoon. "This state association has been studying the situation thoroughly, and this new law will be fair to all concerned. I have no doubt that it will be passed. Our cocaine law is now as stringent and as good a law as exists in any state in the country. I do not believe any Duluth druggists are catering to regular users of narcotics, and I believe the new state law will cover the situation thoroughly and fairly. For that reason we will oppose the proposed ordinance in its present form."

TOUR OF AN ENGLISH CHOIR.

London Chronicle: We have at least one "big thing" to our credit that America has not so far accomplished. The Sheffield choir, now singing in Australia, represents the biggest touring musical enterprise on record.

It numbers 230 all told, and when they return to Yorkshire in a few weeks hence they will have covered 33,000 miles in seven months. The cost of the tour will be £60,000, the transport and hotel expenses absorbing £45,000. The choir has sung to crowded audiences in Canada, New Zealand and Australia, and if the receipts are equal to the expenses the promoters will be satisfied. The youngest member of the choir is a boy of 19, the oldest a man of 72. Three of the choristers are circumnavigating the globe hatless.

LONG TRIP ON MOTORCYCLE

W. L. Foster of Minneapolis on Tour That Will Cover 2,000 Miles.

Is Obtaining First Hand Information on Roads in This Territory.

Under the auspices of the Minneapolis Automobile association, W. L. Foster is making a motorcycle trip of about 2,000 miles through Minnesota and the Dakotas for the purpose of furnishing in book form a guide of all roads, distances, conditions and like information of interest to auto tourists.

Mr. Foster arrived in the city yesterday on his Excelsior and he states that the roads between the Twin Cities and Duluth are very poor at this period of the year.

A good sum of money could be expended to advantage on the roads between Duluth and Hinckley," he said. "The roads between St. Paul and Hinckley are very good. It is at this end of the route that the mud is deep, the roads level and in generally bad shape. Where the roads are rounded the water has run off, leaving it in good shape. The flat roads through the lower parts of the country between Duluth and Hinckley are in very bad shape. I would not advise any one to start out for the Twin Cities by automobile at this time of the year."

Mr. Foster is making a map of all the country he goes through. He expects to leave for range points tomorrow morning. After touring the range, he will go to Brainerd, Fargo and Winnipeg. It is his idea to get authentic information on all the roads in the northern part of the country.

By the time he gets back to the Twin Cities he thinks he will have covered about 2,000 miles. Mr. Foster is making his headquarters at the Kelly Hardware company and will gladly receive any information in regard to Minnesota roads.

EXCURSIONS ON SOUTH SHORE

Annual Low Rates to Detroit and Buffalo Are Published.

The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad company will have their annual cheap excursions East again this year. The first excursion will be on June 8. At that time it will be possible to go from Duluth to Detroit, Mich., for $12.50.

There will be several of thes excursions in June. Tickets will be good for three weeks. Following the first of the excursions there will be week-end trips to both Detroit and Buffalo at a slightly increased figure with tickets good until Sept. 15.

These trips offered by the South Shore road have become very popular. They are by both lake and rail. From Duluth to St. Ignace by rail and thence to Detroit and Buffalo by boat, making a delightful combination lake and rail trip.

On the first excursion out of Duluth it will not only be possible to go to Detroit for $12.50, but the rate to Buffalo will be but $14.50.

The South Shore has a new train on the run between Duluth and St. Ignace and the Detroit & Cleveland line of boats from St. Ignace to Detroit and Buffalo are among the finest passenger boats on the lakes.

A WITTY ROAST.

Los Angeles Times: John Sloan, the well known artist of New York, takes the same intelligent interest in architecture as in painting.

A New York architect, aware of Mr. Sloan's excellent taste, took him in his motor car to see a huge and costly country house that he had erected for a millionaire on a bluff overlooking the Hudson.

As the architect stood with Mr. Sloan on the terrace of the new property, he looked up at the mansion's showy facade, and said thoughtfully:

"Stupendous! But I haven't decided yet what kind of creeper to have in front."

"The Virginia creeper," said Mr. Sloan, "would cover it up quickest."

STEVENSON'S INSPIRATION.

London Chronicle: Stevenson used to assert that the inspiration for his finest work was given to him in dreams. It was the "Brownies" or "Little People" who made his unconscious brain the vehicle for their activities.

He tells the story of how he came to write "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." "I had long been trying to write a story on this subject, to find a body, a vehicle for that strong sense of man's double being which must at times come in and overwhelm the mind of every thinking creature. . . . For two days I went about racking my brains for a plot of any sort; and on the second night I dreamed the scene at the window and a scene, afterward split in two, in which Hyde, pursued for some crime, took the powder and underwent the change in the presence of his pursuers. All the rest was made awake and consciously, although I think I can trace in it much of the manner of my Brownies."

WEALTH AMONG TREASURY SCRAPS.

Philadelphia Record: Unique among government "jobs" is that of the two women who sit side by side down in the basement of the treasury department and spend the entire day going through the contents of the department waste basket. They are searching for stray bonds, checks, and bills that may through some mishap have fallen into the basket.

The positions of the two women are more important than their place on the treasury rolls would indicate, for some time back one of them fished up a $10,000 United States coupon bond. The two women have been doing this work for years and have saved to the government the amount of their annual salaries a hundred times over.

HAIRPINS MAKE CAR GO.

New York Times: On an afternoon run of a local car today several women sacrificed their hairpins, at the peril of losing their "rats," that the car might make the run up School street hill.

The car left on time, but developed fuse trouble. The motorman found that short pieces of metal were necessary to make fuse connections. Being a resourceful man, he opened the front door and asked for a few hairpins. With smiles several women pulled hairpins from their tresses and, by plugging in one hairpin after another, he managed to keep the current on. This trip is now known as the "Hairpin Run."

NO CHANGE IN CONFERENCE

Methodists Table Proposal to Reduce Size of General Body.

Report in Favor of Abolishing Amusement Ban Is Expected.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—By a vote of 418 to 319 the quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church today tabled the report of the committee which recommended the limiting of the size of the general conference of the church to not more than 700 nor less than 500. The present size of the conference is somewhat more than 800.

During the debate on the question this morning, the matter of making the conference body representative of the membership of the church instead of the number of ministers in the church also was discussed, and may be brought before the conference later.

Although the recommendation of the committee that the church constitution be amended to provide for the election of a negro bishop for negro churches of the South was scheduled for settlement today, the conference did not take action, referring the question to the episcopacy committee.

Jubilee in 1913.

The conference also approved the report of the Freedman's Aid society, of which the principal work is among the negroes of the South, that the year 1913 be set aside as a jubilee year by the church for the celebration of the emancipation of the negro.

Amdist enthusiasm, Charles W. Fairbanks, who will make an address tonight before the conference, was introduced by Bishop Luther B. Wilson as the "former president of the senate, former vice president of the United States, but whether in the United States or in Italy, a Methodist."

The sub-committee which will report to the committee on the state of the church late today concerning the "amusement" question, it is said will report by a vote of 9 to 4 to abolish that paragraph of the discipline which prohibits card playing, dancing and kindred amusements.

PRISONERS ARRAIGNED

Fourteen Plead Not Guilty to Indictments Against Them.

Fourteen prisoners indicted by the May grand jury were arraigned in district court late this afternoon before Judge Dancer, and all entered pleas of not guilty.

C. N. Hamilton, charged with having embezzled $2,000 from the People's Brewing company, and indicted for grand larceny, first degree, will probably be released on bonds as soon as they are approved by the court.

Most of the arraignments were on larceny charges. John B. Lessard accused of grand larceny, first degree, and suspected of having burglarized a store at Proctor, was among those to declare their innocence.

Vernon R. Bell, charged with attempted arson, second degree, also pleaded not guilty. He is accused of having attempted to burn a building at West Duluth to collect $200 insurance.

Timber theft charges, brought against four prisoners, Joseph Marshall John Marshall, J. D. Wilson, and Rueben Wilson, were denied when the men were formally arraigned this afternoon.

Other arraignments in which the prisoners pleaded not guilty were: Peter Morozowski, for grand larceny, second degree; Mame Pupavach, for assault, first degree; John Sillampa, for grand larceny, second degree; Carl Covel, for grand larceny, second degree; Axel Hancer, for grand larceny, second degree, and William A. Ganslburg and Joseph Davis, who were each indicted for receiving stolen property.

Unfilled Steel Orders.

New York, May 10.—The unfilled tonnage on the books of the United States Steel corporation on April 30 totals 5,664,885 tons.

SOLDIERS' PET ARMADILLO.

Washington Star: While hunting in the Virginia woods near Bailey's crossroads, in Alexandria county, a few nights ago a pack of dogs belonging to John Monroe and a colored man named Motimer Higgins ran down and killed an animal believed to be an armadillo. The dogs were after opossums and coons, but getting on the scent of the animal followed it for an hour or more before they landed their quarry. Later it was learned that the armadillo belonged to one of the troops of cavalry at Fort Myer. The men had secured a number of the animals while on duty on the Texas border and had brought them to the fort.

The one that was killed had escaped and the men had been hunting the woods for it for several days when they learned it had been killed. This is possibly the only armadillo hunt that ever took place in the vicinity of Washington.

CRIME IN CYPRUS.

Colonial Office Journal: In Cyprus there has been an increase of cases of murder and manslaughter and the chief justice has pointed out the traits in the character of the villager which to some extent explain the prevalence of this class of crime. Any insult rankles and their mind seem to brood over any slight, real or imaginary, however small, until it has assumed proportions which for their selfesteem they consider they must revenge by murder.

There are men in some of these villages who for a small reward, say £10, will murder a man against whom they have a grievance or whom they have never seen before. "I have tried many murderers in this island," writes the chief justice, "and I cannot recall one who was sorry for his victim or showed remorse for his crime. As a rule a murderer boasts of his crime."

A MECCA FOR SPORTSMEN.

Wide World Magazine: The whole of that portion of Africa which owes its growing prosperity to the late Cecil Rhodes, and which was but a comparatively short time ago a vast area known only to the more adventurous explorers and inhabited solely by natives, literally teems with wild life, both great and small. From the sportman's point of view it is one of the most interesting parts of Africa, and it is also extremely gratifying to know that several game reserves have been established, and that certain birds and animals are stringently protected where there is any possibility of their extermination.

It will be well for those who go on a shooting trip in Rhodesia to ascertain just what they may or may not do, for, if necessary, the high commissioners issue notices as to the protection of various species and the reservation of certain areas. However, the prospective sportsman need not be in the least afraid of finding the greater part of Rhodesia a game preserve. There is plenty of room for everybody; the area controlled by the chartered company is about 440,000 square miles—roughly, equal in size to Germany and Austria-Hungary put together!

The best time for sportsmen to arrive in Rhodesia is the beginning of July, for from then until the end of November for game comes out on to the veldt for the young grasses and the country is healthy; moreover, mosquitoes and other insect torments are more or less a negligible quantity. From May to October is the winter season. In Northeastern Rhodesia October is about the best sporting month.

GRASS BAD FOR TREES.

London Daily Mail: At the Woburn experimental fruit farm a long inquiry has been conducted into the effect of grass on trees, and the experiments which have been carried out form the substance of the thirteenth report of the farm, which has just been issued.

It has been shown that the general result of grassing the ground, either by sowing seed or replacing the turf after the trees have been planted, is the arrest of all healthy growth and the absolute stunting of the tree.

A light and unhealthy character imparted to the leaves is one of the first noticeable results of the action of grass upon trees. With trees that are feeling the full effect of grass the fruits are found to be small and ill developed.

The variations in soil temperature are less when the ground is grassed, and this alone would be favorable to the growth of trees; but this good influence is outweighed by the deleterious effects.

CLOTHES AND THE SUFFRAGE.

The librarian of the Biddle Law Library of Philadelphia, Mr. Klingelsmith, offers an interesting argument in favor of woman suffrage. His original premise would seem to be, "By their raiment ye shall judge them." And then he proceeds to describe modern masculine apparel.

"Is it not thick where it should be thin and thin where it should be thick?" he demands in the Old Penn Weekly Review. "Does it not confine the shoulders and fence in the neck and make the shirt one thing where it is seen and another thing where it is not in a most hypocritical and therefore inartistic fashion?—for beauty is truth. Is not the head covering of the modern man stiff, uncomfortable, ungainly, and above all unbeautiful?

"Being neither comfortable, healthful nor beautiful wherein does the dress of modern man convince us that his brain is more deep, his artistic sense more developed, his ability to do all things well more completely demonstrated than does the dress of women, which is individual, colorful, at times graceful, and always interesting?

"If being well and sensibly dressed is a qualification for the ballot should not the situation be reversed and the sex which has the wisdom to wear thin clothes when it is hot and furs when it is cold, which adapts its clothing to the occasion, be the one to express its independence of spirit and sense of the fitness of things in general at the polls."

DISCUSSION ON CARNIVAL

Amusement Question Will Be Thrashed Out at Club Meeting.

Strong Opposition to Carnival Proposed for First Week in July.

Discussions for and against the proposed Fourth of July celebration and carnival in West Duluth will be the feature of the regular weekly meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club this evening.

The final action on the part of the club will be taken this evening. Addresses are to be made by members in favor of and against the plan of bringing a carnival into this end of the city during Fourth of July week. It is probable that several of the members representing the West Duluth branch of the W. C. T. U. will be in attendance to oppose the carnival.

The club recently voted against the carnival and those in favor of the plan raised a storm of protest, until now the club is thought to be about evenly divided on the proposition. The amusement committee of the Woman's Council has also voted against the plan and a letter of protest will be read at the meeting this evening, representing the sentiment of the women of Duluth.

Whether the club will stand by or rescind its action of two weeks ago, will be decided on at the meeting this evening. Very few other business matters will be discussed at the meeting, as the carnival discussion is expected to take up the greater part of the evening.

NEW DOCKS TO BE READY BY FALL

Work on Structures on West Duluth Waterfront Is Progressing.

The docks of the Island Creek Coal company and the Carnegie Coal company at West Duluth will be finished and ready for use on Aug. 15 of this year. The contractors in charge of the construction of the docks expect to have the work finished at that time, so that the fall business may be handled on the new docks.

Dredges are now at work lowering the channels for the Island Creek dock, and concrete foundations are to be put in within a few weeks. A large crew of men are also at work on the Carnegie dock. The Zenith Dredging company is doing the dredge work. The site for the dock is also to be filled in by the dredging company.

The latest marine manual gives the Island Creek dock a capacity of 7,000 tons every ten hours and a storage capacity of 600,000 tons. The water at the dock will be twenty feet deep. The Carnegie dock will have a capacity of 6,000 tons per ten hours and a storage capacity of 325,000 tons. The water at the dock will be twenty-four feet deep. MOUSE SINGS LIKE A RAINCROW.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: A. L. Fleigle of East Alton yesterday bought a lot of mousetraps to recapture a mouse which he says utters musical notes.

For three months Fleigle says he has heard musical sounds in his house at night and he was mystified. It was like the sound of a raincrow, but he kne wthere was no bird in the house. Fleigle caught three mice Tuesday night and among them he noticed one which was uttering notes of music like those he had been hearing. The mouse escaped yesterday noon.

THE IVY HARMLESS.

Youth's Companion: The impression that ivy is harmful to walls of stone or brick has been removed by the testimony of a large number of German architects, builders, foresters and master gardeners.

These trained observers agree that ivy has no tendency to make the walls damp. They maintain, in fact, that the clinging tendrils of the plant extract and absorb any existing moisture and that the thick leaves protect the walls from the action of the weather. Furthermore, they find no evidence that the ivy roots affect the foundation of stone structures.

People Living Near Alborn to Vote on Plan at Election May 18.

Three townships comprising the school districts numbered 33 and 14, near Alborn, will vote on the proposition of consolidating so that advantage may be taken of state aid provided for schools having agricultural, manual training and domestic science courses. The election will be held on May 18.

If the proposition carries, the schoolhouse will be rebuilt to meet the requirements for the new courses. In order to secure state aid, certain requirements are to be met by the school districts. ONE-SEVENTH OF WORLD GOES TO MECCA.

Harper's Magazine: Although one of the most inaccessible cities on earth Mecca each year has visitors in such number that it must be ranked in this particular with London and New York. Even the world's metropolis on the Thames can boast no such cosmopolitan character as is imparted to this mysterious city in the wilderness of Arabia by the myriads of pilgrims, who at the cost of incredible pains annually crowd into its confines.

This city is the oldest place of resort in existence, yet of all the millions who have visited it not a score of Christians are known to have come out alive. No flag of citizenship would save a man's life were he known to be a Christian within the sacred precincts of the city, where the Prophet himself decreed that no unbeliever should set foot.

Of the 225,000,000 Moslems in the world only 15,500,000 live under the Turkish flag, yet most of them acknowledge the Sultan of Turkey as their caliph, the successor of the Prophet. As Mohammed shrewdly foresaw, the Mecca pilgrimage binds together his disciples into a unity which could be effected in no other way.

"Mecca," says Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer of Arabia, "has become the religious capital and the centre of universal pilgrimage for one-seventh of the human race."

AUTO OWNER IS SUED FOR DAMAGES

Morris Eusen Wants to Collect $3,000 From Louis Oreck.

In less than two weeks after the date on which he alleges he was injured, Morris Eusen has filed a personal injury action in district court against Louis Oreck. He claims that Oreck ran him down with an automobile, and asks $3,000 general and $75 special damages.

Eusen is an upholsterer by trade and Oreck, the defendant, is a local merchant.

Eusen alleges that on the evening of April 27 last, while crossing from the south to the north side of Superior street in front of the Miller hotel, between Second and Third avenues west, he was struck and knocked down by an automobile driven by Louis Oreck.

Eusen claims that the car was being driven at an excessive rate of speed; that he was given no warning of approach, and that as a result of the accident his left hand and left arm were badly crushed and that his chest and back were injured.

FIRST ISSUE OF NEW CITY BONDS

Certificates of Indebtedness for $97,000 to Cover Improvements.

The city is issuing the first batch of the certificates of indebtedness made necessary by the passage of the charter amendment giving property owners three years in which to pay for public improvements.

The first bunch is for $97,000, payable in one, two and three years and bearing interest at 5 per cent. These are being issued to cover improvements which have already been ordered for this season. The largest job will be the paving of East Fourth street between Fourteenth and Twenty-third avenues, which is now under discussion by the city officials and the property owners as to the width it shall be paved and the kind of material which shall be used. The bonds are in denominations of $1,000 each.

SNEEZING AS AN OMEN.

Answers: The only attention we pay to a sneeze at the present day is to endeavor to get rid of the chill which causes it; but a sneeze in the days of old Greece was a matter of great concern and import.

There was then a god of sneezing, and great undertakings would even be abandoned if a man sneezed at an inappropriate moment, the act being looked upon as the oracle of the god.

A sneeze between midnight and noon was looked upon as a fortunate sign, but between noon and midnight it betokened great misfortune. To sneeze to your right was lucky; to the left unlucky. Two or four sneezes were lucky, one or three very unlucky and any undertaking in hand should if possible be abandoned; more than four sneezes did not count.

There is a saying in many parts of England today, "Once a wish, twice a kiss, three times a letter, four times something better." If people sneezed together it was a good sign, particularly if they happened to be discussing business.

MANSARD'S RASCALLY SON.

London Globe: The great hall of the Hotel de Ville of Aries, designed by Mansard, is the wonder and admiration of every one who has seen it on account of the groined roof.

In regard to this a neighboring cafetier tells a somewhat grim story. King Louis XVI. happened to be passing through the city just at the time Mansard was superintending the completion of his creation. The roof was supported by a powerful pillar. The monarch admired the work and congratulated the architect on his design. At that moment the architect was passing through great domestic tribulation. He had a son under sentence of death, so he thought it would be a good opportunity to intercede on behalf of the lad.

Mansard threw himself at the feet of the king and said: "Your majesty sees in the centre that massive column? If you will spare the life of my son I will remove the unsightly pillar and the roof shall stand without support." "Mansard," replied the king, "if you accomplish that miracle I will pardon your son, but if you fail I will hang you with him."

The architect removed the pillar without great difficulty and with the result desired. The cafetier is a philosopher and he concludes his story with the reflection that had not Mansard's son been a scamp the hall at Aries would be just like any other hall.

THE AVERAGE BOY.

Los Angeles Times: Lord Tankerville, on the Cunard pier in New York said of the international school question:

"The subject of the American versus the English school has been too much discussed. The good got from a school depends, after all, on the school boy chiefly, and I'm afraid the average school boy is well reflected in that classic school boy letter home which said:

"'Dear parents: We are having a good time now at school. George Jones broke his leg coasting and is in bed. We went skating and the ice broke and all got wet. Willie Brown was drowned. Most of the boys here are down with influenza. The gardener fell into our cave and broke his rib, but he can work a little. The aviator man at the race course kicked us because we threw sand in his motor and we are all black and blue. I broke my front tooth playing football. We are very happy.'"

HAS STRANGEST BOUDOIR.

New York Press: Princess Abamelek-Lazarew of Florence, who belongs to the Russian house of Demidoff, has the strangest boudoir in the world, and has chosen the most unusual sort of embellishment for her private retreat. This tiny room is in the famous villa of Pratolini, outside Florence, near Fiesole, and all the pictures, furniture, lights and ornaments represent the osculatory art. In the backs of the chairs are cherubs in the act of kissing each other; in the chandeliers are pairs of doves with their beaks touching. Even the electric bell on the table near the princess couch is made of two little peasant figures, and the sound comes only when their lips touch. There are dainty pictures of all the great love scenes in history and romance, the leavetaking of Romeo, the farewell of Mary Stuart and David Rizzio, the Huguenot lovers, Launcelot and Guinevere and their unhappy followers, Francesca da Rimini and Paolo. The cushions of fine embroidered silk or tapestry show rustic love scenes wherein the actors are saluting each other in vigorous fashion. The princess has passed years in gathering her Cupid trophies, and her room in that wonderful villa is filled with the treasures of the Medici.

A USEFUL WIFE.

Chicago Journal: Eskimo widowers often marry again within a week after the demise of the wife. The helpmate of the savage does most of the work, and he is almost helpless without her. She makes and breaks camp, cooks, cuts up her husband's kill and carries it to camp. She dresses the skins of deer and seal. She makes the footgear and clothes, paddles the canoe and carries every burden. Without her no domestic arrangement can go forward.

KOREAN MARRIAGE CUSTOMS.

Wide World Magazine: The Koreans marry young—sometimes as early as 12 or 14—the matches being arranged by the older people, as in China and Japan. The young folk have very little to say in the matter. After marriage the young couple usually live with the husband's parents—in the old patriarchal fashion. The wife, provided her husband is able to afford servants, is kept pretty closely at home, only the women of the lower classes going out much in public.

WEATHER IS PROPITIOUS

Wheat Reacts From High Figures of Thursday—Prices Are Lower.

Great Scarcity of High Grades of Flaxseed Causes Large Bulge.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 10.—Wheat closed lower on the markets of North America, reacting from yesterday's bulge, but not entirely wiping it out. Duluth July closed at a decline of ½c. Cash wheat closed ½c over July. Durum closed 1c off, oats ⅝c off and rye and barley unchanged. Duluth May flaxseed today advanced 4½c and July 2c.

The wheat markets of North America failed to pull together during the morning. At noon Duluth, Chicago and Winnipeg were all a little higher and Minneapolis was a bit lower. Most of the market news was bullish, but there was little that was new in regard to the bullish factors that have been known for some days to exist. About the only new factor was the report of a heavy frost in Russia, damaging the wheat crop of that country. This seemed to have some effect on the wheat market of Liverpool, though it was offset by bearish news from Argentina.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.18 nsked, opened today at $1.17½ bid, and at noon was selling at $1.18¼. Wheat on the Liverpool market closed ⅜d lower to ⅛d higher.

Primary receipts of wheat on the American markets were considerably smaller today than they were a year ago. This has been the case for some weeks.

The bearish factors on the Liverpool market were mainly the pressure to sell Manitoba, and free Platte offers on account of reports of good weather in Argentina.

Flaxseed Goes Skyward.

A growing conviction on the part of both buyers and sellers to the effect that first-class flaxseed is, and is going to continue, a very scarce article, culminated today in a big bulge in the price. Much of the flax that is now coming in from the country is very light and will not grade high. Such flax will not produce much oil. The same thing is true of the flax that is being received on the market at Winnipeg from the farms of Saskatchewan. Both Duluth and Winnipeg had big advances of flaxseed today. Duluth May at noon today was 4½c up at $2.24, and Winnipeg May was 2½c higher at $1.99. Another factor that boosted the Duluth seed was that Minneapolis, instead of bidding under Duluth, was actually bidding a premium of 1c over the Duluth May price. News from London was bullish. Calcutta May and June seed on that market closed today at $2.30⅜, being 5½c up. Buenos Ayres May seed closed last night unchanged at $1.75½.

MARKET GOSSIP

The receipts of bonded grain from the Canadian Northwest have dwindled to insignificance. Today the receipts amounted to only 16 cars, but a vast amount of Canadian bonded grain has been handled since last fall, this amount being more than 20,000,000 bu. in excess of what was handled during the corresponding period a year ago. The handling of domestic grain at Duluth and Superior this crop year also shows quite an increase over what was handled during the previous crop year. This is evident from the following tables:

A wire from Winnipeg says: "Although heavy rains fell for three days during the past week, 75 per cent of the wheat has been sown in the prairie provinces. According to the Canadian Pacific crop report issued this morning it is estimated that from 65 to 70 per cent of the grain has been seeded in Manitoba, 80 per cent in Saskatchewan and 85 per cent in Alberta."

• • •

Ryeroft wired from Chicago: "The map shows rain in the corn belt, where dry weather is plainly the one thing wanted. Every day's delay now in getting the corn planted reduces the chances of a crop. In Western Kansas, where rain is badly needed for the weakened wheat plant, no rain is reported. In this section the crop is going backward every day that passes without soaking rains."

The following was received from B. W. Snow:

"I am getting special returns from my country agents relative to the corn situation. Ten scattered counties in Tennessee show corn planting under way in five of them. Corn planting is not yet finished in any of them. The first ten counties in Ohio show no corn planting done up to date. Ten in Michigan make the same showing. Ten in Indiana show no planting done. Ten in Illinois show no planting, and plowing only begun. Of ten in Iowa, only one shows any planting of consequence. The first five in Kansas show no planting and of the first ten in Kansas, only two show any considerable part of the crop planted. Out of eight in Nebraska, only one shows enough planted to report on. The season is fully a month late in the better part of the corn belt and unless weather conditions are exceptionally good, it is going to be difficult to get a full acreage in it at all."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Ease Off on News of Rain in the Grain Fields.

Chicago, May 10.—General rains all through the spring crop and hard winter territory had a tendency today to ease off the price of wheat. Reports of large sales of the cash grain here caused a rally, but the effect did not last. Bears were encouraged to some extent by news of liberal arrivals at Liverpool and by cables telling of free offerings from India and Argentina. The opening was ¼@⅝c lower to a shade up. July started at $1.14⅝@1.14⅝, varying from ⅛@¼c off to a sixteenth advance, declined to $1.14⅛@1.14¼, ran up to $1.14⅜@1.14⅞, and again fell back to $1.14⅜@1.14½.

Prospects of planting being further delayed gave some strength to corn. Actions that North Dakota acreage would fall 30 to 40 per cent under last year brought a temporary upturn but realizing sales carried the market lower than before. Closing prices were weak with July 1c net lower at $1.13½@1.13⅝.

The bearish tone of wheat, however, acted as an offset. July opened ⅛c lower to a shade up at 78¼@78⅜c to 78½c, touched 78½@78⅝c and then ragged to 78¼c.

Prices hardened for a time when wheat became firm. The close was steady at 78⅛c for July, a net loss of ¼@⅜c.

Buying on the part of a leading house lifted the oats market at first. Prices receded, though, on profit-taking. July started ⅛c down to a like advance at 54½@54¾c, and declined to 54¼@54⅜c.

Provisions showed decided weakness, the result, it was said, of recent poor demand from consumers, notably in lard. First sales were 5@7½c to 17½@20c lower, with September delivery $19.52½@19.60 for pork, $11.02½@11.10 for lard and $10.60@10.62½ for ribs.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Prices Ascend to High Level of Day in the Final Hour.

Especial Strength in Steel Owing to Favorable Unfilled Tonnage Report.

New York, May 10.—Decided strength was shown by the stock market at the opening today. Amalgamated Copper and Missouri Pacific rose a point each with material fractional gains in United States Steel, American Smelting and some of the standard railway shares. Small declines were recorded by Canadian Pacific and Pennsylvania.

Prices made further improvements in the first hour with especial strength in United States Steel, Union Pacific, and other standard shares. Illinois Central recovered almost 2 points from yesterday's acute weakness, but failed to hold all its gain. The undertone of the general list reflected quiet, but effective support. American Tobacco jumped 6½.

A large part of the early rise was lost in the second hour, when the market became duller and more hesitating. United States Steel and Union Pacific fell back to opening prices, while Reading and St. Paul went under. American Can common and preferred went higher than before but the dealings in the other specialties were perfunctory. The movement as a whole lacked initiative on either side and by noon the list drifted lower. Bonds were irregular.

United States Steel's unfilled tonnage report for April, showing an increase of 360,000 tons over the preceding month, was somewhat better than the most sanguine expectations, but failed to exercise more than momentary influence on the stock or the general market. Business continued to fall away during the noon hour and price changes were meaningless. Reports of another advance in finished products by a leading subsidiary of the Steel corporation failed to stimulate the list in the slightest degree.

Aside from a brisk rise in Lehigh Valley, which rose to 170½, further gains in American Beet Sugar, Bethlehem Steel preferred, American Can preferred and Railway Steel Springs, the second hour of the afternoon was dull and unimportant.

The market closed strong. Prices ascended to the high level of the day in the final hour with especial strength in United States Steel, Union Pacific, Lehigh Valley, and some of the highly speculative specialties.

COPPER STOCKS STILL HIGHER

The Producers' Report Causes Red Metal to Advance in Value.

Copper stocks closed still higher today than yesterday, as a result of the Copper Producers' report for May, showing a much smaller increase in the supplies of copper on hand. Today the price of copper went up on the Eastern American markets. Many dealers that were heretofore asking only 15¾ cents a pound suddenly jumped their price to 16¼ cents. Although copper took a great bulge on the London market yesterday, it went still higher today. There were good advances in Calumet & Arizona, Giroux, Greene Cananea, Amalgamated and Hancock.

Paine, Webber & Co. today received the following wire from the East: "Second hand dealers, who were selling small lots of copper at 15¾c prior to the publication of the Copper Producers' report have since received as high as 16¼c for spot copper."

* * *

H. A. Guck wired the following to Gay & Sturgis today from Houghton, Mich.: "There may be signs of a let-up in the purchasing of copper metal in the Eastern market, but there are no such signs here. The local smelting plants are clean of copper now and have orders booked ahead for sixty days in numerous instances. The boats have been coming in this week, taking good cargoes, and notwithstanding the fact that heavy shipments have been sent forward by water, there is a continuance of rail shipments to domestic consumers."

DIVINITY AND HUMANITY.

Puck: The first sight of Sheba's queen threw King Solomon into raptures. "Divine!" he murmured.

But before he committed himself definitely he caused his secret service men to do some investigating.

"Look," directed His Majesty, "at the queen's throne—not her best throne, but the throne she uses every day. Especially the nooks and crannies—let no nook nor cranny escape you."

The secret service men did even as they were bidden, and came back to the king.

"Under the arm of the throne, this!" they succinctly reported, holding up a wad of gum. Solomon's face fell. "Human!" he sighed.

HIS POINT OF VIEW.

Los Angeles Times: There was an old minister in New Orleans of German extraction who was an ardent advocate of temperance and never lost an opportunity to assail the liquor traffic and those who dealt in it.

In spite of this, the old man loved his one glass of beer each day, which he had never known to exceed.

One day a small boy in the neighborhood asked him what he thought of a man who drank whisky until he was drunk.

"He is a wicked man, my lad," said the old minister.

"And what about the man that gets drunk on beer?" asked the lad, with a mischievous twinkle in his eye.

"Oh!" said the old man, "he is a hog. He is a hog."

THE BIRTHDAY PRESENT.

Los Angeles Times: "Big Tim" Sullivan was being congratulated by a New York reporter on the superb charity of his annual Christmas dinner to 7,000 Bowery men.

"Well," said Mr. Sullivan modestly, "I confess it's at least a charity that pleases its recipients. It's not like the young lady's birthday present to her beau.

"A young lady, having landed a young man at last, thought she'd give him a birthday present. So she went into a cigar store and said:

"'Give me 5 cents' worth of your very best cigars, please.'"

ABOLISHES TRADE COURT

House Passes Executive, Legislative and Judicial Appropriation Bill.

Makes Some Radical Changes in Government Departments.

Washington, May 10.—The house today passed the executive, legislative and judicial appropriation bill carrying $33,782,854, an increase of $263,260 over the total carried in the measure when it was reported to the house.

The principal item of increase was the appropriation for the San Francisco, New Orleans and Carson, Nev., mints, and for assay offices at Boise, Ida., Charlotte, N. C., Deadwood, S. D., Helena, Mont., Seattle, Wash., and Salt Lake City. The house refused to accept the provision abolishing those offices.

The house reversed its previous action, by voting not to increase from $1,500 to $2,000 the salary of the private secretaries to the representatives. The increase would have aggregated $216,000 a year.

Abolish Commerce Court.

The bill provides:

Abolition of the United States commerce court and the restoration to the interstate commerce commission of all railroad regulatory power, subject to appeal only to United States district courts.

Creation of a bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, with all the present powers of the so-called tariff board to be under the jurisdiction of the secretary of commerce and labor. The new bureau would absorb the bureau of trade relations of the state department and the bureaus of manufactures and statistics of the department of commerce and labor.

Concentration of the distribution of public documents, of which millions are sent annually from Washington in the government printing office.

The fight for the abolition of the commerce court was led by Representative Sims of Tennessee, Democrat, who framed the legislation abolishing that tribunal.

He was opposed by Representatives Driscoll of New York and Stevens of Minnesota, Republicans, but when the provision was adopted 120 to 49, many Republicans voted with the Democrats.

THAT THE Republican Voters May Know!

The indications are that Roosevelt will carry the St. Louis county primaries Saturday evening.

The local Federal machine is getting desperate. It is doing its utmost to frustrate the popular will.

It is playing for uninstructed delegations, both to the state and district conventions.

"Anything to Beat Roosevelt" is the battle cry, but the opposition is afraid to name its choice.

In this contest there should be no place for a straddler.

Even Democrats have been invited to take a hand in this contest. We have reliable information that conferences are held between the field marshal of the Federal machine and a certain Duluth Democratic politician, who has the reputation of controlling a large element of his party.

Why these conferences?

Has it come to this, that the leaders of the Grand Old Party must get the aid and advice of Democratic bosses on the all-important question as to who should be the nominee of our party for president?

We Republicans think that we have sufficient intelligence to decide that matter for ourselves without the advice and counsel of the Democratic bosses.

The hope of the Federal machine is the indifference of the people.

Lest you forget, we again beg to remind you that the Republican Primaries will be held Saturday night, May 11, (tomorrow night), from 7 to 9, at the usual voting precincts.

CLAPP RAILROAD BILL IS FAVORED

Senate May Pass Measure Extending Liability on Bills of Lading.

Washington, May 10.—The interstate commerce committee of the senate today reported favorably the Clapp bill of lading measure, establishing a rule of evidence as to greater liability of railroads. Senator Townsend gave notice that he would file a minority report, while Senator Pomerene announced he would press his substitute bill.

Under the measure reported, every railroad or other common carrier in the United States engaged in interstate or foreign commerce would be liable on bills of lading issued by its authorized agents, notwithstanding the agents had not received the goods.

At present the railroads are not liable under such circumstances, and bankers and consignees complain they are defrauded out of money on the bills of lading.

NOT NOWADAYS.

Los Angeles Times: A millionaire said in the restaurant of the Waldorf-Astoria:

"I once spent Washington's birthday with Henry M. Flagler in his magnificent Florida residence. As we took our coffee, after luncheon, under a palm in his Palm Beach garden, Mr. Flagler praised George Washington's truthfulness.

"He said we didn't now draw the same sharp line between truth and falsehood that Washington drew. He said a school teacher once requested those children who had never told a lie to raise their hands.

"After a doubtful pause, two or three little hands went up. Then another hand was raised and lowered uncertainly, and its small owner asked:

"'Teacher, is it a lie if nobody finds it out?'"

HEINE IN LONDON.

London Chronicle: Heine did not like London, but the London county council liked Heine, for the passerby is now reminded by the usual encaustic tile that the poet once lived in Craven street, Strand. "As he looked out of his lodging Heine exclaimed, 'Send a philosopher to London, but no poet. This downright earnestness of all things, this colossal uniformity, this machinelike movement, this moroseness even in pleasure, this exaggerated London smothers the imagination and rends the heart."

But if Heine did not love London he found something within easy reach to warm the imagination and fire the heart—the chalk cliffs of Ramsgate in mid-June, with a beautiful Irish girl to assist in the process.

HOW TO SLEEP.

London Globe: Dr. Fischer, a physician practicing in Paris, has turned his attention to the matter of sleeping reform. After a series of experiments he has come to the conclusion that the orthodox way of sleeping is wrong and advocates a complete reversal of the existing order of things.

You must have your head on a level with or lower than your feet. If pillows are to be used they must be under the feet instead of the head. The result, he claims, will be amazing, being a sure cure for insomnia as well as a preventive for the nightmare. To prevent any inconvenience by too sudden a change the pillows should be gradually reduced and finally placed under the feet.

HOW TO USE A LIFE PRESERVER.

American Boy: The worst trouble about a life preserver," said an old sailor, "is that few people know what to do with one when it's thrown to them. Many a man would drown in trying to get a life preserver over his head.

"The average person struggling about in the water would try to lift up the big life ring and put it over his head. That only causes the man to sink deeper and take mort water into his lungs.

"The proper way to approach a life preserver in the water is to take hold of the side nearest you and press upon it with all your weight. That causes the other side to fly up in the air and down over your head, 'ringing' you as neatly as a man ringing a cane at a country fair. After that the drowning man can be rescued."

"ROOMY UNDERGROUND CELLS."

Westchester County Magazine: Between the years 1830-61 there hung in the St. Charles hotel, Washington, D. C., a sign bearing these words:

"The proprietor has roomy underground cells for confining slaves for safekeeping, and patrons are notified that their negroes will be well cared for, and in case of an escape the full value of the negro as set by the owner will be paid by the proprietor."

The hotel stood on Pennsylvania avenue and was for years the headquarters of the prominent slaveholders of the South, likewise it was the home of the leading statesmen of those days.

There were eleven of these cells, each built to hold twenty-five full-grown men. Here these men were detained until the owner or owners were ready to depart with their ..man property to their own plantations or to the slave markets of the South.

JEALOUS FISHES IN A DUEL.

London Daily Mail: "Fish are liable to the same passions as you and I, and they fight and love as we do," said Dr. Francis Ward. "I can show you a photograph of a rainbow trout in what would have been a fight to the death if I had not interfered. In a pond were a big female trout and her partner, who resented the intrusion of another trout.

"Suddenly one fish charged the other and seized him by the jaw. He shook his opponent as a dog shakes a rat, and kept on until his enemy floated to the top. Then I took the fish out and revived it with a little weak whisky and water."

COURT INTERRUPTION IN KENTUCKY.

Shepherdsville News: We suppose that Judge S. E. Jones of the Tenth judicial circuit witnessed one transaction in his court that is without parallel. In December, 1898, while the judge and several lawyers were busily engaged in the trial of an equity case, Grover Maraman came into court with a dressed opossum and inquired for Bill Herps. The trial was stopped until Bill was found and the sale of the opossum consummated. Bill left with his opossum and the trial proceeded.

SWIFT'S JOKE ON PARTRIDGE.

London Chronicle: Partridge, the almanac maker, who taught Old Moore his business will be remembered as the victim of an extraordinary practical joke played on him by Dean Swift.

Against Partridge's almanac for 1708 the dean published a rival almanac, predicting Partridge's death on March 29, about 11 at night, of a raging fever. And on March 30 appeared a pamphlet giving an account of the almanac maker's death with his confession that he was an imposter. This was followed by Swift's "Elegy on the Death of Mr. Partridge," which so completed the deception that the Stationers company struck Partridge off the rolls and applied for an injunction against the publication of almanacs in his name.

Partridge advertised that he "was not only alive, but was also alive upon March 29." But no one believed him.

NOT HER QUARREL.

Youth's Companion: The fact that corporal punishment is discouraged in the public schools of Chicago is what led Bobby's teacher to address this note to the boy's mother:

"Dear madam: I regret very much to have to tell you that your son, Robert, idles away his time, is disobedient, quarrelsome and disturbs the pupils who are trying to study their lessons. He needs a good whipping and I strongly recommend that you give him one. Yours truly,

"MISS BLANK."

To this Bobby's mother responded as follows:

"Dear Miss Blank: Lick him yourself. I ain't mad at him. Yours truly,

"MRS. DASH."

AMERICA WILL NEED BEST TEAM TO WIN

United States Has Grand Material for Olympic Team If All Athletes Can Make the Trip.

New York, May 10.—Another first-class representative from America will be Tewanina of Carlisle, who seems to have no difficulty in getting rid of his competitors in the ten and fifteen-mile races. T. S. Berna is without a peer as a two-miler and is going to make the middle distance men from the other countries hustle to finish within a block of him.

So much for the men who have been tried and found O. K. in international athletics, and now to turn to the untried men who must be chosen to wear the red, white and blue shield in the dashes and hurdles.

In the hurdles there is the usual number of starts to choose from. This time, however, the college men seem to be the whole show. Beeson and Macllse of California, Chisholm of Yale and a couple of others of the rah-rah boys have records of 15.2 over the high sticks, and America should not suffer in this event.

The century sprint is a difficult problem for the committee to solve. If the intercollegiate champion, Craig, makes up his mind to compete and rounds into good form, the country will be well represented in both of the short dashes, but aside from him the choice seems to lie between Gwyn Henry of Texas and Rosenberger of the I. A. A. C., both of whom have showed ten-second form.

The quarter-milers are also all to the candy, as such men as Young of Amherst, McArthur of Cornell, Davenport of Chicago and Hough of Pennsylvania will uphold the honor of the country without any trouble. All of these men can go well under 50 sec., Young having made 48.4, while Davenport is credited with the same time in a relay.

Field Events.

In the field events America suffers from the fact that Flanagan, the champion hammer thrower, is a citizen of the United Kingdom and will compete for that nation at the games. However, such men as Shattuck of California and Matt McGrath are sure to uphold the tradition of an American winner in the hammer.

Rice of California, Rose of the Olympic club and several others among the Americans are capable shot-putters, while Martin Sheridan will probably be back at the old stand in the discus throw, with a couple of Eastern college men to back him up.

Among the high jumpers, Horine of Stanford stands out as the daddy of them all with his mark of 6 feet 6⅛ inches. There are any number of others in America who can make 6 feet 3 inches, so that there is no need to worry about the high steppers.

Americans have also made the best marks in among the broad jumpers of the world this year. Gutterson of Vermont and Irons of Chicago have both made over 24 feet recently, while Dan Kelly and Allen of California are not far behind.

The American pole vaulters always have been, and seem to be now, without competitors among the foreigners. With Cooke, Bellah, Dray and any number of others making over 12 feet regularly, there is no need to worry about the winner in this event being an American.

The prospects for the American team to win the international championship in the track and field contests at the Olympic Games to be held in Stockholm in a few months, depends largely upon whether this country can get the best representatives of the country to compete in the games.

There is practically no doubt but that the Americans possess enough first-class athletes to get away with the majority of the points, but the problem before the committee, as soon as the money is raised to send the men, is that of getting the best available material to go over to the games.

In times gone by, the Americans have been able to win the championships easily, but this year, there seems to be more men than usual who claim to be unable to make the trip. The team that won the championship in Athens in 1906 was practically intact at the games in London in 1908.

This time the old athletes have largely retired and had their places taken by the younger generation. Not a single man who represented the United States in the races up to the 880 is in the running at the present time. Cloughton, Robertson, Rector, Robbins, Taylor, Cartmell and all the rest are now on the shelf.

The same state of affairs holds good in the hurdle races. Smithson, Rand, Garrells, Bacon and Hillman are none of them doing anything in the line of athletics at the present time and as well representing both of the short dashes, but aside from him the choice seems to lie between Gwyn Henry of Texas and Rosenberger of the I. A. A. C., both of whom have showed ten-second form.

A. A. C., both of whom have showed ten-second form.

However, in the distances, a different story is told. The two best men who represented the U. S. A., at London, Sheppard and Putman, are both running in as good or better form than ever and in addition there are a great many more classy distance men in the country now.

In 1908 Sheppard was the only man in the country who could make half-mile runners look like a mile run. At way decent time in the mile there are at least four men in training who can negotiate the mile in under 2:20 and the same number in the two minute half in well under the two minute mark.

Take the records made in the 880 last year. Melvin Sheppard did 1:54:3; J. P. Jones did 1:54:4; Ten Eyvenport did 1:56:3, and any number of others were within a fraction of a second of this bunch of speeders.

In the mile run there are at least four men who are as good as any in the world in this event. Starting with John Paul Jones, the phenomenal distance runner from Cornell university, who set a new world's record of 4:15:2 at the Harvard stadium.

Then there is A. R. Paull of Pennsylvania with a record of 4:17:4 and Abel Kiviat and Mel Sheppard, who can also beat the 4:20 mark. This bunch can show their heels to any four mile runners in the world.

It is to be hoped that the same system that prevailed at London will not be used at Stockholm. At London it was ruled that only one man in each heat could qualify and as chance would have it, both Sheppard and Putnam, our only representatives, were drawn in the same heat and finished within a yard of each other, Putnam being left out of the finals when he could easily have pulled down third place.

At the games in London, Eisle of the New York A. C. was the only American to make any showing at all in the distance runs. This year our distance men seem to have a great chance with the foreigners. George Bonhag is running better than ever before and is smashing records right and left in the grinds.

HARVARD CREW FACES DANGER OF DEFEAT

Boston, Mass., May 10.—With only two weeks in which to prepare for the big triangular boat race with Cornell and Princeton over the two-mile course on the Charles river, the Harvard eight will make a last attempt to recover from the slump which has characterized its rowing during the past six weeks. Despite Coach Wray's numerous changes in the boat, the crew is still rowing badly, and unless a great improvement is shown during this week, the Crimson's hopes for success on the water on May 23, will be thoroughly blasted.

Crew Is Rowing Badly.

Never in the last seven years has a university crew at Harvard been so far behind at this advanced stage of the season. Last Saturday, when a two-mile race was staged with the Union boat club eight of Boston, the Harvard crew looked like a bunch of amateurs, and only because of brute strength managed to win out by a scant length of open water.

The continued shifting of Chanler and Eager as strokes from the first to the second eights keeps the boat in a state of uncertainty. Often Coach Wray will take the university crew out for a spin and cause shifts to be made on the river from first to second eights. But not alone with the stroke position does this occur. Every seat in the university boat has been filled by different men except that of No. 6 and No. 4, in which Captain Strong and Goodale respectively row. The other day Newton, who has been rowing No. 5 intermittently, was left entirely out and the crew went out with seven men.

New Shell for Cornell.

The information that Cornell has built a fast shell has stirred the Harvard rowing authorities to make another trial of the boat designed by Mr. Crane of New York. This is a shell which is "sawed off" at the stern, coming out wide and flat. It is built along the lines of "The Dixie IV.," the fast power boat designed by the same Mr. Crane. On several trials this shell has proved unwieldy to balance. The coxswain has experienced a great deal of difficulty in keeping course, and in other ways the boat has not been regarded as the shell in which to row against Cornell and Princeton on the 23rd. The latest trials have not proved any better than the first ones, and it is quite unlikely that Harvard will attempt to use it this season in any race.

The fact that the Harvard second crew was defeated by the Annapolis second a week ago last Saturday gives rise to the question whether the Harvard system is not beginning to deteriorate. The Crimson second eight is just about as fast as the first. If, therefore, the Crimson's big eight is not any better than the Navy's second crew, one can easily conclude that something must be going wrong.

Big Race on Card.

This year will be an important one in rowing for both Harvard and Yale. The race against Cornell and Princeton on May 23 will be a preliminary test for Harvard before the classic event on the Thames in June. Yale will row no preliminary races this year. All efforts are being concentrated toward perfecting a crew that will take Harvard's measure on the Thames and thus break up the long string of consecutive defeats. Yale will be a dark horse when the starter's pistol is fired; Harvard will most probably have discovered that there is only one good crew in America after all, that one being at Ithaca, and both Harvard and Yale will realize that although their race is still regarded as the classic aquatic event of the year, it will be one which will have no direct bearing upon the championship of the United States.

KNOCKOUT BLOW IS SCORNED BY PACKEY

(By Packey M'Farland.)

"My business is boxing, and like one engaged in any calling and striving for success, I have made a study of the game, believing that in that way alone I could achieve my ambition. To begin with, I was convinced early in my career that the first aids to one ambitious to succeed in the ring are brains, willingness to work hard and the power of observation. Next to these I found that the sooner one realizes he can always learn something new the quicker and surer his success will be.

"All these important facts I firmly settled in my mind and went to work making a study of boxing rather than fighting because I knew the surest way to best an opponent is to 'outscience' him, as it were. Accordingly it has always been my aim to develop first an ability to make the other fellow do things he does not mean to do, and thus make him miss. I have paid a lot of attention to my footwork and the art of dodging, ducking and retreating from the attack of an opponent. On these things I believe has hinged my success.

"Many a fight fan, mostly those who have not studied the fine points of the game, has a notion that a successful pugilist must be a hard hitter, aggressive and always with blood in his eye. The bel

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

Heartbreak and insufferable longing were written in deep lines on the face of Mrs. Carrie Olson when she came into the police station yesterday to seek information of the whereabouts of her three youngest children.

The mother of seven children, the three babies were taken from her about nine or ten years ago and placed in an orphanage. That much she knows about them, but from there she has lost track of them. She was half crazed with grief and sorrow as she tried to tell her story.

It seems that her husband died shortly before the children were taken from her by her consent. There were four others, and with what help she was able to get from them they continued to keep house. They agreed with the authorities that it would be best for her as well as for the children that the state take charge of the smaller ones.

Why and how she allowed them to drop from her sight for so many years she was unable to make clear. As nearly as could be ascertained, she went on the theory that they would remain with the authorities where first placed, and that she would be able to get them, or learn about them at any rate.

From the orphanage it is believed that the children were sent to a state institution in the southern part of the state. That has not been definitely ascertained, however. The officials were interested in the story of the aged woman at once, and promised that they would do all in their power to help her. The records will be carefully scanned, and if time has not removed them beyond reach, their whereabouts will be ascertained.

Mrs. Olson did not say that she wanted to take the children back to her own home. But being in total darkness as to their location and conditions worried her tremendously. She sobbed that if she could only learn that they are safe and in good hands, she would be greatly relieved, if not entirely satisfied.

The police have been asked to aid in a search being made for Thomas Young of Stambaugh, Mich. The last heard of him he was in Duluth or vicinity, in the employ of the Alger-Smith company. It was stated that he may have gone to Hill City, Minn. His brother William is dying at his home in Michigan and is anxious to see him.

Mary Beaucowich, who was tried yesterday on a charge of selling liquor at New Duluth without a license, was found not guilty and discharged. The court thought that there was merit to her story that she was the victim of a man who wished to be revenged on her for causing his conviction on a similar charge some week ago. Mary said that Mike Jerkovich, who was the only witness against her and who she contended had been hired to get her into trouble, had stolen the bottle of beer introduced in evidence from the kitchen of a neighbor. She produced the neighbor woman, who said that she had seen Mike take the beer from her place.

Frank Frost, arrested yesterday on a charge of barbering without a license, was given a suspended sentence. He made application for a license and paid the fee necessary to take the examination.

When Victor Bodin came to his senses in the police station this morning he made a hasty examination of his pockets to find out if he had any money. Then he called in the police and wanted to know if he had had any cash in his clothes when he was brought into headquarters. He was informed that he did not have a cent. Victor said that before he accumulated his jag yesterday he had $65 in real money. He doesn't remember what happened and the probabilities are that he was robbed. He said that he had spent most of the afternoon and evening in booze emporiums along Lake avenue south. It's a 100 to 1 shot that he has seen the last of his roll.

Sam Koval was arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of having violated the traffic ordinance. The police reported that he had left his team facing the wrong way on Michigan street. He pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $1 and costs.

Scores of people were attracted by the peculiar formation of the fog which overhung the lake early this morning. It was low and dense. The top of the aerial bridge rose above it like a spectre without a foundation. Beyond the mouth of the canal the stack of a steam boat appeared to be belching forth smoke from nothing. Further off the masts of another vessel looked like slender ghosts, barely moving along. And in the morning quiet the sounding of the fog horns and shrill sirens gave the whole unique scene an appropriate setting. People on the boats were in dense fog, while but a comparatively few feet above them the atmosphere was as clear as any navigator could wish, the line being as distinctly drawn as that which separates the air from the surface of the lake. Altogether it was a freak such as is seldom seen.

The average person likes horses. This was clearly demonstrated yesterday afternoon. Patrolman Hood's animal was hitched in front of headquarters for a couple of hours yesterday afternoon. While he was there a score or more stopped to pet him. He had company almost from the minute his master left him until he was unhitched to start off again on his rounds in the eastern section of the city.

The body of Nellie Moore, the old woman who was found dead in bed yesterday morning in the McKay hotel, was removed to Superior this morning for interment. In her earlier days she had been married and had several children surviving her. It is claimed that for over thirty years she was addicted to the use of morphine, five bottles of the drug being found in her suit case. Recently she has been acting as the housekeeper of a resort across the bay.

LIGHTNING HITS POWDER FACTORY

Glaze Mill of Dupont Company at Wilpin Destroyed —No Explosion.

Hibbing, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lightning struck the glaze mill of the Dupont powder plant at Wilpin, five miles from here, about 3:45 this morning, causing a fire which destroyed the building and slightly damaged the machinery. Luckily none of the magazines where powder is stored were hit or that might have a repetition of the explosion of last January when the glaz mill blew up, killing three.

The mill destroyed today was a light wooden structure covered with corrugated iron and was built to supercede the one blown up last winter. It had been in operation about two months. The powder plant will have to close down for a few weeks until a new glaze mill can be built. As the glaze mill is where the finishing touches are put on black powder it is an important unit of the plant.

CHANGING CAPITALS.

Pearson's Weekly: The mushroom city Calcutta is no more the capital of India. The seat of government has gone back to the old capital of Delhi, nearly 1,000 miles away.

Calcutta is, of course, a British-made city. It was founded by Governor Charnock in 1686. Delhi, on the other hand, has already been the capital of two great empires—first, the Pathan, then the Mogul, and it is but fitting that it should once more be the seat of administration.

A capital is not moved without many heart-burnings. We all remember the trouble of two years ago, when the South African colonies were federated. It was eventually decided that Pretoria should be the administrative and Capetown the legislative center, but that neither should be called the capital.

Brazil's principal city is Rio de Janeiro. It is the great port, and has far the largest population of any Brazilian town. But it lies low, and is unhealthy, and strong efforts are being made to change the seat of government from Rio to Minas, a town which stands high up in the mountains.

Minas is already a fashionable health resort for wealthy Brazilians, and the idea of the change is popular everywhere except in Rio.

European capitals are more stable than those of newer countries. Servia is the only European state which talks of moving its seat of government.

Belgrade is too exposed to foreign attack, and the proposal is to remove the capital to Krushevatz or Kragujevatz, both of which towns are in a better strategic position than Belgrade and further from the Austrian frontier.

The only European capital which has been removed for a great many years past is the Russian. Moscow was the center of government until 1712, when Peter the Great, who himself had founded St. Petersburg, transferred the seat of empire to the new city on the Neva.

If the present Chinese rebellion succeeds, Peking may cease to be the principal city of the Flowery Empire.

Peking nearly lost its pre-eminence once before, for the late dowager empress announced her intention of removing from Peking to Kai-fang-fu and making that the capital. But she died before this intention was carried out.

CATS ARE SYMPATHETIC.

Gross Lake, Mich., News: Mrs. George Watkins, the possessor of a fine Angora cat tnat was given her by relatives and which was highly prized by her, was run over by the street car Tuesday morning, cutting off one leg and the tail. The cat was shot to put it out of its sufferings.

In eastern Turkestan sheep are used as common beasts of burden. They are said to be excellent carriers.

FIERCE RAINS SWELL FLOODS IN LOUISIANA; NEW ORLEANS SCARED

Cessation of Storm Lets Waters Recede at the Crescent City.

Cloudburst Is Reported From New Roads in Pointe Coupee Parish.

Baton Rouge Levee Overlapped By Waves and Part of City in Danger.

New Orleans, May 11.—New Orleans awoke this morning with the sun beaming down upon the scene of last night's confusion, when the city experienced a storm that, because of the flood in the river, was the most threatening ever known.

The floods in the streets of New Orleans claimed at least one victim, and his body was swept away by the swift current. Joseph Dolene, a clerk, fell into a ditch. The accident was witnessed by several persons, but efforts to recover Dolene's body failed.

No rain fell during the latter part of the night and the clouds had vanished this morning, with prospects of a fair, warm day.

The river fell gradually from 2 o'clock this morning, after having exceeded all flood records here by a foot and a half.

During the storm the wind ranged from twenty-seven miles an hour at New Orleans to forty miles at Baton Rouge, and at many points along the river it swept the waves of the swollen stream over the levees.

At New Orleans 5.32 inches of rain fell from noon to 10 p. m., and about four inches fell between 7 and 9 o'clock.

The Mississippi river here was bank-

OLD PENSACOLA GIVEN TO FLAMES

Wooden Warship That Stood Confederate Fire Is Destroyed.

San Francisco, Cal., May 11.—The torch was applied late yesterday to tar barrels stacked against the old wooden warship Pensacola, and the hulk which withstood the Confederate batteries at New Oreans and Mobile and carried the flag of Capt. George Dewey into the Mediterranean, went up in flames.

After having served for many years as training ship at the local naval receiving station, the vessel, which cost $500,000 to build and $1,500,000 to repair, was sold for $10,000, being valuable only for the copper bolts used in her construction.

The Pensacola was launched at Pensacola, Fla., in 1862, her keel having been laid four years previously. After assisting in the blockade of the cotton ports, the Pensacola was attached to Admiral Farragut's fleet. After the war she was transferred to the Mediterranean stations and later continued around the world to the Pacific coast and was flagship of the Pacific fleet.

Since 1899 she has been receiving ship at the Yerba Buena island receiving station.

NEW WAGE BILL FAILS

Great Britain Is Threatened With Renewal of Coal Mine Strike.

Socialist Heads Movement That May Result in Stampede.

London, May 11.—The recently enacted minimum wage act for miners already has broken down, and the country is threatened with another great crisis in the coal trade.

As before, South Wales is the storm center, the collier laborers there objecting to the decision of Lord St. Aldwyn, chairman of the local wage board, which gives less than the five shillings a day which the men expected to obtain under the new act.

At a conference today at Cardiff of the South Wales miners' federation, it was decided not to participate further in the work of the district wages board until the whole situation has been reviewed. A national conference has been called to meet in London next week.

Stanton Again Leader.

C. B. Stanton, the Socialist leader, who took such a prominent part in the recent strike, again heads the revolt and indications point either to the extremists causing a stampede in favor of the repudiation of the minimum wage act or of a definite split in the ranks of the national miners' federation.

Stanton threatens to bring out all the transportation workers in support of the miners if it comes to a strike.

WEALTH OF THE ASTORS

No Great Public Enterprise Has Been Financed By Astor Funds.

Congress May Hear Something About Practical Evasion of Entail.

By Willis J. Abbot.

Washington, May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Whatever may be said or written about the manly courage of John Jacob Astor in the supreme moment of the loss of the Titanic, something is likely to be said before this congress adjourns about the Astor estate. It appears from the Astor will that the estate amounts to something like $100,000,000, a sum almost incomprehensible to the average American. Practically every dollar is invested in New York real estate—all on Manhattan island where the certainty of congestion makes real estate values increase year by year just as surely as a tree will grow. A recent map of the Astor holdings in the borough of Manhattan shows how shrewdly and cleverly the parcels of land were picked up. I refer, of course, to the John Jacob Astor holdings and not to those of Wil-

AAD PATROL'S CHIEF WEAKENS

Capt. Bradley Finds Balloon Trip Too Much for His Nerves.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.) — Thomas P. Bradley, captain of the Aad patrol of Shriners from Duluth, went up in a balloon yesterday afternoon and in spite of the bolstering effect millions are supposed to give a man, Bradley's stamina failed him. He was quite nervous at being so high up in life. But if anyone wants to be a friend of Bradley's he must not mention it, because Capt. Thomas feels a bit peevish on the subject.

Duluth has made a hit in Los Angeles. The quartet of the Aad patrol has been a pleasing feature of the entertainment, and A. F. M. Custance, their leader, has been much complimented on the showing they have made. It must be said for the quartet that they have been most obliging and have sung whenever and wherever requested. Los Angeles has been pleased to show to the Duluth delegation all the courtesy in her power; the Duluth boys have shown their pleasure by entering with hearty spirit into everything, and Los Angeles wishes it to be known that they will be glad to have the Duluth boys visit here again. There will always be a large welcome extended Aad temple whenever they choose to visit the sunny Southern metropolis.

HEAD OF GRAND TRUNK IS TO VISIT CANADA.

London, May 11. — Alfred W. Smithers, chairman of the board of directors of the Grand Trunk Railway company of Canada, left here today to sail on board the steamer Mauretania from Liverpool for New York. It is his intention to select a successor to Charles M. Hays, who was a victim of the Titanic disaster, as president of the company, before he returns to England. Sir Donald D. Mann of Ontario, vice president of the Canadian Northern and the Halifax & Southwestern railway, accompanied Mr. Smithers. He declined to discuss the report that it was possible he would be the successor to the late Mr. Hays, as president of the Grand Trunk railway.

Commission in Russia.

St. Petersburg, May 11.—The members of the Panama-Pacific exposition commission, under the leadership of John Hays Hammond, arrived here this morning from Germany.

BOTH SIDES FEAR COUPS AT CAUCUSES

The Taft-Roosevelt Contest Reaches Political Trick Stage.

Colonel's Followers Claim Taft Men Are Tearing Down Notices.

La Follette Followers Apparently Working for an "Uninstructed Delegation."

The Taft-Roosevelt contest in St. Louis county has reached the political trick stage and both sides are watching vigilantly for coups in the caucuses tonight.

A charge that caucus notices are being torn down by Taft sympathizers and destruction of an entire set of Roosevelt ballots on account of a rumor that unauthorized imitation ballots would appear in the caucuses, were features of the campaign today.

A Roosevelt supporter reported at headquarters today that caucus notices he had tacked up have been torn down. He ascribes the act to Taft sympathizers on the ground that the Taft men do not want a large attendance at the caucuses. The Taft men say that the tearing down of notices

WILSON OR BRYAN MUST HEAD TICKET

Former Governor Brown of Maryland Discusses Democratic Situation.

New York, May 11.—Former Governor Frank Brown of Maryland is visiting here and looking the political situation over.

"Progression and progressiveness are sweeping the country," he said. "The people rarely differ on such matters because of party politics; the people want a Progressive. I know of only two among the Democratic leaders who fill this bill—Wilson of New Jersey and Bryan. The Democratic party, to have any hope of success in the presidential campaign, must name one of them.

"Oh, I know," added the governor, "they will say, 'Look what Maryland did for Wilson.' But that is no answer. When the politicians are in control of the situation and only 25,000 of 80,000 party men vote, it is a simple matter to bring the man out as a victor who has the machine's support. But what I said of Roosevelt in Maryland proved true. He swept the state. He will keep on sweeping other states. Why? Because the people want a Progressive and he is posing as a Progressive."

POLITICAL POWER OF BREWERIES MUST END, ASSERTS SAM GORDON

Denounces Eberhart Forces as Working Under Brewery Dominance.

Declares Time Is at Hand When Change Should Be Made.

Speech of Candidate for Governor Cheered at Willmar Meeting.

Willmar, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Denouncing the Eberhart forces as "political pirates" working under brewery dominance and declaring the present state government to be a "shameful state of affairs," Sam Y. Gordon of Browns Valley, candidate for governor, last night flayed the E. E. Smith organization and declared the time is at hand when a change should be made. Leaning far out over the footlights in the Willmar opera house, he branded the present administration as under brewery dominance and in the hands of a small coterie of political bosses.

Mr. Gordon was repeatedly cheered as he made a plea for a change. A delegation from his home town had arrived durihg the afternoon in a car on which a long banner had been hung, "Gordon for Governor." While he spoke a second delegation arrived from Morris, the home of L. C. Spooner, erstwhile candidate for governor. As members of the delegation entered the hall, the speech of Mr. Gordon was interrupted by cheers and the cry "What's the matter with Morris?" The hall was

New President of Princeton Installed With All Due Ceremony.

President Taft and Chief Justice White Take Part in Inaugural.

Princeton, N. J., May 11.—Before a brilliant assemblage of Princeton alumni, undergraduates, trustees and faculty and many thousand guests and representatives from other institutions throughout the country, including the president and chief justice of the United States, John Grier Hibben, the fourteenth president of Princeton university, was formally inducted into office this morning.

The academic parade which proceeded to the steps of Nassau hall for the ceremony was the most brilliant ever seen in Princeton. At the head of the procession, in the first division, were President Taft, Chief Justice White, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court Pitney, President Hibben and the presidents of other universities present for the occasion. There were eleven divisions in all, the undergraduates, led by Sanford B. White, president of the senior class, bringing up the rear.

The inaugural exercises were opened with prayer and scripture reading by

RED CROSS SHOWS FIRST AID WORK

Contests Are Held as Feature of the Meeting at Washington.

Washington, May 11.—Chief interest in today's session of the International Red Cross conference centered in the outdoor competition of first aid workers, scheduled for the afternoon on the field adjoining the Washington Monument grounds. On the morning program were a number of addresses on various phases of Red Cross nurses' training, work and equipment.

The purpose of the field exhibition was to give a visual demonstration showing how Red Cross and army hospital corps go to work in case of a mine explosion or battle, how a United States naval hospital corps takes care of the wounded at sea, and what drilled police, Boy Scouts and women can do in first aid work.

General Conference at Minneapolis Enters on Stage of Debate.

Amusement Question and Number of Bishops Not Yet Settled.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Members of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in session here are prepared for debate at practically every business meeting of the body now, as the result of the beginning yesterday of the reading of the reports of such committees as may be ready to report each morning. The offering of resolutions by the different conferences in calling the roll has been completed and the reading of reports was begun yesterday.

Considerable committee routine business was passed through yesterday, but it is the report of the episcopacy committee and the committee on the state of the church that has to deal with the amusement question, which are awaited eagerly by the delegates.

Clash Over Bishops.

The former organization is holding night sessions in an attempt to decide the number of bishops to retire and the number which will be elected, but it is said that the fight on the former question is bitter.

The amusement question still is hung up in the full committee, although a

CAR CONDUCTORS DESTROY PAPERS

MAN WITH BULLET IN BRAIN IS SANE

Michigan Would-Be Suicide Gets Commitment to Asylum Set Aside.

Iron Mountain, Mich., May 11.—Louis Geline, the Norway, Mich., man who shot himself through the head a short time ago in an attempt to commit suicide, and who still lives notwithstanding the fact that the bullet remains in his brain, was declared sane in the county court yesterday. Geline was to be committed to an asylum, but decided to fight the commitment.

Geline was discharged by the authorities and is as apparently well as ever, although the bullet remains imbedded at the base of his brain. It passed right through the cerebral matter before becoming lodged. Surgeons consider the case a remarkable one.

CHEER ISMAY AT LIVERPOOL

Big Crowd Greets Managing Director of White Star Line.

Liverpool, May 11.—A large crowd today cheered J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the White Star line, down the gangway of the Adriatic with his wife, who had gone on board at Queenstown and accompanied him here.

Mr. Ismay lifted his hat in acknowledgment of the reception, but excused himself from making any statement to the press, saying he still was suffering from the strain of the Titanic disaster. He had, he said, already given a plain, unvarnished statement to a responsible and adequate commission, and he thought his evidence to be given before the British court of inquiry should not be anticipated.

Some Caucuses Already Held By the Republicans of Minnesota.

Some Contests Are Likely Over Caucuses in Hennepin County.

Summary of National Situation Shows at Least 164 Contests.

Caucuses already held in Minnesota insure Roosevelt 205 and Taft 6 delegates in the Republican state convention to be held at Minneapolis next Thursday.

The result of the caucuses held last evening in Hennepin county, which is the Fifth congressional district, gives the Roosevelt men control of the state and district conventions, insuring Roosevelt two delegates to the national convention at Chicago, and eighty-four delegates in the state convention.

Three counties in the Eighth district, of which St. Louis county is a part, have held caucuses and have declared for Roosevelt. They are Aitkin with 9 delegates, Anoka with 10, and Pine with 10.

Pick Roosevelt Delegates.

The counties which held caucuses this week and will elect Roosevelt delegates to the state and district conventions are:

Rock, Second district, 9.
Washington, Fourth district, 14.
Hennepin, Fifth district, 84.
Chippewa, 10; Pope, 11, Seventh district.
Aitkin, 9; Anoka, 10; Pine, 10, Eighth district.
Becker, 12; Ottertail, 18; Beltrami, 11, Ninth district.

Wabasha county in the First district will send a split delegation, 7 for Roosevelt and 6 for Taft.

The caucuses in the remaining seventy-four counties will be held tonight. The county conventions will be held Monday and district conventions Wednesday.

Roosevelt Wins in Hennepin.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Theodore Roosevelt clearly was victor in last night's presidential preferential primaries held in Hennepin county.

Returns up to shortly after noon today show the following results:

Roosevelt, straight, 352; Taft, straight, 110; La Follette, straight, 61; fusion (Roosevelt and La Follette), 56.

The foregoing returns comprehend all but 32 delegates still to be reported out of 611.

George S. Loftus, president of the Minnesota Progressive league, supporting La Follette, denied early today that Roosevelt would have a plurality of the delegates, and declared that when the county vote was reported La Follette would at least have probably 125 delegates. In a number of the precincts of the city the same delegates were placed upon both the Roosevelt and La Follette tickets and the fusion vote may cause some contests in the election.

Primary in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—St. Paul Republicans today, between the hours of 5 and 7 p. m. will register their will in the matter of a presidential choice. The primary will be one in a chain of local preferential primaries throughout the state, a number of which were held yesterday.

DRIVING THE REBELS BACK

Mexican Federal Officers Report Success in Field Skirmishes.

Some 18,000 Men Are Encamped Within Seventy-Five Mile Radius.

El Paso, Texas, May 11.—Gen. Pasquale Orozco's advance guard of rebels has been driven back toward Escalon, the central base of insurrectos in Northern Mexico.

Instead of being on the defense the government troops have, within the last twenty-four hours, pushed the attack vigorously, forcing the rebels northward nearly twenty miles to Conejos, about 200 miles south of Chihuahua.

Peronal and other towns occupied by the liberal forces within the week were evacuated to the federals.

The facts became known at 4 o'clock this morning, when a telegraph interview was arranged between Gen. Joaquin Telles at the staff headquarters of the federal troops north of Bermejillo and an Associated Press representative here. Staff headquarters of the federal troops is 250 miles directly south of the border, but by the wire route is 1,000 miles, by way of Laredo and Torreon.

NEWS OF THE WEST END

WEST ENDERS FOR WEST END

"Patronize Home Industry" Campaign Will Be Begun.

Garden Committee of Commercial Club Makes First Report.

An educational campaign to encourage residents in the West end to trade in the West end stores was advocated at the regular meeting of the West End Commercial club last evening. About 100 members of the club were present at the meeting held at the new Woodmen hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street.

The plan of the club is to take photos of the various stores, factories and mills in this end of the city and use them for stereopticon slides in a series of picture entertainments. The club will secure a stereopticon machine and these pictures will be shown at the regular meetings. The interior of the department stores and shops will also be shown. It was also suggested at the meeting last evening to hold special entertainments for women and children, so that they may be encouraged to shop in the West end, instead of going to the center of the city.

At the next meeting of the club a committee will be appointed to conduct the photograph plan and arrange for the stereopticon pictures. These will be secured as soon as possible and plans will then be made for an entertainment to be given some time this spring.

A. B. Anderson gave a short talk last evening on a white way for the West end, advocating an electric lighting system to extend from Garfield avenue on Superior street to Twenty-second avenue west. The proposal met with favor at the meeting and the following committee was appointed to interview property owners and learn the sentiment of West end business men with regard to the plans: A. B. Anderson, S. W. Hill, E. H. Olson, Gust Width and K. W. Koneszny.

The garden committee, through its chairman, Dr. O. A. Oredson, made its first report to the club. The members of the committee have spoken in the various West end schools and the garden prize plan has been explained to every school child in this end of the city. The features of the contest have been posted and a campaign among property owners and residents will be started within a few days. The committee is planning on an active campaign to clean the yards, alleys and vacant lots in this end of the city.

WANT LINE TO PROCTOR

Extension of Piedmont Avenue Line of Street Railway, Proposed.

West End Hillside Club Will Petition Council and Company.

The people of Hermantown and Proctor want the Duluth street railway to extend the Piedmont avenue line to the two suburbs. The property owners along the proposed route are willing to furnish the right-of-way.

The subject was broached at the regular monthly meeting of the West End Hillside Improvement club held last evening at the Ensign school, Twenty-third avenue west and Tenth street. The members of the club are anxious to secure the extension soon and the members are now circulating a petition among the property owners along the proposed extension. The petition will be presented both to the council and the officials of the street car company.

The following committee was appointed to request the city to re-establish the former grade on Twenty-third avenue west: J. A. Rivers, Henry Truelson and Christ Nelson. It is claimed by residents in this end of the city that since the city graded the street about six years ago much of it has been washed out, causing the water to run into the lots from the street.

The members voted to send the following committee before the council to request a drinking fountain for horses at Piedmont avenue and the boulevard: E. Erickson, Ole P. Kinn and Henry Truelson. The club will also ask the city to place an arc light at the intersection of Twenty-fifth avenue west and Eleventh street.

VASA ORDER GIVES MUSICAL PROGRAM.

The Vasa Order, No. 170, Swedish United Sons of America, gave a musical entertainment last evening at the Woodmen hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street. The proceeds will be used for the subscription fund that is now being raised for the building of a Swedish Fraternity house or social center in this end of the city. Miss Anna Greta Adamsen, the noted Stockholm entertrainer, gave a number of solos and recitations. Other entertainers were: The Svea Glee club, Sigurd Erdtman, Miss Gerda Erickson, Miss Esther Eckholm and F. A. Thorvall.

sub-committee yesterday voted to strike out the paragraph of the discipline. This committee probably will not report before Tuesday, but the report of the episcopacy committee is expected either today or Monday in order that the conference may begin the usually long grind of voting for the bishops.

The night session of the conference will be devoted to the report of the bishops from South America, Mexico and Southern Asia.

Groans Greet Orators.

For three hours Friday afternoon, members of the committee on state of the church battled over the question, following the majority report of the sub-committee, which favored striking out that portion of the discipline. Members clamored for recognition from the chair and often the speakers advocating one side or the other were greeted with cries of "No, no," and occasionally groans.

Immediately after the presentation of the majority report the minority on the sub-committee presented a report opposing the adoption of the resolution, and it was this measure which was before the entire committee when a motion to adjourn until Monday was adopted following an unsuccessful attempt to obtain a vote.

Dr. Leander W. Munhall of Philadelphia administered a reproof to the college of bishops of the church when he said, in opposing the striking out of the section, that "the bishops' spiritual affairs of the church and their judgment in this case is not of the best."

The bishops in their report urged the abolishment of the section, but in so doing said that they did not mean that the church should favor such amusements. The claim is made that the present law is a dead letter and that it would be better to leave the amusement question to the conscience of the members, as stated by John Wesley.

Twin Cities Start Trouble.

A strenuous fight has been begun between Minneapolis and St. Paul over a proposition which has come up before the episcopacy board with relation to changing the episcopal residence from St. Paul to Minneapolis. The sub-committee of the episcopacy board is said to have agreed to the change, but an attempt is being made to block in it in the full committee.

In a meeting of the delegation of the Northern Minnesota conference it was decided to support the candidacy of Dr. Andrew Gillis of Minneapolis for bishop.

Address by Fairbanks.

America as a Christian nation was the theme of an address delivered last night by Former Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks before the general conference. Mr. Fairbanks said in part:

"The welfare of our nation is of course, at all times, a matter of serious concern to us. We regard the future of our country with genuine solicitude —yet with confident hope. One hundred years ago we were but little regarded throughout the world; we were then but 8,000,000 strong. Now we have grown to 100,000,000, and are recognized as a world power of the first magnitude. This means we are brought face to face with new problems of complexity and magnitude.

"To their solution, the Christian church must make its mighty contribution. Without its beneficent influence we might well regard the coming century of America with profound anxiety. The wide prevailing lust for political, commercial and material power tends to blind men to their duty to each other and to the state.

American's Place Among Nations.

"Our nation holds a place of exceptional importance in the march of the nations of the world; through the influence of its example liberty and democracy have a meaning among other people in both hemispheres which has hitherto been unfamiliar; we have been shaking the foundations of absolutism; overturning thrones which rested on the false doctrine of divine right; creating parliaments to give appropriate expression to the voice of the people; all of this we have accomplished, not by the power of our army and navy, but through the compelling force of our example, which, in the first analysis, is the rich fruit of Christian civilization.

"Ours, in the best sense, is a Christian nation. The name of God, it is true, is not written in our great national charter. Some think its omission was a mistake on the part of the men who drafted it—men who were inspired if ever men were inspired in the affairs of this world. There are those who advocate an amendment to supply the omission, but this is unnecessary, for God is in every word and article of our organic law; every provision for safeguarding liberty, promoting justice and advancing the welfare of the millions of Americans then and yet to be; the very soul of the Constitution of the United States comes from the Bible of our fathers.

Guard Temple of Liberty.

"The times in which we live admonish us that we should guard well our temple of liberty. Men are questioning the beneficence of our political institutions; they are coming to doubt each other; a note of pessimism is heard; we are becoming intolerant of each other; passion takes possession of our better judgment, and we rend each other in the political arena, and in the market place; we are in the midst of a mad rush for wealth, and place and honor.

"Over against the tendency toward materialism, greed and selfishness, we must set the moral forces which are the chief foundations of the Christian church. We shall hear less complaint of our political laws if they are written by men who are thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the moral law; we shall hear less of a desire to depart from the charter of our liberties if we carry into our statutory law the teachings of the Christian college, and if our courts construe the laws men have enacted in the light of the divine law, we shall have no occasion to challenge the integrity of the judiciary.

"The things we cry out against are not to be cured by an appeal to blind pasion; nor by cating aside our time-honored political safeguards; but rather by wide dissemination among the people of the moral code as taught in our Christian churches and colleges."

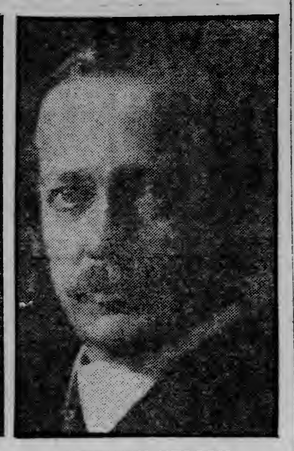
ANNUAL CONVENTION OF ORDER OF SVITHIOD WILL BE HELD THIS MONTH

CHARLES SHOGRAN,
Trustee of the Lodge, Who Will Read the Reports of the Local Lodge at the Convention.



ANDREW NELSON,
Trustee of the Fridhen Lodge, Who Will Attend the Convention.

CARL G. CARLSON,
Secretary of the Fridhen Lodge.

J. B. SJODEEN,
Treasurer of the Local Lodge.

The Independent Order of Svithiod will hold its annual convention the latter part of this month at Minneapolis. Over 150 delegates from all parts of the United States will be present at the meetings. Members of the local lodge, who are planning to attend the convention and who will leave here the latter part of next week, are: Gust Hjerpe, Gust Landin, Andrew Nelson, Charles Shogren, P. J. Borgstrom, J. B. Sjodsen and Carl G. Carlson.

Fridhen lodge No. 43 of Duluth was organized the early part of last year and already has one of the largest memberships of any lodge in the city. The national order has a membership of 10,000 and is the largest Swedish fraternal organization in the country. During the last year the following new lodges were organizaed: Unity, No. 44, Chicago; Nobel, No. 45, Two Harbors; Nordstjernan, No. 46, Eveleth, and Fyigia, No. 47, Hibbing. Since the organization of the order nearly $1,000,000 has been paid out for sick benefits, burials and donations.

For the local lodge Gust Hjerpe was recently chosen the official delegate and he will make a prominent part in the meetings during the Minneapolis convention. Edward T. Carlson, president of the national order, will preside at the meetings. For the local lodge Charles Shogran and Andrew Nelson, trustees, will make the annual reports. Other officers who will attend the convention are J. B. Sjodin, treasurer, and Carl G. Carlson, secretary.

Some of the prominent men of this country who will attend the convention are: Olaf F. Nelson, chairman of the national board of trustees; Nels H. Olson, secretary of the board of trustees; Edward T. Carlson, president of the Svithiod order, and John A. Sandgren, secretary of the order. Mr. Nelson is prominent in American and Swedish circles and has for many years been president of the American-Swedish Singing society. Two years ago he was honored by King Gustaf of Sweden, who bestowed upon him the membership of the Knights of the Order of Vasa. Mr. Nelson is also a member of the Masonic order. The other officials are equally prominent and promise to take a prominent part in the meetings during the convention.

ROOSEVELT SURE OF 205 DELEGATES AND TAFT 6 AT MILL CITY and is in accordance with a plan advanced by the Roosevelt managers in Minnesota.

All the district Republican conventions, with the single exception of that of the Fifth, Hennepin county, will be held on May 15. The Fifth district convention will be held May 16, on the same day, and immediately preceding, the Republican convention in Minneapolis.

Pick 200 Within Week.

Washington, May 11.—The makeup of the Republican national convention so far as the original selection of delegates can determine, will be practically settled within a week.

Including eight to be chosen today at district conventions in Texas and Arizona, more than 200 delegates are to be selected in the eight days ending next Saturday. About 100 will then remain to be chosen, including 48 from Ohio and 24 from New Jersey.

The widely divergent claims of the Taft and Roosevelt managers make it apparent, however, that a determination of the actual control of the convention is impossible in advance of the meeting of the Republican national committee June 6.

At Least 164 Contests.

The committee will take up at that time contests involving the seats of at least 164 delegates, and it is not unlikely that additional contest cases will be announced by the time the committee begins work.

Up to this morning 786 of the 1,078 delegates to Chicago had been chosen, according to Roosevelt estimates while the Taft forces record 20 less. The differences arise over Maryland, where the Taft managers declare the control of sixteen delegates will not be cleared until the state convention next Tuesday, and Kansas, where the Roosevelt records show fourteen have been chosen and the Taft records ten.

Claims of Rivals.

Representative McKinley, head of the Taft campaign, claimed 483 delegates for the president and conceded 288 to Col. Roosevelt. Senator Dixon, manager for Col. Roosevelt, claimed 319 for Roosevelt and conceded 143 to Taft.

The Roosevelt managers contend that 114 delegates are uninstructed, including 88 from New York, and that 164 are contested. Both campaign committees, in their tables, give Senator La Follette 36 delegates and Senator Cummins 10.

Preparations for the two weeks' battle over the seating of contested delegations are being completed rapidly by the attorneys for both factions. While but few contests have been filed thus far with the national committee, the managers and their attorneys will be ready with all the cases by May 29, the date on which the papers must be before the committee.

Where Fight Will Center.

The delegations instructed for Taft whose seats will be contested, according to the latest statement from Senator Dixon, are as follows:

Alabama, 20; Arkansas, 8; District of Columbia, 2; Florida, 12; Georgia, 26; Indiana, 12; Kentucky, 16; Louisiana, 20; Michigan, 6; Missouri, 2; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 14; Virginia, 22.

The 200 delegates to be selected in the coming week include 26 in Texas, 26 in California, 24 in Minnesota, 14 in Washington, 22 in North Carolina, 16 in West Virginia and scattering delegations in many other states.

Conventions in Texas.

Dallas, Tex., May 11.—Three congressional district Republican conventions to choose delegates to the national convention are in progress in Texas today. In each district two delegates are to be named. The other thirteen Texas Republican district conventions will be held May 16, 17 and 18.

Today's conventions, it is believed, will indicate the Texas Republicans' sentiment as between Taft and Roosevelt. Neither the Texas precinct conventions nor the county conventions of the past week seem to have shown this attitude clearly.

The conventions today are in the Sixth, Seventh and Tenth districts, held respectively at Mexia, Galveston and Austin.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE

New York, May 11.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade today says: The movement of trade continues on a larger scale than last year. The rains have interfered with wholesale and retail distribution and this reduced somewhat the movement of dry goods, the market, however, remaining on the whole very strong.

The best reports come from iron and steel, the production of which continues very large, the daily rate during the month of April reaching a point in excess of the preceeding high total.

Continued heavy buying by the railroads is noted and prices of steel-making iron and Southern foundry iron show increased strength.

The larger producers of steel billets are filled up and, though some material is still on the market, the supply is now not more than equal to the demand. Open hearth and Bessemer billets are firmer at $20.50 and $21, Pittsburgh.

Dry goods manufactures are inclined to take a more conservative view of the possible trend of values to still higher levels. Export shipments continue large, but new business is light.

A large advance business has been booked by jobbers of fall cottons, while wash fabrics and similar goods move slowly into consumption.

The position of woolen and worsted mills is strong, insofar as business in hand is concerned.

Footwear shows improvement, and while conservative buying still is noticed in some quarters, the majority of jobbers have placed good sized contracts for future needs.

All kinds of leather is strong, but sole leather is especially in good demand.

Hides continue to show the same amount of strength that has characterized the market for the past month.

REGISTER BAD CHARACTERS.

Government Plans to Keep Track of Inmates of Resorts.

Chicago, May 11.—Registration of improper characters in many cities will be undertaken by the federal government as part of a country wide crusade against the "white slave" evil, according to Stanley W. Finch, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of Justice, who has arrived in Chicago. The government plans to keep a register of all inmates of disorderly resorts in all cities of more than 4,000 population, and by co-operation with the police maintain a close record of the movement of this class from one city to another. To do this an extra force of 1,000 special agents will be necessary, and congress will be asked for a special appropriation of $500,000.

In Chicago ten special agents will be appointed to look after this work.

Attorney General Wickersham decided to adopt this policy of dealing with the evil at a recent conference of government officials recently held in Washington, and it is expected the plan will be in operation in a few months.

Chief Investigator Finch, who will take personal charge of the work, will visit every large city in the country to arrange for putting the system in operation.

NEAL DRINK CURE SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY

THE statement that by the Neal treatment the liquor habit can be cured is doubted by many. It is unnatural and unreasonable, so skeptics say. That's what they said when Stephenson announced his invention of the locomotive. People did not at first believe that vaccination would prevent smallpox. They were incredulous when they were told that a serum had been discovered that would cure diphtheria.

But these things have been demonstrated to be true. Why should it not also be true that a remedy has been discovered for alcoholic poisoning? It is no more a miracle that the Neal Cure should restore a natural appetite than that anti-toxin should conquer what was considered a deadly disease. Anti-toxin does not take months to do its work. Its effects are produced in about three days, the time in which the Neal treatment cures the liquor habit. No person addicted to drink who wants to be his own master again should hesitate about taking the Neal cure. It is so soon effected. He runs no risk. If the cure does not cure he is no worse off. If it does cure, that is what he wants, and is willing to pay for.

The Neal treatment is not merely a sobering up process, but a perfectly safe and thorough cure that frees the system of every trace of alcoholic poison and takes away all craving and desire for drink. It makes no difference how confirmed the drinker, or how long he has been drinking or how much he is dringing, neither does it matter how many other treatments have failed, the Neal treatment will effect a perfect cure in just three days to the entire satisfaction of the patient. With the Neal treatment there are no hypodermic injections, no powerful or poisonous drugs and no bad after-effects. It is safe, harmless, positive. There are no failures.

Write for copy of contract and booklet giving full information. It will be mailed to you under a plain sealed envelope and everything will be strictly confidential.

MILLION FOR FARM PLAN

Chicago House Gives Big Impetus to Grain Exchanges' Movement.

Will Be Used to Put Experts in Counties of Various States.

Chicago, May 11.—A movement to put a county agriculturalist in all the counties of every state, to make a study of local conditions and suggest plans of scientific farm management, for the purpose of obtaining a larger yield of better grain, has received impetus with the announcement of a gift of $1,000,000 from a Chicago concern to further the plan.

The project is fathered by the crop improvement committee of the Council of Grain Exchanges, which includes mercantile bodies in many of the principal cities of the country.

"Not more acres planted to crops, but more returns from the acre," is the slogan of those who advocate the employment of expert agricultural demonstrators.

Use $100,000 at Once.

The $1,000,000 gift was from Sears, Roebuck & Co., and carries with it for immediate use $100,000 to be expended in 100 counties, $1,000 in each county in accordance with the plan formulated by Bert Ball, secretary of the crop improvement committee.

Epitomized, the county project calls for the co-operation of the commercial, agricultural and educational forces of each county; the appointment of a county committee on crop improvement and county development; and the appointment of a trained agriculturist by the local committee to act as a general adviser on agricultural matters, organize farmers' clubs, arrange for exhibits of farm products and co-operate with the superintendents of schools in teaching the rudiments of agriculture.

Frick An Officer.

The president of the Council of Grain exchanges is J. C. E. Merrill of Chicago, and its vice presidents are Charles Kennedy, Buffalo, N. Y.; A. W. Frick, Duluth, and E. F. Peck, Omaha.

OPPOSES LENIENCY FOR RICHESON

Mayor of Boston Sends Letter to Governor of Massachusetts.

Boston, Mass., May 11.—Mayor Fitzgerald has sent a communication to Governor Foss asking him not to submit the petition for a commitment of Clarence Richeson's sentence to the executive council. The mayor declared the former clergyman's crime was "one of the most abominable in the history of the country," and merited the extreme penalty.

When informed by Sheriff Quinn at the Charles street jail that he would be removed today to Charlestown state prison, Clarence V. T. Richeson, the former Baptist minister, who is under sentence to be electrocuted the week beginning May 19 for poisoning his one-time sweetheart, Avis Linnell, went down upon his knees and begged to be allowed to stay at the jail a few days more.

"It would have been hard to refuse him, and I told him that he would not be moved before Monday," Sheriff Quinn said. The sheriff would not say what day was likely to be chosen for the change.

Council Meets Wednesday.

The next regular meeting of the governor's council is on Wednesday, and, although this is only four days before the date set for the execution, Richeson may be kept at Charles Street jail until the council has had opportunity to act, should Governor Foss refer to it Richeson's plea for commutation of sentence.

Dudley M. Holman, secretary to Governor Foss, said that the governor is in consultation with several eminent allenists regarding Richeson's condition. The governor feels that the case is so important as to demand the opinion of allenists. The governor had before him yesterday a report of Dr. Isidor H. Coryeat, an allenist retained for the defense, in which Richeson was declared to be mentally irresponsible for his actions.

CLAIM BRYAN IS PLAYING A GAME

Harmon Managers Accuse Nebraskan of Plotting to Be Nominated.

Washington, May 11.—An attack upon William J. Bryan, stating that "his attitude in this pre-convention campaign can be accounted for only on the hypothesis that he hopes to be again nominated at the Baltimore convention," has been given out here by the Harmon national headquarters.

The statement calls upon the "Democrats of the country to give candor to the real situation." It declares that the successful Democratic candidate must this year carry northern states as well as those that Bryan carried in his last campaign, and says that the Nebraskan is opposing Harmon because the latter is strong in the north.

The Harmon statement adds further that Bryan is "flirting with both the Wilson and Clark booms, it being his evident desire to play one against the other in the hope of precipitating a deadlock at Baltimore, expecting thereby that he may stampede the convention for his own nomination."

Harmon Tour Planned.

Columbus, Ohio, May 11.—In an effort to counteract the effects of the campaign tour of William J. Bryan in Ohio, Governor Harmon has arranged for a tour of a number of the cities of the state, beginning next Monday. All his speeches will be made in the evening. The complete itinerary, as announced by his campaign manager, Hugh Nichols, begins Monday at Wooster and ends Saturday evening at Delaware. Tuesday evening he will speak at Zanesville; Wednesday at Akron, Thursday at Greenville and Friday at Chillicothe.

"CUT" TO SEE BALL GAME.

Score of Congressmen Taken From Bleachers By House Official.

Washington, May 11.—Determined to command a quorum during consideration of dust-dry private pension legislation, the house yesterday ordered its sergeant at arms to raid the American league ball park. The orders were carried out and more than a score of congressmen were found "rooting" for their favorite team. A flotilla of taxicabs brought the prisoners back to the house, where they were subjected to a hazing by their more dutiful colleagues.

"What's the score? Why didn't you stay to see tomorrow's game?" was demanded of the first batch when they appeared on the floor in custody.

"We were down at the war department, attending to our official congressional duties" retorted one of the "prisoners," with apparent indignation. Something fell from his hat as he waved it in protest at his persecutor. It proved to be a "rain check" issued at the park entrance.

The trouble started during consideration of a private pension bill when Representative Redenberry of Georgia offered an amendment providing for segregation of negro Civil war veterans and the erection of "Jim Crow" soldiers' homes for their accommodation. It was voted down by the slim gathering in the chamber.

COMPLETES QUARTER OF CENTURY IN THE SERVICE OF UNCLE SAM

ALTON B. HEIMBACH.

Today completes twenty-five years' service as a letter carrier in the Duluth postoffice for Alton B. Heimbach and in honor of the event his brother carriers in the Duluth postoffice will entertain him at a social at the Foresters hall and present him with a silver star and emblem to which all carriers are entitled after twenty-five years' service.

When Alton B. Heimbach entered the service in May, 1887, in the old postoffice, now occupied by the Gopher Shoe company, there were but eight carriers in the service. John Flinn was postmaster and W. F. Henry assistant postmaster. Four carriers covered the territory of the city proper, not including Lakeside, West Duluth or Woodland. The city today is served by sixty-nine carriers and eight substitutes. In all these years Mr. Heimbach has lost but a very few days by sickness or other reasons and finishes his twenty-fifth year fit for another twenty-five years. A few figures on his work will be interesting reading. He has walked an average of ten miles per day, 300 days in the year, which is considered a fair average. It amounts to the enormous distance of 75,000 miles circling the globe three times.

This includes only actual time in his duties as a carrier. He has carried on an average of 100 pounds of mail per day which counts up in twenty-five years to 750,000 pounds or 375 tons of mail. Should this weight be put in wagons with a span of horses attached and standing 100 feet to the team and wagon, and a ton to the load, it would be a line seven miles long. Taking an average of 1,500 pieces of mail per day 300 days in the year for twenty-five years, it amounts to the enormous figure of 11,250,000 pieces of mail.

His steps measure just two feet with 5,280 feet to the mile, it makes 2,640 steps to the mile. At ten miles per day, that is 26,400 steps per day, or the stupendous total of 198,000,000 steps in twenty-five years. Going back again to the number of pieces of mail handled. In the delivery of 11,250,000 pieces it should be remembered that each piece must be handled at least twice which would make 22,500,000 pieces handled. There is no way of proving the amount of money in registered letters and money orders he has delivered but it is safe to place the amount in millions, and he has never lost a penny. He has worked under six presidents of the United States and six postmasters and has seen the city grow from 25,000 to 80,000.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

MAGISTRATE APPLETON of the Yorkville court in New York city has outlined a scale of fines for the benefit of those arrested for spitting. It runs: On the elevated platforms, $3; on subway platforms, $5 and costs; on the floor of cars, $10. The magistrate set the scale after he had fined Saul Manowitch of 26 West Thirty-fourth street $10. Magistrate Appleton remarked that in misdemeanors and violations of the city ordinances he fined according to the station in life. He said that if a man was rich he would receive a heavy fine, whereas if a man was poor the fine would be proportionate.

Duluth has an anti-spitting ordinance which could easily bear more enforcement. The health department started a crusade in this direction, but like a lot of other crusades it soon cooled. The street cars still contain the conspicuous "Let Us Be Decent" notices and they undoubtedly have a good effect. But this effect would be considerably heightened if examples were to be made of those who have a habit of expectorating wherever they happen to be, whether it is in the street car, on the platform, or other public places. About one arrest has been made for violating the ordinance in many months. Everybody sees it violated more times a day than they can keep track of without a bookkeeper.

The Woman's Council took it up at the meeting yesterday, and some results are likely to be obtained, for that organization has a reputation of getting what it goes after.

BABY 11-MONTHS OLD BEATEN TO DEATH.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 11.—Mrs. Frances Dewey, also known as Mrs. Frances Wildsmith, has been found guilty of the murder of her 11-month-old adopted child. Bert Wildsmith, with whom the woman lived for some time previous to the death of the baby, and who was also held for its murder, was the chief witness for the prosecution. It was alleged the woman beat the infant to death because it refused to eat. She will probably be sentenced Monday.

IS CANADA A NATION?

Question Is Raised on Appeal to Customs Court.

Washington, May 11.—The international commercial question, involving the right of entry of wool pulp and paper into the United States from all countries with which America is connected by treaties of commerce, has been appealed to the United States court of customs appeals. The privilege is claimed under the "favored nations clause" of the convention because free wood pulp and paper is granted to Canada by the only operative section of the Canadian reciprocity agreement.

The appeal was from a decision by the board of general appraisers at New York, which held that the "favored nations" clause could not be invoked as Canada was a colony and not a "nation, state or country," within the meaning of the treaties.

Because of the international importance of the case, several European powers having filed claims for the favor, with Secretary of State Knox, both the government and the importers have agreed to expedite it.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS ASSERTED ON THE HOTEL REGISTER

"Mrs. J. B. Hinckley and husband."

That is the way they are registered at the Spalding. Over the telephone in a voice that was not deep or of the masculine force, Mrs. Hinckley denied that she was a suffragette. Then she was asked politely why her name was placed before that of her husband's. She replied that her husband did the registering. The husband was asked for, but Mrs. Hinckley stated that she had sent him out to get some articles.

In the history of the Spalding this is the first time that a man and wife have registered in the precise manner of "Mrs. J. B. Hinckley and husband." Right at the take off Clerk Stewart sized up Mrs. Hinckley as a suffragette. According to account, the husband in the case is large, but has mild blue eyes and a bland smile.

"There is nothing so unusual in the way in which Mr. Hinckley registered," declared Mrs. Hinckley over the telephone. "Lots of couples register that way in the East, and some people I know in New York have even requested to have their names placed in that manner in the telephone book and the city directory."

Mrs. Hinckley closed the telephone conversation by stating that she believed that women of today are taking a larger place in the affairs of the day, and are not confining their sphere of activities to the home.

CATCHES LOBSTER IN TISCHER'S CREEK

Duluthians have been ignorant of the fact that it is possible to catch live lobsters in Tischer's creek, but George Adams, a recent arrival in this country from Scotland, has shown that it is.

Mr. Adams has been in this country but two months, but he has made a host of friends here in that time, his rich Scottish burr and genial disposition being an irresistible combination. Some of his new friends told him of the wonderful fishing in Duluth streams, and he was eager to try his luck. Yesterday he and two companions started out for Tischer's creek. The two companions carried a live lobster with them, and while Mr. Adams and one of his friends retired to eat some lunch, leaving their lines in the stream, the other companion attached the lobster to the hook.

Mr. Adams let loose a yell that might have been heard in his native hills in Scotland, when he returned and pulled up his pole. His companions gravely congratulated him on his catch, and on their return to town Mr. Adams had himself and the lobster photographed in order to show his relatives in Scotland what wonderful fishing Duluth offered.

WOMEN "MEAN BUSINESS" ON GARBAGE COLLECTION

Pushing Systematic Campaign to Establish a Municipal System.

Ask Council to Appoint Committee and Secure Expert Advice.

Members of the committee of the Woman's Council who are working to establish a garbage collection system in Duluth, are going about their work quietly but systematically, and are evidently determined to secure results.

The committee will submit a report to the council at the meeting Monday evening, and ask for the appointment of a committee to thoroughly investigate local conditions, and secure the services of an expert to outline a system for Duluth which will be effective and economical.

The following letter will be submitted to the council by the committee:

"Hon. Common Council, Duluth, Minn.—Gentlemen: The attached letter sets forth somewhat in detail the information gleaned by the Woman's Council in an investigation, extending over some months, of the question of garbage collection in our city.

"Briefly summarizing, the following facts appear:

"Systematic and scientific collection of garbage is essential to good health in every city.

"Duluth has no organized system of garbage collection.

"Other cities have demonstrated that garbage can be collected at an actual profit to the municipality.

"Several cities are today deriving a substantial revenue from the collection and disposal of garbage by merely employing scientific and good business methods in collection and conservation of the by-products.

"Duluth is paying more today for an insanitary and incomplete collection of garbage than it costs for a sanitary and complete collection in cities where the problem is scientifically handled.

"Our $29,000 incinerator plant could dispose of all the garbage in the city; instead, it is being run at only one-quarter its capacity, and the bulk of the city's garbage is disposed of in an insanitary manner.

"Other cities have found it not only economical but profitable to employ an expert engineer to organize their collection and disposal system.

"The services of these same engineers can be had for Duluth at a comparatively nominal expense, about $550, according to figures received by our subcommittee from a most highly recommended expert.

"The Woman's Council, therefore, respectfully requests that a special committee be appointed from your honorable body to act in conjunction with the health commissioner in making a thorough investigation of the local garbage situation; that a brief report be made to your honorable body of the existing methods and conditions of garbage collection and disposal, and that said committee and the health officer make such recommendations to your honorable body as they may deem wise after investigating the entire subject.

"The Woman's Council will be glad to render any assistance or service in its power, and the data which they have already gathered will, of course, be available to your special committee.

"All of which is most respectfully submitted and urged."

The Report.

The report of the committee follows:

"To the honorable common council, Duluth, Minn.: The Woman's council of Duluth for the past few months has had a committee gathering information concerning the most sanitary and economical way of disposing of the city's waste. They present for your approval the following report of their committee.

"A present miscellaneous system of garbage and refuse collection and disposal in Duluth is wholly inadequate and insanitary, both as receptacles and method of collection.

"Tuberculosis, smallpox, typhoid, infantile intestinal diseases and many other diseases greatly increasing our death rate, are directly traceable to flies which breed and thrive in garbage that is not cared for in a sanitary manner.

"Miscellaneous collection of garbage places the burden of keeping the city clean on the shoulders of a few who wish to promote civic cleanliness and who realize the effect of public health of the insanitary handling of garbage.

Have Solved Problem.

"Other cities have solved this problem by introducing a municipal system that collects and disposes of the city's waste in a sanitary and, in some cases, in a profitable way. Although sanitation is our foremost aim it is well to consider also the economical side. Municipal collection and disposal, properly handled, can become a source of revenue to the city. Minneapolis collects and disposes of her city waste, including ashes, at a per capita varying from 19 to 21 cents per year, collected in the form of a tax. In Duluth most of the garbage is not collected; those householders who do have it collected are paying approximately at the rate of $3 per capita a year, which does not include ashes.

"This large saving is accomplished in Minneapolis through municipal collection and disposal and by the utilization of the by products of the city's waste.

"Even at a tax rate of $1.20 per capita, the highest estimate the committee has received from other cities, the ultimate expense to the householder would not be as great as it is now with miscellaneous collection. The city sending in this rate was Seattle. We mention this because Seattle, like Duluth has many hilly streets, making its problem similar to Duluth's.

"Minneapolis is heating and lighting two hospitals, two greenhouses, all the buildings in connection with their city workhouse, and also lighting twenty-two miles of their city streets.

"Dr. P. M. Hall, health commissioner of Minneapolis has estimated that by the time all the plans for utilizing the refuse of the city are completed, they will be disposing of garbage free and turning into the city a revenue from $30,000 to $40,000 a year. With their incomplete plans this last year they had a revenue of $30,000.

No System Here.

"Duluth has no municipal collection of garbage, much less is she utilizing the by-products, such as available heat. And yet we have already installed at a cost of $29,000, a Decarie incinerator plant the same as Minneapolis has. It is running at quarter capacity. In other words, Duluth is using $7,250 while $21,750 is lying idle. What business man would tolerate such waste in his business? Yet our city for lack of equipment for collection of refuse is allowing a disposal plant to run quarter capacity, which, if run at full capacity would care for the garbage and refuse of the entire city at a resultant profit.

"The difference in cost of municipal collection and the miscellaneous collection we now have, would in one year pay for the equipment necessary for a complete municipal system, such as auto trucks, water-tight steel wagons and other necessities. Dr. Webster estimates that $15,000 would establish municipal collection of garbage. This is allowing for one auto truck which would care for the outlying districts. We already have one wagon, and would need four more besides the auto truck. This estimate, Dr. Webster says, is much less than the cost of miscellaneous collection now in use.

"Mr. Patten estimates $12,000 for establishing municipal collection and disposal of garbage. This would mean a tax levy of 33-100 mills or a per capita tax of 15 cents. He suggests that in the winter when the work of garbage collection is light that the teams could be profitably used to keep our main streets free from ice, snow and dirt. This would mean a saving to the city on an average of $790 a winter, and the street would be much more sanitary and presentable. We already have one water-tight steel wagon which brought in a revenue of $1,400 last year.

Using By-Products.

"Seattle is utilizing the by-products of their city waste, which, with its system, is clinker for roadbeds and street paving work. Westmount, a suburb of Montreal, is getting a revenue from its lighting plant run by utilizing the heat from the garbage plant. Milwaukee is making a profit of 66½ cents per ton of incinerated garbage, which very materially lowers the cost of collection.

"After the first year, taking Minneapolis estimate, by utilizating the various by-products, the cost of collection and disposal would probably be reduced to a tax of 15 cents per capita.

"To give a brief summary of the facts in this report: We have two methods to choose from, as recommended by men who are interested in this problem in Duluth. One plan—that by which a thorough collection and disposal of the city's waste becomes a source of profit to the city. The equipment for collection and the machinery for generating power can be installed at an initial cost of 39 cents per capita. The second year the cost of collection would be about 20 cents per capita and the disposal plant now running quarter capacity would then be a source of revenue.

"The second plan is one by which a thorough collection of garbage and refuse can be made—no thought to be taken of utilizing the available heat or power. This equipment for collection only can be installed at an initial cost of 23 cents per capita. The second year the cost of collection would be about 20 cents per capita, but no resultant profit to the city. Needless to say, the first plan is far superior to the second. In Minneapolis this year the profit from the first plan was $20,000.

"Duluth has made practically no effort to work out a problem successfully solved in other cities. Municipal collection is so much more effective, complete, profitable, and above all, more sanitary than miscellaneous collection than it would seem necessary only to bring the facts to the public to assure its installation in Duluth. A problem so closely connected with the health and finances of our city certainly merits the attention of all its civic bodies.

"Dr. Fahey, Dr. Patten, Dr. Webster, our city engineer, Mr. Wilson, all think that the problem could be most economically solved by getting the services of an expert sanitary engineer. The expert employed by Milwaukee in reconstructing their system of garbage collection saved them in their payroll alone $16,000. Suppose that he only cut down our estimate by the cost of one wagon for a year, he would be paid the cost of his services. It has been estimated that it would take an expert about ten days to work out a practical, economical solution to Duluth's problem.

"The figures in this report are necessarily estimated only, as they could be arrived at only by comparison with other cities. An expert would know and his figures be accurate. It is, therefore, the earnest desire of the Woman's Council of Duluth that your honorable body make an investigation of the entire subject with the assistance of an expert sanitary engineer if so advised, to the end that there may be included in the budget of the health department for the coming year a sufficient amount to insure an up-to-date system of garbage collection and disposal for our city. Action must be taken at once in order to get results from our next budget.

"Hoping for your hearty approval and active support, respectfully submitted.

"WOMAN'S COUNCIL OF DULUTH,
"Committee on the Collection and Disposal of Municipal Waste."

MINNESOTA POLITICS

Early Caucuses Indicate Landslide For Roosevelt in Minnesota—St. Louis County Machine in Last Ditch and Fighting Hard —La Follette Leaders Working For Taft —Pine County For Roosevelt.

Landslide for Roosevelt.

It looks like a landslide for Roosevelt in Minnesota. By the result of the caucuses in Hennepin county last evening, he has two delegates to the national convention at Chicago assured. The caucuses reported up today give him 205 delegates in the state convention, while President Taft has six, they coming through a split in Wabasha county.

Every congressional district except the Third and Sixth have been heard from and in each the colonel has scored. The only Taft delegates reported are from Wabasha county in the First district, where a division of the delegation, seven to Roosevelt and six to Taft, is likely.

Rock in the Second district gives Roosevelt, 9; Washington in the Fourth, 14; Hennepin, 84; Chippewa in the Seventh, 10; Pope in the Seventh, 11; Aitkin, 9, Anoka, 10, and Pine, 10, in the Eighth; and Becker, 12, Otter-tail, 18 and Beltrami, 11, in the Ninth.

There is little doubt in the minds of the Roosevelt people as to the result. The bulk of the delegates to county conventions will be chosen tonight, but the sentiment reflected by the early caucuses is all Roosevelt. La Follette seems to have dropped out of consideration. In the Seventh and Ninth districts, where he was considered to have the best chance, all counties heard from have reported returns favorable to Roosevelt.

The effect of the results yesterday, especially in Hennepin, on the caucuses to be held today and tonight, will be great. The Roosevelt men had some doubt of Ramsey county, but they have little doubt now. Ramsey has a better preference primary plan than Hennepin had, and Ramsey, though more conservative than Hennepin, will very likely declare for the colonel.

Machine is Fighting Hard.

The most interesting fight in the state is in St. Louis county. The old Republican machine is in the last ditch and is fighting desperately for its life. It doesn't care so much about Taft personally—some other reactionary would suit just as well—but it is anxious to retain its own grasp on the Republican party in the county.

The "uninstructed" game is a subterfuge, but it seems to be getting some people. "Can they get by with it?" is the question the Roosevelt supporters are asking themselves. Leaders in the La Follette movement have "fallen." They are out working for an uninstructed delegation and so playing into the hands of the machine.

There is more to the fight than immediate success. The men who have controlled Republican politics in St. Louis county for years see the reins slipping from them. A defeat now would destroy their influence for the coming gubernatorial fight. They are closely allied with E. E. Smith and the state Republican machine behind Eberhart. Aside from the presidential contest, they want to control the county for the future.

The Roosevelt men are hopeful of St. Louis county. All depends on the degree of gullibility discovered by the Taft men with their "uninstructed" plea. Many sincere Republicans, not understanding the motives behind it, may vote for uninstructed delegates, and a Taft delegation to the state and district conventions may result. The St. Louis county caucuses will be held tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock at the regular polling places.

Pine County For Roosevelt.

Three counties in the Eighth district, Aitkin, Anoka and Pine, with twenty-nine deelgates among them, have held caucuses and have declared for Roosevelt. The Pine county caucuses were held yesterday and the Federal office holders made only a feeble fight. Returns were not all in this morning, but the precincts reported indicate that Pine's ten delegates will be for Roosevelt.

St. Louis county is the storm center of the contest in the Eighth district. The Taft people need the county for control of the district convention. The Roosevelt forces may control the district without St. Louis, but that would leave the old machine in control of the county, and as Progressives they are as anxious to defeat the machine as they are to carry the county for Roosevelt.

Blow to State Machine.

The defeat of Taft in the state will be a hard blow to the Ed Smith machine. All through the presidential caucus, the administration has been tied up with the fight for the president. Protestations to the contrary, it has fought hard to retain its grip. Defeat of Taft in the presidential contest means defeat for the state machine and a lessening of its influence for the coming governorship fight. The two contests are inseparably allied. Tomorrow will find many local bosses in the eighty-six counties without a job.

County Conventions Monday.

The county conventions throughout the state will be held Monday, the St. Louis county meeting being in Duluth.

From the results of the caucuses already heard from and the indications that the state will go strong for Roosevelt, the county conventions are expected to be largely perfunctory.

The district conventions will be held Wednesday and there may be sharp contests in one or two districts.

Unless signs fail, the Roosevelt men will be in absolute control of the state convention at Minneapolis Thursday and will elect six delegates-at-large to the national convention. There is a chance for surprises at the caucuses to be held tonight and a contest at the state convention developing, but it is only a chance.

• • •

Prohibition Convention.

The Prohibition party in Minnesota is still in the ring. A state convention for the nomination of a state ticket has been called to meet in Minneapolis July 4.

Kane For Delegate.

T. R. Kane, the assemblyman who led the Democratic ticket in the St. Paul city election Tuesday, is being urged to run against R. T. O'Connor for delegate from the Fourth district to the national convention at Baltimore. Mr. Kane is one of the most popular Democrats in St. Paul and if he should go into the contest, O'Connor would have another real fight on his hands.

Clark Men Are Split.

The Champ Clark Democrats in Hennepin county are torn by dissension. They are divided into two clubs one led by "Billy" Williams and the other by "Jim" Dwyer. At a meeting this week an attempt at fusion was made, but it nearly started a fist-fight and was abandoned.

MEETING OF PROTEST CALLED

Woodmen of St. Louis County Will Assemble Here Tuesday.

For the purpose of making a vigorous protest against the increased rates, members of the Modern Woodmen of St. Louis county will hold a county convention in Duluth next Tuesday evening at Forester's hall.

The agitation against the increased rates has ben simmering for months, and shows no signs of dying down. The older members claim that the new rates are practically prohibitive for them, and that more than half of the members of the order will be forced to abandon their policies at an age when they will be unable to get old line insurance.

The convention Tuesday is but part of a nation-wide agitation against the new rates, which may terminate in the formation of a new head camp.

BOYS ENJOY ANNUAL FEED

Banquet Served to Members of the Duluth Boys' Department.

State Secretary Is Toastmaster—Secretary Bevis Says Farewell.

The boys' department club room last night was converted into an elaborate banquet hall, the occasion being the tenth annual banquet. The room was decorated with palms and ferns and the table decorations were yellow daffodils, and candelabra.

F. W. Peck of Minneapolis was the toastmaster and his fund of stories kept the big crowd in good humor from start to finish. The first toast of the evening was by Rev. St. Clair, president of the cabinet. He spoke on the topic, "Our Club." He reviewed the work of the club and impressed on the members that the banquet was not the closing of the work, but rather the opening of the spring and summer activities, which will include every kind of activity that would interest a boy.

Camp Miller, a very popular topic, was ably handled by Russell Duncan. He described Camp Miller so elaborately that before he finished his speech many boys had decided that they would spend their vacation at that popular resort.

"Sport and Sports," was the topic assigned to Charles Little and he made an excellent speech, describing what sport was and the value of clean sport and contrasting that with the boy who called himself a "sport."

Julius Nolte spoke on "The Ideal Member." He described in very graphic terms what the ideal member was. It was safe to say that no such character existed, the speaker said, but there were many members of the club who were doing their best.

Clifford Stowell spoke on behalf of the West Duluth Boys' club. He told of the progress of that young club and predicted that in the near future they would have a club building in which they could do as efficient work as the boys' department members were doing.

Dr. Yost spoke on "The Boy Worth While." He gove a very interesting and helpful talk.

Phil Bevis gave a farewell message; he told of how the boys' department had been organized nine years ago. He said he would never forget the splendid group of boys and young men that he had come in contact with in the Duluth Boys' department.

Richard Cullum handled the topic, "The Ladies." He said all the nice things that could be said on this very important topic. During the evening Palmer Bevis, who will leave for St. Louis Monday evening, was presented with a cabinet pin by his fellow members of the cabinet. Mr. Bevis has been a member of the boys' department since 1903, has been a member of the cabinet for five years and was its president for two years. For the past few months he has been giving all his time to the boys' department, assisting with the work in the West Duluth boys' club. Rev. St. Clair made the presentation speech, after which Mr. Bevis made a very fitting reply.

John Neimeer, Robert Congdon, Oliver Maggard and Leo Moerke were awarded the boys' department official emblem for having made places on the Hustler club. The Hustlers are composed of those who secure a certain number of points, which means that they have taken an active part in every department of the club. One of their number will be elected to have a week's vacation at Camp Miller.

The banquet was prepared by a committee of women, and was served by a group of high school girls. During the evening Miss Johnson gave several selections, and the East End orchestra provided the music.

IRONWOOD HONORS SPANISH WAR VET

Last Rites for Albert Morris, Who Died Suddenly, Largely Attended.

Ironwood, Mich., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the largest funerals ever held here was conducted yesterday afternoon from the First M. E. church, where services for the late Albert B. Morris were held at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. Morris was born in Liberty, Ind., in 1873 and came to Ironwood with his parents in March, 1888. He went through the public schools here and when in young manhood he became a member of the state militia, and with old Company H, went through the Spanish-American war. He was one of the first to return home, although in poor health and suffering from malaria. After the war he entered the employ of the Twin City railway, acting as conductor on the street cars, leaving that to take a position as a paid fireman with the local fire department.

Ten Years Mail Carrier.

About ten years ago he entered the employ of the Ironwood postoffice as mail carrier, which he held until his death.

He was married Oct. 4, 1911, to Miss Maud Brown of Upson, Wis. He died Tuesday evening, May 7, at the city hall after attending a firemen's meeting, where he had a stroke of apoplexy, death following in a few minutes. He was 39 years of age.

The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful. The local firemen, Bessemer fire department, Order of Owls and the Ladies' Relief corps attended the services. The local postoffice was closed and the postoffice staff attended the services. Interment was in Riverside cemetery.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Hill of Phillips, Wis., came here to attend the funeral, Mrs. Hill being a sister of Mrs. Morris.

NEW COMPANY LOCATES HERE

Aerial Cutlery Corporation Will Manufacture 1,500 Knives Per Week.

Within the next two weeks at 510 Garfield avenue, the wheels of industry will hum at the Aerial Cutlery Manufacturing company's factory. Their product will be 1,500 to 2,000 knives per week. This company will have on its pay-roll at the outset 45 to 50 employes. The building they have selected is 75 feet long, 25 feet wide, embracing two stories and a basement.

F. H Jaeger, the secretary of the company, has just returned from Morris, Ill., after loading all of the necessary factory machinery. The machinery will arrive in Duluth on Monday. It will require about ten days to install the hammers, forges, polishing machines, plating establishment, stock rooms for crude and finished materials, as also various other departments necessary.

This is only a forerunner of what Duluth may expect in the near future, and is what might be termed temporary quarters until better facilities and a fine modern factory can be prepared. The main specialty of this company will be the manufacturing of all kinds of high grade pocket knives, hunting knives, butcher knives, and the various other classes of knives used by individuals at their homes, meat markets, etc.

J. D. Phillips, the president of the company, came to Duluth four years ago and established a small sales office at 525 Manhattan building. A year later he moved to 319 West First street to larger quarters, and at that time with the assistance of Thomas D. Madden, F. H. Jaeger and C. F. Jaeger succeeded in building up quite an extensive business. The combined efforts of these four men brought the business up to such an extent that a force of twenty-one additional salesmen was added during the two years following, and three months ago Mr. Phillips decided to incorporate the Aerial Cutlery Supply company. He is now president of this corporation with Thomas D. Madden, vice president; F. H. aeger, secretary, and C. F. Jaeger, treasurer.

Negotiations were immediately started to purchase outright the manufacturing industry of the Norris Cutlery company located at Morris, Ill. Mr. Phillips was induced by the Rotary club civic committee to move the institution to Duluth, and centralize his distributing office with the manufacture of their line of products under one roof, and with the assistance of the Duluth Rotary club they finally located a suitable building at 510 Garfield avenue.

STORM STRIKES THREE STATES

Missouri, Kansas and Iowa Get Heavy Rain With Severe Lightning.

Kansas City, Mo., May 11.—A heavy rain storm, in some places a down-pour and in others accompanied by a high wind, which did damage of nearly $75,000, visited western Missouri and Kansas last night as far west as Ness county in the central west portion of that state. In Ness county the rain amounted almost to a cloudburst. In Galena and many smaller towns of southwestern Kansas the rain was heavy.

The storm struck Kansas City shortly after dark and for two hours the downpour continued.

At Joplin many small buildings were damaged and mining plants injured. There also was in other sections of the mining district of southwest Missouri many mines booded.

Houses Unroofed.

Parsons, Kan., May 11.—A hard rain storm accompanied by a high wind did damage of more than $50,000 here late yesterday afternoon. Houses were unroofed, plate glass windows blown in and telephone and telegraph wires blown down.

Meager reports have been received here of heavy rain at Great Bend and in Ness county. One man is reported to have been killed by the storm south of Parsons.

Des Moines Gets Soaked.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 11.—Des Moines was visited by a severe rain and electric storm yesterday which caused damage running well into the thousands. Lightning struck the five-story warehouse of the Davidson Furniture company, which took fire. Hundreds of basements in the down town districts were flooded.

IS HELPED BY SUN.

Fact Orb Had Arisen Makes Milwaukee Crime Daylight Burglary.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 11. — Because the sun rose at 4:25 o'clock yesterday morning, George Stone, 27, a cowboy from North Dakota, who was arrested by Patrolman Mueller for burglarizing a West Water street store, will serve six months in the house of correction instead of three years.

Stone said hat he was never in a large city before, that this was the first time he had been arrested and that he had been drinking.

"The minimum for burglary in the night time is three years," said Judge Backus. "I hate to send this fellow out that long."

"What time did you arrest Stone?" asked the district attorney.

"At 4:26," answered Mueller. The weather bureau was called, and it was learned that the sun rose at 4:25.

"I move to amend the complaint to burglary in the daylight," said the district attorney.

Stone was saved two and one-half years.

"KIMMEL" WELL UP ON HISTORY OF NILES, MICH.

Chicago, May 11.—C. H. Johnson, a former friend in Niles, Mich., of George A. Kimmel, aided in the attempt to prove that the Kimmel claimant in a hospital here has a just right to the name. Johnson, after a long interview to test the revived memory of the patient, said:

"He surely is Kimmel."

Attendants at the hospital who were present when Johnson, now a Chicagoan, questioned "Kimmel," assert that the patient knew more of early Niles history than the questioner.

WOMAN FOREMAN IN CHICAGO INSANITY CASES.

Chicago, May 11.—Dr. Clara P. Selpel, assistant city physician, is said to be the first woman to sit on a jury in Illinois. She was foreman of a jury in the court for the insane at the detention hospital, where the proceeding differs from ordinary courts, and assisted in deciding three cases. Two verdicts returned bearing her signature committed men to the asylum at Dunning and in another case, a woman, a dependent, was sent home in the care of relatives.

VERDICTS IN THREE CASES

Sealed Judgment Is Returned in White Iron Lake Fire Litigation.

Personal Injury Action Decided Against City—A. M. Balfany Loses.

Three juries returned verdicts in district court late yesterday.

A sealed verdict was returned last evening in the case of Jacob Rajala against the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company, one of the White Iron Lake fire cases. The verdict was delivered to Judge Ensign this morning, but will not be opened until court convenes Monday morning.

Rajala sued the railroad company for $8,200, alleging that fire set by locomotives had swept over his farm adjoining the right-of-way during the drouth of 1910. The case was started Monday and the taking of evidence required the remainder of the week.

Yesterday afternoon, the jury in the case of A. M. Balfany against the Ron Fernandez Cigar company, returned a verdict in favor of the defendant. The case was one in which Balfany claimed to have been defrauded out of $1,000 on stock which he bought, but which he claims was never delivered to him. The case was tried in Judge Dancer's court.

The personal injury action which Mrs. Anna Erickson brought against the city of Duluth in which she asked for $3,000 damages for a fall on a defective sidewalk, was tried before Judge Dancer and a jury late yesterday afternoon. The jury returned a verdict for $100 in favor of the plaintiff.

Three personal injury actions noticed for trial at this term were dismissed today by stipulation. The Northern Pacific Railway company was defendant in two of the actions in which the plaintiffs were Victor Laury and Joseph Davidson and the other case was that brought by Frank Mattson, administrator of the estate of Ulias Halkola, against the Republic Iron & Steel company. Halkola was a miner who was killed at the Schley mine on Nov. 6 last.

NORTHWESTERN DEVELOPMENT CONGRESS

GOVERNORS WHO HAVE ISSUED A JOINT PROCLAMATION CALLING THE NORTHWESTERN DEVELOPMENT CONGRESS IN SEATTLE.

Seattle, Wash., May 11.—Seven governors of northwestern states have issued a joint proclamation calling a "Northwestern Development Congress" to be held in Seattle June 5 to 8. The remarkable proclamation was made public by Governor M. E. Hay of this state, and for four days Seattle will be the capital of the American Northwest with seven governors and hundreds of citizens in attendance at the conference. The conference is to plan a campaign and suggest legislation which will assist the northwestern states in more rapid development and to stem the tide of immigration to Canada. This fact is set forth by the governors in the proclamation when they say "not realizing the opportunities in their own country, thousands of people from the United States, with hundreds of thousands of dollars in wealth, have developed farms and built new homes under a foreign flag."

Everybody Says, "Swat the Fly,"--

So say we—all of us, but don't forget that the fly is not one to six in spreading germs of disease to what you have in the grime and dust of your curtains, draperies, rugs, carpets, table, piano, couch covers, etc. These articles of household necessity are veritable incubators and brooders of disease germs, the whole year round.

Beating, sweeping and vacuum cleaning will not remove these germs. Only our perfected process of French Dry Cleaning will successfully remove dust, dirt, stain and disease germs.

The popularity of this thorough process may be judged from the fact that we consumed 3,900 gallons of doubly distilled gasoline during the month of April.

Let us talk with you about the perfecting and completing your household cleaning this spring.

FAIR WEATHER FOR DERBY DAY

Classy Field Entered for Kentucky's Famous Annual Race.

Louisville, Ky., May 11.—Derby day in Kentucky dawned with the track heavy, a condition that kept wiseacres who were trying to choose a winner among the fleetest field of three-year-olds in the world, "guessing their heads off."

This one annual occasion on which the population of Kentucky is entirely homogenous, finds the sport as popular as ever and the biggest crowd ever assembled at a race track here is at Churchill Downs.

The big purses and the fame of the contenders attracted an unusual attendance from other states. New Yorkers arrived last night and this morning special trains brought sportsmen from Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Memphis and Nashville.

The preliminary betting has been keen. The Manager yesterday disputed with Worth as favorite, while Wheelwright and Free Lance, at better odds, had a big following.

Rain last night and this morning encouraged those who fancy long shots and caused the talent seriously to consider the possibility of an outsider galloping home with the money over a muddy course.

Following are the starters with weights, jockeys and odds:

The Manager, 117, T. Koerner, 12 to 5.
Worth, 117, C. Shelling, 7 to 2.
Wheelwright, 117, T. J. Byrne, 5 to 1
Free Lance, 117, C. Peak, 6 to 1.
Flamma, 112, J. Loftus, 15 to 1.
Sonada, 117, J. Henry, 20 to 1.
Guaranola, 117, G. Molesworth, 20 to 1.
Duval, 117, C. Fain, 30 to 1.
Patruche, 119, R. Goose, 50 to 1.

WILL SHOOT FOR TROPHY

Central Gun Club Will Hold Tournament on Park Point.

Members of the Central Gun club will hold a trophy shoot tomorrow afternoon at the grounds on Park Point.

The central location of the club's new traps has made them very popular, and the club is starting the season with an increased membership and greater enthusiasm than has been shown for many years.

FRENCH TEAM WINS FIRST OLYMPIC EVENT.

Stockholm, Sweden, May 11.—The first event in this year's Olympic games was decided today when Andre H. Gobert and Max Germot, representing France, won the finals of the men's doubles in the lawn tennis matches, beating Hetterwall and Kempe, the Swedish players, by 6-4, 12-14, 6-2, 6-4.

BUSY DAY FOR YALE ATHLETES.

New Haven, Conn., May 11.—This is the banner athletic day at Yale, for nearly all her representatives in the various branches of sport have contests to carry through. The most important is the annual field and track meet with Princeton, to be followed by the annual ball game with the University of Pennsylvania.

For the first time in many years Yale entered upon her competitions against Princeton with the prospect of defeat, owing to weakness in the sprints. Lack of material, poor weather and injuries to some of its promising men have been given as an explanation for the gloomy forecast, which extends also to Yale's participation in the annual games with Harvard next Saturday and the intercollegiates a little later.

The track was never in better condition and the weather beautiful.

NEW YORK TEAM LOOKS THE BEST

Giants Appear to Have the Edge in National League Pennant Hunt.

New York, May 11.—Whatever the strength of the opposition the Giants are to meet this season their playing indicates that they are a better team than last year. They have been hitting conspicuously well—having averaged nine and a fraction hits a game in their first eleven contests—but even if they don't continue to hit at that rate, which they probably won't, the team shows such well distributed strength that the least to be expected of it is that it will be in the race all season.

The organization is working more smoothly with an additional year of existence, and as the individual members thereof run largely to youth, an additional year has added to their confidence and speed. Then again the team is better fortified with reserve material, says the Sun. This has been shown since the season opened, the absence of two such factors as Doyle and Fletcher making no perceptible impression on the finish and achievements of the team playing. With their speedy and concerted action the Giants, now that the young players are nearer to the zenith of their natural ability, will, there is every reason to believe, be a stronger club than last year. Certainly they start out as if they would be.

If this is so, where is the opposition to come from to keep the Giants from winning another pennant? From what has been seen of their Eastern rivals and from what can be judged of their Western rivals they are the class of the National league so far, excepting of course the Cincinnatis. The Cincinnatis must be excepted, for, however they compare in intrinsic strength with the Giants, they are in the lead.

Although the Bostons are a better team than last year, and it is unfair to judge the Phillies with their present crippled team, yet collectively the other three Eastern teams stand as much chance of making trouble for the four Westerners as for the Giants. That aspect of the case evens itself up. As to any ratio of improvement the Eastern teams may have made, or whatever their potentialities in that direction, there is no sign yet that they will be any more troublesome for the Giants than last year, this because of the improvement remarked on in the Giants themselves.

It is probable that the Western teams collectively will make more trouble for the champions than the Easterners. Both the Cubs and Pirates are strong enough to be dangerous, even if not quite as good as last year. It is too early to judge of that. They don't look to be as good at this time, but proof that they aren't capable of doing better than they have been doing will have to be forthcoming before a majority of baseball students will be convinced to that effect. The St. Louis Cardinals are at least as good as last year and are likely to be better. The Reds unquestionably are a much improved team. They have been playing a more intelligent and better organized game. Unless they are going beyond their speed, they are the greatest single menace in the pathway of the Giants.

The coming Western trip will tell a good deal, especially as regards the relative strength of the Giants and Reds. The Giants, possibly, facing pitchers not so good as the Reds have faced, have slightly outscored and outbatted O'Day's Delights. The Pololsts have averaged 6 9-11 runs a game and 9 1-11 hits. The best point about their hitting has been its consecutiveness, and their scoring has been of goodly size, in proportion to their batting. The Reds have averaged 5 3-10 runs a game and 8 9-10 hits. They, too, have shown encouraging ability to score in proportion to opportunities. It would give new interest to the race were they to continue to be a factor.

JOBS OFFERED BY UNCLE SAM

Examination for Many Places to Be Held During Next Month.

On May 22 there will be a number of chances for jobs with Uncle Sam, for on that date examinations under the civil service will be held at the local postoffice.

Uncle Sam wants an assistant chemist at a salary of $1,200 per year, a business teacher at $1,000 per year, electrical and mechanical inspectors at from $1,200 to $1,500 per year, and Indian reservation superintendents at salaries ranging from $1,200 to $3,000 per year.

Examinations for all these positions will take place on May 22 and detailed information may be had for the asking at the local postoffice, the civil service department.

On June 5 and 6 an additional set of examinations will be held.

On that date Uncle Sam will try to get a draftsman, whom he will pay $720 per pear, a preparator for the national museum at Washington, whom he will pay $60 per month. There will also be examinations for positions in the department of agriculture, bureau of mines and other departments of the government.

The examinations are not rigid, as many believe, but on the contrary are said to be simple in each particular line. Uncle Sam has many good jobs to offer young men and women with ordinary educations. The wages are better than before and there is a big chance for advancement, it is said.

Word was received by President Flannery that 200 freight handlers at Galesburg, Ill., walked out today.

"The strike will spread to every city in the country unless the Chicago railroads grant the demands of the men," said President Flannery.

The railroad officials say they have large forces of nonunion me nat work in the different freight houses here.

No disorders were reported today and the situation remained unchanged. There was further talk of settling the dispute by arbitration.

HIS DIFFERENT HANDWRITINGS.

London Chronicle: Most remarkamong execrable writers have been John Bell, the barrister of whom Lord Eldon said to the prince regent that he was the ablest equity lawyer of his time, though he could "neither read, write, walk nor talk."

Bell was a cripple and his Westmoreland accent combined with his stammer to make his speech unintelligible. The character of his writings appears from his own statement that he had three styles, one of which he could read but his clerk could not, while the second was intelligible to his clerk but not to himself, and the third baffled both of them.

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

Not until they were notified that about $1,000 worth of their stock was being peddled in Milwaukee did the Kelley Hardware company officers know that they had been robbed of a large quantity of miscellaneous articles.

The Milwaukee police found Byron R. Green offering a large amoun of the stuff for sale in second hand stores and pawn shops about the city and placed him under arrest. They correctly suspected that he had stolen the goods.

Some of the pieces bore the stamp of the local hardware concern and the Duluth authorities were communicated with. An investigation disclosed that the goods had been stolen from them. W. N. Hart, manager of the firm, and Detective Donald Irvine went to the beer city and there secured a confession from the young man, who had formerly been employed by the company. Until confronted by Mr. Hart he had steadily denied his guilt, but when he saw his former employer he broke down and told the whole story. He told them where the goods were hidden and they were brought back to Duluth today in several large packing cases, one of which weighed over 300 pounds.

The stolen goods included all kinds of tools, automobile robes, sporting goods, rifles, revolvers, silverware, clocks and a dozen different other things, taken from the best of the hardware company's stock.

Green was discharged last February. A number of articles began to be missed and he was suspected of having taken them. But not until he had been arrested in Milwaukee did the company realize the extent of the systematic robbery which had been carried on. Green had access to the whole of the large store while he was working there, and he evidently had no trouble in helping himself to whatever he wanted, except the cash in the safe and the money drawer. He had taken the articles one and two at a time, carrying them away with him.

"Booze," was the reason offered by the young man for his thefts. He told Detective Irvine that if he had not been drinking he would not have stolen.

Green was brought to Duluth this morning. He was arraigned in police court on a warrant sworn out by Mr. Hart charging him with the theft of $200 worth of miscellaneous tools. He waived examination and was bound over to await the action of the next grand jury. He told the police that he wished to plead guilty in the district court and leave himself to the mercy of the court.

"Were you ever in before?" Judge Cutting asked Peter Olson when he was brought before him yesterday afternoon to answer a charge of drunkenness.

"Yes, once before," said the prisoner.

"When was that?" asked the court.

"I was arrested once before when the court room was in the old Hayes block," replied Olson.

"Suspended sentence," said the court.

Commenting on the case afterwards Judge Cutting remarked that he had been in Duluth twenty-six years and that the police court had been moved from the Hayes block before his time.

In the majority of cases the prisoner denies that he has been arrested before if it's more than a month back. And in many instances they appear to have forgotten all about even though it was but a day or two before that they were in the toils of the law.

Matt Mattson allowed himself to be enticed out of a St. Croix avenue saloon last night by Marie Turner, colored. Marie led him around to the rear of the building, extracted Matt's purse containing $15 in cash, he claims. Before Matt knew what had happened she gave Matt a farewell caress and disappeared. When he missed his money he went to a policeman and caused Marie's arrest on a charge of grand larceny in the first degree. She asked for an examination when brought into police court this morning and her hearing was set for Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

But Joe does like his drinks, big ones, the kind where the fellow puts his finger around the rim of the glass so he will not spill any precious drops. That's the reason Joe is with us again. He was picked up on the Bowery this morning by Patrolman Mooney with another of those glorious souses. He will have another day in court Monday morning, for Joe was in no condition to be brought up before the noon hour and court is not in session Saturday afternoons.

Stan Stenmark, an old man arrested yesterday for begging along Lake avenue, would have been a good case for attention from the board of public welfare if that body were supplied with funds enabling it to do something. The court didn't hardly know what to do with him. He was almost too old to send to jail, and he had no home to which he could go. He pleaded guilty to the charge and the court allowed him his liberty.

M. M. CLARK SUMMONED

Death Comes to Minnesota Pioneer After Long Illness.

Was Prominent Member of Masonic Order, and Civil War Veteran.

Merrill M. Clark, 68 years old, one of the pioneers of Minnesota, a Civil war veteran and a prominent Mason in West Duluth, died at 7 o'clock last evening at his home, 5608 West Eighth street. The deceased had been ill from rheumatism the past three years and his death yesterday is the result of this old malady. He is survived by one son, L. R. Clark of 5711 Huntington street, who is seriously ill at St. Luke's hospital. Mrs. Clark died about a year ago.

Mr. Clark has been an invalid for the past year from acute rheumatism which constantly kept him at his home. He had lived in West Duluth since 1886, when he first came to this part of the state from Northfield. Mr. Clark was one of the pioneers in Minnesota, having come here in the early fifties with his parents. The entire family settled at Northfield, where Mr. Clark lived until his departure for Duluth.

In 1861 Mr. Clark enlisted with Brackett's battalion, Minnesota Volunteer Cavalry, and served four years and nine months in the Civil war. He was a member of Culver Post, G. A. R. After his arrival here Mr. Clark took a prominent part in the development of the country. He assisted the Merritt family in their early work and was well known as a pioneer settler of

M. M. CLARK.

Duluth. He also took a large part in the civic and commercial work of West Duluth during the nineties.

Mr. Clark was a past master of Euclid lodge No. 198, and of the Northfield lodge A. F. and A. M. He was also a past high priest of the Duluth chapter Royal Arch Masons. The Euclid lodge will have charge of the funeral, which will take place Monday afternoon, services will first be held at his home, 5608 West Eighth street, under the auspices of the G. A. R. Masonic services will follow at the West Duluth Masonic temple, under the auspices of the Euclid lodge. He will be buried at the family plot in the Oneota cemetery.

L. R. Clark, who is at St. Luke's hospital suffering from a severe attack of Bright's disease, is reported improving by the hospital attendants. His condition is not as serious now and hopes for his recovery are held out. Drs. D. W. Seashore and N. L. Linneman are attending Mr. Clark.

NEW LIBRARY IS NEARING COMPLETION.

In all probability the new Carnegie library at the northwest corner of Elinor street and Central avenue will be opened to the public on June 1. Work on the structure is practically completed and the next few weeks will be given over to furnishing the building and preparing for the opening.

Jacobson Brothers, who have had charge of the contracting work during the past few months, are now installing the large boilers in the basement. The various fixtures and wall cases are also being installed.

The building is only one story, with a very high basement, giving the structure a two-story appearance. The front of the building, covering forty feet, is almost entirely of glass. There are two large double glass windows and two large glass doors, which practically cover the front of the structure. The entrance is on Central avenue.

In the basement are the smaller rooms and assembly hall. The boiler and janitor's rooms are also in the basement. The first floor contains the library proper. There are two large reading rooms and the librarian's desk on the first floor. A large number of books are to be placed in the building by the library board and the small branch, next to the postoffice directly off Central avenue, will be discontinued after the first of the month. The library board has not yet announced the librarian of the new building.

WEST DULUTH TEAMS WILL OPEN SEASON.

The Zenith Furnace company and the Alger-Smith baseball teams will meet for the first time this year at the Fifty-second avenue west grounds tomorrow afternoon. The game is the first in the West Duluth league of shops and mills. Sunderland of Detroit, Minn., superintendent of Sunday school work for the Congregational churches of Minnesota. Rev. Mr. Clark has been compelled to omit services for the past two weeks on account of special service in the other church,

STAND PAT ON CARNIVAL

West Duluth Club Refuses to Indorse the Project.

Plans for Celebration of Fourth Will Be Changed.

Approving its former stand on the Fourth of July celebration, the West Duluth Commercial club at its regular meeting last evening went on record as opposing the proposal to bring a carnival company to West Duluth during Fourth of July week. A special roll call was taken and forty members of the club voted to stand by the action of two weeks ago, while nineteen were in favor of a carnival celebration.

Considerable discussion was held on the subject before the final roll call was taken. Members of the Fourth of July association appealed to the members of the club to rescind their action at their recent meeting. Those opposed to the plan of bringing a carnival to West Duluth, immediately replied to the members of the association. A heated discussion was held.

A resolution of the West Duluth branch of the W. C. T. U. was introduced and read by one of the members. After the vote was taken, the members of the Fourth of July association decided to give up the idea of a carnival week and devote their time to a local celebration. The members of the club also pledged themselves to support the association in its celebration on July 4.

No other business was taken up at the meeting, except the passing of resolutions of condolence by the club on the death last evening of Merrill M. Clark. Mr. Clark was a prominent member of the club and one of West Duluth's oldest residents.

Rushing Work on Jail.

Contractor N. A. Bergstrom is rapidly pushing the work on the New Duluth jail, so that the structure will be finished by June 1, the contract time. A large crew of men just finished the basement and the structural work is expected to start early next week. The building will cost $5,000 when completed.

HOPE FOR RECOVERY OF MICHAEL JACOBY.

Michael Jacoby, who was taken to St. Mary's hospital the other day, is improving and the attending physicians are now holding out hopes for his immediate recovery. Mr. Jacoby had been at the home of W. E. Kern, 4809 West Sixth street, for a number of weeks when he was suddenly stricken Thursday morning. He was immediately rushed to the hospital, where his condition was thought to be serious. He was suffering from a complication of Bright's disease, pneumonia and kidney trouble. This noon the physicians reported his condition as being much better and that there is a strong chance for his recovery.

FURS.

Chicago Post: Furs are the hirsute adornment and cuticular integument, so to speak, of various animals. The ermine, which is the white fur of a cute little beast whose tail looks as though it had been accidently dipped into a bootle of ink, is by general consent accorded the positing of lining and lapel use for cornation robes. As cornations generally occur on hot days, the sight of royalty sweltering in fur-lined garments cheers the hoi polloi and adds tone to the vox populi.

The shy, retiring animal vulgarly called the shunk furnishes a fine fur—though it does not do so without protest. The musk rat also provides us with a luxurious style of sable, or something. In fact, the depredating maltese cat and the dog that bays the moon may eventually provide gorgeous raiment for the forms of the fair sex.

What we started out to say is that it strikes us odd that folks will prize so highly and vaunt themselves so greatly upon the possession of the garb of animals with which in life they would not mingle socially, nor, as in the case of the shunk, even make pets of.

The bureau of statistics shows that American automobiles are shipped every year to Mexico, the West Indies and various countries in South America, Asia, Oceanica and Africa.

Switzerland now receives more tourists from the United States than from any other nation except its next door neighbor, Germany. Last year the Americans registered at Luzerne, numbered 26,000.

ARGUE FLOUR CITY RATES

Attorneys Appear Before Interstate Commerce Commission at Capital.

Good Faith of Petitioning Body Attacked By Railroad.

(From The Herald Washington Bureau.)

Washington, May 11.—Arguments in the case of the Flour City Steamship company against the Lehigh Valley and other railroads were submitted to the interstate commerce commission today. The Flour City line has asked the commission to order the Eastern lines to establish a through route and a joint rate on flour from Minneapolis to New York via Duluth and Buffalo, and also to direct the Eastern lines to give the Flour City line the same proportional rate for the haul from Buffalo to New York as is given the other lines now participating in the through business.

The present rate on flour from Minneapolis to New York in the standard sack lines is 23 cents. The Flour City line has filed tariffs from Minneapolis to Buffalo of 5 cents, from Minneapolis to Duluth and 6.3 cents from Duluth to Buffalo. If the commission orders the establishment of the through route and joint rate with the 9.2 cents proportional, the through rate via the Flour City line will be 20.5 cents, a difference of 2.5 cents below the present standard rate.

James and Boles Talk.

Francis B. James argued the case for the Flour City line, contending that this line is a common carrier, that it is in the field to establish competition on the Great Lakes, and that it is within the power of the commission, under the interstate commerce law, to direct the Eastern lines to establish the through route and joint rate on the basis applied for.

A. E. Boles, arguing for the Lehigh Valley road, contended that the establishment of the through route and joint rate with the 9.2 cents proportional Buffalo to New York would disrupt rates from the Southwest in Central Freight association territory and in trunk line territory east of Chicago.

He contended also that the Flour City line is merely a paper corporation, inasmuch as it is not operating any boats on the Great Lakes this season, and finally that the action is brought in the interest of the Minneapolis millers, in order that they might get back their old position of preference in the milling world.

NEW LIGHT ON PATRICK HENRY.

The Docket: After the capture of Richmond a party of English tourists were in that city, chaperoned by an old darky.

"What is that building?" said one of the gentlemen to him.

"Dat's a 'bacco warehouse," said the old man.

And then, looking in the direction of a high hill, Church Hill as it is called in Richmond, the touring party spied a church at the top.

"And what is that building? Is that a tobacco warehouse also?"

"Oh, no, sah. Dat's de church whar Patrick Henry made de speech, 'Give me liberty or give me death' and 'fore Gawd dey done give him both."

NEGRO BANKS INCREASING.

Nashville Tennessean: Negro banks in the United States are increasing at a rapid rate. Altogether there are now fifty-seven negro savings institutions in this country. Tennessee has four, Alabama seven, Georgia four, Mississippi eleven, Virginia eleven, Texas six, North Carolina six, Florida, South Carolina and Maryland one each, Oklahoma two.

Pennsylvania and Massachusetts have one negro bank each and Illinois has two, these being the only four in the North.

Deposits in negro banks aggregate $5,200,000, and their capital stock is $1,600,000.

The first negro bank was organized at Richmond, Va., in 1888, and the second at Birmingham in 1890.

WANT LIQUOR BILL PASSED

Methodists Unanimously Indorse Measure Now Before Congress.

Episcopacy Report Is Expected at Minneapolis Monday.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—By a unanimous vote, the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church today approved the Kenyon-Sheppard bill, now before congress, which prohibits the shipment in interstate commerce of intoxicating liquor into "dry" territory. The report, which was presented by J. Frank Hanley, former governor of Indiana, urges Methodists of the United States to continue to urge the enactment of the measure throughout the life of the present congress, and if need be until a congress shall be elected which will afford relief."

Criticized Congress.

Harsh criticism was directed at congress by W. H. Anderson of Baltimore, chairman of the church's law committee, in his address upon the topic.

"Since four years ago," he said, "another party has come into power, which is doing the same thing in regard to the liquor question for which it attacked the other party then. There are some there who fear to take up such a question at this time because they believe it may cause their party to retire, but I believe it is time to force some of them to retire."

If the report of the committee is approved by the conference the old name "presiding elder" again will be in vogue, supplanting that of "district superintendent," which was adopted four years ago. During the last four years there has been much opposition to the new term.

Episcopal Report Monday.

That the episcopacy board, which plays an important part in the "politics" of the church, will be ready to report Monday or Tuesday, was the statement of J. C. Nicholson, its chairman, today in answer to a motion hastening the report.

Rev. "Billy" Sunday, who has been holding evangelical service at Fargo, N. D., will speak Monday afternoon before the conference. In speaking of Rev. Sunday's address, Bishop Barry said that Mr. Sunday would not speak upon the "amusement" question. Many delegates, it is said, opposed his coming, fearing that such a talk would influence legislation now before the conference.

ORIGIN OF LACE MAKING.

The Craftsman: A romantic legend is still current among the peasants of Europe concerning the origin of lace. As the story goes, a lover who could offer his betrothed no costly gift, one day brought to her a leaf which he had plucked in the forest.

She accepted it as a true token of love and preserved it with care. In time the lover went away—to the wars, perhaps—and never returned.

The maiden prized the leaf then as a sacred treasure, and when she found only the delicate veining left of her keepsake, she took needle and thread and tried to copy the fairylike web. And thus was made the first bit of real lace.

JUST IMAGINE!

Chicago Tribune: After a desperate struggle the hero of the play had strangled the villain to death, and the curtain had gone down.

Wild applause rang through the theater.

But the hero and the villain refused to appear before the curtain hand in hand. They said it was inartistic and would spoil the illusion of the play.

"Where did this happen," do you ask?

Nowhere! This is merely a fancy sketch.

WITNESS ALL TANGLED UP

Williams Makes Bad Showing In the Archbald Inquiry.

Gets House Committee Confused By His Mass of Contradictions.

Washington, May 11.—Edward J. Williams of Scranton, Pa., testifying before the house judiciary committee today in the hearing of charges against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court, entangled himself in a mass of contradictory statements that almost baffled the committee.

Williams, who was a partner with Judge Archbald in an alleged effort to procure culm bank property from the Erie railroad, was particularly confused about an assignment contract executed last September with W. P. Boland of Scranton, in which Judge Archbald was referred to as a "silent party."

First denying he ever signed such a contract, then admitting that he did, but asserting a copy of the contract before the committee was not the one he signed, and finally declaring he had no good recollection about it, Williams was bombarded by questions by different members of the committee and Judge Archbald's counsel, A. S. Worthington.

The witness answered questions put to him by Mr. Worthington, and when asked similar questions by members of the committee he contradicted himself repeatedly.

In his earlier testimony it developed that Williams was a partner with Judge Archbald in negotiations for buying a culm bank from the Erie railroad to sell at a profit of $12,000 to the Lackawanna & Wyoming railroad. The judge at that time had the Erie's so-called lighterage cases in his court. The committee is investigating to decide if impeachment proceedings should be brought against the judge.

FRENCHMEN'S TASTE IN DRESS.

The Gentlewoman: The rage for everything English still seems to continue in Paris, though the Frenchman who sets out to dress himself a l'Anglais as a rule makes but a poor show for his trouble.

His "fancy vests" are usually fearful as well as wonderful, his tie decidedly more original than beautiful and is adorned with something quite barbaric in the shape of a pin, his canary colored gloves and absurd cane such as no Englishman would dream of "sporting" in his wildest moments.

The Frenchman has, I fear, innately bad taste where dress is concerned, just as the French woman beats her English and even American sisters all along the line when the question of taste in dress comes in.

The Parisienne follows the fashion of being English in such matters as "Le sport" and "Le five o'clock," but she takes good care to set her own fashions in dress and to keep to them. Monsieur, on the other hand, would give neything to be dressed a l'Anglais and to be mistaken for an Englishman, but knows not how to manage it.

RESTRICTIONS ON PULQUE DRINKING.

Mexican Herald: Pulque shops must close earlier and restaurants may remain open later was the decision reached at the cabinet meeting Tuesday.

Abraham Gonzalez, minister of Gobernacion, has announced that all places were pulque was sold must close at 6 p. m. except on Sundays and holidays, when the closing hour would be at noon. Restaurants, by paying a higher license, may remain open until 3 o'clock in the morning. Furthermore, the tax on pulque is to be advanced from 75 centavos the hectoliter to a peso.

WILSON'S STRENGTH.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer, obviously minded to be of service to Governor Harmon in the forthcoming Ohio primaries, says that Governor Wilson is practically beaten.

Governor Wilson is very far from being beaten. He still stands as the only candidate with a nation-wide following. He still stands as the one candidate against whom the field is combined.

Says the Plain Dealer, accounting for its statement that Wilson can hardly win: "The reason, of course, is that practically every delegate not pledged to the New Jersey governor is definitely and firmly opposed to him."

That is what the candidates opposed to Wilson would like the situation to be, but it is not what the situation is. The very heart of Champ Clark's following is largely for Wilson as second choice, and the Clark delegations include many individuals, bound by instructions, to whom Wilson is first choice. North Dakota's Burke delegation is, as strongly for Wilson as Oregon's ten. The Oklahoma Clark votes are for Wilson after Clark. The twenty from Kansas that will vote for Clark on the first ballot will vote for Wilson as soon as it is seen that Clark cannot be nominated, for they are so instructed, and a majority of them are Wilson men.

Governor Wilson is very far from a beaten man. His chance of gaining the nomination is as good today as anybody's. He represents an element of progress in American life that is striving for a chance to express itself, and he represents it better than any other candidate in either party.

THE HOUSE TAKES RADICAL ACTION.

Congress left intact but one detail of the iniquitous railroad "regulation" measure which President Taft turned into it with the request that it go through as it stood.

When the Democrats and Progressive Republicans turned the limelight on that bill it was shown up as an amazingly bold railroad scheme to defeat the cause of railroad regulation. Had it passed as it came from the White House it would have set that cause back twenty years.

Congress, before passing it, struck out practically all of its reactionary provisions. The bill that became law bore little likeness to the bill proposed by the president.

In behalf of the commerce court provision, however, it was argued that the commerce court would facilitate decisions in railroad disputes by relieving the overburdened federal courts. So the provision was allowed to stand.

And the commerce court might have done all that was claimed for it if the right men had been appointed to it. As it was, the court turned out to be a sort of ready relief for the railroads. Its own conception of its duty seems to have been to balk the interstate commerce commission, and to rally to the standard of the railroads. Recent developments regarding one of the members of the court have strengthened public distrust of it.

So the house has passed a bill abolishing the commerce court and restoring to the interstate commerce commission all its former powers of rate regulation.

The same bill abolishes the tariff board and puts its duties under a bureau in the department of commerce and labor, consolidating under the same head two other bureaus, one in the department of state and the other in the department of commerce and labor.

There will be little regret because of either of these acts, and little ground for reasonable criticism of them. Perhaps when there is a president in power who can be depended upon to appoint unbiased judges, the commerce court may be restored.

Poetic Justice.

Now the commerce court knows how some of those knocked out rulings of the interstate commerce commission feel.

WHAT A RELIEF!

It requires a little stretch of imagination to realize that kings and queens are simply human beings very much like the rest of us, but of course that's all they are. The accident of birth has landed them in positions of lonely grandeur which are coming to be more and more formal and to have less and less substance; so they are required to live on a certain scale and surround themselves with a certain display of magnificence. Yet they are just men and women, after all.

The London Daily News tells us about the "second court of the season," which was recently held at Buckingham palace with an attendance of more than a thousand. There was an impressive array of princes and princesses and dukes and duchesses, with all the elaborate display that naturally would be expected to go with such a handfull of courtcards. The king wore the glittering uniform of colonel-in-chief of the Coldstream Guards. "The queen was attired in a gown of gray and silver broche satin, a train of cloth of silver, trimmed with lace and silver embroidery, and a crown of diamonds. She wore diamond ornaments, the Star of Africa, and the Koh-i-noor, the Order of the Garter and Family Orders."

"The scene was one of great animation and brilliance," says our London informer, "as their majesties entered the state ballroom at 9:30, followed by other members of the royal family in procession. The prime minister and most of his colleagues were in attendance. The presentations over, their majesties retired to their own apartments, while the guests took supper."

Now remember, please, that "their majesties," when they are not officially working as king and queen, are man and woman. Before their tremendously impressive procession and the presentations, they had to be rigged out in their royal uniforms, and that took time. They were on their feet for many hours, trussed up in burdensome and uncomfortable harness. If they were only king and queen, they would be above weariness. Being, after all, merely man and woman, doubtless they were tired to death.

Projecting into them this conception of their common clay and ordinary humanity, it is easy to imagine that when they "retired to their apartments" there might have been a duet that sounded something like this: "Thank heaven that's over!"

Just how far a king and queen permit themselves to indulge the luxuries of comfortable privacy we don't know. Maybe it is part of their duty to make themselves believe in their superhumanity. But if the king could have shucked that uniform, got his feet into slippers and a pipe into his mouth, and sat back with his feet elevated in solid comfort, it would have been a very human and sensible thing to do. And if the queen could have sat down comfortably in a kimono with her hair in curl papers, that, too, would seem like a very welcome relief from the public show.

Anyway, royalty or no royalty, it's a safe bet that the king and queen were more comfortable after they "retired to their apartments" than they were when the show was going on.

Heads or Tails.

It's very interesting to hear that Richeson was a Mormon. Also to hear that he wasn't. But the question is, what is he going to be?

RAILROAD TAXATION--A NEW ANGLE.

During its fight for an extra session of the legislature, as well as before and since, The Herald has insisted that railroad property in this state is grossly undertaxed.

It has furnished many illustrations of this fact. Here is another one:

The purpose of the law of 1911 taxing moneys and credits was to impose a merely nominal tax, so that fuller returns would be made. The rate is three dollars on each thousand.

This, mind you, is purely a "nominal" tax. It isn't supposed to represent anything like the proportion of the value of the property taxed that other taxes are supposed to represent.

You have a thousand dollars in the savings bank on May 1. It is drawing three per cent interest. In a year that will bring you thirty dollars.

When the assessor calls for returns on your personal property and moneys and credits, you report your ownership of this thousand dollars. You pay a tax of three dollars on it.

THAT TAX IS TEN PER CENT OF THE GROSS EARNINGS ON YOUR MONEY.

Railroad property pays a tax of four per cent on its gross earnings; and this is in lieu of all other taxes and assessments—state taxes, local taxes, assessments for street improvements, sidewalks, roads, drainage and the like.

The full measure of railroad taxation, then, is only forty per cent of this "merely nominal" tax on moneys and credits.

This "merely nominal" tax on moneys and credits is two and a half times as large as the tax on railroads—twice as large as the five per cent to which it was proposed to increase the railroad tax.

The discrepancy appears greater still when you remember that even if you owed the full amount of your thousand dollars in the savings bank, and must pay it out in a short time, you still must pay the tax on it under a decision of the supreme court.

The state has been at great pains to create a well thought out scheme of taxing moneys and credits, and that is wise.

But a little more thought toward making railroad property pay its just share of the state's expenses would also be wise, and it would produce hundreds—perhaps thousands—where the money tax produces dollars.

If Governor Eberhart had called an extra session of the legislature to propose an increase in the railroad tax rate in time to allow it to be voted on at this fall's election, the gain to the state for the two years that now will be lost would have been nearly two millions of dollars if the increase had been to five per cent.

Since there will be no extra session, that gain is now lost, forever. Those merchants and bankers and farmers and laborers who must bear the share of the burden of public expense which the railroads thus escape should know that the man responsible for this condition is Adolph O. Eberhart, governor, the only man who could call an extra session—and the man who didn't.

They Have Extra Sessions, Too.

Under the new law in Wisconsin, one piano in a house and a watch carried regularly by the owner are exempt from the personal property tax. Now what won't they do next over there?

THOSE OVERCROWDED PROFESSIONS.

Talking to young men at the Chicago Y. M. C. A. the other day Dean Wigmore said:

> About sixteen-twentieths of the lawyers in Chicago make from $1,000 to $3,000 a year. One-twentieth make $4,000, one-twentieth $5,000, one-twentieth $6,000 or more. There are not over forty lawyers in the city who make more than $10,000 a year.

The object, of course, was to warn young men that the legal profession, like the medical profession, is overcrowded, and that the rewards are spread out so thinly that only a few can expect to do particularly well.

Probably that won't deter many from seeking to enter the legal profession. Every lad who is aiming for a place in the legal profession expects confidently to be among the infinitesimal proportion that gets large returns; too many, unfortunately, hoping it without working for it; too many, also, without any natural qualifications.

Says the Chicago Tribune: "The same is true of the medical profession. In both cases the test for entrance should be stricter, so that only the proved fit could win. This is not undemocratic. It is just to those who are fit and to those who are not fit; and—an important consideration—it is just to clients and patients, who should be protected from inferior service, and to society, which needs every man at the work he is best fitted to do."

That suggestion will help; but the remedy lies deeper.

Much of the responsibility for the overcrowding of the professions belongs to the public schools. They must cease directing their full energies toward producing college matriculants aiming for the professons. They must devote more patient effort toward discovering the individual leanings and qualifications of their pupils, and toward helping the pupils to work out their destinies along the lines indicated. Then they will turn out less lawyers and doctors who will be failures as such, but who might have been great successes as farmers and mechanics.

If the public schools will work more for the ninety-and-nine who cannot hope to go to college, and will shape their courses so as to produce skilled farmers, mechanics and housewives as well as lawyers, doctors and failures, it will be better for the pupils, better for the professions, better for the clients and patients, and better for society.

Futile Search.

Now it appears that somebody went and opened the watertight compartments on the Titanic. Maybe they were looking for lifeboats.

REWARDING HONESTY.

According to a New York dispatch in The Herald last evening, an honest messenger boy picked up a bundle of securities worth more than half a million dollars and promptly returned it to the brokerage firm that had lost it.

And the brokerage firm opened its heart and gave the lad a whole quarter.

Honesty came pretty near being its own reward in that case.

And we can assure the generous beneficiary of this boy's honesty that he is in no danger whatever of expiring from enlargement of the heart.

Coincidence.

And Judge Archbald must admit the similarity in sound between "culm bank" and "come-back."

"PERFUNCTORY."

Do you know that that word "perfunctory" is the deadliest in the language?

It means, according to Webster, "done merely as a duty; performed mechanically and as a thing of rote, or carelessly and superficially; marked by indifference."

Perfunctory is a deadly word to be guarded against as a plague or a stealthy enemy.

It creeps on you unsuspected. Carelessness and indifference, loss of the joy of work, of the pleasure of creation, of the satisfaction of duty well done: these enemies of human efficiency breed it.

No good work or useful thing is done perfunctorily. All good work and all useful things are done by men and women who find joy in doing them, and who do them well because they like to do them and because they like the feeling that comes to them when they know they have done their best and that angels could do no more.

The duty done perfunctorily is a duty done in a slipshod way. The soldier on guard who guards perfunctorily is worse than no guard at all, because his comrades depend upon him for their security. The preacher, wearied and discouraged, who lets the trail of "perfunctory" creep over his sermons, produces as little feeling as he has himself. The officer of the law who performs his duties perfunctorily is the best friend of the lawbreaker.

Suppose the engineer in the cab ahead on the train where you sleep through the night lets "perfunctory" overcome him. Suppose he reads his order carelessly and smashes around a curve into another train. Suppose he keeps his lookout perfunctorily and doesn't see the red signal ahead.

Suppose the masons who put in the foundation of your house build perfunctorily, and the results of their carelessness destroys the investment you have made in a home.

Suppose the policeman who guards your neighborhood through the night guards it perfunctorily and thieves creep under his eye to steal your precious possession.

Having supposed these things, suppose you study your own relation to your own duties.

Do you do them perfunctorily, "mechanically and as a thing of rote?" Or do you put your best into them, and find a joy and satisfaction in doing your best, and in striving always to make your best of today better than your best of yesterday?

Look out for "perfunctory." It's a bad word. It's a sign of losing the joy of living. It's a sign of losing hope and ambition and courage. It's a sign of parting with your ideals and putting your dreams into a closed and sealed book. It's a sign of waning youth and advancing age—no matter what your years.

Perfunctory robs employers, kills ambition, wastes property, destroys life. It takes the joy out of life and quenches the spirit of ambition and hope that makes life worth living.

A thing worth doing is worth doing well. A thing done perfunctorily is a thing half done that gives satisfaction neither to you nor to those for whom it was done. Beware of "perfunctory."

Congress, it is said, may adjourn over the time of the party conventions but there is no way the time of those conventions can be hastened.

If the Maryland primary scrap is a good example of what's going to be pulled off in that state in June, it might be well to reserve a few seats now.

That Michigan man who brags about raising strawberries seven of which will fill a quart box, ought to be more explicit. Which is he hitting at, the size of the fruit, or the size of the average box?

A Wisconsin university clerk says higher education pays a 100 per cent dividend, but here, as elsewhere we're up against the same old trouble—so many lack the necessary for the original investment.

President Taft spent several minutes arguing with the disfranchised citizens of Adams county, Ohio, and the pathetic part of it is that he may have won just as many votes there as he is winning in other places.

"A CINCH."

To the Editor of The Herald:

These mathematical problems are really getting to be quite the rage. At best, they serve as amusement for a rainy evening. This last one published in The Herald of May 10 was, to say the least, a "cinch," and requires but a small amount of gray matter in the solving. I herewith submit my solution to this "brain twister." Send on some more, Mr. "I Got Stung," and make 'em stronger.

THE DEBT.

Percival Gibbon in McClure's: One day, some twenty years after landing in New York, from Russia, Robert H. Lucas received a letter from the great financial firm of Guelder & Parn, asking him to call at their office.

"I don't know what it's about," explained Lucas, as he handed the letter to a bearded clerk. "Perhaps your people have made a mistake in the name, or something."

"Our beoble," said the face in the pigeonhole, "do nod make mistagues! You vait! I vill enguire!"

Lucas felt ill at ease with 75 cents in his pocket in that high temple of finance, but the whiskered and spectacled face soon presented itself again in the aperture.

"So, you are Mr. Robert H. Lucas are you?" it inquired. "Den vere vas you in der year 1886?"

"Where was I?" repeated Lucas vaguely. "Let me see!—1886 — yes! I was in Russia then—in Tambov."

"Yes." The other's regard was keen. "An' now tell me about de man dat lived opposite to you in Tambov?"

"Do you mean the silversmith?" said Lucas. The other nodded. "Oh, him! He was a Jew; they expelled him."

"And his vife?"

"His wife? They expelled her, too," he answered. "I never heard of her again."

"Vot vas de last you heard of her?" In bald, halting words he told the story of how he had rescued the silversmith's wife from the Russian police and let her have his apartments all night, while he slept in the cold hallway outside.

The man behind the pigeonhole heard him intently.

"Yes," he said again, as Lucas finished. "You're de man. Ye do not require further proof, Mr. Lucas!"

He produced a slip of paper and a pen, which he laid on the ledge before his pigeonhole.

"I am instrugted to say dat if you will fill in and sign dis check, ve vill cash it."

"Eh?" Lucas was slow to understand.

"Ve vill cash it," repeated the other. "You fill it in—and sign it—and I vill cash it now."

"How much am I to write?" he asked.

"I haf no instrugtions about de amount," was the reply.

"But," cried Lucas, "I might write $50,000."

"My instrugtions are to cash de check ven you haf written it."

"Oh!" said Lucas.

He stared incredulously at the face for some moments, and then wrote a check for the sum he had named—$50,000. He was about to add his signature, when something occurred to him.

"Is it because I went across the road to that little woman in Tambov?" he asked suddenly.

The whiskered face answered composedly: "No. It is because you went out of your rooms and slept on de stairs."

"Because—" he seemed puzzled. "But that is a thing—why, any gentleman would do it."

"Dose are my instrugtions," said the man behind the pigeonhole.

"I see," Lucas stood upright, the uncompleted check in his fingers. The money in his pocket totaled 75 cents. He needed new boots, new clothes, leisure, consideration, and a sight of his native land; in short, he needed $50,000.

"You will cash this because I didn't insult a helpless woman?" he asked in level tones.

The whiskered cashier replied: "Yes. Because you went out of your rooms ven she vas in dem."

He laughed gently. "That is not the way to deal with a gentleman," he said. "I will make your firm a present of $50,000."

He showed the check he had written, with the figures clear and large. And then, with leisurely motions, he tore it across and again across.

"Much obliged," said Robert H. Lucas, and made for the door.

Not the System's Fault.

Chicago Record-Herald: "I used to think I would know just how to manage my wife when I go her."

"Has your system proved to be a failure?"

"No; the system may be all right, as far as I know. She has never let me try it."

Thick.

Chicago Tribune: "How far is it to the next town?" inquired the traveler in the mud bespattered buggy.

"'Bout ten mile, mister," said the Illinois farmer by the roadside.

"Long miles, too, I suppose."

"No, sir, they're not so very long, but you'll find them pretty blamed thick."

The Faddist.

There was an old woman,
And what do you think?
She grew fat and healthy
On victuals and drink.
But now her digestion
Is all in a riot,
Because she got cranky
And tackled a diet.

Credit Is Due Mrs. Bunyan.

Kansas City Star: The fame that is awarded to John Bunyan should also be divided with the woman he married. Mrs. Bunyan was perhaps more responsible for "Pilgrim's Progress" than anyone will ever know.

When Runyan married he was a rough and uncouth man, but the influence his wife exerted led Bunyan to change his method of living. Mrs. Bunyan brought her husband two religious books. These and her influence caused Bunyan to lead an upright life, and the result was "Pilgrim's Progress."

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

Organization Is Needed.

Laporte News: The only thing necessary to smash the Eberhart machine in this state, is definite and determined organization. A few organized deputies can disperse an unorganized mob even if it have a hundred times as many men. You have to "fight the devil with fire." The Eberhart forces are wonderfully well organized.

Some Luck.

Northome Record: Fortunatus they call him, and it isn't far wrong. Think of an ill-timed chap who wants to be re-elected governor and who don't have to raise a finger—he is in the hands of the brewery combine and other interests that run the state. That's what we call luck with a capital L.

Poor Pitcher.

Cambridge North Star: The governor's control in the political game seems to be good, but he lacks speed, and the people are getting onto his curves. About every ball he pitches is converted into a home run by the opposition.

Take Your Choice.

Northfield News: In the country the Eberhart administration is for Roosevelt; in the cities it is for Taft. Take your choice.

Not Worth It to Him.

Morris Sun: Governor Eberhart spent during the past year something like $350 for clipped press notices about himself, and charged it to the state of Minnesota. Judging by the tenor of most of them the governor would have been a fool to pay for them out of his own pocket.

He Will Branch Out.

Waseca Herald: If Ed Smith will be able to nominate Governor Eberhart in the face of the present opposition in his party, Minnesota will henceforth prove too small a field for his political activities.

Doesn't Want Eberhart.

Hancock Record: There is one thing to keep in mind and that is that every county convention should instruct all delegates against Eberhart no matter whether Spooner, Gordon or Lee gets their support. As sure as Eberhart is nominated there will be a Democratic governor and the statet does not want Eberhart at any price.

Has Need of Forgetfulness.

Park Rapids Enterprise: A small boy in the public schools, recently explained to his teacher that his "memory is the thing he forgets with." Governor Eberhart will indeed be happy if he can apply that definition to himself after reading the accumulations of his press clipping bureau.

Justice, Coal and Groceries.

Kansas City Star: So little is the fundamental conception of justice held by those who administer justice for us that a demand for the free administration of justice is quite beyond the comprehension of most lawyers. Able members of the profession have said with evident sincerity that one might as well demand free coal and free groceries as free justice!

Their trouble is that they cannot get it out of their heads that attorneys-at-law are indispensable. Undoubtedly, one could no more go to a lawyer under the present system and say, "Mr. Smith, I demand that you give your time and talents to me without charge"—one could no more justly expect such services free than he could expect the coal man or the grocer to give him commodities for nothing.

Justice must be taken out of the domain of private enterprise. Lawyers should be attached to the court, not merely nominally, as they are now, but actually, as judges and jurors are. They should be paid by the people. What outlay the people would thus incur through the wrong of someone should be recovered from the wrongful person. Free justice does not imply free injustice.

The activities of lawyers as officers of the courts would thus be limited to ascertainment of the facts. This would be a vast incidental benefit. It would raise the moral tone of society.

The expense of litigation would decrease enormously if justice were administered without privately paid lawyers. Many of the most thriving departments of litigation would be abandoned almost completely. The workmen's compensation statutes illustrate how this would come about. The definite ascertainment of rights by those laws make their administration more clerical than judicial. Without the incentive of fees to make the law chaotic, more of its departments would be set in order.

Other agencies to lessening litigation are such arbitration arrangements as nearly all our commercial organizations, boards of trade and others, have devised.

To administer justice should be the same as to protect rights. To protect rights is the chief, if it is not the only, proper function of organized society. That function should not be for sale.

The rich man goes to the coal merchant and buys more coal than the poor man buys.

The rich man goes to the groceries merchant and buys more groceries than the poor man buys.

The rich man goes to the justice merchants and buys more justice than the poor man buys.

That is wrong.

Death.

Like tired children with playthings
Cast aside and toys thrown down,
Death mothers us at last,
As one who knoweth best,
And lays us in her cool, white gown,
With folded hands to rest—
Tender, she curtains out the light,
And holds with kisses soft and sweet,
The wearied eyelids down,
In rest serene and deep,
The while she whispers through the night,
"Weep not, dear heart, weep not
But sleep, to waken in the Light."
—Ever M. Holmes.

No Waves.

New York Times: A young mother who still considers Marcel waves as the most fashionable way of dressing the hair was at work on the job.

The precocious child was crouched on it father's lap, the baby fingers now and then sliding over the smooth and glossy pate which is father's.

"No waves for you, father," remarked the little one. "You're all beach."

The Things I Prize.

These are the things I prize
And hold of deepest worth;
Light of the sapphire skies,
Peace of the silent hills,
Shelter of forests, comfort of the grass,
Shadows of clouds that swiftly pass,
Music of birds, murmur of little rills
And after showers
The smell of flowers
And of the good brown earth,
And, best of all, along the way
Friendship and mirth.
—Henry Van Dyke.

Perfect Balance.

Just so much work as keeps the brain from rust,
Just as much play as lets the heart expand,
Honoring God and serving man.

The Height of Folly.

Detroit Free Press: A woman is foolish to marry a man for his money, but then the man is twice as foolish to let her.

Lilacs.

How lovingly the lilacs lean,
How gracefully the lilacs nod,
Above the vernal gold and green
Of the soft garden sod!

And how adown the twilight tides
Their delicate perfume drifts and strays,
Recalling poignantly the ides
Of long evanished Mays!

O lilacs, droop! O lilacs, fling
Your attar as in other years!
From out the preclous past you bring
The bitter-sweet of tears!

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Providence and the Order of Nature.

In the presence of catastrophes such as shock humanity thoughtful men find themselves asking hard questions. When earthquake overwhelms Messina, the dam breaks at Johnstown, or the sinking Titanic carries its great company beneath the waves, certain staggering problems confront the earnest mind. Why are such calamities, with their frightful entail of mental and physical suffering, allowed in a moral universe? Has the Creator anything to do with these events? May we properly speak of them, as the underwriters do, as "acts of God?"

It is to be observed that the destructive forces of nature are no respecters of persons. They overwhelm good and evil men alike. Fire sweeps away every house that stands in its track whatever the moral character of its owner. In the event of shipwreck the professional gambler and the devout missionary go down to the same watery grave. That wickedness should meet its appropriate punishment we should expect, but such tragedies seem surely no just portion of the pure in heart.

That the universe is an absolutely orderly one no thinker can doubt. The reign of law is seen to be complete and impartial. Fire always burns and water always drowns and the pull of gravitation is always in operation. Nature plays no favorites and if any man, be he saint or sinner, stands in the way of the operations of nature he courts physical destruction. No exception is made for his innocence, his ignorance or his good intentions.

Before we bow God off the scene of human affairs, however, as being impotent or indifferent to human welfare, we may reflect on the evident use of this unvarying physical order that he has ordained as a means of human education. We may ask whether the Creator is not trying to teach us something through this material scheme of things that environs us.

Nature is a terribly stern schoolmaster, but the only ones competent to teach us such lessons as we are required to learn. Because of the rigid discipline of this teacher men have learned to build better cities, stronger bridges and safer ships and railways. Recognizing laws of the body, they have learned sanitation and hygiene. Recognizing laws of the mind, they have perfected education. Recognizing laws of the spirit, they have cultivated morality and religion.

It is not true to say that God does not care when we suffer. No heart of stone is enthroned at the center of the universe. The heart of the Eternal is most wonderfully kind. Suffering is not the lot of man alone, but abundantly shared by the Creator. When through human want of prudence, foresight or knowledge, man brings penalties upon himself, God suffers in the pain of His child. The boy who cuts himself with the knife that his father has given him for a birthday present wounds his father as well as himself. The father grieves that the boy could not learn without this discipline. Nor is it otherwise, we may believe, with the Father in heaven.

Some there may be who find a sort of consolation in the belief that God deliberately sends pain and trouble upon men. I prefer to believe, not that He sends these, but rather that He permits them. He will not override nature in favor of one who breaks a law of nature. He allows law to take its course, effect following cause with unvarying certainty. But that is by no means equivalent to saying that He deliberately sends the terrible thing that is a source of grief to Him as it is to us mortals. Both the power and the love of God may be completely vindicated when we view the matter in this light.

Life is best interpreted as an education for the individual man and for the race. The spirit of man is the immortal and great good. That cannot be burned with fire or submerged in the sea. Immortality shall answer some hard questions as to our earthly experiences. Meanwhile to obey, as nearly as we can discover and understand them, the behests of that stern schoolmaster called nature, is to find present happiness and peace. THE PARSON.

Love and Grammar.

Lippincott's: Some time ago a New York business man, who is blessed with an extremely pretty daughter, took his family to England for an indefinite period, during which he was to establish British branches of his mercantile enterprises in this country.

The charms of this young woman wrought much havoc in the rank and file of the men who met her abroad. She was sweet and gracious to all, but her heart, as well as her wit, belonged to her native land. One day her father found her at her desk, knitting her brows over a letter.

"What's the trouble, my dear?" he asked solicitously.

"Father," she responded dolefully, "I must write another declension, but nothing will induce me to conjugate until I get back to the United States."

To the Sea.

Great is the wealth of the treasurer,
Oh, Sea,
That lies in thy cavernous deep;
But dearer than all thy vast riches to me
Are brave men who lie their asleep.

Sadly I look on thy wide-spreading face
As day disappears in the night,
And think of the beauty, the virtue and grace
Which thou hast buried from sight.

Father, who loved children better than life,
The brother no less brave than he,
The husband releasing his tender young wife,
Are now in thy keeping, Oh, Sea.

Princes and peasants, the greatest and least,
The men of the vessel's crew brave,
The lover, the bachelor, soldier and priest
Are resting under thy wave.

While we lament o'er thy terrible wrecks
And deluge the hours with our tears,
We still shall gain solace, for Honor bedecks
Their Mem'ry through all the years.

Kindly, I pray thee, guard these gallant men
Asleep in thy waters, Oh, Sea;
Till God shall command thee to yield them again
Unto immortality.
Duluth. —J. McKinnon.

What Is Civilization?

Life: Civilization is the name given to the present ideal state where men have learned to live together in peace and amity. Before civilization men took advantage of one another. The rich preyed upon the poor and the strong upon the weak. Those who worked the hardest received the fewest luxuries, while those who did nothing lived in ease and affluence. But civilization has changed all that, and now all men, women and children get exactly what they—or somebody else—earn.

Another Precocious Child.

Woman's Journal: A director of one of the great trans-continental railroads was showing his three-year old daughter the pictures in a work on natural history. Pointing to a picture of a zebra, he asked the baby to tell him what it represented. Baby answered "Coltie."

Pointing to a picture of a tiger in the same way, she answered "Doggy." Elated with her seeming quick perception, he then turned to a picture of a chimpanzee, and said:

"Baby, what is this?"

"Papa."

WILLIAM SULZER, OF NEW YORK

By SAVOYARD.

Some days ago I got tired of a dull debate on the house side and went over to the senate where a stupid debate was promoting somnolence. Then I took a while in the big rotunda and there found an old friend, Southern born, a Democrats, and for many years a New York city politician—one who ever loved the thing for the game of it, and who ever scorned the thing for the graft of it. His parents had taken him to the metropolis in his childhood. He recalled when Charles O'Conor was leader of the bar and Samuel J. Tilden was leader of the party. He remembered John Van Buren and James T. Brady. He had hobnobbed with Miles O'Riley and Amos Cummings. He was a Tammany-ite when John Kelly was at his zenith. He saw Roscoe Conkling gain the mastery over Reuben E. Fenton. He looked on the respective boss-ships of David B. Hill and Thomas C. Platt.

He was full of interesting reminiscence and as we chatted a tall, blond, erect, alert gentleman, a mutual acquaintance of both of us, passed through the rotunda from south to north. My friend, pointing to him, said, "There is a hell of a man. Do you know he changed the history of New York and national politics?" I said I did not. That man was William Sulzer, member of congress from the Tenth New York district.

My friend related to me that Sulzer was one of the New York delegates to the Democratic national convention that sat in Chicago in 1896. David B. Hill headed the delegation and was a receptive candidate for the nomination for president. He was a senator in congress and the equal as a parliamentary debater of any man then in public life in the entire republic. In the convention he combated the proposal to write as to 1 in the platform and was overwhelmed by the whirlwind declaration of William Jennings Bryan, which closed with his dramatic and rhetorical figure, since so famous, of the crown of thorns and the cross of gold.

The New York delegation had a conference, and all but one of them voted to retire from the convention and that solitary exception was William Sulzer. Had he assented there is nothing more certain than that at least 300 other delegates from other states would have followed the New York delegation out of the convention. That would have resulted in two tickets and a controversy as to which was regular. When John Churchill, subsequently the great duke of Marlborough, abandoned James II and joined the prince of Orange, old Schomberg, commander of the revolutionaries, greeted him with the scornful comment: "You are the first deserter of the rank of lieutenant general I ever saw." And that is precisely what Sulzer thought of Hill's proposal to secede. These two wills fought the thing out. Hill was imperious. Sulzer was adamant, and Sulzer prevailed. There was no secession, and no future debate as to "regularity."

Sulzer was born in New Jersey, a stone's toss from New York city, in 1863. On the paternal side he is of that Batavian blood which also courses through the veins of Theodore Roosevelt. On the distaff side he is Scotch-Irish and he has all the excellent characteristics of both races, notably iron resolution and pronounced individuality. He would make his way and be a conspicuous figure in any society in any country where his lots by chance were cast.

He attended the common schools as child and lad and was graduated from the grammar school while yet in his middle teens. Subsequently he entered the law school of Columbia college and at the same time learned much of the practice of the law in the office of a successful firm of lawyers in the metropolis. His parents designed him for a minister of the Presbyterian church and no doubt he would have delighted in the polemics of Christian theology, but he was born for public life in a country of free speech and at the age of 21 years he was admitted to the bar by order of the supreme bench of the city of New York.

Though very successful in the court rooms Sulzer was bound to be a politician. In the campaign of 1884 he rendered yeoman service to the Democratic cause, both on the stump and in the council, and in 1889 he was returned a member of the state assembly and was four times re-elected. In the legislature he was ceaseless in industry, indefatigable in the championship of any measure that appealed to him. In 1892 he was elected speaker of the assembly and the following year he was the leader of the Democratic minority in that body.

As 1890 had been a "tidal wave year" for the Democracy, so 1894 was a "tidal wave year" for the Republicans. The Democratic party was split in twain on the coinage question and there was a financial panic in every mart. David B. Hill accepted the Democratic nomination for governor well aware that it was a forlorn hope. Sulzer was a candidate for congress in the old Eleventh district, a community in which the Republicans had a great majority. Hill lost the district by 11,000; Sulzer carried it by 800, and he was one of the five Democrats who sat in the Fifty-fourth congress from north of the Mason and Dixon line. It was an astonishing and a magnificent personal triumph.

In 1896 Bryan lost the district by over 17,000, while Sulzer had a plurality of over 2,000. Mark Hanna sent a big campaign fund into the district in 1898 to elect the Republican candidate and Sulzer's majority was over 8,000. In 1900 McKinley carried the district by over 11,000, and Sulzer's majority was over 5,000. In 1902 his majority was over 9,000. In 1904 Parker lost it by over 7,000 and Sulzer carried it by over 4,000, though it was now the Tenth district, into which additional Republican communities had been gerrymandered in the hope to beat him. In 1906 his majority was over 11,000 and his vote more than 75 per cent of the entire vote cast. In 1908 Bryan lost the district by 8,000 and Sulzer carried it by over 5,000, and in 1910 his majority was again over 5,000. Here were nine personal victories and perhaps the record stands without precedent in our political history. Nor should it be forgotten that Tammany is hostile to him and twice brought out candidates with all the backing of that wonderful machine in a vain effort to defeat him.

This record I hunted up when my New York friend told me of this "hell of a man." Only an extraordinary personality could have been capable of it, only sterling worth and impeccable integrity could have stood the test. If the electorate, the common herd, the plain people, cannot judge a man after long personal contact with him, if they be not true to a true man, then indeed is our system of free institutions a failure.

Both at Albany and at Washington Mr. Sulzer has been a very active man. He was five years a member of the New York assembly, one year speaker and another year leader of the minority, and he emerged from his duties at that capital without the smell of fire on his garments. That is a certificate of incorruptibility that should be accepted as conclusive anywhere.

Since he entered congress he was active in two things that I could not approve. He was one of the authors of the Spanish war—a causeless and a disreputable episode in our history, as I think—and he was active in the creation of a public sentiment in favor of the Boers in their struggle against England. However, there were two sides to both of these questions and it is absolutely certain that Sulzer was prompted by pure motives in both cases.

Sulzer is chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs. Those who have read Lord Harvey's delightful and valuable memoirs can appreciate the criticism that that royal old reprobate, George II, passed on Pitt the elder when his majesty laid it as a reproach of his great minister that he had not read Vattel. And there are folk in our country who do not believe that anybody is fit to be in charge of our relations with foreigners unless he was born in New England, had graduated from Harvard and read John Q. Adams and Charles Sumner. It is perhaps true that except Alexander Hamilton and John C. Calhoun our country has produced no man who was the equal of the younger Adams in the composition of a state paper that dealt with our relations with foreign governments and alien peoples. Certainly Sulzer does not pretend to rival Adams in writing a state paper.

But Sulzer is a man of action and he seizes a situation by the throat. In the old days the science of diplomacy was the art of lying. Barillon, the Frenchman, Louis IV, sent to England to keep in ward his cousins of the Stuart dynasty, is a shining example. So was Ximenez, the great Spaniard. Later Talleyrand and Metternich came on the carpet and perhaps they were the two most arrant liars even diplomacy ever produced. But Bismarck beat them all in deception. His scheme was to tell the truth, knowing that his every adversary would believe he was lying. And so he was even a more successful liar than Talleyrand or Metternich.

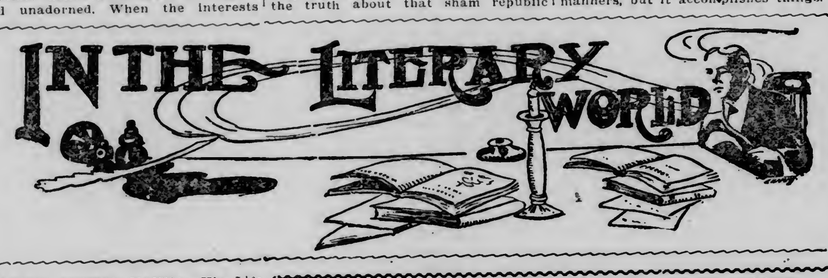
Sulzer believes in the truth, plain and unadorned. When the interests wanted a war with Mexico, which would be an expedition to annex Naboth's vineyard, Sulzer interposed an objection that prevented the invasion. He simply spoke the truth about the affair and the "interests" realized that the house committee on foreign affairs must first be consulted before a war was declared. In the Russian passport episode, Mr. Sulzer took the lead, applied to it some plain "shirt-sleeves" diplomacy and the question was settled, the friction composed, the dignity of American citizenship maintained.

It was Sulzer, too, who laid bare the truth about that sham republic of Panama, that was worth more than $40,000,000 to somebody. It, too, was the appropriation of Naboth's vineyard. Then Sulzer with a dash of the pen and a single vote of the house settled our relations with the republic of China. A simple resolution was all that was required. John Quincy Adams would have wrote 100,000 words in that behalf and Charles Sumner 200,000.

Truly he is "a hell of a man," but he is "a steam engine in pants," and he does things. And besides, this is the age of our downright, direct, blunt, honest man. It may not be very good manners, but it accomplishes things.



MARCUS ALONZO HANNA: His Life and Work. By Herbert Croly, author of "The Promise of American Life." New York: The Macmillan company. $2.50 net.

Mr. Croly has done well a work that needed to be done. Mark Hanna was too significant a figure in an important epoch of American history recently closed to be permitted to sink into forgetfulness without an authoritative and adequate contemporaneous biography. Perhaps history will judge Mr. Hanna in a different way from that chosen by Mr. Croly; on the whole, we think it certain that it will. But the only way to write a biography, to our mind, is to enter as thoroughly as possible into the spirit of the subject; and this Mr. Croly has done. The result is a sympathetic and instructive work which will remove many misconceptions about the character and career of the late Mark Hanna, but which will strengthen the main conception as to the things for which he stood and the menace they were and are—to the well-being of the nation.

The reader of this book early makes one important discovery: Mark Hanna was a human being—a very human being indeed. His humanity was his strength—perhaps his weakness, too.

There were two Mark Hannas. There was the Mark Hanna painted by his political opponents—a dictator, brutally herding voters by threats, bribes and cajolery, in the interests of "big business"; a president his lackey, a great political party his plaything; a nation bound and delivered by him over to the mercy of special privilege.

Then there was the real Mark Hanna—a kindly but determined and often irascible business man in politics, strong in his humanity and working always, by the handiest means available with not too much nicety about their character, through his ability to establish human relationships and to communicate to his subordinates his own personal energy and vigor of purpose. The real Hanna did represent business in politics; not alone big business, but all business. He did it frankly. His conception of the purposes of government was that it should foster profit making. If the makers of profits did well, labor would do well. Any conception that humanity at large should be first considered and business fostered not for its own sake, but as a servant of the masses, was utterly foreign to his mind.

The real Hanna did nominate William McKinley as the Republican candidate for president. He did put the gold plank in the platform of 1896, though others were his instruments. He did elect McKinley in 1896 and 1900. He did put himself in the senate and there, as well as in his capacity of generalissimo of the Republican party he did represent effectively the interests of "business."

As the owner of a street railway company which he wished to make efficient and profitable, he bought councils when he needed to—not always directly, but often through manipulation of local politics. His ideal of an effective political campaign was lots of money obtained frankly from Big Business with the thorough understanding that the money was an investment that would pay large returns. His senatorial election is not cleared, even by this friendly biographer, from the taint thrown upon it at the time; though an attempt is made to show that if money was used it was by others, not by himself—just as Lorimer shows that if money was used he knew nothing about it.

Mark Hanna was the embodiment of the alliance between Big Business and the politics of the dominant party, a natural outgrowth of conditions but nevertheless sinister and the parent of the present brood of political and economic disorders.

His conduct of the nation's affairs had the approval of a majority of the people; and there is no more encouraging sign than that the people today have repudiated practically all that Mark Hanna stood for.

It has been charged that in 1890 Hanna wrote to W. D. Watson, then attorney general of Ohio, rebuking him for starting an anti-trust suit against the Standard Oil company, pointing out that the company had supported the party, and declaring that "there is no greater mistake for a man to make than to assume that he owes any duty to the public or can in any manner advance his own position or interests by attacking the organizations under which experience has taught business can best be done."

Mr. Croly doubts the authenticity of this letter, a copy of which was made public by Watson. The original was returned by Watson to Hanna, who tore it up. Mr. Croly thinks that that phrase about owing a duty to the public was a forgery. Says he: "He would not have reproached a state prosecuting attorney for attempting to enforce the law, nor would he have intimated that by so doing the man's political future would have been compromised."

Yet on the page preceding that on which this opinion is recorded, there appears a second letter from Hanna to Watson, which Mr. Croly says is "unquestionably genuine," in which this language appears: "There has been no industry of greater benefit to our city (than the Standard Oil company), and there are large holdings among our enterprising business men. They are indignant at this attack, and when the time comes will make their influence felt. Therefore I have said to you in all frankness that politically it is a very sad mistake, and I am very sure will not result in much personal glory for you. • • • I trust you might have as little to do with it as possible from this time."

Mr. Croly's opinion on this point and his "unquestionably genuine" letter by Hanna do not square with each other.

The fact seems to be that the author has been carried away by his admiration for the indubitably admirable qualities in Mark Hanna's makeup, to such an extent as to gloss over, in his mind, the atrocity of the sordid ideals which actuated Hanna's statesmanship. Giving Mark Hanna full credit for his humanity—he was loyal, faithful, good to his workers and sincere in his belief that the way to profit labor was to heap capital's treasury full—and for his energy and capacity and enormous resourcefulness, nothing more dangerous than his influence ever arose in the history of the republic; and the most encouraging thing that has happened to this country is the recent thorough repudiation of the Hanna ideals that has evolved in the reaction from his triumphs.

Nobody can read this thoroughly friendly and sympathetic biography of Mark Hanna without becoming aware of a greater danger than any third term scarecrow—the danger from such a dictatorship as that which Mark Hanna, as the lieutenant of big business, established over this nation in the interests of a doctrine which consulted property rights and profit-making first, and human rights and human needs second if at all.

Nevertheless, Mr. Croly has written a very interesting and very human and withal a very fair story of the life of a very significant figure in American affairs. Judgment of Mark Hanna depends largely on viewpoint. The judgment of those who believe that national well-being is best served by a government coddling of dividends will be kindly. The judgment of those who believe that the national well-being is best served by a government that has full regard for the producer as well as for those whom the producer's toil makes rich, will be kindly only, if at all, because of the personal appeal the man made—not because they can countenance the things for which he stood. For they were mischievous and sinister, and in after years it will be recognized that they came as near to destroying the republic as chattel slavery did.

THE MISSION OF VICTORIA WILHELMINA. By Jeanne Bartholomew Magown. New York: B. W. Huebsch. $1 net.

This is a touching little book. It tells, in her own words, the experiences of Annie Wilson, a country girl, who goes to New York to find a broader field where she can develop and seek to realize her ideals. There she falls into the clutches of a handsome brute who ruins her, and deserts her when her baby is about to come. Beyond this tale, the book reveals the power of mother love to purge a soul of wrong. It was the mission of the undesired baby to elevate its mother and to leave her a better woman, richer in character even for the very mistake she had made.

Very realistically, the book reveals the character of the poor little girl who fluttered to the city as the moth flutters into the flame. She was only half educated, her vague ideals were all but inarticulate, and the cunning rascal who subtly perverted them to his purpose found her an easy victim. It is a warning and a lesson; and it would be good if every girl who may be going from the country to the city could read it.

ONE OF US. By Ezra Brudno. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott company. $1.25 net.

A hunchback, endowed with genius and cursed with all the supersensitiveness of the physically deformed, is the chief character in Mr. Brudno's latest book. Raphael, the hunchback, tells his own story. He delves into his character and lays it bare. He neither spares himself nor those around him from the penetrating gaze with which he views the world and its people.

Raphael, son of a father who is an omniscient failure and a mother who is a husband-worshiper, gives up the violin while making progress that promises fame and fortune. A glance at himself in the mirror while playing is the cause. Reproaches cause him to leave home at 14, and a chance meeting with an escaped convict gives him his philosophy of life. The convict is a believer in the doctrine of the right of conquest. Water destroys fire, fire destroys many other substances, the strong destroy the weak. It is the law of nature, in humans and in elements.

Taken up by kind people, Raphael lives five years in a little manufacturing town, and then goes to Paris to develop his talent as a painter. He takes with him love for Norma Lennox, daughter of the village pastor. He regards her as unattainable on account of his deformity. Years later he meets her again as the fiancee of a man whom he knows to be a profligate. He doesn't warn her and she marries. In his sorrow he takes up the violin again and achieves success. Just when fortune is within his grasp, he gives up an American concert tour to be with her in trouble. Her dissolute husband shoots himself under circumstances that cause Raphael's arrest. After his acquittal he lives in melancholy retirement for a time, but the end of the story finds him married to Norma and in contentment.

"One of Us" is a psychological novel that grips. It is not a great story as stories go, but it goes far above the average in the telling. Mr. Brudno has the gift of insight into human nature. He knows the man below the surface—and apparently he knows the woman nature also. Raphael is one of us and knows us as we are. Few men are willing to look into themselves with unprejudiced eyes. They do not know themselves until somebody looks for them, and then through another's eyes they see their true nature. Fiction is the medium in this case, but it is fiction mixed with more powerful elements than mere story-telling.

THE APACHES OF NEW YORK. By Alfred Henry Lewis. New York: G. W. Dillingham Co. $1.25 net.

The underworld will ever be interesting to those who live in the light of day. It is a world within a world. It has its own language, its own customs, its own law which is that each man is a law unto himself. The man who "cooks" an enemy is to be feared and the "trip up the river" is the end of all things.

Mr. Lewis's collection of short stories are more character sketches than they are stories. He portrays his characters with vividness. He places them in picturesque surroundings. He brings the reader to regard them, not as creatures of his kind living in his world and breathing the air he breathes, but as a people apart. The stories give an insight into an interesting phase of life in great cities.

SCUM O' THE EARTH, and other poems. By Robert Haven Schauffler. Boston: Houghton-Mifflin company. $1 net.

There is strong, redblooded verse in this book, but nothing better than the poem which gives it its name. The whole book is instinct with human brotherhood, but this plea for the immigrant is magnificent. One quotation:

Man of the eyes full of wisdom and mystery
Mingled with patience and dread.
Have I not known you in history,
Sorrow-bowed head?
Were you the poet-king, worth
Treasures of Ophir unpriced?
Were you the prophet perchance, whose art
Foretold how the rabble would mock
That shepherd of spirits, erelong,
Who should carry the lambs on his heart
And tenderly feed his flock?
Man—lift that sorrow-bowed head.
Lo! 'tis the face of the Christ!

The vision dies at its birth.
You're merely a butt for our mirth.
You're a "sheeny"—and therefore despised
And rejected as "scum o' the earth."

A striking poem on Washington tears off ruffle and wig and reveals him as a man.

There is remarkable variety, and a uniformity of appealing quality, in the many poems in the book.

MAVERICKS. By William MacLeod Raine. New York: G. W. Dillingham Co. $1.25 net.

An Arizona range the scene, the daughter of a sheepman the heroine, a ranger incognito the hero and a gang of cattle-rustlers the disturbing factor are the elements which Mr. Raine uses in a story of the imaginative West. The West of Mr. Raine is the West of the story. Man who knew the country when it was at its best as story material say that writers overdraw it, but it is the West that appeals to the reader. Mr. Raine has written an interesting romance. If there is exaggeration in action or character, the story loses none of its merit. The reader should not look for history in fiction. He is more likely to find fiction in history.

THE LAST TRY. By John Reed Scott, author of "The Colonel of the Red Hussars," "The Princess Dehra," and others. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott company. $1.25 net.

With the scene laid partly in Washington and partly in the mythical kingdom of Valeria, with a former American army officer as the king, the beautiful Princess Dehra as his queen and a pretender to the throne making his last attack on the reigning monarchs John Reed Scott has added another to his long list of successes in fiction.

Love and royal plots and good American devotion to adventure are scattered through the book. Five attempts on the life of the king in three weeks, the imprisonment of the queen in a castle in her own capital, an entrance to the prison house by a secret passage and a duel to death between the king and the pretender furnish thrills enough for the most ardent lover of adventure in fiction. Mr. Scott has the faculty of writing an entertaining story. He seeks but to entertain and he scores again in "The Last Try" as he has in his former works.

Among the Magazines.

That the Atlantic has acquired a strong contemporaneous interest, without losing the permanent value of its quality, is evidenced by the May number of the magazine, which begins with a detailed estimate of Mr. Roosevelt's character and ends with an analysis of the conditions underlying the Lawrence strike by Lorin F. Deland. Both of these papers are written in an absolutely non-partisan spirit and both have much to say that is at once novel and enlightening. A third timely paper is Prof. Bernard Moses's "Aspects of American Society and Policy." In this issue begins "The Autobiography of an Individualist," by James O. Fagan, the railroad signalman, who in this opening installment tells how his temperamental individualism was fostered by an old-fashioned Scotch education. In "The Newest Woman" Katharine Fullerton Gerould attacks the bold-mannered heroines introduced by the novelists of H. G. Wells's generation. "The Summit of the Years" is a paper in which John Burroughs reviews the things which have seemed to him of most permanent value in life. Literary criticism is represented by George McLean Harper's sympathetic paper on "Rousseau, Godwin, and Wordsworth" and by an extended criticism of current fiction by Margaret Sherwood.

Many improvements in the new magazine cartoons are to be seen in the May number, especially in the presentation of more full-page reproductions of recent cartoons which are especially meritorious, the number of pages of the magazine being increased to make up the difference. Parisian and other European caricature and art is given much space to advantage. In the field of politics alone, which is but part of the magazine, Cartoons is collecting a wonderful record of the present great campaign. Portraits and biographical sketches of Rogers, of the New York Herald, and Fox, of the Chicago Post, are other features.

A magnificent airship cover design reproduced from an oil painting by Arthur Hutchins, features the story "When Wishes Found Wings," in the May National Magazine. A portrait of the late Gen Frederick Dent Grant makes a striking frontispiece. "Affairs at Washington," by Joe Mitchell Chapple, is more than usually versatile and timely in its resume of Washington news and political causerie. "Our First Treaty With France," by the Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, is a lucid picture of the leading diplomatic event of the Revolutionary era. The popular serial, "The Minor Chord," closes with this number, and with it are presented "When Wishes Found Wings," by Katherine Hopkins Chapman; "His Answer," by Eugene P. Lyle, Jr.; "Her Precious House," by Laura Tilden Kent, and "The Back Porch," by Lotta Miller. George Wharton James' biographical sketch of David Starr Jordan; "On the Trail of the Brothers Grimm," by Dr. Francis E. Clark, and "The Woolworth Way," by Flynn Wayne, all deal with authors and business men whose careers are of unusual interest. "A Timely Topic," by Howard H Gross, deals with "food supply, cost of living, cost of production, high efficiency, etc."

The American Indian has always been an interesting, picturesque and dramatic figure, and as his numbers are diminishing, he will continue to become more interesting. Our readers will no doubt be greatly interested in the article and illustrations in the Hampton Magazine for May, setting forth the views and the photographic records of Edward S. Curtis, who has devoted fourteen years of his life to an exhaustive personal photographic study of the Redman. His photographs are marvels of beauty and present records of "The Vanishing Redman," as the article is styled, which can never be secured again. In addition, Mr. Curtis, in an interesting interview by Edward Marshall, presents many intelligent observations with respect to the disappearing Indian of our land.

The conventional designs, while easy of execution, are very pretty.

ON THE IRON RANGES

BACKA CASE TO AGAIN BE TRIED

Jury Deliberates for Twenty-Six Hours Without Reaching Agreement.

Virginia, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.) — John Backa will have to be tried again for killing his wife, as the jury that heard the evidence against him in district court here was unable to agree after considering the case twenty-six hours, and was discharged. The jury took the case about 4 p. m. Thursday and told Judge Hughes about 6 last night an agreement was impossible. The court accordingly let the twelve men go and remanded the accused for trial at the next term of court.

The defense claimed the shooting of Mrs. Backa was accidental.

Fifteen State Witnesses.

The state produced about fifteen witnesses nearly all neighbors of the Backa family. The testimony largely pertained to threats alleged to have been made many times, and covering a period of several years, that he would kill his wife and tales of his indifference and brutal conduct at his home the night of the shooting. Backa went on the stand in his own defense and described the life of himself and his wife as being pleasant.

It is understood there was a wide variation of opinions among the jurors as to the degree of crime that should be returned, some not being convinced that there was a crime committed and accepting the claim of the defense that all was an accident.

LITTLE INTEREST SHOWN IN CAUCUS

Grand Rapids Republican Primary Draws Out Very Small Attendance.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Republican primary or caucus held here last night to chose seven delegates to the Itasca county convention to be held here next Monday when delegates will be chosen to the district convention was poorly attended, barely thirty people being present. W. C. Gilbert was chairman, Dr. Gundrew, judge and R. H. Bailey, clerk. There was no discord apparent during the selection of the delegates and if the Taft, Roosevelt or La Follette supporters expect to control any of the men chosen there was nothing on the surface to that effect. No one seems to know today whether the delegates favor Taft or Roosevelt, one citizen saying they will vote for anyone who is a Republican. Despite this non-committal attitude it is believed the Taft sentiment predominates on the delegation. The outcome of the caucuses in the other parts of the county is not known.

The organization has also obtained permission to make its headquarters in one of the unused rooms in the court house. The first appearance of the band will be in the Memorial day parade when the new uniforms will be worn. The band will accompany the Virginia firemen when that body goes to Minneapolis in June to attempt to obtain the state convention for Virginia in 1915.

Healthy Mothers

Women who bear children and remain healthy are those who prepare their systems in advance of baby's coming. Unless the mother aids nature in its pre-natal work the crisis finds her system unequal to the demands made upon it, and she is often left with weakened health or chronic ailments. No remedy is so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend, and no expectant mother should fail to use it. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant and elastic those fibres and muscles which nature is expanding, prevents numbness of limbs, and soothes the inflammation of breast glands. The system being thus prepared by Mother's Friend dispels the fear that the crisis may not be safely met. Mother's Friend assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother, and she is left a healthy woman to enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for our free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature.

HIBBING CAUCUS FIGHT IS LIVELY

Lines Between Taft and Roosevelt Supporters Are Sharply Defined.

Hibbing, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The all absorbing question here today to the exclusion of about everything else is the Stuntz township Republican caucus to be held this evening in the five voting precincts of the township, which is really Hibbing to select delegates to the county convention. The rivalry between the advocates of Taft, Roosevelt and La Follette is very keen—not in years has there been such friction in evidence.

Both Taft and Roosevelt are working like beavers and it is expected there will be a record attendance at the caucus tonight. The prevailing sentiment is for Roosevelt and it is safe to predict the majority of the Stuntz delegation will favor the colonel when the roll is called in the county convention. The La Follette men expect to poll quite a vote.

The Roosevelt ticket has these candidates for delegates.

First precinct—Rev. J. B. Idstrom, Dr. G. S. Butchart.

Second—The Stevenson location, no candidates known at noon.

Third—Robert Murray, J. A. Redfern, G. A. Wilner.

Fourth—E. R. Welrick.

Fifth—Richard Giffin.

Although Dr. Welrick is placed in the Roosevelt column he is said to be a Taft man.

The Taft delegates so far known are:

First precinct—Judge T. F. Brady, James Geary, A. P. Silliman.

Second—Thomas Roddy, W. F. Pellins.

The balance of the precincts have yet to announce Taft delegate candidates.

EXPECT DECISION IN FISHING CASE

Two Harbors Judge Expected to Pass on Charges Against Ely Men.

Ely, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A decision is expected today by Judge Overlin of Two Harbors in the case of the party arrested by Game Warden James a week ago Sunday. This has been a complicated affair from the very beginning. The men claim that they had not yet reached the stream when they were arrested and searched. Their fishing tackle and a rifle was confiscated.

Alderman Harri, one of the party, was tried before Judge Pickavance and fined $10 and costs; later the fine was remitted and only the costs charged against him. These he refused to pay.

The other members of the party, John Gouze, John Sieberlich and E. E. Lindblad, employed Attorney McMahon of Virginia to defend them. By order of the Lake county officials the cases were dropped. Later John Sieberlich was rearrested and yesterday the case was heard in Two Harbors. The decision is to be given today.

PETTY OFFENDERS GIVEN CITY WORK

Judge Moylan of Eveleth Makes Men Dig Tree Holes.

Eveleth, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—For several years the city of Eveleth has had an ordinance legalizing the sentencing of petty offenders to work upon the streets or other city labor, but Municipal Judge Moylan put the law into force for the first time Friday when he sentenced Matt Miller to seventeen days at hard labor, or pay a fine of $17 for getting drunk and refusing to support his wife and six small children.

Miller had no money, so he began this morning to serve out his sentence. He was put to work digging holes for planting the shade trees in the new park.

Judge Moylan has had a serious problem the past winter in dealing with husbands who neglected and abused their families. He has found that sending them to the county jail had little effect on them; they rather liked it. If his new plan works out he proposes to put to work on the streets all drunks and other petty offenders who do not pay their fines.

CLAIM MANY "SHACKERS" ARE FISH LAW VIOLATORS.

Virginia, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The war game Warden George E. Wood is waging against violators of the game and fish laws is also one against what is regarded in the north country as an undesirable element, the "shackers." The game warden, the police authorities of the several range cities and the sheriff's officers all state that a large majority of the "shackers" are lawless men who are sought elsewhere for offenses of various natures and that they find the best way to avoid arrest is to seclude themselves in the north woods and subsist by hunting and fishing, occupling some homesteader's deserted cabin while so doing. Fishing clubs in some of the range cities have adopted the plan of hiring men to go out and destroy cabins which are known to be the haunts of illegal hunters and fishermen.

ITASCA COUNTY SCHOOL MONEY IS APPORTIONED.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 11.—Itasca county will distribute $8,941.92 among the schools of the county this year, the apportionment received at the auditor's office from the state aid fund for the common schools of the state.

According to the report compiled by Mrs. Huntley of the public library, 1,654 volumes of fiction have been borrowed from the library during the months of March and April, while 402 volumes of non-fiction were read in the same time. The average circulation during the two months past has been forty volumes a day.

Successful Virginia Dance.

Virginia, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The dancing party given Thursday evening at the Fay opera house by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Schulze, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Shaver and Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Lenont was one of the most successful and brilliant social events ever given in Virginia.

Two Kinney Homes Destroyed.

Kinney, Minn., May 11. — The homes of John Katalich and Michael Serivina, which adjoined, were destroyed by fire early Thursday, the flames starting in the first named house. Because of the poor water pressure the fire department was unable to check the flames. Both buildings were insured.

Hushing Electric Line.

Hibbing, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.) — John Rundquist, who is building the Mesaba Electric railway, which is to connect range towns, has issued orders to all sub-contractors to double their forces and push the work as it is proposed to have cars running by next November.

BOTH SIDES FEAR COUPS AT CAUCUSES

must have been the work of boys.

An entire set of caucus tickets for the 156 precincts in the county were destroyed at Roosevelt headquarters this week and new tickets printed. The first set had only Roosevelt's name and the names of caucus candidates on the ballots. The new ballots have the heading: "Delegates pledged to vote for Theodore Roosevelt for president." An appael is being sent out to the voters to vote for the pledged ticket if more than one Roosevelt ticket appears at the caucuses.

The indications are that there will be a large attendance at the caucuses all over the county. The fight is between Roosevelt and Taft. The La Follette people seemed to have joined with the Taft forces for an uninstructed delegation, as leaders in the La Follette club are working for uninstructed tickets.

The Roosevelt leaders charge that the "uninstructed" plea is only a mask for Taft delegates and that once elected, the delegates uninstructed will come out in their true colors as Taft men.

The caucuses will open at 7 o'clock this evening and close at 9 o'clock. They will be held at the regular precinct polling places.

There will probably be some challenges at the caucuses tonight. The law provides that only Republicans may vote at a Republican caucus. Any voter may be challenged, and, if he is, he must take oath that he affiliated with the Republican party at the last general election, or has changed since that time and intends to support the nominees of the party at the next election.

A bar to Democrats voting at a Republican caucus and vice versa is the provision of the state law that no voter may vote at the primaries of two different political parties in the same calendar year. A Democrat voting at the Republican primaries tonight would be barred from participation in the primaries of the Democratic party.

Dr. Henry van Dyke, professor of English in Princeton university. The success of Woodrow Wilson as president of Princeton then received the oath of office delivered by Mahlon Pitney, '79, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States. After President Hibben had taken the oath, the charter and keys of the university were delivered to him by John Aikman Stewart, senior trustee and ex-president pro tempore of the university, after which President Hibben delivered his inaugural address.

Address by Hibben.

The title of his address was "The Essentials of a Liberal Education." In the course of his remarks he said:

"The university is not especially designed for the purpose of fitting a man directly for the daily duties of his future work in life. It should not attempt to develop a particular talent for a particular task, but the whole man. No faculty of the mind can be satisfactorily trained in isolation. There must be symmetrical growth of all faculties. The high potential of stored energy, moreover, acquired in the process of a fully rounded development of all a man's powers, lends an increased momentum and driving force to the particular activities of his specialty, and thus allows many lines of capability to meet in one point of practical efficiency.

"Methods of instruction should not narrow down to an anticipation of the customary procedure of the office and counting room. The undergraduate education should not attempt to train specialists, nor to drill the students in any definite routine of rules of practice. It is not the rules of practice, but the fundamental principles and governing laws or a subject which are of supreme value to one who would win his way to the heart of knowledge.

Laying the Foundation.

"Fit a man for the day's work, but at the same time equip him to meet the crisis and the emergency which the day's work will inevitably bring forth. He who has laid a broad and secure foundation will have no difficulty in erecting the superstructure. Whatever he builds he will be able to build himself into the work of his hand and brain. Make a man and he will find his work."

Immediately after the inaugural ceremonies, the representatives from other institutions, all official guests, and the alumni of the university proceeded to the gymnasium for luncheon. The great gymnasium was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the galleries being packed with those eager to hear the after dinner speeches. Those who made speeches were President Taft, Chief Justice White, Dr. Francis Landley Patton, president of the Princeton Theological seminary and ex-president of the university; President Hibben, President Abbott Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university, President Arthur Twining Hadley of Yale, and President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia.

President Taft started the activities of the day, arriving here on a special car at 6 a. m. Later he was driven to "Prospect," the official residence of the president of Princeton, where he is the guest for the day of President Hibben. Chief Justic White is the guest of Mrs. Frances Cleveland. Trains from Philadelphia and New York brought hundreds of guests.

Degrees For Taft and White.

During the ceremony the degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon President Taft and upon Chief Justice White.

After the luncheon there began the annual baseball game between Cornell and Princeton.

Heavy rains fell over Western Iowa, Missouri, Illinois and Louisiana; New Orleans reporting a total of 6.94 inches for the last twenty-four hours. VOTE FOR ROOSEVELT AND THE RULE OF THE PEOPLE

Gen. Victoriano Huerta, the federal commander-in-chief, the latter had advanced nearly thirty miles. Huerta, at daybreak today, was near Peronal, and his outposts were pitched northward toward Conejo. Bringing up the rear were the rifles of Gen. Rabajo, while off toward the northwest, near Sierra Mojada, Gen. Trucy Aubert with 4,000 men threatens to come due east to Escalon to flank the main body of the insurrectos under Orozco.

The federal forces now number nearly 10,000 men, and latest estimates give Orozco several thousand fighting men. With reserves it is estimated that another 18,000 men are spread over the barren plains of desert sand within a radius of seventy-five miles.

The moon illuminated the region most of the night and the government troops crept cautiously northward.

Fever Among Soldiers.

Shortage of water and food and general unsanitary conditions are having effect on both armies. Fever among the soldiers is prevalent.

The maneuvers of the last twenty-four hours indicate that Gen. Salazar, the rebel officer next in command to Orozco, was driven back and closely pushed by Gen. Aubert all the way from Cuatro Cienegas to Sierra Mojada.

Salazar fled back to Orozco's base at Escalon and it was reported at the federal camp that he was wounded.

Gen. Huerta, the federal chief, reached the front last night near Peronal, but his camp could not be reached by wire. Gen. Tellez was last in touch with him at midnight.

"The enemy are exhausted and hungry," said Gen. Tellez over the wire from the boxcar telegraph office in the heart of his camp early today. "They intended first to get behind us, going east to Cuatro Cienegas, but the opportune arrival of Gen. Tracy Aubert intercepted them, causing a loss of more than 100 dead. They were routed shamefully and still are being pursued.

Found Many Dead.

"The enemy likewise were beaten at Zearagosa and Lahuillo on the same day. We found many of their dead and wounded as we advanced today. They left behind many horses, and in their flight abandoned much ammunition. We lost about ten or twelve killed and a few wounded.

"Our intention is to press northward. Our troops are full of spirit and their equipment could not be better.

"We have twenty-five pieces of heavy artillery besides many machine guns and ammunition that would last for months."

Americans on the Buford.

Mazatlan, Mexico, via Tucson, Ariz., May 11.—The transport Buford reached Altata Thursday and took on board nineteen Americans who had been living in Oriente City. Col. Peyera, commanding the Mexican federal forces at Culiacan, waived examination of the effects of the refugees at the port office. He also allowed a special train to be run from Culiacan to Altata for the benefit of refugees. Col. Peyera also permitted the use of government boats to aid Americans, displaying the most friendly feeling toward foreigners.

The Buford, in leaving Altata, proceeded to Mazatlan to take on board any Americans who may desire to leave Mexico on account of the revolt.

FIERCE RAINS SWELL FLOODS IN LOUISIANA; NEW ORLEANS SCARED

ed up by the high winds and rose eight inches in the two hours between 8 and 10 o'clock, forcing the waters over the levees at several points.

From New Roads a report at 7 o'clock stated that four inches of rain had fallen there since noon and a cloud-burst was upon the town at that hour.

Rain, Wind and Hail.

It was a terrific storm that gripped this city for hours last night. Rain fell in sheets, the wind blew a gale, hail added to the terror and the river rose by leaps and washed across the levees.

Streets were flooded to a depth of from three to fifteen inches. People in the downtown districts were marooned within the block upon which they were caught by the cloudburst, and for hours there seemed to be little prospect of many of them reaching their home during the night.

Electric light plants were flooded any many parts of the city were in darkness for hours. Traffic was interrupted.

The same alarming conditions prevailed at towns up and down the river. In several places people who have for days lived in fear of disastrous breaks in the levees which hold back the Mississippi's torrent, were panic stricken.

Levees Under Severe Strain.

The levees in New Orleans withstood the severest strain they have ever been subjected to, and notwithstanding the helpless conditions pictured last night at numerous points up the river, early reports today indicate that the line of dikes from Torras south still are holding.

The front levee at Baton Rouge was overlapped by the high waves last night, earth was washed out of the new topping and for hours the flood threatened to pour into the wholesale section of the city.

A force of men was put to work today at the Celeste street wharf to stop an overflow caused by the rapid rise in the river. The wharf extends along the river front about 2,000 feet.

A portion of the flooring the entire length of the shed is being torn up and sandbags piled underneath. Further than partially flooding several streets in that neighborhood no damage resulted.

New High Stage at La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., May 11.—The Mississippi has risen another six inches here and still is rising. The government gauge shows eight feet, the highest so far this year. This second flood is ruining hay and corn crops on thousands of acres on the lowlands in this vicinity.

TAFT LEADING TEDDY.

Helena, Mont., May 11.—Twenty-one of the thirty-two counties in Montana have held their conventions to choose delegates to the Republican state convention to be held at Livingston to select delegates to the Chicago convention and so far the Taft forces control almost two to one.

To date 413 delegates have been chosen, of which 254 are said to be Taft men and 109 for Roosevelt. There are yet to be chosen 244. Senator Dixon, chairman of the national Roosevelt committee, will not be chosen as a member of the national committee from Montana, the Taft men assert.

Senator Dixon is a candidate for reelection to the senate and the anti-Roosevelt element is making a campaign against him.

Mr. Baxter thus becomes the active head of the Alaska syndicate in succession to Mr. Young, who has accepted the presidency of the lines of the Great Northern Railway system, with headquarters in Portland.

The Best Treatment for Itching Scalps, Dandruff and Falling Hair

To allay itching and irritation of the scalp; prevent dry, thin and falling hair, remove crusts, scales and dandruff, and promote the growth and beauty of the hair, the following special treatment is most effective, agreeable and economical. On retiring, comb the hair out straight all around, then begin at the side and make a parting, gently rubbing Cuticura ointment into the parting with a bit of soft flannel held over the end of the finger. Anoint additional partings about half an inch apart until the whole scalp has been treated, the purpose being to get the Cuticura ointment on the scalp skin rather than on the hair. The next morning, shampoo with Cuticura soap and hot water. Shampoos alone may be used as often as agreeable, but once or twice a month is generally sufficient for this special treatment for women's hair. Cuticura soap and ointment sold everywhere. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address "Cuticura," Dept. 5D, Boston.

Tender-faced men shave in comfort with Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick. Sample free.

We challenge anyone to show any other one remedy for a special class of disease which has attained such an enormous demand and maintained it for so many years as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

OPENING SALE OF LOTS

FAIRVIEW ADDITION TO VIRGINIA

On Monday, May the 13th, We Offer For Sale Lots in What Is Undoubtedly the Best Lying, Prettiest, and Altogether the Most Desirable Residential Location in the City of Virginia

THIS IS YOUR CHANCE to get a desirable dwelling site in a desirable location at half the price you would have to pay elsewhere.

We wish particularly to draw this to the attention of people living in mining locations in nearby towns.

Remember the Missabe Electric Railway will be in operation next Spring, and cars will be run regularly to and from Virginia to points all over the Range. This is an opporrtunity for people working in the mines to have their residence in this city, where they can have more opportunities for recreation and enjoy more desirable surroundings than they do at present, and still have easy access to their work. The cars will run within three blocks of our addition.

IMPROVEMENTS

Water is already installed along Fifth street, which is the southerly line of our addition. Sewer is laid in the S. W. corner, and streets are all in the process of being graded.

The Oliver Iron Mining Co. has built several substantial and modern houses for its employes on the south side of Fifth street, across the street from our addition, houses which compare favorably with the best in other parts of the city, and this assures any one building on our addition of his being in a desirable neighborhood.

DESIRABLE BUILDING RESTRICTIONS

In order to protect our customers as much as possible we have put building restrictions of from $1,000 to $1,500 on the lots in some of the blocks nearest town, so that any one building a good house will not have his property depreciate in value owing to someone building a shack on the next lot.

This is absolutely the last tract that could be bought for platting purposes inside the city limits, and we expect we shall be sold out very shortly, therefore if you want a desirable lot the time to buy is NOW before the best lots are taken.

PRICES

The prices range from $250 to $400. Terms, $25.00 cash, and $10.00 per month.

TITLE

We give you the very best title to these lots—Warranty deed and torrens certificate. All lots are 25 feet by 120 feet or over.

ALLEN SAYS HE WAS SHOT FIRST

Virginian on Trial for Murder Tells of Battle in Courtroom.

Wytheville, Va., May 11.—Floyd Allen, on trial here charged with the murder of Prosecutor William M. Foster, in the Carroll county court tragedy at Hillsville, March 14, took the witness stand today in his own defense and charged that Sheriff Webb fired his pistol at him and that Clerk of the Court Dexter Goad also shot at him before he, Allen, reached for his pistol.

"I happened to see Clerk Goad wink at Sheriff Webb," declared Allen on the stand today, "and I saw both of them take out their revolvers. Then I rose up from my chair and said: 'Gentlemen, I'm not a-goin.' I had a paper in my hand and started to put it in my inside pocket. Then Sheriff Webb fired. He missed me. Clerk Goad fired next, hitting me in the hip, and I fell on Judge Bolen, my counsel."

The defendant declared he did not get his pistol out of his pocket until he himself had been shot. The only man he shot at in the courtroom, he said, was Deputy Clerk Quesenberry.

The affair followed a statement by a Thibetian Llama that Chinese were destined for divine punishment. A fight ensued and the Llama fled to the Sela monastery, which was fired. The Chinese quarters were then attacked by angry Thibetans and many were roasted alive.

BOY IS KILLED IN COAL STRIKE RIOT

Troopers Fire on Unruly Mob and Bullet Hits Bystander.

Scranton, Pa., May 11. — A riotous demonstration by foreigners at Olyphant colliery No. 1, Delaware & Hudson company, today resulted in the killing of George Robaresky, a 14-year-old boy, by the state troops.

The troopers were riding down a crowd of rioters who were displaying firearms and hurling stones and clubs at the state police. The boy was standing in the front yard of his home, the mob nearby defiantly daring the troopers to come on. The mounted police moved forward just as a volley of stones struck them. Several pistol shots were fired by the crowd. The troopers were ordered to shoot. The bullet that hit the boy was not intended for him. It passed through his body over the heart, coming out through his back. He died shortly afterward.

The shooting cowed the rioters, but on learning the boy was dead they gathered force. More troopers from the Peckville station and from Wyoming barrack arrived at Olyphant shortly after the shooting.

Leaders of the United Mine workers are endeavoring to keep the foreign-speaking miners throughout the region from gathering in crowds about the mines.

JUDAISM AND SCIENTISTS

Two Religions Are Opposed Said Rabbi Lefkovits in Conference Address.

Speech in Baltimore Puts Duluthian in National Limelight.

Rabbi Maurice Lefkovits of the Temple Emanuel reviewed the Central Conference of American Rabbis held early last month in Baltimore, at the regular services last evening.

Rabbi Lefkivots read a paper on "The Attitude of Judaism Toward Christian Science" during the conference and he received considerable praise from the many Eastern papers. Dr. Lefkovits' paper rather startled his audience, he was accorded the greatest ovation ever tendered a rabbi at a conference. The paper will be printed and circulated widely. The resolutions advocated by Dr. Lefkovits in the body of the address, were nearly all accepted by the conference.

In his address Dr. Lefkovits said that not one twenty-fifth of 1 per cent of American Jews are affiliated with the Christian Science church. The paper dealt primarily with the question whether a man could be both a Jew and a Christian Scientist.

High Praise for Paper.

The following review of the address appeared in the Jewish Comment of Baltimore, one of the largest Jewish papers in America:

"The speaker was careful to emphasize that Christian Science endeavored not to combat disease, but to heal the sinner; was not a hospital, but a highly centralized religion. The overwhelming share of Christ in that religion was carefully brought out. There is no similiarity between the religious tenets of Christian Science and Judaism. For Christian Science is, first, a religion, and, secondly, a Christian religion; there can be no common meeting ground for both it and Judaism.

"It was not long before the speaker had enraptured his audience. Nods of acquiescence and ejaculations of approval from the rabbis became more and more numerous as the speaker drove home his telling points and as he revealed an absolute mastery of his subject.

"The speaker revealed the habit, rare among the speakers at the conference, of not only making assertions, but of proving them after he had made them. He showed that Judaism distinguishes God from the universe, whereas Christian Science maintains that God and the universe are synomoous, and that what is not God does not exist. Hence Judaism and Christian Science are incompatible. The youthful speaker's analysis of the inner philosophy of Judaism was calling forth applause from even the hoary and grizzled teachers of Jewish theology. He was stepping at one bound into the rank of one of the keenest and most logical Jewish thinkers in America. When he was finished with analyzing the fundamental doctrine of Christian Science, it, like the adjective it applies to sickness, was non-existent. Rabbi Lefkowitz carried out Christian Science doctrines to the bitter end, and the logical result at which he thus arrived brought smile after smile to the faces of the audience and applause after applause from their hands. And an ovation was given the rabbi at the end of his address.

"The message of Rabbi Lefkowitz was discussed by Rabbi Miller of Chattanooga in a very able manner. Rabbi Miller admitted that many persons say that they are Christian Science Jews, but declared that they are not recognized as Christian Scientists. For to be admitted into full Christian Science membership a proselyte must abnegate his former religion. Rabbi Millerdenied further that Christian Science is a Christian religion, except in name."

Chief of Police of Paterson, N. J., Tells Them They Are Nuisance.

Paterson, N. J., May 11.—Chief of Police Bimson issued an order today prohibiting the Industrial Workers of the World from holding a meeting in any part of the city, and instructing the police to disperse them should any attempt be made to violate the order. Members of the organization have been active in the strike of silk mill employes recently.

To a committee of the Industrial Workers of the World who protested at the order, Chief Bimson said:

"You ought to be sent about your business. You won't work and you won't allow other people to work. You have driven manufacturers out of town, and if you don't take care you will shortly drive yourselves out."

The committee plans to hold a mass meeting outside the city limits tomorrow morning.

NEGRO FARMERS.

"One of the most striking facts that I have learned from a study of the bulletin of the 1910 census," writers Brooker T. Washington in the North American Review, "has been the rapid and continued increase in the number of negro farmers in the Southern states.

"For example: there has been an increase of 469,061, or 17-9 per cent, in the total number of farm and farmers, white and colored, in the Southern states, which shows that the South is far in advance of the rest of the country, as far as concerns the increase in the number of farms. In fact fully three-quarters of all the total increase in the number of farms in the United States during the past ten years is in the Southern states.

"The point, however, which I wish to emphasize is that, rapid as has been the increase in total number of farms of both races in the South, the number of negro farmers has increased proportionately more rapidly than the number of white farmers. While the white farmer in fifteen Southern states increased from 1,870,600 in 19100 to 21,191,805 in 1910, the negro farmers increased from 739,835 in 1900 to 887,691 in 1910, making an increase of 17 per cent for the blacks.

"In the five states, Tennessee, North Carolina, Mississippi, Georgia and Arkansas, in which nearly half of the total negro population in the South live, negro farmers have increased during the last ten years more rapidly than the white farmers, in proportion to population of the respective races of these states.

"From all these figures it would seem to be apparent that, in spite of all that is said to the contrary, the negro in the South is beginning to stick to the farm. It does not follow from this, however, that negro farmers are sticking fast on the land on which they were planted years ago. On the contrary, the census figures show that there is a very considerable movement of the negro population to the new territory, where there is opportunity to better their condition, as in the case of the negro population in Oklahoma, which has grown 147 per cent in the past ten years. But, on the whole, the negro is sticking to the soil."

CREW COMING ALONG NICELY

Skipper "Bill" Jones, the gasoline expert, will have the Robert B out this evening with James Ten Eyck aboard, said craft sailing along in the lee of the eight. This will be the first time the launch has been out the present season.

Coach Ten Eyck gave his men a hard workout last evening and plans a sort of windup for the week, this evening. Roy Kent is away for a few days and James has a bantam in his place.

Hard work will be drifted into the coming week and the work of speeding up will be gradually started. The men are coming along nicely, the work the crew candidates did on the road and the machines hardening them for the work in the boats.

Starting Monday it is expected that there will be three eights out each night. From now on Jimmy is going to try to develop a second eight that will prove worthy or being taken to the regatta.

With the low stroke, and particular attention to the body swing, the present week has shown considerable progress in the form of the eight. With the working into form of the men the grind of the season will be under way and will increase up to the time the men ship for St. Paul and hoped for laurels and the more material emblems of victory.

JIMMY LANDS A LARGE FISH

Monster Steel Head Trout Caught in Lester River.

Young Jimmy Wharton is sure one of the champion fishermen of the Head of the Lakes district. The day before yesterday the youngster caught a steel head trout in Lester river that measured over two feet. From all accounts this is the biggest trout that has been caught in the vicinity of Duluth this season.

It is stated that scores of fishermen will leave Duluth today and tomorrow for the various fishing streams in and around the Head of the Lake. While the heavy rains have not helped fishing, the sun has encouraged many of the anglers to hike for the streams.

While officially the fishing season has been on for some time, in reality the regular opening of the fishing will come with the departure today and tomorrow of a big crowd of anglers.

WHITE BEATS FRANKIE CONLEY

Kenosha Fighter Was Outclassed in Fight With Chicago Featherweight.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 11. — Jack White, the Chicago featherweight, was an easy victor over Frankie Conley of Kenosha, Wis., at the Vernon arena.

After the first round which was fairly even, White started battering Conley with rights and lefts to the body and face, never ceasing until at the end of the twelfth round when Conley's manager threw up the sponge. He announced that Conley had broken his wrist in the sixth round. From the beginning Conley bored in, although repeatedly knocked almost off his feet by the Chicago man. He was outclassed, hopelessly, and it was next to impossible for him to land on White. Only the Kenosha boy's gameness kept him in the fight. White showed remarkable improvement since his defeat by Joe Rivers.

HOLD INTERSTATE HIGH SCHOOL MEET

Fourteen North Dakota High Schools Compete at Fargo.

Fargo, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under the auspices of the Athletic association at the agricultural college the interstate high school meet is being held here today. Crookston and Breckenridge are the Minnesota teams and fourteen North Dakota schools are participating. Grand Forks is thought to have the strongest aggregation. Fargo was weakened by the recent loss of Nesbitt, its star sprinter. The preliminaries were held this forenoon. The main events begin at 2 o'clock. The meet is officiated by agricultural college men with Coach Reuber as referee and the meet is held on New Dacotah field. Numerous valuable prizes are up for the contestants. The first baseball game for the collegiate championship of the state is being played here this afternoon between Fargo college and the state university.

GRAND FORKS TEAM SIGNS FOUR PLAYERS.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three new aspirants for places on the Flickertail ball team have been signed by Manager Frank Lohr, one of them being Ralph Bell, who played short for Moose Jaw in 1910 and for Edmonton in 1911 in the Western Canada league. Bell is an Enderlin, N. D., resident. Sam Foster, who was first baseman with the Great Falls, Mont., pennant winning team in the Union Association league, and Seitz, a pitcher, who was with Rockford, Ill., are the other men signed up.

UNIVERSITY ATHLETICS

Football Men Do Not Appear in Chapel on "M" Day.

Silent Protest Against Athletic Policy—Tennis Players Go East.

Minneapolis, Minn., Special to The Herald.)—A sensation was caused in athletic circles upon the failure of the football men to attend chapel on "M" day. "M" day has always been an event in the past. The students always turned out to see the football men rewarded for their work and to give them a rousing reception. The teams always appeared to a man, and were given a fine talk by President Northrup, who would shake each one by the hand and pat their shoulders. Last Monday before a packed house President Vincent read off the names of the fifteen men who were to be rewarded. As each name was called and no husky stepped forth, the students began to titter and finally when two men stepped forward the audience burst into a roar. Nothing daunted, President Vincent and Prof. Paige spoke. The latter explained that being spring, etc., he supposed the men were on the river bank. The players declare that there was nothing intentional in their absence from chapel, but it was due merely to a misunderstanding as to when the letters were to be given out. However, it is the belief that the men stayed away as a protest of the present athletic policy, and it is known that most of them were in the back of the hall enjoying the embarrassing situation. Arthur Wallender and "Helnie" Elder were the brave ones who took part in the ceremonies.

Minnesota students are interested in the action taken by the University of Illinois faculty. They propose to take the question of eligibility away from the different colleges and put it in the hands of a committee consisting of one representative from each institution. They also petitioned that the whole power over athletics now lodged in the hands of the faculty be taken from the faculty and given to a board composed of regents, alumni and students.

* * *

The Gopher track team left for Nebraska yesterday for a dual meet to be held there today. Practically the whole team is eligible. By comparative work the Minnesota team should win. At the try-out meet last Saturday, the state broad jump record was broken by Molundy, with a clump of 22 feet 6½ inches. Lanibert also broke the record for the discus by a throw of 117 feet 10 inches. Leonard Frank Frank, captain of the team, has been doing better than the state record in the shot-put regularly in practice.

* * *

Yesterday the university tennis team left for their invasion of the East. They will play all of the leading colleges in the Middle West and East. Their itinerary will last about a month. John Armstrong and Selforde Stellwagon make up the team. Armstrong is state champion, and Western collegiate champion, and runner-up in the Eastern collegiate last year.

* * *

Armstrong represented Minnesota last year and received only one defeat on the trip. Stellwagon is a new player, but a consistent one. He went into the finals of the fall tournament at the "U." They leave before the termination of the tournament now on, so the championship this spring will not be a truly representative one.

* * *

"Doc" Williams, the football coach, will probably return to his horses. "Doc's" team was always a familiar sight around the campus, and "Doc" always said he would never give them up. But this spring he fell like the rest of them and bought an automobile. The other night while on a professional call he was hit by a train and his automobile completely smashed. "Doc" is now in the hospital, but his wounds are not serious.

SOUTHPAWS ARE GOLF WINNERS

T. F. Cole and Samuel Davidge Inspire Poem By Clever Play at Belleair.

A poem extolling the merits of the southpaw golfers, Samuel Davidge and Thomas F. Cole of this city, has been received by E. P. Alexander of Duluth, and is herewith given due and merited publicity. In the game that inspired the poem Mr. Cole, who was at Belleair, Fla., and Mr. Davidge defeated their right hand opponents. Mr. Davidge won the cup and Mr. Cole was runner up. Both of the players are port wing wielders of the stick.

Here is the poem:

To the Southpaw Winner.

The Belleview cup
Was won by three up,
With two left in thirty-six holes.
That was the score,
And it might have been more,
But for bunkers and telegraph poles.

"Did any right hander,"
May ask the bystander,
"Drag down this silvery vase?"
Not any such creature
Had a show at this feature,
Not one could set the right pace.

'Twas the left handed swatter
Who went in and got 'er,
A southpaw who soaked 'em in style.
An old time side wheeler
A hemlock bark peeler
Who ran his puts down at a mile.

With strokes that were savage
This southpaw Sam Davidge,
Led all of this right handed crew.
So long life to the winner,
May he fill this at dinner,
And here's to the runner up, too.

Mr. Davidge is in the tanning business and secured hemlock bark from Northern Wisconsin.

TINKER SAYS WALSH IS HARDEST TO HIT

(By Joe Tinker.)

Of all the baseball pitchers I ever faced the hardest to hit is Ed Walsh. At least he is the hardest for me to hit.

I don't say he is the greatest pitcher in the world: I think Christy Mathewson is the greatest.

Do you get that? I say the greatest; not was the greatest.

Some people try to tell you that Christy is a dead one. There is no question but he has slowed up a great deal, but I still maintain that he is the greatest pitcher in the world.

He and Walsh are hard to hit for exactly opposite reasons.

Walsh has you out before you try to bat. To tell you the truth he overawes the batter. He is big and strong and has terrific speed and a wonderful break. Walsh is a spitball artist, pure and simple. You know exactly what he is going to throw and what to be prepared for, but you can't hit the ball. He gets your goat.

Mathewson is exactly opposite in method. Christy tenderly leads you astray, so to speak. You are always sure you can hit him—but you can't. Christy looks almost pitiably easy. When you sit on the bench and see the other fellows at the bat you say to yourself, "When I get up there I'll knock that ball out into the bay!"

The Checker Player.

Every ball that he throws looks like a pipe; but you can't land on it right. Christy is no strikeout pitcher. He doesn't try to be. But he is the most delusive and deceptive man who ever stepped into a pitcher's box. No other pitcher in the world has so many resources. Christy is a great checker player and he shows it every time he faces a batter.

One of Walsh's great assets is his supreme confidence; his weakness is his short temper. He goes into a rage very easily.

Another pitcher who is helped wonderfully by his great confidence is Bender. The chief is so full of confidence that he has something of the same effect upon the batter as has Walsh. When a batter stands up before Bender the Indian looks him over with a careless air as though to say, "Oh, you're easy for me." And this is seldom without its effect. Bender has lots of speed and a fine head for the game.

It was always supposed that one game a week was the absolute limit of the chief's endurance, but in the world series he surprised everybody by pitching two games in three days.

I don't think so much of Marquard as a pitcher. Rube hasn't the mentality that will ever place him in the Christy Mathewson class. He has the arm, but not the head.

Coombs never impressed me particularly. I wouldn't like to appear egotistical enough to sweep him off the boards by an attempted verdict that he is not a top-notch player. But I will say simply this. That he is not a hard pitcher for me to hit. He hasn't the curves of either Bender of Mathewson. Perhaps he happens to be just the style that is best adapted to my style of batting. Anyhow, I would rather face Coombs than any of the other famous pitchers.

Of course, I have never had to face Mordecai Brown, but I consider him to be a wonder. "Brownie" is the best fielder among the big pitchers—oh, easily the best.

Brown's Fielding.

When "Brownie" is pitching I always consider that we have five infielders. I would rather work behind him than any of them. You can always tell what is going to happen. I don't know how to express it other than that the batters have to hit according to form when "Brownie" pitches. They have to shorten up and hit as "Brownie" wants them to hit.

Rucker of Brooklyn makes an awful hit with me. I honestly believe that Rucker is the greatest left handed pitcher who ever threw a baseball.

He is not as famous as some of the others, because he has always had to play with a team that can't get to the top.

Every big legue manager in the country is itching to get hold of Rucker. Frank Chance would pay $25,000 cash to get him for the Cubs. But, of course, Brooklyn won't sell him at any price. That fellow Rucker has everything.

Alexander is another pitcher for whom I have great admiration. He has wonderful control.

I never have seen Marty O'Toole, but I believe we have his equal, if not his superior, in young Cheney.

STANDARD GOLF BALL WOULD SIMPLIFY PLAY

New York, May 11.—A correspondent writes the Eagle to take exception to the remark of Silas H. Strawn, president of the United States Golf association, that "the only tenable reason given why a standard ball should be adopted is to prevent the possibility of the introduction of balls of greater resiliency than those now used and thereby necessitate the altering, if not, indeed, the abandonment of our present golf courses." This assertion of Mr. Strawn appears in an article by him in the Golfer's Magazine.

"This view," says the correspondent, "misses entirely the object aimed at. It is not so much the changing of the links that is important as to get a basis for estimating the comparative merits of players and their performances. The human factor, as well as the links, is to be considered. So rapid are the changes in the golf ball that the figures made by a player may mean little a short time after, owing to the introduction of a liveller ball.

The effect on the golf courses themselves is a measure of the effect on the play of the men themselves. Manifestly a ball that will give a player for the same expenditure of effort 220 yards where two years before he could get only 200 will leave the matter of his development always in the air. How much he is to ascribe to himself and how much to the ball will be an ever undetermined and indeterminable problem."

Why in other games where both sides play with the same ball, standardization is established and yet is not to be thought of in golf where each man plays with a different ball is not plain to the average sporting mind, says the writer. He argues that it must be plain that the player having the livelier ball must win, everything being equal. Mr. Strawn refers to the playing of individual balls in golf, but does not think that it puts much figure in giving one player or another superiority. That is precisely what it does, says the correspondent, for in the last few months there have come into the game, balls differing not only in resiliency, but in size, named variously the "baby" and the "midget."

These balls are claimed by their admirers to be an improvement over the larger ball, and it is evident that if in facing a variable wind, a player changes his ball at each tee to get a size adaptable to the wind, there is an element in the game that could not have been counted on by those who worked out the sport in its early days.

Collection of Balls.

The critic of Mr. Strawn cites the case of an opponent of his who invariably when the wind is behind, plays a large ball to get a larger carry down the field, while, when he faces the wind, he plays the smallest ball he has, to minimize wind resistance. After awhile, he thinks, the average golfer will go about with a collection of golf balls like a hunter with half a dozen sizes of shot to fit different kinds of birds.

Mr. Strawn raises an interesting question in asking what is the definition for a standard golf ball. Capacity to float in water is not a final test. He maintains that resiliency depends not upon the ball's size and weight, but rather upon the center, the tension with which it is wound and the quality of its cover. The adoption of a particular ball, he fears, would result in a monopoly by the maker, and that, like all golfers, he deprecates. Even gutta balls differed in resiliency, he asserts, because of the mixing of foreign substances with the gutta. Ball manufacturers have assured Mr. Strawn, he says, that the limit of resiliency has been reached and that any ambition hereafter will be to make balls more uniform.

Standardizing the ball, however, does not mean that the game must go back to the gutta as a method of standardizing the rubber-cored ball may be found, if it becomes imperat've. It is not too much to expect that the inventors who have been able to give us the rubber-cored ball will be able to devise a method by which they can give a limited resiliency to the ball. That Mr. Strawn is right when he dwells upon the delicacy of the task of standardizing rubber is shown by the effect of the passage of time on the resiliency of a golf ball. One golfer to whom somebody remarked once, "There's nothing so old as last year's newspaper," replied, "Yes, there is. It's last year's golf ball."

"It is almost too good to be true," said one golfer yesterday, when asked for his opinion on the prediction of Mr. Strawn as to the limit of change in balls having been reached, "but it is my idea that perhaps the era of changes has only begun. Here I see the manufacturers are advertising a ball with a 'wonderful starch-base,' while from Chicago comes the news that a ball has been made out of concrete that promises all sorts of things for the ambitious player."

JOHNNY EVERS WAS LAUGHED AT WHEN HE STARTED IN MAJORS

"The Crab" wasn't heralded into the league with a blare of trumpets.

Not he. A blatant blast from a fish trumpet would have been enough to annouce the coming of "The Crab." He came into the league, the big league mind you, with a chip on his shoulder, and although "The Crab"—he nicknamed himself — was nothing more than a slender attenuated youth with a head full of baseball and a pair of hands and feet that obeyed instinctively every directing nerve of his mind, he started out with the idea that he would make way for nobody, and for a wonder he made good.

"The Crab" came to the Chicago National league club late in the season. He loked anything but a ball player. A dozen big league scouts would have looked "The Crab" over and called him "worthless timber." That is they would have had they had the chance. Fortunately for baseball a great player was saved to the game because the scouts didn't have a chance ta slant their eyes in his direction.

To make a long story short, "The Crab" slid into Chicago one afternoon from a small town in New York. He had been hired as a baseball player by Frank Selee, the manager of the team which afterwards became the world-famous Cubs, under the leadership of Frank Chance.

As has been said before, the coming of "The Crab" was unheralded. He came out to the grounds shortly before the game started and presented himself at the little gate where the players enter the grounds.

"The Crab" knocked loudy at the gate.

A man with lettering on his cap which spelled "usher" opened the gate. He took one look at "The Crab," then he slammed the gate shut.

"The Crab's" cold gray eyes betrayed no emotion. He simply rapped harder on the gate and again the usher opened it.

"Whatcha want?" said the usher.

"I belong to this team and I want in the grounds," said "The Crab," and he put his foot in the crack left open and then squeezed his thin body inside the grounds.

The usher gasped, swallowed his Adam's apple once or twice and then gulped out:

"Who in the hotel are you anyway?"

"My name is Evers and I am coming in here to play a little ball with these big leaguers," said "The Crab."

"Good Lord, you a ball player!", gasped the usher.

"The Crab" disdained a reply. Words were scarce with him just then and he lost no time in darting up into the grandstand and from there to the playing field, where he made his way swiftly toward the clubhouse in center field.

Probably 5,000 people were already in the stands when "The Crab" started across the playing field. Not one of them guessed that they were looking for the first time on Johnny Evers, "The Trojan," who was destined to make a name for himself as one of the greatest second-basemen who ever played the game.

At that time Frank Chance was playing first base and was captain of the team. Evers reported to him at the clubhouse. Chance looked surprised when the slender youth told him that his name was Evers. He had good reports of the player's capability, but the boyish face and slender form fooled even Chance.

"Get into a uniform," was Chance's orders after he had looked "The Crab" over

Evers came out on the field in a uniform about two sizes too big for him. The members of the team laughed when they saw the little fellow's spindle legs thrust down into a uniform that "Pop" Anson had discarded a year before. It was the only uniform that Evers could find and he donned it without remark.

Laughs Died.

However, the big leaguers did not laugh long. Evers took up a position on the infield and Jack Taylor and several of the pitchers began hitting grounders at him. The way he annihilated space was a caution. He went back to the bag, scooped them up with one hand and tossed them to first, seemingly without an effort. He went over toward the first bag and repeated the trick. He was all over the infield and apparently he moved without effort.

"That kid is a ball player," remarked Chance to Manager Selee while watching Evers work out around the keystone sack.

"He is fast as a streak, but he is lighter than a lunch basket after a picnic," said Selee

Evers sat on the bench for several weeks and finally Selee received an offer from a minor league for his services. Selee went to Chance and told him that he was going to trade Evers.

"Don't do it," said Chance. "Lowe has water on his knee and it is a cinch that he won't last the season out. Let's keep the youngster for emergencies."

"Bobby" Lowe was playing second base for Chicago at that time and was slowing up. Once the greatest second baseman in the league, his legs had gone back on him until he could hardly hobble. He knew that he was "going" and had told Chance that he did not believe he could last the season out.

As events proved Lowe was right. Three weeks after Evers joined the team Lowe gave up. It was with fear and trembling that Chance called upon Evers to take up Lowe's job. Evers was undismayed.

"Guess I can hold down the job," he said to Chance. Then he spat upon his glove and walked out to the field. He looked like a pigmy among a lot of giants but before the afternoon was over he had shown every fan in Chicago that it doesn't take big limbs, thick necks and iron jaws to play baseball.

Evers has been playing second base ever since that day, except when he was out of the game with a broken ankle, sickness or some other disability.

Evers calls himself "The Crab." He has little to say off the ball field but he has plenty to say when the game is going on. His tongue is hardly still a minute, and evidently he talks himself out during the progress of the game. Although he says that he is a "crab," the other playcrs differ with him. They admit that he is as crabbed as they make them during a game, but say that he is pleasant and affable off the field and is a jolly companion.

Evers has had a great deal to contend with during his big league career. One of the hardest blows that he bore was when George MacDonald, a sporting writer, was killed while riding home from a ball game in Ever's automobile. Evers thought the world of MacDonald and the accident put him out of the game for practically one whole season.

HISTORY OF GREAT KENTUCKY DERBIES

The widespread interest in the Kentucky Derby, which is to be decided Saturday, May 11, at Churchill Downs, grows daily. Discussion of this event develops a resemblance to the third renewal of the Derby series decided in Louisville in 1877. That season brought four starters to the post. In their day they compared to the quartet of great stars in the race this spring—Worth, The Manager, Presumption and Sonada. In the 1877 event H. P. McGrath's brown colt Leonard, by Longfellow, like Worth in this year's race, got his derby favoritism from the fact that he was the largest money-winning two-year-old the season previous. Leonard's earnings as a two-year-old amounted to $8,450, a large sum in those days. Worth won last season $16,645.

The second choice in the 1877 Derby was Dan Swiger's chestnut colt Baden Baden. This noted performer was like Major McDowell's The Manager of this day. He had shown brilliant speed in his two-year-old races, but never had met Leonard in actual contest. Nor has The Manager met Worth. General Abe Buford's chestnut colt McWhirter was the Presumption of the 1877 Derby—that is, he had met Baden Baden and defeated him, but had also been beaten by Baden Baden, just as Presumption last season beat The Manager and Worth, and was in turn defeated by both of them.

Was Vera Cruz.

The Sonada of the Derby in 1877 was Captain J. T. Williams' bay gelding Vera Cruz. Like Catesby Woodford's crack this season, he was an unknown quantity in the race, but was greatly feared by the owners of Leonard, Baden Baden and McWhirter. The 1877 Kentucky Derby was run much later than the date set this season for the race. It was decided on Tuesday, May 2. The meeting that season lasted seven days. Baden Baden, ridden by William Walker, who is still to be seen at the Downs, won the race, thus earning fame for himself and a fortune for his owner. Immediately after the race Baden Baden was sold for $12,500 to William Astor, the New York multi-millionaire .

Leonard, ridden by Bobby Swim, finished second. Both McWhirter, ridden by H. Moore and Vera Cruz, piloted by the famous Isaac Murphy, were beaten out for third place by the Tennessee colt, King William, ridden by Bailey. Other good horses ran in the Derby that spring, including Early Light, owned by F. B. Harper; Odd Fellow, owned by J. J. Merrill; Dan K., the property of Johnson & Mills; Malvern, owned by T. J. Rice; Headlight, owned by L. V. Field, and Lisbon, which ran as the stable companion of Baden Baden. Lisbon became even greater in stud than any of the other Derby contenders in 1877. Among the noted performers sired by him was the mighty Troubadour, winner of the Suburban handicap in 1886. Remarkable to relate, Troubadour, like his sire, ran unplaced in the Kentucky Derby, but he beat out the winner of that race in his year, Joe Cotton, in the Clark stakes, although he was also defeated in that contest by what was known as the horned colt, Bersan.

All Meet Again.

Baden Baden, Vera Cruz and McWhirter all met again at the Downs in 1877. It was than that McWhirter won and ran his famous two miles in 3:30½, which, for many years, stood as the best time made on the American turf. Th's wonderful colt met his death the same spring in a race at St. Louis. To this day he is cited as the most remarkable example of courage known in the history of the thoroughbred. He finished his race on two broken legs and it was necessary to destroy him. Having in mind McWhirter and Enquirer, the sire of McWhirter, Gen. Buford made this statement: "Thoroughbreds have souls and when they die they go to a horse heaven."

Baden Baden was taken east by Astor and won the Saratoga Travers stakes, defeating the great Bradamante, St. James and other good 3-year-olds. When Baden Baden quit the turf he was placed in the stud at Astor's New York breeding farm and was fairly successful as a sire. Vera Cruz, being a gelding, was raced for several years, but Leonard died young, although he sired a few winners in his short stud career. The distance of the Derby in Baden Baden's year was one and one-half miles. His time was 2:38. That season but three races were run on Derby day. The classic was the second race. The first race that day was won by the famous mare Janet, with Elemi second and Bob Woolley third. It was a mile and a quarter. The time was 2:12½. The event following the Derby was a mile heat. It was won by Emma C. in 1:43¾, 1:44¾, 1:47¾. King Faro won the first heat.

There is little left of life to recall the Derby in 1877. With the exception of two owners of horses in that race, Ban Swigert and Capt. J. T. Williams, all of the other turfmen who had starters in the Derby are dead. William Walker, the winner's jockey, is the only one of the riders now alive. Col. A. B. Johnson, the starter that day; Maj. B. G. Bruce, who weighed the jockeys in and out for the event, and Col. M. Lewis Clark, the presiding judge that afternoon, are dead long since.

SWEDEN'S CLIMATE FAVORS ATHLETES

Very little has been said about the effect of the climate on the members of the last Olympic team, which carried off the honors at London in 1908, but it is a fact that one-third of the men who wore the American shield were sadly handicapped in that way. The rainy, foggy, chilly days that are so typical of Southern England had a very depressing effect on most of the Americans during their sojourn in London and Brighton, and when it is taken into consideration that the athletes left American with summerweight clothing and struck a fall in the temperature of 20 degs., it is little wonder that the highly strung athletes were affeced. Conditions will be vastly different this year in Sweden.

The team which will sail on June 14 for Stockholm will not have to worry about getting acclimated. Another big advantage will be the warm hospitality which is sure to be shown by the Swedish people. The men should have no more difficulty in becoming acquainted with their new surroundings than if the Olympic games were being held on the shores of Long Island.

When the Irish-American Athletic club team visited Sweden, after the 1908 Olympiad, the boys were treated with the greatest consideration and courtesy, and every effort was made to make them feel at home. There will be none of the dissension at Stockholm that gave the British Amateur Athletic association such a black eye in 1908.

The Swedish Olympic committee, headed by Gen. Balck, has taken great pains to make all of the competition as fair as possible.

A good instance of this is in the cross-country race. Up until the day of the race, the course will be unknown, and a jury consisting of representatives from each country taking part in the meet will lay out the course on the morning of the race.

Ernie Hjerberg, the official trainer of the Swedish team, probably is responsible for this innovation. No doubt he has a strong enough team to give Uncle Sam a hard tussle for first honors, and wishes to win fairly. It looks very much now as if Sweden will be the runner-up to the United States when the total points are reckoned.

While Finland, Great Britain and Germany may have a few individual stars, we Americans know too much of Hjerberg's organizing ability, as well as his record with the Irish-American A. C. and his work in Sweden for the eighteen other clubs in this country, to think that months has gone for nothing.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED.

Commercial League Holds Meetings and Season Opening is Planned.

Last night at the Northern Hardware company's store the election of officers of the Commercial league was held. Joe Berini was elected president; F. D. Pease, vice president, and George Hargreaves, secretary and treasurer. Pease and Hargreaves were placed on the schedule committee and Pease and Lydon placed on the grounds committee. It is expected that the schedule will open on May 25.

Crew Announced.

New Haven, Conn., May 11.—Coach "Jim" Rodgers of the Yale crew announced the Blues make-up for the Henly regatta at Philadelphia, May 25 in which crews from Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Yale will compete. It is as follows:

Bow, Allen; No. 2, Bryce; No. 3, Pease; No. 4, Boss; No. 5, Peck; No. 6, Freeman; No. 7, Ives; stroke Beck; coxswain, Barger.

The coaches decided not to send the varsity eight to the regatta this year, the above being the second crew.

PACKEY McFARLAND FOUGHT FROM YOUTH

(By Ray C. Pearson.)

Before Packey McFarland was hardly out of knickerbockers he started out to be a leader, and one of the results of his effort to lead caused his suspension from school. Today there still sticks with Packey that same desire to lead in his chosen line of endeavor.

McFarland's entry in the game of pugilism was made as a business proposition pure and simple. There have been other fighters who were good money getters before him, but it would be hard to find a better business man than the Chicago lightweight. He is not leading the lightweight brigade, but he is not overlooking any chance to depose Champion Ad Wolgast, which would place him at the top of the bunch.

"I will be lightweight champion of the world one of these days," said Packey a few days ago. "But while I am waiting for that advancement I am making all the money I can out of the fighting game. Fighting is my business, and I go through with it in just the same way that any other man does with his business. There is money in it, and that is why I am in it. It is not because I have any particular love for fighting. When I have made enough out of fighting I will retire from the game and devote my time to other things."

That explains pretty fully where the boy who is considered the cleverest boxer in the lightweight ranks stands.

Packey had one ambition, and a laudable one, a few years ago. That was to earn enough money from fighting before he was 21 years old to purchase a home for his parents in Chicago. He accomplished that ambition. He says he also will accomplish his ambition to become lightweight champion of the world. Time will answer that question.

In the makeup of the Chicago lightweight there is much that is unlike other pugilistic performers. All the world knows how little success comes to a fighter who has even a trace of sympathy in his makeup. It has caused the downfall of many another fighter, but in McFarland it has been different. Packey believes in sympathy, properly displayed and well "coppered." His mental powers give him control in situations where a little sympathy is not wasted, either on the other fellow or on himself.

McFarland says that he does not like fighting well enough to "beat up the other fellow to a pulp" in order to win. To score his victories without inflicting a great amount of damage and to escape it himself is his aim. The writer has seen him in battles where he had the other fellow outclassed, and when a little easing up could do no damage. But when Packey McFarland lets up, he doesn't forget the protective side of fighting, and it's as certain as law and taxes that his opponent isn't going to do any damage. That's where the sympathy comes into play, but it isn't every fighter that can control ring situations the way McFarland can.

There is no place to McFarland like Chicago, where he was born on Nov. 1, 1888. He first attended the St. Ann's Sister school, near his home, and went there for two years before attending the Farren public school. Packey had been going to the public school four years before anything disturbed the even tenor of his way. About this time the leadership "bug" got hold of him. The net result of his activities was disturbing to the school authorities as well as to his parents.

The board of education had just employed a negro teacher. Packey gathered together his force of pupils and called a strike, refusing to attend lessons. The school board won the argument by "firing" Packey. That ended education for the Chicago boy.

McFarland was 14 years old when he had this ruction. His cousin was the owner of a boiler shop and it wasn't long before Packey started in at the shop as an apprentice. He found a negro helped employed there. Packey's dislike of the colored race again cropped out. The negro thought he could box and they had it out on the roof of the building in which the boiler shop was located. They battled twenty minutes and called it a draw. But Packey wasn't satisfied and they went at it again the next day, when the negro fighter quit after a fierce battle.

By this time the boxing "bug" was buzzing lively in McFarland's bonnet and he joined the Park Manor Athletic club, a little organization which promoted boxing bouts. He didn't let his parents know that he was boxing, but signed a manager and found an opponent for him. The manager landed a bout for Packey with a fellow named Pete West. This was McFarland's first real fight before the public. Pete West knocked out West in two rounds, his manager gathered in the purse amounting to $3 and split it with Packey. The victory tickled Packey, but the $1.50 made a greater hit with him.

He took the money home and handed it to his mother, and the first thing Mrs. McFarland wanted to know was: "Did you steal it?"

McFarland pater didn't take kindly to Packey's pugilistic aspirations and showed it so plainly that the fighter left home and went to Davenport, Iowa, where he had relatives. But his earning capacity at that time wasn't as large as his appetite and while there his mother sent him money to keep him from starving. He remained in Davenport until he landed a few fights in which he showed the earmarks of a "comer," and then returned to Chicago, where the trouble with McFarland, Sr., was forgotten. What Packey has done since is familiar to pugilistic followers.

FAMOUS SHOTS OF THE FAMOUS GOLFERS

New York, May 11.—The shots that famous golfers like most and the way they play them is ever an interesting topic for devotees of the game, both here and abroad. Much has been written about Harry Vardon, James Braid and J. H. Taylor, but there are others on the other side possessing marvelous control over certain shots. Take, for instance, Arnaud Massy.

There is probably no more picturesque golfer than this Frenchman and especially in playing mashie shots he is the personification of grace. At North Berwick, where Massy perfected the game he picked up at Biarritz, modeling his style something after Horace Hutchinson, but, of course, more subdued, the full mashie shot can be effectively played at many of the holes.

Massy likes this full shot, but his favorite is playing the mashie for a half-shot. In his address he has the Vardon grip, with both thumbs down the shaft, the right-hand thumb finishing just a little above where the grip of the golf club begins. The weight is thrown somewhat on the right foot and the body overhangs the ball. In the upward swing the weight is all on the right foot and the left knee is down just a shade. The club has been well swung, but is not exactly at the perpendicular. The left arm is almost straight. The body is not dropped at all.

The finish of the stroke is an exceedingly easy one. One would think that there was nothing more than the weight of the club coming through on the ball from the swing, but Massy gets a little power from the forearm into the shot, and the weight of his body comes through from the right foot and follows the ball till the weight is all naturally on the left. It is an easy, graceful shot, and a very simple one, as the Frenchman plays it.

Although there is no shot which Alexander Herd, the English professional, does not play well, he is at his best when he is required to play a full brassy or a full iron in heavy wind. Reared on St. Andrew's, where the gusty wind and the open, exposed course soon compel the young golfer to learn how to play the wind, no matter from what part of the compass it may blow, Sandy Herd has perhaps an advantage of all other professionals when the day is blustery.

In playing the full iron shot, the stance is easy; in fact, the address is as orthodox as can be. His grip is the old St. Andrew's one, in so far as there is no interlocking, but the right thumb is down the shaft, not around it, as is usual with St. Andrew's men, and the left hand is very well over. In the upward swing the left knee has just bent a little, but the swing is entirely a body one. The weight has been transferred to the right foot, but the left foot still retains almost its original position, and does not rise from the ground in any way.

At the finish of the swing the hands are well up, the weight of the body has traveled after the club and is now on the left f ot, but the right foot is still on the ground. It is noticeable that when the ball gets away Herd still has his head down, although many consider he could play the shot "blind."

Longest Driver.

As for driving, W. H. Horne, the Chertsey professional, is considered the longest driver in the world. James Braid is credited with the longest drive, but Horne's drive of 388 yards at North Berwick on July 7, 1900, is the most thoroughly vouched distance in England. In any event, Horne's favorite shot is the full drive.

Horne's stance is wide, and he is well away from the ball. The grip is down, but are over the shaft. The swing is free and very full, but there is not much body action. The hands are raised very high, but there is no suggestion of overswinging, the club being under perfect control. From this position Horne gets a tremendous swing. He is tall and powerfully built and once he begins the forward motion the secret of the remarkable distance he can get from the tee reveals itself. His swing is perfect. The left foot is kept thoroughly in position. There is complete control over the body and the right leg does not bend very much, but the whole attitude of the body is that it has fallen in perfect control after the ball and the poise at the finish of the stroke is absolutely correct.

In the opinion of Harry Vardon, the acme of control lies in the ability to slice or pull a ball at will. On occasions Vardon has extricated himself from tight places by resorting to this form of master shots, but it is doubtful if any one has the pulled ball down to such a point of science as had the late Will Anderson.

It was over at Oakland, fully twelve years ago, when the course at Bayside consisted of nine holes, that Anderson had a chance to show his wonderful cleverness in this line. Being the Baltusrol professional at the time, Anderson had been selected by James A. Tyng as a partner in a four-ball match against Walter J. Travis, then a member of the Oakland Golf club, and Dave Hunter, at that time the professional there. In playing the home hole the drive is over a deep valley to a level stretch of turf beyond, after which the hole turns sharply to the left around a point of woods.

In those days of the solid ball, golfers considered it a good "stunt" to drive past the bend, so as to have an open shot for the green on their next, but in this particular match Anderson startled the gallery by imparting some mysterious spin to the ball, thereby causing it to travel straight for 150 yards or so and then gracefully turn to the left, finally disappearing round the bend well on its way towards the green. Four times did Anderson accomplish this feat that day without a mistake, and on each occasion it enabled him to get home with an iron, whereas the others were compelled to use brassies with indifferent results. Since that day Anderson has won a dozen or more championships, including the national open four times and the Western on three occasions.

THE BETTING EVIL.

Baseball Men Discover That Systematic Pool Selling Plan Is Formed

New York, May 11.—The belated discovery of baseball pools has aroused the authorities and today steps are being taken here to bring about the end of such gambling. Last year some gamblers attempted the same thing that is being put through now. Then they were bolder and started off by sending booklets describing their plans through the mails. A town in Pennsylvania was selected as the home of the gambling corporation and offices were opened for business when the officers of the department of justice from Washington arrived.

The preliminary investigation here has discovered that the baseball pool today is as firmly established in New York as was the policy game which ruthlessly robbed New York's poor in the past before it was killed.

The authorities here have been unable up to the present time to find any central organization or any head to this newest gambling scheme. Office boys, elevator men, bartenders and barbers are acting as agents, but the police appear to be unable to find the chiefs.

The success of the promoter has been such that already scores of pools, each independent of the other, have been organized.

MOTOR BOAT COVERS MILE IN EIGHT SECONDS OVER MINUTE.

Atlantic City, N. Y., May 11.—After the Crusader III, a 26-foot hydro-motor boat had made a measured mile at the rate of 55 miles an hour, her bronze propeller was smashed and the crew, blinded by the sheet of water that shot up and descended on them, had a narrow escape when they temporarily lost control of the boat. They recovered in time to avoid striking the stake boat. The Crusader III made the mile in 1:08.

JACK JOHNSON MAY HAVE LOST CUNNING

Corbett, Sullivan and Jeffries Lost Fighting Ability By Remaining Out of Ring.

San Francisco, Cal., May 11.—So far as can be judged at this writing, the Johnson-Flynn match for the championship of the world is a fixture. The financial arrangements, whatever they may be, were agreed upon long ago. The only thing that clouded the atmosphere was the question of a battle ground, and now all uncertainty on this score seems to have been removed, writes W. W. Naughton.

The passage of a law in New Mexico providing for the handling of pugilistic enterprises in that section opened a new field for the wandering knights of the padded mitt, and when, on the day the Tripp measure went through "The House" at Santa Fe, Jack Curley named Las Vegas the place of meeting for the championship, there was a suggestion of team work and the eternal fitness of things.

Nothing succeeds like success, and now that Curley has succeeded in paving the way for his championship venture, he will compel critics and sporting men generally to sit up and pay attention to the heavyweight event. It will be pretty hard to eradicate the opinion that Fireman Flynn is not a worthy adversary for the black-skinned world-beater, Jack Johnson. The only possible way to induce the public to regard Flynn's chances with any degree of seriousness is to cause speculators to arise as to the effect that a couple of years of indolence and luxury have had upon Johnson and Johnson's uppercuts.

If there were good grounds for thinking that Johnson can take up his work again and perform as dexterously as he did against Jeffries at Reno, this match that hangs in the balance would be a fit subject for investigation by some of the societies who make a specialty of preventing uncalled-for cruelty.

But there's the rub. In Flynn's case there is a reason for believing that he is improving as a fighter. The most eloquent evidence in favor of this assumption can be found in the defeats of Al Kaufman and Carl Morris. In both affairs the fireman performed in a workmanlike manner. At that, however, the gains he has made would avail him nothing if Johnson can be counted on to display his old-time form.

Due to Retrograde.

Johnson has passed his 34th year and has not been in the ring for two years. John L. Sullivan was 34 and had been out of harness for three years when he lost to Jim Corbett. There is always a disposition to attribute the defeat of a champion to physical retrogression and slowing up and it was so when Sullivan lost to Corbett. And the chances are that Sullivan if he had been a few years younger and he had not enjoyed a three-year lay off, would have made things far more interesting for Pompadour Jim.

Jim Corbett was only a few months past his 30th year when he lost his laurels to Fitzsimmons. This was in March, 1897, and three years had elopsed since Corbett defeated Charlie Mitchell so signally at Jacksonville.

Well, it may be that Fitzsimmons would have proved Corbett's master if they had met years sooner, but I have my doubts. In speed and cleverness Corbett did not show any particular falling away at Carson, but in nerve force—in the ability to endure fatigue and remain proof against excitement he was a mere mockery of the lad who trounced Sullivan and Mitchell.

Fits Had Long Rest.

Fitzsimmons was 37 when he went under to Jeffries at Coney Island, and had been out of the ring a couple of years.

It is a hard thing to figure in the case of a freaky individual like Fitzsimmons. There was something about the fellow that age could not wither and a glance at his record will suggest that so far as pugilistic prestige is concerned, he had as many lives as a cat.

But the style of fight he put up with Jeffries indicated that his two years' holiday had taken the edge off his fighting prowess.

A year later, when he made an active campaign, it will be remembered that he knocked out a whole lot of fellows in short order, the list including Tom Sharkey and Gus Ruhlin, both of whom were disposed of within a week.

Jim Jeffries was a few months over the 29-year notch when he boxed Jack Munroe in San Francisco, shortly afterward he retired, literally because there was nothing in the shape of a human fighting animal that could hold a candle to him. Six years later at the clamoring of the press and public he came forth to give battle to Jack Johnson.

Now this is a painful subject, but if there was any one at Reno who saw anything about Jeffries to recall the mauler of six years previous, he has not been located.

Of course, six years is enough to put a man out of touch with any kind of a game, but in the present instance it is not a question of what difference six years will make, but what two years will make. It may be that two years would have made as much inroad on Jeffries on fighting force as six.

According to popular opinion, three years knocked all the championship class out of John L. Sullivan and Jim Corbett and this, too, when Sullivan was the same age as Johnson is now and Corbett was nearly four years younger.

A Double Question.

In view of what has happened down through the championship years, this does not seem to be a fallacious line of reasoning. In a man of Johnson's habits and age a two year's gap in his activities is sure to work to his detriment to some extent.

There is a double-talked question involved.

How much has Johnson depreciated since he boxed Jeffries?

How much would he have to depreciate to make Flynn an even money choice?

ENGLISH STAR SAYS AMERICA WILL WIN

New York, May 11.—Very few knew it, yet Sidney S. Abrahams, the Cambridge university broad jumper, and one of the closest students of athletics in England has been here for some time this spring to see if the American athletes are all they are cracked up to be on paper. The Cantab has just returned home and has given his opinion that America will win at Stockholm, and that England is in for another good trouncing. Abrahams is a firm believer in the American method of training and for the past couple of years has been advocating the plan of bringing some one of the leading Yankee trainers to England to coach the natives. Last September the Light Blue jumper made a tour of Sweden to do some competition and incidentally to have a good square look at the Swedes on their own grounds. His first impression was that the Swedes might have a chance to capture the Olympic point honors, but the more he saw of the best men the less he thought of their chances, and in the end he concluded that if they should finish in third place they would be favored with a streak of luck.

Real Trainer Needed.

While Abrahams was sojourning here some reversals of form occurred in England and, speaking while yet uninformed of what had happened, he made some bad breaks in his comparison. He thought G. R. L. Anderson the best quarter-miler, though he was beaten by McMillan, and Stephens, he thought, was the best English representative with the hammer, but he was beaten in the inter-varsity sports by Zeigler, a Rhodes scholar. In dealing with the return of Abrahams and his comparison, a letter from an Englishman interested in the Olympic team says, in part: "Abrahams still thinks England has the best athletic material in the world, but that there is no one here to develop it.

While other countries have made gigantic strides and are using up-to-date methods of training England is making no organized effort to bring out her athletes. Abrahams acknowledges they need a Mike Murphy or a Sparrow Robertson, but national pride keeps them from going to another country for a trainer in sports in which they have always been supposed to lead the world.

Absolutely No System.

"There is absolutely no system in England, according to Abrahams. F. W. Parker of the London A. C. is at present touring England organizing clubs and inaugurating meets with an idea of bringing out the best talent, but when these men have been securd any idea of their going through a special course of training for the Olympic games has been lost sight of, because there is no one who knows how to train them and possibly if they did would not take the trouble. All of which goes to show that England is in for another good licking in the coming Olympic 3, which may be the best thing in the world if it will bring those in charge of athletics in Britain to the realization of the necessity of being up and doing if she intends to compete with other countries.

Varsity Material.

"The varsities will provide the major portion of the Olympic team, and D. McMillan, the sprinter, and P. J. Baker, the half-miler, both Cambridge men, will be two of England's mainstays. In taking Anderson as the British quarter-mile representative Abrahams is evidently unaware that he was beaten by McMillan in the inter-university contest. Abrahams says the hammer has never been taken seriously in England, in fact, there are not half a dozen men who know how to hurl the missile. F. C. Stephen, who has to a certain extent adopted the American style, is the best. He is obviously ignorant of the fact that Stephen was also beaten in the inter-university match by an Oxonian, Zeigler, by four feet. While Abrahams considers R. S. Clarke a good man over three to five miles, he does not come up to the cracks of other countries. Jackson, who did 4:21 2-5 under adverse circumstances, is a good one for the mile. Of course, England will be repreented in all the other track and field events, but only by men of mediocre ability."

PLUVIUS STOPS BASEBALL GAME

J. Pluvius stopped festivities at the ball park yesterday and sent about twenty-five fans home without witnessing a ball game in the full meaning of the word, as but four innings were played. When the game was called by Umpire Landry Duluth was in the lead, the score being 4 to 2. Hoffman was on the mound for Duluth and Schweitzer was on the hill for the opposition. The Superior twirler did not work long enough to show whether he bore any resemblance to the famous cheese.

The teams will play today and again tomorrow, the two games bringing to a close the protracted series.

Koehler Wins Bout.

Kansas City, Mo., May 11.—Paul Koehler of Cleveland was given a decision over Clarence (Wildcat) Ferns of Kansas City here last night after ten rounds of furious fighting before the Grand Avenue A. C. The decision met the approval of the spectators.

Kilbane vs. Saylor.

Cincinnati, May 11.—Tommy Kilbane of Cleveland and Young Saylor of Indianapolis, were matched last night to box ten rounds before the Olympic Athletic club of this city on May 22.

MANY HURT IN CRASH OF TWO TROLLEY CARS.

Kokomo, Ind., May 11.—Howard Beattie was killed and thirty-four persons injured, several seriously, late yesterday when a crowded Indiana Union Traction car collided with a Wabash Valley car south of here. The accident occurred on a stretch of straight track near a switch where the two cars were to have passed. Misunderstanding of orders is said to have been the cause. Both cars telescoped as far back as the smoking compartments. Most of the passengers were in the rear of the coaches.

Manitoba Elevators Burn.

Brandon, Man., May 11.—Two elevators of the Maple Leaf Milling company were burned here yesterday. A large amount of grain in the two buildings was destroyed. The loss is estimated at $100,000. All telegraph poles for a distance of 300 yards were burned, cutting off all telegraphic service to the west.

AUTO SHOW IN THE FALL

Auto Dealers Plan to Hold One at New Curling Club.

Building Large Enough for Show as Large as Minneapolis Exhibition.

Duluth will probably have its first real automobile show next fall upon the completion of the new rink and auditorium of the Duluth Curling club.

Up to this time there has been no place to hold a show, none of the local auditoriums being large enough to accommodate the exhibits.

When the new structure is completed it will be nearly as large as the armory in which the Minneapolis show is held once a year, and there will then no longer be any reason why Duluth will not have its annual exhibition.

Manufacturers are anxious to display their cars in Duluth and have tried at different times to give a small show here, but each time they have been unable to carry out their plans for want of a place.

The new curling club will be central and there will be plenty of room in which to hold a show as large as that held in St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Duluth agents are enthusiastic over the idea and it is very likely that they will get together and work out the plans for the show. It will probably be held about the first of September as it is thought that the building will have been completed by that time.

There is already some talk of the show and several of the agents at an informal meeting held Monday evening talked the matter over, deciding that just as soon as the building is ready, Duluth will have a show.

Already several manufacturers have expressed their willingness to send cars to Duluth to be placed on exhibition.

Smaller cities than Duluth have annual shows and there seems to be no good reason why Duluth cannot be in the swim.

Pointers for Motorists.

Just now at the beginning of the season, when motorists are again taking their cars out on the road, many automobiles are being examined with critical eye to detect any trouble that may have been brought on by the long winter's rest.

One of the things which should be looked into is the condition of the rims. It may seem like a small thing, yet rust which is likely to collect on rims during the months of idleness is a real danger.

Rust can always be detected by the appearance of the beads of the envelope. When the beads show a strongly marked yellowish stain it is evident that the tire has not been properly cared for. This stain is nothing else than rust, which forms on the rims and is deposited on the beads of the tire. If it is allowed to remain it will destroy the tire, for it will slowly but surely eat away the fabric. Moreover, the edges of rusted rims will become more uneven every day.

Further, when a rim is rusted it is impossible to maintain the close and regular contact which should exist between rim and bead. Water will soon find its way into the tire to work its usual harm.

After having been out in bad weather, if the motorist is careful to sponge tires and rims clean and then wipe them dry, especialy along the beads, he will do much to prevent the formation of rust. It is possible, however, that in spite of the exercise of reasonable care the rims may suffer a little damage, especially during the winter. In any case it is advisable to examine the rims closely from time to time.

Many suggestions on the proper care of tires, tubes and rims are instructively discussed in the two books "Bibendum" issued by the Michelin Tire company of Milltown, New Jersey. Copies will be mailed free to motorists on request.

NO MORE TROUBLE WITH CURTAINS

Chicago Man Invents Some Which Can Be Adjusted in Jiffy.

It is safe to say that the labors of the recording angel will be considerably lessened, and the temper of motorists considerably improved by a new invention which has just come on the market.

One of the most irritating occurrences of motoring is to get out in a sudden shower and fumble with the curtains of a car. Usually the curtains are up just about the time the shower is over; and then it takes just as long to get them out of the way. The woman who can sit in the car during this operation and smile with the rain taking all the style out of her clothes and all the curl out of her hair, has unquestionably the disposition of a saint.

A Chicago man has just patented what he calls "Jiffy curtains," and they are well named; for as the inventor himself says, you can start adjusting them when you see a raindrop about to fall and have them up and the car enclosed before the drop hits the ground.

Jiffy curtains slide in the pockets at the top of the car and also slide backward with the top. They are strung on non-rustible steel cables and can be entirely adjusted without leaving the car. Paneled mica lookouts run the whole length of the curtain, so that the view of the occupants is not interfered with. Jiffy curtains have been in successful operation on many Chicago cars and many of the more progressive manufacturers are arranging to make them part of their regular equipment for the coming year's models.

ADVANTAGES ROADS BRING

Remarkable Progress in Road Building During the Past Few Years.

A. A. A. President Tells of Work Done and Still to Do.

(By Robert P. Hooper, President American Automobile Association.)

Many of the Southern and Western states have made remarkable progress within the past two or three years in the enactment of laws which provide for the extension of their highway systems, and for the construction and care of improved roads. The new conditions arising from the development of automobile traffic have enlarged the question of public highways from one of purely local consideration, to an economic principle involving not only entire commonwealths, but the nation as a whole.

When the traffic consisted of wagons drawn by oxen, or mules, or horses, open roads to the nearest railroad station or boat landing were all that was required. The fact that even such roads were not well built, nor kept in repair, was due to a variety of causes. Each particular locality had an explanation, purely local, to account for the conditions. But, as a rule, these explanations did not explain, even to the satisfaction of those making them.

The fact still remained that nearly or quite 90 per cent of the farmers of the country were keeping themselves poor by reason of the excessive cost of marketing their products. These products could be hauled only at seasons when everybody had to haul. This resulted in temporarily overworked railway service, congested markets, and low prices.

The older and wealthier states saw the point first, and began giving aid to counties and towns in building improved roads, so that produce could be marketed at any time in the year. The result was almost electrical in its effect. Thousands of farms which, because of their relative unprofitableness under a bad road system, became productive again. The general values of farm property were enormously enhanced. This was accomplished by the building of a few town and county roads purely for local purposes.

Then the automobile became a factor in the road question, and the road problem became widened and enlarged. With vehicles which would cover 100 or 200 miles a day, the conditions in each county rapidly became known to the people in adjoining counties, and a broader comprehension of the whole highway question was inevitable, in a country where intelligence predominates.

Of course, there were, and still are in isolated localities, persons who cling to the bad roads of their grandfathers, and resist any attempt to make improvements. These are those who also regret the passing of the spinning wheel, and the domestic weaving loom, with which the women used to make the cloth for clothing the family.

The age is progressive. Fifty or sixty years ago this country began to build railroads, and now we have more than nearly all the rest of the world together. In place of crude industrial facilities, we have the very best on earth; yet we are behind other civilized nations in the improvment of our roads. We are beginning now to do with our highways what should have been done long ago.

There is a phase of the road question which is state-wide in its application. That relates to the through or trunk lines which accommodate through traffic. To leave the construction and care of these roads in the hands of local authorities, must result in uneven and inharmonious construction, unimproved gaps, and desultory care, involving practically a failure of such roads, for a standard of their utility.

These extended lines of road, across a state, or between principal centers of population, have become a necessity of modern traffic. While the through traffic is mostly that of motor cars, the local usefulness of the road is not interfered with. The continuity of such roads, however, and the standard of construction and care required, make of them a factor in highway development which it is more just that the state should provide for, than the local communities through which they may pass.

A long stretch of improved road is one of the best advertisements a state can have. It attracts a class of tourists who are able and willing to pay for entertainment. It brings investors who are looking for advantageous locations. It includes agricultural investigation and consequent immigration and investment, not only along the line of the road, but in other accessible sections. It changes, by the sheer force of publicity, backward localities into progressive ones, enhances values and brings into general notice resources which had only been known locally; or, if known, not appreciated.

CHALMERS CARS ON EXHIBITION

Factory Models Will Be Shown By Mutual Automobile Company.

The exhibit from the factory of the Chalmers Motor Car company, which has been shown at all the principal automobile shows of the country, will be brought to Duluth next week. The exhibition of Chalmers cars will take place at the garage of the Mutual Auto company on West First street. The exhibition will be free and everybody will be welcome.

The cars are expected to arrive today and it is expected that the exhibition will be ready for public inspection on Monday morning. A representative of the factory will be here to explain the working parts of the different models.

The self starters and other new features of the Chalmers cars will be in actual operation so that visitors may be shown the working parts and how they are operated.

The exhibit promises to be a most interesting one. But few people know how an automobile runs. The purpose is to explain all the working parts. "I don't know anything about an automobile, it just seems to go, that's all," said a man who was thinking about buying a car today. It is for the benefit of people like the man referred to that the Mutual Auto company is having the exhibiton of Chalmers cars.

All motorcycle riders, whether members of the club or not, are requested to meet at Walter Holmberg's shop on Lake avenue south, get acquainted and make the trip.

The riders leave at 1:30 p. m. Sunday afternoon and will head for South Range.

Other events will probably be planned in the near future.

You Want the Best— Not the Cheapest

Flanders "20" Roadster, $750

Don't be alarmed if somebody tells you you can buy an automobile for less money than the $750 Studebaker-Flanders "20." You can, but you better not. The Flanders "20" corresponds point by point with the best and highest priced cars sold. Cheaper cars at every vital point are built on ideas long ago discarded for good cars. Don't take our word for it. Make comparisons and see.

The Studebaker-Flanders "20" is a marvel—a high grade modern car at a low price. If you pay less, you buy much less. And the cheaper car today will cost you far more in the long run. The competing car isn't sold which the Studebaker Corporation, the greatest automobile manufacturers in the world, couldn't reproduce for less money; but we won't build a cheap car, because the name "Studebaker" means the best for your money.

If you are content with a car that runs today and dies tomorrow, don't buy the $750 Flanders "20." It will wear for years. Remember this—the Studebaker-Flanders "20" will outwear 2 to 1 any other car under $1100 and give you double satisfaction, confidence and comfort into the bargain.

BUTTE & SUPERIOR MILL ABOUT READY TO START

Expected 500 Tons of Ore Daily Will Be Handled By June.

President of Amalgamated Very Enthusiastic Over Copper Outlook.

Butte, Mont., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Butte & Superior concentrator is about ready for actual work. In the past few days some of the machinery has been tested and found to be in good working order. It will probably be close to June 1 before the plant is in full operation and by that time it is expected that about 500 tons of ore will be handled. For the past month not over 200 tons a day have been shipped to the Basin works, as a quantity of the machinery was taken out and removed to the new concentrator building. When the plant gets to its full capacity of 1,000 tons of ore a day, sometime hence, it is expected to turn out about 400 tons of concentrates every twenty-four hours. The experimental smelter which is being built for the purpose of testing the Peterson process of treating zinc concentrates and crude zinc ore by means of an electrical furnace, in connection with a condenser of his own design, is nearing completion and possibly in another week the small plant will be ready for the tests. The plant has been constructed under the personal direction of the inventor, P. E. Peterson, and he is very sanguine as to its success. Should it prove to be the plant claimed by the inventor, there is no doubt the Butte & Superior company will adopt the same and erect a permanent smelter which will mean a large addition to the earnings of the company. However, until a thorough test is made of the Peterson process, nothing of a positive character can be stated. At the present time the company has to ship its concentrates to Bartlesville, Okla., and this means a large extra expense.

Elkhorn Mine to Be Closed.

The Elkhorn mine, which in years past has been a large predicer of silver, is to be closed down. It was discovered thirty years ago, and in time paased into the hands of English capitalists who secured control of it on the payment of the sum of $500,000 in cash. For a considerable time it was operated with a great profit, but when the silver panic occurred the profits dwindled away to nothing, and finally the London people decided to close the property down. Some local people took hold of it after it was sold for just about sufficient to pay for the machinery as old junk, and since that time it has been worked off and on in the hope that a rich body of ore might be encountered. Those who are supposed to be an authority on the matter state that during the time it was operated by the English capitalists upwards of $5,000,000 worth of silver was taken out.

Ryan Enthusiastic Over Outlook.

John D. Ryan, president of the Amalgamated Copper company, is very enthusiastic over the copper outlook. Speaking at a reception and banquet tendered to himself and the party of capitalists who accompanied him to this city, he said: "Butte today is better than she ever was—has a greater future than she ever had, and will show greater prosperity in the next twelve months than she has ever shown in any twelve months in her history. I see nothing to interfere with it. The copper market is splendid. The copper consumption all over the world is at an absolute maximum. The price of copper is very satisfactory and I hope it will be more satisfactory. There isn't any prospect that within the next few years there will be any reason to do anything but to produce the last pound of copper than can be produced, and I will say to you that old Butte was never in the shape to hand it to them than she is today." Mr. Ryan said that the copper production would be rather increased than decreased and in referring to the capitalists who came to this city as his guests, said: "The gentlemen accompanying me on this trip have already made promises that mean the spending of at least $12,000,000 within the next twelve months in this state. That is a million dollars a month. Of course, it is only our Butte pay roll, but it is another pay roll."

Mr. Ryan made the further announcement that the time had come when it was necessary to provide greater smelter facilities and that with this end in view it had been decided by the Anaconda Copper Mining company to practically build a new smelter at Great Falls at an estimated cost of $2,500,000. This work will be commenced just as soon as the material can be supplied and the work will be finished in about one year. In the meantime the old smelter will be operated to about its capacity and the new plant, while occupying the ground on which the old one stands with large additional ground, will be so constructed that the old works will be kept in commission until the new plant is ready to start. It is the intention of the Anaconda company to make the new works the most modern smelting plant in the world, as well as the most economical.

Will Make Big Investments.

The Eastern capitalists who accompanied John D. Ryan to this city were so much impressed with the opportunities offered of investing some of their spare capital that they became interested in projects amounting to about $12,000,000, which includes the erection of an up-to-date flour mill at Great Falls and the opening up of some promising iron claims, which W. E. Corey, the steel magnate, pronounced of a very encouraging character. President A. J. Earling of the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound Railroad company did not have anything to say concerning the electrification of portions of the road in this state, but he did state that there would be some expansions of the road and that work would be commenced at once. It is believed that quite a portion of the $12,000,000, which it was stated would be spent in the next twelve months, will be expended in railroad extension, although there is no doubt the building of the new smelter at Great Falls is included in the amount named.

Make Contract on Wages.

The first union connected with the Western Federation of Miners to take action in regard to the entering into a contract with the Anaconda company in regard to wages is the Great Falls Mill and Smeltermen's union, and by a referendum vote it was decided to make such contract, notwithstanding the action of the Western Federation convention a couple of years ago in repudiating any contracts so entered in the future. There was another vote taken on the question as to whether there should be a demand for an increase in wages and this was carried, it being decided to ask for an increase of 50 cents a day. In the course of a few days the question of a contract and the increase will be taken up with C. F. Kelley, vice president and resident director of the Anaconda company, but no intimation can be secured as to the intention of the company in regard to the increase. While, of course, the determination of the mill and smeltermen to ask for the increase in wages carried by a large majority, the very cordial relations existing between the men and the company are such that there is not the least danger of any trouble. A majority of the men who voted in favor of the increase afterwards stated that if it was not granted the men would be perfectly satisfied to continue at work, relying on the company to increase wages when the conditions were considered more favorable.

Michigan Officials Invest.

R. L. Agassiz, vice president of the Calumet & Hecla company, and James McNaughton, general manager of the same company, who have been in the city as the guests of John D. Ryan, accompanied Mr. Ryan on a visit to Thompson Falls in the western part of the state, where it was decided to take a large interest in the Northwestern Development company and erect a power plant capable of developing 46,000-horse power for the purpose of furnishing light, heat and power to the people of the northwestern part of the state. It has not been learned just what amount of stock the Calumet & Hecla officials took in the venture, but it is understood that they joined with Mr. Ryan in securing the control of the enterprise. Besides supplying a number of towns in the western part of the state, assurances have been given from points in Idaho of the use of the power for both lighting and power purposes in several mines. State Senator Edward Donlan is the president of the company. On returning from Thompson Falls the vice president and the general manager of the Calumet & Hecla proceeded with Mr. Ryan and his Eastern guests to Salt Lake, where they inspected the Tooele smelter and various properties in Utah and then proceeded East. Both Mr. Agassiz and Mr. McNaughton expressed themselves as very much delighted with their visit to this state. They asked to be excused from making any statement regarding the copper situation, but did say that the mines of Butte were certainly in fine condition and that the Washoe smelter was a model which might well be copied.

West Colusa.

The West Colusa mine has been connected with the Mountain View on the 1,200-foot level by an east drift from the latter property. The air shaft of the Mountain View has been sunk to the 2,000-foot level. A station is being cut and a pump will be installed to care for the water. The hoisting shaft of the West Colusa is being sunk to a depth of 2,000 feet.

To Further Extend Road.

It is unofficially stated that the Anaconda company has decided to further extend the Butte, Anaconda & Pacific railroad from the Georgetown district into Phillipsburg, Granite county.

GIROUX ORES GOING TO MILL

Shipments From Morris and Bunker Hill Shafts Have Begun.

Ely, Nev., May 11.—General Manager Mills of the Giroux Consolidated Copper company states that production on a small scale commenced from the Morris and Bunker Hill shafts on May 1, but that it will take some time to work up to a production of 1,000 tons a day.

The delay in the arrival of the sheave wheels for the head frames on both shafts made it necessary to fix these up temporarily so as to be able to handle the ore extracted in development work. The large ore bins, into which the ore from the mines is to be dumped before loaded on the cars for transportation to the smelter have also been delayed in completion, but by means of a temporary trestle, ore is being loaded into the cars now, while the work of finishing the bins is going on.

The ore that is being shipped to the Steptoe plant averages $2.50 net per ton. The statement is made that the company could maintain shipments running as high as $3.50 net per ton, but will endeavor to keep its shipments down so that they will average a profit of $2.50 net per ton, believing that this will enable it to ship a sufficient amount of low grade together with the high grade, to the better interests of the mine.

ACTIVITY IN THE CORBIN DISTRICT

Boston & Corbin's Decision to Build Concentrator Inspires Confidence.

Butte, Mont., May 11.—With the definite announcement that a concentrator is to be built by the Boston & Corbin Copper company without further delay, an era of activity is predicted for the Corbin district, which promises to equal that of the early days when the towns of Corbin and Wicker boasted of several thousand population.

A considerable amount of work in proving up has been done during the past few weeks, and it is understood that at a number of properties in the vicinity of the Boston & Corbin preparations are under way for aggressive development.

The records show that the Silver Pick property, in which a controlling interest is held by Mrs. R. B. Dear, wife of the late R. B. Dear, has been patented and there is excellent prospect that active operations in developing the property may soon be commenced. The property is especially promising, having at least two of the veins of the Bertha system, traced directly from the Bertha mine of the Boston & Corbin company, and the latter is today the most important property in the district with hundreds of thousands of tons of ore blocked out and ready for mining.

The leads on the Silver Pick have been proved by shallow shafts, disclosing lead carbonate ores, which assay as high as $85 to the ton. The ores also run high in copper and carry good gold and silver values. The Silver Pick is one of the most promising properties in the district and there is little question that with proper development a producing mine will result.

SHOWING IS EXCELLENT

Algomah Encounters More Copper Ground of Exceptional Richness.

Hancock Again Getting Good Copper Showings at 3,554 Feet.

Houghton, Mich., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Algomah Mining company has encountered copper ground of exceptional richness in the crosscut west on the 200-foot level. The strike was made in the approximate horizon of the Lake lode and presumably is an extension of that famous bed. A width of about five feet is shown. The diamond drill operating the southe and west of the exploratory shaft sunk on the Algomah ore body recently encountered a good showing of copper ground at a depth of 1,000 feet. This development occurred in the horizon that probably is identical with that opened in the crosscut. The showing at either point is highly encouraging and promises well for the future of the company.

Indiana.

The Indiana continues to open excellent copper ground in the so-called felsite bed. The crosscut from the shaft on the 600-foot level reached this formation some weeks ago since which time work has been centered in drifting. The mineral in this formation runs largely to stamp copper with very little proportion of small masses. The shaft is sinking steadily at the rate of about seventy-five feet per month, and has attained a depth of about 800 feet. At this point a second crosscut will be started to open up the felsite bed already tapped by a crosscut on the 600-foot level. The shaft is sinking vertically and at about 1,300 feet should cross with the felsite bed, which is pitching toward the shaft. Work in the shaft for some time has been in a bed of sandstone overlying the felsite.

Hancock.

The Hancock is again obtaining excellent showings of copper at a depth of 3,554 feet in the big vertical shaft. Whether or not the present mineral zone is embraced in the Quincy-Pewabic series is not definitely known. It is quite likely, however, that such is the case and that the main vein will be intercepted within the next 100 feet and possibly withing fifty feet of the present depth of the shaft. Work elsewhere is centered in the crosscut on the thirty-fourth level, in which the lode designated as No. 4 is being opened by drifts. The No. 4 lode was encountered at a depth of 3,305 feet in the shaft and is not without promise.

Mayflower and Old Colony.

The Mayflower and Old Colony companies continue engaged in exploratory work without important recent developments. Mayflower No. 18 hole has attained a depth of 1,250 feet and should cut into the Mayflower lode at any moment. The No. 19 drill hole is down something over 300 feet and has a considerable distance to go before developments may be expected. The Old Colony company, operating in the Mayflower horizon, has reached a depth of 740 feet in the No. 14 drill hole, and at about 860 feet should cut the southern extension of the Mayflower lode first opened in Mayflower No. 16 drill hole 300 feet north. The Old Colony No. 15 drill hole is down 650 feet, with developments expected at about 900 feet.

Wyandot.

The Wyandot will shortly resume exploratory work in section 16 in which a promising amygdaloid was uncovered in a previous exploration campaign. This lode yielded a promising drill core and where opened in a test pit disclosed a width of sixteen feet, three feet of which was found well charged with copper. Development work in the No. 8 lode opened by cross-cut on the 700-foot level of the old exploratory shaft is yielding a good showing of stamp copper in a formation 28 to 30 feet wide, and is altogether encouraging. The No. 3 lode opened in the same manner shows heavy stamp copper for some distance when a pinching in the formation was noted and work stopped. The future of the company would seem to lie in the possibilities contained in the section 16 acreage, though the work on No. 8 lode is not without promise. Exploratory work in section 16 will be resumed at an early date.

St. Louis.

The St. Louis will shortly begin exploratory work in the horizon of the Mayflower lode. This work will be largely in the nature of diamond drilling. Development work in the St. Louis amygdaloid opened by shaft and drifts, is showing more encouragement with depth and a most excellent showing has obtained for some weeks past. The south drift on the second level is making a particularly good showing at the moment.

Houghton.

The Houghton continues to open copper ground of excellent grade in the so-called No. 2 lode, an extension of the Superior main vein. About 300 feet of commercial copper ground has been opened on the 640-foot level in this vein. The south drift on this level recently came into exceptional richness at a point about 255 feet south of the shaft. The shaft, which has been bottomed at the 640-foot level, will be sunk to about 800 feet for the purpose of exploring this ground at greatest depth. The company recently called an assessment of $1 per share, payable May 17.

New Arcadian.

The New Arcadian has discontinued No. 24 drill hole and removed the drill outfit 1,200 feet north where a second hole will be put through what presumably is the Baltic horizon. The No. 23 hole yielded fair showings of copper at several depths, and similar developments are expected in No. 25 hole. A second drill outfit is engaged in exploratory work in the extreme north end of the property where a promising amygdaloid lode was recently encountered in drill hole No. 22. At this point the second drill hole designated as No. 24, is sinking to prove up the extension of the lode disclosed by No. 22 hole. Developments ere are thus far without importance.

MINING LAND IN MEXICO NOW OPEN

Many Failed to Pay Taxes on Their Mineral Land.

Cananea, Mex., May 11.—Hundreds of mineral denouncements in Sonora have been declared void by the federal government of Mexico, because of the former owners having failed to pay their taxes. Long lists of these lands, with names of former owners, have appeared recently in papers published in Sonora both in the Spanish and English editions.

The denouncements thus thrown open are said to be especially numerous in the Arizpe district, while there are many in the Magdalena district also. Most of the former owners were Americans who, because of the disturbed condition of Mexico did not care to hold land and pay taxes with no assurance of being able to inaugurate work within a reasonable length of time.

Mineral land taxes are supposed to be paid in Mexico thrice each year. Within a few weeks after they fall due the government has the right to pronounce the title void. The Mexican government has been particularly lenient in this regard, however, taxes on some of the properties now being declared open, not having been paid for more than a year.

When the revolutionary disturbances in Sonora are finally brought to an end there will be a rich harvest for the surveyors of the state, when the rush to denounce the vacant land begins. Under Mexican law each denouncement must be surveyed and platted before it is legal while the ground must be monumented as well.

STILL EXPLORING NEW ORE BODIES

Calumet & Arizona Still in Same Ore in Briggs Shaft.

Bisbee, Ariz., May 11.—At the Briggs shaft the Calumet & Arizona is still exploring the ore bodies of which mention was recently made. Exploration work continues satisfactory and is still in the same ore. The Briggs is developing steadily in importance as a valued and valuable holding of this company. Further exploration is being continued at the Mag shaft in the search for a continuation of an ore body which the Copper Queen encountered in its property. From time to time ore strikes are made in these workings, but as yet the ore body that is being sought in these workings has not yet been located.

It was reported last week at the offices of the company that a slight falling off in metal production might be expected to be reported from the Douglas smelter of the company and that a lower grade of ore had been shipped. There was no decrease in quantity of ore last month, however, whatever difference in metal production may appear arising from the difference in quality.

At the Shattuck.

Development work continues at the Shattuck. Last week more was done on the 500 level than on the 400, exploring on the lower depth an ore encounter that was mentioned a week ago. Three shifts, sixty men, continue to be the force employed at this property. Interest still hangs to the announcement of smelter plans by the company, but as yet no statement that a site has been selected has been obtainable.

CLARK CHOOSES SITE FOR MILL

Will Erect Concentrator South of Butte and Probably Smelter.

Butte, Mont., May 11.—The new Clark concentrator, to take the place of the one that was destroyed by fire about six months ago, will be built on the west side of the Timber butte, south of the city.

It is the impression that eventually the concentrator will be added to and that a zinc smelter will form part of the plant.

For the purpose of providing for the concentrator the Timber Butte Milling company, with a capitalization of $100,000 divided into 1,000 shares, has been incorporated in Butte, with W. A. Clark, W. A. Clark, Jr., W. D. Mangam, Alexander J. Johnston and J. K. Heslet as incorporators and directors The Clarks have subscribed $49,900.

The site for the concentrator and smelter is ideal, being similar to that of the Washoe smelter at Anaconda. The plant will be constructed so that the ore and product will all be handled by gravity.

Senator Clark has had the site in mind ever since the destruction of the Butte reduction works, although other sites were also investigated.

The Milwaukee road has surveyed a track from its main line to the proposed concentrator site. The ore from the Clark mines, the Elm Orlu and Poser will be transported over the Butte, Anaconda & Pacific railroad to the Milwaukee and over the latter to the concentrator.

Except for development work that is being done in the Elm Orlu, the mine has been closed ever since the destruction of the old concentrator and about 600 men have been idle on account of it.

It is understood that the work of construction on the concentrator will begin very soon.

Senator Clark has long been urged to build a zinc smelter for the accommodation of the developing zinc mines in Butte, and the general belief is that he will do so. It is stated that water for the plant will be taken from the Big Hole river, probably through the pipe line of the Butte Water company, although there are other sources from which the water can be obtained in sufficient quantities. Senator Clark owns the water rights of Silver Bow creek, but to utilize that a pumping system would have to be installed.

BUTTE & ELY IS TO BE DEVELOPED

Giroux Company Makes Contract With the Nevada Consolidated.

Butte, Mont., May 11. — Through the efforts of John D. Ryan the stockholders of the Butte & Ely company will get what they have long striven for, an opportunity to have the Butte & Ely ground developed. The Butte & Ely ground adjoins that of the Nevada Consolidated and the latter has, through the Liberty pit, worked up to the end lines of the Butte & Ely, the big ore deposit having been demonstrated to extend into the Butte & Ely ground.

The Giroux Consolidated, of which John D. Ryan and Thomas F. Cole are the controlling holders, owns control of the stock of the Butte & Ely and the minority stockholders of the latter in Butte have been complaining about the inactivity of the Giroux company in relation to the Butte & Ely. On his recent visit to Butte Mr. Ryan announced that a contract had been made with the Nevada Consolidated to work the Butte & Ely ground, and the contract only needs the approval of the directors of the two companies, whereupon mining operations will be started.

ORE TRADE IS ACTIVE

Promise of Record-Breaking Shipments From Lake Superior Mines.

Movement for the Month of May May Reach 5,000,000 Tons.

Contrary to the expectations of many men, ore shipments from the Lake Superior iron region have started out with an activity that gives promise of a record-breaking outgo for the season. The prediction is made, in fact, that the movement for the month of May will closely approximate 5,000,000 tons. Ice has given very little trouble, and with much more rain than customary at this time of the year Lake Superior is fast becoming as open to navigation as in mid-summer.

While it is true that some ore producers decline to book orders at the prices established early in the spring, it appears that still others have made larger sales than usual. One big consuming interest, with mines of its own, has, indeed, if current reports are correct, been able to purchase 1,000,000 tons in the open market and will operate its own properties on a scale smaller than heretofore in years of large productivity. Conditions at present and at this time last season present a striking contrast. Ore is moving freely, and this makes for prosperity in all departments of business and industry in the mining country.

The Champion mine having been closed by the United States Steel corporation, its workings are being permitted to fill with water. Notwithstanding that the property is one of the largest on the Marquette range, its suspension at this time is of little moment. It had been operated on a small scale for some years past and had been employing only forty men. No ore was shipped in 1911, and only 30,000 tons the preceding three seasons. The outgo since the opening of the mine more than four decades ago has been 4,400,000 tons. Three million tons or upwards still remain to be taken out. The operations the last few years have been restricted to exploratory and development work. The mine is well opened ahead and whenever called upon it is in condition to make a large annual output. The Champion is one of the properties that the Steel corporation owns outright, and it is for this reason that its ores have been held in reserve and that it has now become inactive entirely.

Negaunee's New Shaft.

The Cleveland Cliffs Iron company is hoisting ore from its big, new shaft at the Negaunee property, Marquette range, after three and one-half years had been spent in rejuvenating and re-equipping the mine at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars. It is believed that no better equipped mine can be found in any iron field on the globe. The Negaunee contains 10,000,000 tons of high grade ore and it has been provided with facilities commensurate with its importance. The shaft, circular in shape and seventeen feetin inside diameter, is walled with eighteen inches of concrete from the collar to the bottom, a distance of 900 feet. It has four compartments and two levels, both of which connect with the old shaft some hundreds of feet to the east. All the machinery is of the latest design and is operated entirely by electricity, the power being supplied by the company's own plant on the Carp river. The shafthouse is of steel, as are the stockpile trestles and the various newly erected mine buildings are of brick and absolutely fireproof. The equipment is, indeed, designed to last as long as there is ore to mine.

Excellent progress is being made with the operation of enlarging the new, or No. 2, shaft of the Jones & Laughlin Steel company's Rolling Mill mine at Negaunee. The work has been completed for one-half of the total depth of 625 feet. The shaft is being enlarged to four compartments. It will become the main producer of the mine, with the work completed, which will be some four months hence. A new equipment of machinery has been ordered and will be installed the present summer. Another fine mine in the Negaunee field will be the Lucky Star, the development of which was recently undertaken. While eventually the property will be true to its name, it has been productive of much discouragement in years past. The tract is south of the big Negaunee mine, yet various interests went practically bankrupt in a vain endeavor to find its ore body and the deposit was not definitely located until a year or two ago. The property contains not less than 4,000,000 tons of ore, and probably considerable more. As the first of 1,100 feet is reached and as at that level will not be opened until a depth of 1,000 feet is reached and as at that point the deposit is some hundreds of feet away, next year will be well advanced before the mine is ready to ship.

Munro Working Again.

The Rogers-Brown Iron company is resuming operations at its Munro mine in the Norway district of the Menominee range. The property is a milling pit, wrought only during the shipping season. The ore is of low grade and the production is small. A force of eighty men will be employed. At Iron Mountain, the Steel corporation is putting the "B" Chapin shaft into condition to resume production at any time deemed advisable. The shaft is being deepened 20 feet and the machinery is being overhauled. "B" Chapin has been idle for a long term of years. There is still much ore in that part of the property, however, and mining may be resumed at an early date. At the Hamilton shaft, the work of erecting a steel shafthouse has been completed and that of concreting the shaft from the surface to the bottom is about to be undertaken. The big Reidler pump in this shaft has gone out of commission and its place in keeping the Chapin property free of water has been taken by the huge Cornish pump at "B" Ludington shaft, the latter having been out of service for some months, pending the completion of extensive repair work.

The Cleveland Cliffs company has practically completed arrangements for the establishment of its proposed school of mining instruction and the institution will be opened at an early date. James W. Swent, M. E., of Oakland, Cal., a graduate of the Michigan College of Mines, has been engaged as director. The school will be open and free to employes of the company. Instructions in the different branches of mining will be given and men with ambition to step up in the company's service will be encouraged in every way possible.

House cleaning and the dress maker, these two are dividing the time of Duluth matrons and maids pretty evenly just now and social activity is at a standstill. Only the most informal little affairs where "just a few of our most intimate friends" are invited are the only break in the social calm. This will not last for long for soon the schools and colleges will be sending home the young people who have been away all year and summer outings, picnics, and bigger social affairs will be planned, and the parties for June brides will soon begin.

Municipal house cleaning, too, is interesting the women. At the meeting of the Woman's Council yesterday morning the members discussed the matter of cleaner streets and sidewalks and the danger of spitting on sidewalks and streets. It was voted after some discussion to instruct Mrs. T. H. Hawkes of the streets and alleys committee to write to the common council asking that the anti-spitting ordinance be enforced and that signs reading: "Do Not Spit on the Sidewalks, Fine $5," be printed in English and Swedish and placed on street corners as this plan had aided materially in cleaning the streets of St. Paul, and other cities.

THIS LOVE SONG BROUGHT $15,000

What appears to be the most peculiar song yet written is a ballad just out called "Mine." It has thirty different harmonies. Here is a simplified extract clipped from a sheet of the music just received:

"Mine"
By Alfred Solman
Mine when the dawn is break - ing,
Mine... in my dreams at night,..
Mine... when the birds are wak - ing,
Mine... when the stars are bright;

For the copyright of this song, Joseph Morris, a Philadelphia man, is said to have paid $15,000. The words are no better than a thousand others, but the music is of a classical order, apparently written to educate the voice. The few copies that reached Duluth yesterday were eagerly seized by the fair sex. The song is out in five different keys.

NORMAL NOTES

The musical feature of the chapel program was furnished by the Senior Glee club, composed of Dorothy Gordon, Helen Hawkes, Bessie Quimby, Claire Schiller, Bess Wagner, Maybelle Whiteside, Anne Elnsweiler, Marion Brown, Mabel Bostod and Lucille Vanderpoel. By special request they sang "Afloat at Dusk" and in response to enthusiastic applause they gave as an encore "Join in Pleasure."

Dr. Salter visited the school on Monday and made the statement that the few cases of scarlet fever in the training department had been contracted outside of school and that none of the other children had any symptoms of the disease. The school has, however, been thoroughly fumigated as a measure of precaution.

Mr. Van Cleef, who is at the head of the geography department, conducted an interesting experiment on Wednesday of this week. A short written examination was given on some of the most important facts of elementary geography for the purpose of ascertaining how generally the rudiments of this subject were known.

Signy and Bergliot Bergford will spend the remainder of the school term at Torrance hall, as their family have left the city.

Lillian Nieminen, who completed the elementary course last June, returned this week for further practice teaching in the primary.

Miss Esther Strand gave a fudge party to some of her friends in her room at Torrance hall. Those present were: Esther Minor, Jessie Stephan, Genevieve Lambert, Mary Minor and Melinda La Valle.

Miss Effie Burch was present at the house meeting at Torrance hall Wednesday night. She talked to the girls about Lucine Finch and read one of her stories, entitled "The Abduction of an Old Woman." Afterwards she taught the girls a folk dance entitled "Laces and Graces."

President E. W. Bohannon is away on a business trip to Hibbing.

Photographs were taken during the week of different rooms in Torrance hall. These pictures are to be reproduced in the June copy of the Bulletin.

The members of the faculty entertained the student body last evening at a delightful party in the kindergarten rooms, which were very attractively decorated with pink rose vines and pink streamers. Each class furnished some "stunt" for the evening's amusement. The programs contained many humorous advertisements, as for example, one as follows:

"The English Department
Offers New Models.
Repairing Neatly Done.
Alterations Made While You Wait.
Special Rates to Seniors.
M. C. Strong.
Both telephones. Open all hours."

The first number on the program was a performance by Mr. Van Cleef's orchestra. This was followed by a topsy turvy song, given by six freshman girls, Olive Scott, Susanna Gude, Esther Anderson, Cecelia Wallin, Charlotte Bardwell, Ellen Sjostrom. "The Sandman," a folk dance and song by Lucine Finch, was given by the sophomore girls, among them being Esther and Gina Finstead, Ida Watson, Lizzie Diers, Matilda MacKinlay, Mamie Watson. The junior girls, Ruth White, Margaret Gude, Helen Ballou, Helen Nelson, Lily Perry, Katherine Pyette, Bertha Hopkins, Mary Myron, Estelle Watts, Bessie Bostod, Mildred Campbell and Bergliot Bergford, presented "Dutch Kiddies," a charming folk dance, in costume. Following this a difficult guessing contest was held. Two screens with cats painted upon them had had holes cut in place of eyes. The members of the faculty, in turn, looked through the holes and the students guessed to whom each pair of eyes belonged. The second part of the program opened with another selection by the orchestra, after which a short comedy sketch entitled "School Days" was presented by the following cast:

Teacher ..... Janet Haley
Winnie Wurst, the Dutch girl.....
..... May Ferguson
Eva Gonorowsky, a little Russian Jew .....Anna McDougall
Sarah Pinchback .....Mary Minor
Patricia Magee, from Ireland .....
..... Louise Coe

The kindergarten girls then gave a short exhibition of folk dancing and the students of the special domestic science class presented a charming pantomime, "The Bachelor's Dream." This part of the program was closed by "The Faculty on Parade," a mock chapel service by the following senior girls: Mabel Bostad, Genevieve Lambert, Inez Holm, Anne Risatti, Anna McDougall, Ruth Erickson, Petronella Stenberg, Maude Williams, Ethel Denton, Lida Peterson, Sally Opel, Janet Haley, Anne Elnsweiler, Nettie Rock, Effie Lindahl, Gudrun Hankins, Georgia Lovald, Edna Savage, Ruth Young and Dorothy Bateman. The remainder of the evening was spent in informal dancing.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

WHAT TRAVELERS' AID SECRETARIES ARE DOING FOR THE FRIENDLESS YOUNG WOMEN ARRIVALS IN CITY

MISS NETALEE WALDECK.

MISS AGNES MARTIN.

PROBABLY one of the most important lines of work of the Young Women's Christian association is the 'Travelers' Aid work which is ably taken care of by Miss Netalee Waldeck and Miss Agnes Martin the Travelers' Aid secretaries who meet every train and give kindly and efficient council and advice to all who need it.

When one reads in the little circular reports that the Travelers' Aid secretaries of the Young Women's Christian association meet 700 trains each month and aid over 500 persons it means a lot of work well done, but one has very little idea of the real pathos and tragedy in many of these cases. In telling of their work these secretaries tell of cases of human interest of which others are hardly aware.

Often there is need to help the immigrant men to change railroad stations, to find interpreters, or to be shown where to go to find a settlement of their own countrymen and again a number of immigrant families will come in on the same train, helpless in the matter of making their wants or destination known.

"The great need, however," they say, is for guidance to the young girl traveling alone, whether she be American or immigrant. We are accustomed to think of the great dangers to the strange girl in such cities as New York and Chicago, but very few realize that there are grave dangers in Duluth for the unsophisticated girl, that there are those who are watching as a cat for a mouse to find an opportunity to waylay the unsuspecting girl.

"Only a few days ago a young Austrian girl waiting in the station for her train was beguiled to go out on the street with a strange young man. Her absence was discovered and we were just in time to rescue her and put her on her train.

Many Miss Trains.

"During the winter time when trains are late there is not a day but that from one to three girls miss the train which would take them on to their destination, and they are compelled to remain in this city till the next day. We take these girls to the Young Women's Christian association where they are furnished lodging and meals free of charge, for usually they have only enough money to get them through without this unexpected emergency. In this way hundreds receive the protection of this association in our city.

"Many of the situations have a mixture of amusement and seeming tragedy at the time.

"One evening early this spring the 5:45 Duluth South Shore & Atlantic train brought a Finnish girl to Duluth. The roar of the streets and the bright lights so dazzled and confused her that it was impossible to gather any information as to where she was going. With the hope that some one could later be found to interpret for her she was taken to the Y. W. C. A. for supper, but no one was in the buildings who could speak Finnish. After several hours effort to learn something about her she produced a key, opened her suitcase, emptied it and at last found a Duluth address. It was six blocks from the car line, so we took her out to the house and found a waiting wedding. The bridegroom had missed her at the station.

Help from Railroads.

"The railroad men are very helpful in ...eir co-operation with us and often take much trouble to deliver young girls and little children directly into our hands. Little Tyma Lappalla, traveling alone without funds or baggage, was brought to us to be taken care of till her train should leave the next day. She was taken to the Y. W. C. A., supplied with proper equipment and sufficient food to keep her until she met her new mother far out in the West.

"The problem of properly caring for the immigrant who wishes to come out to the middle of this great continent is now occupying the attention of our Federal government. In one year alone, 1910, over 1,800 immigrant girls were entirely lost between New York and Chicago. This was such an appalling fact, vouched for by the Immigrants' Protective league, that it attracted the attention of the Federal authorities. Last year inspectors were seen with groups of girls traveling between these two cities, enabling them to reach their friends in safety."

No estimate can be made of the number of young women who are safe guarded from the clutches of evil men by the two young deaconesses who meet the trains daily coming into the city of Duluth. The people of Duluth, however, appreciate this as one of the greatest philanthropies of the city and their support is ever ready when needed to carry on the work of the association.

The plans for the eight-day campaign to be commenced next Thursday, in which 100 women divided into ten teams will try to raise $8,000, for the running of the association next year, are about completed. The captains of the ten teams and many other women have been invited to a luncheon at the Y. W. C. A. building on Tuesday, when the final plans will be discussed and outlined and the teams formed for the campaign. On Wednesday evening a banquet will be served there for the young business women who will work among the business girls and women of the city for donations and memberships and Thursday the campaign itself will be started.

DARKEY STORIES.

Miss Lucine Finch Will Give Program for Collegiate Alumnae.

THE coming of Miss Lucine Finch to Duluth to give an evening's entertainment next Wednesday evening, May 15, at the Endion M. E. church under the auspices of the Collegiate Alumnae association of this city promises to be one of the treats of the year. Miss Finch is a well known reader of wonderful personality and her recital of unpublished negro stories and religious songs of the old South as they were sung and told to her by her old negro mammy, forms an evening's unique entertainment.

The members of the collegiate alumnae have in view the establishment of a scholarship which they intend to use in sending some local girl away to college as soon as a large enough fund is raised and this entertainment is to raise the first money towards this fund.

Miss Finch reads in costume and by candle light which gives a picturesque setting to her picturesque tales and of her the following clipping from the Chicago Record Herald gives an interesting account:

"Miss Lucine Finch's negro mammy died in New Orleans a few years ago at the age of 90, having given loyal service to three generations of the Finch family. She had been sold into bondage from Africa, and she used to tell the children whose nurse she was that her father was an African king and she 'an alabaster princess.'

"This woman had a marvelous gift for narration, a rich, though perhaps nearly unconscious—and certainly an unstudied—sense of humor, and a poetic instinct in which the grotesque, the weird, the horrible and the com-

INTERESTING EXPERIMENT IN SOCIAL CENTER WORK IS NOW BEING TRIED AT THE C. C. SALTER SCHOOL

ABE MILLER,
President.

BEN WOOD,
Vice President.

MISS SUSAN HOUSE,
Director.

SENIA SEPOLA,
Secretary.

MARK TROYER,
Treasurer.

THE development of a social center at the C. C. Salter school building at Sixteenth avenue east and London road is rapidly taking place. Meetings of various kinds for various purposes and by people of various ages and interests are held there weekly, and with a little trial to see just what the people of the community will be interested in and what can be worked up, the center should be broad and far-reaching.

Graduates of the school have formed an alumni association under the direction of Miss Susan House, the eighth grade teacher of that school, electing officers and making plans for the work. A banquet to be given at the school on June 7 in honor of the eighth grade graduating class will be the first social function of this organization, and the members expect to make it an annual affair. The officers chosen for the first year are: President, Abe Miller; vice president, Benjamin Wood; secretary, Senia Sepola; treasurer, Mark Troyer, and club adviser, Miss House.

The first meeting at which the organization was formed was held Tuesday evening, social center evening at the school. The school board has permitted the use of the building on that evening, and this week over 125 people met there for different classes or clubs.

The school was opened as a social center by the Women's council, and a folk dancing class was established for the young women of the neighborhood, with Mrs. Helen Shores Savage as instructor. The class has grown from a membership of twenty to sixty, and besides the regular class work the young women are preparing for a little play to be put on under the direction of Mrs. George W. Morgan, into which several pretty national dances will be worked.

From this class grew a boys' athletic class, formed from the boys who usually went to the school to watch the dancing, and apparatus for basket ball was furnished by the Women's council. The school board had it installed in the assembly hall, and the boys of the school are enjoying its use.

Still another organization is being formed there by the young men of different ages and interests of the community, which will probably be known as the Salter Athletic association. Other little branch clubs are being planned by the members. The athletic organization will be perfected at a second evening next Tuesday evening with about fifty members.

The social center work here is proceeding along experimental lines, but bids fair to be most successful.

CUP IS WON BY CENTRAL

Duluth Students Capture Wallace Trophy for Oratory and Declamation.

Other News of the Week at the Central Institution.

The Wallace cup contest which was held in the Superior high school last evening, was won by Duluth Central.

Central's representatives, Andrew Johnson in oratory, and Miss Dorothy Patton in declamation carried off first honors in their respective divisions.

"Gettysburg" was the subject of Mr. Johnson's oration and Miss Patton's selection was "The Lost Word."

This was the third of the annual dual meets, Central winning twice and losing last year on a technicality.

The school having the greatest number of victories during ten years will retain permanent possession of the handsome trophy.

The freshman class will hold its first class party this evening at the school. No effort has been spared by the committee in charge to make this one of the most brilliant social events of the school season with the result that several novel effects in decorating will be introduced.

If the enthusiasm evinced by the first year students may be taken as a criterion, their initial function will be an unqualified success and will establish the class of 1915 in the social life of the school.

* * *

Miss Lucille Finch will read before the students during the chapel period Wednesday morning. Principal Young made an announcement to that effect yesterday and stated that Miss Finch would also give a reading Wednesday evening, the proceeds of which will be given toward a girls' scholarship fund.

* * *

The unusually large squad of aspirants for honors on the Central nine have been practicing daily under the directions of Coach C. B. Avery, assisted by Capt. Ward Brown. No regular routine has been adopted, Coach Avery just trying out the men in line for the various positions in a few general work-outs. The first game of the season will be played next Wednesday afternoon, when Central will meet the Cathedral high school in a practice game. Capt. Brown and Manager J. Whitney Wall are arranging games for the team and announce that prospects are excellent for a fast schedule.

The date for the make-up examinations in spelling has been officially announced as May 14. Spelling is not a regular accredited subject but the four years' work in this branch are rquired in order to secure full credit for graduation.

The monthly report cards were given to the students at the close of school Monday afternoon. There were the last of the monthly marks before the final reports are distributed at the completion of the school term in five weeks.

At the regular meeting of the senior class in the assembly hall Wednesday afternoon, Principal Leonard Young announced the required standings for entrance to the various colleges and universities, and clearly explained the rule regarding the recommendation of students to the state university. Mr. Young stated that the high standing required for admittance would be sarefully observed and that no graduate would be recommended to the "U" without the necessary grades.

The members of the class voted on the commencement invitations and chose the old English style with a reproduction of the 1812 embossed in the center.

May 24 was selected as the date for the annual senior farewell party and the members decided to hold in connection with the dance, a banquet for the fourth year students.

Adelaide Miller and George Stillman were elected to head the several committees which will arrange for the function.

Supt. Robert E. Denfeld delivered a stirring address to the students assembled in chapel Monday morning.

Mr. Denfeld declared that without donbt the crying need of this country today is honesty, and stated that "honesty in thought, honesty in action, and honesty in purpose" should be the motto of every high school student. The speaker urged honesty in trivial things as well as where important matters are concerned, and remarked that character is an impossibility when honesty is lacking.

During the chapel period Wednesday morning President William Craig of the sophomore class, in a few well-chosen phrases, challenged the freshmen to a baseball game. In his acceptance, President Floyd Lamson, on behalf of the freshmen, stated that his cohorts were ready to support his acknowledgment of the challenge, and suggested that the sophs may regret having so unthoughtfully tossed their hat into the ring. Intense rivalry is prevalent between the two classes, owing to the canceling of the annual football game, and as both have an abundance of promising material from which to select their respective teams, a fast, hard-fought game is anticipated. The date for the battle has not been definitely decided upon as yet, but will probably be announced next week.

The boys of the chemistry classes were afforded a treat when they listened to a talk delivered by C. A. Graves of the Duluth Testing Laboratory, immediately following the close of school Thursday afternoon. "The Manufacture of Cement" was the subject of Mr. Graves' lecture, which was both instructive and interesting, and the speaker offered some amazing illustrations and statistics. The lecture was one of a series of talks on practical chemistry which Prof. W. H. Benson has secured for the classes, and the interest manifested by the students attest to the popularity of the talks. Instructor Benson announced that Mr. Graves would give another lecture in the near future upon "Industrial Chemistry."

Miss Florence Gaumnitz, head of the domestic science department, delivered an interesting and educational lecture to the students of this branch Thursday morning. "Edible Fats and Oils" was the topic discussed by Miss Gaumnitz, and several interesting experiments explaining the ingredients used in oleomargarine and showing the preparation of the compound were performed during the conduct of the lecture.

Miss Gaumnitz declared that oleo is a product made up of pure butter and hog fat mixed with tallow that has been cleaned and refined by scientific processes, and stated that for cooking, oleo is more satisfactory than butter, in that heat does not affect it so readily, thereby rendering it less liable to burn.

Miss Gaumnitz is planning to give a few more similar lectures to the students before the close of the school term.

BENEFIT FOR ORPHANAGE.

New Symphony Orchestra Will Be Heard Next Tuesday Evening.

A CONCERT having a double claim upon the interest of Duluthians will be given next Tuesday evening at the Lyceum theater by the Duluth Symphony orchestra, conducted by Gustav Flaaten, for the benefit of the St. James' orphanage. Both the orchestra and the orphanage are pet institutions in this city and the attendance should be unusually large.

The orchestra under the leadership of Gustav Flaaten has gained a degree of efficiency in one year's work which reflects credit on the conductor and individual members and the series of concerts given during the winter proved very much of an artistic success. The future of the orchestra depends largely upon the encouragement which it receives now and the support of its efforts. Trips to range towns and to Superior and Two Harbors are planned for this summer as a broadening of the work and under the leadership of Mr. Flaaten the organization should grow into an orchestra of which Duluth will have cause for pride.

The St. James' orphanage is also a worthy institution and is generously supported by the citizens of Duluth also with pride.

The tickets for this concert may be exchanged Monday for reserved seats at the Lyceum theater without extra charge, the seats being the same price all over the house.

Theosophical Lecture.

THE public lectures on Theosophy under the auspices of the Karma and Recarnation league, were resumed Friday evening at the lodge room, No. 28 Winthrop block. The subject for last night's talk was "Memory of Past Lives."

The speaker said in part:

"The question which is so often asked, and most naturally so: 'Why do I not remember my past lives?' is really based on a misconception of the theory of reincarnation. The 'I,' the true self, does remember but the personality in which the I-consciousness is centered during earth life, cannot remember a past in which it personally did not share. Brain memory can only contain a record of the events in which the brain has been concerned and each physical body is entirely new for each life. That which reincarnates is not the body but the eternal self living in, and retaining throughout the human evolution, the casual body. The real self, the 'I Am,' functioning in the casual body between earth lives, does remember past lives and all experience through which he has passed since entering the human kingdom; but when that consciousness is limited and veiled in a physical body, the brain consciousness in the body can only remember the experiences through which that body itself has passed. By right living and right practice the brain can be trained to vibrate in answer to the subtle and delicate vibrations of the causal body and the memory of all past lives can then be brought down to the physical brain consciousness. Those people now living who remember their past lives do so because they have trained their brains and bodies for this purpose."

The speaker then went on to state in a general way how this development might be accomplished; under what conditions it was desirable to attempt it and when it should not be attempted; and the dangers and ill effects resulting from it when unprotected except under a competent teacher. These lectures will be continued every Friday night until further notice and all interested are invited to attend.

WILEY GIVES NO CREDIT TO TEDDY

Denies Ex-President Gave Much Help in Pure Food Fight

San Francisco, May 11.—La Follette headquarters in this city has made public a letter received by Mrs. L. C. Daniels Thompson of New York, who is in this state in the interests of La Follette's campaign, from Dr. H. W. Wiley, formerly of the pure food board. The letter was written May 2 in reply to a specific request for information as to Col. Roosevelt's connection with the pure food movement, and in part, says:

"Mr. Roosevelt may have given assistance in the passage of the pure food bill, but not to my knowledge. He never consulted me as far as I know; never mentioned it but once in a message, and then only in a perfunctory way. I am certain he had nothing to do with its preparation.

"I do not know the inside history of the appointment of the Remsen referees. I have been told that it was begun by direction of President Roosevelt. The appointment of this board came near paralyzing the whole law and knocked a hole in it so big that it has never been stopped up and never will be as long as the board exists.

"The appointment of the Remsen board was solely in the interest of the worst kind of manufactures.

BIG INCREASE IN SOCIALISTS

Party Has Grown More Than 300 Per Cent in Last Four Years.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 11.—After arranging details for the national Socialist convention which begins here Sunday morning, the national executive committee went on record as demanding free speech, but condemning "free speech fights," and methods by which free speech is being sought by the Industrial Workers of the World.

A greater part of the afternoon session was taken up with the Industrial Workers of the World case, and Congressman Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee, chairman of the committee, said the matter would be continued. The action of the authorities in San Diego in their attempts to stop free speech, was condemned by the committee. It was also decided to assist the citizens of San Diego in their efforts to obtain free speech.

John M. Works of Chicago, national secretary of the party, reported that a gain of more than 300 per cent had been made in membership in the last four years. He reported that in 1908 the total membership was a little more than 41,000 and that now it is more than 142,000.

Work Among Women.

The woman's national committee of the Socialist party at its session voted down a proposition to try to nominate a woman for the office of vice president of the United States. Plans for spreading the doctrine of Socialism among the women of the country, especially in those states where they have been given the right to vote, were discussed and committees appointed at the afternoon meeting.

The executive committee decided that the national convention should continue only one week and should conclude its work by May 18.

Sunday Services in Duluth Churches

MOTHERS' DAY will be celebrated in many of the churches of Duluth tomorrow with appropriate sermons and other exercises. This day, the second Sunday in May, was set aside by the state legislature three years ago as a day in honor of motherhood. The custom of thus observing the day has become very popular during the last few years, not only in Minnesota, but in many other states, the day being celebrated to a greater or less extent in churches, Sunday schools, schools, colleges and other public and semi-public institutions with addresses and exercises appropriate to the occasion.

It has been the custom to celebrate Mothers' day in England for the last seventy years. There it is the third Sunday in Lent. All girls and boys who are away from home working are supposed, in accordance with this custom, to come home to see their mothers on that day, and a repast of roast veal and custard is served. English people living in the United States have been known to celebrate the day many years before it became an American custom. As far back as 1850, it is remembered that English residents of California have celebrated Mothers' day.

The custom of setting aside a Mothers' day in America as an American holiday was instituted at the instance of Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia in 1905. She selected the second Sunday in May and chose the white carnation as the symbol of the holiday. The idea was promptly taken up by the Modern Woodmen of America. It proved to strike the popular fancy, and now there is scarcely a city, village or town in the land, from coast to coast, whose churches and Sunday schools do not celebrate Mothers' day.

liam Waldorf Astor, which are larger and even more shrewdly selected than those of the late John Jacob Astor.

Now it is a matter of record and of general public knowledge that the Aster millions have never been used to advance any public interests in New York or elsewhere. Two generations of Astors have now passed away without adding to the endowment of the Astor library, and it is to be noted that John Jacob Astor left nothing to that monument to his grandfather. But aside from public bequests, of which he left practically none, the matter of the foundation and development of the Astor fortune is worth consideration.

No great public enterprise has been financed by Astor funds. Men like James J. Hill, the Vanderbilts, the late E. H. Harriman, Pierpont Morgan, Andrew Carnegie and the rest of those bitterly denounced "captains of industry," have done much to develop certain branches of the nation's industrial life. Of course they have taken their profit—their pound of flesh if you will.

Nothing to Develop Industry.

But there is nothing in the Astor record to show anything done to develop one American industry. Shrewdly buying New York real estate, holding it for the inevitable increase in value, clinging to it for the rentals that year by year became higher and higher, is the Astor policy. It has been profitable to the Astors, but profitless to the people.

The New York reports are that the inheritance tax on John Jacob Astor's estate will amount to nearly $3,000,000. That is a moderate share of the increased value, the "unearned increment," as Henry George used to express it, which the growth of New York city added to his wealth. He himself was a creditable member of his class. His equipment of the Astor battery in the Spanish war was a fine work of patriotism and his demeanor on the Titanic showed personal courage. Yet his family system, as shown by his own will, is absolutely at variance with all American principles. Even before the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson put into the Virginia bill of rights the prohibition of the law of entail or of primogeniture. The Astor family has evaded this principle systematically. The estate is always left to the eldest son of the eldest son, and as fast as title passes, the beneficiary makes his will in accordance with family tradition. Betwixt the "unearned increment" and the practical establishment of entail and primogeniture, the Astor family is about as un-American as the newest of the Slavonians or Czecks imported to work in our mines.

The Pennsylvania Boss.

The complete route of the "Old Guard" forces of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania, the overthrow of Guffey and installation of a new organization—which is to say a new "machine" under control of Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer—is a matter of more importance to the local politicians of the Keystone state than to the nation. Mr. Bryan has been fighting Guffey for twelve years, and now finally his influence has ousted the Democratic boss from power. But no sane observer of politics believes for a moment that this achievement will change the political attitude of Pennsylvania in the pending presidential election. If Guffey has been dethroned by the Progressive Democrats, Penrose, on the other hand, has been routed by the Republican forces. The old bosses are out—the new bosses are in, and the result is scarcely likely to change the political complexion of the state. President Taft never said a wiser thing than his declaration at Baltimore that presidents did not make "bosses," but that trey were created by local conditions only. "Bill" Flynn, who succeeds Penrose as the dominant force in the Pennsylvania Republican party, differs only from the man he over threw in lack of experience and of wealth. A few years of power will make up for both these deficiencies. On the Democratic side the outlook is a little better. Congressman Palder is at least a man holding an elective office—something which Col. Guffey never dared aspire to. He cannot be said to be riotously popular in the house of representatives, and the only measures with which his name has been associated are not those which will appeal for assistance to the Democratic party in the pending campaign.

However, Pennsylvania is rid of her bosses. Newspaper writing is ephemeral at the best, but I wonder whether a year from now the enthusiasts of the Keystone state will reiterate that assertion.

POLITICAL POWER OF BREWERIES MUST END, ASSERTS SAM GORDON

not more than three-fourths filled with listeners, but the 600 there plainly indicated they were Gordon men.

Asks Gubernatorial Preference.

The lieutenant governor deviated from his set speech long enough to urge the voters of Kandiyohi county to include in their votes for presidential preference tonight, a vote for gubernatorial preference too. This brought forth a round of applause that lasted longer than any during the meeting, and apparently Kandiyohi county voters are anxious for a chance to express gubernatorial preference and they probably will get it at the caucuses.

Mr. Gordon said, in part:

"I come before you tonight as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the office of governor of this state, asking your support not because it is important that I serve you in that capacity—not insisting that you lend assistance to a furtherance of any political ambitions I may have. That is not of importance. As a matter of fact, it matters not whether the next governor of this state bears the name of Gordon, Lee, Spooner or Eberhart. But it does matter, and is of importance that the man selected be such a one as you may safely depend upon to carry out those ideas of popular government now being advocated by the progressive men within our great party, and in this connection the promises of the candidates who come before you mean much—but performance is what you are after.

His Record as Lieutenant-Governor.

"A few words at this time regarding the organization of the senate by me may be appropriate. I believed that not only questions pertaining to the legislature, but that all other proposed legislation on well defined issues should be brought to a vote on the floor and given a fair hearing. With this object in view I made up the committees and took the further precaution to personally urge the adoption by my committee on rules of a new rule providing that any bill could be brought from a committee by a majority vote of the senate, instead of a two-thirds vote as previously required. I personally presented and was successful in securing the adoption of joint rule No. 15, which rule was made for the express purpose of preventing 'log rolling' in the matter of appropriations, as under this rule every bill for an appropriation was required to stand on its own merits and could not be taken on as a 'rider' to the general appropriation bills.

"My temperance committee, with Senator Johnson of Chisago county as chairman, by a vote of 7 to 2, recommended the passage of a county option bill. The temperance committee appointed by Governor Eberhart in the previous session reported against the measure by a vote of 8 to 1. And so in the make-up of other important committees, such as railroads, reapportionment, education, corporations, general legislation, labor and the like, the idea of open consideration of all important matters was uppermost in my mind. I did my best to carry out my promises and your orders as lieutenant governor. There is little to be done in that office at the next session except to preside, as my committee appointments will without doubt hold over. The empty honor does not appeal to me, and rather than fawn at the feet of the present administration for a return to an office that now means so little to me, I will go back to Browns Valley and resume my place in the ranks, and from there register my protest against existing conditions in the state. If I am to be successful in my candidacy at this time I need your assistance.

Brewery Dominance.

"The real issue that presents itself in this campaign is whether or not the people of this state shall secure such advanced and progressive legislation as shall permit them to properly reflect their desires. The issue in this state is whether or not popular legislation shall longer be smothered by improper influences, the greatest of which being brewery dominance.

"It is my firm conviction and belief that the only way that the electorate of this state can ever obtain for themselves needed and proper legislation will be first to remove from power the interests that have heretofore been the dominating influence. In my platform I say that I am in favor of the absolute prohibition of brewery ownership of saloons, the chief cause of the grossest evils of the liquor traffic and the chief source of the brewery domination in politics and public affairs, which is at once the most subtle, the most crude, the most sinister and the most mischievous force in the public life of this commonwealth.

"It was during the last session while watching the machinations of the liquor interests which showed their hands effectively on all important matters, that I became fully aware of their tremendous power for or against proposed legislation, and I became convinced that some other method of breaking their power must be invoked than that which had been tried. It required but little study and research to find that the secret of their tremendous power and influence in legislative halls and in elections, lies somewhat in the brewery-owned saloons, and if anybody should tell you that the issue of brewery-owned saloons which has been raised in this campaign is a mere suberfuge and a backward step, you may tell them for me that they are either misrepresenting matters willfully or do not know whereof they speak.

Michigan and Ohio Act.

"The people of Michigan recognized the importance of the issue and in a special session of the legislature recently called by Governor Osborn, an anti-brewery-owned saloon law was passed. The Ohio state constitutional convention has incorporated into the proposed state constitution a section prohibiting the operation of brewery-owned saloons. As a political issue it is more important at the present time to those who favor county option or any other laws for the control of the liquor traffic than county option or other proposed liquor legislation, for the reason that the brewery-owned saloon is the real bulwark and barrier that stands in the way of such legislation. You must first remove the debris before you can excavate and erect the solid foundation. You must remove the shell before you can get the meat of the cocoanut. County option cannot pass with the personnel of the present senate, but an anti-brewery-owned saloon law can be enacted if properly pushed, because some good men, who, through honest convictions, are opposed to county option, will vote for a law to put out of business the brewery-owned saloon. The question has been asked: Why is the brewery-owned saloon worse than other saloons? Let me tell you something. The man who operates the brewery-owned saloon is an irresponsible person, both morally and financially. He is picked up and placed behind the bar by his master, and being bound by an iron clad agreement to pay more for his beer than his independent competitor, high rental for his ramshackle building and fixtures, and a high rate of interest on the license fee paid in by the brewery, he at once beings a life and death struggle for a livelihood for himself and those dependent on him, and he at once resorts to all sorts of despicable acts to obtain the dollar. He harbors gambling and vice in all forms, sells to minors and inebriates without restrictions, for he is obliged to hustle and debase and debauch in his efforts to get the lucre to pay his demanding, domineering master, and being without responsibility in a financial way he invariably takes the long chance.

Its Political Power.

"But this condition is not the only reason why the brewery-owned saloon is worse than the other kind. It is quite common knowledge that the political organization within the brewery association estimates that each saloon is good for at least ten votes that can be delivered on any question at the dictation of the saloonkeeper, and the more saloons in the town the more votes controlled by the liquor interests. The independent saloonkeeper who owns his place of business, pays his own license and is at liberty to buy his wares from any brewery he sees fit, is not so easily domineered and dictated to by the brewery association, and he is more likely to vote his convictions when men are up for office and measures are up for consideration. On the other hand, the man who operates the brewery owned saloon is under the absolute dictation of the brewery that has established him in business, and his vote and inuence in election is used with all other questions secondary to the interests of the breweries.

"Break the back of the brewery-owned saloon and you will have taken a long stride in breaking the political power of the brewery combine. This is the paramount issue in this state today, for it is vastly more important and far-reaching than any other, and I hope that all true friends of good clean government will join in an effort to make a winning fight, for mark me, that until the people rise in their might as one, this monster to be boss-ridden by Ed Smith and brewery-ruled by the Billy Hamms. I have no desire to invade the question of county option as some would seem to intimate. On the contrary, I can assure you that should the improbable happen and a county option bill pass at the next session, and I have the official authority, the measure would have my signature without hesitancy, but I wish to further assure you that if I am elected governor my strongest efforts will be centered on the enactment of a law to rid this state of the brewery-owned saloon, and will not bow to dominance in official circles and state politics in general, feeling that if that could be accomplished it would prove the greatest achievement in the interests of reform that could possibly be enacted in Minnesota at the present time.

For State-Wide Primary.

"I am in favor of a state-wide primary in order that the people of this state may directly select the candidates for their respective parties The fact that direct primaries are opposed by the brewery influences of this state and by political bosses, is sufficient reason to convince the people that it is a measure in their favor and one which places a weapon in their hands with which they may take away from the so-called bosses the power to select candidates. I am in favor of a presidential primary for the same reason that I favor a state-wide primary. I see no reason why the people of this or any state should not have the power to directly select the candidates for the presidency. No logical reason can be advanced against a presidential primary. These measures should naturally be guarded by a corrupt practices act in order that they may give the practical results desired, and in order that they may properly reflect the will of the people.

"I favor the adoption of the initiative, referendum and recall. The necessity for such progressive legislation lies in the fact that the improper influences exerted by bosses and brewery interests in this and other states, extend not only to the selection of candidates and men to public offices, but likewise extend into legislative halls and dominate in many cases the legislation desired by the people.

"I am in favor of the recall and of having it apply to all elective offices with the exception of the judiciary. I do not believe that so far as the judiciary is concerned conditions are such as to warrant or demand the recall of judges in Minnesota, and as there is no wide difference of opinion on this question among progressives, and as there are no pressing demands in this state at this time, we should not be hasty in adopting it. But when a man is elected to an office whether under the promise or not, to do certain things, and fails to fulfill the promise, or the things expected of him, I believe that the people should have the power under proper proceedings to remove him from office and select another in his stead.

Favors Honest Reapportionment.

"I am in favor of a fair, honest, legislative reapportionment. I am one of those who believe that one of the fundamental principles of a representative government is that all men be equally represented. I believe the average citizen believes in the fundamental theory of representative government and that actuated by that fairness he is willing to concede to every other man equal representation. The passage of a fair reapportionment bill will have a strong tendency to eliminate whatever slight sectional feeling may now exist in this state.

"I favor a reorganization of various state departments in order to work out a more efficient and economical administration of public affairs. Under the present and existing arrangements, there is a lack of co-operation which results in the failure to obtain the practical results that might otherwise obtain were various departments co-operating along some simple scheme of thought and organization.

"I am heartily in favor of the passage of the workmen's compensation and employer's liability act. Minnesota is a pioneer state in the matter of investigating this important subject, and gathering valuable data and information relative thereto. This legislation if secured by the passage of a fair and equitable act will result to a great extent in the elimination of long and bitterly contested lawsuits and be of everlasting benefit to the workman.

"I am in favor of the passage of such laws as will result in an equalization of railroad rates in order that all communities may be placed upon an equal basis. A railroad should not extend favors to any community over another, any more than a railroad should favor one shipper over another, all conditions being the same.

As to Railroad Taxes.

"I am in favor of a readjustment of railroad and other taxes, to the end that each individual and each industry shall pay its proportionate share of governmental expense. And while on the question of railroads, I wish to say that a great injustice was done the people of this state when the railroads broke faith with them and took steps to increase passenger and freight rates fully one-third. It is a mistake to charge that the people are unreasonable and unfair in these matters. The people desire that railroads and other public service corporations make a reasonable profit on their investments, but they do object, and rightfully so, to paying big profits on fictitious values and watered stock.

"In conclusion, I want to say to you, voters of Kandiyohi county, that this fight is yours, not mine. It is of little question or moment as to whether the name of the next governor is Gordon or some other man, but it is a question of importance to every loyal and responsive citizen of your county and of this state, that you unite your efforts for the purpose of for once and all eliminating from the politics of this state the improper influences of such men as Ed Smith, Fred Zollman and Dar Reese. These men are nothing more than parasites who serve their brewery masters and answer their every call. I have without fear or favor entered into this contest with all the frankness and candor I have in my power, and I am not expecting any support from any of the corporations or other large interests of this state. I am opposed by them in this contest as I was in the contest of two years ago. I have no political bosses, no party leaders, and but little money. I feel, however, that I have the friendship and the loyalty of the people in general. I am one of those who believe in a contest of this character, where a principle is involved, that the people in this hour are willing to align themselves on the right side."

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Some Promises Made by the Press Agents for Coming Attractions

AT THE LYCEUM

The Monte Carlo Girls company, headed by Welsh & Fields and Arthur Laning and Hopper & Reveni, are billed to appear at the Lyceum tomorrow, matinee and night. The show is entirely new this season and a novel opening has been cleverly arranged to introduce the now famous beauty chorus and coterie of singers and dancers that make things lively throughout the performance. Quick action is the rule from the rise of the first curtain till the last, and there is something doing every minute, it is claimed.

It is a burlesque show.

"Miss Nobody From Starland" is announced for a return engagement at the Lyceum Monday night, May 13th, presented by the same identical cast that was seen in this big musical revue the early part of this season. The playgoers who have not seen this fascinating Hough, Adams & Howard success are eagerly awaiting an opportunity of seeing it. Olive Vail, well known for her success in this, as well as other Singer productions, will again head the clever company of principals, among whom are Bertee Beaumont, Joseph H. Neimeyer, Lawrence Comar, Otto Koerner, Maude Emery, and there will be that same lively chorus of pretty girls who can really sing and dance. Aside from the many whistly numbers provided by Joseph E. Howard and the spectacular production which dazzles in its scenic and costume display, a phenomenal hold that "Miss Nobody From Starland" possesses upon the public favor is largely due to its novelties. The opening act is on the deck of the great ocean liner, "Lusitania," here the delightful plot, with no end of surprises, is developed amidst a moving sea, and imposing array of pretty singing and dancing girls and clever principals galore. "All Ashore" is the cry. The gang plank is lowered into the center aisle and down into the audience rushes the entire cast. Then there is the big drose rehearsal scene, a laughter-inspiring medium whereby the auditor is permitted to gaze behind the scenes and watch the frantic stage manager and his trembling (?) subjects, the players, give the final rehearsal of a new musical comedy. This scene is universally voted the superlative in stage novelty.

At the Lyceum theater next week, Albini, in his wonderful illusions, will be seen for five days, commencing Wednesday, May 15, with matinee daily.

The following is an extract from the Butte paper:

"Albini makes good the claim that he is the greatest illusionist and magician before the American public today. His marvelous work must be seen before you can understand. It would require columns of this paper to describe them. In addition to his wonderful illusians previously seen here, he brings with him nine new ones. Over $50,000 has been expended on his act alone. Albini does not carry the ordinary magical act as heretofore, but a large and costly production that Herman or Kellar in their palmy days never dreamt of. Although popular prices will be charged on this visit, it will not be so for the following season for the fact that high prices will prevail for this wonderful performance. For two hours and a half without a wait this performance will continue.

One of the most beautiful bookplates ever owned by any lover of fine books is the property of Miss Lulu Glaser, the charming star of the new Viennese opera, "Miss Dudelsack." It was designed by Sydney Smith, the well known artistic designer of steel engravings, who regards it as his chef d'oeuvre.

It is an allegorical picture which represents Miss Glasser's love for the various arts. In the center a small child (representing love of children) grasps two masks; one, the mask of tragedy, she holds with her finger through the eye, while the other, the mask of comedy, she looks upon with love and admiration. Her books and flowers have been put aside for the moment while she centers her interest on the art of Thespis. Behind her are rising steps leading upward to music and song, her highest ambitions and best loves.

Miss Glaser's book-plates has attracted so much interest among collectors that she continually is receiving letters from all over the world, many of them from titled foreigners, for an exchange.

Miss Glaser will appear at the Lyceum May 20.

AT THE ORPHEUM

Since the advent of the Irish players and Lady Gregory there has been awakened much interest in the one-act play and it is receiving attention because of its artistic possibilities. The vaudeville audiences have been enjoying one-act plays for many seasons and are continuing to receive this pleasure. One of the most delightful little plays seen in Duluth in many seasons was presented at the Orpheum this week and the play feature for the new bill beginning tomorrow will be a one-act musical comedy which carries all the necessary features of musical comedy, a pretty and clever girl, a good looking man, a comedian and other pretty girls who sing and dance. "The Leading Lady" is the title of the little musical play and Miss Marguerite Haney will appear in the title role. Miss Haney has but recently returned to America from Paris, where she was the leading ingenue in the revue at the Folies Bergere. Miss Haney went to England from America and appeared in the leading music halls of London and the provinces. So great was her success that she was engaged for the Folies at Paris. She returned to America after completing her season in order to resume the role in "The Leading Lady." The young actress is a petite person, a clever and graceful dancer and possessed of a most charming personality.

In the act she is supported by Messrs. Ralph Lynn and Basil Lynn, who were brought from the London Gaiety theater for Miss Haney's company. Both of the brothers are actors of long experience in comedy.

Ralph Lynn plays the role of an affable and likeable young lord constantly doing the right thing at the wrong time and arriving in most awkward situations. He plays the Englishman too in a highly amusing and entirely unobjectionable manner. Basil Lynn appears in the role of a "gentleman's gentleman" and the two types of Englishmen are delightful.

"The Leading Lady" demands a cast of ten people and special scenic and musical effects. It was the headline on the first bill ever presented in the Duluth Orpheum and one of the most popular acts of the season.

Ray L. Royce offers a monologue quite different from the usual. Mr. Royce divides his time between vaudeville and the drama. He completed a metropolitan engagement in "The Girl of My Dreams" just before beginning his present vaudeville tour. He played the role of the Quaker father and scored his usual success. Mr. Royce is an actor of fine attainments and during his monologue he presents several spirited and artistic characterizations. His act is of a distinct type and one that has given much pleasure.

Juggling, fast, furious and novel is the offering of the Five Pirescoffis. After the start of their act the air is full of flying missiles from china plates, knives and ordinary juggling balls, to tables, lamps and chairs. Ten hands work in the tricks at the same time and the quickness and accuracy is truly marvelous. There are numerous tricks by individual members of the company, new and unusual. The act is closed with an astounding hat throwing feature. With the members of the team standing at the footlights, dozens of sombreros are thrown like boomerangs over the heads of the audience, almost sailing at times to the top of the gallery but always returning to the hands of the casters. The entire act is spectacular and novel.

Ed Flanagan and Neel Edwards in their act "On and Off" show some of the comedy features in the life of the vaudevillian. The skit is realistic and the act includes a rehearsal and performance affording opportunity for songs and dances.

In "Just Nonsense" Carl Henry and Nellie Francis crowd fifteen minutes full of delight for the audience in talk, songs and a dance or two. The comedy feature is made much of in this act.

"Original Nonsensicalities," is the name of the offering of Charles Brown and May Neuman and a short bombardment of songs, dances and stories is provided. Mr. Brown is a graduate from "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," and "Little Johnny Jones," and the eccentric dancing that made much of the success of those performances has been incorporated into his act. Miss Neuman is a dainty dancer and sings.

Honors and Le Prince, French acrobats and pantomimists present a thrilling and amusing act. The acrobatic features are garnished by a running line of comedy in pantomime.

The new pictures of the kinodrome and the Orpheum concert orchestra complete the bill for the week which will be presented at the first performance tomorrow afternoon and will continue every evening with a daily matinee.

The Mountain Ash Male choir has proved to be one of vaudeville's most important finds. Since the beginning of their tour over the Orpheum circuit, the Welsh singers have attracted the serious consideration of music lovers and musical critics.

A final dress rehearsal of Austin Strong's one-act play "The Drums of Oude" was given at the Republic theater on Thursday, May 2 under David Belasco's personal direction. On Friday the company left for Chicago where their Orpheum circuit tour begins on Monday May 6.

Never before has Chicago showered such enthusiastic critical comment upon a production as was given "Madame Butterfly." Every dramatic reviewer declared that the play, the cast and production were unequaled in perfectness. It will headline the closing bill in the Duluth theater, May 19.

Florence Roberts' vaudeville debut was made at the Winnipeg Orpheum theaaer, where her vehicle "The Miracle" was pronounced worthy of her talent. Miss Roberts' itinerary will keep her on the coast during the summer.

"THE BROOMSTICK WITCHES,"
At the Empress Next Week.

AT THE EMPRESS

The patrons of the Empress will be offered a big musical show for the week commencing Sunday. Almost every act on this bill contains more or less music and it is expected the coming week will be a gala week for the music lovers of this city. Heading the list of the attractions for the week will be "The Broomstick Witches," a piquant musical comedy offering. This attraction is expected to create a sensation during its coming engagement and it is said to possess every requisite necessary for success: tuneful music, catchy dancing numbers; gorgeous costumes and beautiful scenic and electrical effects. The principals with "The Broomstick Witches" are Miss Dorothy Homer, W. E. Dubard and Larry Fuller. Miss Homer, prima donna of the "Witches" first appeared on the stage when but 9 years of age, playing the part of "Little Red Riding Hood." At the age of 19, she played prima donna parts and has created an enviable reputation on Broadway. She last appeared in Harry Askin's production, "The Girl I Love," at the La Salle theater in Chicago, appearing in the leading feminine role for over 250 consecutive performances. Miss Homer is blessed with a beautiful soprano voice of wonderful range and purity and she is said to have ample opportunity to use it in "The Broomstick Witches." Mr. Dubard and Mr. Fuller, the other principals, have had a wealth of experience with some of the most successful musical comedies of recent years and their work in "The Broomstick Witches" is of the top-notch order. This musical comedy production is far more pretentious than the average attraction of this nature seen in vaudeville and everywhere it has created a most favorable impression. The scenery carried by the "Witches" is said to be the most gorgeous used by any musical comedy attraction on the circuit, the act carrying a full cartload of scenic and electric effects. The costumes were made and designed by one of New York's leading theatrical modistes and it is claimed that they are a revelation in the art of dressmaking. The company is a large one and contains many pretty girls who know how to sing and dance and they are said to put on their singing and dancing numbers with a snap and dash that cannot help but arouse enthusiasm. The Milwaukee Sentinel said of "The Broomstick Witches": "The principal attraction with this week's bill at the Empress is 'The Broomstick Witches,' a fantastic musical comedy production with Miss Dorothy Homer and the Messrs. Dubard and Fuller in the leading roles. This is easily the best attraction of this nature presented this season and the company was applauded to the echo for their efforts last evening. The principals are all excellent entertainers and the chorus is especially well trained. Their songs are all new and bright, the scenic and electrical effects elaborate, while their costumes are the most gorgeous seen here this season. 'The Broomstick Witches' is without doubt one of the best attractions that has appeared at the Sullivan & Considine payhouse this season and the audience last night was not slow in showing their approval of it."

Maxwell and Dudley are expected to score a hit with their pretty singing playlet, "For Sweet Charity's Sake." This team is well known to the regular vaudeville attendants and their names on a program guarantee at least one act of exceptional merit. "For Sweet Charity's Sake" has been spoken of by both the public and the press as one of the daintiest playlets in vaudeville and with Maxwell and Dudley in the roles it should more than make good during its coming engagement. Both Mr. Maxwell and Miss Dudley are known to be singers of more than ordinary ability and the playlet in which they appear is said to offer them every opportunity to display their talents.

Eddie and Mae Shaw, a pair of magnetic singing and dancing artists, will contribute an offering which is said to be away from the well beaten track traveled by so many singing and dancing teams. Miss Shaw is a dainty young miss and is said to be a clever dancer and the possesseor of a well trained voice of natural sweetness. Mr. Shaw is also known as a skillful dancer and is also a singer of ability. This combination is a strong one and they have succeeded in introducing several novel and original features in their turn which are said to add greatly to its pleasing effect.

A page from minstrelsy will be offered by Greve and Green, a pair of ex-minstrel men. These boys have seen service with some of the greatest minstrel organizations that have ever appeared in this country, including the famous Primrose & West and Lew Dockstader organizations. As their billing suggests, they have simply torn a page from minstrelsy and are presenting it in vaudeville. This page includes a number of original gags, some bright and snappy dialogue and one or two tuneful instrumental numbers. This attraction has been engaged for laughing purposes only and Greve and Green are said to offer a turn which is guaranteed as a sure cure for any one with the "blues" or a grouch.

A special novelty feature with this bill will be Chief Os-Ko-Mon, a genuine Indian chief, who will offer a singing, talking and dancing specialty in costume. From tepee to university; from class room to gridiron, and from football field to the vaudeville stage—these have been the steps in the career of Os-Ko-Mon, son and grandson of proud Indian chiefs and himself entitled to that distinction. Os-Ko-Mon, which means wounded bear in English, is a graduate of Carlisle and he acquitted himself with credit both in the class room and on the football field. As an entertainer he is said to be exceptionally clever, possessing a rich baritone voice of wonderful range and resonance. His turn is well put together and is said to be highly entertaining and everywhere he has appeared on the circuit Os-Ko-Mon has met with favor, partly on the account of the novelty of his offering, but more so because of his ability as an entertainer.

The motion pictures for the week will be up to their usual high standard. A bargain matinee is given daily except Sundays and holidays and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved one week in advance by either telephone. Special attention is paid to the comfort and entertainment of ladies and children at all times.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Fiske O'Hara, who lately starred in "Love's Young Dream," is preparing a new Irish playlet for vaudeville.

• • •

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt's production of "La Reine Elisabeth," produced April 19 at the Theater Sarah Bernhardt, has already been withdrawn. Mme. Bernhardt intends reviving Alfred de Musset's drama "Lorenzaccio" to terminate her present season. Mme. Bernhardt will herself again play the masculine role of the Italian, which she so successfully rendered at the Renaissance fifteen years ago.

• • •

Victor Herbert and Rida Johnson Young, authors of "Naughty Marietta," have collaborated upon another comic opera. The play has been accepted by Cohan & Harris and will be one of the most pretentious offerings of that firm next season. The title of the new play is at present "Seven Widows," but the management has decided to change the name to "Seven Little Widows."

• • •

Anna Held has signed a contract with the United Booking offices to appear in vaudeville next season at the handsome salary of $2,500 a week. An effort was made to induce Miss Held to begin her vaudeville engagement immediately, but she preferred to defer her appearance in the two-per-days' until next September. A musical sketch will be written for her use. Miss Held's only venture in vaudeville has been in London.

• • •

Frank Reicher, whose portrayal of Ferrand, the French vagabond in "The Pigeon," is one of the artistic achievements of the year, has been placed under contract by Winthrop Ames for next season.

Advices from Charles Frohman's office indicate that the play selected for John Drew next season is an adaption of Caillavet and De Flers' "Papa."

"Mr. Frohman will produce the play with some such actor as John Drew in the chief part," is the statement of Mr. Frohman's representative.

The John W. Ramsey Play company, the youngest of the play brokerage firms, has acquired from Richard Madden, the author, a four-act comedy, entitled "On the Level." The story deals with New York life.

• • •

Anna Bussert, recently prima donna of "The Rose of Panama," has been engaged to alternate as Maid Marian in the revival of "Robin Hood" at the New Amsterdam theater.

Werba & Luescher have definitely determined their plans for Clara Lipman's tour next season. It will begin in November and includes an engagement in New York. Miss Lipman's medium will be a comedy by herself and Samuel Shipman, entitled "It Depends on the Woman." Miss Lipman and Mr. Shipman are also the authors of "Elevating a Husband."

• • •

David Belasco's "The Drums of Oude"—the second of the one-act plays he is producing for vaudeville—will be given its first American performance at the Palace theater, Chicago. William Elliott will attend the premiere as Mr. Belasco's representative and associate.

• • •

A. G. Delamater is organizing five companies for "Freckles," the dramatization of Gene Stratton Porter's story.

Rowland and Clifford made their managerial entry to Chicago at the Whitney opera house on April 22, with W. A. McGuire's new play, "The Divorce Question." The managers were lavish in their expenditure on this production, employing a cast of the best and advertising cleverly and extensively. Local reviewers agreed that the drama is a special plea against the evils of divorce, presenting arguments against the dissolution of marital ties. In the cast are: Frank Losee, Sheldon Lewis, Edward Emery, William V. Mong, Frank Francis, Charles C. Burnham, Mart E. Heisey, Douglas Lawrence, Charles L. Douglas, Charlotte Granville, Burnette Radcliffe and Virginia Pearson.

Winter attractions are now announcing their closing days. Last Saturday saw the end of the tours of Forbes-Robertson and his wife, Gertrude Elliot, and of the company playing "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford." Yesterday finished the runs of David Warfield, Louis Mann, and the Little theater, in New York, and of Rose Melville in Cleveland, Ohio. Weber and Field's Jubilee ends today. On May 19, George Sidney gives his final performance at Norfolk, Va. On June 1, Katherine Grey ends her engagement in "Above the Law." On July 13, Margaret Illington closes in "Kindling," at Spokane, Wash.

Mrs. Fiske will sail on May 18 to visit her cousin, Mrs. Clara V. Shepherd, in Paris. Subsequently she will enjoy a vacation in the South of France, returning to this country early in August. For more than a few years Mrs. Fiske has played until midsummer, so that this will be her first lengthy rest in a long while.

• • •

Owing to the lateness of the season "Baron Trenck," the comic opera which has been running at the Casino, New York, will not be sent on tour till the fall. Meanwhile F. C. Whitney, who produced this work in London and America, will devote his time to the new Willard Spencer comic opera, "A Wild Goose." Mr. Spencer will be recalled as the composer of "Miss Bob White," and other light operas which were invariably first produced in his native city, Philadelphia.

After the successful launching of the Klaw and Erlanger production of "The Pink Lady" at his Globe theater, London, Charles Frohman has commenced immediate plans for the London presentation of "The Siren," with Donald Brain and Julia Sanderson in the chief parts. "The Siren" will first be heard in London probably at the Adelphi theater, where the stage is always in the efficient hands of J. A. E. Malone. The principals of the London "Siren" company will be Americans, but the chorus and all subordinate parts will be taken by English people. The production will be made during Mr. Frohman's present residence in London. This will be Br. Brian's first appearance in London, but it will be Miss Sanderson's second—one of the first successes scored by that charming little ingenue when she first came under Mr. Frohman's management was in support of G. P. Huntley in the London production of "The Hon'ble Phil." An entire new scenic equipment will be made for the London presentation of "The Siren."

When Billie Burke ends her present season in "The Runaways"—which has given her one of the best acting roles she has ever had—she will turn at once to memorizing her next role, Lily Parradel, the heroine of "The Mind-the-Paint-Girl," the Pinero play that created such a sensation in London, where it is still running. These are a few of the poignantly human lines that Miss Burke will make a part of herself when she masters the role of Lily Parradel: "All the schooling I've ever had was at a cheap, frowsy day school in Kennington, with a tribe of other common, skinny legged brats. Everything I've learned since—I've learned by sheer cuteness from novels, the papers, the theaters and by keeping my ears open like a cunning little parrot. Ha, ha! That's what I am, a cunning little parrot." "In diction, in feeling, in poignant truth, this is as fine a page as any in our dramatic literature," says William Archer, referring to the entire page of the Pinero play, from which the above excerpt is taken.

Hugh Ford, general stage director for the Liebler company, sailed for Europe on May 4 on the Adriatic, in order to commence active preparations for the staging of "The Daughter of Heaven," the big dramatic spectacle of modern China, which is to succeed "The Garden of Allah" at the Century theater next season. Mr. Ford will spend some days in Paris in consultation with Pierre Loti and Judith Gautier, the latter the daughter of Theophile Gautier, the authors of the play, and thence will proceed to Berlin, Vienna and Milan with a view of getting the idea of the leading Continental costumers on the subject of the play's costuming. As soon as possible, Mr. Ford is to return to this country so that the preliminary work on the massive production may be pushed at top speed.

Mr. Ford, whose work in staging "The Garden of Allah," "Oliver Twist" and a dozen other Liebler company attractions this season has given him undisputed rank among the foremost stage directors of the day, is to be presented to the public in a new light next season. He has written several plays, all of which are slated for production.

AT THE AUDITORIUM

The Auditorium management has been successful in procuring "The Loan Shark," which in newspaper talk is a "scoop."

"The Loan Shark" is the topic of the day. He has been denounced by the press and pulpit, discussed at the office, club, the library, and the home will be seen on the screen at the Auditorium Sunday, Monday and Tuesday evenings, May 12, 13 and 14.

A brief outline of this remarkable moving picture may be had from the following:

"A man in moderate circumstances finds after the death of his wife and daughter that he must apply to a loan shark to obtain the money in order to settle his many bills. He falls into the clutches of a grasping usurer, who seeks to ruin him. Driven desperate he steals and when found out attemps murder and suicide. At last he turns the tables on the loan shark."

The program for the coming week is as usual—skating Sunday, Tuesday and Friday evenings and Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

VAUDEVILLE WAR AVERTED

Chicago Made Dividing Line Between the Two Big Higher Priced Circuits.

During the last week or two there has been a shaking up in the vaudeville field that has resulted in a division of territory between the circuits presenting higher priced vaudeville.

A vaudeville war that threatened to involve all the bigger circuits has been averted. It was made imminent because of the aspirations of Martin Beck, managing director of the Orpheum circuit, to invade the East, which has been Keith and Williams territory, but the agreement which has been reached leaves the United Booking offices in complete control of the situation. Williams has sold his theaters to Beck and Keith, and "The United" reigns over the high priced vaudeville field. It is a compromise all around, as the United offices are controlled jointly by the Beck and Keith interests. The following statement sent out from the Orpheum general offices explains the settlement:

"The most significant and far reaching deal in the annals of American theatrical history has just been consumated in the amalgamation of the Orpheum circuit with B. F. Keith and other managers and owners of the first class vaudeville theaters of the United States and Canada.

"The link that ultimately joined the chain and caused a centralization of interests was the purchase of the Percy G. Williams' circuit of theaters in Greater New York by the allied interests. The result of the deal, on the face, is that the Orpheum circuit will control high class vaudeville west of Chicago and Mr. Keith and other managers of the United Booking offices will have their allotted territories in the East and all will work in conjunction. The real results, however, are of far more interest to the theater going public. They, it is promised, will reap the fruit of the work that has been done for years to bring vaudeville to its present frictionless condition.

"The East and West will book jointly and in this way make vaudeville more alluring than ever to the artist. A continuous route from coast to coast and North and South through the United States and Canada assures those who show they are worthy of long season's work. The long seasons are the dream of the theatrical profession.

"The Orpheum circuit now has practically the advantage of extending into the center of all theatrical affairs, New York, as they share in the ownership of Williams' circuit and have more than a casual interest in the many features that are developed in their New York theaters.

"The booking arrangements will be such that all the better acts will play across the continent and in all the theaters of high class vaudeville. In the past there were many good acts that played almost continuously in the East and never got into New York. Others have been so popular in New York that they seldom leave the extreme East. Now both ends will see the best acts extant and will share jointly the many new ones that can be developtd under such a healthy condition and normal condition of affairs as now exists.

"The Orpheum circuit will continue its European connections and with renewed vigor will search the world for novelties and artistic features to add in the ever increasing dignity and artistic status of vaudeville. All of the ideas and ideals that have been worked for and have placed the Orpheum in its present position will flourish to a greater degree.

"The managerial heads under the new arrangement will be Martin Beck and E. F. Albee. The executive offices will be housted in Martin Beck's New Palace theater in New York. Work on this is being rushed and will doubtless be ready for occupancy in the early fall."

ACTOR IN THE ROLE OF BEGGAR

Professional Ability Kept One Man From Feeling Want—Masquerade Only When Makeup Was Revealed.

"When an actor is out of money he is up against a serious proposition, for he usually cannot do anything but pace the boards, but Dad Hoskin was an exception to that rule," said an actor a few days ago to the Chicago News.

"This winter has been one of the most disastrous for the stage people for some time, many small companies doing stock runs out of New York and Chicago being disbanded in small western and central towns. Naturally, when a company was broken up the members would make a quick getaway for the nearest city, and more of them landed in Chicago this year than in New York.

"I was in a stock company doing one night stands in different parts of the country, and we were forced to disband in a small town in Iowa. Dad Hoskin was a member of this company, and he and I started together at once for Chicago. He was called Dad because he was rather an old man for the stage and he always played old man parts. I might add here that he was one of the best makeup men in the country.

"We had only a small amount of money between us when we left Iowa, and by the time we reached Chicago we were so nearly broke that things looked pretty dark for us. However, I had a proposition in sight and knowing this, Hoskin told me to go ahead and not mind him, for he was sure of something too. What it was Dad was sure of he would not tell, only he would smile and act mysterious.

"We parted after eating up the last of our small store of cash shortly after reaching Chicago and I went at once to a booking agency, where I was well acquainted. There had been too many persons there ahead of me, however, and I was told politely that there was nothing doing. I could not sing and so had to refuse a chorus-man position with a musical comedy and roles were almost as scarce as hens' teeth. I kept scratching, however, and finally found a place that would keep me in food for three or four weeks at a nickel show, doing a monologue from noon until midnight.

"After I was settled there and had begun to pay back the money I had borrowed while looking for a place I thought more and more of Hoskin. I knew he would not leave Chicago without letting me know, and he could find me easily enough if he wanted to see me. I knew also that it would be more difficult for the old man to get booked than it was for me and I wondered what the old fellow was up to. He was a sort of dandy in his dress and I knew that he would go without meals as much as possible to keep his linen white and his shoes black.

"One morning, it was the morning of the day the second big blizzard hit Chicago, I was walking down Dearborn street, when an old beggar attracted my attention. He was standing in front of a cigar store holding on old stiff hat in his hand with his head bared to the storm. The appearance of the fellow attracted me first and then there seemed something familiar about him.

"I did not want him to see me watching him, so I walked up and down the street several times, scanning him closely each time I passed. The storm was so severe that I was in no danger of being noticed in my walking back and forth by others than the beggar and I hoped he would not see me. The fourth time I passed him I saw what only an actor would notice. The beggar deftly put his hand to the side of his head and gave it a slight pinch.

"That gave him away to me and I knew he was wearing a wig. I came close to him then; it was Dad Hoskin, but he had the cleverest make-up on and the most deceiving wig I ever have seen. He told me to go to a certain place nearby which we both knew well and that he would be there shortly.

"I repaired to the place mentioned and soon he came in. He went at once to the washroom at the back of the place and I followed at his sign. In there he made a complete change. Off came the wonderful wig and revealed Hoskin's full head of iron gray hair. With a swipe of a cloth on which was some grain alcohol off came the make-up and Hoskin was recognizable. Off came his coat and trousers, under which he had a neat street suit and all he lacked to give the immaculate appearance he usually affected was the fur-trimmed overcoat and derby hat, for which he sent me to his room at a fashionable hotel in the loop.

"While I had been getting my $20 a week for talking an old monologue, Hoskin was collecting at least $75 a week. He would change his place each day, rarely working the loop and then only in the middle of blocks. He was arrested only once and then he was released after passing a night in the station house. It was his trick of standing bareheaded in the snow and storm that won most for him, for tender-hearted passersby could not resist that appeal."

INVENTED STAGE MARIONETTES

Memory of Laurent Mourguet Honored By People of Lyons---Attending Boxing Exhibitions and Fancy Dress Balls Are Social Fads in Paris.

Paris, May 11.—The memory of Laurent Mourguet, who 100 years ago invented the stage marionettes which America knows as the "Punch and Judy show," has been honored by the people of Lyons, who inaugurated a monument to Mourguet in that city. The celebration was an elaborate affair, speeches being made by a deputy, the mayor of Lyons, who pointed out that Mourguet was born in Lyons in 1769, and by a physician of the district. The feature of the celebration, however, was a discourse in pantomime by "Jean Guignol," which proved to be a small wooden figure deftly manipulated from behind the scenes. The Punch and Judy show is known in France as the Guignol show and the best French spectacles of this kind may be seen throughout the summer in the gardens bordering the Avenues des Champs Elysees in Paris.

Two social mads have marked the Parisian season which is brought to a close with the Grand Prix running race at Longchamps in the early part of June. The first has been the growing custom of fashionable people to attend boxing exhibitions, and the second has been renewed interest in fancy dress balls, which held such an important place in the court life of early France.

One of the most original of the recent masked balls was the Hungarian fete given by Madame de Yturbe in her mansion in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne. All the guests appeared in Hungarian national costume. The hostess received her guests in superb Hungarian dress, with a mantle richly embroidered with fur and a headdress sparkling with diamonds. Her daughter wore a picturesque Hungarian peasant costume. The men wore mostly Venetian cloaks over evening dress with knee breeches and silk stockings. Among the guests who appeared in sumptuous fancy dresses were the Infanta Eulalia, Princess Stephanie of Belgium, the Grand Duke Paul of Russia, the Russian ambassador and Mme. Isvolsky, the German ambassador and the Baroness von Schoen and the Princess Murat. The music was provided by a real Hungarian gipsy band in black uniforms, and a feature of the ball was a Hungarian mazurka danced by ten couples led by Don Luis, the son of the Infanta Eulalia.

Among the most interesting books forming the library of the late Henri Houssaye to be sold by auction soon is a slender volume bound in faded velvet which once belonged to the unfortunate Marie Antoinette. It is called "The Garden of French Lilies" and contains a number of poems addressed by a certain Johann Raukenstauch to the young archduchess at the time of her marriage with the dauphin of France, afterwards Louis XVI. The poems, it is admitted, are but mediocre productions, but as a souvenir the little book is precious.

Henri Houssave was fond of telling how he picked it up by chance at the "Ham Fair" among a lot of junk and paid a few cents for it. Another "lot" which is likely to yield a high price is a copy of the "Dictionary of the French Academy" of 1694. The work is in 2 volumes bound in old morocco leather bearing on the covers the arms of Mademoiselle de Montpensier stamped in gold.

A French literary review addressed to a number of well known writers the following questions: "1st. What is your opinion on the prevalent taste of modern society for the theater? Does it indicate advance or decadence? Does the play develop the same facilities as the book? Which, in your opinion, is the most profitable, listening to a dramatic performance, or reading a book?"

A number of interesting replies were received. Only two writers, Paul Saudav and Mazel saw in the passion for the play a serious evidence of intellectual development. The great majority pronounce firmly against the drama and the modern craze for theatergoing. "The taste for drama," writes Maurice Barres, which is now becoming something between a vaudeville and a cinematograph, indicates a tendency to take the line of least effort." Rene Boylesve also considers it as a proof of laziness; but he, in addition, sees in it manifestation of sociability. People, he thinks, go to the theater not so much to enjoy themselves as to provide themselves with topics of conversation. M. Colrat believes the real drama to be extinct and that nowadays the purely spectacular element prevails on the stage. In this he is at once with Sar Peladan, who holds that there are only eight real dramatists; three Greek, one English, two French and two German. Vincent d'Indy, the eminent composer, prefers, even for music, reading to representation.

Edmond Pilon also declares for the book, which, he declares paradoxically, alone can ensure immortality for the true drama. "The passion of Racine," he says, "the grace of Marivaux, the irony of de Banville, the languor of de Musset are much more apparent and appreciable in the calm and thoughtful atmosphere of the study than before the glare of the chandelier and the flashing of the spotlight."

AEROPLANES ARE IN COLLISION

Both Machines Crash to Ground and Woman Passenger Has Several Ribs Broken---Prussian Official Arrested as a Spy.

Berlin, May 11.—For the second time within little more than a month there has been an aeroplane collision on the Johannisthal field. An aviator named Stieploschek, flying a monoplane, was preparing to land after a short flight when he was momentarily blinded by the sun. An instant later his machine collided, eighten feet in the air, with a biplane piloted by Lieut. Zwickau, who had his sister as a passenger. Both machines crashed to the ground and were destroyed.

Lieut. Zwickau's sister suffered several broken ribs and was badly shaken. The lieutenant's upper lip was split and he was otherwise bruised, Stieploschek was not hurt.

The previous similar accident occurred near the same place, when Aviators Schade and Rettinger collided. Neither was injured, but a man named Badowski, a passenger, was badly bruised.

The spy fever has registered another victim, but this time the unfortunate is a German—a Prussian official—and it is Russia that feels her existence threatened by his activities. Advices from Insterburg, East Russia, state that Capt. Dressler of the Royal Prussian Boundary commission ventured across the Russian border to escort the Princess Dohna of St. Petersburg, who had been in East Prussia. On his return he was arrested by the Russian border police, taken to Wilna and imprisoned. The only information vouchsafed by the Russians was that Dressler is a spy.

The Prussian government has already taken steps to obtain a solution of the aparently peculiar circumstances of the case.

Following a mistake in the use of an anaethetic, which caused the death of a schoolboy about to undergo a minor operation, Sister Gertrude Wanacek, a veteran nurse at the Royal hospital here, committed suicide by injecting into herself a portion of the same poison which had just killed her patient.

The lad, Willy Rieger, the 14-year-old son of a veterinary surgeon at Koepenick, had been taken by his mother to the clinic for throat and nose diseases of the Royal hospital to have a growth in the nose and on the tonsils removed.

A half per cent solution of a drug, to be used as a local anaesthetic, was accidentally overturned and spilled just as the surgeon was preparing to operate and in hurriedly renewing the supply Sister Gertrude took it from a bottle containing 20 per cent solution of the same drug, kept in the same closet and differing from the bottle with the weaker solution only in the label.

When the injection with the concentrated anaesthetic was made the lad stiffened out and died almost instantly. As soon as the nurse realized her mistake she became frantic and before she could be prevented had administered from the same syringe a fatal dose to herself. In a quarter of an hour she was dead. Public opinon blames those responsible for keeping together the two easily confused bottles quite as much as the unfortunnate nurse.

The "Karl May association" has just been formed here with the avowed purpose of helping the public to forget the youthful sins of the man whose name the association bears, Karl May, who died on April 1st near Dresden, was for many years the hero of Young Germany. His most popular stories dealt with the American Indians around the Civil war period, and May himself figures in most of them as a swaggering hero, who became chief of the Indian tribe with which he fought.

Some two years ago, however, it was learned through an action brought by the author for libel, that not only had he not been a great hero and fought among the Indians, but that he had, in his youth, been a member of a gang of youthful robbers in the forests of Silesia, where they became the especial scourge of harmless old market women; that he had served ten years in prison for his crime, and, moreover, that he had never been outside of Germany until 1900. Nevertheless, the immense popularity which his writings had attained led to the formation of the new association.

TEACHING CHILDREN WITHOUT CLASS WORK

Perfect Discipline Gained Almost Without Effort—System Utilizes Child's Physical Unrest—Method Has Proved Itself Effective.

By CARL R. BYOIR,
President of the House of Childhood.

(Exclusive Service the Survey Press Bureau.)

In a classroom free of benches or desks where feeble-minded pupils struggled at will over different tasks while the teacher silently aided those in straights leaving the rest to their own devices, was born a method of teaching which "challenges our whole system of secondary education." The system proved so effective that the pupils were able to compete successfully with normal children in a public school examination. But "while every one was admiring the progress of my idiots," says Dr. Maria Montessori, "I was meditating on the reasons that could keep the happy and healthy common school children on so low a level that my unhappy pupils were able to stand beside them."

Confident that the new method she had worked out was equally applicable to normal children, Dr. Montessori waited for a chance to prove it. The opportunity came unexpectedly in 1906, when the Roman Association of Good Building, under the direction of Edward Talamo, invited her to undertake the organization of infant schools in its model tenement planned to help regenerate the poorer quarters of Rome. In each of the model tenements erected by this association there were established—literally—houses of childhood, that is a school within the home. All the children under school age were gathered together, during a long day, in special quarters under the care of a directress, a physician, and a caretaker. The children's house proved to be self-supporting, as the cost of maintaining it is covered by the saving it effects in the amount necessary for repairs.

Dr. Montessori now began to apply the theories she had already developed with defective pupils and to add to them by painstaking and loving observation of the children in her care. Because the minds of backward and defective children are less complicated and move more slowly than the mind of a normal or gifted child it is possible to learn more about them. "The backward child," says Dr. Lightner Witmer of the psychological clinic of the University of Pennsylvania "will show us the way for all children" and it is their teachers who "will without doubt inspire the most brilliant educational advances of the near future." This happened in the case of Dr. Montessori whose method of instruction due to fortutous circumstances is characterized by the Educational Review as "a wonderful revelation of a great genius."

The foundation of her system is the liberty of the pupil and a scheme for sense training. The teacher, by individual direction, helps each child to educate himself, through playing with carefully devised "didactic material," physical exercise, eating and serving his regular meals, learning to dress and take care of himself. The results have been that when her children go to the public schools they shoot far ahead of their fellows. Even more important is the serenity and happiness of the children in their school.

While it is true that the practice of her methods depends in large part upon the use of certain didactic apparatus, which she has invented, yet the real basis of her work comes from liberating the individuality of the pupil and from training teachers to follow the unfolding mind of the child rather than to drag him through an educational routine. For the physical growth of the child, Madame Montessori has designed a series of "gymnastics" by which means she has developed in very young children remarkable bodily control and poise. Much of the physical apparatus used by her is similar in purpose and use to that employed by Dr. Fernald at Waverly, Mass. He has long maintained that it could be used to good effect in the education of normal children. Madame Montessori's experience also confirms some of the discoveries made at the training school for feeble-minded children at Vineland, N. J. Although some of the reforms for which she has struggled in Switzerland and Italy have already been accomplished in America only the bigot fails to find in her work inspiration and a fund of knowledge.

But what are some of the tangible concrete results obtained? Little 4-year-old waiters distribute knives, forks and spoons, setting as many places at the eating table as there are children. Others carry trays of water glasses and go from table to table with big tureens full of hot soup. Not one makes a mistake. Not a glass is broken nor a drop of soup spilled. The service of the little waiters compares favorably with that in good restaurants.

The ordinary instincts of 4-year-old children, who so often cry, break whatever they touch, and exact constant attention, are guided and directed to make this result possible by giving them carefully planned muscular discipline. Many parents have been reduced to despair by the insatiate desire of their children to "take hold of everything." The Montessori method instead of reproving children for this natural instinct and combating it with orders to "keep still" guides and develops this craving and utilizes it to aid the children in learning to recognize geometrical figures. The apparatus is so constructed that mistakes are self-evident and the child with much the same persistency shown by older people when working out puzzles, tries and tries until he finally succeeds. Often people wonder at the strange conduct of children in building a pile of blocks only to knock it down for a fresh start. But in this repetition, this practice in exercising muscles and estimating distances, the child is beginning to exercise his intelligence and reasoning. The Montessori method allows the children to take out and put back in their places geometric figures and later directs this instinct by means of goods stretched on frames into practice in buttoning and unbuttoning and lacing and unlacing till the child unconsciously has learned to dress itself.

In its insistence that the child be given freedom to vent his desire for perpetual physical and muscular exercise and drill; by allowing free play to the instinct that demands repetition of innumerable actions; by recognizing in early stages the process as constituting the thing of value rather than the final accomplishment of a set task, the Montessori method is based upon sound anthropological and physical principles derived from accurate and painstaking observation and experiment.

There are tremendous administrative difficulties to be encountered in the application of Dr. Montessori's work in our great public school systems so that it is probable that her teachings will only gradually and partially modify present day pedagogical practices. But the principles which have so startled the educational world and revolutionized primary education in two countries are bound to leave their impress upon our schools.

HIGH TRIBUTE TO DOCTORS

Cured of a Rare Disease, John Sodergren Is Thankful to Electro Medical Doctors.

Hardly one among a hundred people would think that a constant pain in the side would be responsible to a disease of the spleen. Mr. John Sodergren had suffered for a long time and had seen many a doctor before he found out what really was the cause of his troubles. Because of the pain in the abdomen, everybody had taken his case to be that of stomach trouble, and for such he was treated till he consulted the Electro Medical Doctors at No. 26 West Superior street, they diagnosed his case to be that of a disease of the spleen. A few treatments had done the work and relieved Mr. Sodergren of the pain he had suffered for many months past.

When he felt his case steadily improving and noticed that none of the pains returned, he wrote the following grateful letter to the Doctors: "I had suffered much in the past months and had seen many a doctor, but the more I doctored, the worse have been my pains. I finally broke down completely as no one could do anything for me, and I thought that I had to die, so great have been my pains.

"A friend told me of the Electro Medical Doctors, who had cured successfully so many diseases, and I took courage to consult them. I was surprised to find that I had no stomach trouble at all, and when it dawned on me that I had been treated wrong all the time, because all treatments had been futile. I gained from the very first Electro Medical treatment and felt new life go through my body when the Doctors put me on the machines. I have been steadily improving, and the pain has left me entirely, so that I have all reasons to believe that I am well and cured. I can not recommend the Doctors too highly to everybody who is sick and suffering, and who has treated without getting any benefit.

"JOHN SODERGREN,
"2714 West Second street, Duluth."

This class of diseases is rare indeed and many of them pass without being recognized. While the disease itself is very painful, the patient rarely gets a thorough cure, because of the fact that it frequently is mistaken for stomach trouble, appendicitis, bowel troubles, or any of the many abdominal diseases. A thorough examination of the skillful physician is only part of the work. It is the first step in the cure; the next step of the treatment is the reduction of the swelling and elimination of the poison. Mr. Sodergren would have walked a good many months would he have been treated with Electro Medical Methods. This new method has proved to cure where all other failed. It has cured diseases like Rheumatism, Bright's' Disease, Gallstones, Female Troubles, Men's Diseases, Epilepsy, Nervousness, Paralysis, Cancers, Blood Poverty, Goitre and any known chronic disease of men and women. The office of the Electro Medical Doctors is located at No. 26 West Superior street, in Duluth.

CERTAIN RESULTS

Many a Duluth Citizen Knows How Sure They Are.

Nothing uncertain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Duluth. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement:

Thomas G. Thompson, 624 W. Second St., Duluth, Minn., says: "I do not wish to withdraw anything from the statement I gave some years ago in which I told how effectively Doan's Kidney Pills had rid me of kidney complaint. For some months I was bothered by pain and soreness in my back. I had other troubles and they all showed that there was much uric acid in my system. When I was feeling poorly, I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills. I immediately got a box and they were just what I required. In a short time they cured me and about a year ago they quickly drove away a spell of backache that had come on me. My high opinion of this remedy has been formed by the way in which it has helped me."

This time almost 1,500 square feet have been selected in the heart of the exposition, surraunded by the elegant displays of the Great Northern railway, the Soo Line and that of the Duluth & Iron Range and the Duluth, Mossaba & Northern railroad. The South Dakota exhibit will be opposite and the big exhibit from North Dakota near the Minnesota exhibit.

Chairman Maxfield said he would call the committee together shortly and that they would discuss ways and means of collecting the exhibit. The state Federation of Commercial clubs is expected to take a prominent part in making it the best exhibit ever gathered of state products.

Governor Eberhart stated to those with whom he discussed the matter before appointing the committee, that already Minnesota is reaping big returns from the exhibit made in St. Paul and that never before have there been so many outside bidders for state lands. The governor intimated that Minnesota got the best of it in any land show and said the North Star state did not suffer by comparison with any other state.

BRAKEMAN SAVED BY LUCKY GAMBLE

By Guessing Right in Flipping Coin, Does Not Sail on Titanic.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because the flip of a coin decided for him that he would board the Olympic in returning from England to the United States, instead of the Titanic, R. Anderson, a former brakeman of Dickinson, N. D., is alive. He reached Grand Forks yesterday.

Mr. Anderson flipped a coin to decide on what boat he should take. "Heads," he said, was chosen for the Olympic, and the coin turned up heads. Three friends of Mr. Anderson sailed on the Titanic several days later and they all perished.

Great Falls, Mont., May 11.—While alone on a homestead about three miles from the town of Chinook, Mrs. Ryder, 70 years old, who recently came to this state from Iowa, was shot and killed by a mysterious rider.

A posse which was formed eight hours later found Archie Malette, armed with a rifle, in a homesteader's shack. The hoofs of Malette's horse fitted the tracks near the Ryder home, it is said, and the bullet which killed Mrs. Ryder was the same caliber as Malette's weapon. He is under arrest.

CANADIAN ROAD IS HELD LIABLE

Judgment Against Canadian Northern for Fire Damage Is Upheld.

Crockston, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court of the state yesterday affirmed the judgment that Fred R. Rebeck secured in the district court of Polk county for damages against the Canadian Northern railway for the destruction of timber and other property on his homestead in the northern part of the state by fire alleged to have been started by sparks from the railroad's locomotive.

Justice Brown wrote the decision, which after upholding the action of the lower court in allowing an amendment to the complaint and in refusing defendant's motion for a continuance says: "A homestead entryman, in possession of his claim under a valid entry, is, except as between himself and the United States, the owner of all timber cut by him on the said claim, and need not, in an action for the destruction by fire of such timber, prove that the said timber was cut in good faith for the purpose of preparing the land for tillage.

"In an action for injury and destruction of personalty by a fire alleged to have been set by defendant's locomotive, evidence held sufficient to show an assignment of the property owner's claim for such injury and destruction to the plaintiffs."

NAME UNIVERSITY HALLS.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Merrifield hall and Woodworth hall are the names selected for two buildings at the University of North Dakota to honor men who were for many years prominent in the affairs of the institution, and one of whom was a former St. Paul resident.

Woodworth hall is named after Prof. Horace B. Woodworth, who died at St. Paul about two years ago. He was a professor on the university faculty nineteen years. Merrifield hall is named after the former president, who served in that capacity seventeen years, and who, previous to that time, was a member of the faculty for six years.

AVERAGE FARM YIELD.

Only About $700 Per Year in Wisconsin Statistics Show.

Madison, Wis., May 11.—That the farmer is not a bloated capitalist with a large earning capacity, was brought out yesterday in the discussion by the committee of fifteen appointed by Superintendent C. P. Cary to ascertain the best plans for improving the rural schools of the state.

The morning discussion was upon the earning capacity of the farmer and it was declared the farmer could not be judged by men who exhibited at the state fairs, but that one must have lived in a rural community to know much about the earning capacity. Some figures submitted show that the average farm in Wisconsin earns about $700.

THEY FOUNDED ST. CLOUD.

Fifty-Eight Years Ago Six Families Started Town.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 11.—Thursday was the fifty-eighth anniversary of the arrival of the original German colony in St. Cloud. The descendants of these early argonauts are today among the prominent residents of St. Cloud and Stearne county. Nearly all of the members of this party, which numbered thirty souls, are dead. They were the fore runners of that great number of Germans who settled Stearns county and who were among its early pioneers.

The party comprised the six families of the Rosenbergers, the Emmels, Anton Schmitt, Stephen Steinbauer, S. Reichert and Henry Luebbesmeier. They were all natives of Germany who had settled at Cumberland, Md., and where they had lived for five years when they heard of the new opportunities in Minnesota.

Corrects Muscle-Sag and Erases Wrinkles

Beauty experts claim that with old-fashioned Chinese ice-pencils you can actually erase wrinkles. They also say that because of its slightly astringent properties loose muscles can be contracted and flabby cheeks made firm and smooth.

To rub out wrinkles apply Chinese ice-pencil to wrinkle and massage the long way of crease. This absorbs the fatty membranes on each side of the furrow, and the tissues under the crease are excited to healthy activity. For saggy flesh or flabby muscles, apply pencil, then massage from corners of mouth to ears. This treatment also cleanses the skin of impurities and dispels sallowness and oiliness. Chinese ice-pencils are sold by druggists for 50c each, and once the rejuvenating effects are noted they will be found on every well-groomed woman's toilet table.

PLAN VARIOUS CONTESTS.

In addition to these several features, the final contest in the North Dakota High School Debating league will take place, the fight for the championship of the state lying between the Hatton and Leeds high school debating teams.

ISHPEMING BOY DROWNS.

Girl Dives After Him Getting Body, But Too Late.

Ishpeming, Mich., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—While playing on the Lake Bancroft dock at the foot of Lake street, Thursday afternoon, Willie, 3-year-old son of Garfield Wollie fell into the water. The body was recovered within twenty-five minutes, but all attempts to restore life were unsuccessful.

The little fellow, with the 3-year-old daughter of Howard Waters, was playing on the dock. He got too close to the edge of the pier and fell into the water. His playmate ran home and informed her mother. Mrs. Waters spread the alarm. Miss Margaret Scribner, daughter of Superintendent of Schools Scribner, who lives in the vicinity, hurried to the lake, plunged into the water and recovered the body. As she was carrying the little form to shore she was met by Thomas Sullivan the mail carrier. Mr. Sullivan assisted her with her burden and then notified Chief Lacey of the fire department by telephone. Mr. Lacey tried ineffectually to resuscitate the boy.

CAUGHT AT MANKATO.

Omaha Couple Arrested on Charge of Murdering Man.

Mankato, Minn., May 11. — James Adams and wife, suspected of murdering Paul Simpson at Omaha a few days ago, were arrested here last night on the arrival of the Omaha train, by local officers on instructions from the Omaha police.

They admitted that Simpson died at their home in Omaha, but deny that they had anything to do with his death, claiming that it was due to an overdose of morphine taken by himself and that despite their efforts to revive him he died during the night. Becoming frightened they decided to leave for St. Paul. The prisoners declare there was no ill-feeling whatever between themselves and Simpson, and there was no cause for taking his life.

Lives There a Woman With a Soul So Dead Who Does Not Want Nice Hair on Her Head?

—HERPICIDE—

Certainly not! Every woman admires beautiful hair and wants it. Every woman can have nice hair. Not the kind that may be purchased at the store, but real live hair growing on her own head. There is nothing adds so much to woman's charm as a nice head of natural fluffy hair. It is not difficult to have nice hair. If not interfered with the hair will grow long and luxuriantly.

The most destructive and most prevalent form of hair trouble is dandruff. Herpicide kills the germ which causes this annoying accumulation, keeps the scalp clean and prevents the hair from falling out. This allows the follicles not already atrophied to spring into life, shooting forth from the tiny dormant papilla new healthy hair.

You experience marvelous benefit from the first application. The terrible itching which is indicative of dandruff stops at once. The hair becomes glossy and lustrous with a beauty that always indicates a clean healthy scalp. More men and women have gotten positive results from the use of Newbro's Herpicide than from all other remedies combined. Why then court possible disappointments by using an off brand hair remedy when you can just as easily and cheaply have Herpicide, The Original Dandruff Germ Destroyer? It makes all hair beautiful.

THE HERPICIDE CO., Dept. 81B, Detroit, Michigan, will, upon receipt of Ten Cents in postage or silver send a sample bottle and valuable pamphlet about the hair to any address.

Herpicide in 50 cents and $1.00 sizes may be found at all toilet goods counters. Ask your own dealer for it. If you are not satisfied he will refund your money. Applications obtained at the better barber shops and hair-dressing parlors.

TWO FAMOUS OLD LANDMARKS ON SUPERIOR STREET WILL BE REPLACED BY MODERN STRUCTURES

THE OLD WINDSOR HOTEL BEING WRECKED.

Duluth's old landmarks are giving way to the march of progress. This year will see the removal of at least three well-known and antiquated Superior street structures. They will be replaced by modern, fireproof buildings.

The old Windsor hotel at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue west and Superior street was a popular and well-known hostelry in the early days of Duluth. It is being torn down to make room for the new Henderson block.

There is hardly a Duluth pioneer who does not recall Andrew Miles, a wealthy colored man who flourished here about twenty years ago. Mr. Miles, in 1884, put up the Miles block at 19 West Superior street. This week it is being torn down to give way to the new McDonald block.

The old Miles block was the last piece of property which Mr. Miles owned in Duluth. At one time he was rated as being worth $400,000, but his fortune slipped away and the Miles block which he owned for a number of years was also sold. Mr. Miles is now said to live in Seattle.

On the northeast corner of Sixth avenue west and Superior street, the Hamm Brewing company is erecting a modern hotel building to replace an old wooden shack which has been an eyesore to this corner for years. The improvement to the corner will be a substantial one.

The new Henderson block, when wrecking operations on the Windsor hotel building have been completed, will be erected on this site. It will carry three stories on Superior street and four on Michigan street and will cost in the neighborhood of $40,000. The frontage on Superior and Michigan streets will be forty feet and on the avenue it will be 115 feet. The owner is C. E. Henderson.

The old Miles block, a three-story structure at 19 West Superior street, and the Model Clothing company at 17 West Superior street, will be torn down so that a modern six-story structure to cost $65,000 may be built. Wrecking operations have already been started.

BUILDING PERMITS PASS $100,000 MARK FOR WEEK

Several Important Projects Under Way in Business District.

Two Stories Will Be Added to the Providence Building.

Duluth building permits for the past week climbed beyond the $100,000 mark breaking all records since the first of the year. In view of the fact that the record of building permits is generally conceded to be a good barometer of the building situation, the outlook is said to be most encouraging.

The number of permits taken out totalled twenty-seven and the improvements called for represented an expenditure estimated at $108,625. This is a considerable increase over last week's figures, the estimated cost represented in twenty-five permits issued during that time being $45,638.

The list of the week's permits includes one for the erection of the new McDonald block on Superior street between Lake and First avenue west on the site now occupied by the old Miles block and the Model clothing store. This improvement alone will cost $65,000.

Local architects and builders report that there is considerable new work in sight for the coming few weeks.

There are several down-town projects already under way. These include the new Henderson block, Fifth avenue west and Superior street, new hotel building for Hamm Brewing company, Sixth avenue west and Superior street, the new McDonald block and the Duluth Telephone exchange, First street near Fourth avenue west.

A local architect is said to be preparing plans for an addition of two stories to the Providence building at the southeast corner of Fourth avenue west and Superior street. W. B. Silvey, who went down with the ill-fated Titanic, was interested in this proposition and upon his return to Duluth, had contemplated bringing the project to a head. It is understood that the other owners of the building have completed the necessary arrangements for the additional two stories and that an architect has been engaged. The Providence building now carries five stories on Superior street and six on Michigan street.

Architect Nystrom advises that bids for the erection of a new high school building at Biwabik to cost $125,000 will be opened next Wednesday. The same architect has prepared plans for a double house costing $6,000 and which will be erected on Fifteenth avenue east and Fourth street for E. D. Field & Co.

Architect Anthony Puck will take bids next week on the construction of the new $100,000 high school which will be erected at Buhl, Minn., this summer. There are indications that there will be a large number of contractors to bid for this work. The same architect is also working on plans for two other new out-of-town schools.

* * *

McLeod & Smith, have been awarded the contract for the building of a large garage and showroom for J. F. Killorin at Seventh avenue east and Superior street. The structure will be of brick, one story high and will front 150 feet on Superior street. Plans have been prepared by Architect F. G. German. It will cost $12,000.

* * *

Austin Terryberry, a local architect, this week let the contract for the E. R. Cobb bungalow to be built at Woodland park on Anoka street and to cost $3,000 to J. R. Quigley & Son. The same architect will take bids next week on the new bungalow residence to be built for A. W. Torrence at Thirteenth avenue east and Fifth street.

* * *

J. J. Tomshack is erecting a frame store building on Colorado street between Fifty-second and Fifty-third avenues east. It will cost $1,200.

* * *

The Hanford Investment company has started the construction of two frame residences, one on Fifth street between Tenth and Eleventh avenues east and the other on Sixth street between Third and Fourth avenues east. They will cost $3,500 each.

* * *

A. L. Wright took out a building permit this week for the erection of a $1,500 frame residence on Fifth street between Forty-second and Forty-third avenues west.

A. Blesener is erecting a frame dwelling on Mankato street between Crescent and Allendale avenues. It will cost $1,000.

"Built to Burn"

With truth, this legend might be written over the door of many a home in every city, town, and village in this country. Safeguards against fire are simple and effective, yet so few know about them, or seek to take advantage of them, that without the owner's knowledge many a new house, fair to look upon, is nothing more than a fire-trap, literally inviting destruction.

If you are building a new house, consider carefully this question of fire prevention, then the question of fire insurance. Build well, and then insure well by getting a fire insurance policy with the

Stephenson Insurance Agency

And you will have done what you ought for the protection of your property.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR BUSY MONTH IN REALTY

Market Experiences No Boom But Indicates Fair, Healthy Upward Trend.

Rainy Weather Had Depressing Influence—Sales and Transfers of Week.

While the local realty market experienced no boom in any particular direction during the past week, reports from dealers indicate that a fair business has been done and that the prospects for May are bright. City property is being held for good prices and is slow to move. A number of good acreage deals however are reported to be under way in a number of the offices.

Continued rainy weather the early part of the week had a depressing influence on the market and kept buyers from looking at property. If the present rainy weather continues, dealers anticipate that there will be no lull in business either in Duluth or elsewhere.

The Gary Land company this week sold eight lots at Gary. They went to purchasers at Cleveland, O., Chisholm and Ely. A. C. Volk, president, has received an inquiry from a steel car manufacturing company, an eastern concern which wants an option on a factory site at Gary. If the deal goes through Mr. Volk anticipates that it will mean the bringing to Duluth of a steel car plant which will involve an initial capital expenditure of $1,500,000.

Mr. Volk also has received what he believes to be a confirmation of the rumor that the Steel corporation will double the number of open hearth furnaces at the steel plant. The present plans call for seven furnaces but it is understood that eight more will be added.

• • •

L. A. Larsen of the L. A. Larsen company, reports a number of loans closed and the sale of the following properties:

To Joseph Cochran, a modern house and 66x100 lot on Thirty-ninth avenue west and Fifth street for Inga A. Anderson for $3,000.

To Emil and Edward T. Schlender, 70x100 foot lot on Eighth avenue east and Tenth street, for $650. This is in Lake View division and a block from the proposed car line on Ninth street.

To Frank Forsell lot 14, block 10, Selbourn park for $400.

The company also has earnest money on several deals in all parts of the city. The activity of Minnesota Point is reported to be especially gratifying. Mr. Larsen says that this season's business will be reasonably good considering the presidential election year and a careful buyer can now secure property located centrally and in close proximity to street car service and in a section where gas, water and sewer are in.

• • •

Increased inquiry for lots at Riverside addition to the townsite of St. Louis, Wisconsin, across the river from the steel plant, is reported by the Locker-Donahue company, which this week sold seven lots to Edward Hoffman and five to George Weinberg.

The same firm disposed of a tract of 160 acres in sec. 29, 6-12 to T. A. Ryan of Minneapolis, also a house and lot on Fourth street between Fourteenth and Fifteenth avenues east for Elsie Beier to Mary M. Putnam for $4,750.

• • •

E. D. Field & Co., report a good business during the past week in the sale of five and ten-acre garden tracts in the vicinity of Proctor. Several sales were made during the past week and a number of deals are now pending.

• • •

A. W. Kuehnow sold five lots during the week in Norton's Steel Plant division, where there has been considerable activity during the past few months. In the new division, thirty-two houses and three or four stores have been built. A contract was let recently for the erection of a forty-room hotel for Mrs. Matilda Moline.

• • •

Ebert, Walker & McKnight this week took earnest money on a 1,000-acre tract located on the Cuyuna range. The purchastrs are mining men from the range, who contemplate having the property tested for ore.

The same firm also disposed of 120 acres in Lake county to a Duluth investor and forty acres near Pike Lake to John Klaus.

E. G. Kreidler of West Duluth reports four sales during the past two weeks and advises that business prospects for May are good. He sold seventy-five feet on the upper side of Fifty-fourth avenue west between Gosnold and Nicollet streets for William Hogan to Samuel B. Johnson for $1,400. Mr. Johnson this week resold 37½ feet of this frontage to Henry W. Grand for $700.

The other sales negotiated through Mr. Kreidler's office were:

From Park Realty company to William Baldwin, a twenty-five-foot frontage on the west side of Fifty-seventh avenue west, between Huntington and Olney streets. No consideration given.

From the Widsom Land company to Gottfrid Johnson, a twenty-five-foot frontage on the east side of Central avenue between Seventh and Eighth streets. No consideration given.

From Otto Boo to Gustaf Alfred Sundquist, a thirty-four-foot frontage on fifth street between Fortieth and forty-first avenues west.

One of the important sales of residence property during the week is recorded in the real estate transfers in the sale of a property at the northeast corner of Thirteenth avenue east and Second street by Emily L. Fee to Jennie E. Erickson for $12,500.

• • •

For a consideration of $6,000, T. W. Hoffman this week purchased from W. A. McClaren, a house and fifty-foot frontage on the lower side of Jefferson street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth avenues east.

• • •

The southwest corner of Twenty-sixth avenue east and Third street, fronting 100 feet on Third street and 140 feet on the avenue, was sold this week by Frances R. Wright to Kay S. Richardson for $4,500.

• • •

D. R. McLennan this week purchased from Howard T. Abbott for $3,900 a property fronting fifty feet on the lower side of First street, between Twenty-second and Twenty-third avenues east.

• • •

A twenty-five-foot frontage on Sixth street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues east, upper side, was sold for $3,350 by John T. Stack to Frank McTiri this week.

• • •

A house and thirty-foot frontage on the east side of Twelfth avenue east, between Sixth and Seventh streets was sold for $1,800 this week by Jacob D. Drumader to A. Goldfarb.

• • •

Patrick R. Carpenter this week sold to Robert B. Whiteside for $1,000 a fifty-foot frontage on the upper side of Oneota street, between Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth avenues west.

NOSEBLEED IN ADULTS.

Youth's Companion: In the young epistaxis, or nosebleed, is of slight consequence, in the mature it is more significant and in the elderly or the aged it may be a serious symptom.

When a middle aged person has attacks of nosebleed the underlying cause must be found, for it may be anything from some slight change in the mucous membrane of the nose to organic disease or a malignant growth.

The bleeding may be a symptom of disease in the heart, the kidneys or the liver. Although the blood comes from the nose, the nose itself is not always at fault. Sometimes the hemorrhage is so slight as hardly to cause remark on the part of the patient; sometimes it is so severe as to menace life itself; in still other cases the loss of blood is distinctly beneficial, for it relieves some overburdened organ. That is the case with middle aged persons whose nosebleed is the result of increased blood pressure, due to trouble of the heart or the kidneys.

Any disease that interferes with the return of the blood from the head into the body may cause a passive congestion of the mucous lining of the nose—sometimes seen in cases of valvular disease or in chronic bronchitis. Goitres, or tumors of the neck, act mechanically to produce the same result.

In stout full blooded adults an attack of nosebleed is often preceded by a severe headache or other symptom indicating too much blood in the head, in which cases the hemorrhage will relieve the headache. The same thing is often true in cases of tinnitus, or noises in the head. If the hemorrage is severe the same symptoms—headache and tinnitus—may follow as a result of the anaemia.

A person no longer young who has recurring attacks of nosebleed for which he can find no local or mechanical cause should have a physician make a thorough examination of him to see that nothing ails his kidneys, heart, lungs or liver.

WEATHER IS TOO RAINY

Persistent Reports of Hindrance to Farm Work Bulls Price of Wheat.

Flax Market Lifeless—Offers Light and Demand Slow—Values Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 11.—Reports of too much rain in many parts of the United States, particularly in Iowa, caused a bullish movement of wheat on the markets of North America this morning and values for the most part closed higher than they did yesterday. Many sections complain of serious hindrance to spring farm work, particularly the planting of corn, and as the price of corn always has more or less effect on that of wheat, to bull corn invariably has some effect in the direction of bulling wheat. Another bullish item in the general grain market news was the report from Odessa of heavy frost and much damage to the Russian grain crops. While this could affect the North American markets only very indirectly, it nevertheless accentuated the general bullish feeling on this side of the Atlantic. Moreover, the primary wheat receipts showed a falling off, as has been the case for many days, from what they were a year ago.

Duluth July wheat closed today at an advance of ¾c to ⅞c. There were similar gains at Chicago and Minneapolis. Winnipeg July closed unchanged but Winnipeg May advanced ¼c under May and ⅜c to ¼c over ⅛c under May and ⅝c to ¼c over July. Oats lost an eighth. Durum, rye and barley closed unchanged.

Buenos Ayres wheat closed last night ¼c lower to unchanged and today there was a further decline of ⅜c to ½c. Most of the news from the European markets was bearish. Liverpool wheat closed ½d to ½d lower, the chief bearish factor being the modern Miller report, which was received late yesterday, giving a very optimistic view of the winter wheat situation of the Southwest.

Flaxseed Dull and Unchanged.

The flaxseed market of Duluth was lifeless today, offers being very light and the demand slack. There were ten cars on the track for inspection, most of it having been previously sold. Duluth May and July flaxseed both closed unchanged from the closing price of yesterday. Winnipeg May flax closed ¼c off at $1.97⅞ bid. Buenos Ayres closed last night at $1.78⅛, being 2¾c up and today it closed at a further gain of 1⅝c. London Calcutta May and June closed today at $2.31⅝, being ⅞c up. Minneapolis was today once more bidding three cents under the Duluth price for cash flaxseed.

The Chicago Paint, Oil & Drug Review says:

"The linseed oil market is very much firmer than it was last week. The open quotation is 71c, but the general market is 70c for strictly pure, raw linseed oil in car load lot in cooperage. Some sales have been recorded at 69c, but the tendency of crushers to favor this price is rapidly disappearing, and the situation is so strong that it is questionable whether a more favorable price than 70c is obtainable.

"The paint manufacturers are rapidly taking the balance of their spring contracts, which is making a heavy demand for oil, but the buyers are not coming forward for summer contracts, and the tendency seems to be to move paint stocks and get a line on the summer business before placing any material orders for summer deliveries. This is having a tendency to check new business to some extent—at least for contract deliveries. On the other hand, with the firm haxseed market and linseed oil not being accumulated in crushers' hands, a very favorable opportunity is not offered for low prices. The situation is very firm and crushers are looking for higher prices, and it is predicted that an advance can be expected almost any day. The general price in Chicago which jobbers are asking is 76c a gallon for strictly pure, raw linseed oil in barrel lots.

"The linseed cake demand is satisfactory for summer and fall deliveries. It is reported that drouth in the western part of Europe is causing a much heavier demand for cake, and this has had a tendency to stiffen prices for future deliveries. The result is that $32.50@33.00 is the asking price at this time f. o. b. Chicago.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Hits Down Grade on Reports of Winter Crop Belt Rains.

Chicago, May 11.—Good general rains throughout the winter crop belt today put the wheat market on the downgrade. Weakness at Liverpool was also a depressing factor, although largely due to bearish reports from this side. For the time being conditions northwest in regard to diminished acreage appeared to be forgotten. The opening was ⅞c lower to ⅛@¼c up July started at $1.13½ to $1.13¾, varying from a shade off to ⅛@¼c advance, and gradually declined to $1.13¼.

After a further break, prices rallied sharply on account of active cash demand and because of statements that North Dakota losses may be offset by gains in South Dakota and Minnesota. The close was firm with July ¼c net higher at $1.13¾@1.13⅞.

Delay to planting strengthened corn, but large receipts and the backset in wheat resulted later in a downturn. July opened ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c higher, at 78¼c to 78⅜c and sagged to 77⅞c.

Feeling continued easy the remainder of the session with July closing ¼@⅜c net lower at 77⅜c.

Free selling under the leadership of a prominent house had a discouraging effect on the bulls in the oats crowd. The weakness of other grain counted also against the market. July started ⅛c to ¼@⅜c higher, at 54c to 54¼@54⅜c and descended to 53⅞c.

Support for provisions was poor, and there was a good deal of scattered realizing on the part of miscellaneous longs. First sales ranged from 2½c to 22½c lower, with September delivery $19.25 to $19.40 for pork, $10.82½ to $10.90 for lard, and $10.45 to $10.47½ for ribs.

London Stocks.

London, May 11.—American securities opened steady here today, with prices showing little change from the New York closing of yesterday, but later advanced under the lead of United States Steel issues on the favorable statement of unfilled orders. The market worked off a little near the close and the final tone was easy with prices ⅜d higher to ⅜d lower for the day.

New York Money.

New York, May 11.—Money on call nominal. Time loans easier; 60 days, 3¼ per cent, and 90 days, 3¼@3½ per cent; six months, 3¾ per cent.

Close: Prime mercantile paper, 4 to 4½ per cent. Sterling exchange steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.84.20 for 60 day bills, and at $4.86.75 for demand. Commercial bills, $4.83½. Mexican dollars, 45c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds firm.

Cotton Market.

New York, May 11.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of one to six points. There appeared to be heavy liquidation of long accounts while there was also considerable pressure from local bears and prices showed a net loss of from 9 to 12 points by the end of the first half hour. Prices later rallied 6 or 7 points from the lowest.

Futures closed steady; bids: May, 11.28; June, 11.28; July, 11.35; August, 11.39; September, 11.44; October, 11.49; November, 11.52; December, 11.59; January, 11.54; February, 1.55; March, 11.62. Spot quiet; middling uplands, 11.70; middling gulf, 11.95; sales, 91 bales.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Higher Prices at Opening More Than Maintained to the Close.

Favorable Statement as to Steel Conditions Has a Bullish Effect.

New York, May 11.—Dealings in Lehigh Valley constituted the main feature of a generally strong opening of today's stock market. Lehigh opened with an advance of 1 point which it soon extended to 2. Another conspicuous feature was United States Steel, which opened with a block of 7,000 shares at 68¼ to 68½ as against yesterday's closing of 67¾. Various other standard issues displayed marked strength, the only notable exception being Reading, which failed to follow the general lead. Canadian Pacific recorded a 1-point decline with some slight heaviness in Amalgamated and Anaconda Coppers. A feature of the bond dealings was a sale of $100,000 par value Wabash refunding 4's at a slight fractional advance.

The pace set at the opening was more than retained, Reading soon following the other standard issues with a new point rise. United States Steel rose a point with gains of as much or more in numerous specialties, including International Harvester, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric and American Tobacco. Both the American Can common and preferred made new high records. American Beet Sugar fell a point, but soon recovered. Illinois Central also regained some of its recent loss.

The market closed strong. United States Steel and other stocks of speculative importance added to their previous advantage and the market as a whole seemed to gather fresh stimulus from the publication of a favorable statement as to steel trade conditions. The advance included over a score of industrials, to the relative neglect, however, of the railway group. Final prices, showed some declines from the best.

MARINE NEWS

NO CARGO ON RETURN TRIP

Lack of Coal Shipments Cuts Into Profits of Vessel Owners.

Plenty of Eastbound Freight But Little Coming to the West.

The navigation season is in full swing so far as the movement of boats is concerned.

The ore shipping is not as heavy as it will be later. Hard coal has not commenced to come up the lakes as yet, but grain, ore, merchandise and lumber are keeping the boats busy.

Vessel owners are very anxious for the difficulties between labor and the owners of the mines to be settled for many of the boats are forced to come to Duluth light for ore or grain and this makes one-half of the trip a losing proposition.

It is now thought that the shipping of hard coal will not begin until June 1. While the boats will be busy, the owners are not making as much money as if they could bring coal back to Duluth. Soft coal is coming gradually, but it is mostly that which was left over on Eastern docks last season.

There has not as yet been one cargo of hard coal received at the local ports this season and the local docks are nearly bare of the commodity. There is a good demand for coal locally and from the western part of the state and the Dakotas the people are in need of it.

Tug Goulder Leaves.

The tug Harvey D. Goulder left yesterday for Lorain, where she will go into service for the entire season for the Standard Oil company. The tug Goulder was chartered some time ago by the oil concern to tow a new oil barge between Cleveland and Fort William.

Nemadji Is Launched.

A special dispatch to The Herald from Racine, Wis., states that the new government boat Nemadji for use in the Duluth-Superior harbor, was launched today.

The new boat will replace the Tangent. The boat will be used for inspection work about the local harbor.

LONGSHOREMEN BAR INDUSTRIAL WORKERS.

Tacoma, Wash., May 11.—A resolution barring the Industrial Workers of the World from the Longshoremen's union was adopted by the Pacific coast district convention of the Longshoremen's union. The question as to the strike was discussed. The men now receive 15 cents an hour straight. They want 75 cents an hour for overtime.

Sault Passages.

Sault Ste. It was the first upbound trip made by the line's freighters since the opening of the season.

THE PERSIAN PIPE-BEARER.

Wide World Magazine: A picturesque feature of Persian field sports is the pipe-bearer, an important retainer who rides close behind his master, bearing the whole elaborate paraphernalia of the Persian water-pipe, down to the glowing charcoal suspended in a small brazier. If the party is a large one, it will generally be found that some member of it is riding soberly along, pulling steadily at a large silver "Kalian" or water-pipe, the pointed base of the water-bowl being securely supported by a strap fixed to the peak of the saddle. It is a commonplace that Persian servants—and, indeed, Persians, in general—are at their best when hunting or traveling, and, really, for the latter the Persian servant is excellent; thoroughly at his ease, very cheerful, and impervious to fatigue.

AN ISLAND FOR DUCK SHOOTERS.

Norfolk Landmark: Little Stinger Island, only 10 by 22 feet, will be sold this week for $15,000, representing the highest price paid for a piece of land of such small dimensions ever to be recorded in Princess Anne county.

Although Little Stinger island only contains 220 square feet of land rising from the waters of Black bay, Va., its value lies in the fact that it forms a natural battery for shootign ducks and is located at the lead to the great Virginia and Carolina ducking grounds. The title includes a strip of land on the mainland which, however, has no particular value except for the erection of a clubhouse.

HOW LOUIS NAPOLEON ESCAPED.

Le Journal des Debats: In discussing the origin of Louis Napoleon's nickname of "Badinguet" some details were given incidentally of his escape from the fortress of Ham in Northern France on May 25, 1846. Fuller details are now available, thanks to the researches of M. Thirria, and in view of the escape of Capt. Lux they have a special interest at the present moment.

It seems that the sole credit for the escape must lie with Louis Napoleon himself. He made his valet, Thelin, buy a black wig, some rouge, a cap which was scrubbed with pumice stone and a pair of sabots. Then he cut off his mustache, put on a blue apron, a blue pair of trousers and a close fitting shirt of coarse stuff.

Some workmen were carrying out some repairs to that part of the fortress where the prince lodged and this gave color to his disguise, so much so that the two watchmen entertained no suspicions regarding the man who walked past them and out at the great gate, a pipe in his mouth and a plank on his shoulder. The sergeant on duty at the drawbridge was reading a letter as he passed and took no notice of him. It was then 5 o'clock in the morning.

Four times that day, the last time at 5 in the afternoon, did the governor, Demarle, send for the prince. Each time Dr. Conneau replied that the prisoner could not see anybody because he had taken medicine. When at last the governor lost patience and went himself to the prince's room and walked up to the bed on which the supposed invalid was lying he discovered that a very presentable dummy had taken the place of Louis Napoleon. The discovery was made too late. By that time the fugitive was over the Belgian frontier.

More men are "henpecked" by seemingly adverse circumstances than by their wives. A little advertising may help you to boss your own circumstances.

MEXICAN REBELS TO MAKE LAST STAND IN BATTLE AT RELLANO

Orozco Admits That Madero's Army Is Better Equipped With Cannons.

Claims Federal Losses in Sunday Battle Were Very Severe.

Big Fight Will Take Place Where Gen. Salas Was Defeated.

Rellano, Mex., May 13.—Gen. Orozco, the rebel chief, today mustered his army for a final stand against the advancing federals.

Admitting that the government forces are better equipped in artillery, the rebel leader declares he is withdrawing his troops to the vicinity of Rellano so they may have the advantage of fortifications and trenches in this vicinity, from which three weeks ago, the rebels nearly annihilated the federal command of Gen. Gonzales Salas, who committed suicide while the battle was in progress.

Though rebel casualties in the engagement yesterday were great, the Liberal leaders declare the government likewise suffered badly, and except for the loss of the important positions at Conejos, they claim an even break in the fighting.

All of the generals and their commands have been ordered to mobilize here, where the entire fighting strength of the insurrectos will be thrown against the enemy.

Rebels Still Retreating.

At the Federal Front, Conejos, Mexico, May 13.—Burning bridges behind them, the Mexican rebels today con-

REFUSE TO JOIN THE PRESSMEN

Los Angeles Union and Chicago Printers Decline to Stop Work.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 13. — The pressmen of the Los Angeles Examiner, Hearst paper, will ignore the call of President Barry of the International Pressmen's union, and remain at work, it is understood. Their contract, which was signed about a week ago, carried a raise in wages.

No Support From Printers.

Chicago, May 13.—Fewer arrests were made today in the newspaper strike than at any time since the beginning of the labor trouble. The action of the Typographical union in voting 1,099 to 655 against joining the pressmen and stereotypers in a sympathetic strike, apparently had a discouraging effect on the strikers and their friends, and as a result "pickets" who volunteered to prevent the street sales of newspapers were not as aggressive as on previous days.

Newspapers were sold practically in every section of the city and at many localities without police protection.

Managers of the newspapers declare that the backbone of the strike is broken and that they expect normal conditions in a few days. For several days the newspapers have been issuing full sized editions and the only inconvenience experienced has been in circulating the papers.

COLD WAVE IS WIDESPREAD

Winter Extends From Montana Eastward as Far as Ohio.

Duluth and Colorado Get Snow But Wyoming Has Coldest Place.

Washington, May 13. — A belated cold wave sweeping down from the Canadian Northwest is causing frost, snow and shivering temperatures today from Montana and Colorado eastward to Ohio. The cool weather extends south as far as Texas, and by tonight and tomorrow will have reached the Atlantic coast, causing frosts and probable snow in the states along the Canadian border.

This morning there were low temperatures with frosts in the Missouri and Upper Mississippi valleys and western lake regions.

Freezing Weather Reported.

The thermometer registered freezing at many places in the Northwest and Central Rocky Mountain region, and there was snow in Colorado and at Duluth, Minn.

Cheyenne, Wyo., reported the coldest weather, with the thermometer registering 26 deg.

It was 32 at Detroit and Denver and 34 at Duluth. Temperatures at other places were: Cleveland, 38; Chicago, 44;

CRITICIZING THE BISHOPS

Some Methodists Complain of Charges for Lectures and Sermons.

Move Toward Diocesan System Seen in Report of Committee.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—That bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church who charge for special sermons and lectures when they receive each year a salary of $5,000 and traveling expenses may receive a "slap" from the general conference before the session closes here, is indicated by several memorials on the subject which have been presented to the committee of episcopacy. It is claimed by those behind the memorials that the salary of the bishops is sufficient, and that in many cases the prices for the lecture or sermons are so exhorbitant that the poorer churches, which need a bishop's presence most, are unable to pay it.

May Retire Two.

It is rumored that the episcopacy committee, as a sort of compromise between the two factions, will recommend the retirement of two bishops at the present session. One faction, it is said, urged the retirement of several,

FILE PLANS FOR $26,000,000 BRIDGE

Huge Structure Will Reach From San Francisco to Oakland.

San Francisco, Cal., May 13.—A map and plans of the proposed bridge across San Francisco bay to Oakland have been filed with the board of supervisors.

The roadway will swing 150 feet above the water, hung from ten steel and concrete piers, constituting eight arches. The total suspension will be 17,840 feet, in sections 2,230 feet long. Four thousand feet will rest on Yerba Buena island, which will divide the structure. The San Francisco approach will take off from the summit of Telegraph hill, which has been reserved by the government for a light station.

The total cost is estimated at $26,000,000.

TURKISH PORTS ALL BOTTLED UP

Italians Are Occupying Islands in Grecian Archipelago.

Rome, May 13.—It is announced in the newspapers today that the occupation by Italy of the islands of Karpathos, Kazo, Piscopi (Tilos) and Nisyro, in the Grecian archipelago and belonging to Turkey, together with the capture of the Turkish islands of Stampalia and Rhodes, completely closes the Aegean sea. Turkey is thus blockaded and isolated from the Mediterranean, and she is consequently unable to dispatch warships or troops to Tripoli.

ASKS REID OF STEEL TRUST

Government Counsel in Suit Calls Defendant as Witness.

Railroad Man Declines to Tell How Much Stock He Holds.

New York, May 13.—Daniel G. Reid, the railroad financier, a director in the United States Steel corporation and member of its finance committee, was called as a witness at the resumption today of the hearing in the government's suit to dissolve the corporation, before Commissioner H. P. Brown. Mr. Reid is the first defendant to appear on the witness stand.

Mr. Reid was asked to testify concerning the organization of the National Steel, the American Tin Plate, the American Steel Hoop and the American Sheet Steel companies, in which Mr. Reid, together with William H. Moore and J. H. Moore, were the dominant factors before the concerns were taken into the so-called trust. Reid and William H. Moore both became directors of the corporation upon the absorption of their companies. The government contends that all four companies were themselves illegal combinations.

Declined to Tell of Steel.

Mr. Reid gave his business as "chairman of the Rock Island & Pacific railroad." He said he was a stockhold-

SOCIALISTS OPEN NATIONAL MEET

Committee Is Split Over Asiatic Immigration Plank.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 13.—After the election of committees on resolutions, platform and constitution, the Socialist national convention was today to begin consideration of reports of special committees on immigration, extension of Socialist propaganda among farmers, and a campaign for the votes of women in states that have granted them the ballot.

The committee on immigration has been unable to agree, and majority and minority reports will be submitted. The majority report declares the party should advocate stricter Asiatic exclusion on the ground that "owing to social and racial peculiarities, the Asiatic races are the most difficult to mold into an effective revolutionary body; that the capitalists welcome this immigration, and that its effect on economic and political class organizations is destructive."

That "the idea of national seclusion is fallacious and Asiatic immigrants can and will be arrayed against the capitalist class," is maintained in the minority report. It denies that the workers of the Pacific coast demand stricter Asiatic exclusion.

Candidates for president and vice president are to be nominated on Friday and the convention will adjourn Saturday.

TRAP FOR ARCHBALD

Confidential Clerk Testifies at Hearing of Charges Against Judge.

Says Boland Planned the Affair — Culm Dump Worth $47,000.

Washington, May 13.—The hearing of charges against Judge R. W. Archbald of the commerce court was resumed today by the house judiciary committee. Allan B. Cockrell, a confidential clerk in the interstate commerce commission, was the first witness, and G. F. Brownell, first vice president of the Erie railroad, whom Judge Archbald is alleged to have asked about the Katydid culm bank property, was among those present ready to testify.

Mr. Cockrell prepared the memorandum of charges against Judge Archbald which was submitted by Interstate Commerce Commissioner Meyer. Cockrell made notes of the charges as outlined to Commissioner Meyer by W. P. Boland of the Marion Coal company of Scranton, Pa.

About That Last Suit.

The memorandum set forth that some years ago the Marion Coal company, owned by the Boland brothers, had as manager a man named Peel, who was discharged and filed suit for

MAY SPLIT UP IN TENNESSEE

Compromise at State Republican Convention Is Talked About.

Nashville, Tenn., May 13.—The state Republican committee met here today to make up the temporary roll for tomorrow's convention, which names national convention delegates and electors from the state at large. Secretary Renfro puts the number of delegates in contest at 147 and claims 316 delegates out of 591 are instructed for Taft. The Roosevelt forces do not concede this. Some compromise talk is heard.

SENATE COMMITTEE WANTS PRESIDENT TO HAVE BUT ONE TERM

Washington, May 13.—The senate judiciary committee today decided to report favorably the Works resolution restricting the presidential tenure of office to a single term of six years. A minority report favoring a single term of four years also will be made from the committee. The reports are expected in a day or two.

ROOSEVELT SUPPORTERS IN COMPLETE CONTROL OF THE COUNTY CONVENTION

OLD GUARD IS OUSTED BY MINNESOTA G. O. P.

CHAIRMAN OF THE CONVENTION

JOSEPH AUSTIN
Of Chisholm.

Taft Probably Will Get No Votes From the Gopher State at Chicago.

La Follette Apparently Carried Ninth District—Balance for Roosevelt.

The Old Guard, which has controlled Republican politics in Minnesota for years, was swept from the political map by the Republican voters of the state in the caucuses Saturday and earlier last week.

At least twenty-two of Minnesota's twenty-four votes in the Republican national convention at Chicago will be for Theodore Roosevelt. Late returns indicate that La Follette carried the Ninth district, and he will probably have two members of the Minnesota delegation to the national convention.

Taft Nowhere a Factor.

The repudiation of the bosses was complete. Taft was nowhere a factor. Out of sixty-eight counties from which the caucus returns have been reported, Roosevelt appears to have carried 54, Taft 9 and La Follette 5. Five counties in the Ninth district have not been reported in detail, but they will probably go to La Follette and give the Wisconsin senator a majority in the district convention.

The present returns give Roosevelt 789 delegates in the state convention

SAN PEDRO RAMS ANOTHER VESSEL

Schooner That Sank the Columbia Strikes Sailing Vessel.

San Francisco, Cal., May 13.—The steam schooner San Pedro, bound for Eureka, ran down the wooden sailing schooner Mayflower, bound for the Coquille river, Oregon, early today, five miles northwest of Point Reyes.

The Mayflower was towed into port by the San Pedro, with her decks under water.

A collision with the San Pedro caused the sinking of the steamer Columbia off Shelter Cove, on the Mendocino coast, July 23, 1907, when eighty-six lives were lost.

MORE LAND IN SOUTH FLOODED

Water Fourteen Feet Deep in Streets at Irvinville, La.

New Roads, La., May 13.—Circling the bluffs of False river, which had served temporarily to check its progress, flood water from the levee break at Torras is today spreading ruin over the towns of the thickly settled country south of here. Plantation after plantation that dot the the Mississippi bottoms, some of them the largest and richest sugar cane producing fields on the west bank of the river, are covered with water.

A report from Irvinville, fifteen miles north of Port Allen, reached here today that the water was fourteen feet deep in the town. One hundred and fifty persons are said to be marooned there. Lieut. Rogers of the Federal relief corps is preparing to send relief to them.

Reports from Grosse Tete and Fordesche state that negroes marooned there are looting stores and residences.

Rail communication between New Roads and points south is seriously threatened this morning.

ARGUING FLOYD ALLEN'S CASE

Jurors May Not Begin Their Deliberations Until Wednesday.

Wytheville, Va., May 13.—Final arguments began today in the case of Floyd Allen, on trial for his life for the murder of Commonwealth's Attorney Foster at Hillsville. When court convened the judge passed upon the instructions to the jury and immediately afterward the opening speech for the prosecution began. Ten lawyers are to speak and the case may not be given to the jury before late Wednesday. The trial began two weeks ago tomorrow.

AUSTIN OF CHISHOLM IS CHAIRMAN

Resolutions Instructing Delegates to State Convention Unanimously Adopted.

J. B. Cotton, W. E. Culkin, H. C. Kendall and Others Address Gathering.

Larson for Delegate-at-Large and Eaton for District Delegate.

The overwhelming victory of Theodore Roosevelt in the Republican caucuses in St. Louis county Saturday night was ratified at the county convention held in the city hall this afternoon.

There were a few Taft men in the convention and a few who were anti-Roosevelt, but for a dark horse candidate, rather than for Taft, but they were lonesome. The bulk of the delegates were for Roosevelt and they had their way without opposition.

There was no contest on the organization of the convention and Joseph Austin, of Chisholm, who was elected chairman, was authorized by unanimous vote to appoint the committees. The thirty-nine delegates to the Eighth district convention at Hinckley Wednesday and the thirty-nine to the state convention at Minneapolis Thursday will vote for national convention delegates, who will vote consistently for the nomination of the sage of Sagamore hill for the presidential nomination.

Old Guard Missing.

The Old Guard was missing at the convention this afternoon. Here and there in the assemblage was a face familiar at Republican conventions in the county, but the great majority of the delegates were men who were heretofore known at the polls and seldom seen in a convention. Young men were numerous, while many others were older citizens to whom the first incentive to active politics has come in the progressive movement, of which Col. Roosevelt is the leader.

Called to Order.

The convention was called to order

WISCONSIN WILL NOT INSURE NEW CAPITOL.

Madison, Wis., May 13.—Contrary to the policy followed by most states, the state of Wisconsin will not insure its $6,000,000 capitol, now under construction, through private companies. The policy of insuring the state house, university buildings, the state asylums, and other public institutions by a deficiency fund process rather than by private companies was instituted during the reign of Governor La Follette and has been continued by his successors.

IS INJURING HIS PARTY

Democratic Politicians Deplore the Attitude of William J. Bryan.

Attacks on Various Candidates May Demolish Prospects of Success.

(By Willis J. Abbot.)

Washington, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Politicians in Washington, irrespective of their individual preferences for a Democratic presidential nominee, are much inclined to ridicule the collapse of Mr. Bryan's charge that Governor Harmon tried to buy delegates to the Denver convention of 1908. Indeed, when the charge was made it attracted but little serious attention. Most of the Democratic members of congress were in attendance upon that convention, and I am unable to find any of them who recall any mention of Harmon's name as a candidate for the nomination. Among the prominent newspaper correspondents who reported the convention proceedings there is none who remembers that, either in the hall of in the hotel lobbies, was there any discussion of Harmon. There was never a convention in which sentiment was so thoroughly fixed in ad-

SAVED FROM DROWNING

West Duluth Boy Owes Life to Watchman's Assistance.

Orville Fox, the 10-year-old son of Michael Fox, a longshoreman residing at 213 North Fifty-third avenue west, was saved from drowning yesterday afternoon by the presence of mind of Frank Cullen, a watchman at the new Northern Pacific bridge, who resides at 622 North Fifty-seventh avenue west.

The Fox boy was playing on a raft near the site of the Hunter & Brown sawmill with two other companions, when he fell into the water. He made an effort to climb back onto the raft, but was unable to do so. One of the boy's companions yelled for help, while the other attempted to lift the boy on the raft. He was unable to rescue his playmate, but managed to keep the latter's head above the water, until assistance might arrive.

Mr. Cullen, who is the watchman for the Northern Pacific bridge, which is being built near the scene of the accident, was on his way to work when he heard the cries for help. He realized the danger and immediately rushed out to the dock and managed to lift the boy from the water. The boy appeared lifeless, but after considerable rubbing and rolling about on the dock, life seemed to return to the boy. He later opened his eyes and finally resumed natural breathing.

Mr. Cullen then carried the lad to his home, where warm clothing was wrapped around him and hot drinks given him for fully half an hour. The boy did not show any effects of his experience this morning, with the exception of being a little weak from the shock and cold.

WILL INSTALL NEW PASTOR

Rev. W. L. Staub, who recently took charge of the pastorate of the Westminster Presbyterian church, Fifty-eighth avenue west and Ramsey street, will be officially installed as its pastor at a special service to be held Wednesday evening. Rev. J. A. McGaughey of the Second Presbyterian church will preside at the services. The charge to the people will be made by Rev. J. C. Jackson, Ky., May 13.—Under escort of 100 armed members of the Callahan faction, the body of Ed Callahan, feudist and former sheriff of Breathitt county, will be laid at rest this afternoon in Crocketsville.

When the news of his death Saturday night spread, it caused more excitement than his shooting from ambush a week ago while standing in the door of his store. The temper of the mountaineers is said to indicate an immediate reopening of the Callahan-Deaton feud. The circuit court, convening May 27, will take up the assassination.

AT THE COLUMBIA

Don't forget about our Ladies' Department when considering the purchase of mannish shirt waists, sweaters, hosiery (both lisle and silk), street gloves, shopping bags or slip-ons.

SHIRTS FOR WOMEN.

Our special mannish shirts for women are a line entirely different from others, being made by such manshirt makers as McDonald and Guiterman. We can assure more perfect fit and more mannish style, better fabrics and better laundry than you could possibly get in the average department or dry goods store. The fact is, they have an exclusiveness of their own. We have them in all fabrics and many colors, an ideal garment for morning, street wear or outing.

SWEATERS FOR WOMEN.

Our Sweater Department is so well known to the ladies of Duluth that it seems needless to call attention to it if you have in mind the purchase of a sweater. We have recenly added two new numbers which eclipse anything that we have yet carried in stock. One of them is a sweater which we price at $5.00 and copied after our well-known $8.00 and $12.00 coarse rib Webber sweaters. This garment was designed exclusively for us by Webber and it will be handled by us at the Head of the Lakes. Another is our Eiderdown jacket and hat to match. The price of this jacket is $7.50 and of the hat $3.00, coming in pongee and gray shades. Ask to see these when visiting our store, as we give you an idea if nothing more.

LADIES' SLIP-ONS.

During the past month we have certainly supplied a long-felt want in having a complete and varied stock of slip-ons for ladies; the range of price is from $2.85 to $13.50. All these garments have been manufactured according to our own ideas of good clothing and are cerainly different from the usual run of ladies' raincoats. This has been proven by the exceptional demand we have had for them and our stock is only now being replenished.

HOSIERY FOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

Do you know that we are the sole and only agents for the Everwear Hose (both cotton and silk) for the Head of the Lakes?

The 35 and 50-cent Everwear Hose come packed six in a box, containing coupons guaranteeing that if the six pair do not wear six months, new ones will be given free of charge at our own store or by mailing them to the Everwear Company. The silk hose come packed three in a box and sell at 75 cents with the same general guarantee. No questions are asked either, whether they are worn out at the toes or at the top—the whole stocking is guaranteed.

Our 95-cent silk hose claim to be better than any $1.25 hose sold in the city, and it has been universally pronounced so by those who have worn them. This stocking is also guaranteed against any tearing or failure to give perfect satisfaction.

Our stock of washable suits is now fully complete and contains an assortment from 50 cents up. We wish to call special attention to our Sprague's patent wash suits, which are made with the trousers and underwaists in one, avoiding the necessity of buying extra underwaists or of buttoning the trousers to the underwaist each time the garment is changed. These met with universal favor last season, so that this year we have doubled our stock of them. Price $1.00 per suit. In this connection we also wish to mention our new patent boys' waists with the loop. GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

"Either how canst thou say to thy brother, 'Brother let me pull out the mote that is in thine eye when thou thyself beholdest not the beam that is in thine own eye?'" Luke vi, 42.

Yesterday afternoon Louise Hanson caused the arrest of Ivy Cameron, a manicurist 22 years of age, on a charge of stealing a blue serge suit valued at $20 from her.

This morning when Louise and her friend, Violet Woods, appeared at headquarters to testify against Miss Cameron the police recognized them as a pair who are suspected of having robbed a Chinaman of about $100 in a downtown rooming house a short time ago.

The outcome of the affair was that Louise and Violet were informed that in the estimation of the police their room would be much more welcome than their company. Whereupon they displayed tickets to Chicago which they had already purchased, remarking that they intended to go anyhow. The Cameron girl was placed on probation for sixty days, at the end of which time sentence will be suspended if she has conducted herself properly in the meantime.

The prisoner, in her rather worn jacket and modest hat, offered a striking contrast to the complaining witness and her friend in their much gayer tailored garments when they came into the courtroom shortly after 10 o'clock this morning. The girl before the bar looked as though she worked for her living, although prosperity did not appear to have shone upon her any too plentifully.

The court questioned the Cameron girl at some length, inquiring as to her occupation, her previous place of residence and her home, which she said was in Minneapolis, where her parents are residing. She said she could not give any reason for having taken the Hansen girl's clothes. Apparently she acted upon impulse and went to Louise's room on West Second street, where she secured the clothes upon her statement to the landlady that Louise had sent her for them. Her appearance was in her favor and as it was her first offense she was given another chance to follow the path which does not lead to the police station.

The police say that in addition to the room on Second street, Louise and Violet have two connecting rooms in the Superior street place where the Chinaman lost his money. The victim is said to have been enticed into the room by one of the pair and after they were slumbering it is alleged that the other stole in quietly to rifle the pockets of the sleeping Chinaman. The latter has left the city and any prosecution of the girls was impossible.

This is not the first time Louise has come to the attention of the police. About a year ago she was brought in on a charge of having taken a check from her room mate, cashing it in a Superior street store. At that time she was given the same opportunity given the Cameron girl today.

The explosion of a kerosene lamp, which had been left burning over night in observance of a Jewish custom, drove Mrs. J. Gillas and her five children out into the street shortly before 3 o'clock this morning.

The explosion set fire to their home, 25 East Fourth street, and it was with difficulty that she and the children reached safety. She was first awakened by the dense smoke, which poured from the first floor. Aided by the oldest boy she roused the others and managed to grope their way to the stairway. They made their way down with difficulty and were outside when the fire department reached the scene, after a quick run. The house is the property of F. I. Salter. The blaze was rapidly extinguished. It is estimated that the loss will be about $150.

At 1:51 this morning the department put out a blaze discovered in the outside framework of the barber shop at 2503 West Superior street. The loss was trivial.

Shortly before 11 o'clock yesterday morning the department put out a small fire in the roof of the house at 1424 West Superior street. The loss was about $10.

George Adams and Bee Divers, both colored, got into an argument as to which direcion they should go bout 5 o'clock this morning. Patrolman Andree appeared on the scene and placed them under arrest on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. Whereupon both of them wanted to do mean things to the policeman. Bee forfeited $15 bail when her name was called in police court today, but Adams, who had $25 up to insure his appearance, pleaded not guilty and will be tried this afternoon.

Joe Dishaw, who was brought into headquarters for the 'steenth time Saturday on a charge of drunkenness, has been on one of his last sprees. Excessive indulgence in alcoholic drinks has had its effect on his nerves and today his feet and hands are practically paralyzed. He was in such shape that he could not be brought into court. Efforts will be made to place him in the hospital at the poor farm, where he can get medical attention.

MODERN METHODS CHEATING DEATH

Fat Burdened People Rejoicing.

According to the Syracuse Journal, Dr. Porter, N. Y. State Commissioner of Health, is authority for a statement to the effect that four deaths out of ten might be prevented; that the ravages of disease are also preventable by using common-sense and that public health in general, can be obtained at slight cost.

Thousands of people die every year from the effects of too much fat. By neglecting to do what would cause fat to disappear they just as good as commit suicide. Why over-fleshy people do not awaken to their dangerous condition is the wonder of the thinking world. Why women of means and opportunity, who use good judgment otherwise, permit days, weeks, months, even years to pass without writing to the famous Marjorie Hamilton, Suite 2286, Central Bank Building, Denver, Colorado, for full explanation of her marvelous drugless, home treatment for removal of superfluous fat cannot be understood. It is criminal to put off the serious matter of fat reduction considering its ill effects upon life and the human system, and to drug oneself is wrong inasmuch as the cause must be removed, not covered or nursed. The elimination of cause is where the treatment offered by Miss Hamilton is especially strong and the basic reason for the wonderful success of same throughout the world.

CANADA IS BOOMING

Ottawa Lumberman Says Railroads Have Hard Time Keeping Pace.

Has Not Noticed Any Chage in Sentiment on Recriprocity.

E. C. Whitney of Ottawa, a wealthy retired lumberman, is registered at the Spalding today.

Mr. Whitney is accompanied by his valet and is here simply on a pleasure trip. For thirty-three years Mr. Whitney was a resident of Minneapolis and is extensively acquainted in the Northwest.

"There is no country in the world that is going ahead at the present time like Canada," said Mr. Whitney. "But there is such a rush of business and such a high price on realty that sometimes I wonder whether there will not be a reaction. The progress that has been made in Canada during the past two decades is really something wonderful.

"I believe that the price of lumber going higher than it is at the present time. My former associates are all of that opinion. Right now there is a healthy and increasing demand for lumber.

"I do not believe there has been any change in the sentiment regarding reciprocity. We are doing so well over on the other side of the line that we naturally hesitate to change. Our railroads are going ahead at a rapid rate and are opening new channels of trde. Even with reciprocity I am not so sure that very much Canadian wheat would find entry into the United States.

"We understand that they are rushing work on the Pacific coast extension of the Canadian Northern railroad. In fact the railroad construction in Canada is remarkable and the railroad men are trying to keep pace with the tremendous industrial strides that the country is taking."

Mr. Whitney says he remembers the great boom in Duluth years ago, the first boom that the city enjoyed, and recalls the price of realty at that time. He has not been in Duluth for more than twenty years.

Luchich claims that while employed as a steel gang worker, he was injured by lightning and that although forewarned by the approaching storm, he was not allowed to quit work until after lightning had struck him.

RIVER HIGHEST IN TEN YEARS

Mississippi at La Crosse Is at 9.7 Feet Above Low Water Mark.

La Crosse, Wis., May 13.—The Mississippi river rose here today to 9.7 feet above low water mark, the highest point reached in ten years. The rise was 1.2 since Saturday and two feet since Friday. Continued advance is predicted for some days longer. The danger point here is twelve feet, which will hardly be reached, but the most serious results are to be anticipated from a renewal of the flood down river. The Mississippi here now stands three feet higher than in the rise which preceded the flood at Cairo.

Our Greater May Sale of Undermuslins.

Begins with greater assortments, lovelier and more exclusive styles and BETTER VALUES than ever before. It is something more than a Sale. It is a Fashion Event in Muslin Underwear, showing the same careful attention to style as is given women's Outer Apparel—Muslin Undergarments which fit without a wrinkle to enhance the faultless lines of suit or gown. Latest trimming conceits must also carry out this idea, and laces and ribbons are so cunningly, yet so artistically, applied that not a whit of their loveliness and delicacy is lost because used flat instead of in frills and ruffles.

Every step of the sale is marked by preparedness and shows the result of careful planning. QUALITY has been the keynote with our manufacturers, GOOD VALUES the watchword, and from the selection of finest fabrics and the costliest of laces down to such prosaic details as the finish of a seam, buttons securely sewn and buttonholes carefully worked, QUALITY predominates.

SEEN IN THE SHOPS

Jaunty little rain proof caps are one of the latest things the shops are showing. In one of the stores this morning was a full line of them, tan, black and navy blue. They are silk caps, rubber lined with a stitched brim something on the style of the rubber caps the boys have had for several years. These are priced at $1.

In another of the stores the shopper's eye was attracted by boxes of the daintiest correspondence cards. Some of a fine linen quality of card with gold initials were marked at 35 cents and others with mother of pearl and gilt initials were marked at 98 cents a box. They were attractive and would make nice little gifts for the girl graduate.

THE EVENING STORY

HOW THE CABINET NEWS LEAKED OUT

By W. J. Mintle.

"How on earth did the Horror get it?" asked Thompson, as he stood in the midst of a little group of men on the night staff who had dropped into the Press club for half an hour.

"Don't know, my boy," answered Hicks of the Trumpet; "but there's no getting away from the fact. The cabinet met at 3 and didn't rise till 5, and it was just before 6 that the Horror came out with its special edition announcing that the war was off because the German government had climbed down. The official news was not given out till nearly 6."

The whole thing was a mystery. The news, too, was so improbable that no paper in its right mind would have risked it without some ground to go upon. The fact that it was officially confirmed a couple of hours later seemed to show that the Horror had somehow received information from headquarters.

One man standing at the bar, with a whisky before him, took no part in the discussion. As he was on the staff of the Horror, and had a reputation for keeping his mouth closed, the others did not attempt to question him. Durham was a man who said little and had the knack of looking stupid; but those who knew him best gave him credit for more than an average amount of astuteness. It was more than suspected taht he was the source of several of the scoops for which the Horror was noted, but he never been known to admit the fact. It was, however, well known that the proprietors of the paper knew his value, and gave him a salary which kept him proof against all the attempts of rival journals to secure his services.

As a matter of fact, Durham could have explained the mystery of the leakage of the news from the cabinet, for it was he that had brought off the scoop. He had in his pocket the check for £100 that gratified proprietors had handed him an hour before, and he was considering how he should spend it. About half past 2 in the afternoon, having nothing in particular to do, he had turned into Downing street to watch the arrival of the ministers for the cabinet meeting, on the chance that anything interesting might turn up. The police, who were on the lookout for suffragettes, knew him well, and made no objection to his strolling up and down outside the foreign office. He had only just arrived when Sir Frederick Hill, the foreign secretary, drove up in his motor, which was covered with dust. He looked worn and anxious, and the waiting journalists made a note of the fact with a view to gloomy prognostications in their descriptive reports.

On the stroke of 2 he hurried across the road from the foreign office to the prime minister's house, and almost brushed against Durham, who noted that he was smiling. Half way across the road he looked at his watch, and in doing so he dropped a card which had evidently been in his waistcoat pocket. Durham ran to pick it up, and returned it to him as he was entering the house.

"Thank you," said Sir Frederick, "It is really very good of you. I should have been very sorry to lose the card." Now, in picking it up, Durham had been unable to avoid seeing that it was one of Lady Hill's visiting cards, and bore, in a feminine handwriting, the words, "Code. Hanover Limburg." The odd combination lingered in his memory as he turned away after making sure that nothing in the shape of "copy" was likely to be forthcoming in Downing street that afternoon. He was about to mount a bus when he remembered that the secretary of the golf club to which he belonged was one of the chiefs in the telegraphic departments of the postoffice nearby, and that he particularly wanted a private word with him. So he turned into the office and found his friend sitting before one of the instruments.

"Half a moment, old man," said he, as he manipulated the handle, "must just get this message off, and then we can have a chat." Durham stood leaning against one of the little desks provided for the convenience of people who went to write telegrams. Beneath his hand lay a telegram form, and his fingers toyed unconsciously with a pencil that was tied to the desk with a piece of string. Before drifting into journalism he had been a telegraph operator, and was thoroughly familiar with the system in use for sending off the messages. He was still able to read a message by the sound of the long and short clicks of the needle. Hence, without any intention to play eavesdropper, he listened idly to the clicking, and noted the letters as they were formed under the operator's hand. Suddenly he gave a start, and his mind stood at attention. The letters he had heard were HBURG.

The words on Lady Hill's card flashed back to his recollection. Could there be any connection between the card and the message? All the journalistic instinct in him suddenly awoke. Many of his greatest scoops had been the result of trifling incidents that the average man would have ignored. Was it possible that he was on the eve of discovering something? Without moving or appearing to take any notice his fingers grasped the pencil, and as the letters were clicked out he surreptitiously noted them on the telegram form. It was evidently a code message, and ran thus: GHIHONLVBVRARIKFRED.

As the operator rose from his seat, Durham crushed the form in his hand and slipped it into his pocket. "Funny thing, that," said his friend. "We don't ogten get a message from over the road. They generally use their own wires. I expect it was something that the sender didn't want the clerks to know about."

Durham suddenly found that he was in a hurry, and cut the conversation short. As soon as he got outside he turned into an A. B. C. shop and ordered a cup of coffee. Then he set to work to study the message that had so curiously reached his hand. Ciphers had always possessed a curious attraction for him and he was fairly expert at solving them. In this case he had the great advantage of possessing the code words. The last four letters FRED, made it fairly likely that Sir Frederick Hill was the sender and the fact that he had signed his telegram in this style suggested that it was destined for a relative or very familiar friend. Who more probable than his wife? So he set to work to solve the cipher.

The key words were evidently HANOVER LIMBURG. But how were they to be applied? The whole message, omitting the final signature, only consisted of fifteen letters, and therefore could hardly contain more than three or four words. As to recurrence of letters; h, e, y and r occurred twice, but this gave no assistance. He tried various experiments based on his recollection of other ciphers that he had solved. He replaced the letters of the alphabet and of the key words by numerals, and tried to discover a connection, but without any satisfactory result.

He noticed that the two words HANOVER and LIMBERG both contained seven letters. So he wrote one under the other, and tried to find some connection between them, but this led to nothing. Then he remembered that the simplest plan is often the right one. If the code had been arranged by Lady Hill, as seemed likely from the fact that the code words were on her card and in a feminine handwriting, the cipher was probably not a very elaborate one. She had heard that she was not generally credited with brilliant mental powers.

So he tried a plan so simple and self-evident that he would not have given it a thought in dealing with an official cipher. He wrote out the alphabet, and placed under it, letter by letter, the code words. This was the result:
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
HANOVERLIMBURGHANOVERLIMBU

He had found the clue. The message was clear before him. It was this: NO WAR. THEY SUBMIT. FRED.

Durham rushed out of the shop—forgetting to pay for his coffee—sprang into a taxi, and drove full speed to the office of his paper. Ten minutes later the boys were shouting the news in the streets.

AITKIN COUNTY PEOPLE OBJECT

Mille Lacs and Onamia Survey Is Misunderstood, According to Miller.

(From The Herald Washington Bureau.)

Washington, May 13.—The survey of Mille Lacs and Onamia lakes, provided for in the rivers and harbors bill, is vigorously protested against by residents of Aitkin county, Minn. Representative Miller today received a petition against it, but he believes it was based on a misunderstanding of the case.

"The survey is to be made," said Mr. Miller, "with a view of constructing a dam across Rum river to create a reservoir and improve naviation, evidently those protesting against it think it contemplates an overflow of agricultural lands, but such is not the case. I asked for the survey at the request of the people near Onamia lake, and it was not proposed by government officials because of the recent destruction of a dam formerly maintained by lumbermen on Onamia lake. The waters have receded, leaving a disease-breeding mud bank, and have injured naviation as well as the property of dairy farms around Onamia and Mille Lacs.

REBELLION IN PARAGUAY OVER

Report of Government Victory Over Jara's Army Is Confirmed.

Buenos Ayres, Argentina, May 13.—Official advices received here from Asuncion, Paraguay, today confirm the victory of May 10 of the government troops over a large revolutionary force under the command of Col. Alvino Jara, former president of the republic. The revolution is now considered over.

Col. Jara was wounded during the fighting. The rebels lost many killed and 500 of them were taken prisoners, but Col. Jara, despite his wound, escaped.

Among the killed was a prominent German instructor. All the artillery as well as 1,000 rifles belonging to the rebels were captured.

RAILROADS

NO EFFECT ON TRAVEL

Titanic Disaster Did Not Decrease Business of Steamship Lines.

Agent Says Vessels Are Now Being Equipped With Lifeboats.

Harry M. Tait, general agent for the Canadian Pacific Railroad company's Atlantic steamship lines, who was in the city today, states that ocean travel will be much safer from this time on.

"All the companies are ordering additional lifeboats and provision is being made to carry them on the upper decks of the liners," he says.

"Rafts are not looked on with favor by steamship officials because they are clumsy and it is hard to get them away from the sinking ship. In a rowboat properly handled, the people will be half a mile away from the ship by the time she goes down and therefore away from the suction."

Mr. Tait says that while for a few days at the time of the Titanic disaster people cancelled their transportation across the water, confidence is again revived and people appreciate the fact that ocean travel is safer than ever.

The boats are being sent on a course further south and the running time is being lengthened to some extent.

Mr. Tait points with pride to the fact that there are seventy vessels in the Canadian fleet and that not one life has been lost since the Canadian Pacific has been in the vessel business.

"We have noticed no falling off in our business since the Titanic tragedy," he said. "While the excitement was at its height we had some cancellations, but they are all coming back now, realizing that more care will be taken and travel made safer than before."

NORTHERN PACIFIC WILL SHORTEN LINE

Cutoff Being Planned Between Mott, N. D., and Line West.

Mott, N. D., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The arrival of Northern Pacific surveyors to work on the proposed extension of the road to Miles City, Mont., or some other point along the main line is causing much speculation here. It is confidently asserted that within two years main trains of the Northern Pacific will be running through Mott to Fargo and to the Twin Cities and that sixty-eight miles will be saved from the Twin Cities to the coast.

This will be done by connecting the branch from this point west into Montana and by building another line from the Canon Ball to connect with the line to Fargo from Edgeley. A further saving of thirty miles more could be made by building from Edgeley to Milnor and connecting with that branch of the Northern Pacific but there is a very rough country between these points and the construction would be expensive.

Looking for a Name.

Who has a name to suggest for the new Great Northern passenger train which went on the run between Duluth and St. Paul and Minneapolis last week?

The train is known as No. 23 going north and No. 24 going back to the Twin Cities. "Twenty-three" does not appeal to the railroad officials as a suitable name and they want a different one.

Summer Rates.

Nearly all the Duluth railroads are putting into effect rates for week-end trips.

The destinations are mainly fishing points or summer resorts. The new tariffs have just been received and they are on a basis of 2 cents a mile.

The rates will go into effect on May 29 and will last until Sept. 30, inclusive.

TO CLAIM STATE LANDS.

University Regent Asks Congressman to Introduce Resolution.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 13.—Former Governor John Lind, president of the board of regents of the University of Minnesota, has asked Representative A. J. Volstead, according to a dispatch from Washington, to introduce a resolution allowing the state of Minnesota to select 1,100 acres of land for the benefit of the university. Mr. Lind, who is in Washington on his way to Sweden, said that the government made a grant of lands to the state in territorial days for the development of salt springs. That grant was surrendered and other lands given in place of it, except to the extent of 1,100 acres. The state transferred its rights in the new lands to the university. The resolution is intended to supply the deficiency of 1,100 acres.

MOTHER IS THEIR THEME

Carnation Day Generally Observed in Duluth Churches and Homes.

Pink Carnation as Symbol of Both Parents Is Urged.

Mother's day was observed in Duluth churches yesterday, many pastors preaching sermons appropriate to the occasion.

Carnations, the flowers emblematic of the day, were much in evidence, and the day seemed to have been quite generally observed as one in which little kindnesses were done to living mothers, and some tribute of remembrance paid to those who had passed away.

In his morning sermon at the First Unitarian church, Rev. George R. Gebauer chose "The Pink Carnation" as his subject, and spoke in part as follows:

"This is the day of the white carnation, the day on which America is endeavoring to do honor to the mothers of the land, mother past and present, living and dead. It is a beautiful sentiment, which would exalt motherhood.

"It is indeed a wondrous thing that mother's love, that tender care that will seek sacrifice rather than shrink from it. It is beautiful above all perhaps, because it is a natural instinct, better a divine impulse implanted in the heart of woman by Him whom we call 'Our Father in Heaven.' In it the love of God has become flesh. Yet in mother's love the fatherhood of God is not completely expressed. God is not only love, but wisdom, or better He is loving wisdom and wise love; in Him the eternal womanly and the eternal manly are in complete unity. And now as His love expresses itself in motherhood so His wisdom expresses itself be it ever so poorly in human fatherhood. Yes not only this, but as God's wisdom and love are one, so there is a deep wisdom in every mother's love, and there is love in the wisdom of every true father. True, the element of love is not always as strong in the father as it is in the mother, it is at least more prominent in the mother, but the reason for this does not lie in any moral ground, but in a natural necessity. The mother's love is more tenacious, because a child may do without a father, but it must have a mother. A father who will run away from his parental duty is merely a heartless brute, but a mother who will desert her child is no less than a monstrosity. But where conditions are normal in life, there motherhood and fatherhood will find themselves in mutual love for their own, and the one is as beautiful as the other is grand. The fifth commandment of the decalogue does not read: 'honor thy mother,' true as this admonition would be, but it says: 'Honor thy father and thy mother.' It rightly brings to the child the idea, that father and mother are one, one in their love for the child and both alike deserving the child's affection and regard.

"Thus by the side of the white carnation let us put the red carnation in honor of the father, or better still let the pink carnation be the beautiful symbol of the day, pink in which red and white are tenderly blended in honor of our mothers and our fathers.

'And then from parents let us turn to our children. We shall indeed honor our parents most truly by being true parents ourselves. We should this day realize what we owe to our children, that we are their debtors, for we are responsible for their life. This grave debt we only can pay off, when we make life for them worth while, when we make them able to carry the burden joyfully, nobly, when we so train them that their days will pass without regret of being here and they will bless the day of their birth."

Carnations Given Away.

The congregation of the Second Presbyterian church, 1615 West Superior street, celebrated in a unique manner at the morning service by distributing white carnations. These were bestowed upon the male members of the gathering by the Adult Bible class, and every man went home with a white carnation pinned to his coat lapel. Rev. J. A. McGaughey, the pastor, preached on "Manhood's Memorial to Mother."

Rev. George E. Sjloway, pastor of the Grace M. E. church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, compared Mother's day with Labor day and Memorial day. He said that whatever the nation might owe to the toiling masses or to the soldiers who suffered and died for their country's cause, the regular life of the mother was filled with labor and suffering just as worthy of recognition as was what was done and suffered by the toiler and the soldier.

At the evening service at the First Baptist church, Ninth avenue east and First street, the pastor, Rev. R. Edward Sayles, in the course of his sermon on "Mother," laid special stress on the great part the mothers of the American national leaders have played in the history of this country. He spoke of Washington, Jackson, Lincoln, Garfield and Levi P. Morton, every one of whom, after rising to eminence, declared that what they achieved was in large measure due to their mothers' training and early influence.

Rev. C. W. Emery, pastor of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church, Forty-sixth avenue west and Halifax street, devoted the morning sermon largely to a discourse on "What We Owe to Mother."

Rev. John Culvert Faries at the morning service at the Glen Avon Presbyterian church, in his sermon on "A Mother in Israel," took occasion to say that woman was now so educated and trained that she was capable of taking part in guilding the political destinies of the community, and while he did not believe that woman suffrage was a panacea for all ills, the speaker said it was only just and proper to grant women the ballot. He spoke of Deborah, who although a woman was a judge in Israel, and a ruler over men.

At the Endion M. E. church, the pastor, Rev. John Walker Powell, at the morning service based his sermon on the statement of Henry Drummond that the struggle for the lives of others is just as fundamental as the struggle for our own lives. That statement, he declared, contained the very essence of motherhood, which was essentially altruistic.

Rev. J. H. Stenberg, pastor of the First Norwegian Lutheran church, in his morning sermon on "Mother's Influence" dwelt at some length on the mother's guidance of the early lives of some of the greatest Bible characters, citing Joseph, Moses, Samuel and Timothy. The pastor then went on to give examples running all through history of men having achieved greatness as a result of the education they received in childhood from their mothers.

MEXICAN REBELS TO MAKE LAST STAND IN BATTLE AT RELLANO

tinued their retreat northward before the Federal army of General Huerta, victorious in the last three days fighting. Five bridges spanning wide arroyos were destroyed by the insurgents, causing delay to government troop trains.

No fighting was expected today, as both sides were occupied with their dead and wounded from yesterday's engagement.

The rebels are believed to have lost 600 in killed and wounded.

General Orozco's headquarters have been moved northward to Rellano from Escalon, a retreat of eleven miles. The rebel advance guard, after the defeat of yesterday at Conejos, fifty-five miles north of Torreon, today was sighted behind Yermo, fourteen miles north of here on the Mexican Central railroad.

Though skirmishing is expected constantly, another decisive clash probably will not occur for twenty-four hours, Rellano, once the battleground in the present revolution, again may be the meeting place of the two armies.

Push Rebels North.

Thus far the advantage has been with the government troops, as they steadily have pushed the rebels northward toward the American border. The superior artillery fire of the government troops driving the insurrectos so far back that their infantry fire became ineffective, is counted upon to force the Orozco army still further northward.

CRITICIZING THE BISHOPS

while the other advocated the withdrawal from active service of but one man.

That Copenhagen, Denmark, may receive an episcopal residence, also is talked among the delegates. The episcopacy committee is said to have voted in favor of establishing a residence at Rome, Italy, and probably one at Hamburg, Germany. The committee also is said to have favored the retention of the episcopal residence at St. Paul, instead of removing it to Minneapolis, which is said to have been favored by the sub-committee.

Toward Diocesan System.

What is considered by many Methodists the first step toward o diocesan system in the church, is embodied in the first report of the episcopacy committee of the general conference which probably will be presented to the delegates today.

The report requests, it is said, that the bishops of the church group the conferences of the church into four zones, and grants to the bishops who have residence in those four zones charges of the conferences therein continuously for one quadrennium.

According to the report, the resident bishops shall have charge of all conferences contiguous to his residence, except when a bishop comes to preside at the annual conference, when the latter will have charge of the conference for one month before and one month after the session, when the conference automatically reverts to the resident bishop.

Commission on Funds.

The committee on temporal economy also probably will recommend the establishment of a commission, consisting of four bishops, three ministers and eight laymen, which will handle all funds ordinarily turned into the different boards of the church. The commission, as planned, also will arrange the apportionment of the funds and will have in charge the division of the funds to the various church boards when collected, thus excluding the boards from arranging their own finances.

Yesterday, by order of the conference was a day of fasting and prayer among the delegates, and also "Mothers' day." A number of the bishops and leaders of the church spoke in various churches of the Twin Cities during the morning and evening services.

At the afternoon session, which was given over to the anniversary of the board of Sunday schools, addresses were made by Bishop William Frazer McDowell of Chicago, president of the board, Dr. Edgar Blake, New York, assistant secretary, and Dr. David G. Downey, New York, corresponding secretary of the board.

Report on Sunday Schools.

"This board began its work four years ago without a Sunday school missionary in any field," was the opening statement in the report of the board of Sunday schools. "It has sent out many missionaries into all parts of the United States and into other lands. As a result of such extension work the following facts are noted: New schools established, 1,128; enrollment in these schools, 42,000; church organizations resulting, 264; new churches actually built, 117; value of these churches, $220,650. The spiritual result of the work for the four years ending in 1912 is 623,262 conversions."

The enrollment of pupils, officers and teachers in 1912 in Methodist Episcopal Sunday schools is 4,003,410.

"It is the age of the child," says the report; "It is the era of the Sunday school. The Sunday school of tomorrow will be a new institution. The church that appreciates and utilizes the age spirit holds the future."

DULUTH SHRINERS ON THE WAY HOME

Travel From Los Angeles Via San Francisco, Portland and Seattle.

San Francisco, Cal., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Aad Temple of Duluth struck its tents Sunday afternoon, gathered its belongings together and left the oasis of Los Angeles on the big steam camel known as the Imperial Special, bound for home and work again. Every one was sorry that the playtime is so near an end, but every one was glad to be on the homeward trail at last.

The Imperial Special reached Santa Barbara last night and San Francisco today and will go on to Portland and Seattle. From there the caravan will go over the Northern Pacific back to little old Duluth. A number of the boys took a last trip to the seashore Sunday morning and enjoyed another dip in the surf, afterward attending the rodeo, or roundup, provided for the benefit of the visiting Shriners at Redondo ranch.

There were some tired legs and sleepy heads among the Aad nobles, for the boys have marched a good many miles and have been too busy enjoying themselves to bother about sleep. None of them worries about it, however.

"We've got until next May to make it up before the imperial council meets at Dallas," said Capt. Bradley.

MOTORCYCLE IS RUN OVER WATER

New Craft Given Successful Tryout in San Francisco Bay.

San Francisco, Cal., May 13.—A novelty in navigation was introduced here today when Eugene Frey rode across San Francisco bay on his home-made hydromotorcycle. The distance from the starting in Alemada over Frey's circuitous course to the dock in this city was twelve miles, and the queer-looking craft was just one hour on her way. Frey's engine worked perfectly.

The machine consists of a double pontoon attached to a motorcycle. On land the pontoons are raised and the machine is operated as a motorcycle.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS ROOM IN HOTEL

Prominent Young Bessemer Business Man Is Suddenly Summoned.

William Robert Kulasvewicz, an alderman of Bessemer, Mich., and one of the well-known young business men of that city, was found dead in his bed at the Lenox hotel last Saturday afternoon.

Death was due to acute spinal meningitis.

Mr. Kulasvewicz is the son of William Robert Kulasvewicz of Bessemer, one of the wealthy men of that city. Mr. Kulasvewicz, Sr., has extensive property interests at New Duluth, and the son came to Duluth last week to arrange some details in connection with his father's holdings. He registered at the Lenox, and retired to his room apparently in good health and spirits. That was the last seen of him until his body was found on the bed.

The young man bore an excellent reputation in Bessemer and was highly esteemed by his fellow townsmen, as was evidenced by his election to the position of alderman in spite of his youth.

The body was sent to Bessemer last evening.

RECEIVER IS NAMED FOR CEREAL COMPANY

Chicago, May 13.—On petition of Joy Morton, a large stockholder in the company, Judge Petit has appointed the Fort Dearborn Trust & Savings bank receiver for the Great Western Cereal company. The action followed the filing of a suit for $30,000 against the company by Morton, on which he was awarded a judgment of $25,037. In the creditor's bill filed by Morton it is alleged that stock of the company exceeding the par value of $200,000 was issued to O. C. Barber without consideration. Barber is said to have promoted the company.

ONE OF THE FEW REAL SUCCESSES

"Miss Nobody From Starland" Makes Money in Poor Season.

"We have one of the three or four most successful musical shows on the road this year," said E. R. Donahue, manager of "Miss Nobody From Starland," who arrived in the city this morning with his company, which will give but one performance at the Lyceum this evening.

"'Miss Nobody From Starland' is one of the cleanest and most enjoyable musical productions of recent years and its success is the best proof of this. It has been in Duluth before, and local theatergoers know its good points. We have had a very successful tour through the West and Southwest, and the company has been one of the few real 'winners' of a very poor season."

FAMOUS ENGLISH CLERGYMAN HERE

Rev. J. T. Wardle Stafford of York, England, says that now is the time for the United States to step in and seize much of the trade for many years controlled by England.

The English clergyman states that strikes have done much during the past two years to weaken England's commercial supremacy. He referred particularly to the railway and coal strikes.

Telling of the railroad strike, Mr. Stafford said that where there were as many as twelve trains per day between given points, the service was often cut down to from one to two trains a day.

The English clergyman sailed on the day after the Titanic left and he first heard of the tragedy while on the ocean.

Mr. Stafford spoke morning and evening yesterday at the First Methodist church to large audiences. He is in this country as a fraternal delegate from the Wesleyan conference to the general conference now in session in Minneapolis.

WOMAN ON TRIAL FOR POISONING CHILDREN.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., May 13.—The preliminary trial of Mrs. Patrick Magee, charged with poisoning six children, one after the other, is in progress at Georgetown, near here. Patrick Magee, the prisoner's husband, swore that he knew the children had been poisoned, but that he could do nothing because his wife "ran the house."

Increase in Wages.

New York, May 13.—Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, announces that the wages of a number of subway and elevated employes will be increased. The increase will aggregate $230,000 for the first year.

FORMER RESIDENTS DIE.

Cloquet, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Mary Fahey died at Burlington, Wash., May 7. The remains arrived in Cloquet yesterday and will be interred here. The deceased was a sister of Patrick and Anthony Shannon and Mrs. William Barker of Cloquet. She also has a daughter at Hibbing, Mrs. J. W. Demgen. Mrs. Fahey lived in Cloquet for a number of years and was well known.

Word was received Saturday of the death at Motley, Friday night, of Mrs. C. H. Blake, wife of Rev. C. H. Blake, who until three years ago was pastor of the First Methodist church in this city. Rev. Mr. Blake resigned his position that he might take his wife and children to a farm near Motley, in the hope of prolonging her life. Death was due to consumption. The funeral took place Sunday afternoon. Four children survive her, besides the husband.

Woman Starts Something.

Ashland, Wis., May 13.—Claiming that the Ashland Water company is charging exorbitantly, Miss Anita Fisher, who conducts an abstract office here, made formal complaint before the state railroad commission and that body has ordered a hearing.

POSTUM

This pleasant morning cup strengthens and invigorates, leaving no "reaction" of shaky nerves, headaches, etc.

TRANSFORMATIONS

Curious Results When Tea and Coffee Drinking Are Abandoned.

It is almost as hard for an old tea or coffee toper to quit as it is for a whiskey or tobacco fiend to break off, except that the tea or coffee user can quit and take up Postum without any feeling of a loss of the morning beverage.

When Postum is well made and served with cream, it is really better in point of flavor than most of the coffee served nowadays. To the taste of the connoisseur it is very like the flavor of fine, mild Java.

A great transformation takes place in the body within ten days or two weeks after coffee or tea is left off and Postum used. The reason is that the poison to the nerves—Caffeine—has been discontinued and in its place is taken a liquid food that contains the most powerful element of nourishment.

It is easy to make this test and prove these statements by changing to Postum. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Trusses Like These Are A Crime

Get Rid of Elastic Bands, Springs and Leg-Straps. Such Harness Has Forced Thousands to Undergo Dangerous Operations.

Trusses like those shown above—the belt and leg-strap, elastic and spring contraptions sold by drugstores, surgical supply houses and many self-styled "Hernia Specialists"—make life miserable for everybody who wears them.

And—even when drawn so tight you can scarcely stand to keep them on—they do no good whatever.

Instead, they often do immense harm—they squeeze the rupture, often causing strangulation—dig into the pelvic bone in front—press against the sensitive spinal column at the back.

The Plain Truth Is This.

Rupture—as explained in our free book—can't be relieved or cured—can't even be kept from growing worse—unless constantly held in place. Just as a broken bone can't "knit" unless the parts are held securely together.

And—just as a bandage or splint is the only way a broken bone can be held—the right kind of truss is the only thing in the world that can keep a rupture from coming out.

What a difference it will make when you get that kind of truss.

And you can get exactly that kind of truss—without risking a cent of your money.

It's the famous Cluthe Truss or Cluthe Automatic Massager.

Far more than a truss—far more than merely a device for holding the rupture in place.

So different from everything else for rupture that it has received 12 separate patents.

Thousands say it is as comfortable as their clothing.

No belt, elastic belt or springs around your waist, and no leg-straps—nothing to pinch, chafe, squeeze or bind. Self-regulating, self-adjusting. It is held in position by suction—can't shift or slip—the only truss in existence that is honestly guaranteed never to let the rupture come out.

Sent on 60 Days' Trial to Prove It.

We have so much faith in the Cluthe Truss—we have seen it work wonders for so many others—that we want to make one especially for your case and let you wear it at our risk.

We'll give you 60 days time to test it—if it doesn't keep your rupture from coming out, when you are working and at all other times—if it doesn't put an end to the trouble you've heretofore had with your rupture—if you don't get better right away—then the truss won't cost you a cent.

How It Strengthens and Heals.

In addition to holding the rupture, the Cluthe Truss or Cluthe Automatic Massager is constantly giving a soothing, strengthening massage to the weak ruptured parts.

All automatically—the message goes on all day long, all without any attention whatever from you.

This massage—which strengthens just as exercise strengthens a weak arm—is so remarkably beneficial—so remarkably curative—that in 199 cases out of every 200 rupture begins to get better from the day a Cluthe Truss is put on.

The World's Greatest Book on Rupture.

Don't go on letting your rupture get worse—don't spend a cent on account of your rupture until you get our book of advice—which two cents for a stamp—or a penny for a postal—will bring you.

This remarkable book—cloth-bound, 82 pages, 21 separate articles, and 19 photographic pictures—took us over 40 years to write—took us that long to find out all the facts we've put in it.

It explains the dangers of operations and why they don't always cure to stay cured. Tells why—for the protection of the public—drug stores should not be allowed to sell trusses.

Explains why belt, spring and elastic trusses can do no good. Exposes the humbug "methods," "appliances," "plasters," etc.

And tells—absolutely without misrepresentation—all about the Cluthe Truss—just how it holds—how it gives the curing massage—how it is waterproof—how it ends all expense—how you can get it on 60 days' trial—and gives names and addresses of over 5,000 people who have tried it and want you to know about it.

Write for it today—don't put it off—this book may be the means of adding many years to your life and of restoring you to full strength and usefulness.

RESTORE HEALTH OF KIDNEYS

New Ways of Healing Have Many Advantages Over Old Methods of Doctors.

Electro Medical Doctors Are Successful in Curing the Most Troublesome Diseases.

Mr. Chas. Hatlen of Mesaba, Minn., has been the most down-hearted man when he came to the city of Duluth two weeks ago. He was broken down in health, exhausted and discouraged, because disease had gotten the best of him. He came to Duluth in search of health which he failed to get in his home town. When he asked at the depot for "the best doctor in town," he was directed to the Electro Medical Doctors at No. 26 West Superior street, who have established a reputation in the city of Duluth which only the best and most skillful of doctors could have done.

Mr. Hatlen is a young man who had suffered all the pains and agonies which are in the course of Kidney troubles, lame back, Rheumatism and Bright's disease. An old man of 60 could not have suffered more than this young lad of 25, and when he saw that all the efforts in his home town were futile, and that he went down in health like a man does when he has Bright's disease, he thought that it was time to look for the best of doctors. He confessed that he had taken "gallons of medicine" and that he was sick of taking them because they had made his stomach sore and caused Bright's disease on top of kidney trouble. When he saw the big electric machines in the office and the doctor explained to him that they would do more than all the medicines he had taken, he was sighing with relief. Because of his youth it did not take the doctors long to neutralize the poisons which caused his troubles. He told "that no one can imagine the great relief he experienced in the kidneys after a few treatments with that soothing electricity." Many nights he had been unable to sleep because of the pain in his back, but ever since the first treatment he felt a great relief, and within a few weeks' time he felt as healthy as any young man can feel. He said: "I had been very weak and run down when I came to Duluth. My stomach had given out from taking so many medicines for my Rheumatism and the Kidney trouble got steadily worse in spite of the Belladona plasters the doctors put on my sore back. They told me I had Bright's disease and that a man can not be cured of that, and for that reason I determined to go to Duluth to the best doctors. The treatments the Electro Medical Doctors gave me were certainly the best I ever had, for they were painless and helped me from the start. I am so glad that I can go back healthy and strong. I am well satisfied with the Doctors' work and am certainly glad that I can recommend the Doctors to any one who is suffering from chronic and incurable diseases. Mine was not incurable after all and I hope that many others will be as lucky as I."

OLD GUARD IS DOWNED

Sweeping Victory for Roosevelt Forces in Duluth Caucuses.

New Leaders Appear on Horizon in County Political Field.

In the Duluth caucuses Saturday night, the old county Republican organization, led by L. M. Willcuts, collector of customs, was completely swamped.

Taft delegates, running on uninstructed tickets, were elected in only six precincts, dividing the Duluth delegation in the convention 44 for Roosevelt and 8 uninstructed. One of the eight is a Roosevelt man, so that the Taft forces have but seven votes from the city of Duluth in the convention.

La Follette received eight or ten scattering votes in the city, but for the most part the La Follette sympathizers voted with Roosevelt delegates or the uninstructed delegates. Their candidates had no chance.

New leaders, who appeared on the political horizon in St. Louis county some months ago, have come to the zenith. W. A Eaton, John Saari, Oscur J. Larson, Hans B. Haroldson and others who took an active part in the fight for Roosevelt, are men to be reckoned with in future political contests. On the range several new leaders have arisen and declared themselves.

The delegation to the state convention Thursday will have a new and unfamiliar aspect. Oscar J. Larson takes Millie Bunnell's place as Duluth's candidate for delegate-at-large. W. A. Eaton will probably be an Eighth district delegate to the national convention at Chicago. Senator Dan Gunn of Itasca county, who was slated for district delegate, will not be on the delegation.

Total Vote.

The total vote in the city was 1,745 for the Roosevelt delegates and 840 for the uninstructed delegates. The vote was the heaviest ever cast at caucuses in Duluth. Men who had never voted at caucuses before were out in numbers. In fact, men who had not regularly voted at caucuses controlled the caucuses and the politicians, who always had things their own way in the past, found themselves outnumbered. They even lost their time honored privilege of organizing the caucuses. It was a severe blow to many of the old timers.

The Old Guard made a hard fight. The dropping of Taft's name from the ballots and the substitution of an uninstructed policy was the first concession to the Roosevelt strength. When it was seen that the uninstructed policy did not make the appeal intended every effort was made to get out the vote that would stand by the Old Guard. The Roosevelt men who had never voted at caucuses before weren't the only ones to get out. Automobiles were used freely, especially in the First ward, to take from their homes to the caucuses men to whom caucuses had never been anything but a name. They were the men high in business in Duluth, who had not been called upon previously to put forth personal effort to maintain the system with which they were satisfied.

Hot Fight in First.

One of the warmest fights in the city was in the Fifth precinct of the First ward, and the Old Guard won it. It was one of the few consolations they found in the result. J. B. Cotton, W. E. Richardson and C. H. Merritt were on the uninstructed ticket in opposition to Oscar J. Larson, chairman of the St. Louis County Republican club; F. J. Patton and T. A. Gall. The vote was 121 for the uninstructed delegates and 117 for the Roosevelt delegates.

J. L. Washburn lost to W. E. Culkin in the Fourth precinct of the First ward by a vote of 56 to 40. E. P. Towne, running as an uninstructed candidate, was defeated. S. F. Staples and J. L. Cromwell lost in the First precinct of the Second ward. J. L. Cumming, county commissioner and chairman of the Seventh ward Republican organization, was defeated. The old idols were toppled all over the city.

La Follette Men Running.

In the First precinct of the Fifth ward, Elmer F. Blu and I. K. Lewis, officers of the La Follette club, appeared on the uninstructed ticket, opposing Hans B. Haroldson and Dr. H. Konkler, the Roosevelt candidates. Blu and Lewis, personally popular, made a hard fight. The Y. M. C. A. is located in the precinct and the roomers in the association building were out in force. It was a young man's caucus from start to finish. Blu and Lewis, with a large personal following, were formidable but Haroldson is also one of the young men active in politics, has many personal friends in the precinct, and he and Konkler, with their friends, made a hard canvass. The uninstructed men controlled in the organization of the caucus, but Blu and Lewis lost in the vote by a vote of 95 to 70.

The Fifth precinct of the First ward, the Third and Fourth precincts of the Fourth ward, the First precinct of the Third ward and the Third and Fifth precincts of the Sixth ward were the only ones to send uninstructed delegates. Out of 184 votes in the Eighth ward, the uninstructed delegates only received 22. In the Seventh ward, they received only 58 out of 345.

The total vote in the city, so far as reported to Roosevelt headquarters, follows:

TRAP FOR ARCHBALD

breach of contract. A demurrer was filed in this case and W. P. Boland declared that E. J. Williams came to him with a $500 note signed by Judge Archbald, asking him to discount it. The Boland refused to discount it and the demurer was not sustained, and the case still is pending.

The memorandum set forth the statement that Boland was much aroused and "determined to trap" Judge Archbald in some deal which would unfit him for the bench. Boland thereupon, according to the memorandum, set this trap, with the Katydid culm bank transaction with the Erie railroad as the vehicle, and Edward J. Williams as the agent in this plan.

Exposed By Boland.

All this was while the "I. Igertage" case was pending in the commerce court. The negotiations were carried out until Boland exposed them to the government officials.

The memorandum also stated the circumstances relating to the Marion Coal company and the Delaware & Lackawanna railroad before the interstate commerce commission.

"Mr. Boland was so full of his 10 years' fight for his rights," said Mr. Cockrell, "that his narrative required several hours to tell, but in the memorandum I merely set down the salient points."

Mr. Cockrell participated in the conferences with Attorney General Wickersham later when the Bolands related the charges to him.

He was asked if Edward J. Williams, when Attorney General Wickersham showed him photographic copies of the papers in the case, had repudiated any of them, as he has since done before the committee.

Admitted Signing Papers.

"Williams did not dispute any of the papers," said Cockrell. "He identified them all and admitted he had signed them."

Mr. Cockrell also said Williams identified the assignment contract in which Judge Archbald was referred to as a "silent party." This Williams denied before the committee, though acknowledging his signature.

On cross-examination, A. S. Worthing, counsel for Judge Archbald, asked Mr. Cockrell if W. P. Boland had said anything about any federal judge. Cockrell declared that Boland, in conference with Commissioner Meyer Feb. 21 last, had an affidavit made by some one in Scranton, referring to a breach of promise suit before a federal judge in Scranton.

"This was a matter not supported by anything but the statement at hand," said Cockrell. "It did not appear worth much on its face, and it was deemed inadvisable to make any reference to it in these proceedings."

Value of Culm Bank.

J. H. Ritternhouse of Scranton, a civil and mining engineer, testified that the number of tons in the Katydid culm dump aggregated more than 90,000. It was negotiated for in the option from the Erie by Williams and Judge Archbald as something over 40,000 tons.

The aggregate value of the contents, Ritternhouse estimated, was $47,533. The options were to have cost Williams and Archbald $8,000.

COLD WAVE IS WIDESPREAD

St. Paul and Cincinnati, 46; Kansas City, 50 and St. Louis 52.

The force of the cold wave soon will spend itself today, weather experts say, but temperatures will be low and there will be frosts tonight in the upper lake and western lower lake region, the Ohio valley and mountain districts from Pensylvania to North Carolina.

Snow in Duluth.

Cover up those young onions tonight.

The weather man predicts a light frost during the night, and advises all backyard gardeners to protect their young sprouting vegetables and flowers.

"The bushes and shrubbery will probably stand it all right" said Mr. Richardson, "but a covering of straw should be thrown over the young sprouts. It won't be a heavy frost, but it might kill young and tender plants."

The snowstorm today was something of a "freak" but Duluth has experienced snow storms much later than this one. The snow melted almost as soon as it fell.

The weather man looks for clearing weather tonight, with little change in temperature.

OLD GUARD IS OUSTED BY MINNESOTA G. O. P.

at Minneapolis Thursday, Taft 132 and La Follette 35. Later returns will probably increase La Follette's representation.

The county conventions to be held in the eighty-six counties of the state today may change the results somewhat, but they will not appreciably alter the lineup. Roosevelt's victory in eight districts and control of the state convention, which will elect six delegates at large, is certain.

Tawney Fell Down.

James A. Tawney, who had been counted upon to deliver the First district delegation to Taft, failed dismally. Only two counties, Houston and Winona, will send Taft delegations to the district and state conventions. Taft carried one county in the Second district, one in the Third, two in the Sixth, three in the Eighth and one in the Ninth. In the First district, where the La Follette men made a hard fight, they failed to carry a county.

The Eighth district, which was counted upon by the Old Guard, will elect two Roosevelt delegates at the district convention at Hinckley Wednesday. St. Louis county went overwhelmingly for Roosevelt, although the Taft men resorted to an "uninstructed" policy in a final effort to maintain control.

The district conventions will be held Wednesday and the state convention will meet in the Armory at Minneapolis Thursday noon.

Sixth District Solid.

A proposition to split the Sixth district delegation to the Chicago convention has been made by the Taft men, but it will not be considered, in view of the returns. T. J. Sharkey of Staples is a candidate for delegate as a Roosevelt supporter and he will probably be one of the delegates from the Sixth. W. E. Verity was suggested as the Taft delegate if a compromise could be effected.

Todd for Teddy.

The Todd county delegations in the district and state conventions will be solid for Roosevelt. Staples elected twelve Roosevelt delegates. Long Prairie split, but the remainder of the county is for Roosevelt. The Staples delegates are: A. L. Lindquist, Dan Burkholder, C. W. McKay, J. D. Clary, O. F. Phillips, T. J. Sharkey, W. J. Pifer, F. F Robinson, Fred Albright, Van Coil, A Anderberg and W. S. Wright.

Deer River for Taft.

The Deer River delegation to the Itasca county convention is instructed for Taft. Those elected were: A. D. Ingersoll, R. F. Beal and S. J. Moran.

La Follette in Moose Lake.

La Follette carried the Moose Lake precinct of Carlton county by a vote of 51 to 5. The precinct has four delegates to the Carlton county convention.

Cloquet Delegates.

Cloquet elected the following delegates to the county convention to be held in Carlton tonight: First ward, C. E. Clapperton, Dr. W. G. Dolan, F. D. Vibert, Attorney Fesenbeck; Second ward, Olaus Johnson, Ole Kolseth, Alfred Bengtson, H. G. Stevens; Third ward, A. R. Peterson, F. T. Persinger.

Crow Wing for Roosevelt.

Returns to date in Crow Wing county show Roosevelt the choice. The voting there was not as one-sided as in some other cases, present results giving Roosevelt 223 votes, Taft 130 and La Follette 64. As agreed upon before the primaries, the majority vote represents the presidential preference of the voters, and the delegates and the county convention will accordingly be for Roosevelt. Crow Wing county convention elects eleven delegates to the state convention and eleven delegates to the Republican Sixth district convention, to be held in Brainerd May 5.

ASKS REID OF STEEL TRUST

er of the United States Steel corporation, but declined to say how much stock he held.

Mr. Reid was asked to describe competitive conditions among the constituent companies of the American Tin Plate company before its organization in 1898. Judge Dickinson, of counsel for the government, read from a list of about thirty-five of these companies and asked the witness if they were all engaged in interstate commerce and in competition with each other.

"They were," Mr. Reid replied.

"With whom did you consult?"

"Judge Moore. He had a reputation as an organizer. The idea was to form a company in some of the larger and better plants."

"But you took in others?"

"Oh, yes. Those came in later."

"Were your tin plate companies engaged in any pools?"

"Not to my knowledge."

Fixed Wages, Not Prices.

The witness volunteered an explanation that the tin plate makers had met every year to fix the wage schedule of employes, but these meetings had nothing to do with fixing prices.

Thirty-nine plants operating 200 mills were taken into the tin plate company, he said, which represented about 90 per cent of the tin plate industry.

"So far as you know did anybody get cash from his stock?" Judge Dickinson asked.

"I don't know. They could have got cash if they wanted. I know I got stock for mine, two for one, one share of common and one of preferred of the American Tin-Plate company.

"Didn't you testify before the industrial commission that in some cases you got for your stock four times what it was worth?"

"I don't know; that was twelve or thirteen years ago."

"Suppose all these mills had been paid for in cash, what would the value have amounted to—$18,000,000?"

"I don't know."

"Didn't $18,000,000 common and preferred stock of the American Tin-Plate compani go to the owners of these mills for their common stock alone?"

Has Forgotten the Amount.

Mr. Reid said he had made a bargain with the syndicate managers for what he was going to get for holdings in his own company, the Elwood Tin-Plate company.

"How much did you get?"

"I don't remember."

It is the government's contention that the American Tin Plate company's stock was watered.

Total capitalization issued, Mr. Reid said, was about $46,000,000, of which $10,000,000 went to syndicate managers for putting the deal through and to the owners of the various mills as a bonus.

"State whether there was a rise in the prices of tin plate immediately after the formation of this company in 1898," Judge Dickinson said.

Had Table of Prices.

Mr. Reid surprised Judge Dickinson by producing a book containing tables of tin plate prices.

"I anticipated that I'd be asked that question," smiled the witness. "The average price of coke plate was $3.26 a hundredweight in 1897, $2.99 in 1898, $4.41 in 1899, $4.82 in 1900 and $4.35 in 1901. Its highest price in 1889 was $4.85," he said.

SALE OF UNDER-MUSLINS

$300,000 in Dividends on a $2,000 Investment

This has been the 27-year record of this business. It is proof of the old adage, "Merit is the foundation of success." For more than twenty-five years we have made this question a study, "How to merit the confidence, respect and patronage of the community in which we live and do business." The dividends show the result when coined into dollars. We are well paid for our service, our customers are well served for what they paid. We have made some money for ourselves, we have saved a million dollars for customers. Everybody happy. But in every place where we have done business our store has always outgrown the immediate community and has had to reach out for more business, enlarge its field of operation. And right here is the point. If with a little $5,000 stock located all alone on a prairie cross road in South Dakota we brought people in wagons from towns 15 to 35 miles away, can we now with a quarter of million dollars stock draw business from Duluth and neighboring Minnesota and Wisconsin towns? No matter what your answer may be, our answer is "WE ARE DOING IT EVERY DAY." And the sooner you try us out the sooner you will begin to declare dividends to yourselves on the money you spend.

MINNESOTA POLITICS

The Old Guard Emphatically Downed By Minnesota Republicans—L. M. Willcuts' Long Reign in St. Louis County Brought to an End—Roosevelt Will Have at Least Twenty-Two of Minnesota's Twenty-Four Delegates—La Follette May Have Ninth District—Taft Is Swamped.

The People Rule.

The old order changeth. The people of Minnesota have absolutely repudiated the men and the organization that have controlled Republican politics in the state since man's mind runneth not to the contrary. Ed Smith and the interests behind him, James A. Tawney, Cal E. Stone, and hundreds of local political leaders and bosses in the eighty-six counties of the state have been thrown into the discard.

It is a crushing blow to the system. The derided "soap-box" primary was the undoing of the bosses in many counties, but the people showed a new appreciation of their powers at the caucus and that unwieldy weapon was turned against the system and used in its destruction.

The result of the caucuses is a hard blow to the machine in control of the state administration. The fight was on well defined lines between the reactionary and Progressive wings of the party. The state administration has stood with the reactionary wing throughout. Ed Smith was slated for national committeeman if the state was carried for Taft. The organization of which Smith is the head was anxious to hold its grip on the party. It worked hard. It combined with the Federal officeholders and county organizations to prevent the people from getting control. The state central committee withheld the presidential primary as a part of the program. But the people arose and asserted themselves and the bosses are crushed.

There will be new faces in the county conventions; new faces in the district conventions; new faces in the state convention; and new men on the delegations to the national convention. Men who had counted on going to Chicago will not go unless they go as spectators. Men who haven't missed a state convention in many years will be on the outside when the Republicans of the state gather at Minneapolis Thursday. There will be new county committees and new precinct committees, and there will be a new state committee without Ed Smith at the helm.

The uninstructed play was the last resort of the reactionaries. Seeing Taft's nomination slipping out of sight, the machine in Minnesota resorted to the bandwagon movement for a dark horse candidate, who would be Taft-like without being Taft. The people didn't respond. They were suspicious of the old leaders and they knew Roosevelt. They took the reins of party government in their own hands and they are driving. The bosses are in the ditch.

Shock to the Old Guard.

In St. Louis county, the result achieved without any semblance of a presidential primary, is startling to the Old Guard. People who never attended a caucus before were out Saturday night—and they weren't only the people who were anxious to restore rule of the people in the party. The Old Guard mustered its full strength. Men who are the embodiment of Big Business in their communities and whose personal aid was not needed to perpetuate the old order in the past, were called upon to do their duty by their friends and they did it. They had left the caucuses to others in the past. They had to take their part this year, but their personal aid didn't avail. They went down to defeat.

The feature of the local caucuses was the shelving of L. M. Willcuts, collector of customs and director of Republican affairs, federal, state and county, in St. Louis county for many years. Mr. Willcuts fought a good fight. He was out in the open as the Taft leader. He played the game, lost and is reconciled to it. The burden was too much. He was left alone to lead a fight that in former years would have been divided. Odin Halden and E. B. Hawkins, the other two of the St. Louis county triumvirate known throughout the state, were out of it. Mr. Halden kept hands off. Mr. Hawkins returned only Saturday from a winter in the South and took no part in the contest. Mr. Willcuts led a fight against great odds. He tried to push back the tide of progressive thought, led by men young and vigorous in the fight, and he was swamped.

Eight Districts for Roosevelt.

The result of the caucuses Saturday night was even more sweeping than the most enthusiastic Roosevelt supporter hoped for. Out of sixty-eight counties reported Roosevelt appears to have carried fifty-four, Taft nine and La Follette five.

In every district except the ninth Roosevelt has a working majority without question. Taft will have no representation in the conventions of the Fourth, Fifth and Seventh districts, judging from the caucus returns. La Follette appears to have carried the Ninth district.

The county conventions today will probably make some changes in the estimates based on caucus results, but they will not be serious enough appreciably to affect the line-up. Returns already in give Roosevelt 789 delegates in the state convention Thursday, Taft 132 and La Follette 35.

Following is the vote by districts:

	Roosevelt.	Taft.	La Follette.
First	93	27	..
Second	81	13	..
Third	70	10	..
Fourth	93	..	..
Fifth	84	..	..
Sixth	91	16	13
Seventh	117	..	12
Eighth	94	28	..
Ninth	66	38	10
Totals	789	132	35

Later returns from the Ninth district indicate that La Follette will carry it. Dodge, Jackson, Watonwan, Carver, Scott, Sibley, Hubbard, Traverse, Yellow Medicine, Cook, Lake, Roseau, Clearwater, Mahnomen, Red Lake and Wilkin counties are not included in the estimates given.

Tawney Again Repudiated.

James A. Tawney failed dismally in his attempt to carry the First district for Taft. He succeeded in only two counties, Houston and Winona. Tawney was repudiated when Sydney Anderson was given the nomination over him two years ago, but his repudiation under the caucus system Saturday was even more emphatic. Mr. Tawney was a candidate for delegate to the Chicago convention from the First district. Mr. Tawney will remain at home or will go to Chicago as a spectator.

The Colonel Is Pleased.

Messages from Oyster Bay yesterday indicate that Col. Roosevelt was immensely pleased with the result in Minnesota. "I believe the victory in Minnesota is complete, and that we will have the entire delegation of the state," said the colonel. Mr. Roosevelt is correct in his belief.

DISGUSTING PERFORMANCE

"The Monte Carlo Girls" Present Burlesque at the Lyceum.

The "Monte Carlo Girls" were scheduled to give a "real burlesque" show at the Lyceum theater Sunday afternoon and evening. They lived up to advertisements.

The performance was the vilest and most indecent seen in Duluth since the days of the old Parlor theater. Even the old Metropolitan in its palmy days offered nothing to equal the entertainment (?) given by the company yesterday.

Women apparently had been excluded, or at least those allowed in had been carefully selected, for at the evening performance there were but six or seven in the large audience, these occupying seats at the extreme rear. Some of there were probably connected with the company in some capacity.

DULUTH VISITOR WAS ON TITANIC

F. Liederman, a traveling man who was returning to this side from Paris and London, representing a Chicago firm, was a member of a poker party aboard the ill-fated Titanic when it sank. He is at the Holland.

Mr. Liederman says that he believes Capt. Smith committed suicide. He states that he saw him standing on the deck of the boat as it went down, saw him raise his right hand to his head and believes that the movement was immediately followed by a puff of smoke.

The survivor commented upon the terrible cold and the actions of the men in the lifeboat which he was in, taking off their coats to keep the women warm. He says that the lifeboat could easily have accommodated twenty more persons, but that they saw none to pick up. He spoke highly of the treatment accorded them aboard the Carpathia.

Will Seek New Trial.

Jack Drexler, convicted of manslaughter at Virginia, will attempt to get a new trial. He was granted a 20-day stay of sentence and in the meantime his attorney, Alexander Marshall will argue for a retrial of the case.

Drexler was convicted of the murder of Axel Pakkala, a Virginia saloon keeper, last December. While waiting sentence at the county jail he has shown no discontent nor has he brooded in the least.

John Backa, the Hibbing homesteader, accused of having murdered his wife, is also at the county jail. He was tried for the crime last week at Hibbing, but the jury disagreed. He will be retried.

S.S.S. THE CURE FOR SCROFULA

The usual symptoms of Scrofula are enlarged glands of the neck, sores and ulcers on the body, skin affections, catarrhal troubles, weak eyes, and general poor health. The inherited poison, transmitted through the blood, pollutes and weakens this fluid, and in place of its nutritive qualities fills the circulation with scrofulous matter, which saps the vitality of the entire system. Thousands of children, born with a scrofulous taint, have spent their childhood in constant physical suffering, and grown to manhood or womanhood handicapped by ill health and stunted growth, and perhaps later some disease of the bones or joints developed. S. S. S., given in their early life, would have prevented this. It would have cleansed and purified the blood of the taint, nourished and stengthened their systems, and assisted each to grow into strong, healthful manhood or womanhood. S. S. S. is the very best remedy for Scrofula. It goes down to the bottom of the trouble, and cleanses the circulation of all scrofulous matter. It supplies the weak, diseased blood with strength and health-building qualities, and under the purifying effects of this great remedy all symptoms of Scrofula pass away. S. S. S. contains no minerals in any form, and is an absolutely safe treatment for children, even infants, or persons of any age. Literature about Scrofula and any medical advice free. TAFT SCENTS CONSPIRACY

Says Effort Is Being Made to Arouse Religious Prejudice.

Denies Butt Went on Mission to Pope—Denies Welcoming Bonzano.

Washington, May 13.—At the White house a personal statement by President Taft has been given out categorically denying that Maj. Archibald Butt, the president's military aid, who was lost on the Titanic, had gone to Rome on any mission whatever from the president to the Vatican.

President Taft's signed statement says in part:

"Among the insiduous methods of attack pursued by some against me is the attempt to arouse religious prejudice on the charge that I am in some manner unduly favoring the Roman Catholic church. It has been my official purpose, first, as the governor general if the Philippines; second as secretary of war, and third as president, to encourage every church as far as possible where this does not involve invidious distinctions, and does not part from the rule which separates our state from official relations to all churches. I have unduly favored no church, but have treated them all with absolute impartiality.

Relations With Vatican.

"In 1902 I visited Rome and conferred with Pope Leo XIII. in an attempt to settle the Friar land controversy, which had arisen in the Philippines while I was governor-general, and after a time I succeeded in doing so. When, last March, my aide, Maj. Butt, set out on a trip solely for his health and proposed to visit Rome, he asked me for a letter of introduction to the present pope that he might have the privilege of an audience, and I gave him such a letter.

"The letter contained nothing but a statement of who Maj. Butt was and an expression of the hope that he might have the honor of being received. The only note or letter from the pope or any representative of his in answer to this letter of introduction which I have received, is a cablegram of condolence from Cardinal Merry Del Val on the death of Maj. Butt at the time of the sinking of the Titanic, to which I replied expressing my thanks and giving the facts.

Did Not Welcome Bonzano.

"The evidence that there is a conspiracy to arouse religious prejudice against me is shown by the fact that at the instance of some one unknown to me, it was reported in a great many very respectable newspapers that I had sent a message of welcome and congratulation to the newly appointed apostolic delegate by wireless to the incoming steamer which was bearing him to New York. No such message was sent by me or by any one by my authority. A denial of the published report was issued from the White House, but the denial has obtained no publicity.

"The statement that I suspended an order made by the Indian commissioner affecting the garb of the teachers in certain Indian schools which have been transferred from the Catholic church to the government is true. I did this for the reason that the commissioner had issued the order after consulting with the secretary of the interior and without awaiting his conclusions. The propriety of the order has now been made the subject of an open, free discussion by all the parties in interest, and the decision of the secretary of the interior will soon be handed down. I say nothing on the merits of the controversy, except that the order reversed a condition which has existed for years and affected thorty or forty teachers who, as nuns, had been, long before my time, incorporated in the service of the government, and who would be in effect expelled from that service by that order should it prevail. They were therefore entitled to a full hearing.

"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

FOR PHYSICIANS AND HOSPITALS

How can physicians and hospitals afford to hold chronic kidney patients to certain failure on the orthodox treatment when by a simple addition recovery is possible in many cases? We record below another recovery in a case of Bright's disease declared incurable by the books.

Mr. John Anderson, 660 Bryan Avenue, Fort Worth, Texas, wrote on December 6, 1910, from which we extract:

"I would like to have your opinion and will give you my symptoms. My legs, thighs and stomach are badly swollen. My doctor tried strong purgatives to relieve the dropsy, but to no purpose. Four months ago the swelling was so bad that my lungs were full and the elimination was almost solid with albumen. I was in bed three months previous to taking the Renal Compound. It has done me more good than anything else, but I am still bedfast."

Prescriptions were sent to aid the Compound to reduce the dropsy.

On January 27, 1911, Anderson again wrote as follows:

"I wish to thank you for the letter and prescriptions. I have completely recovered. I had a test made two days ago and am perfectly free from albumen. Barring weakness I feel as well as I ever did. I have been out of bed just three weeks, having been confined to bed nine months. It has taken about twenty-five bottles to cure me. Of course I was in a terrible condition and the results have surprised all who knew how bad I was. I do not suppose you need a testimonial, but you are perfectly welcome to use my name if you wish."

vance. It was a Bryan convention, managed by his friends, steered by his brother and the associate editor of his Commoner who made every move after long distance phone consultations with Mr. Bryan at his Fairview home. The only serious candidacy in opposition to his was that of Governor Johnson of Minnesota, and Johnson had hardly a look-in.

Nothing Against Harmon.

It seems a pity that on the strength of a vague letter, written by an irresponsizle local politician, Mr. Bryan should stoop from his high estate as the thrice nominated candidate of his party to accuse the Democratic governor of a pivotal state of corruption and the buying of delegates. Nothing in the letter which Harvey Garber has given out suggests Governor Harmon's knowledge of any plan to defray the expenses of these two unnamed delegates to the Denver convention. Were the facts more specific Bryan should himself know that for a state organization to pay the expenses of delegates to a distant national convention is no evidence of execrable corruption. Moreover, when Harmon responds that at the time of the Denver convention he had accepted the nomination for governor of Ohio and could not have been an aspirant for the presidential nomination, it would seem to any reasonable man that he had put in a complete defense.

In writing this I have no desire to defend Governor Harmon's candidacy for the presidential nomination. That candidacy at the moment languishes chiefly because the governor himself has not pressed it eagerly and has systematically discouraged the activity of many friends. "I do not think," he said, once in my hearing, "that a presidential candidate should be boomed like a three-ring circus."

From which it would appear that Governor Harmon has something to learn from the political methods of Theodore Roosevelt.

Likely to Injure the Party.

But in commenting upon the flatulency of the latest Bryan attack upon Harmon, the average Washington Democratic politician, whatever his personal affiliations, deplores it as likely to injure the party, whoever may be nominated. Mr. Bryan's strength with the people is admittedly great. At present he has probably done all that could be done to defeat Harmon if nominated. He has fought Oscar Underwood—one of the earliest Bryan men in Alabama—in a way that will be used against the party should Underwood be the nominee. He once attacked Champ Clark during the tariff struggles in the extra session, and has since damned him with faint praise. It was the Bryan spokesman who asked Clark to withdraw from the Nebraska primaries in order that Wilson might hold what they called the progressive vote in Nebraska. The result was that Clark won the majority of the delegates from Nebraska. Later Mr. Bryan stumped Florida for Wilson and presently thereafter the state elected Underwood delegates. All of which leads politicians to discount the Bryan influence.

It is quite true that this influence did cause the overthrow of the Guffey machine in Pennsylvania and establish the Mitchell-Palmer machine in its stead. But as some of the members of the house point out, the Bryan influence is more and more becoming limited to states that invariably give their electoral votes to Republican nominees. Except perhaps in Oklahoma and Texas, Mr. Bryan as a force in favor of any candidate has been almost negligible—as a power to injure a candidate he is powerful.

The process of injuring, of attacking every candidate thus far considered seriously by the Democratic party means ultimately the demolition of party prospects in an election which a few months ago was looked forward to as offering practically certain assurance of Democratic success. Mr. Bryan's purpose is no doubt highly conscientious, but its effect is making Democrats despair of victory.

MUCH MACHINE WRECKAGE.

If ever a candidate was lucky in his enemies, Roosevelt is.

If ever a candidate bounced squarely into the heart of a psychological moment, Roosevelt did.

In carrying pivotal states like Illinois, Pennsylvania and Minnesota, Roosevelt has had the great help of the ardent enmity of the bosses and the Old Guard.

His candidacy for the Republican nomination for president came just at the psychological moment when the party rank and file was ripe for revolt against old-time leadership.

In Illinois it was Lorimer, in Pennsylvania it was Penrose, in Minnesota it was the Eberhart-Smith machine. Each stands for undemocratic and plutocratic government, necessarily inefficient and too often corrupt. The people were weary with them all. These machines were for Taft and against Roosevelt. Taft had worked with and for them, Roosevelt attacked them savagely.

It was not alone the presidency and the national fight in any of these states. It was state pride, the desire for honest, efficient and responsive local governments unentangled with national machines of corruption. The revolt was against these machines and leaders and against the Old Guard generally because their excesses had long since passed endurance, and while as yet the revolution has not taken constructive form, its work of destruction completed, new organizations will arise on the ruins of the old.

Taft was the victim, in part for his own shortcomings, in larger part for his alliances with those upon whose destruction the party rank and file were bent. Roosevelt was the beneficiary largely because the bosses attacked were against Roosevelt and Roosevelt was against them.

Nowhere was the rebuke more crushing, more final, more thoroughgoing than in Minnesota, where the party voters, lacking the convenience of a presidential primary, broke through all barriers and cleaned out the Old Guard from top to bottom; using makeshift preference primaries here and there, and doing fairly well with the oldfashioned caucus where nothing better offered. Taft will have but a handful of delegates in the state convention. Practically all of the old faces will be missing in county and state conventions. Hardly a shred is left, in the state or in any county, of the smoothly running machine of which Ed Smith was the chauffeur and Adolph O. Eberhart the privileged passenger—with a choice collection of special interests joy-riding in the back seat.

It shows that Minnesota is tired of ranking with the reactionary states. It shows that Minnesota refuses longer to be the Rhode Island of the Middle West. It shows that this state has determined to be free, and to do whatever machine-smashing there is necessary to make it free.

To bring the lesson home, the governorship was an issue in one county—Kandiyohi—where Eberhart, the machine candidate, was a bad third.

Minnesota is to be congratulated on the thorough housecleaning that it has begun so well.

Play Ball!

If you see a man with an exceptionally broad smile today, you can know that he's a fan anticipating tomorrow.

WHY NOT?

The Massachusetts legislature recently passed a "veterans' bounty" law which came before the supreme court. The court held it unconstitutional, and in the decision, which he wrote, the chief justice said:

> The people can be taxed only for public uses. They cannot be required to contribute for the private benefit of any person or class of persons.

That's good law, and it ought to be. Once you start levying taxes for the benefit of individuals or classes, there can be no end to it because one class is as deserving of special taxation as another.

But—

Suppose a tariff law should get before the supreme court of the United States, and the court applied that rule to the policy of protection, which taxes all the people for the benefit of a manufacturing class. The tariff is a tax. It is a tax no less when the proceeds go to manufacturers than when they go to the public treasury. But probably relief won't come that way. It will have to come through congress.

But Let's Forgive Him.

Apparently the weather clerk got Sunday and Monday mixed, this time.

BUYING THE EXPRESS BUSINESS.

There are reports that the house of representatives is thinking seriously of a project to have the government take over the express business by acquiring the contracts and equipment of the express companies by condemnation and purchase.

It is to be hoped that congress will drop that idea. It's neither sensible nor necessary.

The government already has the nucleus of an effective competition with the express companies in the postoffice department.

Let it simply provide a general parcels post, so that the postoffice will take all parcels and carry them as cheaply as it can be done—at cost, of course, and with no profit to the government. That's all that's necessary.

If the government buys the express companies it will have to buy not merely their equipment, which is a ridiculously small proportion of the actual value of the express business, but their stock, too. And the present value of express company stock is based on grossly inflated profits which were made possible only by the government's neglect to provide a service that is provided in every civilized country on the globe except this.

After the government, by its neglect, has allowed that neglect to be enormously capitalized by the express companies, it would be absurd to tax the people to buy it up. Express company capital is based on about ten per cent of property, and ninety per cent government neglect.

Just start a real parcels post. That's all the government need do. If that involves a competition which puts the express companies out of business, then there will be no express companies anywhere, for this is the only country that has them. The damage to owners of express company stock would be large, of course; but during the time when they have been allowed to charge whatever prices they pleased because there was no competition with them, they have accumulated tremendous surplus profits which can be distributed to reimburse the stockholders. It's nothing the government need bother about.

Just start a parcels post. That's enough for the government to do, and it ought to do it immediately.

Nothing Personal Meant.

At the same time, it would be a relief to have a president with enough confidence in his record to stick to his work and his dignity instead of chasing around trying to explain his mistakes.

THE CUYUNA RANGE.

Though the development in detail of the Cuyuna iron range has been more or less familiar for several years, the full story of its advance is told for the first time in The Herald tonight, and it makes an interesting story.

The youngest of the iron ranges, the Cuyuna is even yet only on the doorstep of its development. There are three shipping mines now, two more are certain to come in this season, six are ready to ship at any time, and two others are possible shippers later in the season. Last year the first shipments were made, 147,000 tons from one mine. Orders for 350,000 tons are now in, and if the markets warrant it a million tons can be shipped this year.

The ore belt is not fully defined as yet, but it covers, roughly speaking, a section twenty miles wide and forty miles long—more than eight hundred square miles. In all probability subsequent developments will show it to have a much larger area. It now embraces a large part of Crow Wing county, and parts of Aitkin and Morrison counties. Brainerd and Aitkin are its commercial centers, but several other thriving communities are building up, none more than two years old—Crosby, Cuyuna, Ironton, Barrows, Oreland and Manganese.

A lively agricultural advance, hardly less noteworthy, has paralleled this mineral development, and there are interesting water power possibilities.

This is just one item in the list that makes the greatness of Minnesota.

Take It Either Way.

Taft is back in Ohio. And so far back, apparently, that he realizes it is going to take some work to pull himself forward.

NO MORE OF THIS, PLEASE.

A burlesque performance appeared at the Lyceum theater yesterday afternoon and evening which, from all accounts, was not fit for any human being to witness, not to speak of women and children who might blunder in through a misapprehension.

Shows of this kind have houses of their own in many of the larger communities. Generally they are in slum districts. Everybody knows their character, and they are patronized only by the class of people to whose depraved tastes they pander.

Such shows are bad enough there. But in a first-class theater, patronized by everybody, they have no place at all, and it is to be hoped that Duluth hasn't many of the sort of people that make their prosperity possible in any theater.

There can be no defense of such shows anywhere. They cater to the lowest appetites. They are vulgar at their best, and unspeakably vile at their worst. Duluth can get along without them very well, and it is to be hoped that another like that of Sunday will not be sprung on an unsuspecting public which is used to finding decency in its principal theater.

Gentle Reminder.

Maybe ex-Congressman Tawney realizes a little better now just why he is an "ex."

A COMMON MISTAKE.

The Montevideo Leader, after dwelling on the quantity of iron ore there is in Northern Minnesota and its great value, adds: "Crookedness somewhere, or that vast wealth in ore could not have been bought and owned by one corporation. It is said also that a large part of the rest is held by Jim Hill's Great Northern railway, so that about all of this vast wealth in ore has got away from the state that owned it a few years ago."

This illustrates a very common error in the discussions of this subject.

The state of Minnesota has lost no ore. It now owns, with practically no exception, all the mines it ever owned. Any state-owned ore that has come into private control is controlled only by lease, and the miners must pay the state a royalty on every ton they mine.

The idea that all this ore was once owned by the state and that the state has permitted it to escape its grasp gives less credit to the wisdom of the state than it deserves, for Minnesota provided early that the ore beneath and the timber upon the land it owns shall not go with the land when it is sold.

With practically no exception, all the ore in Minnesota is either owned by the state, which is selling it on a royalty basis, or by those who acquired title from the United States government.

The royalties being paid the state are probably not high enough, but they were considered ample when the contracts were made. About five years ago the legislature repealed the leasing law, and has never provided a substitute. When one is provided, doubtless the royalties it will call for will be higher than those provided in the old leases.

Except for the much mooted Mountain Iron property, the state has permitted no iron mines to escape from its possession. In time to come a tremendous fortune in the state school fund, which is already being augmented largely from this source, will testify to the foresight and wisdom shown in the laws which forbid the sale of state land except with timber and mineral rights reserved to the state.

Oshkosh, Wis., ice dealers announce a 25 cent advance in the price to consumers. 'Smatter? Long, cold winter make the stuff too hard to cut?

Statements from the rival camps indicate that political boxes have the same kind of movable bottoms that we sometimes hear about in strawberry season.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

WAS TOO EASY.

The Herald received so many answers to the problem suggested by "I Got Stung" that it was found impossible to run all of them. The first two solutions were published, but probably a dozen more correct ones were received Saturday and Sunday.—The Editor.

BOOST, DON'T KNOCK.

To the Editor of The Herald:

As one of those who are working to gain for Duluth the things to which it is entitled, and which it can get by going after them, I wish to protest against the policy of the News Tribune in filling its columns with criticism of Duluth, the railroads, and conditions generally, because it is interfering seriously with the work that is being done.

I presume the News Tribune means well. Of course, it wants the chance to pat itself on the back, which I notice it does every time anything good happens, no matter how much more difficult its maladroit interference has made it to bring that thing about. But I am willing to concede, for the sake of argument, that it wants Duluth to go ahead.

But Duluth can't be pushed ahead by constant knocking, not only of conditions that exist, but of those upon whom we must depend to a large extent to remedy them. Steady nagging about bad train service, railroad failings and the like is only irritating, and when organized bodies representing the public interest are working faithfully to correct things needing correction, this policy simply makes their work harder and success less possible.

Not only that, but it creates a bad impression. People of surrounding towns who read every day how rotten the train service is to Duluth are likely to take it all for truth, and decide to trade elsewhere. Even some of our own people who read so many daily criticisms are likely to get the mistaken impression that Duluth's case is so bad that it is all but hopeless, so they might as well pull up stakes and go somewhere else where the prospects are better.

When the traffic commission took up its negotiations with the railroads it was hampered by the guerrilla cross-fire attack which the News Tribune began upon the railroads. Present negotiations along many lines are being hampered by another series of attacks on railroad service, some of which are true, some of which are absurd, and none of which are accompanied by constructive suggestion.

Let's have criticism when criticism is called for, but let's not carp all the time, and let our criticism be either constructive or unvoiced.

As I have no personal desire to engage in newspaper controversy, I would prefer that you would not publish my name. Very truly,

A CITIZEN OF DULUTH.

Duluth, May 12.

The Creed of the I. W. W.

Lorin F. Deland, who contributes to the current Atlantic a detailed study of the Lawrence strike, quotes verbatim from a manifesto issued by the I. W. W.:

"As a revolutionary organization the Industrial Workers of the World aims to use any and all tactics that will get the results sought with the least expenditure of time and energy. The tactics used are determined solely by the power of the organization to make good in their use. The question of 'right' and 'wrong' does not concern us.

"No terms made with an employer are final. All peace, so long as the wage-system lasts, is but an armed truce. At any favorable opportunity the struggle is renewed.

"The organization does not allow contracts with the employers. It aims, where strikes are used to paralyze all branches of the industry involved, when the employers can least afford a cessation of work—during the busy season and when there are rush orders to be filled.

"Failing to force concessions from the employers by the strike, work is resumed and 'sabotage' is used to force the employers to concede the demands of the workers.

"During strikes the works are closely picketed and every effort made to keep the employers from getting workers into the shops. All supplies are cut off from strike-bound shops. All shipments are refused, or mis-sent, delayed and lost if possible.

"Strike-breakers are also isolated to the full extent of the powers of the organization. Interference by the government is resented by open violation of the government's orders, going to jail en masse, causing expense to the tax-payers—which is but another name for the employing class.

"In short, the I. W. W. advocates the use of militant 'direct action' tactics to the full extent of our power to make them."

This is not political socialism, says Mr. Deland. It is not anything political or theoretical. The I. W. W. does not talk, write, or argue. It acts! It care nothing for "right" or "wrong." It openly defies government by law, and announces that it will use any violence it can commit.

A Man With the By-Path Talent.

John Burroughs in the Atlantic: My life has always been more or less detached from the life about me. I have not been a hermit, but my temperament and love of solitude, and a certain constitutional timidity and shrinking from all kinds of strife, have kept me in the by-paths rather than on the great highways of life. My talent, or at most, a talent for green lanes and sequestered roadsides; but that which has most interested me in life, Nature, can be seen from lanes and by-paths better even than from the turnpike, where the dust and noise and the fast driving obscure the view or distract the attention. I have loved the feel of the grass under my feet, and the sound of the running streams by my side. The hum of the wind in the treetops has always been good music to me, and the face of the fields has often comforted me more than the faces of men.

I am in love with this world because by my constitution I have nestled lovingly in it. It has been home. It has been my point of outlook into the universe. I have not bruised myself against it, nor tried to use it ignobly. I have tilled its soil, I have gathered its harvests, I have waited upon its seasons, and always have I reaped what I have sown. While I delved I did not lose sight of the sky overhead. While I gathered bread and meat for my body, I did not neglect to gather its bread and meat for my soul. I have climbed its mountains, roamed its forests, sailed its waters, crossed its deserts, felt the sting of its frosts, the oppression of its heats, the drench of its rains, the fury of its winds, and always have beauty and joy waited upon my goings and comings.

Time-Honored.

Life: President Taft is peeved at the Democrats because "they propose to depart from the time-honored practise of adding to our navy each year two battleships, by cutting them off altogether."

We hardly know which side to take in this abstruse and erudite question. We should like more information. Who started this two-battleship-a-year practice and how did time happen to honor it? It must be remembered that time doesn't always bestow badges of honor. We have had the poor with us for a long time, but we do not speak of the poor as time-honored. We have never heard of the time-honored slums or, for that matter, of the time-honored trusts or the time-honored tariff.

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

Good Indication.

Halt Northern Light: If Governor Eberhart's chances for re-election were considered very good it is somewhat doubtful if so many intelligent men would declare their candidacy for the office.

Some Things Overlooked.

Northfield News: Governor Eberhart, answering a demand that he publish his campaign expenses, points with pride to the record of the last legislature. He forgets that Billy Hamm and his crowd financed the legislative campaigns. And he also overlooks Mr. Lee's allusion to the large drafts he has made upon the people's money to pay for newspaper clippings, joy rides and Great Northern advertising trips.

Time for a Reckoning.

Biwabik Times: Pretty soon Eberhart will be roaming about the state asking the people to believe in him. If he had stuck with the people he would not have to ask the favor.

Who Pays the Bills?

St. Cloud Times: Sam Gordon, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, has "thrown his hat into the ring"—that is, he will pass his chapeau for cash contributions from those who want to see the Ed Smith machine smashed; W. E. Lee says he will pay his own expenses; Spooner has nothing to say, and they all say the breweries will take care of Eberhart's little bills.

The Same Way.

Chisholm Tribune-Herald: Eberhart is in favor of the primary plan about as much as he was in favor of a just reapportionment.

Why Should He?

Lake Crystal Union: You don't think for a moment that Government Eberhart is going to be re-elected?

Do you?

Not a Perfect Lady.

Anoka Union: Don't you think the way Governor Eberhart has conducted himself in the present campaign, that he has acted the part of a gentleman?

One for L. C.

Coleraine Optic: Spooner is now a very busy man trying to explain why he voted for the tonnage tax and claims his constituents demanded it. Pure mustard! The writer lived in that district about as long as Loole, and we know better.

Why Woodrow Wilson?

Collier's: Roosevelt is the Republican most likely to be nominated; next to him comes Hughes; the weakness of the president has almost ended his chance. Now what can the Democrats say to such an outlook? They must oppose the immense popularity and campaigning ability of the best president since the war, called back by the people because of his thirty years of successful progressive leadership; or they must oppose a man of distinguished character, powerful mind, and reassuring record, who will unite the hostile factions of his party. Under what leadership can they make headway against such opponents?

If they try Harmon or Underwood they will break their party all to pieces in the West, and very possibly force Bryan to bolt.

If they nominate Clark, the personal popularity with which he begins, backed by nothing else, will be battered to pieces in four months of bombardment.

If Bryan, after supporting both Clark and Wilson, should fall heir to their delegates and be nominated himself, it would be the old story of the lack of confidence in the East, to which free silver has apparently made him the everlasting heir.

No one of these men could take their share of the independent vote away from Roosevelt or Hughes, and the indepent vote is tremendously large these days. The Democrats are "up against it" anyway, in the exceptional running strength of two of the Republican possibilities. Their rational course is to name the man who would take a large slice of the independent vote; would be backed by perhaps a majority of the great magazines and great independent dailies; would appeal to the young men; would take many thousands of the La Follette type of Republican radicals. Wilson has said of himself that he wishes to bring about radical changes by conservative means, and he described himself truly. Were it not for the bitter opposition of the machines, the money power, and William Randolph Hearst, Wilson would be nominated; and much more than any other Democrat, he would cause the Republicans to sit up nights and think.

A Socialist's Queer Reason.

"I'm going back to congress because I like the job."—Congressman Victor Berger.

He hasn't heard his country's call,
He isn't sure they've sent it.
He doesn't fell 'twould end it all
Should he not represent it.

He doesn't think that through his boom
All of the folks have spoken,
That failure would result in gloom
And constitutions broken.

He doesn't feel the principle
For which he's known to stand
Can only be invincible
Provided he's on hand.

Nor is it with reluctance deep
He foregoes private life;
Nor does it make him almost weep—
The limelight and the strife.

He doesn't hate the salary,
The perquisities, applause
From the people in the gallery
That watch him make the laws.

He's simply going back, he says, because he likes the job!
A sad, suspicious figure in that patriotic mob.

Heard But Not Seen.

Atlantic: I confess that to me much of the delight of an early morning landscape of Corot or Claude Monet is due in no small measure to the music of singing birds. Though not one is to be seen, I am sure they are there.

There is a story told of Corot that he was once painting in a wood, while near him sat another painter whose creed was to record things in nature just as they are. Coming over to the easel of Pere Corot, he said—

"Why, you are not painting this scene at all as it really is. You have left out that large rock yonder and put in a birch tree—there is no such tree to be seen."

With a confiding smile, Corot replied, "If you'll not say anything about it, I will tell you why I put in that birch. It was to please the birds."

Youth.

John Burroughs in the Atlantic: Oh, the eagerness and freshness of youth! How the boy enjoys his food, his sleep, his sports, his companions, his truant days! His life is an adventure, he is widening his outlook, he is extending his dominion, he is conquering his kingdom. How cheap are his pleasures, how ready his enthusiasm! In boyhood I have had more delight on a haymow with two companions and a big dog—delight that came nearer intoxication—than I have ever had in all the subsequent holidays of my life. When youth goes, much goes with it. When manhood comes, much goes with it. We exchange a world of delightful sensations and impressions for a world of duties and studies and meditations. The youth enjoys what the man tries to understand. Lucky is he who can get his grapes to market and keep the bloom upon them, who can carry some of the freshness and eagerness and simplicity of youth into his later years, who can have a boy's heart below a man's head.

What's the Use?

Life: "What's the use of disturbing the present system?" asked the man who had just received a quarterly dividend check of large proportions.

"What's the use of keeping it as it is?" came the answering question from the man who had spent the day looking for work, but without finding it.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1892.

•••Thresa Scrafield, a French woman, 38 years old, was murdered early yesterday morning by her husband, A. J. Scrafield, in their room in the Fontanel block, at Eighth avenue west and Superior street. She was shot two or three times. Scrafield then shot himself in the breast, dying at St. Luke's hospital at 10 o'clock last night. The couple were married at Ewing, Mich., about seven years ago and have two sons in Ithaca, Wis. They separated several months ago on account of the husband's drunkenness, Mrs. Scrafield going to her mother, Mrs. Sayer, at Sault Ste Marie, Mich. Three weeks ago she came to Duluth to live with her sister, Madame Sayer, a dressmaker. Scrafield followed her here and the tragedy followed. Scrafield was a barber, 40 years old, and was born in New York state.

•••The Port Arthur, Duluth & Western railway was incorporated yesterday by James Conmee of Port Arthur, Ont., and John Paulson, Kristian Kortgaard, Louis A. Reed, Freeman P. Lane and Matthew Walsh of Minneapolis, with a capital of $125,000.

•••The Outcrop Iron Mining company, with a capital stock of $500,000, filed articles of incorporation yesterday. The officers are: President, John F. Whiting of Chicago; vice presidents, George Lill of Chicago and David M. Case of Minneapolis; secretary, Charles A. Hutchinson; treasurer, George F. Schilling. The company owns the fee of lands in section 35, 56-24.

•••J. S. Richards, C. H. Strong and M. H. Taylor, three well known citizens of Erie, Pa., are on their way to Duluth to gather information relative to the grain trade and commerce of the lakes, to lay before the business of their city. Erie is preparing to compete with Buffalo for the grain trade of the lake.

•••The plumbers of the city are out on strike. They demand that the bosses, when in need of men, employ plumbers who live in Duluth so long as there are any out of work, and must not take men outside the city. The bosses will not agree to this.

•••H. L. Thompson has been elected second lieutenant of Company H at West Duluth.

AN IDEAL AMERICAN.

Houston Chronicle: Pictures of Woodrow Wilson arriving or departing from various places or en route somewhere, making speeches and being greeted by deputations and committees everywhere, are published in all the papers, and the speeches themselves, which fill many columns of the daily press, would, if published in book form, make many volumes. From it all the people of these United States have formed a very definite idea of the statesman from Princeton, and that is in a phase that he is an ideal American and American of ideals.

To be an American worthy of the name it is necessary that a citizen shall be a product of the past and a maker of the future. We have too many citizens in this country today who, in business and politics, live according to European rather than American ideals. No citizen is first class unless he is devoted to American principles. Unless a citizen is a product of our past, he is not fit to be a maker of our future.

What are American principles? They are all summed up implied in our declaration of Independence, and have been marvelously compressed in the sentence which Jefferson, the author of the declaration, wrote to be the slogan of the Democratic party: "Equal rights for all, special privileges for none."

We have equal rights in our courts. We have equal rights in our public schools. We have equal rights in many of our institutions. But we have special privileges in our national government, which oppresses us with a tariff framed to enrich the few at the expense of the many, and, with its lax and inefficient enforcement of the anti-trust law, permits the trusts to go up and down the land seeking a competitor to devour and to charge the people extortionate prices. "What mean ye that ye beat my people to pieces and grind the faces of the poor, saith the Lord God of hosts."

Now the time has come to change all this. The day of reckoning is at hand. The Democratic party won the house in 1910. "Coming events cast their shadows before them." The democratic party is going to win the presidency and senate in 1912. But the Democratic party is not going to win—and if it did win it would be a barren victory—if it should be controlled by its minority plutocratic element and should nominate a plutocratic candidate like Harmon. Governor Harmon may be an excellent man personally, but his friends and supporters belong to the plutocratic element of the Democratic party, which is doubtful about trust reform, unsound as to tariff reform, believes in taking big campaign contributions from Ryan and Wall Street, and is really Republicanism in disguise, being Democracy in name only.

The American people want a Democrat who is a genuine Democrat, like Woodrow Wilson, who is a friend of the masses who believes in the government being the people's government and not in the people being the government's people.

A Solemn Joke.

Lincoln State Journal: Maryland for Champ Clark, too! Really, Democratic brothers, isn't this carrying the joke almost too far.

It was well enough for Pike county to have its candidate for president. We all welcomed the houn' dawg. The situation had become too tense to be pleasant, and our good humor came back with the advent of the dawg and of the annexation statesman. But there's such a thing as too much fun.

Champ Clark is fine in his place. Ever since he rolled up his sleeves and told a member from Maine that he had more mouth and less brains than any man that ever sat in the American congress, his place as a congressional pop-off has been secure. But his place as president—that's another matter.

Of course we see the logic of it. This isn't any blind popular wave, though it does carry popular votes in Nebraska, Massachusetts, Illinois, Maryland and the like. The party leaders see the point. Bryan has condemned Harmon and Underwood. The reactionaries have repudiated Wilson. Nobody has kicked Clark. Why should they? He isn't against anybody. The Democrats scent victory, granted only they find a candidate nobody opposes. And that's Champ Clark—lovable, tractable, as hard to hate as a bale of cotton, and just about as likely to disturb anybody. He talks progressive; but living as Senator La Follette says, twenty years ago, he gives no chills to standpatters.

Such purely negative candidates as this used to win presidential elections. It is probably different now. But could the Democrats afford to win with such a candidate? Why not rather nominate Punch and Judy and so at least win credit for sailing under true colors?

Be Warned, Haughty Heiress.

Artemus Ward: In a sumptuously furnished parlor in Fifth avenue, New York, sat a proud and haughty belle. Her name was Isabel Sawtelle. Her father was a millionaire, and his ships, richly laden, plowed many a sea.

By the side of Isabel Sawtelle sat a young man with a clear, beautiful eye and a massive brow.

"I must go," he said, "the foreman will wonder at my absence."

"The foreman?" asked Isabel in a tone of surprise.

"Yes, the foreman of the shop where I work."

"Foreman—shop—work! What! do you work?"

"Aye, Miss Sawtelle! I am a cooper!" and his eyes flashed with honest pride.

"What's that?" she asked, "it is something about barrels, isn't it?"

"It is," he said with a flashing nostril. "And hogsheads."

"Then go!" she said, in a tone of disdain—"go away!"

"Ha!" he cried, "you spurn me then because I am a mechanic. Well, be it so, though the time will come, Isabel Sawtelle," he added—and nothing could exceed his looks at this moment—"when you will bitterly remember the cooper you now cruelly cast off! Farewell!"

Years rolled on. Isabel Sawtelle married a miserable aristocrat, who recently died of delirium tremens. Her father failed and is now a raving maniac and wants to bite little children. All her brothers (except one) were sent to the penitentiary for burglary and her mother peddles clams that are stolen by little George her only son that has his freedom. Isabel's sister, Blanca, rides an immoral spotted horse in the circus, her husband having long since been hanged for murdering his own uncle on his mother's side. Thus we see that it is always best to marry a mechanic.

"The Lesson From Lawrence."

W. Jett Lauck in North American Review: The significance of the situation at Lawrence is therefore obvious. The class of wage-earners in Lawrence—recent immigrants, unable to speak English, of low standards of living, without industrial experience and unable to know proper working conditions—are the same as are found in all branches of mining and manufacturing in the United States. In brief, although the general level of wages is somewhat lower in Lawrence than in some other branches of manufacturing, the general conditions of life and work are the same. In other words, the status of the wage-earner and his family in Lawrence is typical of the so-called American wage-erner in general. As a consequence, the question as to what we are going to do about the situation in Lawrence quickly resolves itself into the more general inquiry as to what we are going to do about the entire industrial situation. This is the significance of the whole matter. The Lawrence strike is settled, but unless more than local treatment is administered, it will rise again to vex us and a hundred similar instances will follow in its train. The public welfare as well as the condition of our industrial workers demands that measures be taken to prevent the development on a national scale of the conditions which have been characteristic of the strike of the Lawrence woolen and worsted mill operatives.

Aping Fine Society.

From George William Curtis' "The Potiphar Papers": If gilt were only gold, or sugar candy common sense, what a fine thing "Our Society" would be! If to lavish money upon objects de vertu, to wear the most costly dresses, and always to have them cut in the height of fashion; to build houses thirty feet broad as if they were palaces; to furnish them with all the luxurious devices of Parisian genius; to give superb banquets at which your guests laugh, and which make you miserable; to drive a fine carriage and ape European liveries and crests, and coats of arms; to resent the friendly advances of your baker's wife, and the lady of your butcher (you being yourself a cobbler's daughter); to talk much of "the old families," and of your aristocratic foreign friends; to despise labor; to prate of "good society;" to travesty and parody, in every conceivable way, a society which we know only in books, and by the superficial observation of foreign travel, which arises out of a social organization entirely unknown to us, and which is opposed to our fundamental and essential principles—if all this were fine, what a prodigiously fine "Society" would ours be!

TWO ARE KILLED AT ARGYLE, MINN.

Great Northern Train Strikes Auto Party Riding in New Machine.

Argyle, Minn., May 13.—Two were killed and three were seriously injured here Saturday afternoon when an automobile driven by Victor Tiedt was run down by a train on a crossing. The dead:

MISS RUTH MISNER, Euclid, Minn.
MISS LULU TIEDT, Argyle, Minn.

The injured:

Victor Tiedt, Argyle, Minn.
Miss Elsie Bain, Mallory, Minn.
Mrs. Harold Misner, Euclid, Minn.

The injured, while in a very serious condition, have a good chance for recovery. Miss Bain lives about eight miles out of East Grand Forks. It was stated by the attending physicians that she probably would recover.

Were Killed Instantly.

Miss Ruth Misner and Miss Lulu Tiedt were killed almost instantly, while the other three occupants of the car, including the driver, were injured.

Mr. Tiedt, at the time his car was struck, was endeavoring to avoid frightening a horse nearby, and killed his engine in the middle of the track, failing to notice the approach of the train.

When he did discover the cars bearing down on his party, it was too late for him to do anything, and none of the occupants of the automobile were able to jump to safety before the crash came.

The crossing was shielded by buildings on either side of the street, and that fact was responsible for the fact that the approach of the train was not noticed.

It was Tiedt's first drive in his new automobile.

Miss Bain was teaching school here and the Misner girls were visiting her. Mr. Tiedt is a merchant.

Mrs. Weyerhaeuser of Little Falls and Heymar Trio Delight.

SAYS HE WAS PRISONER ON STEAMER TWO DAYS

Watchman Asks $2,000 Damages From Owners of Vessel.

Company Claims He Deserted Watch in Dangerous Channel.

Because he was kept a prisoner on the steamer F. E. House for two days and, according to his claim, was deprived of food and subjected to taunts and tortures, Louis Thim, a watchman, has started a damage suit in district court here in which he is asking for $2,000 from the Pittsburg Steamship company, owners of the boat.

Whether or not Thim was mutinous and unruly on the voyage and whether or not the punishment meted out to him was merited by his conduct will be questions for a jury to decide. Both complaint and answer were filed with the clerk of court today.

Thim shipped from South Chicago on the House on Sept. 30, 1911. The House was bound for Duluth, where she expected to load ore. Thim's story is that just before the House locked through the Soo he asked permission to leave the boat. He was refused. It is claimed, and thrown into the windlass room, where he was kept until the steamer reached Two Harbors. Here he was released.

Thim claims that during his imprisonment he was deprived of any nourishment, and that whenever he would ask to be taken out of the dungeon, members of the crew turned the hose on him and drenched him to the skin. He claims that he was subjected to other tortures, and that when the boat arrived at Two Harbors he was sore and ill.

Company's Answer.

In the answer filed by the steamship company, the unusual conduct of the captain and crew is explained by the assertion that Thim was mutinous, rebellious and highly abusive. The company asserts that the men in charge of the steamer were duty bound to preserve order, and that Thim got his just deserts.

It appears from the answer that Thim, while on duty as a watchman on the deck of the steamer, on Oct. 1, 1911 deserted his post and went to his rooms without leaving anybody to keep watch on deck. The steamer at that time was passing through the straits of Mackinaw, a point in the course where the utmost vigilance is required, it is claimed.

When the second mate, it is alleged, found Thim missing from his post, he went below and ordered him to return. Thim, it is claimed, refused and muttered an oath. The second mate got another man to take Thim's place, it is claimed, and the next day, after a second refusal to go to work, Thim was remanded to the windlass room of the ship upon the order of the captain.

The imprisonment of Thim took place just as the House steamed up the Soo river and the company does not deny that he was kept a prisoner in the windlass room until after the port of Two Harbors had been reached. During the first period of his confinement he was told that if he would go to work he would be allowed his liberty. He refused, it is said, and was kept in the windlass room.

The company in its answer alleges that from the first Thim was abusive and had the vocabulary of a sea pirate and that he cursed the mate and captain as often as an opportunity was given him. The company takes the stand that the punishment given Thim was justified.

John Heitman is attorney for the plaintiff in the action and Spencer & Marshall have been retained by the Pittsburg Steamship company.

MARINE RUSH CONTINUES

Lack of Return Cargoes Only Fly in the Ointment.

The rush of boats in and out of the Duluth-Superior harbor continues as brisk as ever.

While a large number of the boats are coming light for either grain or ore it is expected that by the first of the month there will be hard coal in plenty for shipment and that there will then be no longer need of making one-half of the trip light.

Grain continues to go down the lakes as fast as it can be loaded and the movement in ore is as heavy as the boats can handle.

A great deal of lumber is now moving and in general merchandise lines the package freighters are making the trips as fast as possible. In the harbor there is a general appearance of activity and the only ones who are complaining are those who are forced to send their boats to Duluth light.

Carriers are getting well paid, the grain rate still being steady at 1½ cents.

Cold at the Soo.

In a dispatch received this morning by The Herald from Sault Ste. Marie it was stated that the temperature is at a freezing point and sailors have donned their wintr togs, working in overcoats and mittens.

"A stiff northeaster prevailed all day yesterday," read the dispatch, "and continued today. Many of the men were caught without suitable clothing for work in winter weather and work on boats and at the locks was done in shifts, heavy coats and general winter wearing apparel doing double duty."

A Near Blockade at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 13.—To avert a grain blockade at this port, elevators are being worked day and night, and will continue to handle their capacity for the next week. Approximately 8,000,000 bushels of grain have been elevated during the last week and twelve big grain carriers were awaiting their turn at the elevators. It is estimated that there are 7,000,000 bushels afloat.

The railroads are co-operation with the elevator men to prevent a blockade, clearing on an average of 1,500 cars a day for export.

JUDGE BARRED FROM CAMPAIGN

Wisconsin Constitution May Keep Barnes From Race for Governor.

Madison, Wis., May 13.—Justice John Barnes of the state supreme court may be prevented by a constitutional provision from becoming a candidate for governor. Discovery of a clause in the basic law of the state applicable only to judges may preclude his proposed candidacy for eight years more, when the term for which he was elected will expire.

The provision in the Constitution which seems to bar him, even if he should resign, from being a qualified candidate for governor reads as follows:

"Article 7, section 10—Each of the judges of the supreme court shall receive a salary payable quarterly. * * They shall hold no office of public trust except a judicial office during the term for which they are respectively elected, and all votes for either of them for any office, except a judicial office, given by the legislature or the people, shall be void."

Attorneys who have examined the words of the Constitution are of the opinion that Mr. Barnes, having been elected for a term ending Jan. 1, 1920, could not accept an office within that period, even though he might resign from the bench to do so.

MORE PAY FOR THE RURAL TEACHERS

Size of Salary Figures in Report of Wisconsin Investigators.

Madison, Wis., May 13.—If the rural schools of Wisconsin are to keep progress with other lines of thought and development, three things must be done immediately, according to the report of the committee of fifteen which has ben studying this subject the last two years. Secretary W. E. Larson announced the findings of the committee in a preliminary statement today, summarized as follows:

Country schools must have better trained teachers, with sufficient salary to keep them in the work.

Consolidation of rural schools should be brought about wherever feasible, and the work of the country school should be extended so that the child can get an education adapted to its needs.

Social center work should be encouraged in country districts; meetings should be held to discuss rural problems and thus build up an intelligent sentiment in every community.

FRAME ORDERS TO GUARD MACHINES

Wisconsin Industrial Commission Adopts Thirty Regulations.

Madison, Wis., May 13.—After more than six months of continuous investigation, the industrial commission of Wisconsin has formally adopted thirty general orders relating to the safeguarding of machinery and elevators. These are the first of several orders to be published from time to time by the commission. They will affect practically every manufacturing industry in the state, and are an important part of the national campaign for the prevention of accidents. The new general orders become effective June 13.

ADD TO BADGER FOREST RESERVE

Fourteen Thousand Acres Secured in North Part of State.

Madison, Wis., May 13.—Members of the state forestry board who returned today from a four day's trip in Northern Wisconsin reported that within the last four months practically 14,000 acres have been added to the forestry reserve at prices ranging from $2.50 to $4.50 per acre. Besides this, the state has under consideration the purchase of a 12,000 acre tract in the vicity of Little Car lake, near Tomahawk, from a lumber company. It is believed this transaction will be consummated in a few days as a result of the board's visit. It is one of the prize pieces of lands which state Forester E. M Griffith has had his eyes on for the last three years.

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW

New York, May 13. — Consumption as well as production of finished steel products was never so great as today and orders are flowing into the mills at a rate of 25 per cent to 50 per cent in excess of full capacity. Although the steel companies are producing pig iron at the rate of 22,500,000 tons and ingots at the rate of 30,000,000 tons annually, they need more metal to keep pace with specifications. Shipments are falling behind and new business booked cannot be shipped for from two to three months after receipt of orders. Prices are naturally tending upward and sales of plates were made last week at $1 per ton advance, although the higher prices were not general. An advance of 10 cents per box on tin plate is expected momentarily. Orders for finished steel products last week averaged 100,000 tons per day, the railroads being responsible for more than one-half of the tonnage, and additional contracts are pending for 400 tons of rails, 60,000 cars and 400 locomotives. The Santa Fe has ordered 3,000 more cars and the Great Northern 1,000; the St. Louis & San Francisco has bought twenty-two locomotives and the Pennsylvania lines (west) are negotiating for seventy. The Rock Island, Missouri-Pacific, Soo Line and the Chicago & Eastern Illinois ordered rails last week, while the Seaboard, Atlantic Coast & Marquette are also in the market.

Steel building and bridge orders were heavy, calling for over 57,000 tons of structural shapes. Additional building contracts are pending for 75,000 tons.

Marine work was also active, orders placed including three more steamships for the American-Hawaiian Steamship company, one boat for the Hammond Steamship company, a dredge for the United States government and two steel car floats for the New York Central railroad.

TWO FATALLY KICKED.

Vicious Animals Claim Lives of North Dakota Boys.

Bottineau, N. D., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Kicks by horses have proven fatal to two young men of this county. The young son of Representative Hill passed behind a horse that was tied in a stall. The animal kicked the youth in the abdomen and the injuries proved fatal.

Clifford McQuaid was feeding some horses in a stall when a colt kicked him over the heart, causing fatal injuries.

THE WEEK IN THE HOME GARDEN

The next ten days will be busy ones for the backyard farmers of the city, for during that time they will finish "putting in their crop."

Planting time is now here in earnest. Things are beginning to grow. The sunshine has more warmth or had until today. The rain is more of the kind that makes things grow. The nights are warmer.

The frost is out of the ground, at least to such an extent that it does not interfere with the deepest tilling of the soil or the growth of the seeds after they have been placed in the ground.

Many of the farmers have onions well up, both seed and the onion sets. Many have lettuce and radishes peeping above the ground. These farmers wanted an early showing and planted some time ago.

In spite of the fact that the weather has not been of the most favorable kind for the growth of the vegetables, there have been few failures so far on account of the extremely wet, cold weather.

In Duluth backyard gardens drainage is not a very hard problem to solve usually, for there is nearly always a slope to the patch one way or another. Some who had flat, low patches and planted early, may wonder why the seed does not come up. The weather has been so damp that the seeds may have rotted in the ground and the seed may have to be put in again. It is still early enough and the experiment of planting early was not a very expensive one. But few failures are reported. Most backyards in Duluth have an excellent slant and the large amount of rain during the past few weeks in the majority of cases did no damage. The weather has been extremely unfavorable and those who planted early state that the growth of the seeds has not been at all rapid.

It is during the next ten days that the Duluthians of the shovel and rake army will be busy. Any time within the next few days nearly every variety of garden vegetable can be planted. In fact, the next ten days are considered the right time by any number of old gardeners, to plant in Duluth. Some hold firmly to the idea that anything planted before May 30, Decoration day, is lost, but the greater number seem to agree that planting time is now here.

The snow which fell today will not hurt any of the seeds already in the ground. Freak snow comes now and then, and while it interferes to some small extent with the putting in of seeds, it does not in any way hurt those already planted.

Second Plantings.

First of all it is time for the second planting of lettuce and radishes. Those first planted have a good start and after they have been pulled, eaten and forgotten, except for the satisfaction of knowing that they grew in the back yard, those planted now will be ready for table use.

Later in the place now occupied by the lettuce and radishes first planted, the ground may be smoothed over and the soil used for some other later vegetable, probably turnips or rutabagas. These seeds are not planted until later and they will grow nicely where the earlier plants grew.

Within the next ten days beans, peas, potatoes, cucumbers, beets, carrots, parsnips will be planted. It is early for turnips. It may be that it would be well to wait at least a week before putting in corn, although many state that this week is the proper time to put in. These people say that corn needs damp weather to get started under the ground and hot weather to make it grow after it has appeared above the ground. We have the damp weather now and by the time the corn is up above the ground we should be having warm weather," said one enthusiast in telling of what he is putting in the ground this week.

Some Reminders.

Have you laid out your garden yet? Do you know just where you are going to plant each kind of vegetable? Have you spaded the ground thoroughly? Have you broken up the lumps, picked up the stones? Have you made provision to keep the neighbors' chickens out of your patch? You know of course that chickens love to scrape up the ground and pick the seed that has been planted with such care? Have you gone over the patch with a rake or other instrument, pulverizing the ground and getting it in the best possible shape for planting? Have you had that manure drawn on the patch and has it been thoroughly mixed with the soil? If you have done these things you are in pretty good shape to finish up the planting during the next few days.

Of course, you are going to grow the dwarf peas for they are much easier and about as productive as those which you have to string up on poles. The dwarf bean is also the most convenient to grow in the small garden. Beans and peas should be planted in rows and as both are rather bushy plants, the rows should not be planted too close together.

It is yet a little early to set out tomatoes and cabbage plants. The week following the present will still be plenty of time and even then will be early for them unless the weather is very fovarable.

Potatoes may be planted this week. Everybody wants to try a few potatoes. In a small garden one or two rows are plenty. They take up a good deal of room and the ground is considered by some more valuable for other vegetables.

Set out your rhubarb this week. This is a hardy plant and is almost sure to do well if set out any time in the next ten days.

Strawberries.

It is time this week to set out strawberry plants. The nurseries are now filling orders, and if you ordered yours some time ago, they will probably be sent to you within the next few days. Set them out as soon as they are received. If you are planning on any other small bush fruit, the present week is said to be the time for setting the bushes out.

If you have been growing cabbage and tomato plants in a hothouse, do not forget that these days the plants need fresh air. Open the top and arrange, if it is possible, so that the wind does not blow in upon the plants. It will soon be time to transplant them from the hothouse to the garden, and they need to be acclimated to the rougher weather they will experience in the open.

It's a good plan to begin thinking about weeds even as early as this. They will come up with your vegetables and they will seem to need little attention. If allowed to grow they will soon outstrip your plants, and then the job of ridding the garden of them will loom up big indeed. If they are cut away as they appear above the ground, the task is an easy one all summer. If you begin keeping them down now, it will be lots easier than trying to untangle them from your plants and cutting them away later in the season. It is remarkable how much faster some of the weeds grow than that which you intend to thrive. If the weeds once get ahead of you, the job is such a big one that you are liable to get discouraged and give up the project you were so enthusiastic about early in the spring.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR PLANTING

(By J. J. Le Borious.)

For such flowers as calendula, marigold, mignonette, nasturtiums and sweet peast the best method is to sow them directly out of doors from now on. The ground should be dug and worked up fine, sowing the seeds evenly either in rows or broadcast and not covering very deep.

It is better to sow the seed thick and then thin the plants out after they come up.

In watering seed care should be taken not to water the bed too heavily as you are liable to wash the seed out. Care should be taken to keep the seeds moist all the time, as one drying will kill them. Stir the soil from time to time and keep the weeds out, for if you let the weeds grow they will make the plants weak. Anybody can have flowers, for they require but little attention after they have once come up in good shape.

STORM CAUSES DEATHS OF TWO MEN IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, May 13.—A rain and wind storm which swept over Chicago Saturday night and Sunday indirectly caused the deaths of two men and the injury of several others.

Patrick Murray, 53 years old, and an unidentified man of about 28 years were run down by a street car while blinded by the sweeping rain. Both died at hospitals.

Several pedestrians were struck by automobiles and street cars and were injured.

The wind reached a velocity of forty-four miles an hour, uprooted trees, blew down many signs and tore scores of boats from their moorings along the lake shore.

Capt. Charles Carland and the crew of the life saving station went to the aid of the lumber schooner Quickstep, which signalled for help a mile off the mouth of the river. Because of the heavy sea, the schooner was unable to make the harbor. The craft was towed into the river.

TELL TEDDY DENVER ELECTION WAS SQUARE.

Denver, Colo., May 13.—A protest against statements in his recent Chicago speech condemning methods followed in selecting delegates to the Colorado state Republican convention, particularly in Denver has been mailed to Theodore Roosevelt in a letter signed by the officers and executive committee of the Greater Denver league.

After recounting the methods used to elect delegates, the letter declares that never was there a fairer primary election held anywhere than in Denver. It concludes:

"If you are sincere in your advocacy of the principles of the square deal you will acknowledge your error in the same public manner in which you proclaimed the untruth."

ALLEGED POISONER OF SOO IS RELEASED.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 13.—Dismissed for lack of evidence, after having been arraigned on a charge of having caused poison to be administered to Mrs. Andre Koskoski, Andrew Kasake was given his liberty by Magistrate Mackay. The case is said to have been brought on the strength of eviduce given the police by the husband of the woman.

GRAND CHAPTER OF EASTERN STAR STARTS.

St. Paul, Minn., May 13.—The grand chapter of the Order of Eastern Star, representing 200 chapters in Minnesota, completed a three days' annual meeting here with election of officers as follows: Worthy grand matron, Mrs. Marilla Stone of Rush City; worthy grand patron, C. H. Nervobig, Mankato; associate grand matron, Etta F. Ronald, Minneapolis; associate grand patron, E. H. Cook, Albert Lea; grand secretary, Mary C. Taylor, Minneapolis; grand treasurer, Mrs. Julia Moore, Wabasha.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

IN PHILADELPHIA, advocates of the municipal control of shade trees, heretofore regarded as entirely a private prerogative of the home owner, want some action in compliance with the mandatory act of the legislature of May 31, 1907, which provides for the creation of a shade tree commission in all the counties of the state. A meeting was held in the mayor's office on Feb. 23, when various civic organizations urged upon the mayor the sending to councils of a message requesting an appropriation for the care of shade trees and for the planting of others. Mayor Reyburn avoided appointing a commission, but instead the control of shade trees was delegated by an ordinance of July last to the park commission.

A great deal of the tree planting in Duluth is done by or under the direction of the park board. At present the board has ordered 3,000 trees to forest Central park, on the hillside of the Fifth ward. When completed this will be one of the most attractive breathing spots in the city and will be used by scores of families in that vicinity. The board also plants trees for private parties. The expense covers only the cost of the trees and the planting. Besides that the board will replace the tree if it dies within two years. If more people knew this they would probably avail themselves of the opportunity to beautify their yards and the fronts of their homes with trees. The cost is really comparatively small and the advantages of the arrangement are obvious.

WEATHER FOR THE WEEK

Washington, May 13.—Indications are that during the coming week fair weather will predominate, with temperatures below the seasonable average generally east of the Rocky mountains and near or above the normal on the Pacific slope.

According to the bulletin, showers are probable today in the Middle Atlantic and New England states, attending the Eastern movement of a disturbance that is now over the Ohio valley. A change to considerably cooler weather, the bulletin continues, will overspread the region east of the Mississippi valley Monday and Tuesday, and frosts are likely to occur the first part of the week in the Rocky mountain region, the Northern plain states, the Upper Mississippi valley and the upper lake region, and Tuesday and Wednesday in the lower lake region, the Upper Ohio valley and the interior of the North Atlantic states.

The next disturbance to cross the country will appear in the Far West Wednesday or Thursday and move to the Middle West near the close of the week; it will be preceded by a general rise in temperature and be attended by local showers and thunder storms.

OVERMAN WINS JUDGMENT.

Jury in Carlton County Case Decides for Duluthian.

Carlton, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury that heard the evidence in the case of A. H. Overman vs. John F. Ryan of Cloquet, formerly of Brookston, tried here last Friday in district court, to recover $500 commission on effecting a sale of the defendant's Brookston business, returned a verdict for Overman for the full amount after deliberating less than two hours.

Mr. Overman is a Duluth traveling man and traveling men generally were interested in the outcome of the case as it involved the principle of the right of traveling men to a commission for finding a customer a purchaser for his business. Several traveling men gave evidence in Mr. Overman's behalf, while some of the headmen in Duluth wholesale houses testified for the defense, claiming it was not the custom to give the traveling men the commission. The verdict of the jury is considered a victory for the traveling men.

The United States Tire Company believes its tires are the lowest-cost tires in the world.

Tire-ly Satisfied

Here are the reasons:

No other tires in the world are made under conditions so favorable to the greatest possible tire durability.

In no other tires is there combined the tire knowledge, skill and experience of four corps of master tire builders.

In United States Tires only is the motorist protected by a four-factory "check" against defects of any and every kind.

The tremendous facilities of the United States Tire Company are devoted exclusively to the manufacture of superior grade tires.

And the avowed purpose of the Company (a purely selfish purpose) is to build tires that will positively and appreciably reduce the season's tire bills for motorists who use them.

Mark that word season's.

It is your season's expense, and not the purchase price, that determines how much you actually pay per tire.

Don't overlook that fact for a single minute.

The more experience you have had in tire-buying the more fully you know that last costs are the real costs, and the less apt are you to be influenced by the "cost less" argument.

You know—just as the makers of United States Tires know—that the stronger the tire the longer its life, and the lower its per-mile cost.

And it ought not to be difficult for you to believe that four immense factories, working as a unit, are better able to put strength and wear into tires than any one factory could be expected to put into them.

Take your tire question seriously, and select the tires that your best business judgment tells you are most certain to give you the biggest mileage return for your money.

The tires that can do this are the cheapest tires you can buy, regardless of first cost.

United States Tires offer you in a single tire a combination of the strongest features of four world-famous brands.

NEW SHIPPING MINES ON THE CUYUNA IRON RANGE

Four Are Assured and Possibly Seven, in Addition to the Kennedy.

Two Armours and Thompson Shippers and Meacham Can Hoist Ore Now.

Cuyuna-Mille Lacs Orders Equipment and Will Ship in September.

Other Possible Shippers Are the Barrows and the Adams Mines.

BY GEORGE REID.

Minnesota's newest iron range will ship ore from five mines this season and possibly from eight. Three of the mines, the Kennedy and Armour shafts Nos. 1 and 2 are shipping now, and the Thompson will begin to ship after the completion of its steel shaft, which will be about June 1. The Meacham mine can be put into the shipping list any time its owners require the ore. If the demand for ore should justify it the Meacham will ship later this season. The Cuyuna-Mille Lacs will begin shipping in September. It is expected that the Barrows mine will enter the list of shippers before the season closes and Cuyler Adams has hopes that his concrete shaft will be completed in time to enable him to ship at least a train load of ore in 1912.

The Kennedy, the two Armours and the Thompson mines will ship a minimum of 325,000 tons this season, If the ore market justifies it these four mines can send 850,000 tons of ore to market, and if to this list is added the Meacham later in the season, in case of a big increase in the demand for ore, then the Cuyuna range can ship in excess of one million tons this year, not counting the possible output of the Barrows and Adams shafts on the south range, nor the shaft of the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs company on the north range. High grade ore is being lifted from the temporary shaft of the last named mine, which has several hundred tons on the stock pile.

These figures give some idea of the rapid development of the Cuyuna iron range. Beginning to ship late in the season last year, the Kennedy, its first shipping mine, sent 147,000 tons of ore to the docks. This year the Kennedy has 100,000 tons on the stock pile. It has been shipping fourteen to twenty carloads of ore a day since early in April, loading directly from the shaft. By June 1 it will begin loading with steam shovels from the stock pile, the ore of which averages 54 per cent.

The Rogers-Brown Ore company, operating the Kennedy, has given orders so far for the shipment of 200,000 tons from this mine this season, and 50,000 to 60,000 tons each from Armour mines Nos. 1 and 2, which it also owns. Henry J. Kruse, superintendent for the company on the Cuyuna range, told me at his office in Crosby that the Kennedy mine can produce and ship 300,000 tons this year if necessary, and the two Armour mines 500,000 tons between them. While the Armour shafts are twins, the No. 2 shaft has a larger hoisting equipment than No. 1. The capacity of No. 1 shaft is 2,000 tons per day and of No. 2 shaft, 3,000 tons. That is 5,000 tons per day, or more than one and a half million tons a year. The capacity of the Kennedy shaft is 2,000 tons per day. When I visited the Kennedy mine an average of 800 tons of ore per day was being hoisted.

While each of the Armour mines has only a few thousand tons on its stockpile, the mines can become heavy shippers on very short notice. The Rogers-Brown company is employing 225 to 250 men in the Kennedy mine, which is at Cuyuna and quite a large number more in getting out timber. The number of men in the mine will shortly be increased. Eighty men are working in Armour No. 1 and 110 in Armour No. 2. All told, the Rogers-Brown Ore company is employing about 500 men. The Rogers-Brown company also owns the Meacham mine, on the other side of the Thompson from the Armour shafts. Like both Armour shafts and the Thompson, the Meacham is a concrete shaft. According to Supt. Kruse this mine will be a shipper later in the season if the ore market should require it.

The two Armour shafts, the Thompson shaft and the Meacham shaft stretch in a straight line from Ironton along the mining spur from the Cuyuna range branch of the Soo Line. Armour shaft No. 1 is at Ironton; No. 2 is about a quarter of a mile away. A little over half a mile from No. 1 is the Thompson shaft, of the Inland Steel company. A quarter of a mile further on is the Meacham mine, in the town of Crosby. All four shafts are within easy walking distance of that town.

So far the Rogers-Brown Ore company has expended on the development of its four mines about $1,500,000. The Kennedy mine is 280 feet in depth. The mining level is at 262 feet. The ore body here has been proved to a depth of 550 feet and embraces six forties. Armour No. 1 is down 330 feet. One mining level is at 200 feet and the bottom level at 300 feet. It has been proved up to a depth of 650 feet. It includes only one forty, but the ore body is big and rich. The ore being shipped at this shaft and from Armour No. 2 averages 55 per cent. The iron contents of the ore increase with depth in these two shafts.

Armour No. 2 is down 200 feet and a level has been opened up at 168 feet. The ore has been proved to a depth of 600 feet. The mine embraces eighty acres. Armour Nos. 1 and 2 both have steel shaft houses. The Meacham shaft is 250 feet in depth. It has one sub-level at 125 feet. The Meacham's ore body has been proved to a depth of 650 feet. The mine covers eighty acres.

All the steel is on the ground at the Thompson shaft and work has been begun on the erection of a steel shaft house similar to the shaft houses of Armour Nos. 1 and 2. A 2,000-gallon pump has just been installed at the 250-foot level. The Thompson shaft is 250 feet in depth and there are drifts at the 150 and 250-foot levels. The capacity of the shaft when the new steel shaft house is completed will be 2,000 tons daily. The steel shaft house will be completed by June 1 and the Thompson will then be in shape to ship. It is not yet definitely known what amount of ore it will ship this season. It may ship 25,000 tons and it may ship 50,000. It will not be a heavy shipper. The Inland Steel company is developing the property thoroughly this year. Next year it can ship half a million tons. The ore body at this point has been proved up to a depth of 500 feet. Eighty men are working in the Thompson.

About a mile from Ironton the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs Iron company of Duluth has a shaft in ore of a high grade and has several hundred tons on the stockpile. It has now thirty men at work. Only a few miles away the Iron Mountain Mining company has a shaft down almost to the ore body. Thirteen drill holes which the company sunk here are all bottomed in ore.

Crossing the Northern Pacific tracks to the south range at Deerwood, the next point of interest is the Adams mine, at Oreland, four miles from Deerwood by rail and less than two by wagon road. Oreland is the terminus of the Cuyuna Northern railway. This shaft is of concrete and is being sunk for Cuyler Adams, who discovered the range, and owns large chunks of it. Mr. Adams told me at his office in Deerwood that he hopes to place the mine in the shipping list before the close of the season, but that it depends entirely upon the contractors.

The Adams shaft is 12 by 15 feet in the clear and the concrete is to be sunk to a depth of 124 feet to the ledge. From there the shaft will be sunk another 100 feet before drifting is begun. When I was at the shaft a little more than a week ago it was down to a depth of 93 feet. Much difficulty had been experienced and the concrete stuck so persistently going through the hard pan that 500 tons of pig iron had been sent for and piled on top of the concrete. With this added weight the shaft sank 10 inches in one day. Sixty to seventy men are at work here at high wages.

Mr. Adams told me that several million tons of ore have been proved up at this point, running from 50 to 62 per cent. It is costing him about $100,000 to sink this shaft. He believes there is an almost continuous ore body from the Adams shaft to Brainerd, a distance of about sixteen miles. All this property is under lease at the present time. Mr. Adams is drilling in the neighborhood of the Adams shaft.

Cuyler Adams projected and is the president of the Cuyuna Northern railway, which is a branch of the Northern Pacific. He says that he will make extensions of the line whenever he is satisfied that there is ore tonnage sufficient to justify them. He expects that ultimately the road will be extended across the Mississippi river and into Morrison county.

As its discoverer, Cuyler Adams is looked upon as the best authority upon the Cuyuna iron range. He told me that so far more ore has been shown up in 36-26 and 47-29, Crow Wing county, than in any other township on the range. A dozen drills are at work there now. This rich township holds the Flynn ore body, the Patrick Hammel and associates' big strike, the Iron Mountain Mining company's rich body, much ore of Cuyler Adams and associates, and other operators. Among those drilling on the north range are Cuyler Adams and associates, George H. Crosby, the Iron Mountain Mining company, Patrick Hammel and John Nolan and six associates, the Section 30 Development company, the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs Iron company, the Cuyuna-Duluth Iron company, the Cole & McDonald company and E. J. Longyear. George H. Crosby is doing the most exploratory work, having a dozen drills going. Cuyler Adams informed me that about forty drills are at work on the north range.

Supt. Roe of the Virginia Ore Mining company, a subsidiary of the M. A. Hanna company, operating the Barrows mine at Barrows, five miles southwest of Brainerd, on the main line of the Northern Pacific railroad, was chary about giving out information about the property and so I applied to R. R. Wise of Brainerd, secretary of the Brainerd Mining company, the fee owner, who has made a fortune on the Cuyuna range, being one of the first men to invest with Cuyler Adams in the Orelands company. The Brainerd Mining company is a rich and close corporation.

Mr. Wise told me he believes the Barrows shaft will begin shipping in October and that it will send 25,000 to 50,000 tons of ore to the docks this year. The Northern Pacific Railroad company recently bought 100 wooden ore cars from the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad company to use temporarily in shipping from the Barrows mine, which is the only property which will ship over the Northern Pacific this year unless the Adams mine should become a shipper late in the season.

Barrows Shaft No. 2 was down 110 feet when I was at the mine a week ago. That is, to the ledge. This shaft is about sixty feet from the ore body. Shaft No. 1, at Barrows, which is down eighty-two feet, is about 100 yards from Shaft No. 2. The Barrows mine has an acreage of 179, in section 10, 44-31, Crow Wing county. Drills have shown a large and rich ore body at this point. The Brainerd Mining company owns about 900 acres of proved ore lands close to Brainerd. Here several public-spirited business men of the city have erected a splendid three-story brick building extending for half a block and called the Iron Exchange block, which is designed to be the headquarters of the Cuyuna iron range. It has an elevator and other modern improvements. No doubt the Soo line's Cuyuna range branch will shortly be extended to Brainerd, which would make that city easily accessible from all parts of the range by both the Northern Pacific and the Soo, as well as the Minnesota & International railroad, which has its southern terminus at Brainerd.

Big deposits of ore have been found within the Brainerd city limits. Judge G. W. Holland and his associates proved up three forties in the city limits, which they have just leased to the Martin Exploration company of Duluth, of which F. D. Orr, manager at Duluth for the Du Pont-ne Mours Powder company, is president. This lease is in section 26, 45-31, and sections 30 and 31, 45-30. The Martin company has another lease of a forty adjoining from Charles Niemeyer of Duluth, and a small piece between these two leases from Henry I. Cohen of Brainerd.

On these properties about thirty holes have been drilled. Much ore was shown up. The average depth of the ore body is about 100 feet. Most of these holes are angle holes, very few vertical holes having been drilled. The ore runs as high as 60 per cent. It is the intention of the Martin Exploration company to sink a shaft on this property. Just how soon work will be begun on the shaft, it is understood in Brainerd, will depend upon the ore market.

From Carl Zapffe, geologist, and in charge of the Northwestern Improvement company, the mining branch of the Northern Pacific Railroad company, whose headquarters are at Brainerd, I obtained much information about the south range, as well as about the Cuyuna range generally. He told me that the range extends for a distance of sixty-five miles through Aitkin, Crow Wing and Morrison counties, varying from half a mile at its east end and widening to a width of six miles in Morrison county, judging on the basis of magnetic attraction. Lenses of iron are scattered here and there like layers of a jelly cake, only not so regular. Mr. Zapffe says that 2,500 holes have been drilled in the entire district. The activity on the north range is much greater at this time than on the south range, because the south range is so largely controlled by the Northwestern Improvement company, which holds about 12,000 acres. and Mr. Zapffe asserts, about 85 per cent of the proved ore deposits on the south range, and which is not doing any exploratory work at this time, but is endeavoring to interest operators in using south range ores.

Mr. Zapffe told me that the total developed tonnage on the south range is a trifle less than the total developed tonnage on the north range. He estimates the total developed tonnage of ores analyzing 50 per cent or more of iron to amount to at least 50,000,00 tons and possibly as high as 125,000,000 tons with further explorations of exposed properties. And at that, this great iron range has scarcely been scratched.

Another mining expert with whom I talked at Deerwood, who has been exploring for iron for thirty years, and was for many years in the employ of the Minnesota Iron company and later the Oliver Iron Mining company, and who is too modest to permit the use of his name, told me that the Cuyuna iron range covers an area of 800 square miles, extending through all of Crow Wing county and parts of Aitkin and Morrison counties. "It is larger in area than the Mesaba," he said, "and has been barely scratched so far. It extends for forty miles one way and nearly twenty miles in the other, and its extent has not been defined."

The extent of the Cuyuna iron range along its trend north and south is not absolutely known. The iron ore lies in lenses instead of in a blanket formation, as on the Mesaba range. The general trend of the Cuyuna range is from the northeast to the southwest. The dip, generally, is to the south and southeast. In some places the dip is more vertical than in others. The average dip is about 65 deg. to the south and southeast. The pitch is to the east and the trend to the northwest. Actual mining proves these statements to be correct, so far as the mines on the Cuyuna have been developed.

Both the Soo and the Northern Pacific railroads are doing their share in helping operating companies to ship in this season of low prices for iron ore. When the Soo built its branch into the Cuyuna range it fixed the tonnage price for hauling ore at 65 cents for the first 1,000,000 tons and 60 cents per ton thereafter. The ore rate on the Mesaba range having been reduced to 60 cents, the Soo has met that rate and so has the Northern Pacific.

I met George M. Huss, the famous railroad builder, who is assistant chief engineer of the Soo, and who had charge of the construction of the new Soo lines running into Duluth, both at Deerwood and at Brainerd. Evidently the Soo is not going to allow Cuyler Adams and the Northern Pacific to steal any marches on it. Mr. Huss professed not to have any particular business on the range. He denied that an extension of the Soo's range road to Brainerd has been decided upon. Of course, he said, the Soo would build spurs anywhere the development of mines justified the expenditure. The Northern Pacific is ready to do the same. With these two great systems competing for the ore tonnage, operators on the Cuyuna will always be assured of reasonable rates in getting their ore to Lake Superior.

Quite a large water power is being developed to furnish light and power to the Cuyuna range by the Range Power company. This company is building a dam, twenty feet above low water, across the Crow Wing river, on the line between Crow Wing and Cass counties, about ten miles southwest of Brainerd and twenty-eight miles from Deerwood. This dam will be about 400 feet in length and will contain 12,000 yards of concrete. Between 2,000 and 3,000-horse power will be developed, sufficient for present purposes on the range outside of Brainerd. The company will have a transforming station at Ironton and possibly another at Deerwood.

M. D. Stoner, president of the company, who furnished me with the foregoing facts at Deerwod a few days ago, says that his company expects to have the dam completed and to be in a position to supply current for the entire range by November. The company will furnish light and power for the mines, and to the new townsites as soon as the business warrants. The high-power electric line from the dam will pass through Barrows. The Range Power company is already furnishing electric current to Deerwood, Crosby, Ironton and Cuyuna from its steam plant at Deerwood.

Even this short review of the Cuyuna range would be incomplete if no

Co-operation. Yes! That is the word, backed by a management whose policy has been to make good the trust given them by their stockholders. Study closely this picture representing ten months' hard work and economic management. It represents where our money has been spent. It bears the earmarks of a bonanza. One of the great finds that is being shown up on the Cuyuna range, Minnesota's newest and greatest iron range. Better still, come with us and visit our mine, just four hours' ride from Duluth over the beautiful Soo road and see for yourself the marvelous wealth being unfolded in this great mining district.

The property of the Iron Mountain Mining company lies in what is known as the north belt of the Cuyuna iron range, which is fast becoming one of the leading ranges of the Lake Superior district as a producer of high grade manganiferous and Bessemer iron ores. Today we have drilled thirteen holes and are now drilling in our fourteenth. In every hole we have encountered high grade merchantable ore with an average surface of sixty-five feet. One of these holes is down over 500 feet. An average depth of ore on our property of 100 feet would produce 13,000,000 tons. Based on this ratio you can figure the enormous tonnage we are showing up, which will ultimately mean for our stockholders returns seldom realized in mining investments. Our shaft is now down sixty feet. Inside of thirty days we will be hoisting ore and have the mine open for inspection to representatives of furnace companies, to one of which our company will, in the near future make a sale of our holdings at an advanced royalty. Our company is not a mining company but is confining its operations to the developing end of the mining business, as we feel that quicker results can be derived for our stockholders by pursuing a policy of this character, since the enormous expenditure required for mining purposes can be better carried on successfully by furnace people whose resources qualify them to better take up this department of the mining business.

The stockholders of our company are mostly residents of the Mesaba range cities and Duluth whose past experience in iron mining investments would cause them to know the true values of iron. The hearty co-operation received from all our stockholders, and the satisfaction derived by them from our splendid progress in showing up this wonderful property more than repays the efforts of all officers and directors, whose services have at all times been given gratis. The present allotment of our treasury stock, at par, is rapidly being subscribed. As soon as ore is being hoisted from the shaft it is the intention of the management to advance the price of stock. The statements we have set forth are open for investigation. Co-operation is our aim. Act today. Increase your holdings which ultimately will mean for you an investment similar to those which have made many Duluth millionaires.

The shaft on our property is now down sixty feet and is very close to the ore body, which means we will be hoisting high grade ore very soon. The splendid showing which has been realized in our shaft is, in a measure, largely due to the superintendent in charge. A mining man of broad practical experiences. Such a man is Capt. John Scaluci, who has been long connected with mining companies of the Mesaba range where his past experience has made it possible for him to carry to a successful termination the shaft work intrusted to his charge.

The management has felt that in the completion of the shaft to ore, lay the ultimate showing up of our property to the furnace people with whom we are now in negotiation, as it permitted us to lay bare for thorough inspection the lens and wall formation of our big ore body whose richness and extent has been thoroughly demonstrated.

IRONTON

WHERE THE MINES ARE

Ironton has more completed and shipping shafts than all other towns on the Cuyuna Iron Range. The Armour shafts Nos. 1 and 2, now shipping, are at Ironton, and the Thompson and Meacham shafts are close by. So is the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs shaft, which will ship this season.

MORE DEVELOPED ORE BODIES IN AND AROUND IRONTON THAN ANY OTHER RANGE TOWN.

More than 300 men at work at Ironton and nearby. This number will be more than doubled within a year. Monthly pay roll of the Ironton district is now more than $25,000 a month.

Ironton is growing rapidly and surely. It has never had a boom. Realty values here are moving upward constantly.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY

Good business and residence lots still to be had direct of the owners of the townsite, eliminating speculators' profits, at $250 TO $600 PER LOT ON EASY PAYMENTS.

Ironton is on the ore shipping branch of the Soo railroad, and a branch of the Northern Pacific has been surveyed through the town. Buy now and reap the profits of advancing prices in Ironton, the best of the Cuyuna range towns.

IRONTON TOWNSITE CO.
IRONTON, MINN.,
WHERE THE MINES ARE.

IRONTON SOME MINING TOWN

Four Mines Tributary to Village and Three Shipping This Season.

Immense Ore Body Stretches for Mile and Underlies the Townsite.

By all odds the biggest ore body yet discovered on the Cuyuna iron range underlies the townsite of Ironton and stretches for a distance of a mile. It extends to a depth, so far as known, of 650 feet and may be much deeper. To mine this immense ore body four concrete shafts, costing $500 a foot have been completed. Shipments are now being made from two of these shafts and two other mines will begin shipping shortly, making five shipping mines this season on the north range alone, including the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs, near Ironton, which will ship late in the season.

Armour shafts Nos. 1 and 2 are right alongside of Ironton. The Thompson shaft is less than three-quarters of a mile away and the Meacham shaft less than a mile. All are in a straight line along the mining branch of the Soo line. Approximately 300 men are employed in the Thompson and the two Armour shafts and an additional number in getting out timber for the mines. Other men are employed in drilling operations around Ironton, so that there are in excess of 300 men employed in the mines at or very close to the town.

These are the reasons for the rapid growth of Ironton, which is less than two years old and yet has a population of about 700 people. The town has a fine three-story school house seating upward of 200 pupils. The payrolls at the mines and in the explorations nearby exceeded $26,000 last month.

Handsome cement sidewalks have been laid for a distance of five blocks along Ironton avenue, the main street. Other cement walks will be laid shortly. Ironton has electric lights and is beginning to don city airs. John H. Hill of Duluth and E. A. Lamb of Deerwood control the Ironton Townsite company. They also hold the fee of a big ore body in the town limits, which was proved up and leased to the Cuyuna-Duluth Iron company. Primus D. Kreitter, for many years with the First National bank, Duluth, is in charge of the affairs of the townsite company at Ironton.

Mined to the capacity of their hoisting equipment, the Armour mines can produce 5,000 tons of ore daily, or more than a million and a half tons per annum. With a reasonably good demand for iron ore next year these two shafts alone will employ 600 or more men. The Thompson shaft will employ half as many more and altogether 1,000 men will be employed in the immediate vicinity of Ironton.

All these facts considered, lots in Ironton at present prices should prove very attractive to investors as well as to men who want work the year round. Prices of lots now are $250 to $600, which seem very reasonable in view of the inducements Ironton has to offer.

Lots in the West Park addition to Crosby and Ironton are very reasonable and within the reach of all. Men are assured of steady work the year around. The four mines already developed at Ironton and Crosby are all underground properties in which miners are well paid and work all the year around.

Lots in the West Park addition are selling rapidly and residence buildings are going up on all streets. The school facilities are of the best. Both Ironton and Crosby have fine big new schoolhouses. Good stores in Ironton are only one and two blocks away from the West Park addition. More than 300 men are at work in the mines at Ironton and in another year this number will have been doubled. Now is the time to buy in the West Park addition before the lots get into the hands of speculators, who have reaped rich profits in other new Cuyuna range towns.

Mr. Lamb's office in Deerwood is also the headquarters of the Helmer Exploration company and is a busy place.

IRON LANDS OWNED IN FEE

New Plan Safeguards Investors and Makes Big Profits Possible.

Company Has Splendid Holdings on All Three Minnesota Ranges.

With the high values placed on iron-bearing lands on Minnesota's three great ranges it is not possible for the average investor to be an individual owner. By combining in a corporation, however, any investor is able to have an interest in the ownership of well situated and valuable iron properties which may pay in returns many times their cost.

Before buying shares in a company investors should not only satisfy themselves that the directors are all right, but they should ascertain the assets and its prospects for success. Ownership of fee interests in iron lands—which is ownership of the land itself—is one of the best recommendations for any company, as it insures a maximum of profit and security for the money invested as well.

Lands always possess considerable value and in case a company fails to show up ore in paying quantities in initial operations, it can hold the land indefinitely awaiting further explorations, which frequently prove up ore bodies, as experience on all Minnesota ranges proves. Probably one third of Minnesota's producing mines were condemned on their first exploration, and companies and individuals holding these lands only under lease were forced to surrender them.

An attractive plan is being followed by the Cuyuna-Mesaba Iron Land company, with holdings on the Cuyuna, the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges. It owns the fees in all properties on which it is operating except 160 acres in sections 23 and 26, 47-29, Crow Wing county, which is surrounded by proved ore bodies close to Ironton and Cuyuna. Being unable to buy this property outright, the company leased it. This property is now being drilled. The company's properties have been acquired only after careful examinations and surveys by the best iron land explorers. The company will add to its holdings when promising properties are developed.

CUYUNA AND ITS GROWTH

It Has the Kennedy Mine and Several Other Big Ore Bodies Nearby.

Bonds Have Just Been Sold at a Premium for Water Works and Sewers.

Cuyuna, the town that was started to accommodate the workers at the Kennedy, the first shipping mine on the Cuyuna range, is totally different from the average iron mining location. It is laid out on high, level land having natural drainage, and has cement sidewalks. It has many comfortable and pretty homes and has already taken on the aspects and improvements of a small city.

A bond issue of $25,000 has just been disposed of at a premium to the Minneapolis Trust company. The proceeds, in addition to $6,000 in the village treasury, will be used in the construction of water works and sewers. Cuyuna already has electric lights and telephones. It is on the mining branch of the Soo line and is growing fast. Its estimated population today is about 1,000.

All of the employes of the Kennedy mine live in Cuyuna. The mine is employing 225 to 250 men underground and on the surface, and nearly 100 more are employed in getting out timber for it. Quite a number of men are also employed in drilling operations in the country near Cuyuna. It has about 400 men on its payrolls and is very prosperous. More men are employed in Cuyuna and close by at this time than in any of the other new towns of the range.

Adjoining the Kennedy mine are 200 acres of proved ore property owned by the Lake Investment company and others. The Cuyuna-Duluth Iron company and other interests are drilling and proving up good ore bodies on all sides of the town, whose growth is certain to continue for years to come. The owner of the townsite, T. R. Foley of Aitkin is offering inducements to manufacturing plants to locate at Cuyuna. Not many lots are unsold here. Prices of lots are reasonable and may be obtained of Mr. Foley.

Mr. Foley, who is Aitkin county's first citizen, has recently platted the townsite of Hassman, in one of the richest agricultural districts in Minnesota, about six miles from Aitkin. Hassman will duplicate the success of Cuyuna. Mr. Foley was one of the first investors in cut-over lands in Aitkin, Cass and Itasca counties, and is the owner of large tracts of some of the best farm lands in the state which he is disposing of to bona fide settlers at reasonable prices and on easy terms.

Mr. Foley took the writer for an automobile trip surrounding Aitkin, where there is more farm development than in any other part of Northern Minnesota. The country has the appearance of older settled agricultural states. There is mile after mile of level land. In some parts of Aitkin county the soil is a heavy black loam with a clay subsoil and in others it is black loam and sandy loam mixed, and in still others, a sandy loam.

On the higher ground raspberries and strawberries make splendid crops. Apples produce well. There are quite a number of berry farms. The berry growers of Aitkin and Crow Wing counties have an association and market their crops at high prices, doing away with commission men. A big acreage is being added to the berry farms this spring.

State ditches are being constructed in Aitkin county. These are making vast tracts of the most fertile lands available for settlement. These lands are very easily cleared and produce big crops of potatoes, flax, corn and other grains and hay. Aitkin is building a potato storage and there is a demand now for an elevator.

For miles about Aitkin is a beautiful farming country. Good lands are still to be had at low prices, although during the last five years land close in which sold for $20 an acre has risen to $100 an acre in value. Land may still be had at $20 to $30 an acre close to the railroads which can be cleared as cheaply as $10 to $20 an acre and which will produce more which sells at higher prices than Iowa farms costing $150 an acre. Aitkin county has had five times as many settlers, chiefly from the central western states, this spring than during any other spring since the country was settled.

AN ADDITION TO CROSBY

West Park Addition Also Adjoins Ironton and the Two Big Armour Mines.

One of the principal real estate dealers of the Cuyuna range is E. A. Lamb of Deerwood, who has played a considerable part in the development of the new range. With John H. Hill Mr. Lamb platted Ironton, which is having such a splendid growth. With Mr. Hill he is the owner of a great ore body which was shown up on the Ironton townsite and leased to the Cuyuna-Duluth Iron company of which John Helmer is president. A panoramic photograph in this issue showing the Armour shafts and other mines was taken from this property, which is in the same ore body as the two Armour mines.

Mr. Lamb has the best of Crow Wing county farm lands for sale. He is also the agent at Deerwood for the Ironton Townsite company, owner of Ironton, and the West Park addition to Crosby. The West Park addition also adjoins Ironton and joins the towns together. All of the streets of the West Park addition open into the streets of Ironton.

The West Park addition was put on the market by Ira W. Smith of Duluth. It offers one of the best opportunities for investment on the Cuyuna range, adjoining as it does two splendid towns. The addition is just close enough, but not too close, to the two Armour shipping mines to make it one of the most desirable residence locations imaginable for the workers in the mines. It is particularly desirable for residences and boarding houses.

Prices and terms of lots in the West Park addition to Crosby and Ironton are very reasonable and within the reach of all. Men are assured of steady work the year around. The four mines already developed at Ironton and Crosby are all underground properties in which miners are well paid and work all the year around.

Lots in the West Park addition are selling rapidly and residence buildings are going up on all streets. The school facilities are of the best. Both Ironton and Crosby have fine big new schoolhouses. Good stores in Ironton are only one and two blocks away from the West Park addition. More than 300 men are at work in the mines at Ironton and in another year this number will have been doubled. Now is the time to buy in the West Park addition before the lots get into the hands of speculators, who have reaped rich profits in other new Cuyuna range towns.

Mr. Lamb's office in Deerwood is also the headquarters of the Helmer Exploration company and is a busy place.

GOOD STRIKES BY THE MANGANESE

New Company's Stock Goes Up as Its Two Drills Encounter More Ore.

The Manganese Iron company, of Duluth, has two drills at work on the south half of the Cuyuna range, about two and a half miles east of Deerwood. One drill is at work on the south half of section 2 ,46-28, and the other drill on the forty adjoining, in section 1, same town and range. Both drills are now in ore.

The forty last mentioned was taken over recently. It is a very valuable iron property and led to an advancement of 50 cents in the price of the company's shares, which are now selling at $1.50. High grade ore has been found on this property, which is expected to turn out one of the best ore bodies on the south range.

The forty has eight drill holes in ore and additional holes will be drilled. The Manganese Iron company's holdings and prospects are exceptionally promising. Its officers are John Wahl, also president of the John Wahl Candy company, Duluth, president; G. A. Rydberg, the big real estate and farm land dealer, treasurer; Richard Bergum, real estate, Duluth, vice president, and L. J. Pitts, secretary. With Oscar Nilson, of the John Wahl Candy company, these gentlemen form the board of directors. The office of the company is 417 Torrey building.

PIONEER OF THE CUYUNA

Franklin W. Merritt Did Much Toward Development of the Range.

Head of Two Companies Controlling Large Tracts of Ore Lands.

Franklin W. Merritt, now of Minneapolis, has played an important part in Minnesota's great iron mining industry and has done his share toward linking the name of the Merritts with Minnesota's iron ranges. Mr. Merritt with his uncles, father and brothers, developed the Mesaba range, and Mr. Merritt is one of the pioneers of the Cuyuna.

Born in Ashtabula county, Ohio, in 1860, Franklin W. Merritt came to Duluth in 1884 and has been engaged in iron mining ever since. In 1905 he began work in Crow Wing county, on the Cuyuna range, and was one of the first mining experts to set his approval upon it. He backed up his faith with development work. When believers in the new range were rare he worked hard to prove his belief in the range and was instrumental in getting considerable capital to work on the range. Time has vindicated Mr. Merritt's judgment. It is stated that out of sixty forties explored upon his advice or under his direction, more than thirty have proved to contain iron ore. Mr. Merritt is president of the Gorham-Garbett company, which owns and controls 480 acres of proved ore land on the Cuyuna, and is also president and manager of the North Star Iron Mining company, which owns and controls 400 acres of the choicest properties on the range. His office is 514 Plymouth building, Minneapolis, Minn.

FRANKLIN W. MERRITT
Of Minneapolis, a Cuyuna Range Pioneer.

Mr. Merritt does not confine his work to the accepted conventional lines of iron experts. He works along original lines. The Cuyuna is what mining men term a "blind" range, as out-croppings indicating the near presence of ore bodies are unknown on the Cuyuna. Bearing this fact in mind it is remarkable that his choice of properties he believed to contain ore has been so uniformly correct. His policy of penetrating the quartzite which is the generally accepted bottom rock of iron ore deposits, has lead to the showing up of some of the best bodies on the Cuyuna.

The history of Mr. Merritt's explorations on the Cuyuna iron range shows an almost continuous series of successes. He has played an important part in the development of the range. Many are reaping the fruits of his labors and his place among iron mining men is assured.

The two companies, the Gorham-Garbett company and the North Star Iron Mining company, of which Mr. Merritt is president and manager, hold properties of great value on the Cuyuna range. The Gorham-Garbett company owns and controls the following properties: East one-half of southeast quarter (E½ of SE¼) and southeast quarter of northeast quarter (SE¼ of NE¼) of section 28, 47-29; the north half (N½) and the southwest quarter of northwest quarter (SW¼ of NW¼) of section 33, 47-29; and the south half of the northeast quarter (S½ of NE¼) and the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter (NW¼ of SE¼) and the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter (SE¼ of NW¼) of section 32, 47-29; the east half of the southeast quarter (E½ of SE¼) of section 32, 45-30.

These properties have been proven to contain iron ore in quantity and of quality, by the development work done upon them, and around them. The company has executed a lease of one 40-acre tract, the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter (NE¼ of NW¼) of section 33, 47-29, to the Iron Mountain Mining company of Duluth. The Iron Mountain Mining company has done considerable work on this forty and is more than pleased with the results obtained. Negotiations for further leases are pending.

The properties held by the North Star Mining company are described as follows: North half of the northwest quarter (N½ of NW¼) of section 21, 46-29; north half of the northeast quarter (N½ of NE¼) and the north half of the southeast quarter (N½ of SE¼), northeast quarter of the northwest quarter (NE¼ of NW¼) and the south half of the southwest quarter (S½ of SW¼) in section 27, 47-29; and the northwest quarter of southwest quarter (NW¼ of SW¼) of section 33, 47-29.

The land in sections 27 and 33, 47-29, has been contracted for lease to the Duluth-Montezuma Mining company of Duluth, and several of its drills are now at work on the property in section 27, and are in ore.

Associated with Mr. Merritt in these two companies are: George I. Gorham, George Salzer, F. E. Dunn, Benjamin C. Garbett, John H. Savage and other well known business men of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

MADE A MINE IN TWO YEARS

Remarkable Progress of the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs Iron Company.

Its Success Being Duplicated By Cuyuna-Duluth Iron Company.

Shareholders in the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs Iron company are felicitating themselves on the remarkable success of that company, which has a large iron mine, almost ready to ship, within less than two years of the time that it first offered its shares to investors. The treasury stock that was sold was offered at par, $1, in the beginning. None is now for sale by the company. Such stock as is changing hands is selling around $5 per share.

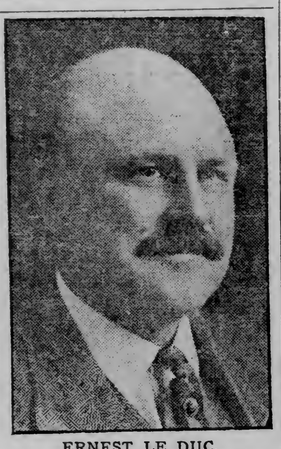
The Cuyuna-Mille Lacs company has just let a contract to the Imperial Iron Works of Duluth for an up-to-date mining equipment for its producing mine about one mile from Ironton, on the Cuyuna range, and about the same distance from the Armour No. 1, Armour No. 2, Thompson and Meacham mines. Installation of this equipment will begin at once and the company is satisfied that it will begin shipping from the property in September, that it will ship at least 10,000 to 20,000 tons this season, and that next season the mine will be a heavy shipper.

The Cuyuna-Mille Lacs mine is only about a mile from the mining branch of the Soo Line and a spur can be built into the mine in short order over the almost level land. The company first offered its shares in October, 1910, and withdrew the stock from the market last year. Now it is lifting high-grade ore and has several hundred tons on the stockpile. The Cuyuna-Mille Lacs mine is down 100 feet and encountered the ore body at fifty feet.

The success of the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs company led to the formation of the Cuyuna-Duluth Iron company by the same interests, and the newer company is duplicating the success of the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs. One of the Cuyuna-Duluth holdings is the big high-grade ore body proved up on the Ironton townsite, owned by John H. Hill of Duluth and E. A. Lamb of Deerwood. This ore body is an extension of Armour Mine No. 2 and so far 1,500,000 tons have been proved up. Five drill holes are in ore and the body has been proved to a depth of 450 feet. The holes stopped in ore. Armour No. 2, right alongside has proved its ore body 200 feet deeper.

Another very valuable holding of the Cuyuna-Duluth company is the Federal property, the east half of the northeast quarter of section 31, 47-28, Crow Wing county, which adjoins the Kennedy mine at Cuyuna. Eleven holes are in ore in this property to a depth of 615 feet. The ore was encountered at a depth of 110 to 125 feet. Two drills are at work on this property and will continue to prove up the property for the rest of the year. It is estimated that 10,000,000 to 20,000,000 tons of ore have been shown up on the Federal property. The ore assays 55 to 60 per cent iron.

Aside from these two proven mines the Cuyuna-Duluth Iron company has 360 acres of lands in fee and sixteen forties under lease in the heart of the greatest activity on both the north and south parts of the range. John Helmer, who turned up the great Mountain Iron mine and other big ore bodies on the Mesaba and Cuyuna ranges, is president of the company. Otto J. Wendlandt of Wendlandt Brothers, bookbinders and blank book manufacturers, Duluth, is first vice president and C. B. Rowley of Duluth is second vice president; E. J. W. Donahue, real estate, Duluth, is secretary, and W. H. Locker, real estate, Duluth, is treasurer. The board of directors consists of these gentlemen, and R. C. Mast, Superior; W. H. Denny, Duluth; E. C. Bane, Brainerd, Minn.; C. J. Galarneault, Foley, Minn.; Thomas McGuire, Staples, Minn., and David Murray, Ashland, Wis. With one exception the officers and directors are the same men who made such a huge success of the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs company. The company's office is in the Lonsdale building, Duluth.



ERNEST LE DUC,
President Cuyuna-Mesaba Iron Land Company.

ties are to be had on reasonable terms The company's holdings are in St. Louis county, Cook county, Aitkin county, Crow Wing county, and Cass county.

On the Cuyuna iron range the company controls more than 1,000 acres, acquired on the advice of Ernest Le Duc, the noted locator of paying iron properties. The 160 acres on the Cuyuna recently leased, described in the preceding paragraph, is known to have an iron formation 600 feet in width and is surrounded by developed or proven iron mines, including the Kennedy mine, the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs mine, the Flynn ore body, the exploration in section 22, 47-29, and the Iron Mountain mine in section 33, 49-29.

Ernest Le Duc, president and general manager of the company, has located many valuable iron properties during the past twenty years and has been associated in exploration with successful men such as R. B. Whitesiae, G. G. Hartley, and Louis Rouchleau. When Mr. Le Duc has approved an iron property his company is pretty certain that it is acquiring something of value. The men who are associated with him in the management of the company are known for their integrity and good business judgment. They will safeguard the money of the stockholders to the best of their ability and invest it with a minimum of risk.

For years Mr. Le Duc was in the service of the Oliver Iron Mining company, the mining branch of the United States Steel corporation. He has spent twenty years in familiarizing himself with the iron ranges of Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin. His judgment is sought by heavy mining interests on all these ranges. Joseph Oreckovsky, vice president, is a successful merchant of Duluth. Dr. D. D. Murray, secretary and treasurer, is one of the best known physicians and surgeons of Duluth. These gentlemen, with W. B. Patton and W. P. Lardner, are the directors of the company. Mr. Patton is a civil engineer of thirty-two years standing and is manager of the Duluth Engineering company. For about ten years he was city engineer of Duluth. William P. Lardner has lived in Duluth twenty-five years. He has handled large tracts of land on the iron ranges and has developed properties on the Mesaba and Cuyuna ranges. He is well known throughout the state.

The Cuyuna-Mesaba Iron Land company invites a careful examination of its assets, its business methods and its prospects by intending investors. It believes such an examination will disclose its merits and inspire the confidence of the public. The company is capitalized at $250,000, shares having a par value of $1. Twenty-five thousand shares of the treasury stock are being offered at par, the proceeds to be used for the purchase of mineral lands and leases. Additional facts, with detailed descriptions of holdings, may be had at the company's office, 419 Lonsdale building, Duluth.

BARROWS BIG FOR ITS AGE

On All Sides Are Large Ore Bodies, Including the Barrows Mine.

New Depot and Three Miles of Sidetracks—Much Building Going On.

Barrows is bound to be a big mining center. It has already the Barrows mine of the Virginia Ore Mining company, a subsidiary of the M. A. Hanna company, and on all sides are proven ore bodies which are bound to be mined before long. This will involve the employments of hundreds of men, who will find a nice town ready for them.

Barrows is five miles southwest of Brainerd, on the main line of the Northern Pacific railway. The Barrows mine is a big undertaking, in which the Hanna interests have already spent, if reports be true, several hundred thousands of dollars, although it is not yet ready to ship and will not be before next October at the earliest. About seventy men are employed here now in the sinking of Shaft No. 2. Work is about to be resumed in Shaft No. 1 and the sinking of Shaft No. 3 will begin soon, so the writer was told on a visit to Barrows last week. A mining captain told him that the Barrows mine will employ as many as 200 men in the three shafts and on the surface by mid-summer.

Much water and quicksand has been encountered in the Barrows mine, which makes the sinking of shafts very expensive and means the employment of a large number of men at good wages. The Barrows mine adjoins Barrows on the east. On other sides of the town are big proven ore bodies of the Northwestern Improvement company, and the Brainerd Mining company. Negotiations, preliminary to shaft sinking, are on for four forties adjacent to Barrows. Another five forties, south of Brainerd, has been proved up by the Brainerd Mining company. The lines carrying the high-tension current of the Range Power company to furnish light and power for the Cuyuna range will pass through Barrows from the dam across the Crow Wing river. By November Barrows will have electric lights.

The writer found Barrows to be a thriving town of about 200 people, with a postoffice, hotel, stores, a saloon, a railroad depot, an express office, graded streets and several blocks of cement sidewalks. Quite a number of business and residence buildings are under construction. Ten contracts for buildings have been let recently to Quackenbush Bros., building contractors of Barrows, and others will be let shortly. The Northern Pacific railroad is preparing to build a handsome depot and three miles of sidetracks at Barrows for the mines.

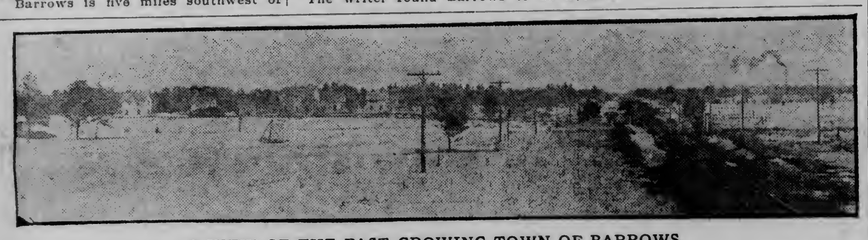
George Messberg of Eveleth, was at Barrows last week, and bought lots on which to erect a hardware and furniture store. George Matson, of Virginia is going to build a store for groceries and general merchandise. Mr. Buckman, the dry goods dealer of Brainerd, is going to put in a branch store at Barrows. He will also carry a stock of clothing.

Lots have been donated by the owners of the townsite for a new schoolhouse, which will be completed in time for the next school term. Barrows is delightfully located, with plenty of shade trees for its residence sections. Its promoters believe it will have a population of 2,500 in another year. The town is only a little more than a year old and is quite large for its age.

Lots in Barrows are being sold at $150 to $400 on easy payments. It is certain to be a good business town, for men will work in its underground mines the year around at good wages. Not a man is idle at Barrows. The town is surrounded by a well-settled farming country, which will do much to aid in its rapid growth.

Further information about Barrows may be had of the Iron Range Townsite company, Torrey building, Duluth, or E. C. Bane, Brainerd and Barrows.

SHAFTS NOS. 1 AND 2 OF THE BARROWS MINE AT BARROWS.



A VIEW OF THE FAST GROWING TOWN OF BARROWS.

NEW TOWN ON NORTH RANGE

Manganese, Surrounded By Rich Ore Bodies, Is Growing Rapidly.

Work Begun on a $10,000 Hotel and Several Stores and Homes.

The new town of Manganese is springing up on the North Cuyuna range, and promises to rival in the rapidity of its growth the fastest growing of the fine new towns on the range. It is located in section 28, 47-29, in a township in which Cuyler Adams, who discovered the range, says more big ore bodies have been shown up than in any other township on the entire range.

Manganese is surrounded by big bodies of high-grade ore, and the town was demanded by the rapid development on all sides of it. On the south is the great Flynn ore body of millions of tons leased by the Gorham-Garbett company of Minneapolis, which will shortly begin to sink a shaft, and is expected to ship ore next season. Also south of Manganese and close to the townsite is the rich property of the Iron Mountain Mining company, whose shaft is down almost to the ore body, and which has thirteen drill holes in ore.

To the north of Manganese is the great ore body which is being proved up by Patrick Hammel and John Nolan of Duluth and six associates. On this property a dozen drill holes are in ore averaging about 60 per cent. This is an enormous ore body which will take months yet to prove up on all sides. On the west of Manganese is property partly proved of the Northwestern Improvement company, the mining branch of the Northern Pacific Railway company. Another big body of ore is all proved up in sections 27, 32 and 33, 47-29, and is under lease to the Gorham-Garbett company. It is ready for shaft sinking.

The site of Manganese is high and level and it has natural drainage. The town overlooks Cole lake, a picturesque sheet of water. Streets in Manganese are being graded preparatory to the laying of cement sidewalks. One store building is completed. It houses the postoffice and has sixteen rooms in its upper story, which are being used temporarily for hotel purposes, pending the construction of a $10,000 hotel by the Fitger Brewing company of Duluth. This fine hotel will be ready for occupancy in July.

John Wahl, president of the John Wahl Candy company, Duluth, is erecting a business building costing about $3,000. Louis Gugdahl has completed a building for a residence. Frank Dallen is constructing a residence. L. Dymonez of Brooks, Minn., has let the contract for a store building, 24 by 70 feet, on which work has been begun. Marcus Grande of Duluth is having plans made for a residence. G. C. Travis of Superior has let the contract for a restaurant building. A bakery will be erected by a man from Cloquet.

Manganese was only platted and ready for sale last December, and has made rapid strides since then. Nearly all the lots were sold in seven weeks at prices ranging from $100 to $400. The Duluth Land & Timber company, which owns the townsite, has not many lots left, and these are not for sale. The company is holding them for the big advance in prices that is sure to come in Manganese during the next few months.

It is more than likely that another year will see the development of several big iron mines at Manganese, which has adopted as its slogan "the fastest growing town on the Cuyuna iron range."

Chicago, May 13.—The announcement of the gift by Julius Rosenwald, head of a Chicago mercantile house, of $1,000,000 to the cause of scientific farming through the medium of the crop improvement committee of the council of Grain Exchanges, was received by Howard H. Cross, president of the National Soil Fertility league, as being "right in line with the best efforts being made for the conservation of the agricultural resources of the nation."

Mr. Cross said it means the extension of the work of the agricultural colleges and experimental stations, great storehouses and research and demonstrations that are to be placed within reach of the individual farmer.

CROOKSTON TEAM WINS.

Given Honors Over St. Paul Humboldt High Debaters.

Crookston, Minn., May 13.—By a unanimous decision the Crookston high school debating team won the championship of Minnesota Friday night by defeating the Humboldt high school team of St. Paul in the final debate. Crookston took the affirmative of the question, "Resolved, That the United States Should Establish a Parcels Post."

The judges were President Shoemaker of the St. Cloud normal school, Dr. Kock of the University of North Dakota and Prof. E. A. Cook, University of Minnesota. After an outburst of applause, which shook the opera house, Superintendent Hess of the Crookston schools, who trained the debate team, President Shoemaker, County Superintendent Thorson, Superintendent Selvig of the school of agriculture, G. S. Chesterman, representing the school board and Charles Loring, who presided, made short addresses and F. M. Eddy of Sauk Center spoke, characterizing the debate as the best high school debate he had ever heard.

RICHESON IS PUT TO TEST

Three Alienists Examine Him to Find Whether He Is Sane.

Confessed Murderer Bears Ordeal Well—Apparently Is Hopeful.

Boston, Mass., May 13.—The board of insanity experts selected by Governor Foss to examine into the mental condition of Clarence V. T. Richeson, the former Baptist clergyman who is under sentence of death for the murder of Avis Linnell, subjected Richeson yesterday to the most exhaustive tests known. Their examination occupied almost the entire day.

It doubtless was the most critical period for the prisoner since he received his death sentence early in January. From the time Richeson confessed to the murder of the little Conservatory of Music pupil, a former sweetheart, who stood in the way of his marriage to the wealthy Miss Violet Edmands of Brookline, his counsel have been working to secure a finding that the prisoner was mentally irresponsible for his act. They were gratified when on Friday last Governor Foss, who is avowedly averse to the death penalty, named three prominent alienists to make a report for his guidance in the matter of submitting Richeson's petition to the council for clemency.

Three Alienists at Work.

The commission as made up includes Dr. Henry Rust Stedman of Brookline, chairman of the board of trustees of the Taunton insane hospital; Dr. George T. Tuttle, superintendent of the McLean asylum; and Henry Penrose, superintendent of the state insane hospital. They spent two hours with Richeson at the Charles street jail on Saturday morning, at which time a preliminary examination was made.

The examination Sunday was in the big music room of the sheriff's house in the jail yard. Richeson showed no trace of nervousness as he walked from his cell to the sheriff's house, and at the completion of the long day's ordeal, apparently was in excellent condition. The physicians left the jail in carriages and avoided discussing with anyone the results of their examination. The work of examination continued uninterruptedly from 9:30 a. m. until 12:30 p. m., when Richeson signified a desire for his dinner, and was taken back to his cell, where he partook heartily of the special food which is daily sent in to him from a restaurant outside.

Bore Up Well.

Richeson apparently was bearing himself well and showed no fatigue. About 2 o'clock he was taken again to the sheriff's house, and the alienists again took up their work. The second session lasted until 5:30 o'clock. At its conclusion Richeson bade the visitors good afternoon and was returned to his cell, his carriage as he marched across the jail yard being apparently one of hopefulness, if not even of confidence. He ate a hearty supper and last night read in his cell, being allowed the Sunday papers, from which had been clipped all reference to his own case.

It is believed the alienists have completed their examination, although they would not state conclusively to the sheriff that they might not want to return. It is expected their report will be ready for the governor some time before the meeting of the executive council Wednesday.

Courses Open to Governor.

At that time the governor can ask his council to commute the sentence of Richeson to life imprisonment if the alienists report that the prisoner was insane at the time he committed the crime. If they report that he was sane then, but that he is insane at present, the governor can only ask that the council grant a reprieve until such time as the prisoner is sane, at which time he must be executed. In any event the governor has no voice in whatever action the council takes.

If the council declines to take any action on Wednesday, Richeson will be at once removed to the Charlestown state prison, there to await in the death cell the execution of the sentence of the law against him, which is that he be electrocuted during the week beginning May 19.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR THE EDITORS

At a meeting at the Commercial club Saturday afternoon the arrangements for entertaining the state editors on their trip to this part of Minnesota were completed by the committee consisting of W. A. McGonagle, chairman of the public affairs committee; H. V. Eva, secretary of the Commercial club, Mille Bunnell, Stillman H. Bingham, Charles S. Mitchell, William E. McEwen and L. E. Welty.

The party will be entertained in generous style, the itinerary including a trip to Isle Royale and points of interest on the iron ranges. The editors will arrive over the Great Northern at 2 o'clock Friday, July 12. At 2:30 they will board the steamer America for Isle Royale, returning Saturday evening. Sunday they will be taken on an automobile trip around Duluth.

At 9 o'clock Sunday evening sleeping cars will be available at the Union station. Leaving at 5 o'clock in the morning they are due to arrive for breakfast at Two Harbors, after which the railroad shops and the ore docks will be seen. They are due at Ely at noon, whence the train will go to Eveleth and Virginia, spending the night at the latter place.

Tuesday forenoon will be spent at Virginia and Hibbing will be reached at noon, where the train will stay the rest of the day and over night. Wednesday the party will proceed to Coleraine and then go on to Meadowlands, from which point the train is scheduled to reach Duluth at 4:30 in the afternoon. At 7 o'clock the same evening the editors will be guests at a banquet at the Commercial club. Thursday will be spent in the harbor and along the river, with visits to the steel plant and Fond du Lac. There will be a dance at the boat club in the evening and Friday the members of the party will leave for their homes.

PICK ROOSEVELT MEN FROM WEST VIRGINIA.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 13.—This week the West Virginia Republicans go through the formality of designating the personnel of the delegation that will represent the state at the national Republican convention in Chicago. At recent conventions and primaries held in the forty-five counties of the state, the Taft and Roosevelt forces engaged in bitter contests, resulting in the Roosevelt faction getting the majority of the delegates of all five congressional district conventions, and the state delegate convention. The district delegate conventions will be held on Wednesday.

SALVATION OF THE JEWS

Zionist Movement Necessary for Preservation of Race, Says Speaker.

Only Way to Keep Alive Their Religion, Literature and Art.

At the Temple Emanuel in the afternoon and at the Jewish synagogue in the evening, Dr. Horace M. Kallen, professor of philosophy at the University of Wisconsin, delivered lectures yesterday on the Zionist movement.

The speaker declared that the only salvation for the Jewish race lay in the establishment of a Jewish nation and the building of schools and libraries for the perpetuation of the Yiddish language. Dr. Kallen's remarks were enthusiastically received.

Dr. Kallen told of the psychological traits of the Jews in America and often referred to their efficiency as American citizens and business men. The only solution of the problem of saving the traditions of their forefathers, he said, was the establishment of Zion.

"The Zion movement," declared Dr. Kallen, "purposes to keep alive the religion, literature and art of our people. It is impossible to do this under any other national conditions. We must return to Palestine to do this. There is no salvation for the traits of our people in America. Jews to be good American citizens, like other immigrants, must keep their religion and for reference we must turn to the mother country.

"The fact is to be deplored that the synagogues do not provide enough attractions to hold the young people. No provision is being made in this country to educate the young Jew in the lore of his race. The Jews, like other nationalities, have their peculiar traits, which, with the mingling of modern ideas, has placed their religion at a disadvantage."

At the afternoon meeting at Temple Emanuel, B. Silberstein was chairman, and made a few introductory remarks. Dr. Maurice Lefkovits also gave a short address. A. M. Schulman, president of Ohave Zion Gate, presided at the meeting which was held in the evening at the synagogue. Rabbi I. Teplitz gave a short talk in Jewish, in which he advocated the plans which have been proposed for the establishment of Zion in Palestine.

Yesterday Dr. Kallen was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Rine and also by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Oreckovsky at 11 East First street. He left for Madison, Wis., today.

BOOMING WISCONSIN JUDGE FOR GOVERNOR.

Madison, Wis., May 13.—John Barnes, associate justice of the Wisconsin supreme court, will be the gubernatorial candidate on the Democratic state ticket next fall, if plans which have been carefully formulated do not miscarry.

Democratic leaders announce that Judge Barnes will make the run provided he is unopposed at the primaries.

Prior to going on the supreme court bench, Mr. Barnes was appointed to the railway rate commission by Senator La Follette when governor of Wisconsin.

COPPER COUNTRY HAS GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Houghton, Mich., May 13.—A grain elevator is an unusual structure in a peculiarly mining district such as the Copper county, yet Houghton has one in daily operation. It is located in the yards of the M. Van Orden company in West Houghton. While its capacity is limited as compared with the great grain handling plants of the Minnesotas and Dakotas and the lake ports tributary to them, still it is an interesting addition to the industrial plants of the Copper county.

The elevator is used principally for handling oats, though some corn passes through it. It really is an adjunct to the Van Orden company's oats cleaning plant.

Summer School.

A 7-weeks' term of summer school will open at the Duluth normal on June 11.

The course will be outlined especially for the rural school teacher. All branches of study offered in examinations for state certificates for teachers will be offered and as many others as may be deemed expedient.

Any credits received may be applied on the work when a diploma is received.

High school graduates and holders of second grade certificates will be admitted to the summer school without an examination.

It is planned to have two recitations daily in each subject. No student will be permitted to carry more than two subjects.

BRUCE'S COLUMN

COMMENT AND DIVERS DISCUSSION OF THE MERRY WORLD OF SPORT.

AT the present writing the idea comes trooping along that the race in the National league is destined to be about as interesting as a speed contest conducted with a flying start between Barney Oldfield and the family horse that mother is so fond of, bringing the simile to its full eloquence by handicapping the nag with ring bone and spavin. Things may change, as they have the habit in the best of all communities, but right now, though the season is young, it looks as if the jealous Giants are out to make a runaway race of the gallop for the gonfalon. Where there were several strong teams in the race last year, time in its flighty flit has brought woe to the Cubs, Cardinals, Phillies and but little solace to Brooklyn and Boston. The Reds? Well maybe they can hold the clip. Let us hope so.

You might say that the Pirates have been left off the list. We are coming to them. So far in the season they have been a problem. Pittsburg, like the captious Cubs, is slowing up. Age has not helped the Clarke band, as it does wine and a poor bank account. Wagner isn't any refutation for the Osler theory, and then, besides, Fred Clarke, one of the grandest players that ever chased a fly or nagged an umpire, is out of the game and is running things from the bench.

Last season you may remember that the Cardinals were in the race for keeps and that also the men from Missouri took special delight in walloping, trouncing, backsliding and otherwise making the race difficult for the joyless Giants. This year the Cards have proved but a sorry disappointment and it begins to look as though the Cubs cannot keep up in the race with the pitching staff performing as it is at the present time.

There is nothing that will take the interest out of a pennant hunt like a runaway procession until the call of time. If it gets to be that the New York Nationals are going to run away with the pace making and carry the other teams along at too fast a clip, hereby losing them in the distance, the fans will look to the American league, should it happen that the younger major is going to have a close bunch of flag fleeters.

Jimmy Callahan and the White Sox are the problem the dope students are perplexed over at the present time. With the Sox, Boston, Red Sox and the Athletics in the hunt, and the fact that Detroit's hitters should keep the team in the running throughout the season, it does look at the present time as if the race in the American should be reasonably close.

Some of the wagers made in early season, taking the Athletics against the field, are being grabbed at the present time with rapture and rapacity. The speculation at the present time is turned upon the Chicago White Sox, and the wonderment is being expressed as to whether this team has not cut out a faster pace than can be held during the fierce fighting of July and August.

IF PAL BROWN is really going to mix with Mandot, then at last, Bill, we may have the opportunity of seeing this native son in action against one of the real good boys of the country. Mandot's name is generally with the best society, speaking of pugilists only. He is so classed by his own Southern admirers, and some of that tender sentiment running free and loose below the Mason and Dixon line may have given Joe an inflated rating in the Bradstreet of pugilistic pointers.

If the boys quarrel over the eight-round routing, there will always be ways and means of disputing the superiority, should the knockout interruption fail to enliven the proceedings. But if Brown goes along and behaves himself during the eight sessions of the Queensberry debate, then he will at least come to the attention of the followers of the fighters and will be looked upon as a promising young man of good pugilistic parts.

TURNING to Saturday's soiree out Frisco way, said soiree bringing Ad Wolgast, sans appendix, back to the limelight, we notice that the little Dutchman brought the Ritchie rogue to the carpet twice during the progress of the four rounds of fighting. This is some class for a fellow who has been out of the ring for some few months, not to mention the fact that he furnished fees for several high-priced licensed knife-wieldders of the Pacific coast country.

Ritchie fought Freddy Welsh and made a distinct impression on the fans and Welsh's countenance. He also mingled merrily with Young Erne of Philadelphia, the same lad who accused P. McFarland of running out of a match with him. What Ritchie did to Erne was not especially nice, as the boys battled in Philadelphia, where Erne lives, and presumably has a steady.

Therefore it may be mentioned again that the showing of Wolgast was about all that could be expected from the title-holder of the lightweight division. Some of the rest of 'em should come easier than Ritchie.

WITH the opening of the season tomorrow will come the festivities that are generally closely and affectionately associated with the formal welcome of baseball. There is to be a parade, speeches and the hurling of the first ball. It is planned by the officers of the local club to have the largest parade in the history of baseball here. Final plans for the ushering in of the initial season of the Central International league are due to be completed at a gathering of the officials of the local club which is scheduled to be held this evening.

IT IS not surprising that there are people here at the Head of the Lakes wondering why it is that an eight of the Duluth Boat club has not won a race at one of the Northwestern regattas since the year—well, never mind the date. The answer is simple, and is herewith given to you: the men didn't know how to row.

Things are changing. We have a coach on the job at the present time who knows what he is about, and the result, without in any way predicting that Duluth is going to win this season, should be apparent at the regatta in July. Ten Eyck started under a handicap, for most of the men had learned how not to row. When they wanted to row, though the spirit was willing, the faults of some years' standing were against them.

Work under Ten Eyck is gradually evolving a rowing form that is something human and sympathetic and of a sweet disposition. Duluth has had the material these past few lean years, but the handicap of rowing up and down rather than forward has proven too great an obstacle for the eight huskies who have been in the long boats. The conditions are looking up, the form of the men has undergone a change decidedly for the better, and the boats are "spacing."

While the material this year is not as plentiful as it might be, Jimmy has some of the best sweep men that have ever represented the local club, and with the improvement in form, which simply means rowing right, there are some of us who are going to get down a flier on the result of the junior eight race.

JACK HATES TO LEAVE CHICAGO

Will Not Go to Las Vegas Until Middle of June.

Chicago, May 13.—Jack Johnson, champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, thinks so well of the boulevards around Chicago that he will not leave for his training camp near Las Vegas until the middle of June. His original plan was to leave two weeks earlier.

"I know that Flynn is getting all the publicity by being on the battleground," he said, "but that won't do him any good on July 4."

Johnson is doing light training. He has taken off eight pounds of flesh in the last week, which he does not regard as a bad record for a beginning. He does road work every morning and four times a week he boxes with Jumbo Wells, Marty Cutler and a muscular negro that the champion calls his "black hope."

It was two years ago yesterday that Johnson began to train for his fight with Jeffries. The negro laughed and said that fight critics at that time said he was beginning his preparations too late.

HOME GUARD TAKE SERIES

Duluth Makes Clean Sweep of Games By Defeating Superior 8 to 7.

Opportune Hitting Wins Final Contest of the Training Season.

Yesterday Duluth took the final game of the series with Superior, thus making a straight of the mid-winter games. The score was 8 to 7. Hoffman was on the hurling line for the Sox of the white nether coverings, and Vance and Schweitzer were the sharp shooters on duty for the enemy.

Duluth scored in the first. McGraw doubled and crossed the pan when Indian Roy refused to behave with Leber's ground offering. Superior offered no resistance in its half.

In the second Dunn two-bagged to left and Hyzer singled, counting Dunn. Ford hit over the paling and the home fans marked two more scores on their programs.

The Sox came back with four in their net in the second. O'Brien and Blum strolled and then perpetrated a double steal. Dunn threw the ball away in a laudable effort to get the tharp at third and O'Brien came home. Erickson walked and Hoffman singled, Blum counting. Erickson was nipped at third. Kuhn flew to center and McGraw tripled. He scored when Menelce singled.

Francis singled in the fourth and Sours fuzzled on Dunn's delivery of a ground offering. Roy flied to Sours. Hyzer strolled. Ford doubled and Francis and Dunn were over. Vance also doubled and Hyzer and Ford also counted.

In the Duluth half Hoffmen graciously hit over the paling and boosted the ante for the White Sox.

In the seventh the Sox added two to the count and thus took the game. McGraw stopped one with himself and went on to second when Schweitzer heaved with abandon to first. Menelce singled and McGraw came home. Menelce pilfered and Leber impersonated a target. Menelce was caught at the plate in attempting a double steal. Leber stole both second and third and came home when Sours singled.

RULES ARE ISSUED BY PRESIDENT BLUME

Executive of New League Declares Against Rowdy Baseball and Insists on Umpires Running Games.

The following letter has been sent to the managers of the Central International league by President Blume:

"This new circuit starts on its first season on May 14, and it is dependent on the members of this circuit to make or unmake the success of the organization.

"First of all the league wants to stand for clean baseball. No matter what you have been accustomed to in other leagues, you and your men are now under a league management that proposes to live up to the requirments of the best there is in the game. Clean tactics is the answer. Selecting umpires is a hazard in early season, but I expect to personally observe their work and guarantee that nothing but competent men will officiate in C. I. league games.

"These men that I am sending will be competent of running the game as it should be. There may be some deficiences until the season gets started, but the staff eventually will be men versed in the rules and with enough 'sand' to run a game minus any spectacular shows of rowdyism from the players.

"My instructions to the umpires are strict, and every rule pertaining to the duties of an umpire, as prescribed in the usuage of baseball must be observed. Now and for all time let it be understood that nothing of the jaw conduct nature or flagrant ruptures of discipline on the field will be tolerated from this office. The people want good baseball and will patronize a league that follows the clean game policy.

"Now the managers are the ones to be responsible for this state of affairs which we seek to obtain. As president I expect to see that the games are such as they should be, but proper control exerted by the managers will aid in speedily making a name for the sort of game that is played in the new Central International league.

No Delays.

"Games must be played without petty delays. The faster a game is played, the snappier the action, the more the fans will be attracted to the parks. Umpires are instructed to run the game with all the dispatch possible. Reports on this matter will be watched closely. Have your men ready to take their turn at bat, and order them to the field with some sort of a show of action. It helps the game to see the men hurry to the field instead of moping to their positions in a half-hearted sort of a way.

"There must not be any interference of the players with the progress of the game. The managers are the only ones along with the field captain, but in this case the manager and field captain will probably be the same as the league regulations require that the manager must be a playing one, who should protest decisions of the umpires. This is a fair warning that any player who destroys the good demeanor of the game will be severely dealt with from this office. Because of the limited number of players allowed to be carried by each club I have instructed the umpires to impose a fine for misconduct before suspending a player, as the latter action would cripple the team seriously where so few players are carried. Do not get the idea that suspension is done away with; it is merely a second resort.

"A fine once imposed shall stand. The practice of remitting fines will not be followed in any case. When an umpire places a fine it must be paid before the player can enter another game.

"Special and marked violations of the rules will naturally come up for my consideration, and I give you fair notice, that while I shall be perfectly fair at all times, I will be severe, for the good of the game and the future of the league is at stake.

"I send you this notice before the season gets under way, so that there may be no doubt as to the policy of this circuit. I ask each manager to co-operate with me."

WOLGAST SEEMS IN GOOD SHAPE

Lightweight Champion Was Not Injured in Bout With Willie Ritchie.

San Francisco, Cal., May 13.—Although fears were felt that Ad Wolgast, champion lightweight fighter of the world, had been injured in his bout against Willie Ritchie of San Francisco, doctors who were called in consultation assured Manager Jones that his charge had not been badly injured. The champion suffered last night from pains in his kidneys and groin as a result of the fight with Ritchie.

"Ritchie is a mighty good boy," said Wolgast. "My experience with him did me a world of good. We went fast and he made a good showing. I satisfied myself that I still have the old punch by those two clean knockdowns in the third round. My judgment of distance was a bit faulty, but that is accounted for by my absence from the ring for six months.

"I have not noticed any ill effects form the operation I underwent in Los Angeles. The test with Ritchie shows that I am in good shape in the midsection."

Wolgast and Jones depart today for St. Joseph, Mo., where the champion will box four rounds with a local boy on May 17. Then the party will return here and several other short distance workouts will be arranged.

AMATEURS OPEN THE SEASON

Duluth and Superior League Gets Under Way With Three Games.

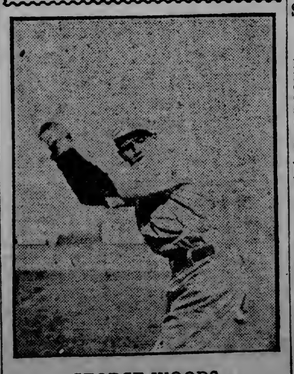
Yesterday the Duluth and Superior league got under way, with the weather man playing the soft pedal on the enthusiasm stuff. Despite the adverse weather conditions three of the games were played. The large scores may be attributed to the lack of practice. The bad spring has sent all of the teams on the field with practically no preliminary training and the games played on the opening day can be considered in the light of practice contests.

The Duluth Heights team was defeated by the Sodality nine by the score of 16 to 8. G. Cullen was in the box for the West end boys and Collier did the heaving for the Heights. The Sodality secured eighteen hits and the Heights garnered fourteen during the fray.

The Stones got away to a flying start by winning from the New Duluth aggregation by the score of 22 to 10. Wannamaker was on the hill for the New Duluth bunch and was found for thirteen hits. His team made twelve errors behind him. E. Carlson was in the box for the winners, twelve hits being made from his delivery. The Stones played by far the cleaner game in the field.

Over at Superior the Temcos won from the Binghams by the score of 4 to 3. This was the best game of the day and was hard fought all the way through.

LEADING PITCHER FOR THE RED SOX



GEORGE WOODS.

CREW SHIFTED BY TEN EYCK

Starting with the work of the eight this afternoon, Thompson will be rowed at stroke, Lathrop at 7, Pederson at 6., Quimby at 5, Kent at 4, Cheney at 3, Sole at 2 and Grant at bow. Pederson and Cheney are the two new men of the eight.

Cliff Thorburn is being given some workouts in a single at the present time. The launch was out Saturday evening and the men had one of the best workouts of the season. The first brush of the season was held between the first and second eights, the first crew winning handily after giving the second men a handicap. The stroke was kept down around the 22 and 25 register all the way down the course.

Dans, 110 pounds; Laus, 112; Horneman, 125; Patrick, 117, and McKenzie, weighing around the 120 mark, are the men who will fight it out for coxswains of the first and second eights.

Starting in the present week it is expected that three eights will be sent out. Also in the next few days it is expected that Coach Ten Eyck will start two fours out of the eight, working.

PLENTY OF FISHERMEN— BUT VERY FEW FISH.

Yesterday's range train was filled with fishermen—but not with fish. The train coming down on the Iron Range was filled with those enthusiastic nimrods, but there was hardly more than 100 fish in the gathering. The fishing is bad, very bad and was most profoundly and picturesquely described by some of the followers of I. Walton, some new adjectives being coined for the occasion.

After waiting the greater part of the spring, or the later winter season if you will, for the opening of the fishing season, the lovers of the line and hook and also the bite, find that it is too cold and cheerless for the fish to be in a genial or grasping mood.

Some of the fishermen plan to renew their efforts to catch a fish. One elderly gentleman it is said was very discouraged, as he is over 80 years of age; but some of the younger men have hopes. Next week some of the disappointed ones are going out—while some of the rest of the bunch plan to wait until the weather puts on the high speed.

GUN CLUB SHOOT.

Storey and Wilson Are Grand Opening Event Winners.

Opening shoots were held at the Northwestern and Central Gun clubs yesterday. Tom Storey won the highest percentage at the Northwestern Gun club's grand opening, which was an unqualified success, getting 93 out of a possible 100 clay pigeons.

Charles Wilson won the Dupont trophy at the Central club.

PRESIDENT BLUME HAS SELECTED HIS UMPIRES.

Arthur McGloom, last season with the South Atlantic league, and Lew Hall, with the Cotton States league last season, are the two umpires who will start the season in the Central International league. There will be but two umpires at the start of the season. Later another man may be added to the staff. Both of the Indicator holders have been highly recommended to the president of the league.

WOLGAST HAS HANDS FULL

Ritchie Makes Champion Travel Over the Four-Round Route.

Had Difficulty Earning the Newspaper Decision of a Draw.

San Francisco, May 13.—Ad Wolgast was forced to extend himself to the limit to get a newspaper draw in the fourth round in his four-round bout here with Willie Ritchie Saturday. For the first two rounds Ritchie kept the champion on the defensive.

The champion was staggered in the second round by a long range stab to the chin, but recovered quickly.

Ritchie took the count twice in the third, although he came back strong and carried the fight to Wolgast in the fourth, when the ladder was bleeding profusely from cuts in the face and mouth.

The general opinion of the fight fans seems to be that Wolgast had failed to extend himself or that he has gone back somewhat as a result of his operation.

Six four-round bouts between fighters of all weights preceded the Wolgast-Ritchie fight. The attendance was light.

The air was fog laden and a chill wind blew across the arena.

Wolgast and Ritchie weighed in at noon and both easily were under weight.

The fighters arrived early at the arena, Wolgast occupying a spectator's box during the preliminaries.

Fight by Rounds.

Round 1—The fight opened with light sparring and then Wolgast quickly ripped left and right to the face. The pace quickened with the champion lacing out vigorously with left and right, several of which landed. Some close fighting followed and Ritchie lifted the champion in the air with his knee. Ritchie suddenly shot a powerful left straight to the jaw and the champion tottered against the ropes. Wolgast, maddened at this unexpected turn, waded in, fighting fiercely, and it was give and take until the end of the round. Wolgast's blows seemed badly timed in this round. Ritchie had the advantage.

Round 2—They clinched and Wolgast drove left to the body and a moment later swung a terrific right to the jaw, staggering Ritchie. Wolgast ripped a left to the face, but the Californian sent his opponent back with two wicked short arm jabs to the jaw. Ritchie followed his advantage, landing solid punches to the jaw and Wolgast appeared groggy. The crowd was on its feet in a terrific uproar. Ritchie again staggered Wolgast with a succession of right and left wallops to the face. It was all Ritchie's round.

Round 3—They went at it fiercely at close range. The crowd yelled to Ritchie to be careful. He responded with a straight left to the jaw and followed this with right and left to the face. So fierce was the milling that both fell to the floor. When they got up Wolgast planted his right solidly to the stomach, but Ritchie retaliated with two powerful lefts to the chin. Ritchie pecked away at the face, getting home almost at will. Suddenly Wolgast shot his left flush to the jaw and Ritchie went sprawling to the floor. As he arose Wolgast immediately popped him over with a right cross and Ritchie was very groggy. The round ended with Wolgast smiling and fresher. It was the champion's round.

Round 4—Wolgast lunged his left to the stomach and missed with left for the jaw. Wolgast closed in, trying for a finishing blow, but Ritchie was evasive. As they mixed, Wolgast drove his left three times to the jaw without a return. The champion then forced his man to the ropes, but missed several times with fierce swings. Ritchie then got the champion into a corner and sent two hard rights to the jaw. The men fought at a furious clip with Ritchie nettled. Wolgast spat blood as he came out of a mix during which Ritchie scored repeatedly with lefts to the mouth. The round and fight ended in a mix with Wolgast spitting blood. No decision was given.

PARADE WILL MARK OPENING

Preparations are being made today for the opening of the baseball season tomorrow. It is expected that Mayor McCuen will ask that the merchants of the city declare a half holiday for the inauguration of the new league. In other cities it is the custom for the stores to close for the first game and it is believed that the merchants here will be willing to do the same, or at least allow as many of their employes as possible to attend.

While it looks anything but baseball weather today, the officials of the local club are hopeful. They figure that the brand of weather that has been making us miserable all spring, can't last much longer, and that it is possible for Tuesday morning to break bright and clear.

There will be a parade from the down town district to the grounds and the usual dedicatory exercises. At the meeting of the club officials this evening, which has been called for the Spalding hotel, it is expected that the final arrangements for the opening exercises will be arranged.

It is stated that a large number of automobiles will take part in the parade and that his honor will heave the first ball over, or in the general direction of the plate. Other city officials are also expected to participate in the festivities.

JUST LEARNS OF HIS LOSS

Hibbing Man Advised Sunday Two Brothers Went Down With Titanic.

Survivor Brings Flute One of Victims Sent to Minnesota Brother.

Hibbing, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The tragedy of the Titanic had not been told in full to a Hibbing man until he met a survivor here yesterday and was informed that when the great ship took its final plunge to the bottom of the Atlantic early April 15, carrying over 1,600 human beings to watery graves, it took also two of his brothers who were coming to America from Austria. A flute, the pride of one of the lost brothers, who was a great flute player, was brought by the survivor and turned over to the bereaved brother as mute evidence of the tragedy, the lost relative having requested the instrument be taken to Hibbing.

Survivor Breaks News.

Joe Sclienodich, who works in the mines, learned yesterday from Nickola Lilich, the Austrian who survived the calamity and was interviewed in Duluth recently, that two of Sclienodich's brothers were lost on the Titanic. They were neighbors in Austria, and the three were coming to this country together. Lilich, more fortunate than the other two, got into a boat and the owner of the flute threw him the instrument, telling him to take it to Hibbing to his brother. The survivor of the great disaster, who is doing a stunt at a local theater, hunted up Sclienodich yesterday and turned the flute over to him, at the same time telling him for the first time he had lost both brothers in the great disaster. The two boys were aged 21 and 25 and were coming here to work in the mine. Their brother expected them, but was not certain whether they sailed on the Titanic.

"Big Six" and Men Opposing in Virginia, Preparing for Fray.

Virginia, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The recall election campaign, involving the right of six aldermen to continue to occupy their seats in the council, is warming up, the six men under fire and those opposed to them being busy preparing for the battle of ballots May 28.

A minority of the council is now allied with the policies of Mayor Murphy. His supporters assert that after the election he will have the requisite five or more members, breaking the alleged combination and giving the mayor and his allies a working majority in the council.

The other faction in the council confidently assert that all six of the aldermen under the recall will be returned. It is stated that the Socialist ticket will draw from the party of the mayor rather than from the other side. The Socialists have a full ticket in the field.

FAIR

The weather man looks for frost tonight. Today's "freak" snowstorm was short lived. It was late for snow, but broke no records in this respect. Fair weather is looked for tomorrow, but it will continue cool. A year ago today it was chilly and threatening.

The sun rose this morning at 4:33 and will set at 7:34, making fifteen hours and one minute of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last twenty-four to forty-eight hours light to heavy rains have fallen throughout the Northwest and in districts to the eastward of the Mississippi river, principally in connection with the disturbance now centered over the Upper St. Lawrence valley. Light to killing frosts occurred last night in Montana, Wyoming and the Dakotas. The easterly movement of the Montana high pressure will result in fair weather at the head of the Lakes during tonight and Tuesday."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, May 13.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Tuesday:

NO TOWER CAUCUS.

Tower, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—No primaries were held here Saturday night by the Republicans through an oversight on the part of someone. Those who appeared at the usual polling places found no one there to receive their votes, so the people will have to wait to learn whether Taft or Roosevelt has the call here.

Quits Tower Charke..

Tower, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. W. T. Hughes of Ely, who has been filling St. James Presbyterian church pulpit here, preached his last sermon last night, having given up preaching in this section because of his health.

Erma D. Launched.

The steamer Erma D., owned by the Vermilion Lake Navigation company at Tower, Minn., was successfully launched on May 10. A large crowd gathered to witness the interesting event. The boat made its maiden trip today to Vermilion Dam and will continue each day throughout the season to make regular trips to all points on the lake. This boat, with its splendid accomodations, will add to the ever increasing attractions of Lake Vermilion as the ideal summer resort of America.

MUSICAL COMEDY AT THE ORPHEUM

"The Leading Lady" Headlines Attractive New Vaudeville Bill.

The tabloid musical comedy, "The Leading Lady," tops off a very good bill at the Orpheum this week—the last week but one of the local season.

The aforementioned L. L. topped the bill when Duluth put on its dress clothes about two years ago and opened its new Orpheum theater. Next to the mayor, she was the headliner of the first bill, and she is back again looking as youthful and sprightly as ever. The L. L. is programmed as Miss Marguerite Haney, and she is assisted by one limber and bemonocled English comedian, one portly English butler, one bellboy, and six chorus maidens who rank very much above the average in appearance. Miss Haney herself sings and warbles through her lines, but more than makes up for this habit of elocution or vocalization by her dancing and general attractiveness. She is exceedingly light and graceful in her dancing, and, pulchritudinously speaking, she essays about 99 per cent good looks. The bemonocled Englishman is a really clever comedian, and an excellent dancer. As a headline act, "The Leading Lady" fills the bill adequately.

Just as long as Carl Henry and Nellie Francis can escape their keepers, they will probably continue to amuse vaudeville audiences. Mr. Henry is one of the old-time vaudevillians and he and Miss Francis have an act they call "Just Nonsense." It is. They garnered about six laughs a minute on their nonsense last evening.

Edward Flanagan and Neel Edwards are back in their little novelty sketch, "On and Off," which tells of a break between two vaudeville performers. They have altered the first half of their act, but the amusing dressing room scene with the two performers removing the burnt cork and indulging in their squabble, is still offered. It is a thoroughly pleasing little act, true to life, and well presented.

For years Ray L. Royce has been one of the most popular character actors in the profession. His "Rube" characters have made him famous in such plays as "York State Folks." For his vaudeville act he has collected several of these types, including an old-time pettifogging lawyer, a country justice of the peace, a rising young country orator, and a self-satisfied schoolmaster. Each one of these has been provided with an amusing little monologue and they are offered in rapid succession. It makes an entertaining act.

The Five Piroscoffis have the most pretentious juggling act of the season. There are three men and two women in the act, and they work with great rapidity, juggling tables, lamps, chairs, balls, plates and hats. One of the men is an exceptionally expert juggler, and the others form an effective background for him.

Charles Brown and May Newman have a singing and dancing number with nothing in particular to recommend it outside of some rather attractive gowns worn by Miss Newman.

Honors and Prince have a very good little opening act, consisting of acrobatic work and some pantomime comedy. It contains no startlingly original features, but their tricks are difficult and well done.

The kinodrome this week shows some interesting flood pictures from the South, and the orchestra is presenting a descriptive overture that is worth hearing.

BUILDING FOOD

To Bring the Babies Around.

When a little human machine (or a large one) goes wrong, nothing is so important as the selection of food to bring it around again.

"My little baby boy fifteen months old had pneumonia, then came brain fever, and no sooner had he got over these than he began to cut teeth and, being so weak, he was frequently thrown into convulsions," says a Colorado mother.

"I decided a change might help, so took him to Kansas City for a visit. When we got there he was so very weak when he would cry he would sink away and seemed like he would die.

"When I reached my sister's home she said immediately that we must feed him Grape-Nuts and, although I had never used the food, we got some and for a few days just gave him the juice of Grape-Nuts and milk. He got stronger so quickly we were soon feeding him the Grape-Nuts itself and in a wonderfully short time he fattened right up and became strong and well.

"That showed me something worth knowing and, when later on my little girl came, I raised her on Grape-Nuts and she is a strong, healthy baby and has been. You will see from the little photograph I send you what a strong, chubby youngster the boy is now, but he didn't look anything like that before we found this nourishing food. Grape-Nuts nourished him back to strength when he was so weak he couldn't keep any other food on his stomach." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

All children can be built to a more sturdy and healthy condition upon Grape-Nuts and cream. The food contains the elements nature demands, from which to make the soft gray filling in the nerve centres and brain. A well fed brain and strong, sturdy nerves absolutely insure a healthy body.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

THE FOOD THAT BABY NEEDED

"We cannot recommend Mellin's Food too highly, as we feel that it saved our first baby's life. After trying all other foods our physician gave him up, but my husband and I did not. So we tried Mellin's Food, and after a few feedings we found it was the food baby needed. From that time on he began to gain and is a perfectly healthy boy aged 7 years, and when our little girl came last January there was no question as to what food we would give her, as Mellin's Food was before us in large letters."

ceum tonight. All the novelties still remain a permanent fixture, including the disembarking from the Lousitania down the gang plank, into the audience, where the passengers rush madly up the aisle bag and baggage, through the main front doors of the theater.

The reason for the unbounded popularity of "Miss Nobody From Starland" embraces the production in its entirety. Its story is original, its features are absolute novelties, its action is swift and certain and its music and lyrics are decidedly catchy. This is the general verdict which catches its echo in the box office, as "Miss Nobody From Starland" is one of the three biggest winners in the musical comedy world. Among the novel features are the big dress rehearsal scene, the great scene aboard the liner Lousitania and that alluring fantasy, the Cuban dance. The many song hits include the famous "Gingaboo Man," song, "I Will Be Your Honey When It's Moonlight," "Kiss Me," "I'd Rather Love What I Cannot Have Than Have What I Cannot Love," "The Dear Little Ghost of Your Smile," and "Ah, Maria, Mari Tarentelle." Olive Vail who is one of the favorite musical comedy stars, will again be seen in the title role. The cast includes the same prominent principales, Bertee Beaumont, Joseph H. Nelmeyer, Lawrence Comar, Otto Koerner, Maude Emery, and the chorus presents one of those stunning arrays of pretty girls who know how to dance and sing.

BUSY MEETING OF THE COUNCIL

Many Important Matters Are Scheduled to Be Discussed.

The council this evening will canvass the returns of the special election held in Duluth last Tuesday to pass upon the amendment making the initiative, referendum and recall part of the charter.

The council committee on ordinances is scheduled to hold a hearing on the proposed cocaine ordinance this week, considerable opposition having been offered to it. The committee's report may be submitted to the council tonight.

The committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks will probably report on the East Fourth street paving matter, a meeting on which was held last Wednesday to discuss the width of the paving.

The West Duluth carnival matter is due to come up. The matter was referred to the city attorney at the last council meeting and he has determined that the council cannot legally allow the use of the streets for the carnival. It is expected that this will settle that question.

An amendment to the fire works ordinance will porbably be passed to enable the Country club and the West Duluth committee to give fireworks exhibitions without going into a public park.

A report will also be received from the Woman's Council on the garbage collection plans.

COL. NELSON COMING.

Head of the Scandinavian Salvation Army Will Visit Duluth.

Col. Benjamin Nelson, highest officer of the Salvation Army Scandinavian branch in the United States, will visit Duluth Thursday, May 16 and conduct a special meeting at the Scandinavian Salvation Army hall, 1631 West Superior street. The colonel will laddress the audience in the Scandinavian language.

Several recruits will be sworn in as soldiers during the service. There will be special music.

Col. Nelson has for the last ten or twelve years held the highest office in the Scandinavian branch of the Salvation Army. He has been a Salvation Army officer for a quarter of a century and was the first officer to train for the Scandinavian field in this country.

The colonel has visited Duluth several times before during his officership and the local followers of the army are looking forward to a grand rally Thursday next.

MUSICAL ACT AT EMPRESS

Vaudeville Bill This Week Features Splendid Musical Comedy.

Beautifully staged and costumed, the Empress headliner, "The Broomstick Witches," scored heavily at the performance last evening. The act is remarkable for the vaudeville stage, on account of its capable stars and chorus. Six girls, all of whom can sing and dance, make up the chorus of the Homer & Du Bard company.

The sketch deals with a Japanese princess, who is bound to marry the ruler of the kingdom by royal command. She is in love with an American naval officer, who is determined to win her from the king's power. The sketch is interspersed with a number of songs and dances, all of which are deserving of merit. Dorothy Homer as Teresa, the princess, is pleasing and the possessor of a splendid voice. She sings the various solo numbers with ability and is ably assisted by the chorus of six young women.

Larry Fuller as the king is the life of the sketch and proved himself an excellent entertainer. He is a real comedian and also a capable dancer. W. E. DuBard is the other principal of the company, playing the American naval officer. Assisted by the chorus, which is well trained, the principals presented a pleasing entertainment. "The Broomstick Witches" is a delightful little musical comedy and the audience last evening insisted on several encores following the act. The popular songs introduced during the action of the act are: "Jap of Nicobar," "Witch Song," "Love You Every Hour," "Everybody Two-Step" and "U. S. Marines."

Greve and Green open the well-balanced bill this week with a page from minstreley. The two young men present a pleasing musical act in which they introduce a number of instruments and minstrel jokes. One of the men appears as a black-faced comedian and he managed to keep the act full of the snap and life reminiscent of the old minstrel stage.

As a messenger boy Eddie Shaw is one of the best and his dancing places him above the ordinary vaudeville dancer. He is light on his feet and his "Chicken Reel" dance was a scream. Miss Mae Shaw is a clog dancer of no mean ability and also sings two songs, which were well received. The pair introduce a number of new jokes.

"For Sweet Charity" is the sketch for the week and Maxwell and Dudley certainly make the most of it. The couple are both pleasing singers and actors. Miss Daisy Dudley, as the Broadway prima donna, portrays the part well, and with Mr. Maxwell as the theatrical manager, the two are inimitable. They sing a number of popular songs and Mr. Maxwell's rendering of "The Village Blacksmith" made a distinct hit. Longfellow's old poem put to music seemed to strike a responsive chord last evening and Mr. Maxwell received an ovation from the audience following the number.

Chief Oskamon is a real Indian; dresses, dances and acts like an Indian, but sings in the American language. He is a fluent speaker and also the possessor of a heavy mellow voice. His songs and jokes were all well received and the closing Indian war dance was the feature of the act. Oskamon is a graduate of Carlisle university and a splendidly built type of the American Indian.

The motion pictures this week show scenes in and about the famous Milan cathedral. The various interior stairways and spires are all shown in the pictures, which are especially interesting ard instructive. The performance will be repeated during the remainder of the week, with a daily matinee.

Albini at Lyceum.

At the Lyceum theater for five days, commencing Wednesday, May 15, with matinees daily, the New York Star Vaudevillians will be seen. Albini, the magician and illusionist, assisted by such well known artists as Miss Bessie Allen, the dancing doll; Jim Derwin, ventriloquist; the famous Onetta; Mlle. De Valance; Tom Brantford, mimic and humorist known as the one man band, and the Avolo Family. This company will play at popular prices.

"Miss Nobody From Starland."

Once more an audience will be given an opportunity to "go behind the scenes" in Mort H. Singer's musical revue, "Miss Nobody From Starland," for that attraction returns to the Lyceum tonight. All the novelties still remain a permanent fixture, including the disembarking from the Lousitania down the gang plank, into the audience, where the passengers rush madly up the aisle bag and baggage, through the main front doors of the theater.

WISCONSIN BARBERS BETTER UNDER LAW.

Madison, Wis., May 13.—The state barber board of examiners has driven the "scum and incompetent" barbers like tramps from the state, in the words of a report filed by Secretary Charles L. Wehrle with Governor McGovern. The secretary claims that there has been a gradual improvement in the service offered patrons of shops, and adds:

"It is remarkable to learn how perfectly the license law builds up young barbers who are still subject to examination."

The number of violations has been gradually decreasing and the fees charged make the board self-supporting.

METHODISTS CHEER CHINA

Adopt Resolution Recognizing New Republic of the Far East.

Also Vote to Adjourn on May 28—Reject School Dance Inquiry.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a demonstration which surpassed any which previously has occurred on the floor of the present general conference, the Methodist Episcopal church today indorsed the new republic of China and ordered that its flag be displayed by the side of that of the United States over the speaker's rostrum. The addresses on the subject of De El Vong, Dray Dui L. and T. W. Ch'en, delegates to the conference from China, were received with round after round of applause.

The subject came up with the presentation of a resolution signed by three Chinese delegates lauding the United States for its attitude toward China and urging that the United States redouble its efforts in favor of international arbitration, in connection with the Chinese situation.

Adopted Unanimously.

Scarcely had the reading of the resolution been completed when the conference was in an uproar, and scores of voices had started the singing of "America." The resolution indorsing the recognition of the Chinese republic was adopted unanimously by a rising vote after nearly half an hour of applause.

Rev. William A. Sunday, evangelist, addressed the conference this afternoon, speaking twice in order to accommodate the large crowds. Mr. Sunday is on his way back from Fargo, N. D., where he has been holding evangelistic services.

Among the things done by the conference today are:

Refused to consider resolution allowing conferences to determine conditions under which expelled members may be reinstated.

Adjourn May 28.

Adopted resolution favoring adjournment of general conference sine die on May 28, 1912.

Referred resolution urging that speedy action be taken by congress on the so-called Works-Jones bill for the amendment of excise laws of the District of Columbia.

Refused to consider resolution presented by C. L. Stafford of Iowa, asking for investigation of charges of card playing and dancing in church schools.

Referred resolution which advocated church's opposition to printing Sunday newspapers.

Higher Criticism Bobs Up.

A short but sharp fight which occurred on the floor with the presentation of a resolution asking the committee on the state of the church to bring in an early report concerning the teachings in the Sunday school literature of the church. This question, it is said, has to do with the "higher criticism" and is expected to cause a hard fight on the floor when presented.

Your Stub-Roo Tonic is worth the price. It is a blood cleaner and a health builder. It made me well when I was in a very bad condition. My lungs were affected and I suffered very much from sharp pains in my breast. My health was very much run down, and I had difficulty in breathing. After using Stub-Roo Tonic for a while my health began to improve, and now I feel well and strong. I used to have frequent sick spells, lasting several days at a time, but have got over them entirely. I have good reason to speak well of Stub-Roo Tonic. It is a good remedy for sick people and will recommend it to any one in poor health.

DAUGHTERS OF THE REVOLUTION MEET

Biennial Election Is Chief Event on Their Program.

Boston, Mass., May 13.—The biennial election of the officers is one of the most important events scheduled for the convention of the general society of the Daughters of the Revolution, which convened here today with delegates in attendance from all parts of the country. The opening session provided for a reception by the Massachussetts society to the officers and guests.

The convention will be in session until Wednesday, when the election of officers takes place. Mrs. Adeline F. Fitz of Wakefield, Mass., will retire as president after two terms. There is a large delegation present from New York in support of Mrs. Clarence L. Bleakley, first vice president general, to the post made vacant by Mrs. Fitz's retirement.

A WORD TO RED-BLOODED AMERICANS!

THAT favorite pastime of eighty million people is to have its inaugural in Duluth tomorrow, and with it comes the dawn of a new league—the Central International. We want to make the day of an epoch making one in Duluth's baseball history.

Although hampered by the red tape which entails an effort to withdraw from one league under the national commission and rejoin another, we have made the best headway possible. And now, on the eve of the opening we can safely promise the fans of Duluth better baseball, better management of games and a general improvement in the conditions surrounding the game locally.

The local association has been incorporated, and the game will be better backed financially than it ever was before. We want to give the public of Duluth the sort of pastime it looks for. We are going to do it. Watch the improvement. Give this rejuvenated sport your hearty support and you'll see Duluth attain its proper place in the baseball world. Don't forget that tomorrow is the big opening day. Winnipeg, Superior and Grand Forks are planning to make their opening date a half holiday event. Can Duluth, the second largest city in the league, afford to be outdistanced in this affair? Make it a holiday feature here! Get in the band wagon now, for you will before the season is over anyway. James Brown's crack Winnipegers will open here. BE OUT EARLY AND WATCH FOR THE BIG STREET PARADE.

Your for good baseball,

DULUTH BASEBALL ASSOCIATION
INCORPORATED.

REID UNABLE TO REMEMBER

Mind Is Perfect Blank on Questions Asked By Dickinson.

Recollection Is Better When Steel Trust Lawyer Questions Him.

New York, May 13.—"Didn't the American Tin Plate company enter into contracts to take the full product of various plants manufacturing tin plate machinery in order to keep it from going into the hands of competitors?" asked Judge Dickinson of Daniel G. Reid today in the hearing in the government suit to dissolve the United States Steel corporation.

"My mind is a perfect blank on that subject," said Mr. Reid.

Judge Dickinson read from the testimony by Mr. Reid before the industrial commission in 1899.

"Does that refresh your recollection?"

"That was twelve or thirteen years ago. I don't remember anything about it."

"Don't you remember a single thing you knew twelve or thirteen years ago?"

"I don't remember anything."

Judge Dickinson asked if the witness knew of anybody who could remember anything about the contracts in question.

"Yes, there's W. T. Graham, right in this city, and president of the American company," said Mr. Reid.

"I Don't Recollect."

Mr. Reid was shown a copy of one of the contracts in question, but failed to remember anything about it.

"Do you remember of any contract that the American Tin Plate company entered into with the Sharon Tin Plate company whereby the American company guaranteed to take the Sharon's output for five years?" asked Judge Dickinson.

"I don't recollect," said the witness.

On cross-examination the financier's memory seemed to improve and he gave lengthy answers to questions by C. W. Severance, attorney for the defense, in regard to early conditions in the history of the tin plate industry.

"Was it your intention when you organized the American Tin Plate company to monopolize the industry?" asked Mr. Severance.

Reason for Combination.

"We figured that by combination we could buy supplies cheaper, reduce overhead charges and make the business more profitable. We didn't intend to monopolize. There were a number of mills not taken in and at the present time there are nearly as many tin mills not under the control of the Steel corporation as there are controlled by it."

The witness then produced a statement which, he said, showed that the Steel corporation controlled 235 mills with an annual capacity of 842,300 tons or 53.7 per cent of the country's entire capacity. This compared, he said, with 202 independent mills with a capacity of 727,000 tons, or 46.3 per cent.

ROOSEVELT SUPPORTERS IN COMPLETE CONTROL OF THE COUNTY CONVENTION

shortly after 1 o'clock by Dr. S. H. Boyer, chairman of the county committee.

Joseph Austin of Chisholm was nominated for temporary chairman by John Saari, and no other nomination was made. Mr. Austin was unanimously elected. He was given an enthusiastic reception as he took the chair.

Alfred Swanson of Duluth was unanimously elected temporary secretary.

The chairman was authorized to appoint a committee of five on permanent organization and credentials. Mr. Austin appointed C. E. Evans of Duluth, Prof. Morse of Buhl, Dr. S. H. Boye of Duluth, R. C. Pickering of Virginia and D. E. Stevens of Duluth.

H. C. Kendall of Pike Lake moved the appointment of a committee on resolutions, but the chair refused to entertain the motion prior to the permanent organization. Mr. Kendall then endeavored to have the credential committee dispensed with, but on account of a contest from Hibbing to be decided, the motion was not put.

While the committee on permanent organization and credentials was in session, W. E. Culkin spoke to the delegates. His references to Theodore Roosevelt were received with enthusiastic applause.

Mr. Culkin's talk was a denunciation of "sub-cellar bossism" and an appeal for leadership based on the votes and consent of the people.

J. B. Cotton Speaks.

J. B. Cotton, one of the few "uninstructed" delegates in the convention, was called upon and greeted with applause. Mr. Cotton admitted that this is Roosevelt's day and hour in Minnesota. Mr. Cotton referred to his speech seconding Roosevelt's nomination in 1904, and said he hasn't taken anything back. His reference to Taft got only applause from the few "uninstructed" delegates. He declared Taft is entitled, in his opinion, to a renomination and a re-election. Mr. Cotton's was characteristic speech, based on the tariff, national expenditures and universal peace. He declared in closing that if Roosevelt is nominated, all will have to unite against the common enemy. He made a plea for credit for Taft's administration in the resolutions. He pleaded also for a denunciation of heavy national expenditures.

No Contests.

No contests were made before the committee on credentials, and all delegates were seated.

The committee also recommended that the temporary organization be made permanent and the action was taken.

The chairman was instructed to appoint a committee of five on resolutions. Frank E. Randall of Duluth, John Stokke of Floodwood, Hans B. Haroldson of Duluth, Peter Cosgrove of Eveleth and Peter Olson of Duluth were appointed.

The chair was also instructed to appoint a committee of five to name delegates to the state and district conventions. John Saari of Duluth, W. G. Campbell, B. Christenson, A. K. Squiers, of Duluth and E. A. Koen of Aurora were named on the committee.

H. C. Kendall was called upon to speak. He said he represents a district where there isn't a Roosevelt man, so far as he knows.

Until a few years ago Mr. Kendall was a prominent figure in St. Louis county conventions and at one time was indorsed for congressman, [illegible]

The Resolution.

Resolutions were presented, pledging the loyalty of the convention to the Republican party, indorsing Roosevelt's principles and instructing the delegates to the district and state conventions to vote for delegates to the national convention, pledged to vote for Roosevelt for the presidential nomination and for a platform in accordance with his principles. The resolutions also instructed the delegates to the state convention to vote for O. J. Larson for delegate-at-large and the delegates to the district convention to vote for W. A. Eaton for district delegate.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted.

The delegations chosen for the state and district conventions were identical. The state delegation will be headed by W. E. Culkin as chairman, and John Saari will act as chairman of the district delegation. The complete list of delegates follows:

W. E. Culkin, John Saari, S. H. Boyer, John Stokke of Floodwood, Hans B. Haroldson, Peter Cosgrove of Eveleth, C. E. Adams, Dr. H. R. Werick of Hibbing, D. E. Stevens, F. B. Myers of Biwabick, Victor Power of Hibbing, Peter Olson, Joseph Austin of Chisholm, O. J. Larson, Dr. W. H. Magie, Mark Elliott of Virginia, J. A. Hanks, James Arneson of Chisholm, George L. Brosich of Ely, Charles J. Kaupp, James P. Boyle of Eveleth, Alfred Staff of Virginia, W. A. Eaton, David Frankfort, Neil McInnis of Eveleth, V. A. Dash, Dr. J. A. McCuen, A. P. Silliman of Hibbing, John Pasich, D. T. Collins of Hibbing, R. E. Patterson, William Anderson, A. K. Squiers, Andrew Hawkinson of Virginia, J. S. Saari of Eveleth, H. H. Peyton, Jr., of Proctor, Edward Coombs, I. Jensen, J. A. Connelly.

CLOSE FRIEND OF OROZCO STABBED

Gonzalo C. Enrile, Financial Agent of Revolution, Is Wounded.

Chihuahua, May 13.—Gonzalo C. Enrile, admittedly the financial agent of the Mexican politicians behind the present revolution, and close friend of Gen. Orozco, was stabbed twice early today. Hospital physicians say he will recover. The assailants fled, believing Enrile dead.

Denies Firing at Boundary.

El Paso, Tex., May 13.—Col. E. Z. Steever, in command of the American troops along the border, declared today that no report had reached him of any firing from the Mexican side Saturday night into American troops. A report was in circulation today that privates of the Eighteenth infantry were fired upon in their tents along the boundary line, and that the Americans raised their hats on bayonets to draw more fire.

COPPERS STEADY; METAL HIGHER

Red Metal Shares Slow to Respond to Bullish News From London.

Although copper took quite a bulge on the London market today, the copper stock market on this side of the water was slow to respond, and the close did not show any material change from the general closing level of Saturday. Calumet & Arizona and Greene Cananea closed slightly higher and Shattuck and Amalgamated lost a little. The London market closed today with spot £1 18s 3d higher and futures £1 17s 3d higher than the closing figures of Saturday. There was little change in the general stock market of New York and that list did not have any appreciable effect on the coppers, either bullish or bearish.

Paine, Webber & Co. today received the following closing copper letter from Foster at Boston: "The sharp advance of over £1 in the London price for copper helped the local list at the opening this morning but the heavy selling of Old Colony and Mayflower soon checked the bullish enthusiasm and only the high priced stocks maintained their strength for the day. Copper Range was gradually accumulated all day and closed at the top. Calumet & Arizona, North Butte, Osceola and Quincy were also notably strong. Granby, Lake and Hancock sagged fractionally. We believe in the future of the market and look for higher prices all around the list."

Gay & Sturgis today received from R. L. Hall at Boston the following closing letter: "The general market acted very well and showed considerable strength in the better class stocks. It was a disappointment that the coppers did not respond to the strength in the metal market. Locally Old Colony and Mayflower were the features and were heavy, not on any news from the mines, but rather lack of news. Stop orders were uncovered and buying orders were few. The general copper list was quiet with no decided trend. We feel that the better class coppers should do better and believe they will tomorrow."

KILLED SWORDFISH WITH RIFLE.

Boston Transcript: When Capt. Enos Nickerson of the fishing schooner Ponkne arrived at T wharf this morning he proudly exhibited a 450-pound swordfish which was pierced behind the left gill with a rifle bullet.

Capt. Nickerson was fishing in the South channel Tuesday and upon seeing a good sized swordfish he determined to substitute the rifle for a lily iron. One bullet performed the deed and the prized fish rolled over with a great flapping of its tail and was easily hauled on deck. This is the first time that a swordfish has been known to have been caught in this manner.

WILSON MADE A PERFECT SCORE

C. W. Wilson, second assistant chief of the fire department, made a perfect score at the shoot held by the Duluth Central Gun club at its grounds on Park Point yesterday afternoon. He broke fifty birds without a miss, winning the Dupona trophy, a handsome solid silver watch fob.

The shoot was a decided success from all standpoints, and will be followed by others throughout the season. Next Sunday the club will shoot for a mackinaw hunting jacket. June 1 will mark the beginning of a series of ten shoots to be held that month and July. The prize will be a valuable Parker 20-gauge shot gun.

Other scores made yesterday were: Ziegler, 47; Brooks, 47; Webb, 45; Abbett, 43; Berry, 42; Max, 42; Brand, 42; Higgins, 42; Jones, 40; Keehn, 40; Klock, 38; Brown, 38; Harris, 36, and Hanson, 36.

VERDICT FOR THE RAILROAD

The jury which tried the White Iron Lake fire case in district court last week, by a sealed verdict opened in court before Judge Ensign this morning, found for the defendant, the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company.

The plaintiff was Jacob Rajala, who sued for $8,200 damages because of a fire which had swept over his farm, which adjoins the right-of-way of the railroad. Rajala claimed that the fire originated on the railroad property and spread to his farm.

Baldwin & Baldwin defended the case and J. De La Motte was attorney for the plaintiff. The case was one which required five days to try. It is hardly possible that any of the other White Iron Lake fire cases now pending, and which involve similar circumstances, will be disposed of at this term of court.

Three which were noticed for trial at this term were either continued or stricken today. They were actions in which the Iron Range railroad is defendant and Joe Jaworski, A. R. Koski and Victor Stromberg are plaintiffs.

Gainesville, Fla., May 13.—Marshal C. H. Slaughter and Deputy Sheriff Charles A. White of Archer, Fla., were decoyed to a lonely spot near there at 3 o'clock Sunday morning and assassinated by negroes. J. A. Manning, another deputy, feigned death, and escaped after being wounded. He shot Cain Perry, one of the murderers, capturing him and his three sons, who are now in jail.

Ben Stokes, a notorious "blind tiger" operator, was shot and killed by Slaughter several months ago. Slaughter, it was declared, was forced to shoot in self defense.

BEAVERS ATTRACT ATTTENTION.

Portland Oregonian: Tourists in the Yellowstone national park have shown so much interest in the beavers that inhabit the streams that the department of the interior is considering the advisability of placing colonies of the animals in some of the other national parks.

The beaver has been one of the most potent factors in the exploration of the Rocky mountain region, because the early trappers were generally searching for beaver when they first penetrated the fastnesses of the mountains. The zigzag dams constructed by these busy animals are familiar sights in Yellowstone national park. The beaver seems to be particularly adapted to the Platte, the Yosemite and Mount Ranier national parks.

Women Favor Parted Locks—Puffs, Pompadours, Coronet Braids Going Out.

The present fashion of wearing the hair softly parted, without puffs and braids, demands a naturally fine head of hair, and women with thin, faded hair are at their wits' end to know how to make it look well. The first step toward this end is to keep hair and scalp in a healthy condition by the systematic use of a stimulating tonic.

HAY'S HAIR HEALTH contains the ingredients needed to destroy dandruff germs and encourage rapid growth of strong, new hair. Those hopelessly dry, faded looking locks grow soft, lustrous and youthful and the whole appearance is improved. You can get it at W. A. WEATHER IS BEARISH

Atmospheric Conditions Favor Growing Wheat and Bear Markets.

Good Flaxseed Scarce and in Demand—Prices Go Still Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 13.—Although a large decrease in the American visible supply of wheat and a considerable falling off of American primary receipts, compared with what they were a year ago, would seem to be pretty strong bullish factors on the wheat market, that great American staple took a drop on the North American markets this morning, on account of reports of good growing weather. Duluth May wheat closed at a decline of ⅝c and July 1¼c to 1¾c lower. Cash wheat closed half a cent over July. Durum and rye were unchanged. Oats were ⅞c off and barley unchanged to 5 cents off. Duluth May flax closed 2½c higher and July 1c higher.

Good weather conditions over the greater part of this country and Canada had the effect of pulling down wheat on the markets of North America this morning. There was some complaint of dry weather in Western Kansas, but in general the reports were very favorable. The weather is the main factor on the wheat market just now, and although the primary wheat receipts of the United States today showed quite a falling off in comparison with those of a year ago, the movements of the markets were mostly bearish. A large decrease in the American visible wheat supply since a week ago, over 3,500,000 bu, could be a bullish factor, but today it seemed to be overshadowed by the general feeling that the wheat was growing nicely in the winter wheat regions, and all signs pointed to a successful season in the spring wheat territory.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.17¾@1.17⅞ asked, opened today at $1.17⅝ bid and at noon was selling for $1.16⅝@1.16¾. There were lower quotations also from Chicago, Minneapolis and Liverpool.

Wheat on the Liverpool market closed unchanged to ¼d lower. It was higher earlier in the day by reason of a good continental demand and reports of unfavorable weather in Russia. The report of a prospective release of the vast amount of grain accumulated at the Dardenelles, however, had the effect of bearing the market.

Flaxseed Goes Higher.

There was quite an upward movement of flaxseed on the Duluth market this morning by reason of the fact that although receipts were fairly heavy, there being 26 cars on the track for inspection, the quality is so poor that high flaxseed continues scarce, and there is quite a demand for that. Minneapolis today was bidding 3c to 4c under the Duluth price for cash flax. Duluth May flaxseed at noon today was 2c higher, at $2.26 and July was 1¾c higher, at $2.17¾. Winnipeg at noon today was ½c up, at $1.98. Buenos Ayres May closed Saturday 1⅝c up, at $1.79⅞, but opened today 1c lower. London Calcutta May and June closed today at $2.29⅞, being 1⅜c lower.

ceipts of flaxseed on the Duluth market have continued to increase. At the same time the grading has been so poor that the usual downward price movement has not resulted from the increase in receipts and offers.

Winnipeg and Duluth.

The relative price of flaxseed on the Duluth and Winnipeg markets just now is such as to make the casual observer wonder why Canadian flaxseed is not brought to Duluth to be sold, instead of being disposed of on the Winnipeg market. The railroad rates are just what they have been for months. It is as cheap to ship a carload of flaxseed from Saskatchewan to Duluth as to Port Arthur and Fort William, the usual destination of such flaxseed as is traded on the Winnipeg market. At the same time, should any Canadian flaxseed, or other grain, is being billed for Duluth now. It is going to the canadian Head of the Lakes.

No. 1 American flaxseed on the Duluth market Saturday closed at $2.24, No. 1 Manitoba flaxseed, as good if not better, closed on the Winnipeg market about 28c cheaper. The duty is only 25c. There is a 7-cent rebate for the export of the seed. Even if it is assumed that only crushers can take advantage of that rebate, and crushers prefer to buy on the Winnipeg market while holding up the price at Duluth, there is still an advantage of 3c, according to quotations as they appear, for the Canadian shipper who offers his flax at Duluth instead of Winnipeg. What, then, keeps the Canadian flax seed away from Duluth? It is said that the Canadians, both farmers and grain dealers, have a feeling against sending it either to Duluth or Minneapolis. At all events, little, if any, is being billed for Duluth from Western Canada. In fact, the billing of any grain from Canada to Duluth has almost, if not entirely, stopped. What has been arriving was billed some time ago. Shipments of Canadian grain to Duluth stopped as soon as conditions were such that the Canadians could manage to send their grain to their own Head of the Lakes.

Notwithstanding the sentiment that Canadians have of giving the benefit of Canadian business as far as possible to Canadians, it seems reasonable to suppose that a movement of Canadian flaxseed to Duluth will be started, if the margin of prices grows much larger between Duluth and Winnipeg.

The present rate on flaxseed will remain in vogue until May 31st, when the old rate will be restored. The difference between this and the present rate varies, but there will be an increase of 5½c to 11c per bushel for shipments of flaxseed to Duluth from various points in Saskatchewan. Port Arthur and Fort William, which now have no advantage of rates over Duluth in this respect, will then have an advantage of 5½c to 11c. At that time, if other factors are approximately the same, it need cause no surprise to see the price of flaxseed on the Duluth market go still higher, for the menace of Winnipeg competition will be lessened to the extent of 5½c to 11c a bushel. American crushers may then play their game of boosting flaxseed on the Duluth market as a basis on which to charge a high price for oil, to a greater extent than they have done at any time during the present season.

Exports of flaxseed from Argentina to the United States have fallen away almost to nothing. This movement during the first four months of the year amounted only to 737,000 bu against 3,337,000 bu for the corresponding period of 1911. During the last week in April no Argentine flaxseed was sent to the United States.

The exports of flaxseed from India to the United States are also far behind what they were last year. Indian seed exported to the United States during the first four months of this year amount only to 46,000 bu. During the last week in April 8,000 bu were so exported.

MARKET GOSSIP

Charles T. Nolan, manager of the flaxseed department of the National Lead Company of New York, who was a visitor on the Duluth Board of Trade this morning expressed the opinion that the world was bound to see high-priced flaxseed during the next twelve months.

"I do not mean," said Mr. Nolan, 'that the price is always going to be as high as it is now during the coming year, but it will be high. It has been so high that some people seem to have forgotten the time when it sold at $1.25 a bu and less. But during the next twelve months, I do not think it will go below $1.75 a bu if it gets as low as that. There is but one factor that can affect the flaxseed market materially during that time, as far as I can see now, and that is this year's North American crop. Suppose this continent raises 35,000,000 bu this year. I do not expect to see any such harvest, but it may come. If there should be any great pressure on the North American markets, Europe would readily relieve that pressure.

"Argentine flaxseed is very poor. We have been buying some Indian seed, but not a great deal. The shipment of Indian seed has been greatly handicapped by want of adequate shipping facilities. Boats that would bring flaxseed from India to Europe and to other markets under ordinary conditions have been carrying coal to various markets that are extraordinarily supplied from British mines. Thus the great coal strike of Great Britain sadly delayed the shipment of Indian flax by making the shipment of Indian coal an urgent necessity. Moreover, there has been a great demand in Europe for stock feed from India. This is very unusual. This has also employed ships that would otherwise be carrying flaxseed. But, in the near future, look to see a pretty good movement of Indian flaxseed."

"Nebraska City, Neb.—There is plenty of rain. Corn-planting is nearly completed. Oats and wheat are doing well."

"Glendale, Iowa—Corn-planting has begun but the heavy rains that fell yesterday will stop all work for some time."

"Carmel, Ind.—A big rain fell yesterday and all work is at a stand-still again. Very little can be planted. Most of the wheat land was sown to oats."

Rycroft wired from Chicago: "The long range forecast is for cold and probably frosty weather this week in the corn belt, followed by more rain at the close. Cold weather will not help germinate the corn already planted, and with the land now too wet to plow, a promise of more rain is very serious. It is now the middle of May and not only is there practically no corn planted, but plowing for corn is only well begun."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Free Offerings on Better Crop Outlook Make Wheat Sag.

Chicago, May 13.—Improved outlook for crops, especially in Kansas, brought about free offerings today in the wheat pit, and made the market sag. It was stated that fields which a fortnight ago were bare showed wheat now two inches high with a good stand. In addition, world shipments were generous and Liverpool reported that the only sustaining influence was unfavorable weather in Russia. Opening prices were ¼@⅝c lower to ⅝@¾c, the latter for May. July started at $1.13½ to $1.13⅝, varying from ¼@⅝c off to a shade advance, and declined to $1.13⅛@1.13¼.

Subsequently, a rally took place in consequence of a big falling off in the United States visible supply but the bullish effect disappeared on account of the expected opening of the Dardanelles. Closing prices were weak with July at $1.12⅝, a loss of 1⅜@1¼c net.

Although poor prospects of much planting this week gave corn a little strength at the outset the market soon turned easy with wheat. There was no great selling pressure, however. July opened unchanged to ¼c higher at 77¾c to 78c and receded to 77½c.

A further decline ensued as a result of realizing by longs. The close was weak at 76⅞c for July, a net loss of ⅞c.

In the oats trade, no demand of consequence developed until prices underwent a material setback. July started the same as Saturday night to ⅛c up at 53⅞c to 54c and slid down to 52⅜c.

Covering by shorts rallied provisions. Commission houses were fair buyers. Initial transactions ranged from 7½ lower to 7½c advance, with September delivery $19.25 for pork, $10.85 to $10.87½ for lard and $10.42½ to $10.50 for ribs.

ADVANCES IN COALERS

Lehigh Valley and Reading Again Features of Stock Market.

Canadian Pacific and Union Pacific Also Share in the Rise.

New York, May 13.—Buying of Lehigh Valley shares was again the prominent feature at the opening of today's stock market. The stock advanced 1½ points at the outset and soon increased its gain to 2. Reading also advanced a full point in the early trading, with a similar gain for Canadian Pacific. Other railway shares and some industrials participated in the advance, which was not general, however, United States Steel and some of the trunk line roads displaying slight heaviness.

The one-sided and irregular character of the market continued during the first hour, Lehigh Valley gaining 3⅝ points and Reading 1¼, while United States Steel, Union Pacific, Atchison and other standard shares were comparatively heavy.

Large blocks of United States Steel were sold, lowering it a point to 68¾. In the lesser issues the movement was made up of slight gains and losses with indications of realizing.

The movement in the coalers slackened in the second hour, fears of a possible adverse decision by the supreme court which reconvened today, and the dissolution of United States Steel and Union Pacific militating against further activity.

It was also believed the rise in Lehigh Valley and Reading was serving some purpose, possibly profit-taking in inter-related stocks. The bull faction in Lehigh Valley circulated reports dealing with a recent survey of that property which is supposed to have revealed valuable assets hitherto unknown.

Aside from some recoveries in Illinois Central, other stocks in a southern tier failed to profit by the rise in Southern railway preferred. United States Steel and other metals reflected selling pressure throughout the morning and prices in other departments of the list threw little light on the situation, except to show its speculative and professional origin. By noon business had dwindled to minor proportions. Bonds steady.

Trading was very dull in the latter part of the afternoon and about the only feature of interest was a further rise in Canadian Pacific and Lehigh Valley, the latter touched $178¾.

The market closed heavy. Announcement that the supreme court had adjourned for a fortnight, without taking action in the coal trust cases, had no material effect on Lehigh Valley and Reading, but the list acquired more steadiness on the greater strength of Union Pacific.

In the minor railway shares weakness in Denver & Rio Grande common and preferred lacked explanation. The rise in Union Pacific failed to hold and was followed by selling of Reading, United States Steel, Lehigh Valley and other standard shares. The early rise in Reading was wholly lost with many recessions elsewhere.

SIX MEN ENTOMBED IN CAVE-IN IN MINE AT IRONWOOD, MICH.

SEVEN SAID TO BE DEAD

Miners Imprisoned 2,000 Feet Underground Talk Through Tubing.

All But Thirteen Escape From Norrie Workings When Timbers Crack.

Two Bodies Recovered and Rescuers Are Digging Into Filled Drift.

According to private dispatches received by local officers of the Oliver Iron Mining company, six men are alive in the workings of the Norrie mine at Ironwood, Mich., where a cave-in occurred last night on the 2,000-foot level. The dispatches said that rescuers had driven a pipe through the fallen earth to where the miners are imprisoned and that six of the men had talked through it. The names of the six living were not given in the message.

Thirteen Reported Dead.

Ironwood, Mich., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thirteen men were killed in a cave-in at the Norrie mine here at 11:30 o'clock last night.

TAFT MEN CLAIM TENNESSEE VOTES

Roosevelt Faction Promises Fight in State Convention.

Nashville, Tenn., May 14.—The Taft faction of Tennessee Republicans claimed they would control the state convention, prior to its organization today. They appeared to have at least a tactical advantage, in that one of their number, Foster V. Brown, former attorney general of Porto Rico, had been chosen for temporary chairman.

While the state committee continued its work of deciding between contesting delegations this morning, the Roosevelt workers had a meeting and planned a program of action. They claimed they would carry their fight for the seating of their delegates to the convention floor.

The selection of the four delegates from the state at large will complete Tennessee's delegation of twenty-four to the national convention.

NEVADA DEMOCRATS HOLD THEIR PRIMARY.

Reno, Nev., May 14.—In the Democratic primaries being held throughout Nevada today to elect delegates to the state convention at Fallon on June 3, rivalry is largely between the adherents of Speaker Clark and Governor Wilson. Provision has been made for an informal expression of preference for presidential nomination on the primary ballot.

COAL MINERS ARE HOPEFUL

Expect Wilkesbarre Meeting to Ratify New Wage Agreement.

Warm Debate Likely to Precede Action By Convention.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 14.—The convention of anthracite miners, called to consider the proposed new wage arrangement agreed upon in New York early this month, was in session for less than an hour this morning and took a recess.

There appeared to be a strong feeling among the men that the convention will take such action as will speedily end the suspension of mining in force for more than six weeks. The majority of the national and district leaders are in favor of ratifying the agreement, but most of the district board members are opposed to it.

National President White was chosen president of the convention. The 500 delegates gave Mr White a warm welcome. He complimented the anthracite mine workers for the peace-

State Treasurer Urges State Should Dispose of the Virginia Bonds.

Money Should Be Loaned to Promote Development of Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state board of investment held a meeting this afternoon to consider the recommendation of State Treasurer Walter J. Smith that the Virginia bonds held by the state be sold and the proceeds loaned to the counties, school districts and villages to develop Minnesota. What action the board will take is problematical as it requires a unanimous vote of the board to order the sale of the Virginia bonds, and State Auditor Iverson has heretofore been opposed to their sale.

In support of his contention that the bonds should be sold, State Treasurer Smith presented the following statement:

The present invested balance in the state's permanent funds is $19,044,554.86. Of this amount $7,169,000.00 is invested in the bonds of Alabama, Virginia, Massachusetts, Tennessee, Delaware, Utah and Louisiana.

The money borrowed by the coun-

MINNESOTA IS SOLID FOR TEDDY

Complete Returns Give Him Every Delegate to Chicago Convention.

St. Paul, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Minnesota's twenty-four delegates to the national Republican convention will go to Chicago instructed solidly for Theodore Roosevelt. Complete returns today from yesterday's county conventons settle this fact, and with the election of the six delegates at large at the state convention at Minneapolis Thursday, the personnel of the delegation will be complete.

Former Congressman Tawney, whose home county, Winona, went for Taft, has declined the distinction of becoming a delegate. Roosevelt majorities in the other counties of his district nullified the Taft majority in Winona, and Tawney refused to accept a place on ether the state or national delegation.

Hope of the La Follette forces that the Wisconsin man would carry the Ninth district was wrecked when Polk county went to the colonel, turning the tide in the district.

The delegates to the state convention will be divided thus: Roosevelt, 876; Taft, 75; La Follette, 164.

PLAN TO CARE FOR THE POOR

Methodists May Admit Them to Hospitals as Church's "Guests."

Committee Votes in Favor of Keeping Ban on Amusements.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the poor should be admitted to the hospitals of the Methodist Episcopal church when recommended by their pastors under proper rules and regulations, not as charity patients, but as guests of the church, is embodied in the report of the committee on temporal economy to be made to the general conference in session here.

The committee also advocates caring for the spiritual welfare of patients, nurses and employes of all church hospitals by the employment of a pastor, deaconess or other Christian worker.

Included in the report also is a recommendation that each conference in the United States, become the patron of at least one hospital, and that no hospital hereafter be established without the approval of the conference in whose bounds it is located.

Problem Over Periodicals.

That there is a great problem before the church book committee with respect to a number of the church's periodicals, which are said to be losing money for the church, is indicated in the report. The committee advocates that a tone be created in the

BEN SELLING.

Salem, Or., May 14.—Ben Selling is the man who beat Jonathan Bourne for the United States senatorship from Oregon. In the recent primaries Mr. Selling was chosen the candidate of the Republicans, which no doubt means that March 4, 1913, he will take his seat in the United States senate. Mr. Selling is a business man of Portland.

ROOSEVELT AND BOSSES

Washington Regards the Colonel's Latest Utterance With Amusement.

Yet Attacks on Taft Alliance With Bosses Are Justified.

(By Willis J. Abbot.)

Washington, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)— Mr. Roosevelt's latest utterance concerning "bosses" has lead to rather more amusement than confidence in Washington. "I alone," he says, "can win." He only can overthrow the bosses. A vote for Taft, he informs a public panting for accurate news, is a vote for the boss rule.

It is fair and just to say Col. Roosevelt, the biggest and most arbitrary political boss in the United States today, is not wholly unjustified in his attacks on the Taft alliance with the bosses. Senator Penrose was with Taft until the disastrous defeat in Pennsylvania. Incidentally the same Penrose was with Roosevelt in 1904. Senator Lorimer thrust himself upon Taft in Illinois, but eight years ago Cullom, Hopkins and the rest of the Illinois bosses were eager for Roosevelt.

Some men should understand that in politics, as in business, the boss is essential. There is not a commercial,

WILL HURRY TARIFF JOB

Senate Proposes to Dispose of All Bills at This Session.

Progressive Republicans Are Expected to Dictate Action Taken.

Washington, May 14.—All of the tariff bills that have passed the house will be disposed of by the senate before the end of this session, and possibly without interfering with plans for early adjournment, according to Senator Simmons, in charge of these measures in the senate.

"When the agricultural bill is disposed of we will take up the metal bill again," said Senator Simmons today, "and after a few more speeches we will fix a day for a vote. Naturally appropriation bills are given preference when they come up, in order to permit the conference committees to get to work on them as soon as possible; but it is not intended that they shall long prevent consideration of the tariff measures."

The senator said the chemical bill would follow the metal bill and after that would come the wool bill. He thought the debate on these measures would not be so extended as that on the metal bill.

The general understanding is that the Progessive Republicans will dictate the tariff course of the senate. The Democrats are expected to go on record for their own bills and then accept the Progressive Republican measures with such modifications as they can secure.

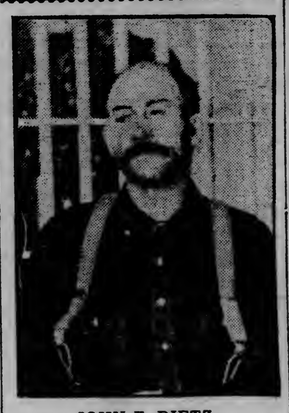
JOHN F. DIETZ MUST SPEND REMAINDER OF HIS LIFE IN PRISON

NO MERCY SHOWN TO CAMERON DAM OUTLAW



JOHN F. DIETZ,
Whose Life Sentence for the Killing of Deputy Oscar Harp Is Affirmed by the Wisconsin Supreme Court.

Wisconsin Supreme Court Refuses to Grant Him New Trial.

Holds That His Guilt Is Plainly Shown By the Evidence.

"He Who Sows the Wind Must Be Content to Reap Whirlwind."

Madison, Wis., May 14.—John F. Dietz of Cameron Dam fame, who last fall was sentenced to life imprisonment on the charge of murdering Oscar Harp, deputy sheriff, during the siege of the Dietz homestead, must remain in prison, according to a ruling of the supreme court of Wisconsin today, which refused to reverse the judgment of conviction.

In concluding the decision upon the Dietz case, the supreme court says:

"As a result of the defendant's defiance of law, Oscar Harp, who was innocent of wrong, went to his death without warning. After a patient and fair trial, the defendant has been found guilty of that death, upon ample evidence.

"Pity the defendant as we may, we have no choice of course on this record. It is as true now as it was in the days of the Hebrew prophets that he who sows the wind must needs be content if he be compelled to reap the inevitable whirlwind."

G. O. P. SPLIT IN MARYLAND

Taft and Roosevelt Leaders Make Agreement as to Delegation.

Half of Them May Desert Colonel After the First Ballot.

Baltimore, Md., May 14.—The Maryland Republican state convention here today faced the task of reconciling the apparently contradictory results of last week's primaries. Although 66, a bare majority of the 129 delegates, were bound by the popular preference to vote for delegates to the national convention who should favor the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt, a still larger majority of these state delegates, estimated by the Taft men as 78, were Taft sympathizers, and numerically these were able to control the convention.

Agree to Split.

With a situation like this confronting them, the leaders of the two camps of delegates conferred until early this morning and reached a tentative agreement that eight of the sixteen national delegates should be named by the Roosevelt men and eight by the supporters of President Taft.

The Taft men have not tried to avoid the binding provision of the primary law, which declares that all these sixteen delegates shall vote at the national convention in favor of the candidate who won the Maryland preference primary (Roosevelt) as long as "in their conscientious judgment" they believe he can be nominated. Some of the law's interpreters contend that this binds the delegates only for the first ballot.

Goldsborough for One.

The Taft men expected to name two of the four delegates-at-large and chose Governor Goldsborough and William T. Warburton. The Roosevelt delegates selected Cole C. Carrington, chairman of the Maryland Roosevelt committee, and the fourth member of the delegation-at-large, it is agreed, will be a Roosevelt man from the western part of the state.

The convention was scheduled to meet this afternoon and expectation was that it would finish its business before nightfall.

ROOSEVELT MEN LEAD IN KANSAS THIRD DISTRICT.

Independence, Kan., May 14.—Controlled overwhelmingly by supporters of Col. Roosevelt, the Third district Republican congressional convention will meet here today to name two delegates to the Republican national convention. William Allen White of Emporia, whose election already is assured, will be indorsed for national committeeman.

It was said the several Progressives who have announced themselves as candidates for the seat in congress now held by P. P. Campbell planned to decide upon one of their number to make the race against Campbell, who is a so-called "standpatter."

HOLD PRIMARY IN CALIFORNIA

Women Vote With Men on Choice for Presidential Nominees.

San Francisco, Cal., May 14.—Women of California were given their first opportunity today to express their choice for a presidential nomination. As a consequence, the presidential primary vote promised, at the opening of the polls, to be the heaviest the state has known.

The campaign which closed last night with the Roosevelt and La Follette forces making a final effort to swing San Francisco's vote, was bitterly contested. Senator La Follette, aided by his wife and others, toured the state, charging that Col. Roosevelt had failed to give him a "square deal." Taft speakers hurled the same charge against Roosevelt.

Close on the heels of La Follette followed Governor Hiram Johnson, exerting his influence in behalf of Roosevelt. He was aided by Former Senator Beveridge of Indiana, and Gifford Pinchot.

Only One Taft Speaker.

Former Representative Ralph D. Cole of Ohio was the only speaker imported to aid the president, but numerous California political leaders spoke for Taft, and Secretary of State Knox took advantage of his visit here last week to deliver a speech at Los Angeles in behalf of his chief.

The Republican campaign proved of such interest that the efforts made in behalf of the Democratic candidates did not figure conspicuously. The contest was between Champ Clark and Woodrow Wilson almost exclsivuely, no other candidate making an organized fight for the California preference.

Campaign managers of every candidate claim the contest.

CALLS BRYAN "RECEPTIVE"

Iowa Supporters of Nebraskan Call for Mass Meeting.

Claim He Is the One Man Who Can Beat Roosevelt.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 14.—Declaring that Col. Roosevelt has "stolen political old clothes which William J. Bryan has used for years, and disguised in these seems likely to stampede his party," the Iowa Bryan league today issued a call for a mass meeting of Bryan Democrats to be held in Burlington tomorrow, the day before the state Democratic convention.

The call for the meeting reads in part:

"The standpatters say: 'Nominate Bryan and we will vote for him,' while the Harmon supporters concede the necessity of running the Nebraskan against Roosevelt if the party would win.

"Willing and Anxious."

"Bryan is the one man who has been strengthened by defeat and if given a chance will poll from 500,000 to 1,000,000 more votes than any other presidential nominee. He is willing and anxious to accept the nomination if it is offered him under the right conditions," concludes the call.

DATE IS SET FOR DINNER

Banquet for President Pennington Will Be Held June 5.

President Edmund Pennington and other officials of the Soo line will be the guests of the city of Duluth and the combined commercial and industries bodies of the city at a banquet at the Spalding on the evening of Monday, June 3.

Mr. Pennington's acceptance of the joint invitation was received today by W. A. McGonagle, chairman of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club.

Ever since the Soo line entered Duluth, the business men of the city have been anxious to entertain President Pennington and the other officials as a testimonial of the city's appreciation of the new line, which has opened to Duluth a great trade territory which was inaccessible before the line was completed.

Last fall the Commercial club extended an invitation to Mr. Pennington and he accepted, but the date of his visit was uncertain. He was unable to come to the city during the winter and only recently was the setting of a definite date possible. The invitation was then renewed as a joint invitation by Mayor McCuen, the city council, the Commercial club, the Greater Duluth club, the Board of Trade, the wholesale houses, the manufacturing interests and the Commercial clubs of the West end, West Duluth and New Duluth.

Arrangements will be made for about 500 people at the Spalding and the tickets will be distributed among the organizations interested. It is expected that every place will be filled on the evening of the banquet.

MEN'S DISEASES

As medical science advances the more apparent becomes the folly of employing harsh and dangerous measures in attempting to cure the ailments of men. Drastic dosing and useless cutting have done irreparable injury in thousands of cases. We cure all special diseases of men promptly and permanently, and by painless methods that cannot possibly produce undesirable results.

OUR TREATMENT

Functional derangement is not a disease. To stimulate activity by the use of powerful tonics is an easy matter, but such results are merely temporary drug effects. Most doctors treat in this manner, because they do not know how to cure the real cause of the derangement. We are the only physicians employing scientific and successful methods. We use no tonics at all. Our treatment is a local one entirely and corrects every normal condition of that vital center. Our cures are real cures and are permanent.

Twenty years of successful practice as specialists in Men's Diseases justifies every claim we make. We promise our patients a complete cure in every instance, and in cases where we cannot safely make the promise, we positively refused to treat. All cures are guaranteed.

DEPENDABLE TREATMENT.
Our treatment is absolutely painless, and perfect results can be depended upon in every instance. We do no cutting or dilating whatever, we dissolve the disease.

Not one of our patients has ever had a relapse after being discharged as cured, and we cure in less time than the ordinary forms of treatment require, because men are the only ones we treat.

RHEUMATISM.
It is caused either by chronic uncured troubles or by uric acid in the blood. We dissolve these poisons and thereby cure the patient absolutely.

BLOOD POISON.
No dangerous minerals to drive the virus to the interior, but harmless blood cleansing remedies that remove the last poisonous taint, and clean out and clear up the system.

VARICOSE VEINS.
Absolutely painless treatment that cures completely. Investigate our method. It is the only thoroughly scientific treatment for this disease being employed.

STOMACH TROUBLES
have the least attention from patient and doctor. Last week a man came in our office who thought he had a little Dyspepsia, and it proved to be a cancer. Come in, we will cure you.

GLEANED ALONG THE POLICE RUN

Has the so-called "chicken" case recently instituted in the district court come to an unforseen end?

The action is that started by Louise Hanson against John Bloom, a Michigan street barber. She demanded $2,000 damages because she alleged that Bloom had called her a "chicken" and applied other synonymous terms to her. Her objection to being put in this class took the form of a suit for a cash payment as balm for her injured feelings and the alleged damage to her reputation.

Louise Hanson, the complaining witness, is one of the two girls who were informed by the police yesterday that their room would be more welcome than their company. Louise, who asked $2,000 in real coin of the realm for being labeled a "chicken," started the suit all right, but now the question arises as to whether or not she will be able to finish it. She could not know that she would come into the hands of the police and be given such unpleasant information as was handed out to her yesterday. Louise and her chum, Violet Woods, were taken in charge by the officers when they appeared in the station to testify against a young woman whose arrest she had caused on a charge of stealing a blue serge suit valued at $20 from her room on West Second street.

The police say that besides the room on Second street Louise and Violet had two adjoining rooms in a downtown rooming house of very doubtful reputation. In them they are believed to have relieved a Chinaman of about $100 several days ago, by working a variation of the old panel game. One is said to have enticed the Celestial to the room while the other went through his pockets after he had sought rest and surcease from worldly troubles in the arms of Morpheus.

In addition to that the police say that about a year ago the girl who sued Bloom for $2,000 on the ground that he termed her a "chicken" admitted that she stole a check from her roommate and cashed it in an East Superior street store. It is said that at that time she took the check for the purpose of securing funds with which to deck herself out in "fine feathers," a love of pretty clothes being the cause of her downfall.

Tim McCarthy is an insistent, persistent beggar, according to the police. He was brought into police court this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct, to which he pleaded guilty. The court set the case over until this afternoon for disposition.

Patrolman Jessie, who made the arrest, reported to the station that he had seen Tim begging on the street yesterday; that he saw him ask an old man with a cane for a dime, and that after he had been refused he struck the aged gentleman several sharp blows.

Lew and Helen Cayley were arrested in a St. Croix avenue resort yesterday afternoon, the former on a charge of visiting the place and the latter on a charge of residing there. They said they were husband and wife and told a story rather out of the ordinary.

Cayley stated that he is a solicitor for a magazine and that after fire had destroyed most of their possessions they were obliged to break up housekeeping. His wife came to Duluth, saying that she intended visiting her folks, who live in a small town near here. That was several weeks ago. But instead of going to her home she went into the St. Croix avenue resort.

Her husband has been in the city the last three weeks and his frequent visits to the place aroused the suspicions of the policeman on the beat, who placed them under arrest yesterday. Both pleaded guilty to the charges preferred against them and they were given suspended sentences with the understanding that they would be out of Duluth before midnight last night.

Oscar Wickman and Fred Ekstrand were arrested last night on suspicion of having robbed Emanuel Halquist of $300 in his room in the Nicollet hotel a couple of nights ago.

It seems that Emanuel was another of those indiscreet persons who so forget themselves that they will go out and get drunk with a large sum of cash in their pockets. He has only a hazy recollection of what happened, but he does know that he and his $300 wad are definitely separated, probably permanently.

The only evidence against the prisoners is Emanuel's statement that he remembers drinking with them during the afternoon and evening. The grand larceny case could not be prosecuted on such flimsy evidence and the two were brought into police court this morning on charges of drunkenness. They pleaded not guilty and their trials were set for this afternoon.

Marie Turner, the colored woman, who was arrested on a charge of having robbed Matt Mattson of $15 one night last week, turned on the water works yesterday afternoon after she had been bound over to await the action of the next grand jury yesterday afternoon. She sobbed and sobbed and cried that she was being done a great injustice. The next grand jury does not meet until next September and the indications are that Marie will be an unwilling guest at the hostelry over the hill during the warm months which are said to be on their way.

• • •

George Adams, the colored man who was arrested early yesterday morning on a charge of disorderly conduct, might better have forfeited his bail of $25. Instead he put in an appearance and pleaded not guilty to the charge. After the court had heard the evidence George was taxed $40 and costs, with the alternative of thirty days in the county jail. He didn't have the necessary medium of exchange and accompanied Marie Turner to the county bastile.

• • •

Patrolman John Link, "Father of Lake Avenue," is still booked as being on the sick list, but he is able to get outdoors. John has made a trip or two to headquarters and says that he is feeling fine. Part of his foot had to be amputated after he had frozen the member late in the winter. He expects that it will not be a great while before he will be back on his beat.

• • •

How about it? A committee from the Woman's Council sent a communication to the city council last night stating that policemen, upon whom devolves much of the duty of enforcing the ordinances, have been seen to spit on the sidewalk. "It surely is bad form," said the old policeman today when he heard of it, "but as I have said before, policemen are human and are just as liable to forget themselves as any other mortal. I am certain that just calling it to their attention will be enough."

RAILROADS

VISITORS TO BE NUMEROUS

Duluth Will Entertain Many Conventions During the Coming Summer.

Beginning on June 6 when the Democrats of Minnesota meet in Duluth for their state convention, Duluth will be busy entertaining conventions of various sorts until late in the summer.

There will be at least ten big meetings in Duluth this summer and all of them will bring people in large numbers to the Zenith City. Some of them are purely state affairs and will bring only Minnesotans here, while others are national in character and will bring people from all over the United States.

At least one of the conventions is international, the Association of Rotary Clubs. It is stated that delegates from London, Eng., Glasgow, Scotland, Montreal, Canada, and many other points outside the United States will be represented.

For all of the excursions the railroads are making special rates. For the Democratic convention the delegates are being brought to Duluth on a basis of a fare and one-third. The state hotel men will also have the same courtesy shown them by the railroads, it is said. The other conventions are still too far away to make the rate known. The state Spanish-American War Veterans will meet here June 14 and 15. The State Hotel Men's annual meeting will be held on June 20. The National hotel men are to be here on July 9, en route to Yellowstone park. The State Medical association will hold its annual convention in Duluth on Aug. 13, 14 and 15. The Sangerfest of the Norwegian Singers' society will be here from July 20 to 24. The International Association of Rotary Clubs will be here early in August. The National Railway Freight Agents' association will be in Duluth early in July on their way to the Pacific coast. The State Editorial association will be here for their annual outing from July 19 to 26.

With all these conventions, Duluth people will be busy showing visitors the city during the summer. There are several other conventions which will very likely come here some time during the summer months, but detailed information has not been given out on them as yet.

HEAVY TRAVEL TO STOCKHOLM

Railroads report that from this territory they have booked at least 150 people for Stockholm, Sweden, where the Olympic games will be held from June 29 to July 2.

That there is a keen interest in the games this year is evidenced by the large amount of inquiry for accommodations to that place.

All over the United States the interest is the same and it is expected that thousands of people will journey across the ocean to witness the athletic exhibitions.

Special rates are being offered as inducements to take the trip and it is now possible to go to across the water very cheaply.

Reservations are now being made at railroad and steamship offices and from present indications, travel will be very heavy just prior to the dates of the games.

GREAT TOURIST CENTER.

Duluth People Confirmed Travelers Says District Passenger Agent.

"Duluth is one of the greatest tourist centers in the country," said H. F. Carter, district passenger agent of the Union Pacific railroad, with headquarters at Minneapolis. Mr. Carter is in the city today, accompanied by A. M. Fenton, assistant general freight agent of the Omaha road. Mr. Carter was formerly stationed in Duluth, being employed by the Great Northern road.

"Duluth people seem to be great travelers," he continued. "An immense amount of tourist traffic originates here, especially during the winter, and we get a large number of Duluth people going to California."

CANADA HALTS RAILWAY PACT

Winnipeg, Man., May 14.—The dominion government has issued an order to restrain the Canadian Northern and Great Northern railways from carrying out an agreement between the two companies by which the latter has running rights into Winnipeg.

This drastic action was taken as a result of the failure of the Canadian Northern and Great Northern to come to a satisfactory settlement of the trouble over displacement of Canadian crews by Americans on Great Northern trains running into Winnipeg.

The government has taken this stand on the ground that the agreement between the two companies was never submitted to the railway commission. The law distinctly provides that all agreements for running rights must be submitted to the railroad commission, and thence receive the approval of the government.

ARBITRATION IS DENIED TO MEN

Chicago, May 14.—In a letter to P. J. Flannery, international president of the Freight Handlers' union, W. A. Garrett, chairman of the General Managers' association, has refused the arbitration offer made by Mr. Flannery several days ago. Mr. Garrett's letter said the railroads in Chicago were no longer suffering inconvenience as a result of the strike of about 5,000 freight handlers.

"This isn't the last of the strike," said Mr. Flannery after he received the letter. The men ask an increase in pay, an eight-hour day and a Saturday half-holiday.

Railway Association Meets.

Kansas City, Mo., May 14.—A two-days' session of the annual meeting of the National Railway Industrial association opened here today.

Daily Service.

G. Roy Hall, traffic commissioner of the Duluth Commercial club, is sending letters to Duluth shippers advising them that the Omaha railroad has inaugurated a daily freight service on merchandise from Duluth to stations in Wisconsin from Itasca to Trego. The service formerly was tri-weekly and the daily service will be a great convenience to Duluth shippers.

BRONNER MANAGER OF MICHIGAN CENTRAL.

Detroit, Mich., May 14.—Edmond D. Bronner has been appointed general manager of the Michigan Central railway, succeeding W. H. L. Hommedieu, who resigned the position recently. Mr. Bronner entered the service of the Michigan Central as draughtsman in 1880.

WOULD DEPUTIZE WARDENS FOR GAME PROTECTION.

Brainerd, Minn., May 14. — (Special to The Herald.) — The Riverside Gun club of Brainerd has adopted resolutions that in their judgment it would be a benefit to the entire northern part of the state of Minnesota in the game ad fish communities if all fire wardens and patrolmen were deputized as game wardens, and instructed to prevent the violation of the game laws and arrest all offenders within the limits of their respective territories.

MUST FACE GRAND JURY ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Mrs. Helen Mickelson Told Her Story to Minister Before Dying.

Minister Is a Reluctant Witness in Hearing of Paul Strom.

"She wanted to relieve her mind and make her peace with God."

Only the measured ticking of the clock broke the stillness in the municipal court room this morning as Rev. John H. Stenberg told of the dying confession of Mrs. Helen Mickelson at St. Luke's hospital.

The minister was the first witness called this morning in the preliminary examination of Paul Storm, arrested on a charge of manslaughter in the first degree. He is accused of having induced Mrs. Mickerson to attempt to remedy her supposed delicate condition, from which act blood poisoning set in and caused her death last Tuesday morning. After the hearing Strom was bound over to await the action of the next grand jury. Bail in his case cannot be fixed by the police court.

Reluctant Witness.

Reluctantly Rev. Stenberg told of his conversations with Mrs. Mickelson as she lay on her death bed in the hospital. He protested to Judge Cutting that it is not customary for men of his profession to tell of such ministrations and wished to know the law. The court informed him that it was not a privileged communication, whereupon he gave his testimony.

"Did she know that she was going to die? asked Warren E. Greene, assistant county attorney.

"She thought she was," answered the minister. "I say that because she told me that she believed she would die and that she was prepared to meet her Maker. 'But if I should get well I shall lead a different life,' she said to me."

Rev. Stenberg stated that he had seen her first o nthe Saturday preceding her death, between 5 and 6 o'clock, and that she made her confession preparatory to taking the Lord's supper, which he administered. Absolute silence prevaded the court room as he answered the questions. A number of relatives and friends of both the dead woman and the prisoner were present and listened to the proceedings with the closest attention.

Under cross-examination by Attorney T. J. McKeon, appearing for Strom, Rev. Stenberg said that not once did Mrs. Mickelson mention Strom's name. He stated that she spoke of the man in the case in the third person. "He fooled me or decieved me into it," was the manner in which she referred to the case which resulted in her death a week ago today, accerding to Rev. Stenberg.

The testimony of Dr. Frank Lyman, who performed the post mortem threw a new light on the case. He stated that as far as he could determine from the examination Mrs. Mickelson was not in a delicate condition.

Chief C. H. Troyer said that Strom had admitted to him that he had been intimate with Mickelson. Halfdan Opland, brother of the dead woman, who swore to the complaint which caused Strom's arrest, was not placed on the witness stand.

CITY'S MORAL CONDITIONS ARE DISCUSSED BEFORE MEN'S CLUB

The action of the city council in issuing a license for a dancing pavilion at Lincoln park was condemned in an address by C. S. Mitchell delivered last night at the annual banquet of the Men's club of the St. Paul's Episcopal church at the Y. M. C. A.

"I have been told," he remarked, "that young girls and men have been seen emerging at 1, 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning from recesses in Chester park, where the roller skating pavilion is in operation. It is a shame that such places are allowed to exist within the limits of the city. Similar conditions are said to exist in Lester park."

Mr. Mitchell said the problem of today was how to keep the young people off the street, and he urged the creation of social centers as one of the best methods. He said the school houses, which belonged to the public, should be used for this purpose. In such places, he remarked, the people could have their social gatherings under proper environment and under the right kind of management the toughest of the tough would find it better to be decent than the reverse.

The speaker said it was a sad thing that efforts were being constantly made to cause the great cities to grow at the expense of the country. He said the creation of large centers of population was necessitated by industry, but it had the effect of producing a class of people with home surroundings that disgusted the young members of families, and induced them to seek amusement on tne streets and at cheap theaters.

Mr. Mitchell said the club should endeavor to do its work by co-operating with other church clubs throughout the city. Without such co-operation the efforts of the club were but a mockery, but with such co-operation almost any measure could be carried.

Dr. A. W. Ryan, pastor of the church, also urged the club to get into touch with other like organizations in its work for the betterment of civic conditions.

Harvey S. Clapp said that small differences too often kept reformers apart. They should get together on some of their propositions and carry them to a successful issue.

He said the game of politics was but a sham, as played by the professional politicians. The issues often presented by politicians were of a flimsy character and people thought these issues of great importance on account of the prominence of the men who presented them.

ATTRACTED BY CLIMATE

"It's Cool in Duluth" Will Bring Southern Litigants Here.

A case in which Duluth has no direct interest will be heard in Duluth July 9 by Commissioner B. H. Meyer of the interstate commerce commission. The setting of the hearing here is due solely to the fact that "It's Cool in Duluth," and litigants will travel here from Atlanta, Ga., and other Southern points, both to attend the hearing and enjoy Duluth's summer climate.

About twenty-five Southerners will attend the hearing. Members of the traffic commission of the Commercial club are preparing to entertain the visitors that they may go back to the South with a proper impression of the beauties of Duluth and the surrounding country in the summer. Literature descriptive of the city and outing places in the vicinity has been sent to Atlanta and the traffic commission will keep in touch with tne men interested in the hearing.

Commissioner Meyer has a summer cottage on the Brule and to that fact is due the setting of the hearing here. One hearing of the action was held in Atlanta and a postponement was made. The commissioner will be unable to go South during the summer and he first contemplated setting the hearing at Chicago. When he mentioned that he had a summer home near Duluth, the Atlanta people declared that they wanted to visit Duluth and would be glad to have the hearing set here.

"KNOWS LESS EVERY DAY"

Edward Hines, Lumber Baron, Is Genial But Uncommunicative.

Edward Hines, the lumber baron, is at the Spalding today. Mr. Hines was feeling in a somewhat genial mood, but when approached for something bearing on the business of the country, the lumber market or the fading Lorimer case, he smiled, it is true, but failed to elucidate.

"Don't know anything about the lumber business, for I have been down South in the woods for the past ten days," said Mr. Hines. "Don't even know where I am going as yet. I guess things are all right at Virginia, but I don't know anything; know less every day. Getting so I know less all the time. There goes a long distance from Chicago for me and I will have to leave you. Sorry I can't give you some news —no, I said I didn't know anything; nothing about the market or business —have tried to forget it on my vacation."

S. J. Cusson, manager of the Virginia mill of the Virginia & Rainy Lake Lumber company, and Isaac Baker, one of the lieutenants of Mr. Hines, are also here today.

"Things at Virginia are all right," said Mr. Cusson. "We have about all the work we can stand."

TO SETTLE KETTLE FALLS QUESTION

(From The Herald Washington Bureau.)

Washington, May 14.—The international joint commission, to which has been referred for settlement the application of the Watrous Boom company to construct a dam across the Rainy river at Kettle Falls, expects to be able to hold a public hearing on the question as soon as it hears from the Canadian commissioners whether there is any opposition to the plan on the Canadian side. It was said at the offices of the commission this morning that no opposition had developed in Minnesota, but that a public hearing would be held if any one desired to be heard before the application is finally acted upon. Representative Miller has been notified that he will be given notice of the date of the proposed hearing sufficiently in advance to permit him to notify all those in Minnesota who are interested in the plan.

New Ideas of Daintiness and Beauty in Exquisite American-Made Lingerie

Every woman pays homage to the dainty intimate garments of her toilette, but few can fascinate with as many refreshing features and truly individual touches as are possessed by these, designed by us and shown here exclusively. Where has woman ever seen so graceful a retreat from the shirrs and gathers of seasons past? Or the originality achieved in the combining of laces and hand-work, the embellishment of embroideries with motifs of net, or the soft iridescence of colors that, less cleverly handled, would be garish?

Button-holed beading at artistic intervals, with ribbons for shirr-strings, brings us one step nearer the ideal "straight-lines;" box-plaits improve on the clumsiness of gathers; flat tabliers and swaying appliques dispense with frills and ruffes. In fact, most of these garments are so new in every detail that they are the first and only ones of their kind.

THREE PETITIONS ARE CIRCULATED

Three petitions are now being circulated among the business men and property owners of West Duluth.

This morning a petition was started for the improving and grading of the streets west of Thirtieth avenue west. Business men in the center of the city have complained of the bad condition of the roads and lack of a proper street to West Duluth from the center of the city. Automobile owners in West Duluth have also complained of the bad streets and have repeatedly urged a better grading and pavement on at least one road leading from the street car turn at Thirtieth avenue west.

Joseph Becks, former street commissioner is also circulating a petition for the opening of Roosevelt street west of Fifty-ninth avenue west. Mr. Becks is confident of securing the signatures of enough property owners along the proposed street to allow the opening some time this fall. The matter was taken up several years ago, but was laid aside at the time as being impractical. With the growth of West Duluth in the past years, Mr. Becks now believes the opening is an absolute necessity.

Another petition for the opening of Raleigh street east from Central avenue is being circulated and will be presented to the council within a couple of weeks. The petitioners claim that the opening of the street will aid the wagons in going to and from the docks and mills, instead of being compelled to go about five blocks out of the way, as at present. Workmen are also compelled to go out of their way in going to work at the mills. It is proposed to open the street through the property next to the Carbolite plant, extending to the Fiftieth avenue water front. Dominic Martino is in charge of the petition.

BOTH ARE IMPROVING.

L. R. Clark and Michael Jacoby Are on Road to Recovery.

The two West Duluthians, who were taken to local hospitals last week, following sudden attacks, are reported improving and now almost out of danger. L. R. Clark of 5711 Huntington street is sufferling from a complication of diseases at St. Luke's hospital and was in a very serious condition the latter part of last week. This morning the attending physicians reported his condition as better and that he was rapidly regaining his health.

Michael Jacoby, who was taken last Friday morning to St. Mary's hospital after a sudden attack of Bright's disease, from which he has suffered for several years, is also reported improving.

BOYS OF CLUB FORM BASEBALL LEAGUE.

The boys' organizations at the West Duluth Boys' and Girls' club, 208 Central avenue, formed a baseball league at a special meeting held in the club rooms last evening. The first games will be played next Saturday morning at the Fifty-second avenue west grounds. J. R. Batchelor, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., was in charge of the meeting. Those present decided to hold the first annual banquet some time next month.

INDIAN MISSIONARY TO PREACH IN DULUTH.

Parker is one of the most prominent Methodist missionaries in India and is now taking part in the general conference at Minneapolis. He is coming to Duluth at the request of Rev. W. H. Farrell, pastor of the church.

Mrs. Tracey Dies.

The deceased is survived by her mother, husband, three brothers and four sisters. The brothers are: Oscar, George and Charles Lund. The sisters are: Mrs. Christ Casey, Mrs. Edward Ryan, Mrs. Henry Gonyar and Miss Ludella Lund. The funeral will be held at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon from the Asbury M. E. church, Sixtieth avenue west and Raleigh street. Rev. W. H. Farrell, pastor of the church, will officiate and interment will be in the Oneota cemetery.

Supper and Sale.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church, Forty-sixth avenue west and Halifax street, will hold its annual supper and sale in the church parlors Friday evening, May 24. The following committee has been appointed to arrange the details for the affair: Mesdames Ruth Merritt, W. F. Bailey, Seth Warren and Edith Merritt.

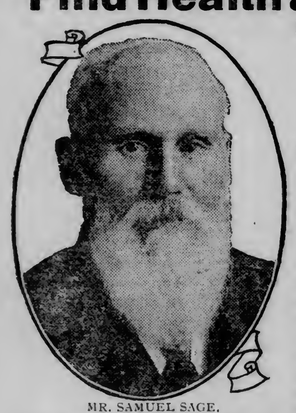
Thousands of Old People Find Health and Strength



MR. SAMUEL SAGE.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is wonderfully effective to aid digestion, thus nourishing the body and enriching the blood, which makes it especially valuable for those advanced in years.

Read what it does for Mr. S. Sage and his friends.

"I have been a user of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for many years, and find that it is the best medicine and tonic I can take. I have been troubled with gas on my stomach which causes a pain in my heart and often bowel trouble, but if I take about two tablespoonfuls of your malt in the morning when I first get up, then my food tastes fine and does not distress me. While I was on the farm I took it before each meal and found that it gave me a better appetite and sleep became refreshing. I have often recommended it to my old comrades and they all say it does them much good.

"Many aged ladies to whom I have talked claim they could not get along if it were not for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Some have said, 'Give me liberty or give me death,' but I say, 'Give me life and Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.'" Samuel Sage, Adjt., Tom Custer Post, No. 178, G. A. R., Sheridan, Mich.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

For more than half a century Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been before the public and its increasing success proves its merit and honesty. Scientists have tested it, chemists have analyzed it and always found it pure and full of medicinal virtue; doctors have prescribed it, and ministers of the Gospel, temperance advocates and people in all walks of life have used it, and all endorse it as a most effective tonic stimulant.

It is a wonderful remedy in the prevention and relief of all throat, lung and stomach troubles, and for all wasting and weakening conditions, if taken as directed.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the only whiskey that was taxed by the government as a medicine during the Spanish-American war.

SCARED BY A "RATTLER"

Mrs. Frances Hallock Wants $5,150 for Nervous Shock.

Three times has Mrs. Frances Hallock, aged 39, 516 West Second street, been a victim of nervous prostration. And on two of these occasions she has come into the courts with her story.

In district court before Judge Dibell about seven years ago Mrs. Hallock was granted a divorce from her former husband, whose name was Shirley, on the grounds that he had made her a nervous wreck through inhumane and cruel treatment.

Today in the same court and before the same judge and a jury Mrs. Hallock is suing William A. Abbett, a local druggist for $5,150 damages because the Duluth Drug Store company, of which he is the proprietor, sent her a "Missouri rattler" through the mail in an advertisement.

Mrs. Hallock, in her complaint alleges that when she received the "rattler" it so frightened her that she fainted and collapsed a nervous wreck. She claims that although she received the rattler more than a year ago that it required several months for her to recover from the nervous shock.

She asks the court and jury to give her a judgment of $5,000 general and $150 special damages. The special damages, she claims, are to reimburse her for money expended for medical attendance during her sickness.

The "Missouri rattle," as it is called, is a mechanical contrivance which was used quite extensively about a year ago as a novelty advertising device. The "rattlers" were usually sent through the mail to prospective customers. A circular letter usually accompanied them.

Infernal Machine.

"I thought it was an infernal machine sent from my former husband," testified Mrs. Hallock this morning on the witness stand. "I thought I was killed. I thought it was dynamite or an infernal machine. That was the last I remebered."

Testimony showed that when Mrs. Hallock had received the "rattler," that she fainted and did not recover from her swoon until several hours later. She testified that she was in robust health before she got the "rattler" and that after that she suffered a nervous collapse, from which she is now recovering. Her attorney is A. E. McManus.

Under cross examination conducted by Charles E. Adams, attorney for Mr. Abbett, Mrs. Hallock admitted that twice before she had become a nervous wreck.

The first time, she declared, was when she was living with her former husband, Mr. Shirley. She was divorced from him on the grounds that because of his cruel treatment she had suffered a severe mental strain.

The second occasion on which Mrs. Hallock suffered nervous prostration was at the time that her daughter, Hazel, died, she testified. For three years, she claims, she was most of the time an invalid.

About a year prior to the receiving of the "rattler," Mrs. Hallock maintained that she was enjoying fairly good health. After she was frightened by it, she testified that she was again subject to nervous sickness and other complications.

Attorney McManus gave a demonstration to the jury of how the "rattler" operated. He placed one of them in an envelope and then took a paper knife and opened the envelope in the usual way. There was a brisk buzz.

The letter in which the rattler was enclosed was introduced in evidence. It was a circular advertisement which started out by saying, "Did this rattler startle you? That was our intention. We have taken this means to call your attention to—" etc.

The case will probably go to the jury some time this afternoon. Mrs. Hallock, the plaintiff, is the wife of Ernest Hallock, a railway mail clerk.

MADERO'S BROTHER MADE PRISONER

El Paso, Tex., May 14.—Col. Caesar Caneles, commanding a band of rebels at Des Cubridora, Durango, Mex., telegraphed to Ciudad Juarez today that the rebels, in capturing Mapimi, Durango, on Sunday, made a prisoner of Raoul Madero, brother of the president and commander of rurales in that district.

ROOSEVELT AVOIDS TAFT'S HOME CITY

Bellaire, Ohio, May 14.—With his speech in Bellaire this morning, Col. Roosevelt opened his campaign in Ohio. He will remain in this state until the evening of the primaries next Tuesday, and will cover Ohio more thoroughly than any other state which he has visited during his fight for the presidential nomination.

A large crowd assembled in the public square here to hear Col. Roosevelt's speech. The colonel made much the same plea for support which he has presented elsewhere, saying the present fight was a "straight lineup" between the plain people and the "bosses."

During his campaign in Ohio, Col. Roosevelt is scheduled to make sixty speeches. He will travel 1,749 miles within the borders of the state, and will enter every congressional district except the First and Second, which constitute Hamilton county, in which is President Taft's home city of Cincinnati.

From Bellaire, Col. Roosevelt left for Bridgeport, where he is scheduled to make his second speech of the day. Other speeches were scheduled for Martin's Ferry, Steubenville, Wellsville, East Liverpool, Rochester, Youngstown, Girard, Niles, Warren, Alliance and Canton.

PLAN WAR ON TIN CAN

"West End Beautiful" Movement Taken Up By the Children.

Co-operation of All Residents and of City, Wanted.

Children in the West end have taken up the prize garden plan suggested several weeks ago by the West End Commercial club. The interest taken in homecrofting by the pupils and the teachers promises to result in a more beautiful West end, which is the aim of the new Commercial club.

The offering of $30 in prizes by the club for the best gardens in the West end cultivated by children under 15 years of age was originally suggested by Dr. O. A. Oredson, who gave an interesting address on the subject at the second meeting of the club. The many unsightly lots, yards and alleys are to be improved and the school children are urged to work on their own yards and lots at once and then begin work on a garden.

The business men in this end of the city who donated the money for the prize fund believe that the plan will result in beautifying this end of the city. It is the belief of these men that if every householder takes care of his own garden the community at large would be greatly improved.

Dr. Oredson, who is the father of garden plan and the "West end beautiful" idea, said yesterday that the better sanitation alone resulting from clean yards and alleys, would be of inestimable benefit. "The city will be asked to co-operate with the club in this work, so that residents will only have to clean their yards and alleys and then call for a cart to haul the dirt away," he said. "If such co-operation existed, and if the city would help the property owner, the beautiful city would be achieved. Portland became the city of roses because everyone helped and followed a general plan. It took but one rose bush in each yard and lot to make Portland what it is today."

Children who have not yet entered the contest, are especially urged by the committee of the Commercial club to fill out the blank below and send it to William Anderson, Sloan block, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street:

.....

The undersigned hereby makes application to enter the home garden contest to compete for the prizes offered by the West End Commercial club.

Name .....

Address .....

School ..... Grade .....

.....

The prizes are to be awarded this fall for the following best gardens:

For the best kept garden..... $10.00
For the nicest flower garden.... 5.00
For the best strawberry patch.. 5.00
For the best potato patch..... 5.00
For the best vegetable garden.. 5.00

WILL ARRIVE IN DULUTH FRIDAY.

Rev. Hans K. Madsen, presiding elder of the Chicago district of Norwegian-Danish M. E. churches and former pastor of the First church in the West end, who is to be the principal speaker at the celebration of Norway's Independence day, Friday, will not arrive in the city until Friday morning.

It had been planned to have Rev. Mr. Madsen spend several days here before the celebration Friday at the Central high school, but it was learned last evening that he will not be able to arrive here until the day of the affair. Rev. Mr. Madsen will leave Chicago this afternoon for Minneapolis, where he will spend a couple of days at the general Methodist conference. He will not leave Minneapolis until Thursday evening, arriving here Friday morning.

All the arrangements for the celebration have been completed by the following committee, which represents the Varde club, Normanna Male chorus and the Sons of Narway: Stark Jacobson, Louis Fossen, Sverre Haug, Jacob Thoreson, Berger Sande, Conrad Grotting, Jens Jacobson, Gust Sidahl and Thorwald Hanson. The program will be announced tomorrow.

DIES WHILE READING PAPER

End Comes Suddenly to Joseph Prefontaine, West End Pioneer.

Joseph Prefontaine, 60 years old, died last evening at his home, 1119 West Superior street, while seated in a chair reading a newspaper. The deceased had just finished eating a hearty meal and apparently was in the best of spirits. Death is believed to have been caused by heart failure.

Coroner McComb was notified and the body was taken to the Fiiltrault undertaking rooms in West Duluth, where an autopsy will be held some time today. The funeral arrangements will be made immediately after the autopsy.

Mr. Prefontaine has been a resident of the West end for the past twenty-five years. He was a member of the local carpenters' union, the Fidelity lodge No. 105, A. O. U. W., and the St. Jean French Catholic society. He leaves a widow, two sons and three daughters, all of whom reside in the city. He is also survived by two brothers, one living in North Dakota and the other in Winnipeg.

TELLS WHY SHE IS SUFFRAGIST

West End Woman Speaks Before Newly Organized Suffrage Club.

Mrs. Milton Fish gave an interesting address on "Why I Am a Suffragist" to the members of the new West End Suffrage club at the special meeting and election held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. David Adams, 2314 West Second street.

Mrs. Fish said that the woman of today is as able to perform the duties of citizenship as a man is. "Women today," said Mrs. Fish, "are fit educationally and intellectually for citizenship, far better than foreigners, who are given the right after a residence of five years or more in this country."

Temporary officers were elected and Mrs. L. Q. Greeley, who was elected temporary president two weeks ago, was retained in office. Mrs. Lee Gunther was chosen temporary secretary and treasurer. Mrs. David Adams was appointed chairman of a committee to arrange for the mass meeting to be held in the West end May 24. Arrangements will be made for a church and a program of speakers and musical numbers. Rev. A. F Elmquist of Minneapolis, former pastor of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, will be the principal speaker of the evening.

WANT EXTENSION OF PATROL LIMITS REPEALED.

The Duluth Union Temperance society at its annual meeting and election of officers last evening, took a definite stand for the repeal of the patrol limits extension in the West end. The members met at the First Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street.

The following committee was appointed to interview the council and present a resolution in behalf of the society asking for the rescinding of patrol extension to Twenty-fourth avenue west: Rev. J. J. Daniels, Rev. C. G. Olson and A. Thoren. The society is unanimous in its stand against the extension and concerted action is planned by the members for the repeal of the law.

Following are the officers elected for the year: A. Thoren, president; C. A. Lindahl, vice president, and Gust Hjelm, secretary.

COMBINE BIBLE AND ATHLETICS.

About forty boys of the Central Baptist church, Twentieth avenue west and First street, are doing consistent Sunday school work since the new organization was formed several weeks ago. The three classes are now known as the Boys' Federation.

The members of the organization are now planning on a number of summer features and athletic events. The aim of the federation is to advance the studies and athletics of the young boys of the church. Meetings are held every month and the meeting next week will be devoted to a discussion of the summer plans of the organization. Lee Gunther, superintendent of the Sunday school, is in charge of the federated classes, each of which is represented in the cabinet by its Sunday school teacher and one student chosen by the class members.

The federation was organized last month at a banquet and meeting of all the young boys of the church. Several interesting Bible classes have been held and a number of prominent speakers have addressed the boys during the past month. The proper study of the Bible and athletics are combined in the work of the classes.

Home Helps For The Hair and Complexion

The right sort of care of hair and scalp requires little time and is productive of a healthy scalp and silky, shimmery hair. Canthrox shampoos solve the problem for women troubled with oily, "stringy," unmanageable hair, and are so enjoyable that shampoo day is pleasantly looked forward to. A teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water is enough mixture, and its regular use insures a healthy scalp and a wealth of beautiful, fluffy hair.

A spurmax lotion is excellent for clearing the skin of all impurities, and is so superior to powder that once it is used it will never be discarded. To make, dissolve 4 ounces of spurmax in ½ pint witch hazel (or hot water) and add 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. The use of this lotion gives to any skin a charm and elegance unobtainable any other way.

Mr. Wahl has been at the head of the business here for a number of years, but is now planning on a business change, which compelled him to sell his interest in the Duluth Bottling works.

The Peevish Child Needs a Laxative

It is natural for a child to laugh and play and when it sulks drowsily or cries you may depend on it something physical is the matter. If you see no evidences of a serious ailment you will not be wrong if you quietly give it a dose of mild laxative that evening on putting it to bed.

The remedy most generally recommended for this purpose is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which mothers throughout the country have been giving their children for a quarter of a century. Today thousands of families are using it where hundreds used it then, and there must be good reason for this word of mouth recommendation.

It is admittedly the perfect laxative for children, women, old people and all others who need a gentle bowel stimulant and not a violent salt, cathartic pill or doctored water. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will act gently, and when taken before retiring will bring complete satisfaction in the morning. After a short use of this remedy all forms of outside aid can be dispensed with and nature will again act alone.

All classes of good American people keep it in the home for this of the stomach, liver and bowels, and among the thousands who have written the doctor that they will never be without it are Mrs. J. H. Whiting, Lena, Wis., and Mrs. M. Johnson, 752 Dayton St., Kenosha, Wis. A dose of it has saved many a person from a serious illness.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

This is the season of listlessness, Spring disorders, tired feeling, no ambition. You only need Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea to liven you up, fill you with energy, action and health. A Spring remedy that does the biz and does it quick. 35c, Tea or Tabs. Lion Drug Store.

MINNESOTA POLITICS

Roosevelt's Victory Is Complete in Minnesota —Ed Smith Under a Handicap for What May Be His Last Fight—Laurels for Caswell—C. A. Towne Coming to Minnesota to Speak for Clark.

Significance of the Victory.

The county conventions yesterday ratified the action of the voters at the caucuss last week, cleared the doubt in the Ninth district and insure Col. Roosevelt twenty-four delegates from Minnesota.

The Roosevelt victory is complete. It is more decisive than in Illinois or Pennsylvania, for it gives him a solid delegation to the national convention. It is just as significant as in Illinois and Pennsylvania, for the Smith-Eberhart machine now stands with the Lorimer machine of Illinois and the Penrose machine of Pennsylvania—repudiated by the people.

The reign of Smith in Minnesota has not endured as long as those of other bosses in the United States, but the system of which he is the representative has been for years just as firmly entrenched, just as ruthless and just as deaf to the popular appeal as any system of bossism in any state.

Smith has not left the stage yet. He has one more fight to make—and the temper of the people would seem to indicate that it will be his last. He will try to force Eberhart on the Republican party of Minnesota once more. Eberhart is just as unpopular personally in Minnesota as Taft. The powers behind him correspond to the powers with which the Taft administration is allied. He has listened with ready ear to advice that he had not the good of the people as its object. The power behind the throne in Minnesota is really much more potent in its sphere than is the power behind the executive chair in the nation.

Smith's last supreme effort will come in six weeks. The issue is well defined. Standpatism and the interests, personified in Smith and Eberhart, stand on one side. On the other side is arrayed the progressive spirit, with Gordon and Lee as its exponents. Spooner is also anti-Eberhart, but he is not the man to whom the Progressives look for leadership. The victory of Roosevelt would seem to indicate that the progressive spirit will win and that Smith, Eberhart and the interests will be completely blotted from the political map in the state.

All for Roosevelt.

The depths to which standpatism has fallen in Minnesota is shown by the fact that from eight-three counties which have reported convention returns Taft will have only seventy-six delegates in the state convention, while Roosevelt will have 876 and La Follette 164. In the district conventions, the Taft men will be as completely in the minority as they were in the St. Louis county convention yesterday. In the Fourth and Fifth districts, they will not have a voice in the proceedings. La Follette will not be a factor, except in the Ninth district, and will not be a serious factor there, for Roosevelt will get the two delegates to the national convention.

Caswell Looms Up.

Irving A. Caswell, clerk of the supreme court and member for Minnesota of the Roosevelt national committee, looms up as the biggest man, politically, in Minnesota. His is the victory and to him his friends and enemies alike are cheerfully giving the credit. He had able assistance in every county in the state, but it was he who led the advance. He gave to the full of his executive ability. He planned the organization. He worker tirelessly. He framed the appeals to the people. Every move he made was wrought with political significance. His selection as manager of the Minnesota campaign was a master stroke of the Roosevelt committee. He has conclusively proved the wisdom of it.

Mr. Caswell is a man who makes personal friends quickly. He radiates enthusiasm for any cause in which he is interested. He knows the game of politics as it is played, and that knowledge enabled him to keep in touch with the Taft campaign, which was in the hands of master politicians. His fight for the presidential primary aligned him definitely on the side of the people and the people stood by him for it.

Mr. Caswell is in line for national committeeman from Minnesota if he wants the place. Frank B. Kellogg took no part in the presidential contest in the state. He has left the Republican organization to Ed Smith and has shown a disposition to drop out. Unless Mr. Caswell offers objections, he will undoubtedly be indorsed for national committeeman by the state convention Thursday.

Conventions and Delegates.

The St. Louis county delegation to the district convention at Hinckley tomorrow will leave on a special car attached to the regular Great Northern train at 7:25 tomorrow morning. The convention will be called to order at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon by J. Y. Breckenridge, chairman of the district committee. The Roosevelt men will be in complete control of the convention. W. A. Eaton will undoubtedly be one of the delegates from the district to the national convention. I. A. Caswell, whose home is in Anoka, may be the other district delegate, although Mr. Caswell has declared that he does not want to be on the state delegation. No other man outside of St. Louis county has been mentioned. The place on the delegation will go to some county other than St. Louis.

The Fifth district convention was held in connection with the Hennepin county convention yesterday, but all other district gatherings will be held tomorrow. The places selected are: First district, Rochester; Second district, Mankato; Third district, Farmington; Fourth district, St. Paul; Sixth district, Brainerd; Seventh district, Willmar; Ninth district, Thief River Falls.

There has been little talk of delegates pending the outcome of the caucuses, but names are being freely used now that the success of the Roosevelt cause has opened the way for Roosevelt men to go to Chicago. The first delegates to be elected were A. A. D. Hahn and Stanley Washburn in the Fifth district yesterday. Judge Milton D. Purdy was indorsed for delegate-at-large by the Fifth district convention, and Oscar J. Larson by the St. Louis county convention. W. W. Rich will endeavor to have Senator Clapp named as a delegate-at-large. Former Assistant Attorney General E. T. Young will probably be St. Paul's candidate for delegate-at-large. T. J. Starkey of Staples, William O'Brien of Eden Valley and Andrew Davis of Elk River are the most prominent candidates in the Sixth district.

The Case in Kandiyohi.

The victory of William E. Lee in the Kandiyohi county primary is not as significant as it would appear at first glance. Gordon was under a handicap. The Smith-Eberhart organization had no chance of carrying the county for Eberhart and undoubtedly some of its strength went to Lee. The La Follette sentiment in the county was strong and Lee was tied up with it, so that a combination between the La Follette and Lee men went against Gordon. Gordon lost the county, but under the circumstances the effect on his candidacy will not be as severe as would have been the case had the governorship contest not been complicated by other issues.

C. A. Towne Coming.

Charles A. Towne of New York, formerly of Duluth, and George Fred Williams of Massachusetts, manager of the Clark campaign in that state, will open a speaking campaign for Champ Clark in Minnesota May 20, according to an announcement by W. H. Williams, Clark's manager for Minnesota. Mr. Towne will probably visit Duluth during the campaign and he can always be sure of a large audience in this city of his triumphs and defeats.

Alvah Eastman Indorsed.

The Stearns county convention yesterday indorsed Alvah Eastman of St. Louis as a candidate for congressman-at-large. Mr. Eastman has had things his own way since announcing his candidacy for the office and his friends predict that he will be given the nomination unanimously at St. Paul July 2.

WILL STRIP AT THE ADAMS MINE

Great Northern Will Begin Operations on Eveleth Property.

Stripping operations will be begun at the Adams mine at Eveleth by the Great Northern railway in anticipation of improving this property and opening it up for shipments. It is probable, however, that no ore will be shipped from this mine until late next fall or early in 1914.

D. M. Philbin, commissioner of the Great Northern ore lands, will direct the work at the Adams mine. "More than 6,000,000 yards of earth must be removed," said Mr. Philbin, "before ore in shipping quantities will be reached. This preliminary work will take considerable time."

All the properties on the various locations which will be opened up by the Great Northern have been explored and the company will start work on other mines after preparations have been completed for mining on the Adams location. The Adams will be an open pit mine, and the first of the properties developed by the Great Northern to produce ore.

The Great Northern has established offices in the Sellwood building for this work.

SEASON LATE IN OTHER STATES

Minnesota Not Only State Where Crops Are Backward.

A. B. Hostetter, superintendent of agriculture of the Duluth Commercial club, has returned from Southern Illinois, where he spent two or three weeks at his old home.

The season is fully as backward there as it is here, Mr. Hostetter says. General crops are about ten days behind.

"A few warm days here will put the soil in good condition for the crops and people shouldn't be too impatient," said Mr. Hostetter today. "A man will not gain anything by turning the soil while it is wet. If he will wait until the surface dries out, he will be just as far ahead as by trying to force matters."

The courthouse commission has provided Mr. Hostetter with a room in the courthouse for his laboratory and he has moved his articles and supplies from the Commercial club, although retaining his office at the club. Mr. Hostetter says that many exhibits will be needed to supply the demand for St. Louis county products for display purposes this year and he wants gardeners to remember him in planting and harvesting their crops. Exhibits will be needed for the state fair, the Northwest land show at Minneapolis and for numerous exhibition cars to be sent through the country.

WAR VETERAN SPEAKS BEFORE CLOQUET SCHOOLS.

Cloquet, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.) — Sergeant G. W. Johnson of Austin, Minn., gave an address Monday morning before the high school students on Lincoln. In the afternoon he spoke at the Washington school on the "Fall of Richmond." Sergeant Johnson was enlisted in a Vermont regiment and was one of the famous Army of the Potomac. He saw much of Lincoln and his anecdotes of Lincoln and stories of war roused the greatest enthusiasm among the students. He continued his addresses today at the other school buildings. He has spoken in all the northern states and recently returned from a trip over the iron ranges, and says that the schools of Northern Minnesota are the best he has seen anywhere.

HEIR TO THAW MILLIONS.

Evelyn Appears in New York With Boy 21-Months Old.

New York, May 14.—With a baby boy 21 months old, Evelyn Thaw, in New York, arriving from Germany, says she will withdraw from the life of Harry K. Thaw and probably go on the stage to support her child. The child was born in Hamburg less than a year after the last test of Thaw's sanity in White Plains in July and August of 1909, when Thaw was given many liberties in the jail. This was the last time the woman saw her husband.

Sensation at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, May 14.—A story to the effect that Evelyn Thaw's baby son is heir to the Thaw millions has caused a sensation here, and the situation is complicated. Roger O'Mara, a Thaw detective for years, said that Mrs. Thaw has had no baby.

FIELD MEET FOR SCHOOLS

Grade School Pupils of City Will Compete for Herald Trophy.

Divided Into Four Classes With Prizes for Every Event.

Interest is running high in the interscholastic field meet that will be conducted by the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., Saturday, May 25 at the ball park.

The silver loving cup to be donated by The Herald has been on exhibition and is causing every school in the city to take an interest in the big meet.

The events are divided so boys will be competing with boys of their own weight. This method makes athletics much more interesting and gives every boy an equal chance.

Boys weighing 70 and under 90 pounds will be classed as midgets and will have the following events: Fifty yard dash, potato race, three standing broad jumps and 440-yard relay race.

Boys weight 90 and under 105 pounds are in the lightweight class, with the following events: Seventy-five yard dash, three standing broad jumps, running high jump and 600-yard relay race.

Boys weighing 105 and under 120 pounds are in the middleweight class, with the following events: One hundred yard dash, three standing broad jumps, running high jump, one-fourth mile run and 880-yard relay race.

Boys over 120 pounds are in the heavyweight division, with the following events: One hundred yard dash, running broad jump, running high jump, one-half mile run, twelve-pound shot put and one mile relay race.

Each school may be represented by not more than two men in each event except the relay races. All contestants will be weighed at the boys' department and receive their numbers. All entries must be made at the boys' department not later than Wednesday, May 22. Official entry blanks can be procured at the boys' department. Five points will be given for first place, three for second and one for third. The school winning the largest number of points will receive the Herald silver loving cup, which will remain the property of the school for one year. As soon as it has been won three times by any school it becomes the permanent property of the school. It will be suitably inscribed each year. The boys' department will present to the winning school a beautiful silk banner made in the color of the school winning it. The champion in each of the four classes will receive a silver medal watch fob and the winner of first place will receive the official Interscholastic Athletic association silver badge. Those winning second place will receive an official badge made of silver and bronze and third place an official badge made in bronze. The original date for the meet was Saturday, June1, but on account of the ball team being home on that date the grounds could not be secured, so the date was changed to Saturday, May 25.

The outing committee has arranged an outing for this Saturday to Lakewood. All members of the boys' department are invited. The party will leave the boys' building at 10 o'clock, take the car to Lakeside and walk from there. Each boy will take his lunch. The boys from the West Duluth Boys' club will meet the party at Third avenue west and Third street. They will leave their club rooms at 10 o'clock. The day will be spent in baseball and athletics. The boys' department will play a baseball game with the West Duluth club. The athletic events will be: 50-yard dash, potato race, broad jump, three standing broad jumps, scurry race, relay broad jump, relay race, consolation race.

Friday night there will be the regular social at the boys' building. It will take the form of games in the gymnasium with an ice cream party at the close.

Regular classes are still being conducted at the boys' department, but they have been adapted to the spring needs of the boy.

The boys' department tonight at 8 o'clock will organize the Buluth Boys' Baseball league. Any boys' organization in the city is eligible to join the league. It will be divided into two divisions. Boys under 15 years will have a Junior league and boys over 15 years a Senior league. The Northern Harware company has donated a pennant for the champions in each division. Last year the strong Wanderer team won the Senior games and the Longfellow team carried off the Junior honors. At the meeting tonight representatives of every boys' team in the city are invited and all matters relative to the league will be discussed. Officers will be elected and the schedule prepared so that the games may commence at once.

HEAVY RAINS ARE BOON TO LOGGING

High Water in St. Louis River Brings Logs to Cloquet.

Cloquet, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The heavy rains of the past few days have made an unusually high stage of water in the St. Louis river and its tributaries and all the log drives are coming along in fine shape. The St. Louis, within the city limits, is almost bank full.

Nineteen births are reported in Cloquet for the month of April by Health Officer Dr. James Fleming. There were ten deaths, five adults and five infants.

Bishop Hughes of San Francisco, Cal., one of the most widely known bishops of the Methodist church, has been secured as speaker for the commencement program of the Cloquet high school. Bishop Hughes will also speak in Winona and Brainerd on like occasions.

A canviss is being made of all the grades of the Cloquet public schools with the purpose of finding out how many children would like to attend a vacation school of domestic science and manual training. If a sufficient number signify their desire to spend two hours a day in the work, the local school board will secure instructors for that purpose. Many of the children are enthusiastic about the project and through them it is being brought to the attention of the parents.

Stork Very Busy.

There have been a considerable number of births in Colquet the past week. To Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Samuelson, May 7, a son; Mr. and Mrs. Erick Nevala, May 6, a son; Mr. and Mrs. Odin Engdahl, May 9, a son; Mr. and Mrs. Zepherin Lavoie, May 6, a son; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hughes, May 19, a son; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eldein, May 8, a son; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dixon, May 11, a son.

Olson, Mrs. C. G. Johnson, Andrew Blomgren, T. H. White, J. P. Olson, John Huseby, Louis Leimer, G. W. Anderson, Alex Isaacson, Herman Isaacson and Delor Fortin.

MENOMINEE BREWER'S WIFE IS SUMMONED.

Menominee, Mich., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Wolfgang Reindle, wife of President Reindle of the Menominee River Brewing company died last night, aged 58.

NO SERIOUS TROUBLE IN NEWSPAPER STRIKE.

Chicago, May 14.—There was no change in the newspaper strike situation here today. The afternoon newspapers published their regular editions and circulated them in practically every section of the city under police guard. No serious disturbance was reported. An unidentified man set fire to a bundle of 300 newspapers at a south side street corner early in the day. He fled before the arrival of the police.

Hints on Care of Your Hair

Quick, Harmless Treatment to Restore the Former Color and Lustre to Hair.

Every woman realizes that when her hair turns gray or becomes streaky her beauty is seriously imperiled, but instead of using dyes or hair "shaders," she should—if she is a brunette—get a small, original package of barsicum from her druggist and steep it in one pint of water. Each night the hair should be combed thoroughly with the comb slightly moistened with this harmless tea, and in a short while her hair will regain its former rich color and gloss.

Faded blonde hair can be restored to its original golden shade by washing in a tea made by putting an ounce of arbane in one pint of boiling water; and auburn or Titian locks will quickly regain their radiant shade and satiny lustre when washed with a tea made from ordinary cambia.

THE FIRST GRAY HAIR SIGN OF AGE

Easy Way to Preserve Natural Color of Hair and Make It Grow.

A harmless remedy, made from common garden sage, quickly restores gray hair to natural color. The care of the hair, to prevent it from losing its color and lustre, is just as important as to care for teeth to keep them from discoloring. Why spend money for cosmetics and creams to improve the complexion, and yet neglect your hair, when gray hair is even more conspicuous and suggestive of age than wrinkles or a poor complexion? Of the two, it is easier to preserve the natural color and beauty of the hair than it is to have a good complexion.

All that is necessary is the occasional use of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of common garden Sage and Sulphur, combined with other valuable remedies for dry, harsh, faded hair, dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. After a few applications of this simple, harmless remedy, your hair will gradually be restored to its natural color, in a short time the dandruff will be removed, and your hair will no longer come out but will start to grow as Nature intended it should.

Don't neglect your hair, for it goes further than anything else to make or mar your good looks. You can buy this remedy at any drug store for fifty cents a bottle, and your druggist will give your money back if you are not satisfied after using. Purchase a bottle today. You will never regret it when you realize the difference it will make in your appearance.

LA FOLLETTE MEN TRICKED

Roosevelt Followers at Polk County Convention Play Shrewd Game.

Had La Follette Men Stuck They Would Have Won Ninth District.

Crookston, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Only a political miracle can wrest the Ninth district convention from Roosevelt tomorrow, though with Norman, Kittson and Clearwater counties instructed for La Follette, Red Lake instructed for Taft, the Pennington delegation advised to favor La Follette but not instructed, there is a nucleus upon which to work, and the Taft following is expected to turn a trick to assist the La Follette delegates in winning out if possible. The fact that C. L. Stevens of Warren, Senator Ranson of Ada, W. A. Marlin of Crookston, F. S. Lycan of Bemidji, with others from Ottertail, Roseau and Pennington, are candidates as district delegates, while but two of them can land, and bad feeling in the district besides will not help matters any if a row is started.

The Polk county convention was one of the most satisfactory ever held, and though the Taft followers are disappointed, they are chuckling over the fact that they nearly upset the Roosevelt plan before the La Follette following got wise, enough of them deserting La Follette to save Roosevelt, though the vote was close, La Follette getting 64 to Roosevelt's 53, so that if ten more La Follette followers had not been fearful that Taft delegates were voting for Taft, and had stood by their candidate, La Follette would have won the delegation, and with it the Ninth district. The Roosevelt element played the game shrewdly, and when the secret ballot was being taken, put pressure on the weak-kneed La Follette delegates, succeeding in making them believe that the Taft men were going to vote for Taft and win out with a split Progressive vote.

Recognize Their Error.

Now the La Follette following are bewailing their error in not taking the Taft men at their word, for but three votes were cast for Taft. The delegates stood, as near as can be determined: Roosevelt, 60; La Follette, 50; Taft, 36, so that had the La Follette followers stood pat, with the aid of Taft votes they could have landed easily, the Taft men being desirous only of beating Roosevelt.

If the supporters of F. S. Lycan and C. L. Stevens can get together they can easily be elected as the two delegates tomorrow.

The delegates to the Minnesota convention are Charles Loring, J. E. Montague, M. R. Hussey, John Clementson, M. G. Peterson, A. F. Cronquist, W. A. Marin, T. T. Morken, O. M. Melsness, William Brown, James Hedley, E. O. Hagen, Ferdinand H. Rose, F. C. Massee, J. R. Dotson, J. T. Lindley, Oscar Fredericks, I. J. Berg, Gunder Krostue and C. G. Selvig.

The resolutions renewed allegiance to Republican principles as exemplified by the Progressive movement, favored a presidential primary, direct election of United States senators, repeal of the Canadian reciprocity act and indorsed Congressman Steenerson and Theodore Roosevelt.

Carlton Delegates Chosen.

Carlton, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Carlton county Republican convention held here yesterday afternoon with thirty-three delegates present, A. M. Brower, chairman, and J. A. Fesenbach, secretary, was entirely harmonious and selected ten delegates and alternates to the district convention at Hinckley and the state convention at Minneapolis, without instructions. The delegates are: F. A. Watkins, F. D. Vibert, F. T. Persinger, H. G. Stevens, A. M. Brower, N. A. Houck, Spencer J. Searls, J. D. Barstow, Charles Morse, W. Westholm. The alternates are: Dr. W. G. Dolan, A. R. Peterson, H. D. Cooper, Charles E. Johnson, Alex Esko, T. M. Ferguson, C. B. Oswell, Herman Gerlach, W. M Cain, F. A. Watkins.

The convention adjourned without any motion to instruct. H. D. Cooper of Moose Lake once made a motion to send the delegates uninstructed regarding any candidates, except that it should be against Taft. The motion was ruled out of order.

The delegation is said to stand 7 for Roosevelt, 2 for Taft and 1 for La Follette. A canvass of the delegates before the county convention showed: Roosevelt, 19; Taft, 6; La Follette, 5; no preference, 3.

Henry Oldenburg, after being named as a delegate, withdrew because his personal preference was for Taft.

Crow Wing for Roosevelt.

Brainerd, Minn., May 14.—The Crow Wing county Republican county convention elected A. M. Opsahl, Dr. R. A. Belse, G. S. McCulloch, Sam Parker of Brainerd, Judge J. T. Hale of Deerwood, Roosevelt men, and A. D. Polk, Dr. J. A. Thabes, S. F. Alderman of Brainerd, H. J. Kruse of Crosby, W. W. Wall of Ideal, and W. H. Andrews of Outing, Taft men, delegates to the state convention and the same members delegates to the Sixth congressional district convention at Brainerd. By resolution they were instructed and pledged to vote as a unit to support Theodore Roosevelt. A. D. Polk was chairman of the convention and Judge Hale was secretary.

Lake County Uninstructed.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 14.—Lake county Republicans Saturday held their convention to select delegates to the district convention to be held at Hinckley, May 16, and to the state convention at St. Paul on the sixteenth. The delegation is uninstructed and is composed of the following: Theodore G. Johnson, Joseph Latta, W. M. Moulton, O. G. Elben, J. H. Lunz, Archie McPhee and John Paulson. The following men were selected as alternates: Emil Nelson, R. H. Satter, A. J. Sanjoe, B. F. Fowler, Joe Cramer, Hans Hanson and Herbert Good.

Pine for Roosevelt.

Hinckley, Minn., May 14.—The Republicans of Pine county met in convention here yesterday and selected ten delegates to both the state and district conventions. The delegates were instructed to vote in favor of Roosevelt candidates. Some effort was made by the Taft men for an uninstructed delegation, but they were unable to accomplish it.

Itasca Uninstructed.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 14.—The Republican county convention here yesterday was a quiet affair. The delegates elected to the district and state conventions are uninstructed except to vote as a unit. Dr. George Gilbert of Marble presided and resolutions were adopted indorsing the national administration, particularly during the past five years and the delegation was recommended to try and obtain the election of Senator D. M. Gunn as a delegate to the national convention. The delegates named for both conventions are: George H. Spear, D. M. Gunn, Grand Rapids; G. E. Keenan, Deer River; D. D. Greer, A. M. Peterson, Coleraine; Frank Provinski, Bovey; Dr. George Gilbert, Marble; J. C. Mick, Calumet; A. McWilliams, Nashwauk; J. J. Roberts, Keewatin; John Nelson, Cohasset.

Beltrami Uninstructed.

Bemidji, Minn., May 14.—The Republican county convention here yesterday declined to instruct the delegates elected for Roosevelt. The vote was 29 to 22. The convention did, however, select nine out of eleven delegates who are pledged to Roosevelt, and it is probable that the entire delegation will cast its vote for Roosevelt. Those named for the state convention are: F. F. Arnold, Charles Gustafson, E. E. McDonald, Charles Carter, F. A. Wilson, E. H. Denu, Andrew Rood, R. F. Murphy, E. L. Oberg, William McCuaig and John Guthrie.

The convention instructed the delegates to the district convention at Thief River Falls Wednesday to use every effort to obtain the election of Frank S. Lycan of Bemidji as a delegate to the national convention. The district delegates are: F. S. Lycan, J. E. Dade, J. J. Opsahl, Dr. G. M. Palmer, John C. Parker, Joe Maloney, Gus Berg, J. J. Tagley, E. J. Swedback, Mason Head and A. R. Erickson.

Fifth District Delegates.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 14.—Roosevelt forces easily predominated in the Hennepin county Republican convention yesterday. Judge Milton D. Purdy being indorsed for delegate-at-large to the national convention, and Stanley Washburn and A. A. D. Rahn elected district delegates. The alternates are Thomas H. Salmon and Ernest Lundeen.

Ramsey for Roosevelt.

St. Paul, Minn., May 14.—Ramsey county's sixty-eight delegates to the district and state convention selected by the Ramsey county Republican convention at Federation hall yesterday were instructed for Theodore Roosevelt "first, last and all the time." The Roosevelt men were in control. There were only three La Follette delegates and but a baker's dozen for Taft. Hinch T. Halbert and George B. Edgerton of St. Paul were indorsed as delegates from the Fourth congressional district to the Chicago convention with one-half a vote each. It is expected, in the Fourth congressional district convention Wednesday noon, that Chisago and Washington counties will select one delegate each, giving them both half a vote apiece. This will give the Fourth district four delegates at the Chicago convention with one-half a vote each. It is likely that A. R. Wilkinson of Lake Elmo and Senator Johnson of Center City will be the two delegates from Chisago and Washington counties. W. W. Rich, a delegate to the state convention, announced that he would make a fight to have Senator Clapp named as a delegate-at-large.

industrial or financial institution of which some man is not the boss—and as a rule upon his devotion and activity its success depends. President Roosevelt made Taft boss of the Philippine Islands. President Taft made Goethals boss of the Panama zone. The results justified the choice, and results count.

Southern Delegates.

As matters stand today, President Taft needs but fifty-four delegates to control the convention and to secure his nomination. It is quite true that there is always the danger of Southern Republican delegations, made up mostly of mercenaries and largely of negroes, breaking away from their instructions, but it is scarcely conceivable that a gentleman who has been preaching such a sublimated type of political ethics as has Mr. Roosevelt would stoop to the methods needed to accomplish this result. The Republican national committee is controlled by friends of President Taft, which means that in cases of contested delegations—which are innumerable — the preference will be given to the Taft delegates.

To paraphrase an ancient saying, "That may not be magnificent, but it is war."

That the Taft campaign has been badly handled hardly anybody in Washington doubts. The president of the United States might well have sat in the White House and issued from time to time a dignified statement answering the direct charges brought against him by Col. Roosevelt. It is true that with his engaging manner and a face that makes even the stranger admire him on first acquaintance, Taft does make friends wherever he goes. But with all his travel, and he has been of all our presidents the most itinerant, he yet can never make himself known to one out of twenty of the voters in the next election.

Looking back on political history during the present generation we find that the candidate who stayed at home and let the voters come to him was usually successful. Cleveland and McKinley were shining illustrations of this truth. No man ever traveled wider or farther than Bryan, but the eagle of success never perched upon his banner. Today, without wishing to express any particular preference, I believe that Governor Woodrow Wilson would be stronger had he stayed at home and attended to the public affairs with which he was intrusted as have Governor Harmon, Oscar Underwood, Champ Clark and Governor Marshall.

Roosevelt and His Strength.

The Hon. Henry Watterson has advanced the theory that Roosevelt is crazy. That proposition will not hold. He is the coolest, sanest plotter for his own advancement that the United States has known since the days of Aaron Burr. Col. Roosevelt said: "I took Panama and let congress debate afterwards." Burr tried to take the southern possessions of the United States and make of them an empire of which he should be the ruler. Burr was balked, but Roosevelt won in an enterprise equally lawless.

It would be more advantageous just now to discuss the question of the Roosevelt strength in getting votes. That he is a popular idol there is no doubt, but in a long service as a political correspondent I have seen Bryan draw bigger crowds in such cities as Chicago, Philadelphia, New York and Boston than Roosevelt ever did.

But somehow the crowds that cheered and fought to get close to the Democratic leader did not go to the polls.

With the added dignity of two terms in the White House, Mr. Roosevelt does not today get greater throngs to listen to him than did Bryan even in the days of his waning strength in 1908. Great audiences do not as a rule mean great votes. Bryan proved that in the past. Roosevelt is likely to demonstrate it again in the present.

There are many people who dread the Roosevelt strength and yet who are willing to have it tested. It is well known that he has never been up against a hard political fight and the wisest politicians are inclined to believe that he could never win one—certainly not with the third term handicap on his shoulders.

PLAN TO CARE FOR THE POOR

periodicals that shall lie between the deadness of officialism on one side and sensationalism on the other, and also that a commission be named to study the difficulties before the periodicals and present a plan next April which will do away with the monetary loss.

Would Keep Amusement Ban.

Unless the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church overrules the action of the committee on the state of the church, that part of the famous paragraph 260 of the church discipline which prohibits dancing, card-playing and kindred amusements will remain a law of the church.

By a vote of 100 to 51, the entire committee voted to reject the report of the majority of the sub-committee, which favored the elimination of a portion of the paragraph and leaving the amusement question to the "conscience of the individual member." Dr. James R. Day, chancellor of Syracuse university, Syracuse, N. Y., chairman of the sub-committee which favored striking out that section of the paragraph, served notice on the committee that a minority report would be made to the conference.

Debate Was Strenuous.

Debate in the committee on the question was strenuous. Pleas were made by delegates from foreign lands to retain the paragraph, Dr. Ei Yung, a Chinese delegate, through an interpreter making an effective speech. A. J. Wallace, lieutenant governor of California and chairman of the committee, also made an address in favor of striking out the "catalogue" of prohibitive amusements.

The action was taken by the committee less than one hour after an address delivered by Rev. William A. Sunday, the evangelist, who at two meetings in which the hall was filled told of his conversion. Mr. Sunday, whose coming before the business session of the conference was opposed last week on the ground that he might speak on the amusement question and thus affect legislation before the conference, did not touch upon the topic at any time. He was given an ovation at both meetings.

Last night's session of the conference was given over to the report of the committee on books, and addresses by John A. Patten, Chattanooga, Tenn., chairman of the committee; Homer Eaton, New York, publishing agent; John T. McFarland, New York; Claudius Spencer, Chicago; R. J. Cooke, New York, and H. C. Jennings, Cincinnati.

The report of the committee declares that it is not ready at the present to advocate a consolidation of the Western, Northeastern and Central Advocates, official organ of the church, but urges that a commission of five be appointed to study the situation with regard to the loss of money in handling the periodicals, to report next April to the committee.

SELL BONDS, SAYS SMITH

ties, cities, towns, school districts, drainage districts and villages of Minnesota is used to enhance the development and prosperity of this state. The money loaned to Virginia, Alabama, Massachusetts, Tennessee, Delaware, Utah and Louisiana is used to enhance the development and prosperity of those states.

It seems hardly necessary to state that besides conserving the state's permanent funds to the best possible advantage, it is the duty of this board to do all that may be consistent with that obligation to promote the development and prosperity of Minnesota. Nor is it necessary to state that the people of Minnesota are as deserving of all possible help from the state as are the people of Virginia, Alabama, Massachusetts, Tennessee, Delaware, Utah and Louisiana.

What Is Now Being Done.

In proposing what is in part a new policy of investing the state's permanent funds, it may be profitable first to analyze the results of what we are doing with them now. The money in these funds is derived in large part from the sale of state lands, together with the interest on deferred payments. These funds come largely from men who have braved the discomforts and hardships of the wilderness to make homes for themselves and their families; and in making homes for themselves, often at the cost of great toil and endurance, they are putting new lands on the tax rolls, contributing to the wealth of the state not only directly but indirectly to a large extent still, and increasing the value of the state's land yet unoccupied.

While Minnesota is sending this money out of the state to be loaned in distant states, these settlers and their neighbors are borrowing money for constructive purposes, all of which work to the benefit of the whole state; building schools, making roads, draining submerged lands, etc. The state's funds, which these settlers have largely contributed, not being available, they have been forced to borrow where and how they could.

While the state is getting a revenue of 3 per cent on its foreign bonds, these citizens of Minnesota are paying from 5 to 6 per cent for money spent in developing the state, besides the commissions and premiums often exacted by private money lenders.

Why Bonds Should Be Sold.

There are three angles to this question, on any one of which a policy of disposing of foreign bonds for investment in home bonds can easily be justified:

First—The state can get a larger rate of interest on investments in home bonds than it is getting from its investments abroad, and it never will get a smaller rate.

Second—The sub-divisions of the state can get a better rate of interest from the state than they can get from private money lenders.

Third—The state's money can profitably be kept at home, to be added to the domestic circulation, forming a gain that is in addition to those in the foregoing propositions.

Taking all three propositions, the gain to the state at large by adopting a new policy in the investment of the permanent funds will be immeasurable. It may be said that without selling, the Virginia bonds the state has enough money to take care of all local demands. That may be true at times, so far as the applications received are concerned, but it is never true at all times, and it would not be true at all if word went forth that the state had brought its money back home to be available for use in various public works of local development, all of which contribute to the growth and development of the state as a whole.

It has been said also that if it were known that this board had adopted this policy, the application for loans from local subdivisions would be so great that the state's surplus would quickly be invested and many applications would have to be rejected. That may be true, but if the state's resources were all loaned out to its own subdivisions, its answer to those seeking loans would be much more satisfactory to the public than the answer it must make now, which is that it can loan no money to a township to build its road, to a school district to construct a school house, to a county to build roads or drain swamp lands, or to a city to pave its streets and provide parks, because, forsooth, its money is all down in Virginia or Alabama being used in the development of those states.

Present Policy Not Fair.

The present policy is not fair to the permanent funds because it is yielding a smaller revenue than could be had from a policy of fostering domestic development.

It is not fair to the men who are developing the partially settled portions of the state, because it is forcing them to pay more than they should pay for the money they need to educate their children, to make their waste lands available, or to build roads over which their products may be hauled to the waiting market.

It is not fair to the state as a whole for these two reasons, and it is unfair to the state as a whole because this money which might be available to increase the currency circulation of Minnesota, on which Minnesota credit and industry depends, is sent to other states to perform a similar office there.

If it were needful, one might pause at this point to compare the character of the people of the states which Minnesota money is fostering, with the people of this state who must go elsewhere for the money they need for local development.

When the settlers of Minnesota lands pay money into the state treasury for the benefit of the school fund, and yet must yield to the exactions of private money lenders when they wish to borrow money for development purposes, a monstrous wrong is done to those who are making possible the future greatness of the state, which every citizen confidently expects, and which every public official, as well as private citizen, should do his utmost to realize.

When the state of Minnesota loans its money abroad when it is needed in Minnesota, a monstrous wrong is done to the cause of state development.

When the state of Minnesota contents itself with smaller revenues from its surplus than it could gain by a public-spirited policy of loaning its money at home, a monstrous wrong is done to the public school fund of the state.

When the state of Minnesota deliberately sends out of the state millions from its surplus which might, by the adoption of a wise and profitable policy, be kept at home to increase the available supply of money, a needless wrong is done the commercial and industrial interests of the state.

All Foreign Bonds Should Be Sold.

I believe that the Virginia bonds should be sold and the proceeds invested in the bonds of the sub-divisions of the state. I believe that as soon as practicable the other foreign bonds held by the state should be disposed of and the proceeds made available for domestic development. I believe that this board should send out word that hereafter those who administer the state's permanent funds will follow consistently a policy of conserving domestic interests and local development first, and that no Minnesota funds shall be loaned abroad hereafter unless there is no occupation for them at home.

I have no doubt whatever about these propositions.

That the state can get better interest on its home investments than it can on its foreign investments; but that even if it got only the same interest it is better to invest at home than abroad because of the incalculable benefits to the state at large involved in keeping the state's money in the state.

That the subdivisions of the state can be given a better rate of interest by the state than they can hope to get from private money lenders, besides the saving in premiums and commissions.

That the advantage to the commercial and industrial interests of the state in having the state's cash kept at home will be great.

That there will be a demand from local subdivisions of the state for every dollar in the state's surplus as soon as it is made known that the state has adopted a policy of giving preference to home demands for loans.

I believe, in short, that this policy of investing the permanent funds in works of domestic development will work to the advantage of the funds themselves, of the state at large, and of those who are working to develop the state and make it grow in wealth and population. I believe that the present policy of promoting the growth of other states by investments there never should have been adopted, and the fact that a wrong policy has been begun is no argument against changing it to the right policy.

No more Minnesota funds should be invested in the bonds of other states. The funds now so invested should be recalled as soon as it is practicable to do so, and a beginning should be made immediately by the sale of the Virginia bonds. Very respectfully,

WALTER J. SMITH,
State Treasurer.

ful manner in which they have conducted the situation during the six weeks of idleness.

A majority of the delegates were sent to the convention without instructions.

Although there is a feeling among the men that the agreement will be ratified, there has been no actual lining up of delegates to see how they stand.

The members of the executive board of the three districts were in session at the miners' headquarters until early this morning. They took up the tentative agreement and while no official announcement was made, it is known they decided to report the agreement to the convention without recommendation.

The convention will last several days and as the agreement is not satisfactory to many of the miners, it is expected there will be a warm debate.

SIX MEN ENTOMBED IN CAVE-IN IN MINE AT IRONWOOD, MICH.

the ground started to crumble onto them. Rushing into another drift, which they believed would be safe, the men were buried alive. The dead are:

JOHN ZEMBO.
FRANK JASZCZAK.
OSCAR KANGAS.
CHARLES NELMARK.
AUGUST CLYS.
JACOB ANDERSON.
VINCENT ZAMBROWITZ.
BERT JACISIS.
TOM RUSIK.
GEORGE HANKIN.
KARALY MAJIRSKI.
JOHN JKATCH.
PETER WILJA.

Rescue crews worked all night in an endeavor to reach the imprisoned men, but at 9 o'clock this morning all hope of finding any alive was abandoned with the finding of two dead bodies.

The drift in which the men lost their lives had just been retimbered. One of the racks worked loose and the timbers gave way, releasing an avalanche of earth and ore.

The cave-in occurred 2,000 feet underground. Forty men were working in that section of the mine on the twentieth level. They heard the timbers breaking in the drift above them and tried to reach places of safety. Thirteen failed and were buried in the fall.

A relief crew recovered two bodies and it is expected the others will be reached in a few hours.

The mine is operated by the Oliver Iron Mining company.

His schedule for the day called for stops at Alliance, Canton, Massillon, Akron, Kent, Ravenna, Warren, Niles, and a night speech in Youngstown. In all, the program was arranged for visits to six counties of the state, Columbiana, Stark, Summit, Portage, Trumbull and Mahoning.

HUERTA MOVES UPON REBELS

Mexican Commander Orders Advance—Battle Expected Wednesday.

El Paso, Tex., May 14.—Gen. Huerta, commander of the federal troops, with headquarters at Conejos, recently abandoned by the rebels, today ordered an advance on the main body of the Orozco army gathered at Escalon and Rellano. These points are about 400 miles south of the American border on the Mexican Central railroad.

Advices from Huerta's camp were to the effect that the federal forces would press forward to follow up the decisive advantage gained in the fighting Sunday, and that a battle may be expected early tomorrow. The rebels have had nearly forty-eight hours in which to recover themselves from the defeat administered by Huerta's command through the superiority of his artillery, and last reports from insurrecto headquarters were that Orozco was confident of holding the positions now occupied by his men in the hills of Reliano.

HAIR LOSS IS NOT NECESSARY; SAVE IT WITH--NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Approaching baldness, while frequently contemplated with misgivings, is nevertheless accepted as inevitable. It is not necessary to become bald. Baldness can be prevented.

Loss of hair is due to the activity of the germ which causes dandruff. Newbro's Herpicide is the first remedy ever compounded which absolutely destroys this germ. Used regularly and intelligently, Herpicide will remove every trace of dandruff and prevents the hair from coming out. The terrible itching of the scalp which is so annoying, stops with the first application.

This valuable scalp prophylactic adds luster and brilliancy to the hair and renders the scalp perfectly healthy. This permits the hair, hitherto stunted by the presence of dandruff, to grow freely and luxuriantly. It takes on a natural gloss and beauty where before it was dry, brittle, uneven and coming out with every combing.

Newbro's Herpicide is the first and original dandruff germ destroyer and costs no more than the off brand and so-called "just as good" remedy.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50-cent and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications at the best barber shops.

LET'S STOP NAGGING.

Undoubtedly there are many citizens of Duluth who will sympathize with the views of a prominent citizen, which appeared in the Open Court column on this page last evening, deprecating the character of some of the criticism that is being made of the conditions that prevail in Duluth.

There was a time when Duluth criticized itself too little. It sat confidently back, reflecting on the manifest destiny that must make it great, and doing little to realize that destiny.

When the city began to realize that, in spite of the manifest advantages with which nature had blessed it, other towns less fortunately situated were growing faster, a period of self-analysis and self-questioning began.

That period was the best thing that had happened to Duluth for a generation. It is due to that new spirit that the Commercial club took on new life, that the traffic commission was created, that the agricultural activity of the club took on a form so valuable and constructive, that the industrial bureau which is now formed was planned, and that many other constructive activities were set afoot.

The newspapers, as it was their duty to do, participated in the agitation that led to these things, and it will be admitted, we believe, that they did their share in crystalizing public sentiment into organized action.

This period of constructive criticism made Duluth alive and insured its future.

But all these activities are organized and in action. The fruits of them already are being harvested. The future promises harvests greater still.

It is a question, therefore, if criticism, unduly prolonged especially without being accompanied by constructive suggestion, is not being sadly overdone. The period of criticism has given way to the period of constructive work, and that work is being done by well-organized, well-manned and well-equipped civic bodies. To the Commercial club has lately been added the Greater Duluth club, with a program of construction, not criticism, and this body is about to engage in many useful activities, including the important one of arranging with the railroads for regular and cheap excursions into Duluth from surrounding towns.

Constant public nagging about conditions which these organizations are busy correcting by negotiations with the railroads and other interests will not help in the least, and they will inevitably result in creating a wrong impression of the conditions and prospects of Duluth both at home and abroad. The Herald's correspondent intimates that constant circulation of claims, largely exaggerated for rhetorical purposes, that Duluth's progress is slow, that its conditions are bad, and that it is a hard town to get to or to buy goods from, is actually having an evil effect upon patrons of Duluth commercial houses, and that it is also having a bad effect on local sentiment. It is tending to create a pessimistic feeling where conditions warrant a feeling highly optimistic.

There should be criticism where criticism is called for, but never unless it is accompanied by the suggestion of a remedy. But when the things that have held Duluth back in the past are all located and understood, and when organized agencies of public sentiment are working industriously and energetically to overcome these obstacles—especially when most of the obstacles are either already overcome or in a fair way soon to be overcome—the time for nagging is past, and the time for boostig and optimism has come.

It should be said that the spirit behind this unnecessary carping criticism is not the spirit of the citizenship of Duluth. This ought to be made plain that Duluth's position may be rightly understood both abroad and at Duluth.

* * * *

In Duluth, every prospect pleases. This community has every natural advantage that any community could hope for. It has an aroused, determined, energetic and organized citizenship, engaged through liberally equipped agencies in working out its destiny. Its agricultural bureau, its traffic commission, its industrial bureau, its Commercial club, its Greater Duluth club, its citizens generally, are working faithfully, singlemindedly and devotedly to bring Duluth into its own.

This is not the place, and now is not the time, for nagging and knocking. There isn't the slightest reason why any citizen should be a knocker, and it is fair to say that Duluth has less of this breed than it ever had before. There are a thousand reasons why every citizen should be a booster, and it is fair to say that never before were so many of its citizens actively and effectively engaged in the joyous occupation of boosting.

Let's stop nagging. Let's stop knocking. Let's work together. Let's put the emphasis on the good things, and the soft pedal on the bad things, leaving these to the organized agencies that have no other business before them but to cure them. The cure—and the only cure—for bad things is to put good things in their place. That's what Duluth is doing. That is what all these organized agencies are for, and that is what they are spending their time and money in doing.

Let us take a new and firm stand on this ground: That Duluth's business never was better than it is today, and that it is getting better every hour. That Duluth's prospects never were more glorious than they are today, and that they grow in size and beauty as Duluth realizes them. That it is the duty of every citizen to be a booster, not a knocker. That every well-wisher of Duluth, in carrying out his own personal plans for Duluth's benefit, will look to it that they are not interfering with and hampering the plans of those officially appointed to conduct such work.

Let's all quit knocking, and let's all keep on boosting. This is the best town on earth to live in, the best town on earth to make money in, the town with the best prospects, the town most certain to realize its prospects, the town that means to get what it has coming to it, with soft words if it can but with hard knocks if knocks are necessary.

Let's count our golden hopes, and not nurse our peevish grudges and our foolish fears. Let's not forget to glorify the booster and to set our heels upon the knocker. Let's avoid crossfire work, and all get behind and support the organized, co-ordinated and harmonized campaign for a bigger and better Ultimate Duluth, in which there is work for everybody who is willing to work.

THE Y. W. C. A.

Thursday the members of the Young Women's Christian association begin an eight-day campaign to raise eight thousand dollars.

The association has made it clear that the money is needed. The institution itself Duluth needs very much, for there is scarcely another in Duluth that fills a greater need and fills it more effectively. If it came to a choice between supporting the various institutions of a philanthropic character, in part or in whole, in this city, there are few who wouldn't place the Y. W. C. A. well toward the top of the list of first choices.

The institution is deserving. It does good work. It offers a home to young women breadwinners, and it strives to make it as homelike as possible. Money contributed to support it and to increase its efficiency is money well bestowed.

The Herald bespeaks for the campaigning teams which will start out Thursday a cordial and sympathetic reception.

Ask Ed Smith.

By the way, how did Governor Eberhart vote in the primary?

TO THOSE WHO WAIT.

Yesterday the house ratified the senate resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution providing for the direct election of United States senators. It requires only the signature of the president to be effective. After that three-fourths of the states must ratify it before it becomes a part of the Constitution.

This is a long step ahead, and it has taken a long time.

The builders of the Constitution feared the people. There was but one vote in the constitutional convention for the direct election of the president. All but one member thought it necessary to interpose the device of the electoral college between the people and the presidency. There was substantial unanimity on the point that the senate ought to be far removed from popular impulses.

Long ago the people, despite the Constitution, made a figurehead out of the electoral college, and in effect they have voted directly on the presidency for years.

A majority of the states have achieved about the same result on elections to the senate, through the Oregon plan and the direct primary.

Here are two very fundamental changes in the Constitution that have come about by evolution; yet no such fate has overtaken the Republic as the Tories are predicting as a result of present tendencies toward real democracy.

The move to make senators directly responsive to the people was proposed as long ago as 1826. The campaign for it has been active for a generation. For twenty years there has been no question about what the people wanted, and no question about the need of the change. Yet congressional action has but now come about. It takes a long time to accomplish reform in this government. Nor is the process ended until thirty-six states ratify the amendment. But that oughtn't to take much longer than is required to get the legislatures together.

Speaking of Unknowns.

About the blackest dark horses of the campaign are the candidates for vice president.

CITY GARBAGE COLLECTION.

The city council took the right attitude last evening toward the report and recommendations of the Woman's Council on the municipal garbage collection plan.

Recognizing the value of the hard and thoroughgoing work that has been done by the women in preparing their report, the council appointed a special committee to co-operate with the Woman's Council and the health authorities in working out legislation providing for a complete plan of city garbage collection.

This is a wise and public-spirited step that does the council credit.

ENTERPRISE.

The members of the adult Bible class of the Second Presbyterian church in the West End furnish an example to the citizenship of Duluth.

Alongside the church is a vacant lot which has been left to run as it would. The result, of course, is that the lot is unsightly. So the members of the Bible class have determined to clean it up and make it sightly. Sunday an appointment was made by the members to meet this week, each armed with spade, shovel and rake, and to get busy. That will be a different looking lot when these Bible students get through with it.

This is one of the fruits of the excellent neighborhood beautification scheme planned by the West End Commercial club, and many more may be expected to follow.

About the best way to manage this neighborhood improvement work is through the block improvement idea. Get all the people living in a given block to agree to clean up their own yards, to keep the lawns clean and green, to plant flowers and shrubs, and to take care of the boulevards in front. If there are vacant lots, they can do as the Bible class plans—get together at an appointed time and clean them.

One such block will force every block around it, by the force of its example, to do the same thing. Each such block is a radiating center of a city beautification impulse. A year or two would bring wonderful results in the appearance of the city.

How on earth did a man with so poor a memory as Daniel G. Reid has shown manage to get into any position of responsibility?

DOLLAR JINGOISM

By SAVOYARD.

Certain "interests" seek to involve this country in complications with Mexico and they resort to the same methods that were so successful fourteen years ago when our country was bunced into an inglorious war with poor old Spain that had been bed-ridden since the time of Cromwell, since Richelieu, in fact. In 1898 man's inhumanity to man was a many fold more abundant in New York than it was in Cuba. There was a hundred times more misfortune and grief and misery among the poor on Manhattan island than could be mustered in all the departments of "the Gem of the Antilles." There was more hunger in a single ward of the American metropolis than in the possessions Spain had left in our hemisphere.

I do not believe that all history besides can show so mean, abject vile, base demagogy as was exhibited by either side of the Fifty-fifth congress. Moloch was a pattern of chivalry in comparison. I never saw or heard of as much sham patriotism, as much disgusting cant about liberty, as was poured into both houses of congress when the yaller journals were filled with yaller lies about Cuba, the last year of Spanish rule in that island.

I know McKinley is a political saint for his death. And I know that he was the weakest man, morally, ever elevated to the office of president. Had he been a Cleveland, or a Reed, we would not have been dragged into a disgraceful war. There is an organization that calls itself the "Spanish War Veterans." They are "veterans" of a "conflict" in which it took a soldier with extraordinary talent for battle to get hurt. The "war" could have been brought to a successful issue as soon without the aid of a single volunteer, and with the employment of but half the regular army, the navy doing its part as it ever did. All the casualties in battle of that "war," on land and sea, did not cost as much blood as a single skirmish between the armies of Grant and Lee in 1864 that either commander would have regarded as nontrivial a circumstance to report to his war department.

But they raised hundreds of thousands of volunteers, great numbers of whom died in camp because of corrupt and inefficient administration. They were fed on embalmed beef and other unwholesome foods. Contractors waxed fat. The prodigality of dishonest expenditure would have astonished the rotten government of Napoleon the Little. There was graft unconfined as the most powerful people in the world waged "a war for humanity" against one of the weakest people of Europe.

As for the soldiers, volunteers and regulars, they only required a field to approve their valor; but it takes two to make a fight, and there can be no fight between a giant and a pigmy. Yet some good came of the thing. The South showed that she was as willing and as intrepid to battle for the Union as she had been to die for the Confederacy, and that was worth a deal of trouble, pain, and treasure. Possibly it would have taken two additional generations to convince the North that the South was loyal to the flag if this "war" had not come on to demonstrate it.

We got the Philippine archipelago and that possession has cost hundreds of millions and a bloodier war with the natives than that with Spain, and we got the enmity of every Latin American people, all of whom look on us with jealousy, with envy and with malice. That is a reason that would make it exceedingly difficult for us to acquire an adequate share of the South American trade, even if our tariff laws, which forbid that trade, were repealed.

Americans have vast interests in Mexico, where American capital to the amount of hundreds of millions has been invested. Nothing would suit certain "interests" better than to involve our government in a war of conquest having for its ultimate object the annexation of the Mexican republic. That is why so many yaller tales of oppression and outrage visited on our citizens down there are heralded to inflame the public mind as it was in 1898 when we waged the war against poor old Spain. Of course we would conquer the country, but it would cost a great deal of blood and treasure and for years Mexico would be governed by our military satraps; but in the end it would prove a profitable venture in dollars and dimes.

And we have fallen on times when the common belief, or rather the consensus of opinion, is that whatever is profitable to do is profoundest and safest policy to engage in. There is a widespread conviction that the chief mission of man in this world is to put money in his purse. It is the case now that poverty is disgraceful and a great many are ready to conclude that it is criminal. With covetous eyes we look on Mexico and see in it a country the most prodigally endowed by nature north of the Equator. It is peopled by a race both incapable of and unwilling to develop it. Therefore it is a duty as well as a profit to seize the land and exploit it.

The administration at Washington is urged to do this thing. The inferior must recede before the superior. The Mexican could not stand the pace we set and he would gradually disappear. The Saxon would displace the Latin. The English-American would succeed to the inheritance of the Spanish-American. Ours is a land-hungry race. We are becoming "crowded"—that is, we think we are. What is more natural than that we cross the frontier where there is plenty of room—the finest climate, the richest soil, the grandest forests, the fruitfulest mines north of the Orinoco—a land capable of supporting a population double that we have?

Dollar diplomacy will make the way easy for the army to enter the field. A single campaign and the country would be in our possession. Then our people, famished for land, would swarm into the country, form territorial governments, inchoate states of our Union, and the triumph of the elect would be accomplished. This is the new "manifest destiny," and some day that destiny will be an accomplished fact. But it is not very Christian.

* * *

And every good man should seek to defer the work as long as possible. When it is done it will be a rascally piece of business, but this is a world in which a great deal of dirty work has to be done. Perhaps after all it is but the nature of self-preservation. If the unexpected should happen and the German navy should overcome the British navy there is nothing more certain than that Germany would denounce the Monroe doctrine, seize Brazil, and in our war to maintain it Germany would have for allies all Latin America—even Cuba. That may come, even if Germany despairs of licking England and concludes to expand in South America.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters should not exceed 200 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

WEARY OF KICKS AND THE KICKERS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The letter in The Herald last evening from "A Citizen of Duluth" interested me intensely, for it is a subject that has been in my mind for many months. I believe this city has its worst enemies right here at home. We have too many people who are sitting around waiting for an opportunity to jump on any new project, and who are too willing to pick flaws in anything Duluth has, from weather to city government. Any Duluth institution seems to be a target for abuse and criticism. What is the use in quarreling with your bread and butter? Duluth is a mighty good town, taken all in all, and has the greatest possibilities of any city in America at the present time. Its worst enemies are here at home, and you will hear more good things about Duluth in Chicago or New York or the Twin Cities than you will right here at home. More power to "A Citizen of Duluth," whoever he is. I have grown weary of hearing the continual kicking of the residents of this city, and I am going to start a one-man club of protest. Whenever I hear a kicker on the street, on the cars, or in any public place, I am going to the mat with him, right there, and take him up on his kicks, even if he is a stranger. Who will join me?

AN OPTIMIST.

Duluth, May 14.

Uncle Sam a Big Landowner.

Kansas City Star: Soon the United States may say with England, "the sun never sets on our empire." Few persons could name offhand the possessions owned by Uncle Sam. They are Alaska, Aleutian islands, Baker island, canal zone, Guam, Hawaiian islands, Howland island, Marcus island, Midway, Wake and Johnstone islands, Philippine islands, Porto Rico and Tutuila.

The size of some of these possessions is surprising. For intsance, Alaska, which was bought from Russia for 2 cents an acre, is as large as the German empire, France and Spain taken together.

The Promises of Immortality.

From George D. Prentice's "Man's Higher Destiny": It cannot be that the earth is man's only abiding place. It cannot be that our life is a mere bubble cast up by eternity to float a moment on its waves and then sink into nothingness. Else why is it that the glorious aspirations which leap like angels from the temple of our hearts are forever wandering unsatisfied? Why is it that all the stars that hold their festival around the midnight throne are set above the grasp of our limited faculties, forever mocking us with their unapproachable glory? And, finally, why is it that bright forms of human beauty presented to our view are taken from us, leaving the thousand streams of our affections to flow back in Alpine torrents upon our hearts? There is a realm where the rainbow never fades; where the stars will be spread out before us like islands that slumber in the ocean; and where the beautiful beings which now pass before us like shadows will stay in our presence forever.

Criminals Just Like Other Folks.

Hampton Magazine: "How do criminals differ from other folks?" I fired the question point blank at William A. Pinkerton.

"They don't. Criminals are just like other folks."

"You don't agree with the scientists of the Lombroso school, then, that there is a distinct criminal class?"

"Distinctly not. I have been for more than fifty years in almost constant association with crime and lawbreakers. I may fairly claim to have had exceptional opportunities for the study and observation of the operation of the human mind and the motives that actuate those whom society terms criminals. I have reached certain conclusions which do not agree with the theories of some eminent scientists nor altogether harmonize with the teachings of the sociological schools. I have no new theory to advance, but it seems to me some facts have been generally overlooked.

"No one can study criminals at close range and believe in the existence of a criminal class, regardless of what Lombroso and his disciples may claim. It should not require any lengthy argument to prove this assertion. If there were a criminal class, sharply defined as such and differentiated from the rest of the human race by ascertainable characteristics, then it must follow that there would be a non-criminal class, comprising the rest of the human race and as sharply distinguished as the supposed criminal class.

"Humanity is not thus divided into criminals and non-criminals. There is but one classification that can be made—the class of those who have committed crimes and the class of those who have not yet committed crimes. Within certain limits, varying with the individual, every human being is a potential criminal. I have seen this illustrated so often that I am never surprised to learn that any man or woman, however highly placed and however highly esteemed, has done something which the law forbids and for which society demands a penalty. On the other hand, however—and this is the bright side of the shield—every criminal is potentially an honest man, and with the right kind of encouragement from society will remain honest by preference. It is my observation of hundreds of criminals whose reform has been complete and permanent that makes this conclusion a definite one. It is this capacity of humanity to turn from evil ways to methods of life which society recognizes as right and proper that really proves my first conclusion, which is that crime is an accident to which a moment's carelessness may subject any living person. If these criminals who have reformed had belonged to a different order of humanity from those of us who have so far been fortunate enough not to have yielded to the impulse to crime, how could they have become members of the order to which we profess to belong?"

Stupefying a Waiter.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Here's the way to get ahead of the cafe waiters that know it all. The recipe was handed us by a restaurant haunter. He does it as follows:

He seats himself and says: "Waiter, have you any nice Gorgonzola cheese?"

"Yes, sir," says the waiter. "Our Gorgonzola is very fine."

"Is it fresh?"

"Just made, sir."

"Is it nice and white?"

"Believe me, it is as white as snowballs."

"Good. And is it hard in the middle?"

"Like a rock, sir."

"Thanks, George! Is your name George? Well, thanks, anyhow. Let me tell you something. Gorgonzola cheese should never be fresh. It should never be white, but green. It should never be hard in the middle, but mushy. If you are not a liar you have no good Gorgonzola. If you have any good Gorgonzola, you are a liar, George. In either case—well, bring us two Swiss sandwiches with mustard."

The waiter then loses a whole night's sleep studying.

Presidents Few in Those Days.

Kansas City Star: In Checotah, Okla., at the State Orphans' Home, there was a little chap whose wit was ahead of his memory. His teacher, a spinster of uncertain age, was having a time teaching him the presidents in rotation. Finally, after repeated failures, she became disgusted at his density.

"Johnny, Johnny," she admonished, "why, when I was your age I could say the presidents' names forwards and backwards, and begin in the middle and go either way."

She was much taken aback by the reply:

"Yes, but when you were my age there wasn't so many presidents."

Why Deep Streams Run Still.

William Smith: Deep streams run still—and why? Not because there are no obstacles, but because they altogether overflow those stones or rocks round which the shallow stream has to make its noisy way.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1892.

During the month of July, Duluth will be visited by an excursion of the creamery men of the Northwest. It is expected several hundred people will come.

R. J. Wenker of West Duluth was agreeably surprised yesterday by the receipt of a diploma and handsome medal from the Paris exposition. These are presented to Mr. Wenker on account of the superiority of his invention of a metallic dental plate.

At the annual election of officers of the West Duluth Lawn Tennis club, S. S. Williamson was chosen president, R. P. Gogin secretary and A. Smith treasurer.

TALKING ABOUT DULUTH.

They May Regret It.

Mankato Free Press: The Democratic state convention will meet in Duluth in June. We advise the delegates to take along their winter underwear.

Or Something Like That.

Coleraine Optic: The voters of Duluth didn't do anythink to the political bosses. Hereafter if officers don't do the proper thing they'll be taken out on the lake and touch botton at 200 fathoms.

They Don't Belong Here.

Stillwater Gazette: A couple of mashers got theirs up at Duluth a few days since. They were caught in the act, jerked to jail and the next morning the judge gave them a choice of two dishes—$75 fine each or take sixty days in jail. That gave them a pain in the stomach, the cold sweat came out on their classic (?) brows, and they wished they were a thousand miles away from Duluth. And if they had been the city would not have been a loser.

And They'll Get It.

Aitkin Age: An illegal voter at Duluth got an indeterminate penitentiary sentence for casting a fraudulent ballot. People are demanding a fair election and an honest count.

And Proud of Herself.

Bemidji Sentinel: Instead of sending them to jail, Duluth has rented a school building in which it proposes to reform girls guilty of petty offenses. Duluth has a habit of doing things which make us folks in Northern Minnesota proud of her.

More Coming.

Cass Lake Times: Duluth has shown her progressive proclivities by a majority of more than four-fifths of the voters. Duluth is nothing if not progressive.

Attracting Attention.

Chicago News: Duluth is to have a penal farm where its drunkards and other weak citizens will be assisted to reform. Duluth's work in this field will bear careful study.

Another Jump Soon.

St. Paul Dispatch: Duluth adopted the referendum, initiative and recall at its election on Tuesday while we were doing the same thing and also adopting the commission plan. Duluth has started well toward the commission plan and should be able to make it in two jumps.

"The 'Open' Shop."

Elbridge H. Neal in the North American Review: We do not believe in the open shop, because we do not believe there are any good open shops; all are bad and some are worse. The union carpenters, by united effort, established a working day consistent with our present-day civilization and established a minimum wage; any man not capable of earning that minimum wage in the carpenter trade has missed his calling, and perhaps a good lawyer or a good policeman has been spoiled by having his talents misdirected; he should choose some other walk in life more in keeping with his qualifications.

Any member of the carpenters' union who has demonstrated to his employer that he is worth more than the minimum rate is at liberty to accept remuneration commensurate to the value of his services and no protest will be forthcoming, unless perchance from a jealous fellow-workman.

The open shop that pays its employes anywhere near the minimum established by the union does so because it knows that its employes can join the union and secure employment in union shops or jobs. This condition is taken advantage of by the employes, and they secure the approximate equivalent of the union rate without being obliged to contribute dues or assessments to a trade union that through its efforts has benefited the non-union man as well as members of the organization. This is what we might term keen business acumen, but questionable principle.

This kind of an open shop gives encouragement to the proprietors of others not so well situated, and the union man finds himself confronted with open-shop products manufactured by women and girls who work ten hours per day and receive from 8 to 10 cents per hour, as is the case at the present time. Naturally, the members of the carpenters' union are fighting desperately to prevent the 180 mills and factories in and around New York which employ union men from becoming storage warehouses for wood-trim and doors manufactured under non-union conditions, and at an average wage oftentimes less than one-half the minimum established by the unions and for a week of sixty hours or more.

Alexander's Ragtime Ride.

From Fred C. Kelly's Washington letter to the Cleveland Plain Dealer: Representative Alexander of Missouri was obliged to hasten to Albany, a little town in his district, from a point forty miles away, to attend an important political conference, and the only possible way he could get there was on an early morning freight train. He learned that the freight train never carried passengers, but, as it was his only chance, he determined to climb aboard anyhow, and see if he couldn't persuade the conductor to regard his case as exceptional.

When the conductor entered the caboose, just as the train was pulling out, the first thing he saw was Alexander.

"Whutinell you doin' here?" he inquired.

"I'm obliged to get to Albany this morning, and this was my only chance," replied the candidate for congress.

"Didn't you know this train didn't carry passengers?"

"Yes, I heard so, but it was so important for me to get to Albany, I thought we could arrange it."

"Well, we can't arrange it," growled the conductor. "I couldn't carry my own brother. If I took you I'd probably lose my job. So I'll have to throw you off."

"Perhaps you can put me off," said Alexander, "but it means a lot to me to get to Albany. If I miss this conference it may mean that I'll be defeated for congress."

"I'm sorry," said the conductor, "but I couldn't carry you if you were running for president. What are you, anyway, a Democrat or Republican?"

"I'm a Democrat," Alexander told him.

"Oh, well," said the conductor, "I'll take you over. Got any chewin' tobacco on you?"

When the Sun Goes North.

From Elisha Kent Kane's "The Grinnell Expedition": For some days the sun clouds at the south had been changing their character. Their edges became better defined, their extremities dentated, their color deeper as well as warmer; and from the spaces between the lines of the stratus burst out a blaze of glory typical of the longed for sun. He came at last. It was Februarg 29. Going out on deck after breakfast at 8 o'clock in the morning I found the dawning far advanced. The whole vault was bedewed with the coming day, and except Capella, the stars were gone. The southern horizon was clear. We were certain to see the sun after an absence of eighty-six days.

It had been arranged on board that all hands should give him three cheers for a greeting; but I was in no mood to join the rather sallow ragged party. I took my gun and walked over the ice about a mile away from the ship to a solitary spot where a big hummock almost hemmed me in, opening only to the south. There, Parsee like, I drank in the rosy light and watched the horns of the crescent extending themselves round towards the north. There was hardly a breath of wind, with the thermometer at only 19 degrees, and it was easy, therefore, to keep warm by walking gently up and down.

Very soon the deep crimson blush, lightening into a focus of incandescent white, showed me that the hour was close at hand. Mounting upon a crag I saw the crew of our ship formed in line upon the ice. Then came the shout from the ship—three shouts—cheering the sun. And a few moments after I fired my salute.

Leave Him Loose.

Life: The man is a maniac. Let his family and friends take him to an asylum before he does something irreparable and it is too late.—Dr. Watterson of Louisville, in the Courier-Journal.

No, leave him loose. He may bite the other candidate. Then it would be an evener fight.

SIX FALL; THREE DEAD

Three Aeroplane Accidents Are Reported on the Same Day.

Victor Louis Mason One of Those Killed in the Series.

London, May 14.—Victor Louis Mason, an American identified with extensive mining interests and at one time private secretary to the American secretary of war, Gen. R. A. Alger, and to his successor, Elihu Root, was killed while making a flight at Brooklands yesterday with the English aviator, E. V. Fisher. Fisher also was killed, by being pitched out of the machine when at a height of about 150 feet.

Fisher was about to give an exhibition and picked Mr. Mason as a passenger from among the spectators. They circled the track once, when, witnesses say, the monoplane made an abrupt turn. It wavered a moment, and then fell straight to earth. The sudden stoppage in the air threw Fisher from his seat. Mason was pinned beneath the wreckage, which caught fire, and he was badly burned before being extricated. Physicians say both men died almost immediately.

Victor Louis Mason resided in Passaic, N. J. He was born in Washington in 1870. His wife was Miss Daisy Comstock Simons of Washington. He served as private aide to Gen. Alger and Secretary Root in 1898-99. He was alternate delegate to the Republican national convention at Chicago in 1898 and was associated with Gen. Alger from 1899 to 1902. He was assistant secretary of the Republican national committee in charge of the Eastern division campaign of 1908.

Mr. Mason was identified with a number of mining enterprises and came to Europe last January for the purpose of effecting certain arrangements in connection with his business. A widow and three children survive him.

Fatality at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., May 14.—Ray Wheeler, amateur aviator, is dead, and Pete Glasser, a companion, is probably fatally injured as the result of a plunge into a telegraph pole at Kinloch park last night.

Wheeler and Glasser were thrown thirty feet from the machine. The gasoline tank exploded and set fire to the wreckage. Wheeler's skull was crushed, his right leg was broken in three places and his right arm was fractured.

Accident in Iowa.

Perry, Iowa, May 14.—Aviator Ralph Mullen was seriously injured during a flight here last night. When more than 100 feet up, his biplane turned over and fell. He suffered two broken legs, a broken shoulder bone and numerous other injuries, but probably will recover.

Harry Williams, who accompanied him on the flight, was badly bruised, but not seriously hurt.

NEBRASKA LABOR LAW IS UPHELD

Supreme Court of the United States Says It Is Valid.

Washington, May 14.—The supreme court has decided to pass on the constitutionality of the federal "white slave traffic laws."

The court also upheld the constitutionality of the Nebraska employers' liability law.

The supreme court has taken a recess until May 27, when it will meet to announce decisions.

ILLINOIS MINERS VOTE FOR NEW AGREEMENT.

Springfield, Ill., May 14.—Miners in the Illinois fields voted by a majority of almost 13,000 votes to accept the new wage agreement arranged at the Peoria conference. An increase of 5.55 per cent in the day wages and tonnage rates is granted the miners. The contract is to remain in force for two years.

CARPENTERS' STRIKE IN CINCINNATI ENDS.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 14.—Fifteen hundred carpenters who have been on strike here since May 1 will return to work as the result of an agreement signed with the Master Builders' association. The new contract includes a clause prohibiting sympathetic strikes, which the men desired to have omitted.

TWO NORTH CAROLINA VOTES FOR ROOSEVELT.

Greensboro, N. C., May 14.—Second district delegates to Republican national convention: D. W. Patrick and G. W. Staunton, instructed for Roosevelt.

A. F. OF L. OPPOSED TO RIFLES IN SCHOOLS.

Washington, May 14.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor has passed a resolution of protest against Senator Warren's bill to encourage rifle practice in the public schools, which was denounced as a movement toward militarizing the school system and un-American.

Two Children Fatally Burned.

White Earth, N. D., May 14.—Two small children of P. Wardlow were burned to death here Monday, when a can of gasoline exploded at their home. The mother was badly burned in trying to save the children and is in a critical condition.

Titanic Victims Brought Ashore.

Louisborg, N. S., May 14.—The government steamship Mont Magny has arrived with bodies of three victims of the Titanic disaster—Harold Reynolds of Toronto, C. Smith of the cooking staff, and a young Syrian girl, name unknown. These were landed here and expressed to Halifax for burial. The Mont Magny will sail again soon to continue the search.

APPLEJACK AND TEDDY

Senate Has a Bit of Fun Over Jersey Lightning During Debate.

Stone Wants Roosevelt Cartoon Reproduced in Congressional Record.

Washington, May 14.—The good old elixir known as "applejack" was eulogized in the senate by Senator Martine of New Jersey, and Senator Nelson of Minnesota was moved to make a few remarks about whisky straight, during consideration of the agricultural bill yesterday.

"You can always tell whether a man has taken whisky straight or a whisky blend by smelling his breath," declared Mr. Nelson. He said he was opposed to determining so fine a point by gross scientific standards. Senator Martine thought the main point was being lost sight of.

"What difference does it make," said he, "if the whisky is good? Pray God what does it matter if the deliciousness and the delirium of flavor are there? Come to the glorious commonwealth of New Jersey where there are rivers of an elixir known as applejack whether colored or uncolored. It is rich in aroma, delirius as an intoxicant, promoting happiness, health and longevity.

"Come."

"Why, Mr. President, after a couple of drinks of New Jersey applejack they would not be able to detect the colors of a rainbow. But, Mr. President, dismiss this question, and on adjournment I will invite you to come to New Jersey and see and taste and test for yourself. Come."

The frolic arose during debate on an amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill, recommending the purchase of a test to determine the coloring matter in whisky. The amendment was voted down.

An amendment by Senator Craford of South Dakota to appropriate $15,000 for a buffalo preserve at Wind Cave was adopted.

"Saint Roosevelt."

During the session Col. Roosevelt was again the subject of a spirited passage in the senate. Senator Stone asked permission to have reproduced in the Congressional Record a cartoon entitled "Saint Roosevelt by Roosevelt," in which the colonel was represented as throttling "trusts" with one hand and "political bosses" with the other.

"I request that the cartoon be revised," he said, "and instead of the impersonal trusts I will place McCormick of the Harvester trust in one hand and Perkins of the Steel trust in the other, and then I would have him pictured with both feet planted on the prostrate form of Munsey."

Senator Burnham, in charge of the agricultural bill, insisted that Mr. Stone's remarks had nothing to do with the subject.

Animals and Humans.

"We are considering matters pertaining to the bureau of animal industry and may well give some attention to human industry," interjected Senator Gallinger amid laughter.

Senator Smoot, chairman of the printing committee, invoked the rule which forbids illustrations in the Record.

"I take it that the senator's word-picture will go into the Record and that ought to be sufficient," said he.

"That shows the senator from Utah is not so much of a Taft man as had been supposed," returned Senator Stone, and the incident was closed.

TAKE NEWS STANDS OFF CHICAGO CORNERS.

Chicago, May 14.—The city council last night passed a resolution authorizing Mayor Harrison to instruct Chief of Police McWeeney to remove news stands from street corners in Chicago. Since the newsboys struck in sympathy with the pressmen two weeks ago, the stands have been conducted by non-union employes under police guard.

When the order was introduced, Joseph Keegan, a stereotyper, caused a commotion by rising in the gallery of the council chamber and shouting:

"Beg pardon, Mr. Chairman, but has a taxpayer any rights here?"

Mayor Harrison rapped with his gavel and when Keegan insisted on being heard, he was ejected from the city hall.

"Jack" says: "I need a good nerve tonic. I have to work very hard and am becoming almost a wreck."

Answer: Your condition is very common especially among brain workers. Make the following tonic by mixing syrup of hypophosphites comp., 5 ozs.; tincture cadomene (not cardamon), 1 oz.; and take a teaspoonful before each meal and in a few weeks your strength will be restored.

"Mrs. W." writes: "I am getting too stout for comfort and would like you to publish a safe, effective cure."

Answer: Purchase separately to avoid substitution: Aromatic elixir 5 ozs; glycol arbolene, 1 oz. Mix by shaking well and take a teaspoonful after meals for the first three days and then double the dose. Many have reported the loss of a pound of flesh a day after taking the medicine for several weeks. This should be continued until you properly reduce your weight.

"Miss K." writes: "Could you publish a remedy for liver and kidney trouble and the usual diseases that arise from that source. I am troubled with dizzy spells, dark spots before my eyes and also with rheumatism."

Answer: If you will get three grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets), and take according to directions, you will not only be relieved, but if you continue the use of these tablets you will be gradually cured of all the troubles you mention. They will purify the blood and also cure your rheumatism.

"Worried"—Your child can be easily cured of bedwetting by using tincture cubebs 1 dram; tincture rhusaromatic 2 drams, and comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz. Give him 10 to 15 drops in water before each meal. This is equally good for older people.

"Jessie Mc."—By a thorough hygienic treatment and the proper cleanliness you can restore firmness and tone to the delicate membranes and parts which have been so terribly weakened by your chronic ailment, leucorrhea. Every woman should adopt a sanitary wash or douche with syringe to preserve the health and ward off such a dreadful disease. Mix one ounce of tannic acid with two ounces of antiseptic viiane powder. Use a teaspoonful twice daily in a quart of warm water as an injection.

• • •

"Hannah" writes: "I would like to get something that would make my hair soft and fluffy. My hair is greasy and I can do nothing to keep the oil out of it."

Answer: To take the surplus oil out of the hair and keep it soft and fluffy, get a 4 oz. jar of plain yellow minyol and use it regularly. This will cure itching scalp and dandruff and make the hair grow, and you will not be bothered with stringy, straggling locks.

"Louise" writes: "I do not weigh enough for my height. I am dull and lifeless and have frequent headaches. Please advise what will help me."

Answer: Your condition is due to the lack of red blood corpuscles. I can prescribe nothing better than three grain hyponuclane tablets, which can be purchased at any up-to-date drug store in sealed cartons with full directions. These tablets will cause the body to assimilate the fatty elements of food and thus give you strength and added color to the skin. Your weight will increase and you will not be troubled with headache. These are recommended by physicians and if taken according to directions you will surely gain flesh.

"Troubled Miss G." writes: "Every winter I am troubled with severe attacks of rheumatism which sometimes keep me in bed for weeks. Please advise something for me."

Answer: My favorite prescription for rheumatism, and one that I know has cured thousands of people, is made by mixing: Iodide of potassium, 2 drams; sodium salicylate, 4 drams; wine of colchicum, one-half oz.; comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; syrup sarsaparilla, 5 ozs. Take one teaspoonful at meal time and at bed time, and you will soon be cured.

"Annette" writes: "I have been greatly annoyed lately by coughing and a tickling sensation in the throat and hoarseness after singing. My bronchial tubes are affected also."

Answer: You can be very easily cured of this bronchial trouble by using essence mentho-laxene. This relieves quickly and certainly brings about a cure, by its tonic and laxative action and therefore is superior to ordinary preparations, which only relieve. You can feel the medicine working on the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes, giving a feeling of freshness and strength to the entire system. Purchase a 2½ oz. package of essence mentho-laxene and make according to the directions on bottle and take eight to ten doses daily, and you will soon be cured of your trouble.

"N. L. O." writes: "Have suffered for years with stomach trouble and constipation. Have tried many 'cures' but they did not even relieve. I have great pain at times, especially after I eat."

Answer: Obtain tablets triopeptine and take according to directions. These tablets are pink, white and blue. Take a pink tablet after breakfast, a white tablet after dinner and a blue tablet after supper. Regular treatment with these tablets will cure any case of stomach disorder.

TENNESSEE DEPUTY KILLS TWO BROTHERS.

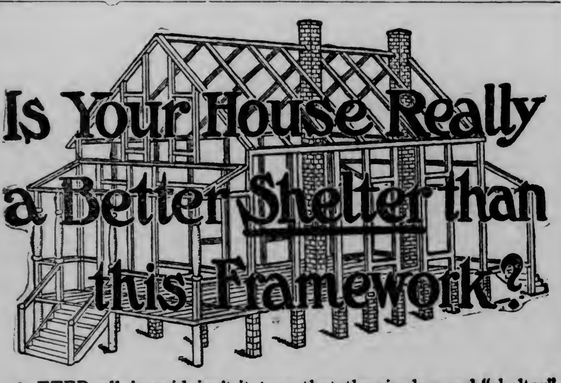
Knoxville, Tenn., May 14.—After David Elliott, a deputy sheriff of Bell county, Ky., had killed Luther and James Sizemore, he notified his victims' wives, then traveled most of the night over the mountains to surrender to county authorities.

The shooting took place in a mountain "desert" near Middlesboro last Sunday. Elliott came upon the Sizemores and told Luther to consider himself under arrest, whereupon Sizemore fired. His aim was faulty, and before he could fire a fatal shot, Elliott had whipped out a gun and roturned the fusillade. Sizemore dropped dead.

James Sizemore tried to reach a pistol which lay near the corpse. The deputy shot again and the second brother fell dead.

Snow in Pennsylvania.

Brookville, Pa., May 14. — Snow flurries prevailed here and at several surrounding places a large part of yesterday.



AFTER all is said, isn't it true that the single word "shelter" completely covers the purpose for which any house was ever built? Whether you live in a house or an apartment, its primary requisite is that it be a shelter—(1) from the public view, (2) for the safe-keeping of your personal effects, (3) from the wind, rain and snow, (4) from heat and cold.

(1) Curtains and blinds, (2) strong doors and locks, (3) solid walls and roofs—all do their work well. But how about heat and cold? Honestly, now, is your house really a shelter from them?

LINOFELT
Linen Felt made from Flax fibre

in your walls keeps cold on one side and heat on the other just as a solid black curtain keeps light and dark separate. Clapboards, sheathing, brick, tile—no matter what your walls are or how thick, they don't insulate against cold.

Just take this glimpse at the scientific side of it—it means money and health for you: To stop heat and cold requires a substance containing a countless number of miscroscopic sealed dead air cells, with each cell confined by material which has the lightest possible specific gravity.

Flax fibres meet these conditions better than any other substance capable of use in building. Linofelt is a quarter-inch quilt of specially treated flax fibres bound between two sheets of building-paper. In resisting the passage of heat and cold Linofelt is more effective than 38 thicknesses of building-paper.

There's the brief scientific fact. It shows you why Linofelt, used in your walls like building-paper, will save 40 per cent of your coal-bill every winter—and keep your house cool in summer as well.

That's a real shelter from heat and cold. Make your house faithfully serve its only purpose; make it a genuine shelter this season. Write for our booklet today; call up our local agents now—they can tell you how to use it in your present house at once.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

HARRY L. SHANER, city engineer of Lynchburg, Va., is now engaged in working up a more up-to-date method of cleaning the streets of the city in the future, which he hopes to induce the committee on street cleaning to adopt for the coming year, and with the adoption of his method he believes that twice the amount of street surface can be cleaned with the same force now utilized by the department. The system under consideration is that recommended by C. Hvass & Co., New York, and if it is adopted it will mean that new machinery will have to be bought for the department. The system would call for two new sweepers, both of which are equipped with sprinkling devices, which water the streets as they are swept. Two machines sweep the refuse to the center and then a third machine takes this up and deposits it in given places in large piles, from where it will be loaded into the garbage wagons and hauled to the crematory. The machinery needed for the new system would cost about $2,100 and all of it would be operated by horses. Mr. Shaner believes he can not only sweep twice as much street surface with this system as is being cleaned now, but that he can accomplish this at a cost that would enable the city to save enough money during the year to pay for the equipment.

Sweeping machines with a sprinkling device attached would be appreciated in Duluth. However, the city has several flushing machines, which wash the accummulations of the streets to either side, the washing at the same time serving to lay the dust. They have proved quite satisfactory although a number of people have registered complaints that they have been splashed with dirt by the sudden discharge of the machines taking them unawares. The dirt that is not washed down the sewers is gathered in heaps and carted away. A number of the old-fashioned sweeping machines are also in use. People are well enough acquainted with the dust they raise to make further comment useless.

HOUSE VOTES FOR DIRECT ELECTION OF SENATORS

Amendments to Constitution Now to Be Ratified By the States.

Brings End of Fight First Taken Up in 1826.

Washington, May 14.—The house late yesterday adopted by a vote of 237 to 39, a joint resolution providing for an amendment to the Constitution to permit the elecion of United States senators by direct vote of the people It already had passed the senate and now goes to the states for ratification. All that remains to be done is the formal signing of the instrument and the issuance of a proclamation to the states to signify their wishes on the proposed change.

The vote was preceded by a bitter fight, in which the Southern members joined common cause against the resolution. Led by Bartlett of Georgia, the Georgia, Mississippi and Louisiana delegates fought to prevent its passage because of the senate amendment which gave the federal government supervision of the elections. They based their opposition almost entirely on the danger of negro domination.

The first vote taken was on an amendment by Representative Bartlett which took from the federal government all supervisory powers. It was defeated 169 to 89. On the vote for the adoption of the resolution, two-thirds of the house being necessary, fifty Democrats deserted.

Republicans All For It.

There was not a single Republican vote cst against the resolution, which was adopted to the accompaniment of thunderous applause.

Direct election of senators was first taken up by congress in 1826. From time to time recurring attempts have been made to make the senate a popular body, and have members elected as are members of the house. Numbers of these resolutions have died in committee, while others were passed at the last moments of a congress, never to receive the president's signature.

Senator Bristow of Kansas introduced in 1911 the one now passed. Amended by the house, it has been in conference since July 5 last, and if the house had not receded from its opposition to granting federal supervision of felections, it might have met the fate of the others. It was this danger that led the house to agree not to press its views.

REPLIES TO W. J. BRYAN

Harmon Denounces Nebraskan for Entering Campaign in Ohio.

Claims He Is Entitled to Support of His State.

Wooster, Ohio, May 14.—Governor Judson Harmon of Ohio last night began his campaign in Ohio for the presidential nomination, with a reply to the attacks made on him by W. J. Bryan, who recently made a tour of the state. Mr. Harmon declared that he had been unanimously selected by the last state convention as Ohio's candidate for president and that it was not self-seeking which had put him before the country and subjected him to the "falsification and abuse which are disgracing American politics this year."

The governor said that the watchword adopted for the gubernatorial campaign was "Harmon has made good."

"But there were some who thought I had made too good," continued Mr. Harmon, "and to stave off political bankruptcy from a bipartisan combination, I had to be beaten. The Commoner's mailing list was secured and three separate circulars sent out filled with falsehood and denunciation. They bore Mr. Bryan's picture and urged his friends to vote against me because my re-election would make me the candidate for president.

"I was re-elected by more than 100,000 majority, though Col. Roosevelt and most of the cabinet came into the state to oppose me.

Wants State Indorsement.

"It may be thought wiser to select some other candidate than myself at Baltimore. I would not, if I could, interfere with the free choice of the convention. But if the unanimous action of the Dayton convention is to be reversed at the primary, it will be heralded as a repudiation of my administration.

"Now my opponents have brought Mr. Bryan and carried him around the state. He was reliably informed of the character and motives of the moving spirits in this rule or ruin movement, but seems not to care.

"Now, as to Mr. Bryan. What has caused the change in his attitude toward me?

"At the national convention of 1904 he offered, to place me in nomination if I would have the Ohio delegation reconsider their decision not to have my name presented.

Says Bryan Changed.

"In 1908 I constantly urged his election declaring I would willingly be defeated for governor if it would help him. And during our joint campaign, he repeatedly praised my efforts in his behalf and told many persons he meant to offer me a place in his cabinet if he was elected.

"What have I done which leads him now to say I am not fit to be even a justice of the peace? He has stated not a single fact from my official record or elsewhere to justify his conduct, except that I repudiated the platform on the initiative and referendum. This is not true. I advocated before the joint caucus, and signed when passed, the bill authorizing resort to it in municipalities, which was all our Constitution would permit.

"He says I am not a 'progressive,' but a 'recationary.' This is merely calling names, the last resort in a poor case. If 'progressiveness' means sincere effort to secure practical reforms in government, instead of mere talk, where has so much been accomplished as in Ohio during my administration?"

Attacks Nebraskan.

After mentioning many reform laws passed during his administration, including acts for protection of employes, direct election of federal senators and income tax, Mr. Harmon continued:

"If Mr. Bryan knows of the many reforms accomplished in Ohio, he is grossly unfair to me in the administration. If he does not know of them, then it's sheer wantonness for him to come to the state of my birth and home and try to discredit me with the people without specification or proof, though even an accused criminal is entitled to both.

"I have for more than three years been governor. In all of these positions there have been ample opportunities to favor special interests or shirk my duty. If Mr. Bryan will point out a single instance where I ever did either, I will get out of the way of his desires, whatever they are.

Cannot Pick Winner.

"Mr. Bryan twits me with alleged disappointments in the selection of delegates in various states. Well, I would rather take a disappointment from my party in its nominations than inflict disappointments on it in the elections. Though I have five times been its candidate, I have never disappointed it yet.

"He says failure is certain if I am nominated. If the party thinks so, I shall be content. But I do not think Mr. Bryan, great as his abilities are in many directions, has shown himself qualified to pick a winner.

"Is Mr. Bryan really for the New Jersey governor? I do not recall a word he has said in his behalf. Is it because the governor never supported him, but wanted him 'knocked into a cocked hat?' The people of Nebraska have instructed him for the speaker. He cannot be for both. Is he really for either?"

PIMPLES BEGAN TO ITCH AND BURN

Got Thick and Broke Out Into Little Sores. Tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Completely Cured.

Davenport, Wash.—"Two years ago I had skin disease on my face. At first there were only a few small red pimples and I did not pay any attention to them, but at last they got so thick and they started to itch and burn so that sometimes I thought I never would be able to stand it. After two months the pimples broke out into little sores. Then my sister told me to try Cuticura Ointment and Soap, so I got me a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap. After one week I saw that the Ointment and Soap were doing me good so I continued to use them and after using them three months I found that I was completely cured of skin disease." (Signed) Mrs. William Salchenberger, Sept. 28, 1911.

She could not sleep and I had to walk the floor with her night after night. I decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using them two months she was cured completely and now her skin is clear." (Signed) Mrs. G. Hoehn, Sept. 29, 1911.

TAFT GROWS MORE BITTER

Shows Indignation in Attacks on Col. Roosevelt in Ohio.

Calls Predecessor Dangerous and Asks for Specific Charges.

Steubenville, Ohio, May 14.—President Taft's first day of his final campaign swing through Ohio, which came to an end with speeches here last night, was marked by the most pronounced verbal assaults upon Col. Roosevelt, to which Mr. Taft so far has given public utterance. In speeches that were filled with indignant attack, that bubbled over with uncomplimentary adjectives, Mr. Taft discharged his oratory at his predecessor in the White House.

He started upon his last campaign to urge the people of Ohio to support him in the primaries of May 21, at Marietta in a cold, hard rain which kept up for several hours, but which finally fled before the sun. Later when he spoke at Dennison, St. Clairsville, Bellaire and Bridgeport, the weather was fair and the crowds came out in summer attire.

Crowds in Enemy's Country.

At many points the president touched the steel manufacturing district of Ohio, which his political advisers openly said was opposed to his renomination. The crowds, however, were large, and frequently demonstrative enough to make his Ohio friends feel a bit optimistic.

Although in substance all of the dozen speeches the president made were like those he delivered in Massachusetts and Maryland, they differed widely at times in the words used to score Mr. Roosevelt. Those were unusual and piquant and gave his hearers opportunity for applause and laughter, which seldom failed to come.

One of the attacks on Mr. Roosevelt, which raised a laugh, was delivered at Dennison. It ran like this:

"I think it would be dangerous to put a man with Mr. Roosevelt's present constitutional views and with the intoxication he would necessarily feel by reason of getting something that all the great presidents have never gotten—it would not be safe to put him in the White House again.

Roosevelt as a Necessity.

"He says the reason the American people are going to elect him is because he is necessary for the job. That is the description he gives. Well, I hope the American people will not think that he is necessary for the job. I want to call your attention to what the job is which he proposes. It is the millennium which he is going to bring about when he gets into office. All bosses are going to disappear, politicians are going to be fewer, and he is going to have a finger in every community in every state, in every county and everything is going to heaven.

"If that be true, the millenium is is coming, and if that is the job he is to do, it is going to take longer than four years. I beg of you to ask of him, when he comes here, whether he would take a fourth term; ask him whether he is going to take a fifth tetrm, and why he should not continue in office during his life."

Would be Dangerous.

Another sally that brought a response was much like that delivered at Cambridge. Speaking there of the job Mr. Roosevelt said the people wanted him to do, President Taft asked:

'Suppose Mr. Roosevelt were wafted to the skies in a chariot like the prophet of old, and were to disappear from sight, how do you suppose this country would get along anyhow?

"My friends, it is a dangerous thing to put in the White House a man for the third term with his views of the Constitution and with his views of himself. In every announcement he makes you would think he was the whole show and that there was not anybody else in the country. It's 'I, I,' and therefore I say that if you feed that vanity and that egotism by giving him something that Washington did not get and Jefferson did not get and Jackson did not get, and Grant could not get, you are going to get him in office with a sense of power and with a view of constitutional restriction that will be dangerous to the country."

Roosevelt and Lincoln.

Mr. Taft compared Roosevelt and Lincoln, with a smile.

"Mr. Roosevelt likens himself to Abraham Lincoln more and resembles him less than any man in the history of this country," he remarked during the day.

Mr. Taft called upon the Roosevelt backers to find one indictment if he had done wrong; asked for more facts and less "lurid headlines and lung power" and dubbed the campaign the former president is making against him "accusatory and libelious."

In a joint appeal to the war veterans and to the negroes, Mr. Taft charged that under a constitutional system that would permit proposed measures of a "reform," the practical repeal of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments for which the veterans fought and which protect the negro race would depend on the result of one election. That was what Mr. Roosevelt proposed to do, he said, by destroying the independence of the judiciary.

Asks for Specific Charge.

"Let Mr. Roosevelt point out what thing I have done or failed to do under the influence of anybody, and then I will say that he has made a point; but while he continues merely in general denunciation to say that the bosses are all for me and all against him, I say he is conducting a campaign that is not worthy the man who has had the veneration, the respect and the honor put upon him by the American people."

WYOMING'S SIX VOTES FOR CLARK

Democratic State Convention Unanimously Supports the Speaker.

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 14.—The Democratic state convention unanimously adopted the majority report of the committee on resolutions by which Wyoming's six delegates to the national convention are instructed for Champ Clark "as long as there is a possibility of his nomination."

SERIOUS FOREST FIRES IN WASHINGTON STATE.

Tacoma, Wash., May 14.—Damage estimated at $200,000, including the destruction of two miles at National, Wash., was done by a forest fire covering an area of six miles by four, fifty miles east of Tacoma. All wires are down and it is not known whether any lives have been lost. The towns of Alder, Ashford, Elbe, Park Junction and Mineral are within the danger zone. From South Bend, Wash., come reports of forest fires causing heavy loss in that section, a center of the lumber industry.

CAN SHOW TRUST PLAN.

Waters-Pierce Oil Fight Evidence Admitted By Judge.

St. Louis, Mo., May 14.—Circuit Judge Kinsey has affirmed his decision that it was competent defense for H. Clay Pierce to show, in the suit of the Standard Oil interests to gain control of the Waters-Pierce Oil company, that the individuals who formerly controlled the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey were trying to perpetuate the oil monopoly in violation of the decision of the United States supreme court, by controlling the subsidiary corporations of the old Standard Oil group.

Judge Kinsey's ruling was made on the motion of attorneys for the Standard Oil interests to strike out parts of the amended answer of Pierce to the suit. The original suit, filed in the name of R. W. Stewart and George Meyer and Charles M. Adams, sought to compel John D. Johnson and Robert E. Moloney, tellers at the stockholders' election of the Waters-Pierce company, to accept the ballots offered by the Rockefeller interests.

Five Reasons

Why you can do better here in buying a Piano than at any other store.

1st In buying pianos as we do for cash, we own the goods at from 10 per cent to 25 per cent less than "consignment" or "long-time" dealers can obtain them for.

We are the only piano dealers in Duluth buying all instruments out and out for cash, consequently we are in position to make the lowest prices, comparing quality for quality.

2nd The expense of conducting this piano department in connection with a large and old established business in other lines is about one-half that attached to any exclusive piano or music store.

3rd We sell on most liberal terms of payment, as low as $5.00 a month if customers desire, and take old organs or pianos in exchange at good prices. Your notes remain in our possession and you have no outside parties to deal with which is an advantage no other dealer here can offer you.

4th Buying for cash and not being under obligation to any manufacturer, we exercise the closest inspection of pianos as they arrive, and manufacturers understanding this, send us only the choicest instruments, reserving the less desirable ones for "long time" and "consignment" dealers.

5th You will find here a stock of over one hundred instruments, including such distinguished makes as Steinway, Mason & Hamlin, Everett, Kurtzman, Emerson, Crown, Weber, Blasius, Kohler & Campbell, Regent, Smith & Barnes.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

BUTTER TO BE SCORED

First 1912 Contest in North Dakota May 23 at Bismarck.

Much Encouragement to Butter Industry in State Expected to Result.

Bismarck, N. D., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—A six months' creamery butter educational contest is one of the new features arranged for by Dairy Commissioner R. F. Flint in the development of the creamery butter industry in North Dakota. He has just completed arrangements for the contest and the first scoring will be held in Bismarck May 23. The idea is to create new interest in the butter industry, to keep up enthusiasm and to place the creamery butter of North Dakota on a par with or above that of every other state. Prizes of $25, $15 and $5 in cash will be awarded at the conclusion of the six scorings to the winners of the three respective highest average scores after handicap points are deducted and in addition diplomas will be given to all contestants entering five or more scorings and scores of 90 or above will be published each month.

Larger Creamery Exhibits.

The plan has met with the approval of all buttermakers in the state and it will result in much larger creamery exhibits at the various fairs for the reason that the July scoring will be made at the state fair in Fargo, the September scoring at the Slope Industrial fair at Mandan and the October scoring at the Industrial Exposition at Bismarck. The rest of the scorings will be held at Bismarck and farmers and dairymen are being urged to be present at all scorings.

Prof. G. L. Martin of the agricultural college at Fargo has been selected by Commissioner Flint as official judge and each buttermarker, actually employed at a North Dakota creamery may enter one tub o ftwenty pounds each month. Butter from creameries operating power separators will be handicapped two points per entry in figuring averages for prizes, and at the close of the contests the butter will be sold and the proceeds, less express charges, will be remitted to the contestant.

TO ARGUE DUMAS APPEAL.

Case to Be Presented to State Supreme Court Wednesday.

St. Paul, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court tomorrow will hear the appeal of Mr. Dumas of Cass Lake from the judgment of the district court of Beltrami county of third degree arson in connection with the attempted blowing of the Puposky postoffice safe, June 17, last.

Dumas' attorneys will argue that admitting all the evidence the state has introduced, is correct, there was not enough on which to pass a charge of attempted arson—that no store was fired, no safe blown, but all his acts were a mere preparation for the completion of the crime. Until a crime is committed, his attorneys claim, there can be no indictment.

Assistant Attorney General Janes who is prosecuting the case, declares in his brief filed with the court, that the Cass Lake mayor had gone so far with his plans for having the safe blow and the building burned, that there is no legal means of evading the charge of attempted arson.

Two North Dakotans to Boost Prohibition Cause.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. F. B. Stevenson of Emerado and A. J. Pierce of this city are looking out for the interests of the Prohibition party in this state and to remedy, if possible, the collapse the cause has suffered through the removal from the state of those who heretofore have been most active in the party work. Though the national committee is destrous that North Dakota put up a complete Prohibition ticket to include state officers, congressmen and presidential electors, these men only feel warranted in an effort to place the presidential electors on and are working to that end. The delay in getting active is given as the reason.

TO RESTORE OLD LIMITS

Ordinance Rescinding Former Action of Council Is Introduced.

Street Carnival Goes Glimmering—New Bids on Fourth Street Paving.

The council last night heard the first reading of an ordinance introduced by Alderman E. J. Sandberg of the Sixth ward to rescind the ordinance extending the patrol limits 200 feet west of Twenty-fourth avenue west.

The ordinance went to the committee on ordinances and resolutions, and it is expected that it will come up for final passage at the meeting next Monday night.

This is the extension which caused such a furore several weeks ago. It was originally made for the purpose of allowing T. Pinsonnault to transfer his saloon from 1920 West Superior street to 2403 West Superior street. The resolution allowing the transfer was passed by the council by a vote of 9 to 7, but was vetoed by Mayor McCuen.

The proposal to hold a street carnival at West Duluth went glimmering with the report of the city attorney that the city has no authority to grant the use of streets for such purposes. He cited several cases wherein the courts have held that they are nuisances, and quoted a section of the city charter prohibiting nuisances on the public highways. The attorney also pointed out that the streets are dedicated for street purposes only, and that carnivals do not properly belong there.

• • •

The council did not take final action on the much-discussed pavement of East Fourth street between Fourteenth and Twenty-third avenues. It directed that the board of public works readvertise for bids for pavements both 40 and 42 feet wide. After the bids have been received the aldermen will determine whether the street shall be paved to a width of 40 or 42 feet. A petition was received from the majority of property owners on East Fourth street between Twenty-third and Twenty-seventh avenues asking that that part of the street be paved to a width of 40 feet. Owners representing 2,868 feet out of 3,233 feet signed the petition.

• • •

The Woman's Council sent a communication to the council urging a municipal collection of garbage. The women pointed out that Duluth is far behind the times in this regard. Upon their recommendation a committee consisting of Aldermen Bernard, Hector and Hicken was appointed by President Hoar to investigate the subject and report to the council. The petition was published in The Herald Saturday.

• • •

The council canvassed the returns of the last special election to incorporate the initiative, referendum and recall as part of the city charter and officially ratified the action of the voters.

The cost of the election was given to the council last night as $1,250.41 and a resolution was passed authorizing the payment of the various sums due for poll rent and clerk and judge hire.

AGREE TO MANY CHINESE REFORMS

Members of Cabinet Promise Great Changes in Administration.

Pekin, May 14.—All the members of the Chinese republican cabinet at present in Pekin appeared before the provisional council and promised the introduction of reforms in the administration and extensive modern developments. These include trials by jury, the reorganization of the army and navy, a general system of education, sound methods of taxation, including the introduction of an income tax, and the establishment of a national bank.

Premier Tang Shao Yi was closely questioned during a secret session of the council. Certain of the councillors declared that Tang Shao Yi paid over to Dr. Sun Yat personally the sum of $1,000,000.

The members of the council declare the Chinese government cannot be trusted to dispense the loan made by the six powers without supervision.

FOR SIX-YEAR-TERM FOR THE PRESIDENT.

Chicago, May 14.—The board of directors of the National Business League of America has decided that that league should resume the campaign it conducted in 1904 and 1905 for a single six-year term for the president of the United States. At that time the league procured indorsements for the measure from the business interests in many parts of the country. The league intends to organize a committee of business leaders and conduct a national effort for an amendment to the Constitution to this end.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

BRUCE'S COLUMN

COMMENT AND DIVERS DISCUSSION OF THE MERRY WORLD OF SPORT.

WHILE 'tis true, Sid, that there are restaurants and even humble families that will not cash in fame in return for the material things of life, such as beefsteaks and pork chops and the lyric liquids, such as milk, tea and coffee—it is also trite and to the point that fame sometimes contains the ingredients that coax wealth along the reluctant path upon which many eager and unwashed hands are stretched. This preamble has to do with the name that we saw engraved on a baseball glove. The name was Tyrus Cobb. Mister Cobb writes articles for the newspapers—or has some humble person who can really write do it—and he also has his name on various brands of collars, shirts, shoes, patent salt cellars and baby carriages, not to mention the baseball glove. For all this it is said that the player is paid rather handsomely.

There are some pessimists who are wont to say that fame is crass and is only gained by those who persistently seek the limelight, the cafes, the personal want column and the society page. Be that as it may, fame brought Steve Brodie out of the lean and hungry league into the land of the living and the three-meal-a-day folks. After Carrie Nation achieved that degree of fame that one should be rewarded with after destroying so powerful a thirst assauger as whiskey, and that in Kansas, her husband found it expedient to quit work and loaf on the proceeds of Carrie's carelessness.

There are innumerable cases where fame has been cashed in at the bread counter of life and the check holder has benefitted bountifully. Tyrus Raymond Cobb is only one of those famous young men who has found that it pays to be well known. Of course there is also the exception. Cole Younger and the James brothers, enterprising young fellows in their day and generation, found that fame brought them trials and tribulations, not to mention the state strong house.

But grabbing the line of logic and floating back to Ty Cobb, it might be stated that he has emoluments, so to speak, outside of office, and that he strives manfully to lead the batters and to pilfer bases and to otherwise keep his name on the tongue of the youth of the nation, for the simple reason that aside from having a couple of 5-cent cigars named after him, he gets a lot of the stuff that each year is sent to the heathen in Africa and some of the heathen down in the region of Wall Street.

FROM STOCKHOLM comes the official announcement that Mrs. E. M. Hannam of Great Britain has won the final of the ladies' singles in lawn tennis. This must be encouraging to British lovers of athletics. Four years ago the English team also won the tug of war contest by default, the mumbely peg contest, the sewing contest and the game of archery. Counting up these scores it was claimed by the press of England that the English has captured the Olympiad. The English have started like a house afire.

TOM JONES, who is bald headed and also the manager of Ad Wolgast, says with condescension that he is willing to accept $15,000 as the Wolgast bit for a ten-round contest with Packey McFarland. The nonchalence with which Mister Jones consummates this deal only goes to prove that true nerve was not lost with the shuffling off of Capt. Kidd.

This Jones-Wolgast combination has the Nelson-Nolan duo beaten from the deal to the showdown. Nelson was sort of fair, for he didn't ask more than he thought would be in the house. He was willing to allow the promoters enough for advertising and eating at some cheap but wholesome food dispensary; but Wolgast, aided and abetted by Jones, would like to have more than is likely to come wandering through the front door, or more than is sneaked by side door tenders during the coure of the fistic festivities.

Uncle Tom McCarey of Pacific coast fame attempted to curb the rapacity of Wolgast and Jones, but with small success, if the result of the conference on the broad and smiling Pacific coast is to be taken seriously.

Fighters in these shining days of dogged industry are not arguing until red in the face and all mottled on the sinewy throat over the mere matter of a few paltry dollars, as might have been the case in the days the poets and politicians are so fond of harking back to. Nowadays the fighter who is not a financier is a failure; the most successful of the mitt slingers argue loudly in thousands and refuse to start the weary grind that leads to health and some times defeat, unless the promoter, wrinkled and lean of person, comes through with ample bank securities and a luscious purse.

NOW that there are to be only two umpires in the new league, it is reasonable to expect that the indicator holders will be of the staunch and worthy kind, opposed to the kind that we have been afflicted with in the past. President Blume seems to have at least started on the righ track and his inentions seem of the best. In minor league baseball the indicators must have the nerve that qualls not at adjectives or pop bottles. The fans of Duluth are willing to stick along with the umps and hope for the gentle curbing of the loud pedal and the speeding up of the contest.

DEATH has claimed W. W. Douglas, sporting editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and one of the finest racing writers in the country. Douglas was one of the increasing number of men who made the study and writing of sports a profession, and not a haphazard means of connecting with the larder three times per day. He was a credit to his profession; a sporting authority who wrote what he believed and investigated thoroughly before he wrote his opinions. The passing from the sportoing desk of the veteran Douglas marks the passing over the great divide of one of the well known sporting editors of the country and one of the most eminent authorities on the greatest of all track sports, the galloping of the ponies.

J. A. McCUEN.

GREAT PLAYER SERIOUSLY ILL

Philadelphia, May 14.—Hal Chase is ill with a serious attack of stomach trouble, and the Highlanders are without his services. Chase, it is predicted by many close followers of the game, is about to the end of his string as a ball player. Not because Hall has not the ability to continue, for the wonder of the initial sack still has several top-notch years sewed up in his career if he cares to take advantage of them, but Chase is becoming weary of baseball.

His present illness, it is stated, has made him turn his thoughts to other things, and if he does go back on the diamond this year, it will in all probability be his last. The loss of Chase would be a hard blow for the national sport, as his name has been written in history with Honus Wagner, Nap Lajoie, Ty Cobb and the other great diamond heroes.

Meeting of Directors Shows Good Standing New Association.

At a meeting of those interested in the organization of the Duluth Baseball association, held last evening in the Spalding hotel, officers and directors for the present season were chosen.

J. A. McCuen was elected president of the association, E. H. Lee, vice president; Harry Blume, treasurer, and R. B. Liggett, secretary. The officials of the club and George H. Lucore will compose the directorate.

It was stated that the club will start the present season in a healthy financial condition. It is the aim of the president of the club to give Duluth the best baseball possible and it was also stated that no rowdy tactics would be tolerated.

The local club is to be given a clean business administration, according to the statement of the officials, and an effort is to be made to secure the cooperation of the business interests of the city as well as the Commercial club in the promotion of fast and clean baseball for this city.

The present company has closed a deal for the securing of the baseball park and will endeavor to place the game on a self sustaining basis.

FIRST GAMES IN "MINNY" LEAGUE

Season Opens With Eau Claire at Winona and La Crosse at Rochester.

Jack Quinn Suspended.

New York, May 14.—Pitcher Jack Quinn of the New York American league team has been suspended for an indefinite period by President Ban Johnson for throwing his glove at Umpire O'Loughlin during Saturday's game. It was after Quinn was ejected from the game that pop bottles were showered at the umpire, and trouble was narrowly averted. Quinn's suspension will badly handicap the Yankee team, as he has been one of its most dependable pitchers.

JONES TO COMPETE.

Cornell Crack Runner Will Make the Trip to Stockholm.

Ithaca, N. Y., May 14.—Close friends of John Paul Jones of Cornell, holder of the world's amateur record for one mile, who was reported to have decided not to go to the Olympic games, have predicted that he would toe the starting mark in the one-mile event in Stockholm.

Jones has had an offer of a place at a boys' camp this summer and needs the money to go through college. At the same time he is particularly anxious to go to Sweden.

BOAT CLUB WILL HOLD ANNUAL ELECTION.

The annual meeting of the members of the Duluth Boat club will be held this evening at the Oatka branch. There will be a musical program and smoker following the business meeting of the club. It is not generally believed that there will be many changes in the present line-up of officers and directors. There is little doubt but that Julius H. Barnes will be returned to the presidency of the club and most of the present directors re-elected.

GEORGE CUTSHAW.

In Cutshaw, Manager Dahlen has found one of the most likely looking youngsters of the year. He has replaced Jerry Downs at second and in the games so far has shown great form.

DULUTH AWAITS THE OPENING OF SEASON

Parade, Brass Band, Speeches and the Proverbial Ball Throwing to Launch the New League.

A parade, brass band, half holiday, speeches and the throwing of the first ball by the mayor, as well as a ball game between Winnipeg and Duluth will inaugurate the new Central International league. The infant organization will be ushered into being this afternoon at Athletic park and also at Hislop park, across the bay.

While no official proclamation has been issued regarding the half holiday, some of the stores and wholesale houses have promised to let their employes off in time to witness the launching of the new league. It is expected that the attendance will be the largest that has ever assembled at an opening game in this city.

Starting at the city hall at 2 o'clock the civic parade will be made up of automobiles, hacks of worthy sea going nature, and other conveyances. Prominent men of the city, headed by the officials and directors of the local club, are expected to head the procession.

At the park there will be a band concert and speeches. President Harry Blume is scheduled for the program and Mayor McCuen will throw the first ball over the plate, or in the general direction of the pan. The game will begin promptly at 3:30.

Manager James Brown and the members of the Winnipeg team arrived here this morning. The Peggers are doped as the strongest team of the league, for Brown has some former Pacific coast players in his ranks and they are expected to show the fans some very fast baseball. The Winnipeg team has been working out at Riverside park, Winnipeg, and is reported in good condition for the opening game.

From the estimate that has been made of the number of automobiles that have been promised, it is believed that the parade will be the largest and most demonstrative that Duluth has ever given in honor of the dear old sport of baseball.

O'Brien reports that his players are ready for the first game. Despite the fact that the weather has been anything but the brand suited for baseball, the Harp says his men are in condition and will show the right kind of form in the getaway. As Brown of Winnipeg says the same thing, it is expected that the opening series between the two teams will bring out some good baseball.

Following is the lineup:

"COLONEL" RILEY NEARS THE END

Chicago, May 14.—Col. "Silver Bill" Riley, the best known of the race track and pool room men of Chicago years ago when gambling flourished in Chicago, is lying critically ill at Lakeside hospital. He had not been in Chicago for years until two days ago, other poolrooms and a number of faro and roulette establishments.

Col. Bill did not care for cards, nor when he came on what he knew might be his last trip.

The younger sports know "Silver Bill" only by reputation, but old racing men through the Middle West have a lively recollection of him. He sprang into fame in the early '80s, when he opened his poolroom in the alley running west from State street, north of Madison.

Known as Gamblers' Alley.

When Chicagoans were strictly formal they spoke of the alley as Calhoun place and that is still its name, although it is seldom heard. In those days it was known as "Gamblers' alley," and fairly blossomed with pool rooms.

The colonel's place was a few feet west of Clark street on the site now occupied by the rear of the La Salle theater. On the way from Clark street most of the patrons stopped at the old "Round Bar," then extant and acquired the proper frame of mind for attending the races. All down the alley were the wheel. He specialized on the races and the ball games and every other type of sporting events.

Had Silver White Hair.

The proprietor got his sobriquet from his thick mop of silver white hair. He wore it long and was considerably proud of it. The military title he picked up somewhere on the track, and no patron ever questioned it, much less the owner.

"Silver Bill's play" place became the largest in Chicago and famous among race track men East and West. Then Chicago showed signs of getting "cleaned up" and Bill moved away to New Orleans.

CRIMINAL CASE IS BEING TRIED

Soudan Man, Alleged to Have Made Attack Upon Woman, Faces Jury.

Virginia, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gasper Skandavich of Soudan is on trial before Judge Hughes and a jury in district court today on the charge of indecent assault, Mrs. Barbara Drujan, an elderly woman, who keeps a boarding house at Soudan, being the complaining witness.

Through the aid of an interpreter, Mrs. Drugan, when questioned by Assistant County Attorney Boyle gave her version of the alleged attack. Rapid progress is being made with the case today and it is expected to go to the jury this afternoon.

Chisholm Boy Acquitted.

Leo Pezdorc was found not guilty by a jury Monday afternoon on a charge of obtaining money by false representation. It is alleged that in January he obtained a pay check which was made out in the name of John Swan calling for the payment of $74.43 and had it cashed at a saloon in Chisholm. The defense was that Pezdorc was not the man who had the check cashed and had no knowledge of the transacation whatever, although evidence was produced by the state to show that he was the man. After the jury acquitted Pezdorc, every man on the jury shook hands with him and told him to be a good boy.

LIGHTNING HITS BARN.

Owner Is inside and Is Knocked Unconscious.

Deer River, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lightning struck the barn of S. M. Brandon north of here and set it on fire. Mr. Brandon was in the barn at the time and the shock rendered him unconscious for over half an hour. Len Hunter and Joe Belanger came along at that time and extinguished the fire. Two calves in the barn were unhurt. Mr. Brandon feels none the worse for the accident, and his building is not badly damaged.

Settler Kills Bear.

Albin Hallin, a settler a few miles north of town, caught a black bear in a trap and brought the animal to town, disposing of the meat to local dealers. The hide was sold to Jake Mohr and he is having it tanned for a rug. This is the third bear killed in the same neighborhood within the past month.

THINK SELLERS WILL SOON SHIP

Legal Tangle Tying Up Big Property May Be Smoothed Out.

Hibbing, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the Sellers mine will be added to the list of shippers from the Hibbing district within a short time is predicted by those who are familiar with the situation. The general impression prevails that a satisfactory arrangement can be made whereby the mining companies believe the legal obstacles at present in the way of operations at the mine can be overcome. Sensational stories without foundation in fact have been in circulation here for some days to the effect that the equipment will be removed from the Sellers pit and taken to another section of the range.

Few Men Working.

A few men have been employed at the mine getting ready to begin operations, and there is nothing to indicate that the shovels and equipment are to be taken elsewhere. The injunction restrains the mining companies from conducting their mining and stripping operations in such a manner as to further encroach upon or obstruct Fifth avenue or Pine street or prevent the reasonable use and occupancy of the premises on the edge of the pit for residence purposes. There is a question between the legal departments of the mining companies and the counsel representing the mining companies regarding just what this means, but it appears to be certain the mine will be active in a short time.

WILL CONSIDER NEW SIDEWALKS

Hibbing Council Going Thoroughly Into Question This Evening.

Hibbing, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The council tonight will discuss the condeming and ordering in of new sidewalks. The bids for the street paving will not be opened until the regular meeting of May 21. Representatives of several of the contractors interested are in the city at present advocating the different materials they hope to see ordered installed in the paving improvement by the council.

VIRGINIA MAN TO START STORE

Mike Jenesky Is Going Into Business at Barrows, Minn.

Barrows, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.) — W. I. Nicolayson of Duluth was here Monday with Mike Jenesky of Virginia, inspecting the town site and the lots. Mr. Jenesky will go into business in Barrows, establishing a general store there.

Mr. Jenesky and Joseph Prundjensky of Virginia are merchants who are at the head of a Polish settlement which will establish itself in Barrows, forty lots having been reserved for them at the town site.

Four lots have also been sold to Augen Lauger, manager of the H. P. Nelson Piano company of Chicago, and their intention is to construct a building for the sale of pianos, making Barrows their headquarters for the Cuyuna range.

WIFE SEEKS SEPARATION.

Virginia Saloon Keeper's Better Half Is After Divorce.

Virginia, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eliza Gould has commenced suit in the district court for divorce from her husband A. J. Gould, who is a partner in a saloon here. The woman alleges cruelty and claims her husband suggested she make a living for both of them by illicit means. She asserts that he is worth in real estate and personal property $6,000. Mrs. Gould names Carrie Hoffman living near Ely as causing trouble in the Gould family. Judge Hughes has issued an order ordering Gould not to molest his wife and to prevent him from transferring his property.

HIBBING K. C. COUNCIL IS BEING ORGANIZED.

Hibbing, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The committee having in charge the arrangements for the organization of the council of the Knights of Columbus in Hibbing, will have a meeting this evening at the office of Attorney Sam Scott, when final plans for the institution of the lodge some time during June will be made. The charter membership will be something over fifty and the lodge will be the first of the order on the Mesaba range.

ELY SCHOOL BOARD PLANS DOING MUCH.

Ely, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school board is undertaking extensive building operations this season. They were authorized to purchase the property for a new building at Fall Lake. They are planning on altering the Pioncer school building. Bids for the alterations will be called for from contractors here, also in Duluth and Minneapolis.

The editors of the state will spend a short time here on July 15. They will be assured of a warm welcome.

LIGHTNING HITS MINISTER'S HOME

Taconite Parsonage Struck By Bolt, and Damage Done —None Injured.

Taconite, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.—The inmates of Rev. Mr. Morrow's home here received a terrible shock two nights ago when a bolt of lightning struck the chimney and running to earth tore off a lot of bricks and shingles. None was hurt, although badly frightened. The lightning tore a hole through the roof and tore much plaster from the walls, but fortunately struck no one.

Mrs. Robert Loux is entertaining her niece, Miss Matchskie of St. Paul.

Miss Alma Peterson of Coleraine visited friends in the village Sunday.

HIBBING WILL OBSERVE EVENT

Hibbing, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The committee appointed to arrange for the observance of Memorial day here announces the following program, beginning at 9 a. m. at the armory: Selection, Hibbing band; song, high school chorus; prayer, Rev. J. B. A. Idstrom; Gettysburg address, S. J. Egge; selection, Hibbing band.

REFUSED LOT FOR HENNERY

Two Harbors Woman Not Allowed to Raise Chicks on City Property.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Le Clair of Ninth avenue addressed the council last night concerning the rejection of her proposal to use a city lot on Ninth avenue for a chicken yard. At a previous meeting her request was read and after discussion, had been rejected. She stated that she had understood that the reason for the refusal was because the neighbors would object. Therefore, she had gone to the neighbors and had received a statement from them that they would not mind the use of the lot for chicken purposes. The council, after listening to her remarks, was of the opinion that it would not be advisable to establish a precedent in a matter of this kind and declined the request.

Permission was granted to the fire department to send one delegate to the state convention of firemen to be held in Minneapolis on June 11 and 12. The city will defray the actual expenses not to exceed $20.

Would Pay Volunteers More.

Fire Chief M. H. Brickley asked that the rate of pay for volunteer firemen be raised from 50 cents per hour to $1. He stated that it often became necessary to call in extra help at times of fires and that their pay was not sufficient compensation. The regular firemen receive $1 per hour. A note was attached from the mayor asking that the request be granted. However, the city attorney stated that this would interfere with the present city ordinance and that a little time ought to be allowed to look up the matter. The matter was laid over for one week.

The city has received an order to put in a floor at the water and light plant and also to put in a railing around the fly wheel of the pump.

William Cooke, a local saloon keeper, asked the council to take some steps to keep boys out of saloons. He claimed that young men often came into drinking places during the boat season, and being strangers, it was difficult for the saloon men to put them out without arousing the animosity of a crowd of possible customers. He suggested the council have large placards printed calling attention to the law and warning boys to keep away from saloons. The matter was referred.

The Red River valley disturbance will cause rain at the Head of the Lakes this afternoon and probably tonight, and the temperature will turn somewhat warmer in this vicinity Wednesday. Light to killing frosts occurred last night in Northern Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas."

MESABA RANGE GETTING PLENTY OF MOISTURE.

Hibbing, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a genuine snowstorm here yesterday and it is estimated that fully two inches fell. Shortly after 8 a. m. the snow changed to a mild warm rain and at noon there was June sunshine. At 12:30 the city was in the throes of a miniature blizzard and later in the day sunshine again prevailed. So far this month rain has fallen every day on this section of the Mesaba. The lumbermen welcome the precipitation as it has had the effect of raising the stage of water in the streams and drives will be moved within the next few weeks that have been hung up for two and three seasons on account of low water.

Same Landscape Plans.

Virginia, Minn., May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of education has received notice from County Auditor Odin Halden that the same landscape plan which has been adopted by the school board in improving the grounds in front of the Roosevelt and the Technical high schools will be carried out on the grounds about the St. Louis county courthouse which is directly across Central avenue from the school buildings. OLD FAVORITE RETURNS.

"Miss Nobody From Starland" Again Pleases Lyceum Audience.

It is a novelty to be taken behind the scenes and shown how a grand musical production is prepared. The large audience at the Lyceum last evening enjoyed the novelty and really appreciated the opportunity to witness a rehearsal.

That is the feature of the production of "Miss Nobody From Starland." Although the show appeared here last year, a large audience witnessed the performance last evening. The heartless stage manager, the awkward chorus, the ever-late arrivals, the stage assistants with their "effects" and the haughty star are all most carefully handled by the members of the cast.

"Miss Nobody From Starland" is given its necessary life and action by Miss Olive Vail. She is the same pleasing, light hearted prima donna, who makes friends with her audience and then keeps the friendship throughout the performance. Her voice is as delightful as ever, and she scored a success with her musical numbers, of which the following were whistled by the "gods," a sure sign of popularity: "Let Me Be Your Last Sweetheart," "The Dear Little Ghost of Your Smile," "The Gingaboo Man" and "Kiss Me."

There is a light plot running through the play to keep it together. The production is not supposed to contain a plot, but in reality depends on its musical numbers, jokes and ensemble scenes. Miss Vail is assisted by a capable cast.

Special mention should be given Miss Bertee Beaumont as the Italian girl. She plays her part with sincerity and feeling and received a most cordial encore for every one of her numbers. She is also the dancer of the production, scoring a hit with her dance and song, "I'll Be Your Honey When It's Moonlight."

The chorus is well trained and good looking and a valuable asset to the many musical numbers of the production. The scenery is excellent. The song hits of the show are: "I'd Rather Love What I Cannot Have Than Have What I Cannot Love," "Marry Me or I Will Marry You," "Don't Be Anybody's Moon But Mine," "The Gingaboo Man," "Kiss Me" and "I'll Be Your Honey When It's Moonlight."

Amusement Notes.

At the Lyceum tomorrow night Albini will be seen in his series of illusions.

The following is an abstract from a Butte paper:

"Albini makes good the claim that he is the greatest illusionist and magician before the American public today. His marvelous work must be seen before you can understand. It would require columns of this paper to describe him. In addition to his wonderful illusions previously seen here, he brings with him nine new ones. Over $50,000 has been expended on his act alone. Albini does not carry the ordinary magical act as heretofore, but a large and costly production that Herman or Kellar in their palmy days never dreamt of."

The performance will continue for five days with a daily matinee.

Ray L. Royce, the famous character actor at the Orpheum this week, began his stage career as a member of the company known as "The Swiss Bell Ringers." That was twenty-seven years ago and he has been an actor ever since. Mr. Royce takes much pleasure in talking over early times and comparing the old theaters with those of the present time.

"I was not exactly a bell ringer," he said. "My aunt was to come out between acts and recite. We traveled all over the country, stopping wherever we could secure an engagement. Sometimes we only stayed a night and again remained a week, our stay depending upon how well we were received. We gave our performance in courthouses and school buildings if a theater was not available, and in those days playhouses were not very numerous.

"I remember well the time that we spent two nights in a small lumbering town in Wisconsin. We appeared in the courthouse. As there was no stage we had to separate ourselves from the audience by drawing a line with a piece of chalk. For footlights we had candles. The lumbermen came to the show each bearing a pine log which he placed on end and used for a seat. Our scenery consisted of four red flannel curtains, two being used to conceal the dressing rooms. We had no stated time for our entertainment, but performed until the candles went out. Then it was time for everybody to go home."

The show being presented at the Empress this week is one of the most entertaining offered by the Sullivan & Considine playhouse this season, and it should prove popular with the theatergoers of Duluth this week. "The Broomstick Witches," a musical comedy boiled down to one act, is the main attraction for the week. This attraction contains everything that tends to make musical comedy popular—pretty girls, catchy music, gorgeous costumes and elaborate scenic and lighting effects. The work of the principals, Dorothy Homer, W. E. Du Bard and Harry Watson, is excellent, and they are ably supported by a well-trained chorus. The song hits of the playlet are "I Love You Every Hour" and "Everybody Two-Step," a brand new rag song. Maxwell and Dudley are offering a dainty singing sketch, "For Sweet Charity," which seems to strike the popular chord of approval. Both Mr. Maxwell and Miss Dudley are blessed with excellent voices, and while there is nothing pretentious about their offering, there is a pleasing effect about it which makes it highly popular. In a witty monologue, Chief Os-ko-mon, a genuine Indian chief, tells of the wrongs that have been done his race and at the same time succeeds in extracting many laughs from his audience. Os-ko-mon also sings a number of popular ballads in a pleasing tenor voice and closes his turn with a war dance in full Indian costume. Greve and Green open the show with a laugh-producing comedy musical act, and are followed by Eddie and Mae Shaw, who present a singing and dancing specialty which is better than the average.

Dr. Scott's Suffering Over

Doctors Advised An Operation. How She Escaped Told By Herself.

Buckner, Mo.—"For more than a year I suffered agonies from female troubles and the doctors at last decided there was no help for me unless I went to the hospital for an operation. I was awfully against that operation, and as a last resort wrote to you for special advice and I told you just what I suffered with bearing down pains, backache, shooting pains in my left side, and at times I could not touch my foot to the floor without screaming. I was short of breath, had smothered spells, felt dull and draggy all the time. I could not do any work, and oh how I dreaded to have an operation.

"I received a letter full of kind advice, which I followed, and if I had only written her a year ago I would have been saved so much suffering, for today I am a well woman. I am now keeping house again and do every bit of my own work. Every one in this part of the country knows it was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that has restored me to health, and everywhere I go I recommend it to suffering women."—Mrs. Lizzie Scott, Buckner, Mo.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Woman's Realm

"The very fact that the Young Women's Christian association has come to be looked upon as a power for civic good and improvement is a challenge to the association to live up to the ideals set up for it by the public and for the board of women directing its management to use their association wisely and well that the very best may be obtained and the needs of the community be met," said Miss Frances M. Crittenden, city secretary of the Northwest territorial committee of the Y. W. C. A. this afternoon in a talk on "The Challenge to the Young Women's Christian Association" at the luncheon given at the association building for some one hundred women interested in the work of the institution.

"The fact that the association building and equipment are a gift of the public is a challenge to the board to keep the faith of the public and as they do this the business men and all citizens will recognize the importance of the work and the ability of the women of the board to whom the work is entrusted to make good in their responsibility and the work of financing the institution will be cheerfully taken up."

Mrs. R. H. Passmore of Minneapolis, chairman of the finance department of the association, also gave an interesting talk on "Motive Powers of Successful Financial Work." "I believe," she said, "that we have been looking at the financial question from a wrong standpoint. We should not feel that we are begging when we ask for financial aid for such a work as that of the Young Women's Christian association, but rather that we are offering a privilege to those approached in giving them an opportunity to help do the uplift work of the world. We should never go with an apologetical air, but with the thought that we are working with God for the betterment of mankind and therefore our asking is justified. The supreme end of the Young Women's Christian association can only be obtained through spiritual methods and this thought must stand behind any successful work. Everything which elevates social conscience, which purifies administration and sanctifies laws, every method of this sort becomes an avenue to lead women and girls to the highest life and this is the chief aim of the association."

"Be filled with enthusiasm," she said, "know that your work is right and then you cannot fail in the successful carrying on of your work."

Mrs. W. A. McGonagle, president of the association, presided at the luncheon, and the plan of the eight-day campaign for the raising of $8,000 for the running expenses of the association for the year, which will be commenced Thursday under the leadership of ten captains, was unfolded to the guests by her and Miss Nettie E. Trimble, general secretary of the association, who responded with a valuable talk on the methods of financing such work and workers for the campaign volunteered their time and energies.

The ten captains for the campaign are: Mrs. W. A. McGonagle, Mrs. W. C. Agnew, Mrs. T. L. Chapman, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. G. H. Claypool, Mrs. A. C. Taylor, Mrs. Watson S. Moore, Mrs. E. T. Hughes, Mrs. J. A. Waterworth, Mrs. Fred H. White and Mrs T. J. Davis.

Pretty bouquets of pink and white flowers were used on the luncheon table.

A complimentary banquet will also be given at the association building to the young women of the city tomorrow evening, at which talks will be given to interest them in their work and in the membership campaign for 600 members which will be conducted in connection with the $8,000 campaign.

THE EVENING STORY

KIND ASSISTANCE

"I don't like him, I never did like him, and I never shall like him!" declared Miss Cissie Walker mutinously.

"Oh, you'll get to like him after you've been married to 'im for eight or ten years," returned her father easily. "What 'ave you got against poor Teddy, I'd like to know? 'E can offer you a good 'one, and 'e's a nice domesticated sort of chap."

"Yes, it's a pity he isn't more manly—like George Kent!" retored his daughter.

"That's enough of George Kent!" snapped her sire. "I've told you time and time again, that you're never to mention 'is name to me. Why when you can 'ave Teddy, you should go 'ankering after George Kent, is more than I can understand!"

"I hate Teddy," cried Miss Walker.

"That won't prevent 'im making you a good 'usband. By the way, I asked 'im to call round this evening. Like as not 'e'll propose to you again tonight, and if you go and refuse 'im again, I shall 'ave something to say about it!"

Mr. Walker, having delivered this ultimatum, left the room. His daughter promptly put on her hat and hurried out secretly to seek solace from the unfavored George Kent.

She met him as he was coming from his work. Within five minutes they had decided to remove all obstacles to their speedy union, and thereafter the name of "Teddy Marsh" cropped up in their talk with great persistency.

That gentleman had been in the house some time when Miss Walker returned, and the sweetness with which she greeted him caused both her father and Mr. Marsh pleasurable surprise.

Presently, Mr. Walker, rising from the table, said something about going to take a pair of boots to be mended. Winking at Mr. Marsh, he begged his guest to make himself at home until his return.

For a few moments there was silence. Then Mr. Marsh, rising very deliberately, crossed to Miss Walker, and knelt before her.

"What—again?" laughed the girl.

"Again," he answered. "I'm going to keep on and on till you say 'yes,' Cissie, will you 'ave me?"

To his joy, Miss Walker did not reply with the usual swift negative.

"If I were to marry you," she murmured, "what about poor father?"

"Why, we'd come and live with us," replied Mr. Marsh. "That was all arranged long ago by 'im."

"He wouldn't come," said Miss Walker sadly; "he'd just go on living alone here—and I couldn't bear that. Now, if only I could see him happily married the same day as us, I'd know he'd be all right. But he won't be married, and that's what keeps me from saying 'yes' to you."

"You can't make a man get married against 'is will," pointed out Mr. Marsh. "It would be a rotten world, if you could."

"But it wouldn't be against his will," replied Miss Walker. "He'd like to get married again, and, you would like him to get married, too. He's made up his mind already as far as that. He's been in love with someone for months, and hasn't got the courage to speak to her about it."

"Oo's the lucky lady?" queried Mr. Marsh curiously.

"Why, Mrs. Jones, the widow down in the High street."

"Mrs. Jones!" cried Mr. Marsh, in blank amazement. "Why, 'e can't bear 'er! 'E's told me so a dozen times."

"That's only his artfulness. He's only shy, he doesn't want anyone to guess. And if you really wanted to marry me, Teddy, you'd assist him to woo her."

"She doesn't want no wooing," said Mr. Marsh ungallantly. "I never see such an old man-'unter. She's 'ad a shot for every man in the parish. And your father's too shy to speak to 'er?"

He laughed uproariously at the notion. Miss Walker joined i his mirth but from other causes.

"Oh, no," she said quickly; "and you mustn't say anything to him, Teddy. It's a secret, you see, and he'd guess I'd been telling you. The best thing you can do is to step down to Mrs. Jones and open her eyes a bit. Then she'll help him along."

"Wouldn't she just—if she 'ad the faintest inkling!" agreed Mrs. Marsh. "And if this wedding comes off you'll marry me?"

"On the very day my father marries Mrs. Jones I'll marry you. Only promise me one thing—you won't mention my name at all to either of them? If you do, I'll never speak to you again."

"I'll say I twigged it all for myself," responded Mr. Marsh airily. "So long! I'll go and see Mrs. Jones at once and be back directly."

Mr. Walker returning twenty minutes later frowned angrily at beholding his daughter alone.

"What 'ave you been saying to make Teddy run away?" he queried hotly.

"Nothing," she answered. "He just jumped up suddenly and went off without a word."

"Did you refuse 'im again, after all I told you?"

"No; I said I'd marry him."

"It's a joy!" declared Mr. Walker, returning to good humor. "It's turned 'is brain!"

"Then it must have turned it before I said I'd marry him," replied the graceless Miss Walker.

"He's been carrying on in such a funy way—laughing and making faces and dancing about. I don't think he's quite himself tonight. I was quite frightened to be left alone with him."

Before Mr. Walker could say more there was a rap at the door and Mr. Marsh entered. He stood awhile to eye Mr. Walker archly; then, with great deliberation, he approached that gentleman and elaborately dug him in the ribs.

"It's all right," said Mr. Marsh boistcrously.

"I know it is," responded Mr. Walker. "I can see that from your face without needing any one to tell me."

"You've guessed what Ive been up to, then?" asked Mr. Marsh, in surprise.

"Yes—fixing up a wedding some day, of course!"

"Quite right!" chuckled Mr. Marsh. "Quite right! You artful old dog!"

"What on earth are you talking about, Teddy?" demanded Mr. Walker.

"Mighty innocent we are!" chirruped Mr. Marsh. "But you don't take 'em in! Fancy you being shy—but, there, don't you be shy any longer. You're all right, I tell you."

"Teddy," said Mr. Walker, repressing himself with difficulty, "tell me what you mean?"

"Why," replied Mr. Marsh, with the air of a benefactor, "I could see you was in love all the time, and, as you was too shy to speak to the lady, I went to 'er and spoke for you. And she says there's no call whatever for you to be shy, because she's always admired you, and she's coming up 'ere to see you 'erself in a few minutes."

Mr. Walker's gaze wandered dazedly from the speaker to Miss Walker, and back to Mr. Marsh.

"Are you trying to pull my leg, Teddy?" he asked.

"Not a bit of it! 'Ere, what do you think I did? I took that pot of geraniums off your window-sill and said you'd sent it to 'er with your love. Ain't you glad it's all settled? She's as good as engaged to you now. She said so 'erself."

"She? She?" murmured Mr. Walker. "And 'oo is 'she'?"

"Why, Widow Jones, of course!"

"That old thing!" cried Mr. Walker hoarsely. "Whatever put such an idea into your silly 'ead?" Mr. Marsh dismayed by his host's truculence, glanced towards Miss Walker. A significant frown on that young lady's brow reminded him of his promise and the cost of breaking it.

"I—I could see 'ow it was for myself," he replied. "Anyone could. Mrs. Jones said she's noticed it 'erself for months past."

At reception of the name of Jones, Mr. Walker gave way to a fit of unfeigned horror. With rapid changes of zoological simile, he likened her unto a cat, a harpy, a bird of prey, and a leech.

"You clear out!" he yelled at Mr. Marsh, when he had finished, in a voice thick with passion. "I don't want ever to see you again! Whether you're off your 'ead or not, I don't know; but I do know, I ain't going to let my daughter 'ave anything to do with a chap 'oo plays like this!"

"But—" began Mr. Marsh, about to explain. He said no more, for Mr. Walker took a quick step towards him, and, at that, Mr. Marsh opened the door and scuttled swiftly down the road.

"And now I suppose old Mother Jones'll be coming up 'ere before long to see me," said Mr. Walker, in a hollow voice, returning to the room and throwing himself wretchedly into a chair. "She'll get me—I know she will! She's an artful old geezer, if ever there was one!"

A knock at the door sent a shudder through him. The visitor entered, and proved to be George Kent.

In his desire for help and sympathy, Mr. Walker sank all animosity towards that gentleman, and wretchedly began to tell him of the awful predicament in which Mr. Marsh had placed him.

"I'm done for!" he groaned, in misery.

Once again there was a knock at the door. Mr. Kent stole softly across the room and shot home the bolt. After a moment the knock was repeated a little more vigorously. Within the room there prevailed a tense silence.

"I'm a goner!" announced Mr. Walker woefully. Mr. Kent decided that the psychological moment had come.

"Look here!" he exclaimed. "If I get you out of this trouble, can I marry Cissie?"

"Anything—everything," promised Mr. Walker, in desperate eagerness.

"Right," said Mr. Kent. "Now, you get under the table out of sight, and leave the rest to me."

Mr. Walker wriggled beneath the table, with a celerity wonderful in one of his years. Waiting till the concealment was fully effected, Mr. Kent interrupted a further fusillade from the knocker by opening the door.

"Ah, I fancied I heard someone tapping," he observed pleasantly.

"I've come to see Mr. Walker," said the redoubtable Mrs. Jones.

"Mr. Walker? He's out."

"But I sent him a message to say I was coming to see 'im."

"He didn't get any message. I'm sorry we kept you waiting so long; but we didn't like to open the door at first, because we thought it was Teddy Marsh come back."

"Teddy Marsh?" exclaimed Mrs. Jones.

"Yes, haven't you heard? Poor Teddy's had a stroke or something—gone clean off his head. Of course, he may be better tomorrow, but just now he doesn't know what he's doing. He's going about saying and doing the silliest things."

"What?" cried Mrs. Jones.

"First of all, he came up to me, and told me he was going to be 'Queen of the May'," went on the inventive Mr. Kent. "Wanted me to marry him. Then he wanted Cissie here to say she'd marry the pope, if he asked her. Then he told Mr. Walker that old Miss Foster was madly in love with him and wanted badly to be Mrs. Walker. He's got marrying on the brain, poor Teddy has."

Mrs. Jones stood staring at Mr. Kent, without trusting herself to speak.

"Last we saw of Teddy," continued Mr. Kent," he'd stolen the pot of geraniums off of Mr. Walker's window-sill, and was running down the road with it, laughing like mad."

For a time neither of them spoke.

"Yes—well, I'm sorry Mr. Walker's out," said Mr. Kent brightly, at last. "Did you want to see him particularly?"

"Oh, it wasn't anything of importance," she replied, in a hard voice —"nothing at all. It's Teddy Marsh I want to see!" she stated grimly.

She went off with a curt "Good-night." And Mr. Walker, vastly relieved, came from his hiding place.

"That's all right," he sighed. "Thanks for your kind assistance—er —George, my boy!"

"And thanks for yours," replied Mr. Kent, with a glance towards Miss Walker.

A strain of jubilation crept into the proceedings, and before many minutes Mr. Walker and Mr. Kent were on the best of terms. Only once was there an interruption to the high spirits.

A sudden crash was heard outside the door. The door being opened, there was revealed, lying on the threshold, the fragments of a flower pot.

DIVISION IN SOCIALISTS

Radical and Conservative Elements Compete, the Latter Getting Lead.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 14.—"Progressive opportunists" and "immediate revolutionists" opposed each other at the opening of today's session of the Socialist national convention. This was the division of the 290 delegates upon the election of platform and resolutions committees, won by the "opportunists," or conservatives, led by Congressman Victor Berger of Wisconsin, and Charles Edward Russell of New York, by large majorities.

Determined not to alienate trades unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor by adopting a platform approving the "labor unit" scheme of the Industrial Workers of the World, the platform committee, the majority's leaders said, would submit a plan of action reiterating the Socialist "program," but ignoring the demand of the revolutionary wing for an immediate upset of the capitalistic system and taking over of the means of production by the "workers."

Haywood Asks Vote.

A show of hands was expected upon the request of William D. Haywood, a leader of the Industrial Workers and a member of the executive committee of the Socialist party, that the executive committee report at once to the convention the telegraphic plea for an appropriation in support of the "free speech fight" at San Diego, Cal. The executive committee has already authorized an appeal to the 5,000 local Socialist organizations for financial aid in the defense of 100 or more men arrested in San Diego charged with inciting riots, but Congressman Berger has announced that the "old line" Socialists will block, if they can, any further support of "direct action" campaigns instigated by the Industrial Workers at San Diego or elsewhere.

Has Duncan's Support.

Mayor L. J. Duncan of Butte, Mont., an avowed "revolutionary," elected to the platform committee, said he would support Haywood and sympathizers with the Industrial Workers among the men and women on the convention floor in advocating the forming of one great national industrial union that could strike immediately and effectively for the overthrow of capitalism and the realization of Socialistic ideals.

CONVENTION OF WOODMEN

Tonight at the Foresters hall, Fourth avenue west and First street, Modern Woodmen representing all the camps in Minnesota will inaugurate a movement against the new rates, which are claimed to be unfair. It is hoped the movement will spread to every camp in the United States.

The meeting tonight will be really a county convention of the Woodmen of St. Louis county. There will be delegates from all parts of the county, both the ranges and the smaller country towns.

It is claimed that 90 per cent of the members of the organization in this county are against the raise in rates which was adopted, it is claimed, without authority or without consulting the members, by the head camp at Chicago last January.

Tonight it is hoped to form a permanent organization to fight the new rates. A form will probably be adopted which will be sent broadcast over the United States, the object being to get a referendum vote against the new rates.

Members state that the new rates are unfair because they place the older members of the organization on an equal footing with new members. Under the new rates, the older members would be forced to pay in proportion to their ages at the present time rather than on the basis of their years at the time of entering the society.

MEAT INSPECTION GETS CRITICISMS

Washington, May 14.—J. W. Burroughs, a former meat inspector in the government service, continued before the house committee on expenditures in the agricultural department today his charges as to unwholesome conditions in meat packing establishments where he had been stationed. He said frequent changes of regulations by the bureau of animal industry confused the inspectors. He charged that Roesche & Co., in Philadelphia, and Pfund's in Germantown, Pa., had been granted government inspection in violation of regulations before their plants had been put in sanitary condition.

Ship Uninspected Meat.

The witness alleged that under the regulations butchers were able to ship uninspected meat in interstate traffic.

Representative Nelson, who is urging the investigation of the meat inspection service, asked the witness if he ever had been entertained by packers while in the government employ. Mr. Burroughs produced an invitation to an entertainment in Washington tendered by the American Meat Packers' association to inspectors.

Chairman Moss and Representative Sloan declined to permit Mr. Nelson to make public the nature of these entertainments. They permitted him to produce the matter for the committee's inspection.

BAER SUBPOENAED BY CONGRESSMEN

Washington, May 14.—George F. Baer, president of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, today was subpoenaed by the house judiciary committee as a witness in the investigation of charges against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court.

Mr. Baer will be asked about a sale of culm dump property negotiated by John Henry Jones through W. J. Richards, vice president and superintendent of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal company. Jones testified that out of his commission on this transaction he made Judge Archbald a present of $250 because he had accommodated him in negotiating $500 on a note. Richards also has been subpoenaed.

The committee took a recess today owing to the consideration in the house of the anti-injunction bill. Beginning tomorrow, it is planned to hold night sessions of the committee to expedite the inquiry.

SUPERIOR

Memorial Day Plans.

Decoration day services will be conducted in the Superior high school auditorium this year. The members of Alonzo Palmer, and Hector Swift camps will assemble at the auditorium, following their return from the cemetery. The Salvation Army band will also take part in the program.

Coal Strike Affects Superior.

The strike of the hard coal miners has interfered to some extent with the operations of the Great Lakes Dredge & Dock company of this city. The contract for the erection of a coal shed and the equipment of a dock with modern hard coal machinery is now being held up on account of the strike. The proposed improvement will cost $15,000.

Advocate Theater Censors.

Superior ministers have risen against immoral shows and are now advocating a censor committee to pass upon every production before it appears in any of the Superior theaters. This action is now being planned following the presentation of an immoral burlesque show at Duluth Sunday evening.

Board Grants Request.

The board of education last evening granted the university extension division the use of several rooms in the Blaine school building, in which classes may be heard after the establishing of the division in this city. The promoters of the branch appeared before the board at its regular monthly meeting and urged the establishing of the branch in one of the schools.

Trial Postponed.

Because of the absence of a material witness, the case of Charles Loewe, who was to have come up in superior court on a charge of arson, has been put over until next Monday morning.

NEIGHBORS' FEUD AIRED

Mrs. Mary Cain Has Many Grievances Against Harry Gould.

A neighborhood feud, interspersed with frequent allusions to bad language and spite work and involving quarrels over fences, back gardens and cattle, is being aired before Judge Dancer and a jury in district court today.

The case is one in which Mary Cain is suing Harry Gould for damages. Mrs. Cain is a widow and has a long list of grievances against Mr. Gould, which total up to $1,500. She is asking the court for a judgment for that amount against Gould.

Mrs. Cain claims ownership of certain property on Duluth Heights situated near the head of the incline railway. She declares that Gould came on the property, tore down the fences and let in his cattle to feed on her garden truck.

The widow declared that she remonstrated with Mr. Gould, but that in response she was struck on the head by a wooden post. In addition, she alleges that Mr. Gould contaminated her water supply from a spring by putting refuse in the stream above the source of supply.

A number of witnesses are in court and will probably be called by both sides. Haroldson & Colton are attorneys for Mrs. Cain and Fryberger & Fulton are defending Mr. Gould.

The defense will be a general denial of the accusations made by Mrs. Cain and witnesses will be put on to testify that the widow is of a quarrelsome disposition and that she is a "trouble maker" in the neighborhood.

TALK OF THE RED CROSS IN REVOLTS

Washington, May 14.—Doubt as to the disposition of a report by Joshua R. Clark, Jr., solicitor of the United States state department, suggesting plans for the possible use of a foreign Red Cross in case of civil war or revolution within a country, filled the minds of the delegates to the international Red Cross conference when they assembled today.

On account of the delicacy of the questions involved and the "political" gravity of the subject, as Gen. Yermoloff, Russian delegates expressed it, the opinion was given by many of the delegates that this phase of possible activity should not be discussed or voted on, at least not at this conference. An international committee has been considering the problem for some time.

Mr. Clark's suggestion was that in time of armed sedition in a country, the Red Cross societies of other countries should offer their services, agreeing to conform in all the aid they would render with an international agreement which would prevent favoritism being shown.

On today's program also were reports of Red Cross work in Argentina, Servia, Urugay, Spain, Greece, France, Cuba, Germany and the United States.

GARY DINNERS ARE MENTIONED

New York, May 14.—When the hearings in the government's suit to dissolve the United States Steel corporation were resumed today, James T. MacFarland, a tin plate jobber of North Philadelphia, testified that he was forced to assign to the American Tin Plate company many private brands of goods with a stipulation that he would not buy his tin plate elsewhere.

Later, he said, the American Tin Plate company offered rebates on condition that the jobbers purchase their tin plate entirely from it. "And if we forfeited our brands," he continued, "we lost our business reputation."

Howard M. Davis of Philadelphia, formerly a sales manager of the American Tin Plate company and previously with the American Tin Plate company of Elwood, Ind., D. G. Reid's first company, testified that the consolidation controlled about 95 per cent of the industry.

Davis said he represented the American Tin Plate company and the American Sheet Steel company at meetings of tin plate and sheet steel manufacturers in Pittburg in 1907 and later gave an account of how the manufacturers came to "understandings" on prices. When the "understanding" were violated, he said the offender would be investigated, another meeting called, and another understanding reached. The meetings, Davis thought, were held shortly after the Gary dinners.

When R. V. Lindabury, attorney for the Steel corporation objected to Davis' answer as "hearsay evidence" on the ground that the witness had never attended the Gary dinners, Judge Dickinson retorted:

"We'll have to establish the dates of those dinners later. We are going into that subject qute thoroughly."

WISCONSIN HOME RULE LAW VOID

Madison, Wis., May 14.—The supreme court today declared unconstitutional the law permitting cities of Wisconsin authority to legislate for all matters not prohibited by the Constitution or general laws. The law was known as the home rule measure and was fathered by civic clubs of Milwaukee. Under the court's decision the constitutional amendment is the only way by which cities may acquire "home rule."

HARMON WILL SPEAK ONLY IN THE EVENING.

Columbus, Ohio, May 14.—Governor Judson Harmon will continue his answer to W. J. Bryan's attacks when he speaks tonight at Zanesville. The governor's tour of the state in the interests of his presidential candidacy will be more leisurely than those of the Republican candidates, in that he intends to speak publicly only at night. During the day he will hold conferences with the active Harmon supporters in the Democratic ranks.

At his headquarters it was said his speech at Wooster last night was the only one he had prepared, and that he would speak extemporaneously for the remainder of the week.

SUGAR TRUST CASE BEGINS

New York, May 14.—The taking of testimony in the Federal action for the dissolution of the American Sugar Refining company was commenced here today by Special Examiner Wilson B. Brice.

The suit, as was that against the Steel corporation, is brought under the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law. The trial is expected to offer fewer features of poular interest than that of the Steel corporation, because most of the evidence sought by the government is understood to be of a documentary nature. There will be many witnesses called in the sugar case, but their principal function will be to identify documents.

WHEAT HAS MIXED CLOSE

Flaxseed Market Is Inactive But Value of Seed Makes Advance.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 14.—The value of wheat on the markets of North America at the close today was not greatly changed from what it was at the close yesterday, some futures being slightly above and others slightly below what they were twenty-four hours ago. Duluth May closed unchanged, July ⅛c to ¼c up and September ⅜c down. Cash wheat closed ½o under the May price. Durum was ½c up, oats ¼c off and rye and barley unchanged. Duluth May flax closed at an advance of 1½c, but July closed unchanged.

Wheat during the earlier part of the morning was rather weak by reason of bearish news. The weather reports from various parts of this country and Canada were favorable to the growing crops. There was a report of the expected release of a vast accumulation of wheat and other grains from the Dardenelles. The weather reports from Argentina were very favorable. But, later in the morning came the Bradstreet's report, showing a decrease for one week of more than 10,000,000 bu in the visible wheat supply of the United States and Canada, and a decrease of nearly 9,000,000 bu in the visible wheat supply of the world. This caused some reaction from the comparatively low prices of the early part of the morning. American primary receipts of wheat today were a little less than they were a year ago.

Duluth July wheat, which closed yesterday at $1.16⅝ asked, opened today at $1.16¾ asked, and then had a further decline during the morning but at noon was quoted again at $1.16⅝. Minneapolis and Winnipeg wheat at noon today were still lower than yesterday's close, but Chicago was a little above it.

Wheat on the Liverpool market today closed ¼d to ⅞d lower in spite of continued reports of unfavorable crop weather in Russia. The principal bearish factors were the expected release of a large quantity of wheat in the Dardenelles, good crop weather reports from Argentina, and favorable crop reports from India.

Flax Dull and Strong.

Although there was little buying of flaxseed on the Duluth market today, the price went up, as offers were very scarce. The market was very dull and hardly any trading took place. Just now crushers are buying very little flaxseed on account of the extremely high price, and oil buyers likewise are pursuing a hand-to-mouth policy. The same condition pervades the flaxseed trade as is to be found in the wheat and flour business and in most other lines. People are buying with extreme conservatism, because they do not wish to be caught with large quantities of produce on their hands in the event of a break in the price. At noon today Duluth May flax was up half a cent at $2.27. Winnipeg May was unchanged at $1.97. Minneapolis today was bidding, as usual, 3c under the Duluth May price for cash flaxseed. Flaxseed on the market at Buenos Ayres closed last night at $1.78⅞, or 1c lower for the May option. Calcutta flaxseed on the London market for May and June delivery closed today at $2.28⅛ or 1¾c lower.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Bearish Sentiment in Wheat Pit on Price Differences.

Chicago, May 14.—Bearish sentiment pervaded the wheat crowd today largely because prices here were higher than at Liverpool and 8 cents over Kansas City. Talk was current of a return to the dollar level if present Southwestern prospects continued. Dispatches, however, telling of damage done by the army worm in Texas and elsewhere tended to keep the market from more than moderate decline. The opening was the same as last night to ⅝c down. July started at $1.12 to $1.12½, a fall of ⅛c to ⅝c and steadied around $1.12¼.

An upturn ensued on reports of big cash sales here. Unloading futures afterward by a leading house carried prices lower than before, but the market again rallied. The close was steady with July ⅛c higher at $1.12⅝.

The fact that the weather over night proved less severe than expected gave the corn market a setback at the outset. Offerings, though, were not large and gradually prices again hardened. July opened unchanged to ⅛c off at 76⅝c to 76⅞c and rallied to 77⅛c.

Subsequently a decided fall occurred as a result of cash weakness due to the industrial demand here having been fully supplied. The market, however, recovered later with wheat. Closing prices were firm at 78⅛c for July a gain of ¼c net.

Commission house selling weakened oats until corn showed power to recuperate. July started ⅛c to ¼c lower at 52c to 53c, but reacted to 53⅛c.

Provisions rose in sympathy with an advance at the yards. Initial trades ranged from last night's figures to 5c dearer, with September delivery $19.52½ for pork, $11.00 for lard and $10.60@10.62½ to $10.65 for ribs.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

United States Steel Heads Market in Strength and Activity.

Abrupt Rise in International Harvester on Reported Suit Settlement.

New York, May 14. — Buying of the anthracite coal stocks was the prominent feature at the opening of today's stock market. Lehigh Valley soon rose 1¼ with a substantial fractional gain over Reading. Canadian Pacific made a new high record with an over-night gain of 1½. American Sugar was the strongest of the industrials, advancing 1½. United States Steel and the other metal stocks showed underlying strength. There was some weakness in International Harvester, Republic Iron & Steel and Rock Island preferred.

Profit-taking met the rise in the coal road stocks, but neither Lehigh Valley nor Reading yielded materially, while many of the other standard shares made further gains. United States Steel was the chief feature of this group, advancing 2 points on extensive offerings.

Canadian Pacific soon advanced to its record price of the opening and was followed by a smart rise in Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, one of its controlled companies. Sears-Roebuck rose over 5 points, attaining its best figure since last year's capital readjustment.

Great Northern Ore certificates, Wheeling and Lake Erie first preferred, Louisville & Nashville, National Biscuit and Union Bag & Paper issues all rose substantially, but the better known railway issues as a whole participated only slightly in the movement.

United States Steel led the market during the morning session both in strength and activity. The rise partook largely of a drive against the short interest, which had grown in the last few days by reason of the government's inquiry against that corporation. The fact that prices of many manufactured products in steel and iron have recently been advanced was a helpful factor. There was further realizing in Lehigh Valley and Reading, with reactions in American Can common and preferred, whose speculative connections with the coal stocks is generally understood. American Tobacco and International Harvester also displayed some heaviness while the lesser known specialties were prominent with gains that ranged from 1 to over 2 points. Trading diminished towards noon, with a hesitant undertone.

The bond market was irregular except for a rise of almost 4 points in the Dupont Powder company 4½s bonds.

Further buying of United States Steel sent the price up to 71¼ during the noon hour, with some recessions later, while the more active stocks of the early session were subjected to some pressure.

There was a demand for New York Central and Union Pacific, which advanced them a point or more. Missouri Pacific also developed some strength and the undertone grew more irregular.

An abrupt rise of almost 5 points in International Harvester gave color to the old report of a probable settlement of the suit instituted by the government, but of his there was no confirmation. Announcement of another advance in the price of copper failed to strengthen the copper shares to appreciable extent. Sears-Roebuck added substantially to its previous rise, and Rock Island preferred, National Biscuit and International Paper, common and preferred, all went to better prices than in the early session.

The market closed strong. Dullness ruled in the last hour, which was notable chiefly for a further rise in Canadian Pacific and one to five allied roads and some heaviness in Lehigh Valley and American Cans. American Tobacco more than made up its previous loss and there was renewed strength in Union Pacific.

MARINE

MANY BOATS IN SERVICE

Heavy Tonnage for Eastbound Movement Gives Season Good Aspect.

In marine circles the business of the new season has advanced to the stage at which there are cargoes in plenty, but little of interest outside the general routine and rush both up and down the lakes for cargoes.

At the present time there are more boats in commission and there is more work for them to do eastbound than in many seasons past at this time of the year.

The out-pouring of grain from the local elevators continues as fast as the boats can make the local port. A great amount of ore is being shipped from both the Missabe and the Allouez docks. Lumber hookers have all they can do, and the only complant is from those who wish coal cargoes for the return trip and are unable to get them because of the difficulties between the mine owners and the miners.

This phase of lake navigation is the only thing that mars the present season and prevents it from being the greatest opening since the rush years of several seasons ago.

There is now more tonnag on the lakes than in busy years formerly and were it not for the scarcity of coal cargoes, some records would surely be broken.

Boats that have been idle for two seasons have been fitted out and are making regular trips. The old Quebec channel, or the "mud hole" as it is sometimes called by marine men, the place where many of the idle boats lay up, is about cleaned out. Nearly all of the boats are in service and it is probable that the four remaining will be in use before the first of the month.

It is thought that coal will be moving freely by June 1 and if this proves true there will be work in plenty for all the boats both going and coming.

While there have been several cargoes of soft coal received since the opening of navigation, not one cargo of hard coal has yet been delvered at the local docks.

The package freight business is rushing both ways and several cargoes of steel rails have been delivered in the last week.

The passenger business will begin about June 1 and from that time on the 1912 season of navigation will be in full swing in all lines.

J. A. STETSON
FARM AND MINERAL LANDS
MORTGAGE LOANS

Deerwood, Minn., May 1, 1912.

Business Manager,
The Duluth Herald:

It may interest you to know that out of several hundred newspapers in which I am advertising farm lands I am getting by all odds the best results from The Duluth Herald. Some of the answers I get are from Iowa, Nebraska, California, Washington and other remote points.

From one short description I have got as many as 32 answers. The results from my advertising of Cuyuna range iron lands in The Herald have been better than I could possibly expect.

Perhaps two of the reasons why I get such splendid service from The Herald is because it is doing so much to acquaint its readers with the grand agricultural opportunities in Northern Minnesota and has the best news service of any newspaper from the Cuyuna iron range.

My hat's off to The Herald as an advertising medium. It gives me results ten to one over any of the daily newspapers of Minneapolis and St. Paul.. Sincerely yours,

J. A. STETSON.
